We quickly packed up everyone and fled to our vehicle. While going to our vehicle, we came near to an area where the water had once been. There was a glob of sludge made up of oil and tar mixed with a human skull, some old boots, and some trash. It had a horrible stench to it.

As we were leaving, I glanced back towards the shore as my husband drove our vehicle. As the day was sunny and beautiful, I noticed that people were now even picnicking out where the water once was. I then noticed that, somehow, the mossy seaweed had already turned to grass.

People seemed to be relaxing and having a fun time when, just then, we saw a massive wave approaching in the distance, larger than anything I had ever seen before. The wave was at least a hundred and fifty feet high.

Dream description over...

Father, these dreams were so real.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately at God's door. I felt a hand on my left shoulder, so I turned and saw that it was Uriel. Uriel had a small beautiful bird on his shoulder, which I instantly recognized from a past visit to Heaven.

Uriel: "God requests your presence, Erin."

He reached over, put salve in my eyes and ushered me into God's presence. I heard the beautiful choir singing, 'Holy, Holy, Holy!' I could not help but be moved to tears at the voices of these angels. The incredible perfection of their sound was unlike anything under Heaven or on Earth.

The light from the Throne of God was intense in magnitude and power as His glory is greater than the sun. His Throne shone on the sapphire sea, which in turn reflected and created something like aura borealis in emerald, blues and gold. It was incredible, but difficult to describe as I am limited in my capacities to describe the indescribable.

When my legs could no longer stand, I fell to my knees in worship to God. I listened to the Heavenly choir praise God. I lifted my hands to thank God for all we have. I thanked Him for calling me friend even though I do not feel worthy to be called friend at times.

I long for Him, but yet I complain when I do not see His work in my life come immediately as I pray for it. I repented of my error in thinking and asked Him to fill my remaining days here with a zeal for Him. I asked for His Will to be done on Earth as it is in Heaven. I thanked Him for His beauty and provision.

I worshipped Him for some time there and could feel my energy being restored. The choir seemed like the voices of a thousand angels. I am not sure of exactly how many more angels there were and there could even be more or less than a thousand. Regardless, this was simply incredible to hear.

God: "Erin, you are my friend. I call you friend."

Me: "Thank You, Father, but I do not always feel like I am that much of a friend to You."

God: "Erin, you are here seeking Me and are looking to Me for your confirmation. Here I will be found by you.

"Now, the church is asleep and they are lukewarm. They enjoy their place, so you cannot wake them up to prepare them for what is to come despite your best efforts. The churches which are asleep have compromised their first love. The churches now serve both men's sins and mammon and no longer serve Me.

"However, those churches who keep their eyes fixed on Me and stand in My laws and commandments will be spared from what comes. Each house should stand on the foundations of My Word, but many stand on shifting sand.

"I sent My cornerstone, My Son. What house can stand without Him? The structure would collapse. What does the roof over them cover them from? Who is the cover over their houses?"

Me: "Father, Jesus is our foundation and our cover and many others claim to stand on the solid rock of Jesus."

God: "This is good. However, it is one thing to praise Me in good times, but it is another thing to praise Me in times of trouble too."

Me: "Father, I am guilty of this at times as I wonder if I am on the right course. It is easy to praise You in good times, but it is harder when trouble comes to see You in the midst of it."

God: "I am with you and I will deliver you in both good times and bad times. I am in the eye of the storm. I am the cool relief in scorching heat. I am the fountain spring in stagnant waters. I am the tender shoot in a sun scorched land.

"Erin, call out to Me in both good times and bad times. I will be there as I am with you, so do not be afraid. I have you, Erin, so allow Me to carry you."

Me: Crying. "Thank You, Father. Please be with all of my friends and their families too. Bless them and send Heavenly angels to protect them in all of their ways. If it be Your Will, please heal all of us who are sick or troubled. Strengthen us for what comes. Please pour out the gifts of miracles over us, Father, so we can testify to who You are in the midst of these mighty storms."

God: "I have sent calamity upon the lands. This should wake up those who I will call one final time. Then I will do more. I will grant you your requests, but in My timing and for My glory. Do not be discouraged or dismayed when things do not seem to move on your timing.

"Remain focused on who I am. Suddenly, and without warning, I will deliver on My promises to you. The enemy seeks your discouragement, but you must focus on Me. Do not listen to naysayers, understand?"

Me: "Yes, Father."

God: "Now, people are comfortable right where they are from their pews. They are sleeping. They do not see what is happening. You must pray that they wake before the great and terrible day is upon them. This is enough for today."

I felt Uriel's hand on my shoulder as I rose to my feet.

Me: "Father, please be with us. Do not forsake us. Please provide for us. Things are becoming difficult."

God: "I have you. I will provide abundantly for you. Do not worry. You are loved."

As Uriel was bringing me out God's door, I turned back to praise Him.

Me: Shouting. "I love You so much, Father."

I heard His thunderous laughter and it shook the ground as I walked.

God: "I love you too, Erin."

Uriel: "Erin, God showed you recently that a toad placed in boiling water will quickly jump out. However, when a toad is placed in warm water and then the flames are stoked slowly to an eventual boil, the frog then is boiled alive. The frog is unaware that the water around him was increasing to a boil, so he does not even try to escape. Many years ago, a wise counselor sent you a message from God. Do you remember it?"

Just as he spoke this, I recalled my Christian counselor warning me of a trap she saw me about to walk into. She then told me how God would eventually call me out of the desert place, speak tenderly to me and deliver me. She gave me Isaiah 30:15-23. She then spoke prophetically over me about how my race was a difficult one and how much the Lord loved me.

Me: "Yes, I remember this and it haunted me seven years ago when I had made a horrible decision. I was busy and led unto my own understanding because God was not answering fast enough. God said nothing, which I now know means 'No, for now' or 'wait'.

"However, I was impatient and lost so much because of this. I did not take the advice from Isaiah 30:15, 'In repentance and rest is your salvation, in quietness and trust is your strength'. I would have none of it and I made horrible mistakes as a result."

Uriel: "This was brought to your attention because you no longer do as you once did. You no longer conform to man's wishes, but obey God's requests. You stand firm. Now, this is good.

"There is more to this Scripture related to the current state of the world. It begins in Isaiah 30, the 25th verse, and continues. Scholars will argue this was for an earlier time and they would be correct, but it is for the time you are in also. Do you see it?"

I then had several visions, one after another:

- The twin towers at the World Trade Center in New York collapsing.
- The sun's veil slowly being removed.
- A membrane like cellophane being removed from the Earth.
- The moon was now brighter and so was the sun.
- Heat and fires.

- Floods.
- Earthquakes.
- Then people were rising up to the mountains.

Me: "Is Isaiah 30:25-33 the time from now until the end? Is 30:25 when the towers fell and people were slaughtered by the hands of the enemy? Is 30:26 when the sun and the moon are brighter and the sun is seven times hotter? Is 30:27 speaking of the heat and fire?"

Uriel: "Yes, but also of those who speak with truth over the lost that do so with hearts ablaze for God and with zeal."

Me: "Is 30:28 speaking of floods and earthquakes?"

Uriel: "Yes, about floods as high, or higher, than the neck. God shakes the nations with destruction by several methods and sources, not just the ground from earthquakes. He allows them to be of free will and, in their mouths, are bits like horses, steering them into trouble from their own sinful desires.

"You will witness the trouble of the lost from a new vantage point. The trouble coming upon the land is like the parable of the toad. Very few are aware that the heat has been turned up by the hands of God. Soon the pot will boil, so continue to pray for those fast asleep to wake up from their lukewarm pews."

Day 20 of 21-Day Fast

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day. Thank You for my husband, my children, my family, and my friends. Thank You for Your amazing promises to me. I cling to these. I thank You for seeing something in me which, beyond my own comprehension, was a measure of worth to You. I do not see as You do, but I want to.

I spent some time today looking through a small journal I found from the year 2000 and some writings from 2003. At the time, I was completely of this world and I only poured out to You in times of need.

I thankfully recognized my errors back then, but I realized I was unable to speak truthfully. I wrote on paper what I thought You wanted to hear from me. I recognized my problems and begged to be miraculously healed or delivered from them, but I was clueless about my heart issues.

I wrote so much 'Dear Father' jargon, but did not really understand what was wrong with my own faith walk. This was my approach, which I now realize was not the way God desires us to come to Him:

I would only go to God in bad times. Then when He answered my prayers or did not fully, I would lean unto my own understanding and create a way for myself. At times, well, really, most of the time, I would then get myself into trouble. Then when I could not get out of the trouble I created for myself, I would be back on my knees.

In a way, Father, it was like reading from a tragic story. Just yesterday, I read a shortened version of the original 1940's 'Pinocchio'. This was a story that my grandmother read to me when I was a little girl. Lord, I know it was You who prompted me to read this story again.

The original story of Pinocchio is outlandish and is different than the later commercial version. The original story really was not about the lying that caused problems for Pinocchio, but rather about the situations the gullible boy would get himself into by falling into the deceptions of others.

Like my own story of foolishness, it seemed almost like a tragedy from my own journal pages written in the past when I was not truly yet a living and breathing child of God. I instead was like a puppet with an uncircumcised heart who allowed satan to be my marionette.

I too allowed others to control and deceive me because I did not know how to hear from You, Father. I did not allow You to give me life and I went through a very long, painful course on my race to arrive here as a result.

Now when I hear my children say, "Mom, I pray, but God does not answer me", I will reply, "He does not always answer in the beginning, at least loudly. However, if we press in, remain faithful in waiting and really listen, only then can we hear His still, small voice say, 'This is the way, walk in it!'"

Father, there was so much noise around me during my trials and tests. It was so difficult to hear Your voice in me. Thank You for not giving up on me. Thank You for keeping Your promises. Thank You for making a way when there truly was no way. Thank You for giving me streams in the desert places of my life.

Forgive me for the years I was angry at You for Your silence. I just did not know that You were listening all along. I did not truly know You cared to listen to me. It was not that You are a small God, but it was that I was a small person with tiny faith and mini-prayers. Father, You are the God of the 'Huge'.

When I look out my window, there is nothing that You have not created. You have breathed everything into being. There is nothing beyond You and there is no miracle too great for You. There is nothing impossible, improbable or impractical for You.

You determine our days and You know them at birth. Our mistakes do not surprise You nor do our actions cause You to change our course as You know all of this in advance. You are amazing and so awesome in power, yet You are steadfast, unchanging and secure.

However, You will also 'do a new thing!' How You do all of this simply leaves me breathless and in complete awe of all that You do. Thank You, thank You for turning all of my tears of sorrow into tears of joy. Thank You for taking my heart and using it for Your glory. I love You, Father.

I was crying as I wrote all of this in gratitude and love for His glorious ways and for being our loving Father.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately up on the overlook in God's valley by His door. There along the ridge path was the bench and, next to the bench, was the small rock with the bubbling spring. I walked over to the rock and scooped up the water in my cupped hands.

With each scoop from my hands, I felt more and more life come into me. This is difficult to describe, but the water in Heaven refreshes like nothing on Earth. After several handfuls, wherein I actually stopped counting the scoops after five, I sat down on the bench to look over the beautiful valley of God.

It was dawn and the sun had not risen yet. The sounds were incredible as there were so many different birds singing praises in unison. There were flocks of so many varieties of birds that even someone who normally had no interest in birds or wildlife would still find this scene beyond amazing.

The River of Life ran down the middle of this valley and was flanked by meadows and orchards. The area looked professionally groomed and cared for, yet I do not believe there were any professional gardeners here other than God speaking perfection into being.

In contrast, when I look out at nature on Earth, I see overgrowth, unyielding weeds, briars mixed in with raspberry bushes and insects. Here in Heaven, all is in divine perfection and complete harmony!

As I watched the flocks of birds create flight formations in unison with their praises of song, the sun began to rise over the horizon. The sun created an amazing display of color bands, wherein every color was represented and so many more colors than on Earth.

As the sun began to rise, I heard God's Heavenly choir of angels sing and I began to cry out to Him in praise and worship.

Me: "Oh Father, Heaven is Paradise and there is nothing like this on Earth. This place You have prepared for us leaves me with no words other than 'thank You!'"

I turned to look at the sunrise. Here, the sun was slow rising and slow to set and, as a result, the beauty lasted much longer in Heaven than on Earth. I had tears streaming down my cheeks as I felt a hand on my shoulder. I turned and there was Uriel smiling.

Uriel: Laughing. "Erin, you with no words? Impossible! God requests your presence. Are you ready?"

Me: "Of course! I am so excited to be in His presence."

I quickly jumped to my feet and held Uriel's forearm. Instantly we were at God's door. Uriel pointed to the forestry board. There I saw a small bag of silk blue velvet with a woven gold and silver cord. Below this was a beautiful engraved envelope with my name on it.

I stood for a moment in hesitation when I saw a tiny little brown sparrow land on the top of the board. I had seen this little bird many times. It looked at me and tilted its head. It then looked up and opened its beak to sing. The song that came out was not characteristic of a little sparrow, but more like that of a song bird.

This song was the most beautiful bird song I had ever heard. As the little bird sang, its wings changed from brown to white with silver tips. I saw its feathers change to gold from brown and its little beak became gold.

This bird looked slightly different from the bird I had seen before here, but they could have been the same bird or even just one of many. Knowing God, it could be one of many, not just one, but I was not sure. The bird continued to sing.

Uriel: "Are you going to open your note from the King, Erin?"

Me: "Oh yes, sorry. I do not want to keep Him waiting on me."

Uriel: "God is not surprised at your reaction or your delayed response."

I turned and Uriel had his arms crossed with a knowing smile. I laughed and picked up the envelope. Inside was a card and I opened it:

Erin, you are loved. I call you friend! I will restore what you have lost and that which has been stolen. I will repay you for the years the locusts have eaten; the swarming locusts, the hopping locusts, the stripping locusts and the cutting locusts. It was I who sent this great destroying army against you. Now you will know I am God! I have poured out My Spirit upon you and I will cause wonders in the Heavens and on the Earth. (Joel 2:25-28) Now be still and know I am God!

I began to cry. I knew that God had allowed all of the trouble to come against us, but it was still difficult for me to fully understand. While I was reading the card, I saw flashes of events from my past, one right after the other. I saw loss upon loss, mourning and tragedy, from the time since I was very little.

Uriel: "Erin, do not forget that you are loved and that He has called you. Did you think you would not be refined by the furnace of affliction first? Does dross need to be burned off of gold to make it pure? Now, open the small bag. You have questions and He will provide answers."

Me: "It breaks my heart that my Father would send such trouble upon me, but He knows what is best and I am thankful."

Uriel: "He has gifts for you, but, before you open them, allow me to read a message for you. This is a version written in modern terms for you from the Lord."

Erin, God, your God, will restore everything you lost; He'll have compassion on you; He'll come back and pick up the pieces from all the places where you were scattered – 33 in all. No matter how far away you end up, God, your God, will get you out of there and bring you back to the land He has promised. God, your God, will cut away the thick calluses on your heart and your children's hearts, freeing you to love God, your God, with your whole heart and soul and live, really live. And you will make a new start after your God will put curses on your enemies who hated you and were out to get you. Your new start will be given because you have been obedient to God, keeping all His commandments. God, your God, will out-do Himself in making things go well for you: "I have heard your cries and I have delivered you to a safe land; here I will prosper you. Though you search for trouble, you will not find it."

Me: Crying. "Uriel, He has already blessed us, but I am not perfect."

Uriel: "He is not requiring that which is unattainable. He asks for you to bring your best daily to Him. Do not avoid Him because you feel you are unworthy after a mistake. He is there for you. He is strong in your weakness."

Me: "You are right as only Jesus is perfect and I am not Jesus."

Uriel: "No, you are Erin and this too is good. Now, good things are waiting!"

He smiled and pointed to the little bag and God's door. I nodded and opened the little bag.

I gasped! There were several items over the years I had lost or were stolen from me:

- A few of the items there were ones that I had to pawn in order to pay the utilities when the kids and I lived in Oregon when I was sick.
- There was an old Victorian ring which my great grandmother gave me upon her death. I had lost it in a field playing with my cousins in California.
- There was my great grandfather's gold pocket watch which 'disappeared' when a relative visited years ago, along with other items.
- There were several necklaces, pearls and precious gems, as well as my small heart of gold necklace.

However, all of these items looked brand new. Each looked bigger, shinier and even better than their last seen state. I just stood there looking at these items and cried.

Me: "I find this funny as God obviously knew where all these items were the entire time. Not only that, but He has now returned them just when I thought these items were lost forever!"

I put the items back in the bag and hung them back up on the board. I then turned to face Uriel.

Me: "These are better off here for safe keeping. They had so much meaning to me once, but now just to know where they are brings me comfort."

Uriel: "Here is another one for you, Erin."

Uriel handed me another small bag and inside it were small one inch square photos. There were hundreds of these photos. I recognized faces of some of my relatives.

I began to cry when I saw a photo of my mom. I picked it up and I began to cry. It had the date of her birth, along with the date of her Heavenly birth/earthly death of September 23rd.

Me: "Tomorrow would have been my mom's 75th birthday. I miss her."

Uriel: "What was lost is now found, Erin, as she is here. Those photos are those who have been found and those you prayed for God to find. Rejoice, for God is the God who restores those who are lost and brings them Home. Now come."

He put salve in my eyes as I watched the small glorified sparrow sitting on his shoulder studying me. Seeing this made me smile. Uriel took me into God's presence.

I felt exhausted from all that I had learned and humbled by the magnitude of His presence. I barely listened to the choir as Uriel brought me to where my knees finally gave way to the gravity created by His presence.

I stayed there for some time and I poured out to God by confessing my sins to Him. I had been complaining and fearful recently as I felt I lacked faith and trust in God, Who calls me friend. I was sincerely sorry for partaking in anything the enemy sent my way which was contrary to the heart of God.

I cast away the cares of the world and the yokes the enemy convinced me to 'own up and carry' even when knowing this was against God's instructions. I apologized for treating God as if He was small and incapable to do 'God sized' things.

Me: "Father, I am so sorry. Please forgive me. I had hoped to be further along in my faith walk than apparently I am."

God: "Erin, you are right where I have you. When you are burdened, do not carry this on your own. Give your cares to Me and receive the comfort I give you. Receive the words, the promises and the gifts, for I am the giver of good gifts.

"Now, you are coming upon your 54th year, a time of restoration and renewal. You must sing, and sing loudly, because of your restoration. Your tents will be expanded. Many will return and hearts will be yielding to My call. Fear not and be not confounded for you will not be put to shame as your Maker is your Husband.

"For a moment, I have forsaken you, but with great mercies will I gather you. In overflowing wrath, I hid my face from you for a moment, but with everlasting love I will have mercy on you. My love will be with you. Though the mountains depart and the hills be removed, I am with you. Your restoration will be in full splendor. You will be like a precious jewel in My crown."

Me: Crying. "So many need to know You are still with us, Father. Many of us are discouraged as these are difficult times. My stomach is sick when watching the news. I feel we are being manipulated and fed lies."

God: "You understand the times you are in. Corruption has tentacles which are far reaching. Many people in the last days will leave the path of truth to pursue their lusts. This is the time you are in. Read what is written of the dangers of the last days that you are now witnessing."

Me: "Father, 'last days', 'times', 'seasons' and 'for a moment' are words You have given me. Can I understand Your time? Please forgive my boldness in asking this."

God: "Erin, your darkest times were like a moment to Me, but an eternity to you, correct?"

Me: "Yes."

God: "'Seasons' are seasons and there are four in a year. A 'time' is a year and 'times' are years. A 'moon cycle' is a moon cycle of days according to the markers in the Heavens above you at night. While the Author and Finisher of your faith is not the God of confusion, I have allowed time to be confused."

Me: "Why is this so unclear?"

God: "So that those of you I have called to Me will pray for wisdom and gain understanding. Read the Words of the prophets. I am punishing the land as you have been shown, yet the reporting is on manipulating the people to serve the enemy's agenda."

The floor of the Courts of God suddenly split and I saw North America below me. I again saw mighty angels over the land of the United States. I saw instability as angels hammered the land. I saw a storm from the south backing up rivers and spilling back again. I saw a storm coming up the east coast.

I saw seasons change rapidly as cold descended harshly. I saw ice, hail, snow and thunder pummeling the land. On the west coast, I saw record heat, drought and fires give way to harsh winter conditions. There was a flip flopping of snow and melt, then ice, snow and melt, causing an extreme burden on western cities.

Then, and seemingly from nowhere and at a surprising time, the land began to shake. This shaking was in northern California and up the coast.

Me: "Father, when will this be?"

God: "Soon. These times are coming. However, before the time of the great shaking, many people, because of the calamities of storms and winds, floods and more, will recognize that it is I who sends this trouble upon the land. As you know, Erin, when faced with troubles beyond your capability to control, there is only one source for comfort."

Me: "This is You, Father!"

God: "They will come and I will answer. I will send help from My Sanctuary. There will be miracles, but the news media will refuse to send truth to witness to the good news. Remember to be cautious in what you hear and to discern what you view. It is false and misleading and many are swayed. While the trouble continues on the cursed land, many will fail to notice the rest of the world. Pray for Israel. Pray for the lost, Erin, so they will be found by Me."

Me: "I will, Father. Please continue to protect us. Thank You for Your promises."

God: "You will not believe what I will do from beginning to the end. Though you speculate, you will not comprehend it."

Me: "Thank You. I pray it is good!"

I felt the rolling thunder of God's laugh.

God: "It is meant for your benefit, not for your harm. You are loved. This is enough for today."

I felt Uriel stand me up to my feet.

Me: "I love You, Father."

God: "And I you."

Uriel took me out of God's door.

Uriel: "God gave you promises. Now is the time of the prophecy of Isaiah."

Me: "Oh, would that be Isaiah 53 and 54?"

Uriel: "Very good, Erin. Yes, but it is also like Jeremiah 31 and Ezekiel 36. Now, the Lord will return soon and the land is being prepared to receive Him. You are a type of witness, as are many others. Through your testimony of miracles and healing, many will go to God in the time of great darkness before the Great and Terrible Day of the Lord. Now, rejoice that you have been called for a time such as this to bring good news."

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family. Thank You for Your special care for us. Thank You for a beautiful day as it is 75 degrees here today.

Father, I must apologize to You. When faced with trouble, I immediately turn to You and say, "Why are You punishing me? Why are You allowing more trouble?" I should know better by now that You allow these trials in order for us to learn to either stand through them in faith until the storm eventually passes or You allow these because we are not heading down the right path.

Perhaps it could even be that we need to take notice of something and make a change or we need to turn around altogether and take another route. It just seems that my entire life story has consisted of switchbacks, redirects, wrong turns and dead-ends.

However, and as always, You plan everything for my good, but I still just wonder if my thick skin and sometimes discouraged demeanor has upset You. I want so much to make You proud of me, but I do not always believe my thought processes are on the right path.

Lord, it seems that the leaves here are turning early this year and I even smelled fall one day in late July. All of this is quite early, even for here. I also noticed an uptick in the activity of small animals, squirrels, chipmunks and other creatures gathering and preparing for the change of seasons much earlier than I ever have in the past. Indeed, I cannot recall a time I have ever seen anything quite like this.

Well, the first stage of our fast ended last Monday, wherein we ate no solid food for 21 days, but only liquids instead. When this ended, and as Daniel did, I began praying that You would send a miraculous sign within three days of this fast ending.

When the morning of this third day came, I was grieving for no really good 'Heavenly' reason and was on my knees in prayer. In reality, I still felt that I had good 'earthly' reasons for grieving. When I say no good 'Heavenly' reason, it is because You, Father, have promised to not only heal us, but deliver us from trouble.

This alone is more than good enough, so, in hindsight, I really had no good 'earthly' reason either other than stressing over Your timing seemingly to be taking us to the brink of major trouble. Again, I know that I should know better as I have been here many a time with You, Father, and I should truly know by now that You will not forsake us as You are faithful even when I lack.

Anyway, as this 'third day' progressed, I became downcast that nothing was happening. As per Daniel, and within three days after my period of fasting and mourning, I was really hopeful and even expecting something supernatural as I was also promised signs that I was on the right track. I cried out yet again and Jesus told me, "Erin, wait for it."

Well, I received two signs later that very afternoon. The first sign was when my daughter and I spotted an extremely vivid rainbow and took photos of it. I thanked You and I felt pleased and satisfied. However, without me knowing it, You still were not done with Your signs for that day.

About an hour later, and as I was preparing dinner, my younger son said, "Mom, there is a dead bird on the deck chair." I quickly put my pan off of the stove-top burner and my daughter and I went to the window to see.

There we saw a tiny hummingbird with a broken neck. I quickly ran to the deck outside to pray over this small bird that was beautiful even in death. Here is what I prayed:

"Father, You are the God of all Creation. You care about even a small sparrow and know when it falls. Please, Father, because You love me, do this one thing for me and heal this beautiful hummingbird!"

When I finished praying over the hummingbird, and with tears still in my eyes, I instantly saw her little neck come back into alignment and her breath restored. As quickly as a single blink of my eyes, and with no time to react, I watched this beautiful little light-green bellied hummingbird fly off to a small birch tree, completely healthy and happy.

I sat there stunned for a moment and began to cry. My daughter said, "Mom, I saw it too! I saw the whole thing!" We were both so happy and this was such a great moment for both of us! Oh thank You, Father, for allowing us to be a part of this little miracle.

However, the very next day, I had to travel to get my mail and received some more discouraging news. I was, sigh, yet again downcast, but my husband, with great faith, reminded me to relax and trust in Jesus as He has always been faithful, even when His timing, really our anxious 'waiting', has sometimes made us a bit nervous.

As a result, and though our trip should have been full of sadness about the magnitude of our upcoming tests that the Lord has warned us about, we instead began remarking about the amazing ability in which God, our Father, has shown us that He is ALWAYS greater than our troubles.

We then even started praising the Lord in advance for some of the things we will soon endure with His awesome help. Overall, it was a very good day and we soon decided to allow ourselves to find joy even in our trying circumstances.

Later, in our last holiday weekend of the summer, we took our children to the mall. Being teenagers, they felt a bit more 'cool' without parents hanging out with them, so we went to the local bookstore on our own while our kids navigated the mall on their own.

As we entered the bookstore, we noticed an author signing books. As I approached to listen, I soon discovered that this woman was a New Age channeler named Elizabeth Rose. Elizabeth had a sign there which said, 'Free channeling or aura reading with each book purchased.'

Okay, I found this disturbing, so I quickly prayed, "Father, should I stay or go?" Just then, Elizabeth went into a trance and began moving her arms in strange formations as she performed a 'free channeling' for a woman who was purchasing one of her books.

I quickly asked my husband to come and watch as well, telling him, "I need you to pair with me and stand. The Lord is calling me to witness to her." We both stood and watched and it soon became obvious that this woman was channeling demons. Even more disturbingly, she then used Jesus' name as she did this.

I began to feel quite uncomfortable because I felt at first that the Lord wanted me to circle her table seven times and speak in my prayer language over her. I could almost see Him smiling as He hinted that I should start doing this right then and there.

However, as I watched Elizabeth continue in her trance, I instead asked, "Lord, please keep me looking sane and stable to all of these people. Even though she is in the act of looking really crazy, people are still buying what she is selling. Please consider me to look sane, centered on You and not as crazy as her."

I literally heard Jesus reply, again sensing Him smiling, perhaps even chuckling, "Yes, Erin, your request is a good one."

As I stood and watched Elizabeth tell the woman so many things with so many words, I soon realized that she was really telling this woman absolutely nothing at all. Despite this, the woman still left utterly amazed at what she had been told. This lack of discernment on this woman's part was truly frightening to me.

I then found myself face to face with Elizabeth and noticed that she was my age and wore glasses. However, the remarkable thing of note about her was that her skin was an ashen grey color and her teeth were the same grey, but neither had been caused from smoking. I felt the Lord lead me in conversation with her.

Me: "Elizabeth, who are you channeling?"

Elizabeth: Smiling. "Christ Jesus and God."

Immediately I had a "SparrowCloud9 Rant" that I wanted to use in order to give her a piece of my mind on her deception. However, I felt that Jesus wanted me to instead follow His lead and I instantly yielded to Him completely. I then took a deep breath and quickly prayed for His Voice to speak through me and use me for His glory and not mine.

Me: "Do you meet Him in the Throne Room?"

Elizabeth: No longer smiling. "What? Excuse me? Who are you? I am not sure what you are talking about."

Me: "Years ago, I belonged to the Psychic Institute in Portland Oregon. However, since then, a heart condition caused me to have some NDEs that forever changed me and I no longer feel as I once did."

Elizabeth: "Oh, so you know exactly what I am doing here."

At that point, I realized that I had so much I wanted to say personally and that the Lord held my tongue and continued to lead the conversation.

Me: "Somewhat, but I am no longer involved with 'that way'. Can you tell me how you hear from God?"

Elizabeth: "Well, actually, I have between 10 to 39 angels surrounding me that are all around here."

Suddenly, and for what could only be described as a 'divine change in attitude', I no longer looked at her with anger. Instead, I felt my lips loosen as the Lord showed me a severely lost person and He welled me up with an unexpected compassion for her.

Me: "Elizabeth, I have a Word for you from God."

I immediately saw her stiffen as if she felt she had much more knowledge of God than me and was questioning why I would even dare do such a thing. At that second, I saw several things about her download into me from God.

However, He did not have me report what I saw fully to her, but it was instead to be a message for her to discern from Him. As Elizabeth's eyes started to dart, she reluctantly agreed to hear what I had to say, but it was obvious that she was very doubtful.

Me: "God knows you, Elizabeth Rose. He knows you as He had created you and longs to bless you. I am a seer and I see a vision. You are soon to be at a crossroads where there are two ways you can go.

"Your friends will all want you to go to the left as there is a beautiful sky there and what seems like peace. However, this is not the way you should go. Instead, you are to go to the right, even though there you will see a dark and ominous looking path. This path is not well travelled, but you must go on this path.”

Elizabeth: Replying with skepticism in her voice. “Now why would I do this?”

My husband: Sensing her skepticism. “Please do not disregard what my wife has to say to you. I have never seen her do this with anyone in person, so you really need to listen to her carefully.”

I saw her take a deep breath and turn back to me to listen.

Me: “If you take the path to the right, God will find you there. However, it will mean you must let go of all of this for a period of time. Then, and out of the darkness, you will find a true ‘Diamond’ in the midst of this darkness. God will then gift you with so much more than you could even imagine.”

Elizabeth was still skeptical as she pointed to her book, which just happened to have a diamond on the front of it

Elizabeth: “Now why would I need this? I am a healer and already have all of this. I have power.”

As I stood there, the Lord showed me a vision of a very, very dry, arid desert, like nothing I had ever seen, and it was dark and ominous. However, God did not have me share this vision with her.

Me: “Elizabeth, there is so much more as you are in a desert place, but you are like a small flower in the desert and not a desert flower. I had been told something like this by God a few years ago and He delivered me from the desert.”

Elizabeth: “I have never had anyone speak to me like this.”

While this seemed to soften her slightly, she still seemed like she had a wall up. I later found out from my husband that Jesus had told him to pray for the demons surrounding her to be confused.

At first, my husband had wanted to pray for her deliverance, but he quickly was told in his Holy Spirit that this was not the correct prayer for this particular circumstance and changed his prayer for the demons' confusion.

I looked directly into her eyes with an intensity that I am not usually comfortable with.

Me: "God tells me that you are a Rose, that you were named with a purpose and that you are just like your last name. Sharon, God wants you to study the 'Rose of Sharon'."

I was stunned that I called her 'Sharon' instead of Elizabeth and my husband seemed confused by this as well. However, we could both see that Elizabeth was suddenly truly softening to Erin's Words from the Lord for the first time. Tears began to form in her eyes and dropped down her cheeks. She was just as stunned as we were.

Elizabeth: "How could you possibly know this? My birth name is Sharon. Sharon is my first name and Sharon Elizabeth Rose is my full name. However, no one knows about my first name being Sharon, not even my friends. Tell me, how did you know this?"

Me: "God knows you, Sharon, but you must listen to Him. There will be two more unrelated people coming to you that will confirm this message and I am the first of three."

Elizabeth was now in shock as she asked if she could hug me. When my husband heard her request, he felt in his Holy Spirit that he should quickly pray for my protection before we made contact.

As she moved around her table and hugged me, I could feel nothing but a lost desperate spirit and a wall of darkness with no Holy Spirit connection. Usually when I am hugged, I receive an impression of either good or evil, but this time it was like an invisible blockade had been formed between us.

Elizabeth: "I need to write all of this down. Who are you?"

Me: "Erin."

I knew she wanted my last name as well, but I quickly knew that the Lord did not want me to reveal this. Just then, a new customer came up to the table. Before Elizabeth turned to address this person, she reached to hug me again. I could tell she was again trying to read me using this hug, but then seemed frustrated as this was once again blocked by the Lord.

Elizabeth: "Thank you. I am in shock."

As she talked to the new person that had arrived, she waved goodbye to us as we walked off. While I knew she wanted even more information from me, I also knew it was time for us to leave immediately. I suddenly became relieved that our children were not around for this as I am sure one of them would have accidentally interrupted us without knowing what was occurring.

Finally, and just yesterday, a beautiful sunny Sunday, we decided to set out for a drive to a quaint, coastal town with our children. However, about a half hour into our two hour drive, we had a flat tire right in front of a small cemetery.

At first, I panicked, but, thank You Father, my husband had dealt with this many times before and told me to relax and that we would be back on the road in no time. Yes, once again, my immediate reaction was one of, "Oh no, this is a holiday weekend and we are in the middle of nowhere. What are we going to do?"

Well, we soon discovered that this divine delay meant so much for our long term safety and easily dwarfed this minor inconvenience. As my husband put the spare tire on, we soon discovered that all four of our tires, though only six months old, were all stripped to the metal under the rubber treads.

This meant we were actually in a very, very dangerous situation and we had not even known this until now. We praised God for saving us as we turned around and slowly drove home on the utility spare.

Once home, we cheerily all switched to our other car to continue on our day trip. Though we had lost an hour, we had really gained critical knowledge and it was obvious to all of us that this delay was truly divine and from Him.

As we went back on our trip, I searched the internet on my phone and found out about lawsuits about these same tires blowing out on the road and even causing fatalities. While it will be a bit difficult navigating the first week of school without this car, I realized how much better this was than us risking having a fatal accident on some random day.

Thank You, Father God. We thank You for showing us what hidden danger we were driving with and completely unbeknownst to us. Our car had just been serviced in June, including a tire rotation, so this was truly a blessing from You. Replacing these four tires is truly a minor expense compared to what could have happened to all of us.

As I woke up today, I felt truly blessed. Lord, please forgive me for not immediately recognizing the flat tire we had as a minor miracle with major possible future ramifications without it.

Instead, I at first wondered in my lack if You had allowed the enemy to attack us for witnessing to that New Age psychic channeler at the bookstore. Please forgive me for my flawed thinking.

As I prayed this morning, I realized that I was still not fully certain why You did not have me just tell her to stop her wicked ways because she was bound for hell if she continued. Father, I even had some Scripture I wanted to quote. Father, why did You not allow me to say even more to her?

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was up on the path which runs adjacent to God's overlook above His beautiful valley. I saw the bench ahead, as well as the rugged rock, which out of it is a bubbling small spring of fresh cool water.

I walked to the spring and drank the refreshing water from the River of Life. Then I sat on the bench overlooking the beautiful valley. As I noticed that it was dawn, tears began streaming down my cheeks and I took a big breath of pure air.

Me: "Thank You, Father. I am so sorry if I have done anything wrong. You are marvelous, wonderful and amazing in all that You do and I cherish You.

"In this time since Pentecost, I have felt discouraged as I had hoped for something amazing to happen after I obeyed Your instructions. I had then interceded and prayed for the lost, my friends and my family for miracles. It just seems that I am unable to have my prayers reach You.

“However, if they are, perhaps I must search further to understand what I must do to find You. Please help me, Father. Count me worthy, but, more importantly, please heal those who need healing. Please have mercy on those who are asleep so that they may find You.”

Just then, I heard a mighty shofar sound and noticed that it was a Heavenly version of an earthly shofar. I saw every animal turn to where the sound came from. As I turned to look behind me, I saw an angel there. I then felt a hand on my shoulder and it was Uriel.

Uriel was beautiful and even looked somewhat like Jesus. At times, his hair was white and, at other times, his hair was darker. His eyes were a deep blue-green and he had a very short groomed beard and mustache in a beautiful design.

Uriel’s teeth were perfect and white and his skin was medium in tone, almost as if he had a dark tan. In summary, he was extremely handsome. As he immediately noticed that I was studying him, he quickly changed my focus.

Uriel: Smiling. “Erin, bring no glory to me as I am only a host to bring you to the Lord of lords and the King of kings. I ride a swift horse and I am trusted to deliver to you messages from the King.

“The King is in the field and requests your presence. These 40 days are the ‘Days of Favor’. God will once again usher you into His presence after this period, but, for now, He desires you to draw near to Him.”

Me: “So will I not see God? Is He mad at me?”

Uriel: Laughing and smiling. “No, Erin, this is the final period of 40 days. He is changing your direction to draw closer to Him as you did in the beginning. Come, Erin. Come as you are.”

I looked down to see what I was wearing. As I did, I watched my linen dress transform into a beautiful white gown, elegant and simple, with long sleeves, slightly belled at the ends. The fabric was like butter and really like no fabric I had ever felt.

I then looked down at my feet and they were no longer worn, old or calloused. Instead, my feet were beautiful and my hands were young again.

Me: Crying. "Okay, I guess I am back in favor after all of this. Thank You, God."

I was laughing as I looked at Uriel and noticed that he was laughing at my comments.

Uriel: "Erin, you were never out of His favor. Though your life was marred with bad choices and marked with uncertainty from a worldly perspective, God designed you. Now He marvels at His creation."

Me: "Wow, I never thought of this. On this side of eternity, and in this world, I am marred and barely recognizable as something of worth to human eyes, but, here, I am worthy and a bride worthy of marriage and married to the Groom. Here, I am 'married' and not 'marred', but still I am nothing without the great 'I Am'!"

Uriel chuckled and was clearly being amused by me. I could tell that the angels already had knowledge from God and that we are so slow to learn things so obvious in comparison. I often feel like a child discovering a new thing, yet everyone else here seems to be 'in the know.' This seemed funny to me and I laughed.

I turned to Uriel and noticed that he had changed from his robe into a suit of armor and that he now had wings. He had a beautiful bronze and gold burnished armor with incredible golden long wavy hair.

Me: "Whoa, I have never seen you like this. You look like a warrior and you even have a sword."

Uriel: Smiling. "Come, Erin, the King is in the field. I will take you there."

He waved to me to come over to a beautiful horse. This massive horse was in beautiful head armor of silver and gold. The horse had a braided mane and tail and violet eyes and was absolutely beautiful. I petted the side of its neck as it stood so much higher than me. The horse went low so I could get on the saddle behind Uriel.

Me: "Wow, I get a tour. Yes, this is fun."

I am not sure how, but then we began to fly. Uriel's wings were above me and the horse was also somehow flying. We went over God's valley, His forests, His observatory and His Courts. I was in tears as I was seeing the most beautiful land I had ever seen.

We continued over lakes, rivers and streams. I saw aspen forests, pine forests, redwoods and even fruit orchards. We traveled fast, like a jet, but low enough for me to take everything in. Uriel took me from wilderness places to even more meadows and fruit orchards.

I then saw massive vineyards and flower fields. I saw workers and beautiful estates. In the very far away distance, I saw the City of God and it was bright and shining like a beacon on a hill. Below me, I then recognized the Valley of Blessing. I saw the seven pools, the waterfalls, the gardens, the various estates, the lakes and the fountains.

Uriel turned direction and began to turn north and west. He pointed and I saw the place that God had built for me. I gasped as my House was even more beautiful than I had remembered.

He then flew us over the 'small' Mediterranean like lake area. Now, I say 'small', but, in earthly terms, it is massive and encompasses thousands of miles with estates all around it.

There were also vineyards, homes on beautiful cliffs of white with flowering vines, fountains, waterfalls and cerulean blue water. There were sailboats and other watercraft, along with celebrations with music. It was all truly beautiful!

Uriel then flew to the southern part over the valley and began his descent into the fields of flowers, landing in a field of lilies next to the River of Life. Uriel motioned for our horse to kneel, allowing me to be closer to the ground.

Me: Crying. "We were up there for hours, yet really minutes, right? How far did we go?"

Uriel: Laughing. "Erin, time is different here. You long to remain in the moment forever, yet you stay just enough. It is never too short or too long. We travelled over the equivalent of three times the Earth."

Me: "What? How?"

Uriel: "This land is where God resides. He prepared a place for those He loves. How many dwell in wide open spaces here since the beginning? Erin, angels reside here too. You need only to imagine the size based on God's limitations, wherein He has no limitations at all."

Me: "Well, if it is God sized, who can fathom it or measure it from beginning to end? Who can measure God's works or where He could reside? I certainly cannot."

Uriel: "This is only a small fraction of what God has done from beginning to end, yet there is even more. It is difficult for me to explain, and even harder for you to comprehend, God from the beginning. Erin, He loves you and, though you think of yourself as small, He thinks of you. Now, walk through the lilies and there He will find you."

Me: "I recognize this place as it is so beautiful. Is it from Song of Songs 6:3?"

Uriel: Smiling. "Erin, smile and rejoice."

He then mounted his horse and flew away in a blink of my eyes. The word 'fast' would be an understatement here as he flew away so incredibly fast.

As I walked through this beautiful field, I looked off into the distance and there I saw Jesus. I began to run to Him and I saw that He was smiling and looked so handsome. He was wearing armor of gold with twelve jewels on His breastplate.

He wore a white linen undergarment with sleeves rolled up. He had bronze and gold armored boots and His hair was brown and wavy, just above his shoulders in length. His smile was white and His teeth perfect.

His skin was dark tan and He had a trim, short beard and mustache. His eyes were light blue-green and stood out against His skin. I noticed that He was holding a lily as I hugged Him tightly.

Me: "I miss You, Lord."

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh, and where have I been? You just saw Me."

Me: "Yes, but just not here. It has been a little less than four years since I have seen You here in this place."

Jesus: "Come with Me as it is time for you to draw close to Me again. This time last year, your pain was very great, Erin, and you encountered many changes. Your direction is good, but My Father began to sense your disconnect with the world from your sorrow over what must come next. It was time for you to spend time with Me again. Are you ready?"

Me: "I am not certain for what."

Suddenly, we were in a massive wheat field so massive that the blue sky met the field in full surround. I saw angels and workers all around us and they waved at us.

Jesus: "Erin, this is the time."

Me: I heard a shofar. "What time, Lord?"

Jesus: "The time to awaken those who are asleep from their death caused by sin. It is time."

Me: "You mean the harvest, Lord?"

Jesus: "Soon I will come to gather the harvest, but this is the time of the shaking. This is the time to wake up those who slumber."

Me: "I am scared, Lord."

Jesus: "Do not be, Erin. I am about to use all those that I have prepared in advance to comfort those who are broken, lost and hard-hearted."

Me: "Lord, is this why You have given me the dreams I have had? You also had me look up every boss I had ever worked for and even those people who used to be my friends. Is this what You are showing me?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, what do you believe you were shown based on all you have come to know? Tell Me your thoughts and I will clarify this."

Me: "Well, I have had an unusual life. Almost every boss I have ever had has become very rich and/or very famous. I was there with each of them at the very beginning when their companies were just starting.

"I have always worked for 'entrepreneurs' who had required extremely long hours from me with a very small salary and poor benefits in return. The list was long, so I must have had value to them as I provided in-house marketing, saving them thousands of dollars a month on an advertising agency.

"I was constantly in demand and being recruited by other companies and I really had no loyalty to any of them. This went on for ten years. Now these men have gone on and some are now even listed in Forbes, Inc. and Business Week magazines. One of these men was even on the TV show, 'Undercover Boss'.

"Several of these men have been slightly humbled by bankruptcy, but they all quickly recovered even though they received horrible reviews and even had lawsuits filed against them. I counted ten bosses over this ten year period.

"I then researched friends and roommates that You led me to research. Each of these people had also become quite successful. I found it extremely difficult not to compare myself to them, so occasionally I could not help but wonder if I had missed something."

Jesus: Laughing. "You missed nothing, Erin, believe Me. Remember the illusion of grandeur created by them defining their own success, so do not pay attention to this. Erin, Who do you now work for? Who calls you His daughter? Who calls you Bride, the Bride in Gold of Ophir?"

Me: "Oh, I never stopped to think of that."

Jesus: "Your oppressors are many and your enemies are vast, but Who ultimately reigns over all?"

Me: "God! You, Lord!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Are you ready to come to Me here?"

Me: "Yes, I am here."

He turned, reached over for a lily and then handed it to me.

Jesus: "I have something for you. Erin, this is your field."

Me: "What do You mean, Lord?"

Jesus: "This is the time. I care about you. I give you this field. Now care for My field. Before the time of winnowing, there will be threshing. My Father told you that this is the beginning. I have prepared you in advance. Now I will instruct you in the ways you should go. You will learn from Me."

Me: "Lord, did I speak properly to the woman who claimed to speak to You?"

Jesus: "Erin, this woman does not hear from Me. If she did, then she would be anguished over what she has done and she would stop it. She is comfortable in her position. Now, what were you shown?"

Me: "If she chooses the path to the left, then the cancer growing in her body will lead to her death. However, if she chooses the path to the right, the 'right path', You will meet her there."

Jesus: "What did you then learn?"

Me: "That this woman will not be willing to yield away from the power she currently has and go the right course and that she enjoys her sin too much. I also saw that, after me, two of her psychic friends will claim that I was a negative spirit meant to block her power. She will enjoy their comforting words and will later dismiss the other two messengers You will eventually send. Lord, why did You not allow me to confront her?"

Jesus: "Erin, you were there to create a rampart. Now she will never forget this encounter with you as she knows this was Me speaking to her through you."

Me: "Was I being like a channeler?"

Jesus: "No! Remember that there is a counterfeit to everything good and that evil is there. Now you understood the new course of evil that even pretends to take directions from Me. As I did not speak to her, her words were idle. As her words were not inspired from the Word of Truth, following such a woman would lead to death. Very few take the 'right path', Erin, so remember about the narrow gate that few find or desire. Now, this is enough today."

Me: "I am so glad to be with You, Lord."

Jesus: Laughing and smiling. "I am glad to be with you too. This is your time of drawing nearer to Me. Are you ready?"

Me: "As ready as I will ever be, Lord."

Jesus: "Good, come with Me."

Jesus took my hand and we walked through the field together.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Please continue to heal and bless all of us as we continue to battle through these dark times. I cling to Your promises as, on so many days, I wonder if I am on the right path and going in the direction You desire, but especially when faced with insurmountable obstacles.

Father, I have grieved this week. I have been broken for my children as I have walked with them for so many years through so many struggles. I know their hearts and their works and I find it difficult to be helpless to remove their pain or, better yet, heal their afflictions.

On the night before last, I was in distress as my eldest son had been passed over for a social event. While I cannot elaborate, Father, You know all of this. I went to bed Friday evening weeping with my heart broken as I remembered the promise of their futures when they were infants. I had imagined great things for each of them.

Of course, being a typical younger Christian mom, my hopes were for them to become pastors, leaders, doctors, architects and so on, wherein the list was long. Instead, and as we progressed with life, my sons struggled. I knew where these struggles had originated and their root cause, but I was helpless to do anything.

All around me, my friends' children at church that were the same age as my sons hit milestone after milestone of growth. As time went by, and because of our rather unique circumstances in comparison, friends eventually simply quit calling.

It seems as if we made them uncomfortable in the state we were in. Because I had lost my status in society and, by then, even my financial stability, I was considered out of God's favor and more of a stain to them.

My struggle, Father, was expressed to You as I had no husband or earthly father to counsel with. At times, I felt I was losing hope and even my heartbeats became irregular. I prayed to You, "Father, my children need me. Please do not take me yet. Please sustain me."

I then went on with more injuries and heart problems, but yet was still sustained by You. However, even those friends who said they would always be there for a quick 'check in' via a phone call were becoming harder and harder to reach. I now had no hope and really no true help.

I prayed to You on my knees, Father, but I could not hear You. I still believed in You, but my health was dwindling. With our resources also dwindling quickly, I was forced to make decisions out of a heart of pure love for my children at the cost of all of my personal needs.

I would later regret this as now the enemy had quartered me off and isolated me. The enemy had removed all that I loved and attacked me while I was incapable of making sound choices.

I now know that You allowed all of this for the good of me and my children, but, at times, Father, and after so many years, I still wonder. Please forgive me, Lord, as I am thankful for all You have done, but I just need the one thing I have prayed for over my children since they were little.

Father, my oldest son is now 18 years of age. Please have mercy. Please, Lord, as I know You can do anything. Scripture declares that 'we, common believers, will be capable of even greater works' than what is written in Chapter 14 of John.

Father, please do not forget Your promises that You gave to me. I, in turn, gave Your promises to my children, wherein their faith in Your promises at times is even greater than mine. They even sometimes look at me with innocent wonder and ask the looming question, 'When, Mom?'

When my one son awakes from his dreams of You healing him, he is so excited about what You are about to do that it brings tears to my eyes. Father, all of us are like little children. We all love You and long for the day when You will turn our mourning into dancing.

We watched a movie together last night after I felt led to invite any who would like to watch it to come and join us. I normally research movie content on the internet before watching, but I did not have access to this on this particular evening.

Regardless, I warned all the men of the house that it was a romance and not their favorite action-type show. Amidst the mumbling and all the grumbling, all seven of us, including my 'picky' boys, watched this movie together.

The story began with a handsome young man who was extremely fit, successful, funny and wealthy. He was running to an appointment while late for work and, in his haste, he did not see an oncoming motorcycle.

The movie then fast forwarded to two years later, wherein he was now paralyzed and in a wheelchair as a result of this accident. This man was now tortured by memories of all his past exploits, successes and adventures.

As this man had very wealthy parents, the personal care provided for him was completely 'topnotch'. However, due to his poor attitude and sharp tongue, he had gone through several caregivers until finally a bright eyed, bubbly girl a few years younger than him was hired as his personal assistant.

While this man was also quite cruel to this girl at first, she continued to try everything to turn his bad attitude around. At long last, she was finally able to get him to smile, laugh and engage in life. So far, it was very much a beautiful love story unfolding.

However, on one particular day, the girl discovered that the young man had made arrangements to be flown to Switzerland to be euthanized within the next six months. The girl then approached the man's parents to see if they would be willing to finance her attempts to get him to enjoy life before he would end it or, better yet, perhaps even get him to change his mind.

The parents agreed with her that he should have fun, so she did everything with her whole heart to help him. Despite all of her great efforts, he simply could not get over how he once was. Despite all she had done, she was not enough for him and he still went on to Switzerland to end his life. In the end, the movie was heartbreaking.

As I watched the movie, I kept hoping he would change his mind because of the story of beautiful love that had developed between the two main characters. At least this was a teachable moment that, no matter what, some will go their own way and that the power of love will not always be enough to get those we care about to change their minds.

Father, my dream two nights ago was about transformation and healing. You were showing me Scripture and what Your Words meant and mean for now. I love You, Father, so please do not forget us. Though we struggle against things we do not see or understand, please keep us going in the right direction, always moving toward You in all that we do.

I love You so much and my children have so much hope in You. Please keep their hearts continually on You in all they do. At times, when they are broken, please speak tenderly to them and teach them in the ways they should go.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I am up on the path near the bench next to the bubbling spring looking over God's valley. Based on the position of the rising sun, it has been only minutes since I was last here, yet it was now six days ago since my last visit.

The sky was beautiful and filled with golds, pinks, purples and blues. The smells were fragrant and I could smell fall. However, and get this, I could also smell spring as well. How was this even possible?

The fragrant smells of flowers, sandalwood and wood smoke filled the air. I closed my eyes to imagine anywhere on Earth wherein one could find these wonderful smells together, but I could not think of any. With my eyes closed, I heard the sound of the bubbling spring.

The sound reminded me that I was thirsty, so I walked over and drank from the rock with the spring from the River of Life. After I took several handfuls, I finally put my mouth over the spring to drink directly. I did not realize just how dry and thirsty I was until I began to drink from God's spring. When I finished, I walked to the bench to sit.

Me: "Thank You, Father, for this beautiful place. Thank You for inviting me. Forgive me when I fail to see You working in our troubles. Forgive me for my dim-sightedness at times."

I then opened my hands and began to sing in my prayer language with my whole heart. Then, and from inside my belly, I felt something like rushing water. It started near my bowel area and sprang upward. It felt wonderful and, curiously, almost like a tickle. I felt like it was watering my heart, my lungs and my blood.

The word 'unction' came to me, yet I do not recall what it means. (Note that the word 'unction' is defined as 'the act of anointing as a rite of consecration or healing'.)

As I sat there, I literally felt water moving in my torso. It felt wonderful and refreshing. The water came up higher and higher until it eventually began to pour out of my body. The water started to come out my ears, nose, eyes and mouth.

Now, it is important for me to note here that this was a trickle of water meant to refresh and was certainly not spewing and torrential looking. Indeed, in no way was this irritating, but rather it was delightful. The water being released tickled me, so I kept rubbing my nose, swallowing and tilting my head to drop the water from my ears.

I was laughing about all of this when I then felt a hand on my shoulder. I turned to see Uriel standing there in his full armor with wings and his arms folded.

Uriel: Laughing. "So, Erin, did you drink too much?"

Me: "Yes, Uriel, I guess I was very thirsty."

Uriel: "Do not worry. This was not caused from drinking too much. This is water which is living and it brings life to desert places."

Me: Laughing. "Oh, so were my insides like the desert?"

Uriel: "I will let the Lord answer that. Are you ready?"

He drew my attention to his horse, so I jumped up and ran over. The massive horse moved down so I could now easily reach the stirrups.

Uriel was laughing at my excitement about going on another Kingdom ride.

Me: "Uriel, I am just so very excited to see Jesus today."

Uriel: "The King is in the field, so hold on."

Just then, and in lightning speed, we were off. However, this time we circled back to the east of the valley. There, in a meadow below us, I saw a beautiful flock of sheep. As we travelled east, I saw cattle on a thousand hills. The hills varied from mountainous to green meadow-like hills. On each of these, there were also cattle.

Me: "Uriel, this is from Scripture and I recognize Psalm 50:10 here."

Uriel: "Erin, all of God's Garden is the inspiration for His written Words. Just as fountains are welling up in you, so is there a fountain pen in which to describe the indescribable."

Me: Laughing. "Oh Uriel, God is so amazing and there is nothing and absolutely no one like God."

Uriel: "Well, some here had thought they were, but soon God will display His Glory. However, observe and write about that which is permissible for now so that others will see this through your pages by the power of God."

As we continued, we could see beautiful forests that I had never seen before in Heaven and that I had never seen before on Earth. Below me, I saw intricate paths, wherein some of these paths were intersecting each other.

Then, in the distance, I saw huge mansion estates that were much larger than mine, but yet I had no envy in me at all. Instead, I felt complete joy for them. I counted twelve massive estates in all, wherein each one was unique, yet equal in size.

Me: "Who owns these Homes? Are they in God's Garden?"

Uriel: "Erin, you do not know?"

I did not answer as I was too amazed by these estates. Off in the distance, I could see more small villages, lakes and other estates. I realized that this was yet another part of Heaven that I had not seen before.

Uriel then circled and went north and west. In the distance, I saw the City of God and it was like a light on a hill and so beautiful. He then began to descend into a field of lilies amongst the fields of flowers. The horse bent down and Uriel helped me off.

Me: "Uriel, how far did we go today?"

Uriel: Laughing. "The same distance as last time. Erin, your King is in the field."

He brought my attention to the far end of the field. Jesus waved to me as I spotted Him. I hugged the horse, waved to Uriel and ran straight to where the Lord was. Actually, I sprinted to Him this time.

I looked way up in the air and there was Uriel on his horse flying and waving at the Lord. As the Lord waved back to Uriel, I quickly ran straight into Jesus' arms. Jesus was about a foot taller than me so my cheek rested on His chest as I wept in His arms.

Me: "Lord, I am so glad to see You again. I wondered if I had messed everything up."

He pulled me away from His chest in order to look gently into my tear-filled eyes.

Jesus: "Oh Erin, though your mother and father forgot you, I have not forgotten you and your name is written on the palms of My hands...and, yes, this is two of My Words combined."

We both laughed at this as He had just used Isaiah 49:15-16 and Psalm 27:10 together.

Jesus: "Erin, am I not able to do this? After all, Who wrote all of this to begin with? Now, are you ready to learn even more?"

Me: "Oh yes, Lord."

Jesus reached for my hand and gently squeezed it. We were immediately in a vineyard.

Jesus: "Last time I was in the wheat field, but now I am with you amongst the vines."

I looked around and saw layers of color in rows. I saw rows of deep burgundy, then reds, then green and purples and then whites. The colors were simply amazing.

Me: "I do not remember seeing so many varieties of grapes before."

Jesus: "There are hundreds here alone in this vineyard. Here, there is an infinite selection and always new varieties. Here, everything is perfected, from the soil to the watering from the River of Life, as well as the climate and the harvest. There is abundance here and the grape is under a secure canopy."

He reached to take my hand again and immediately we were in an earthly vineyard somewhere in California or Europe. I could not tell exactly where, but it was beautiful.

Jesus: "Here, it becomes complicated to grow grapes for wine. There is so much to consider. There are year-round workers. Winter pruning of the vine is done with great skill. Then comes the time when the pruning produces buds, wherein the buds then produce flowers.

"During this stage, the tender young shoots must be protected by the workers from the elements. Indeed, one-sixth of the life of the tender shoot is doing battle with outside forces."

Me: "Oh, this seems like the first two bridges of life."

Jesus: "In terms of a vineyard, this can be two months. From flowering, the flowers then produce fruit."

As we were standing in this earthly vineyard, time was accelerated so that He could show me all of the different stages of growth.

Jesus: "Here, the workers call for 'canopy' decisions, or managing the outcome, by watching the vines and fruit-growth. This can mean removing leaves, thinning shoots and positioning the vine for the best growth.

"This helps with the balance of shade, sun and air for ripening the fruit. The workers make pass after pass through the vineyard. Every single row is checked for progress and reported back to the vineyard owner."

Me: "This sounds like the angels that are assigned to all of us."

Jesus: "This is an excellent observation, but the owner of Heavenly vineyards, both on Earth as it is in Heaven, is active and oversees everything. Here, some crops are thinned so that the grapes will grow to their full potential.

"Then the grapes develop in color and taste. When they are fully ripened, the grapes are picked at night by hand. This happens from early August to as late as even December."

Me: "Lord, but You have told me there are not multiple Raptures."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, this is true."

He reached for my hand again and we were back in the Heavenly vineyard. There was a beautiful flowered pergola area with a bench overlooking the vineyard and the City of God, the Golden City, in the distance. He motioned for us to sit.

Me: "Lord, this is the most beautiful sight I have ever seen. The vineyards are amazing and the grapes are like jewels under the sun."

Jesus: "Here, everything bears fruit. Erin, tell Me about what you have been shown recently."

I started to recall the past few nights. While there had been several dreams, one dream in particular stood out to me.

Me: "Lord, there was a dream in which You were instructing me and working through me with perfect clarity. In this dream, I could do nothing without You. I had no fear as You literally sprung forth into me like living water. You directed me so clearly.

"Then, and after a very short period, You changed me from inwardly places and healed me. However, I was not in this glorified Heavenly body yet, but rather I was in my transformed and healed earthly body instead."

"My mind was also renewed because I had noticed that I no longer had negative self-talk. My cells were then renewed, wherein my heart was like a wellspring. There are so many Scriptures to support all of this that I am not sure where to even begin.

"In my dream, I was young at 'face value', but still full of 'age in knowledge'. I was strong again and there was no longer either decay or wrinkle. However, I noticed that I still had scars from my earthly battles and surgeries.

"You had then taken me to several places to lay hands on some and You then either healed or transformed some of them. I noticed that many were healed only of their infirmities and that only some were transformed. However, for many others, You simply said 'no' to both healing or transforming.

"Once, and a long time ago, I had imagined something like this as You had promised this, but I had foolish thoughts like "well, I will show them" and other similar worldly thoughts that glorified myself instead of You. Of course, this was wrong thinking.

"I noticed that, during this entire time of healings and transformations in the dream, You were completely in control of all that we did. I also noticed that this time was before the Rapture."

Jesus: "Have I not always told you that I would do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told? Is it also not by My own Words, and even as written, that the one who believes in Me will also do the works I will do and he will do even greater works than these because I am going to the Father?"

Jesus then pointed to Himself with emphasis!

Jesus: "Erin, I am here! Whatever you ask for in My Name, I will do it, all so that the Father is thereby glorified in the Son. If you ask Me for anything in My Name, I will do it. Oh Erin, if only you were to believe."

Me: Now crying again. "Oh Lord, I believe every word You say, but I just still feel so in awe that I would even be considered a worthy vessel. Please teach me, show me and take over me if You have to, but please use me.

"I have come this far and You said You would never forsake me even in my lack, so please, Lord, remove my lack and show me. At first I had thought that the Scripture You speak of from John 14 was meant for the disciples, but I could never understand it because no one after You has done that which You spoke of and no one before You had either."

Jesus: Laughing. "In this instance, My Father is the vine, I am the branch and you are the fruit. Erin, are you ready to bear your fruit?"

Me: "I think so, but please help me to understand."

Jesus: He pointed to the vineyard. "Think of this vineyard. This vineyard has an owner, a manager, workers and those who drink wine or witness to the quality of the harvest. There are also consumers or drunkards and those who boast and speak like they have knowledge of the vineyard and harvest, but they do not. Now, what were you told?"

Me: "Well, in my dream, You told me or I told others or You told others, forgive me..." He laughed. "...that there were workers and You, Lord, manage our work. You declared that some who were healed and not transformed were witnesses to the miracles of God and to testify to Your works.

"However, the 'Two Witnesses' are different, set apart and special and are performing miracles, signs and wonders which are different and set forth from the beginning. I am just a worker for You."

Jesus: "Do you remember more?"

Me: "Yes! At times, I had wanted to continue to heal people, but I had to first stop and rest at various places. On one occasion, I was at an adult-care facility and You had me heal so many. As I was just a vessel, I became drained or tired. You then instructed me to rest for two days and rise up from rest on the third day.

"I then felt recharged by the third day from my exhaustion. I also remembered retreating when people began to worship me even after I told them to stop. I proclaimed to them that I was nothing without You and even explained that fruit cannot be good to eat apart from the branch and vine, but many did not understand this.

"I then heard accusations about plastic surgery and other things to discount Your miracle of transformations. This occurred despite the rise in the vast number of us workers, those who were healed and transformed, appearing, as well as the witnesses, those who were healed but not transformed, to testify.

"Eventually the angels came with You and You gathered all of us workers and witnesses and brought us in from the fields. However, the Two Witnesses remained in Jerusalem after we had been taken."

Jesus: "So Erin, are you ready?"

Me: Crying. "I am ready for what comes next, Lord. I just hope I can be either a worker or a witness."

Jesus: Laughing. "Am I so cruel as to give you this dream merely as an example meant for others? Erin, really?"

He had His arms crossed as He smiled. Laughing, He lovingly pointed at me and gently spoke in a teasing tone.

Jesus: "Now, Erin, do not let Me prune you..."

Me: Laughing. "Oh no, so sorry, Lord, I am good. I am fine and I believe."

Jesus: Smiling. "Good, Erin, now accept this as I give to you that which you asked for. Did you ask in My Name?"

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "My fountains are in you, so now rejoice. Erin, you are also a warrior. Who is a warrior?"

Me: "I am not sure. I just read a Scripture from Isaiah 13, but I was also reading the 12th chapter. It was a Scripture You placed on my heart to give me hope in my difficult circumstances. When I finished meditating on Your promises, I heard You say, 'Read on, for this time is soon to come.'"

Jesus: "These Words are good. Now the 12th chapter is you right now where you stand. Then comes the 13th chapter, wherein you are a new type of warrior with a divine purpose. Read the entire chapter to see that these times are upon you now. There is a clear message as the times of the prophet's Words are finally giving birth and these are now unfolding before your very eyes.

"Erin, this is enough for today, but do not worry as this battle is not yours. Do not be afraid for from where does your help come? I love you and My fountain is in you. You will become a well-watered garden."

He smiled and kissed my forehead.

Dream 212 – Jesus, Wheat and a Hidden Enemy

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Father, we anxiously await You. I want so much for You to shake the world from its slumber and turn hearts to You. No matter what, I see things changing and in a very bad way right now. My dream from a few nights ago was quite disturbing:

Dream description begins...

I saw an angel so massive that it could have been larger than half the size of the Earth. The angel hovered above the Earth and stood with the scales of judgement. The two sides of the scale were distinctly different from each other.

The right side of the scale contained good things, such as blossoming plants, fruits and healthy families. These good things were encased in a type of glass block or weight. The right side of the scale seemed like it contained all of the positive Fruits of the Spirit, but condensed in a measure of weight.

In contrast, the left side of the scale appeared as a heavy weight and seemed like it contained everything evil. This weight was growing and contained the opposite of everything holy. I saw mold there and that everything contained disease.

As the angel stood there, I saw, in time-lapsed speed, a type of countdown of 1200 and some days. As the Earth rotated and the planets moved around the sun, I saw massive changes in the weather and storms like I had never seen before.

At some point, the small weighted cube on the right side of the scale that contained everything good was finally removed. Once removed, the weight on the left side of the scale became so black with evil that the scale tipped completely. When it did, all good on the Earth was completely gone and evil prevailed.

I saw that all good had been removed from the Earth in just a short rotation. Once this happened, the black cube on the left side of the scale was opened and all manner of entities were released onto the Earth. The angel was then also removed from over the area.

Dream description over...

Father, this dream was disturbing. I then had another dream on the night before last about a type of condition or disease was spreading faster than it could be contained:

Dream description begins...

I was with three of my children at a shoe section of a department store, wherein my other two children were at a youth retreat for the weekend. It appeared to be in late fall and we were nearing the Thanksgiving holiday in the USA. We were sitting in some chairs waiting to be fitted for boots.

The shoe department appeared to be understaffed, especially considering that there was quite a sale going on and that this was a busy Saturday. The store seemed like a Macy's or something like this. A female clerk was running the cash register while another clerk worked the back room retrieving shoes for the only sales clerk.

The sales clerk was a gentleman that appeared to be in his mid-forties. As my teens waited patiently, thanks to their phones, I noticed that the male sales clerk started to display odd behaviors as he fitted customers with shoes.

His head would jerk and he would appear weak, but then he would shake himself out of this behavior and appear normal again. While no one else seemed to notice what I was witnessing, I alerted my kids.

Me: Whispering to the three of them. "Okay, take a look at the salesman. Tell me if you also see something weird?"

My kids looked up and the salesman's condition was becoming worse. I then saw that the people the salesman had touched were now beginning to jerk in the same manner as the salesman. I knew that this condition was now rapidly spreading.

As the salesman turned to help us, I noticed that he had changed from having a smile and joking to having impaired facial muscles on half of his face. I also noticed that his eyes, lids, cheeks and smile had drooped. For good reason, I became alarmed.

Me: "Okay, kids, we are leaving right now. Come!"

I gathered them quickly and we ran to our car. As we departed the store, we started to notice that others were now having this same catatonic look about them. As we drove home, I became quite worried about my two children that were away at the retreat.

When we got home, it was now dark and I had my kids quickly make sure that the house was locked up so that nothing could come in. However, after a short time at home, we soon saw headlights coming down our street towards us.

I was once again instantly alarmed as one of our neighbors from up the road had just arrived at our house with two extremely large men on either side of her. This woman no longer seemed normal and I did not want her in our house.

When she came up to our door with these two men and knocked, I opened the door, but blocked their entry. However, I knew that they could overpower me if they wanted to and that the door was not much of a barrier. I quickly made up an excuse as to why I was not offering her a neighborly invitation to come inside our house to visit with us.

Me: "We are all quite sick and I do not want any of you to come in and get sick yourselves."

Woman: "Oh, it is okay. Just let me come in heal you with my touch."

Me: "No, thank you, we are fine. Please go somewhere else."

The woman turned to quietly converse with the two large men next to her, but I could tell that they had wanted to break through our front door. However, before they could break in, I felt that something had blocked them from coming any closer to our door. The instant this happened, I could hear the three of them murmur and swear to each other.

Woman: "Alright. However, we will be coming back another day to visit."

Me: "No. Do not come back. You are not welcome here. You have never visited us before, so keep away from our home and my family."

Woman: Angry and indignant. "Well, you do not need to be rude. I am here to help you and make you stronger as you are going to need this. Fine though. However, when you are all dead and gone, I will be moving into your house."

Me: "You are already dead, so, yes, go ahead and move in here when we are gone. After all, who will be here to stop you or judge you? However, we are here for now, so leave!"

I saw her and the two men become even angrier at my response, but then something interesting happened. Something extremely large, but hidden from our sight, instantly removed them to their vehicle. Once inside their vehicle, this 'something' then picked up and turned their vehicle away from our house. I then heard screams as their car was forced to peel out of our area at a reckless speed.

Dream description ends...

Father, this dream was quite frightening and real. It was as if there was something hidden that was jumping from person to person with only a touch and anyone near those infected appeared to soon become infected as well. Whatever this was caused nerve damage or some kind of neurological decay.

Disturbingly, I felt that this was a much 'sneakier' disease than something like, say, leprosy, which would be easier to spot and avoid. The hidden danger of whatever this disease was truly frightened me in this dream. While it seemed like my family was protected, it also seemed as if we had not been taken in the Rapture yet.

Father, please remove us before these strange things occur. I cannot imagine having to keep track of our family in the midst of this horror.

Please protect us from the hidden danger of this viral entity of evil which is coming or is perhaps even here already.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was once again at the overlook of God's Garden. It was still dawn, but the sun was just a bit higher than the time I was here before. The sky was beautiful and the shades of pinks and purples were even more prominent than at my last visit.

There were flocks of starlings and other small birds making intricate formations in the sky and it was truly a beautiful show. I looked over at the rock with the bubbling spring and walked over to take a very long drink.

After drinking this amazing water, I felt so refreshed. After I had my fill, I sat on the bench and began to thank God for His beauty. Just then, I felt a hand on my shoulder and there was Uriel smiling at me. Uriel was in full body armor and his wings were beautiful and massive.

Uriel: "The King is in the field. Are you ready?"

Me: Jumping to my feet. "Yes! I cannot wait to see the Lord."

Uriel smiled and pointed my attention to his horse. The horse was beautiful and elegant, yet muscular and with a luminescent shimmer to its coat. The horse bowed down so that I could easily climb up onto its saddle.

Uriel: "Are you ready to fly?"

Me: "Yes! I am as ready as I will ever be."

I heard Uriel laugh as we took off with such speed that it was truly incomprehensible, yet I still felt absolutely safe. He circled first to the east over the valley towards the sun. He then circled over a massive meadow and up towards the southwest. I noticed that he was taking me in a different direction this time.

In the distance, I saw what looked like a tropical lake or ocean of light blue-green with white sand, boats and beautiful mansions. We were then far away and to our left as he flew over an area of beautiful gardens. The weather today felt almost tropical, but not at all heavy. Instead, the atmosphere was light and airy and about 75 to 80 degrees.

Uriel then accelerated and we were instantly over the valley in which I am most familiar with. The field of lilies was now directly in front of us. After he landed in this field of lilies, I climbed down from his horse.

I then saw Jesus waving in the distance. I quickly thanked Uriel, kissed his horse on the side of his nose and ran as fast as I could to the Lord through the lilies. It felt fantastic to run as I was fast, lean and healthy here. Jesus waited for me with open arms and hugged me upon my arrival.

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, I am glad you came despite your difficult time."

Me: "Lord, I am tired of this world we live in. Can we come Home here soon?"

Jesus: "Yes, but first I have more for you. Are you ready?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, of course."

He took my hand and began to walk with me.

Jesus: "Now, I have some things to show you."

Immediately, we were in a Heavenly field of crops wherein there were two massive fields with workers. The field to our left had barley, while the field to the right had wheat. There were harvesters looking after the crops.

I walked with the Lord to where the two fields met. Jesus picked a head of wheat as well as a head of barley. Both heads were absolutely perfect, but I noticed that the barley looked a touch plumper than the wheat.

Me: "Hmm, they look so much alike."

Jesus: "Yes. These are both choice grains and serve many purposes. Here, these are perfected and their seasons do not end."

Me: "So there are seasons, but they are never ending? How can this be?"

Jesus: "Soon you will understand, but these overlap and are always abundant. Each harvest is better than the last and each is perfected. The workers enjoy their work and the harvesting of the grains. Here, all is perfected and the grains are good to eat."

Me: "It is hard to imagine what the food here is like compared to what we eat now."

Jesus: "There is no yeast or hidden fungus required here to permeate the dough in order for it to rise."

Me: "Then how can it rise?"

Jesus: "By the air here and by command. There is also no need for any hidden binding agent to cause the bread to increase."

Me: "This is fascinating. So are there bakers and chefs here?"

Jesus: "Of course. When was this declared an art form which is now no longer good? There is no lack here, but there also is nothing which is contrary to that which is good. In the world, there is a negative for each positive, but in Heaven there is no need for opposition to balance that which is good.

"On Earth, there is a need for this from 'the fall'. Well, because of 'the fall', there is an ongoing struggle between good and evil. Here in Heaven, you see that which is good and all is void of evil. Now come and let Me show you what you have recently been made aware of."

Instantly, we were on an earthly farm and there before us were three fields. One of the fields contained barley, one contained wheat and the third contained rye.

Jesus: "You eat these in some form every day and they cannot be avoided without great care and struggle. Let Me show you something."

He walked over to each of the three fields and pulled a head of each grain. He came over to me and showed me the different grains.

Jesus: "Erin, what do you see?"

Me: "I see something on each of the heads that appear to be a few black grains."

Jesus: "Does this look right to you?"

Me: "Hmm, I really do not know."

He then went over to uproot another type of plant or grass that was right there in the midst of the rye.

Jesus: "Now this is the 'tares'. Do you recall what this is?"

Me: "I recall it as the tares amongst the wheat in Matthew 13:27."

Jesus: "Look."

He then showed me, in reverse time, the plant which was infected with mold. He moved His arm and, in an instant, I saw that the soil was good and the farmer had then planted the crops in this good soil. I then saw that God then sent the sun and the rain.

However, I then saw something else that was quite frightening. I saw a demonic entity commanding a flock of crows. Interestingly, a 'flock of crows' is also called a 'murder of crows'. Anyway, this 'murder' of crows had been sent out to take these 'other seeds' into the good field.

As a result of these other seeds, 'tares' began to crop up in various places. However, these weeds looked quite similar to the grains, yet carried harmful spores out amongst the tender young wheat, barley and rye. In turn, these spores produced fungus that infected these grains.

Me: "Lord, I cannot tell that plant from the wheat. It looks exactly the same."

Jesus: "Yes, this is 'zonin', which, in turn, is like a 'harlot' that is brought in to degrade the wheat. It is a destroyer and not recognizable until the time of harvest. Now, let Me show you the root."

Side note: I wrote down the word, 'zonin', but I was not entirely sure of the spelling as I had never heard of this word before. Regardless, it seemed quite obvious to me that this 'zonin' was not at all healthy for us.

Jesus then took me back to ancient times to just after 'the fall'. This was in the time of Noah, wherein I could see field after field infected with 'tares'. I then saw people grinding these grains in order to use in their bread.

I then saw people eating these bad grains. Behind all of this, the Lord then gave me a glimpse into the demonic realm, where I saw the roots of witchcraft here. This was yet another form of treachery, wherein this 'Pharmacia' was part of the roots of illnesses.

Me: "I do not fully understand. Did the flood not remove all of this, thereby banishing it from the Earth?"

Jesus: "For it is written, 'and as were the days of Noah, so shall be the coming of the Son of Man. For as in those days which were before the flood, they were eating, drinking, marrying and giving in marriage until the day that Noah entered in the ark' (Matthew 24:37-38). This occurs now and also occurred back then."

Me: "Yes, but it seems the enemy is cleverer now."

Jesus: "Erin, these tares were removed once, but this disease remained to infect again. Now, when was the enemy completely removed?"

Me: "Lord, God is wiser and stronger. Why did He not wipe out fungus, disease, mold and death along with all of the evil descendants?"

Jesus: "Flood waters rose to remove the fast growing problems, but where was it written that God would remove trouble from here on Earth?"

Me: "Well, at least not by flood."

Jesus: "Erin, evil still remained, but instructions were then given to bring life to those who remained."

Me: "You mean in Leviticus when the Israelites went into Canaan, the Promised Land?"

Jesus: "Erin, what is one of your main warfare signs?"

Me: "The presence of mold marks the presence of evil for me. It is a huge sign of trouble."

Jesus: "Now, what does mold do?"

Me: "Well, if left unchecked, mold can spread and ruin everything surrounding it."

Jesus: "So, what of the wheat then?"

I felt the Lord prompt me to search wheat, barley and rye fungus, as well as 'tares' and trouble. I then went to the Scriptures and read about God's instructions about mold and mildew. I then learned that mold and mildew was extremely serious, including in wheat and barley.

In turn, this is related to Ergot, which is linked to the drug LSD. This, of course, has roots in the Fallen with their teachings on Pharmacia or pharmaceuticals (Leviticus 13 and 14).

Me: "Lord, this is frightening. How can any of us be protected from the enemy if it is in our breads and cereals. How can we find it?"

Jesus: "It is written as a warning, so do not ignore something in front of you. Take actions on these things when presented to you. Left unchecked, this small thing can ruin so many portions and spread. It is like sin, Erin."

Me: "I just discovered some mold in an old freezer in our garage and I cannot seem to remove it no matter what I try. This seems ominous to us as we are not in the position to replace this at this moment."

Jesus: He looked at me seriously. "Hmm, then here is a rebuke. You are not in the position to keep it. You have taken care of everything I have asked of you, but now you must be diligent and remove that which is unclean."

Me: "Forgive me, Lord, as I thought I could control this."

Jesus: "Perhaps you should then give this to Me. If this were not important, I would not have written instructions for its removal in My Words. This is poison and is an unwanted fungus on an unwitting host. I love you, Erin, and this is part of your instructions as I am revealing to you about the dangerous tactics of the enemy.

"Now you know about the locusts and that these have ravaged your crops. You are now also aware of another plague of the enemy and one in which a person must fight against uncleanness."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but You came to abolish ceremonial law so that we were not bound by it. You set us free."

Jesus: "Hmm, yes, Erin, but this is a matter of good practices versus evil. Erin, would you allow this fungus to be where your children sleep or eat and say, 'Oh, Jesus died on the Cross for me. I no longer need to worry about those old issues.'"

Me: "No! Sorry, Lord, absolutely not as I know the dangers of this mold and it is bad. I am going to do all that I can to obey that which is written for the health and safety of my family. I would not feed them uncooked meat, so I certainly would not allow them to live in filth if I have the ability to clean this."

Jesus: "This is a condition in which I see the enemy thrive in. I gave you instructions and signs to avoid that which longs to harm you. The enemy is like yeast. Your dreams recently contain sound instructions about the state of things.

"These times you are in are becoming worse and the evil is becoming more pervasive. That which is good is declared evil and that which is evil is declared good. It cannot be disputed. Now, tell Me what you have learned."

Me: "Lord, two weeks ago, You focused on locusts. I have lost so much from a worldly standpoint, but I have gained everything in You. You then have shown me something hidden which has a root. She comes in like an adulterer, whereby You called her a harlot, and makes that which is good bad.

"Now, I know that bleach can usually remove mold, but that it cannot if the roots are too deep. However, I now realize that this 'zonin' or 'tares' which carries rot, or Ergot, is so toxic that it can make people lose control. This seems to be now acceptable in our wheat and grains, but I find it a problem.”

Jesus: “All of this is to show you that when I bring you signs, when it is even written and when you see it with your own eyes, then take a stand against it. Now, your house is clean as you take care of your home and are responsible over it.

“However, just understand that the enemy originates from here and is operating in the world. Remember that innocent looking wheat amongst you can bring trouble that is meant to destroy.”

Me: “Lord, this mold You have shown me seems widespread now. Is this being ground into our wheat as we speak?”

Jesus: “Yes, Erin, but it will become far worse.”

I was then shown that animals were also eating these infected moldy plants.

Me: I became distraught. “Oh Lord, is this mold in almost everything we ingest now?”

Jesus: “Erin, do not live in fear as I am giving you that which is good. I give you good bread and clean water even as the world feeds on the bread of affliction and foul water. This would otherwise make you sick, but do not worry as I am here and I am with you.

“I have warned you so that you recognize the times you are now in and that this is now widespread. The enemy seeks to destroy your harvest. Pray and I will send help from My sanctuary. Erin, I am here.”

Jesus reached over and hugged me. I felt such love from Him as I hugged Him right back.

Dream 213 – Jesus, the Branch and the Fallen Fruit

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for all You have done for us. You are amazing, wondrous and steadfast. I love You so much Father, but, more than anything, I thank You for bringing me to You.

When I was young, I did not know You:

- When there was tragedy in my youth, I questioned Your hearing.
- When there were other gods hurled at me in college with the 'many ways to God' philosophy, I questioned Your power.
- When I became an adult and lost my way, I questioned my worthiness.
- When I turned to You, I questioned Your ability to forgive me.

However, when I finally lost everything, I questioned all my questions as I knew no other way but Your way or I would perish.

At times, and when my road was dark, long and ominous, I questioned my own discernment to hear Your still, small voice. As I travelled this long road, one marked quite often with uncertainty, difficulty and harsh conditions, I finally stopped focusing on the trouble and changed my course.

While I am still walking or running on this road, the same road with all its hazards, I just now see them as tools meant to get me to where You want me to be when I finish. However, it did not mean that this would be easy as You never, and not even once, promised me an easy road.

However, what You did promise me was that I would finish strong. A strong finish! Lord, I just love this promise so much, especially as I am physically actually quite weak.

This week marked a time of reconnection with my relatives. It also meant a time of finalizing the twelve month mourning period in order to fully release the passing of my mother to God. This release was not as easy as I thought it would be.

Finally, I once again heard the song by the Eagles, 'Seven Bridges Road', and I knew that this was a sign from You that I needed to complete my course on my eighth bridge. I knew that it was also my sign to say goodbye 'for now' to my mom.

This whole process has been very difficult on me as one of my family members has even chosen not to respond to me after I told him about my closeness to God, wherein I very lightly hinted about these dreams. However, there is nothing that I can do about his reaction except to pray.

In summary, and through this all, I drew closer to some of my family, but also lost some of my family at the same time. While everything before was at least neutral, now, and without believing I had done anything that differently than before, I find myself cut off from communication by some.

While I do not do like it, I accept it. I have reached out and prayed as there is nothing else I can really do except to give it all to God. Father, why is it so repulsive for some to hear that You work and speak with us even today and that You, Father, are still a living and breathing God?

Regardless of their reactions, Lord, I love You and so do my children. We are looking to You in all that we do, so please continue to help us keep our eyes fixed on You to finish our races strong.

The night before last, on September 23rd, I had a dream. I had not had a dream quite like this one for many years. In reality, I had not had a dream quite like this since November 22, 2004 to be exact.

Dream description begins...

I was packing a suitcase, but I only packed my essentials. I knew that, where I was going, no one could come, at least not my family. Still, I was happy, yet very determined, as this was something I had prepared for and for a long time.

I was just in awe that this date had now finally come as I had thought about this 'time' often over the years. As I was packing, it was now evening as I called over my children to speak with them. I told all five of them that I would be back soon and not to worry.

Dream description ends...

When I woke up from this dream, I felt a bit disturbed. However, I soon fell asleep again. About thirty minutes later, I had a much more elaborate and longer dream. I stayed in this dream until You, Father, woke me up with Your voice.

Dream description begins...

I saw a beautiful home in a suburb, but I was looking at the home from slightly above the street. There was a massive fruit tree to the right of the driveway and it was beautiful. You then spoke to me.

Lord: "Erin, when the first fruit falls to the ground, it has begun."

Just before God spoke for me to awake, I saw a small fruit drop from the tree. I noticed that the fruit that had dropped was still unripe and had dropped before it was ready.

Dream description ends...

Father, please help me with this dream. Does this mean financial crisis? Does this mean people falling away?

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

It was still sunrise in God's Garden. While the sun had risen just a little further from my last visit here, it was still not fully over the horizon. The sky was so incredibly beautiful and it was as if God had the angels paint the most incredible sunrise and magnify it a hundred times more beautiful than anything we could possibly conceive on our own.

I smelled a hint of wood smoke and fragrant flowering plants and vines. I looked to the north of the valley and there I saw beautiful aspen trees. Their white trunks were extremely vivid and their beautiful heart-shaped leaves varied in a sea of colors, including golds, greens, reds, oranges and purples. It was breathtakingly beautiful.

I could hear choirs of angels and choirs of birds singing in harmony. While I could see the formations of birds, I could not see the choirs of angels. Now, I say 'choirs' in plural here because their singing seemed to come from all around me and in amazing succession.

Choir: "Glory, glory, glory, glory"; "Holy, holy, holy, holy"; and "He is worthy, worthy, worthy, worthy."

Tears began to fill my eyes as I was overwhelmed by the amazing presence of God here in this place. As I heard these angelic choirs sing, 'Worthy is the Lamb of God', I began to openly weep. I kneeled on the bench and felt a desire to offer up anything unholy or unworthy to God.

Me: "Oh Father, You are here, You are in the midst and You are all around me. Please forgive me if I have not handled some of my tasks according to Your perfect Will. I long for Your presence and to be right before You. I am sorry if I complain or if, at times, I pray and get disappointed when You do things in an unexpected way, which is most of the time.

"Father, I have now dedicated all I am and all we have to Your perfect Will. So, Father, please have Your way in me as I long to be a good worker and long for more of You. Thank You for remembering us, Father, and thank You for Your promises.

"I pray I have removed myself from the things of this world and have kept You as my main reason to be here. I anxiously wait for what comes next in my journey as I know the times of Your soon return is coming."

I then felt a hand on my shoulder. As I looked up, I saw Uriel and he was smiling.

Uriel: "The King is in the field, Erin, and He awaits your presence. Take a drink of refreshing water and then it is time to depart."

I went to get a drink. I soon drank several handfuls! As Uriel pointed to his horse, the horse went down low to enable me to saddle up. Uriel had his arms crossed and smiled at me as I wiped my mouth with the back of my hand.

Uriel: "Hmm, Erin, were you thirsty?"

Me: Laughing. "I never knew how thirsty I was until I began to drink. I feel so much better now, so thank you."

Uriel: "Do not thank me as I did not create this bubbling spring that flows from the rock. Remember that this is God's Garden and that I am but a messenger and a servant."

Me: "Well, that makes the two of us as I am just a scribe and a servant. Well, at least when I can, I try to write as best as I am able to."

Uriel: "Erin, this is enough for God as He is requiring no more and no less from you."

Me: "Why do I always feel I should be doing more?"

Uriel: "Hmm, God calls you friend and the Lord requires your presence. Have they required more than what you are capable of? Even though they have told you by instructing you in the ways you should go, which you then have, do you still feel you should be doing more? Are you perhaps hearing that you are to still do more?"

Me: I was doubtful. "Yes, I think so, but I am not sure."

Uriel: "Erin, this is from the enemy and perhaps it is your 'self' that is making plans. Die to this 'self'. Now, what has God been instructing you to do in this last part of these 40 days?"

Me: "Well, so far in this block of 40 days, I have been putting my physical and spiritual house in order. I have said goodbye to my mom and I am at least trying to put my mourning period to a close. I have finished almost every task God put on my heart.

"Now, I still have some small things to do this week, but then I pray I have done His Will and He is pleased. I have gone to God in forgiveness of anything else I have done to pray for His generous mercy."

Uriel: "Then, Erin, you are doing everything He has asked of you. The enemy would want you to feel incomplete, depressed or leading unto your own understanding to move ahead of God. Remember, doing anything apart from God is out of His Will. This can cause 'self-inflicted' wounds."

Me: "Oh, this makes sense. Okay, I will not move ahead of God."

Uriel: "Very good. Now, Erin, are you ready? The King is in the field?"

Me: "Oh yes!"

After we mounted Uriel's horse, we were soon in flight over God's Valley. This time we flew to the north, right over the aspen forests. We flew over alpine meadows, beautiful lakes of light blue, lush pine forests and snowcapped mountains.

I saw beautiful estates in these areas. Some were massive log cabins and others were modern looking retreats. I saw snow falling, but I also saw green grass thriving. It was beautiful and very difficult to describe.

I was a bit turned around as I do not know if there is necessarily a compass registering east, west, north or south. I simply just do not fully know. However, whatever direction this was, it was beautiful and what I saw would be so exciting for those who love mountains, meadows, lakes and snow.

I was excited myself as I just loved to cross-country ski when I was younger. My mom and I went out all the time and this was such a great workout.

Uriel now appeared to circle and come back down and toward the southeast, wherein we flew over an area of Mediterranean-looking lakes and homes. We then flew over more vineyards, orchards and fields until we finally arrived in a field of lilies.

As I looked down, I could see the Lord in the field waving to us. Soon as we came to the ground, the horse bent down and Uriel helped me off. I hugged Uriel, patted his horse and ran as fast as I could to the Lord. As Jesus received me with open arms, Uriel flew overhead and we waved goodbye to him.

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, I am so glad you came."

Me: "Lord, I am afraid about the state of everything. It seems as if the evil is becoming even worse."

Jesus: Smiling. "It is written that evil will become acceptable and that which is good will become unacceptable. These are the times you are in."

Me: "Lord, I have been depressed lately and I am wondering if I am doing things correctly."

Jesus: "Hmm, things...Erin, I do not understand." He was smiling as, of course, He knew exactly what I meant and understood fully. He knew that I knew this too...

Me: Laughing. "Okay, I just feel in my heart something great is about to happen, so I just pray that I am on the right track."

Jesus: Smiling. "Hmm, you are here, right? Hmm, your prayers for help have been answered and your needs are being met, right?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, to both."

Jesus: "Then I see no glaring case for disobedience. Now, I believe you are downcast because My instruction on 'the workers and the witnesses' was exciting and uplifting when compared to My instruction on 'the tares'. The instruction about tares was unpleasant."

Me: "I do not know why we were not taught about this 'fake' imposter wheat. I thought we were to confront false Christians like tares and uproot them."

Jesus: "Hmm, then read this parable again. In this, I am the sower and I spread my redeemed or seed. You are a true believer of Me, correct?" He smiled.

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "I spread seed in the field of the world. Your presence shows that you are bearing fruit through My grace, which is sufficient. Because you bear fruit, the Fruits of the Spirit, your presence on this field is like the Kingdom of Heaven being at hand."

At this point, I felt instructed for us to review Matthew 3:2, 4:17, and 10:7. I then came back and Jesus continued.

Jesus: "You grow like wheat, yet you still have to grow next to the realm of evil. The weeds are disguised as wheat, but are really tares. However, these tares will not be torn out until the wheat is harvested. Once the whole field is harvested, then the tares will be separated and burned.

"However, the precious wheat will be saved and stored away in the barn." He smiled at me as He knew that I would look at Him at the end of this sentence. "Yes, Erin, but I mean the 'barn' that is here in Heaven." He light heartedly laughed.

Me: "But what of the molding tares?"

Jesus: "Yes, this is to illustrate how quickly mold or decay can destroy wheat. You are not of the world and I am not of the world. You are a citizen here. Come, I will show you more."

He took my hand and we were now in a beautiful orchard. There were trees there which bore multiple varieties of fruit. The orchard was beautifully groomed and perfect.

Jesus: "Now, what is the difference between orchards here in Heaven compared to those you have seen before on Earth?"

Me: Laughing. "Well, here there is no fallen fruit as all the fruit is attached to the branches and nothing has fallen. Here there is no rotten fruit, worms or decay."

Jesus: "Very good, Erin. I spoke to you about the wheat and tares. Now, what of the trees which bear many fruits?"

Me: "Well, from Matthew 7:16-20, this seems related to my dream, Lord. I watched a fruit fall from the tree before its time. What did it mean?"

Jesus: "This dream marks the beginning of a time. You will know it when you see the first fruit fall. It will also have multiple meanings. You will recognize them by their fruits. Are grapes gathered from thorn bushes or figs from thistles? So every healthy tree bears good fruit, but a diseased tree bears bad fruit.

"A healthy tree cannot bear bad fruit nor can a diseased tree bear good fruit. Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into

Me: "So, will there be several people who we thought bore good fruit that will soon fall? Is their fruit bad? Maybe these people have something to do with banks or money?"

Jesus: "Or perhaps churches? Erin, do not be deceived. Take this time to draw near to Me. There will be a great falling away, but there will also be a great awakening of those who have been asleep. A baby is formed in the womb to a fetus for 40 days. Think of this period as your reshaping and as a time of preparation. You are to move from one state to another."

Me: "I am not fully certain what You are referring to. Do You mean Elul, the month of Elul, to the Days of Awe?"

Jesus: Smiling. "I am My beloved's and My beloved is Mine." (Song of Solomon 6:3). He then reached for my hand.

Me: "Thank You, Lord. I love You so much. I want people to know how wonderful You are."

Jesus: "Leave this to Me. Now, what can cause a fruit to drop from the tree before it is ripe?"

Me: "The weather?"

Jesus: "Yes, the shaking of the tree from wind, storms or hail, but also the cold or extreme freezing. Sometimes God can also cause this by His command. Other times it is from disease and worms."

Me: "The world? Evil in the world?"

Jesus: "Yes. However, overbearing is another cause and sometimes the youngest fruit is sacrificed for the good of the tree."

Me: "This seems harsh."

Jesus: "As a parable, sometimes young children or young believers are removed to Me. I collect them, yet they do not fall, all for the greater good of the other fruit. This is difficult to understand, but the other fruit can then thrive better attached to the Branch. Now, Erin, who is the Branch?"

Me: "You are the Branch and, apart from the Branch, fruit will not survive."

Jesus: "Erin, know your enemies from their fruits. Take these next few days to bring all of your troubles before Me. Write these down. I will remove these in a single day. Trouble bears no fruit in you.

"Any pruning I have done on your twigs will now become healthy branches bearing much fruit. I am the Branch and you are an extension of Me. Apart from Me, you can do nothing, understand?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, I will do as You ask."

Jesus: "I have more for you. I love you, Erin."

Me: "I love You, Lord."

Dream 214 – Jesus, False Miracles and God’s Miracles

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another beautiful fall day! Thank You for all we have. Thank You for my friends and family. Most of all, thank You for sending Jesus. He is my best friend, as are You and, of course, the Holy Spirit. Last night I had two dreams, but the first one seemed quite ridiculous.

Dream 1 description begins...

My family and I were on a trip in an area with many meandering paths. One portion was on cliffs by the ocean, other portions were in mountainous, forested areas and still other portions were in deep caves with massive stalagmites and stalactites. The various landscapes were quite fascinating.

The path we were now walking on was roped off so that no one could wander off along the way. However, there were also small areas along the path where a person could stop and pray. Each of these small areas had a shrine to Mary or one of the saints. Each stop also had a plaque next to it that marked a miracle registered by the Pope.

This path soon led us into a deep cave where I saw a weeping Mary statue that all of the tourists were excitedly taking photographs of. I looked up and quickly discovered that one of the stalactites in the cave was dripping water onto this statue’s head, but no one was pointing this out. Instead, the crowd was oohing and ahing at the ‘wonder of the weeping’.

As our family huddled together to quietly discuss what we were seeing, we all agreed to say nothing about this as we felt strongly that this was the enemy’s battlefield. Not one of us felt that the Lord was calling us to engage. As we continued down the path, we noticed miracle after miracle, but also that not one of these miracles were actually of God.

When we finally came to the end of the path, there was a gift shop where people could either purchase miracles or time with a priest to receive forgiveness. Now, I must admit, I know nothing about the Catholic religion, but I assumed that this priest was supposed to be like Jesus to the Church.

As I approached the area where people were going to this priest for forgiveness, I noticed that these people had to present a small document with their credentials on it, along with a receipt for payment. I wanted to go and see what this was about, but I first asked my family to pray for my protection before I went over to the woman at the cash register to investigate. I then walked over to her.

Me: "Hello, I would like to purchase 'forgiveness.'"

Clerk: "Alright, that will be $111.11."

I laughed to myself at the silliness of this payment. As I looked down at my hand, I saw that I only had a twenty dollar bill. I was about to say to the woman that I did not have enough when I heard the Holy Spirit stop me.

Holy Spirit: "Erin, here is the money to purchase the ticket. However, when you approach the priest, do not let him touch you. Instead, wait for instructions."

Just then, my twenty dollar bill turned to $111.11 in exact change. I now suddenly had a $100 bill, a $10 bill, a $1 bill, a dime and a penny in my hand. I smiled to myself again as, clearly, God wanted to do something with me in all of this.

I handed the money to the clerk and purchased the ticket. However, I noticed that my ticket was just a ticket receipt without any credentials. I was puzzled at this.

Me: "Excuse me, but why do I not have the same ticket as the others?"

Clerk: "You are not qualified."

Me: "Then how will I receive forgiveness?"

Clerk: "You purchased the ticket and now you will need to have him lay hands on you for special grace."

I hid how ridiculous I thought this all was from the clerk. As I turned to look at my family, I saw that they were all smiling and holding back their laughter as they also knew that God was about to do something amazing here.

As I started walking towards the priest, I stopped to look around this massive gift shop. I simply could not believe how many items were flying off the shelves. Things were selling faster than the clerks could even stock the items.

There were things for sale such as rosaries, but bad plastic ones, along with 'Mary snow-globes'. However, the one that really bothered me the most was the 'Jesus bobble-heads'. The gift shop had even labeled it as, 'Jesus Staying Upright While You're on a Rocky Road'.

Okay, so here this entire shelf was dedicated to Jesus remaining steady and upright, yet here was a Jesus bobble-head which never stopped bobbing. It was really just so dumb, but also quite blasphemous.

As I went to stand in line to see the priest, I noticed a 'produce section' labelled 'Fruits of the Spirit'. I saw people purchasing these actual fruits, most quite beautiful, wherein each were labelled one of 'Patience', 'Kindness', 'Love' and so on.

As I got closer to this area with the 'Fruits', I noticed that there were stickers on each fruit which had a rendering of the Disciples on them. I could not even help myself from rolling my eyes about this.

Each of these 'Fruits' was being sold at a different market price. I started to chuckle when I noticed a half-price area for 'Fruit' that was either starting to go bad or was overripe.

Finally, the moment arrived when it was my turn to approach the priest. After he took my ticket and looked at it, he stopped to study me.

Priest: "Why do you come, child?"

Me: "Well, you are going to forgive my sins and save me, correct? As you can see, I bought the required ticket."

I then heard the Holy Spirit tell me to speak. Suddenly, and with words I knew came straight from God, my lips opened and I began to speak with supernatural confidence. From this point and on, the Holy Spirit was now instructing me on exactly what words I should say and when, all in real time.

Me: "Now, by whose authority have you been given the power to save? What allows you to be called 'Father' since I am labelled 'child' by your very own lips?"

I saw a shocked look on the Priest's face. At first, he was speechless and was clearly becoming irritated with my questions.

Priest: "I am an inheritor of the power and authority of the apostles. Bishops and priests of the church exercise the full authority to reconcile and forgive penitent sinners in the name of Jesus. I am a successor of the apostles until the end of the world. I have been given my authority to save by God Himself."

Me: "Oh, does this mean that I do not need to pray to God, but only to you?"

Priest: "You have no schooling or credentials. You must be educated so that you understand the ways of God. Perhaps you are not to be saved if you are unwilling to go to the instruction manual."

He then picked up and showed me a Bible.

Me: "I have read the Bible and I know this is the inspired Word of God. However, nowhere have I seen written in those pages that I must go to a man for my salvation. In 1 Peter 2:9 it is written, 'But you are a chosen people, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people belonging to God, that you declared the praises of Him Who called you out of darkness into His wonderful light.'"

Priest: "Exactly. I am a royal priest and the one appointed by God."

Me: "So am I and this is not just for you. Show me where in the Word that God does not give authority to His children in the name of Jesus? For it is written, 'And they sang a new song, saying, 'You are worthy to take the scroll, and to open its seals. For You were slain, and have redeemed us to God by Your blood, out of every tribe and tongue and people and nation, and have made us kings and priests to our God, and we shall reign on the earth.” (Revelation 5:9-10)

“It is also written, ‘Jesus came and spoke to them saying, ‘All authority has been given to Me in Heaven and on Earth. Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things I’ve commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age.’” Amen. (Matthew 28:18-20)

“Then it is written, ‘Let us therefore come boldly to the Throne of Grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need.’ (Hebrews 4:16). Now, how are you helping here? If God is in me, who are you that I should call you Father?”

Priest: Now quite angry. “Perhaps salvation is not for you?”

Me: “It is written in Joel, Acts and Romans that ‘everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved.’”

I then waved my arm and all of the ‘Fruit’ instantly became rotten and all of the idols fell off of the shelves. The Lord then had me speak further and with great authority.

Me: “It is only by God’s grace you will be saved. Turn now to God in Heaven whom is slow to anger and merciful in love. Do not follow those wolves in sheep’s clothing, for with them there is no redemption.”

I could now hear cursing and yelling as people came upon the fallen idols and the rotten fruit. The Lord then had me wave my hand again and all the fruit suddenly became perfect, but with no slogans written on them. A fountain with spring water then appeared. Then the Lord spoke yet again through me via the Holy Spirit.

Me: “Now, eat that which is good and drink that which refreshes.”

The priest approached me in order to touch me. However, I quickly backed away from him before he could do so. I then tossed my ticket to the ground. Just before this dream ended, I could see that very few people were even interested in the restored fruit and spring water.

Dream 1 description over. Dream 2 description begins...

I packed my suitcase into a white car to head to my destination in Portland, Oregon. Portland was the place where I was saved. Upon arriving in Portland, the car I was driving suddenly turned into a bicycle. While I was much younger physically and now looked like a twenty year old, I was still my current age in wisdom and experience.

I peddled my bike to an area near the Pearl District in northwest Portland. I pulled up a chair to a massive wooden oblong table outside an open air cafe. As I sat there observing people for a while, I ordered something to eat. As I looked around, I glanced at a local newspaper that was sitting on the table.

Me: "Lord, why am I here? So much has changed, but things seem oddly the same."

While Jesus was not physically with me, I could hear His voice clearly speak to me in my Holy Spirit.

Jesus: "Wait on Me. This is where it all began. Wait for further instructions. Operate in the Fruits of the Spirit at all times. Remember that one of the Fruits is patience."

Me: "Okay, but I am not perfect, Lord. You are the only One I know in Scripture who operated in the Fruits of the Spirit 100% of the time."

Jesus: "Hmm, but did I not also flip tables?"

Me: "Yes, but it made sense for You to do this since You would have been..." He interrupted my thought to draw my attention to something.

Jesus: "Erin, look over there."

As I turned, I saw a street preacher. However, I soon noticed that this man was preaching a different gospel and telling everyone that miracles were dead today.

Me: "Yes, I see him."

Jesus: "Now, invite him to sit with you."

I walked over and invited the man to sit with me. As he looked me over, he started to glare at me in an inappropriate way. However, he agreed to let me talk to him and sat across from me at the table.

Jesus: "Now, Erin, ask him why he says there are no miracles today."

Me: I looked at the street preacher. "Why are you preaching that there are no miracles today?"

Man: "Miracles are dead. Christians are asleep. Those who claim to do miracles are sent from satan to give false hope."

The Holy Spirit suddenly began to speak through me with power and authority.

Me: "Are you hungry? Then eat."

Just then, a full meal appeared before him.

Me: "Do you thirst? Then drink."

Just then, a full glass of water appeared. Shortly after this, the bald man instantly had his hair grow back. He reached up in shock and felt his new hair.

Me: "Your heart has hardened. Turn back to God and He will heal you."

The man stood up and threw the meal and water at me.

Man: "You witch and liar. The church sleeps. This work is of the devil."

Me: Jesus continued to work through me. "No, you do not realize the times you are in. Though it seems there are no visible miracles, the time has come for those who slumber to rise up and look to God for peace, strength, healing and grace. By God's grace and His glory, He will grant miracles to edify His power."

Man: "No, witch. Be removed."

I then heard the Lord inform me that this conversation was over.

Jesus: "Erin, I am taking you from here to another place."

I was immediately taken to a different part of Portland. I recognized this to be the financial district.

Dream 2 description over...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately up in the orchard and Jesus was just a short distance away. I quickly ran over to Him and hugged Him.

Me: "Lord, I am so glad to see You."

Jesus: "I am glad to see you too. Did you do as I instructed?"

Me: "You mean write down a list of all of my enemies? Yes, but there are a lot of enemies on this list."

Jesus: Laughing. "I have many enemies also. Now, do you have the list of your immediate trouble?"

I reached into a pocket in my white linen tunic and I handed Him my list.

Me: "Yes, Lord, here it is."

Jesus: Nodding. "Yes, we are in tune. You have the same list that I have. Now, I removed some of your enemies a while back, but not all of them. Why do you think I am doing it this way?"

Me: "Well, I am not really sure. Since You always fulfil Your promises, perhaps I am the problem. Only You can save me from our troubles and only You can remove all of these enemies. I must admit that, when I see You operate miraculously in our lives, but sometimes just enough to sustain our faith, I often wonder why I cannot just remove our enemies by Your authority right now?"

Jesus: "Erin, there are miracles today. For those who remain in Me as fruit to the Branch, I do miraculous things. Your life is a miracle from beginning to end. Who can dispute this? Now, you are wondering why you cannot declare a thing and immediately have it happen when using My authority by name.

“There is a reason. In the last seventy years of time, the world has been stirred and the church is waking from its slumber. A few have been called to operate in the gifts of miracles. They operate in this gift for a while, but it then subsides for a while. Or I will use them for an event, but then it appears that I have left.

“These are all small alerts meant to rouse those sleeping for My return. However, now a time is coming and is at hand that My glory will be on full display and splendor. Despite this, some will say it is actually the work of the devil.

“They will say this even though it is written that I will pour out My Spirit, your sons and daughters will prophesy, your young men shall see visions and your old men shall dream dreams. Erin, you are young and old, but My Spirit is also upon you.”

Me: “I do not understand.”

Jesus: “Erin, soon I will display wondrous things and there will be a time of great splendor from Heaven. However, there will also be a great falling away. This time has come.”

Me: “Has it already been happening?”

Jesus: Smiling. “Erin, you have only to look back one bridge and then compare the acceleration of evil from the bridge before. It cannot be disputed. Now, in your dream, you saw deception and ‘pay for play’ is common now. However, what I have to offer is free, yet no one purchases it.

“You were given five stones to fight this giant, but only one stone was needed. When My Spirit was operating through you, people were repulsed by your words and offended by the miracles.”

Me: “Yes, but why?”

Jesus: "When people are told a miracle is from God, they will become offended as they will have also seen false miracles that people did not say were from God. Some will become hardened against God by this.

"However, these false miracles will be easy to spot as there is no substance behind them and no deeper parable or insight will be given to the witnesses from them. Instead, there will be nothing but chains keeping them stagnant to their personal beliefs.

"In contrast, miracles from Heaven are always given to glorify Me and My Father and never to glorify the person performing the miracles. If I made you a witness, then you would only observe and see these.

"Instead, you will be a worker and an operating vessel in which people will only see the power of God through you. This will edify Me as it wakes people up to the urgency of the times. During this time, you are to consciously operate in the Fruits of the Spirit.

"When you do not, I will nudge you back. You will then immediately recognize My voice and make corrections. Right now, you are to wait for My leading in all that you do."

Me: "Lord, this is very serious."

Jesus: "Erin, you asked to be used and now I will use you. Are you ready?"

He reached over and gently hugged me.

Me: "Yes!"

Dream 215 – Jesus, the Fish and the Gate

Received Thursday, October 6, 2016

Please note that this dream began on Sunday, October 2, 2016, but took several days to complete. When it became apparent that this dream was being fought by the enemy from start to finish, we finally had to ask the prayer warriors on our Nest Forum to pray for my protection. I was then able to finish this dream shortly thereafter. This is one of my longer dreams and spanned almost 36 pages of journal pages...

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for Your promises. As the times we are in are becoming darker every day, I just know that the time of You sending Jesus to come for us is very soon. Lord, I have had several dreams in the last few nights...

Dream 1 description begins...

My eldest son and I were travelling to a nearby city about two hours from where I currently live. We were driving on a four-lane highway right around dawn. Somehow, and I have no idea how, the familiar highway turned into a country road that led to a beautiful white farmhouse with a few red barns and a large, silver silo.

The white farmhouse was built circa late 1800's, but it looked brand new as it was maintained perfectly. It had a black shake roof with black shutters and a green door. It was early morning, around 6:00 am, and the small farm owners and some neighbors were busy setting up an Estate Sale.

The items I saw them setting up for the sale were all pristine and were a 'pickers' dream for antiques. A very handsome elderly man approached our car. I was in awe as he was easily in his eighties, yet he was working and lifting items that even a 25-year old bodybuilder would have trouble lifting.

Man: Smiling. "It looks like you took a detour."

Me: "Yes, but I do not know how. The car just seemed to drive here. It is as if the highway ended here. We are a bit confused."

As he gently laughed, I saw that he had perfect white teeth. He also had white hair, bright green eyes and a ruddy or tan complexion.

Man: "So, are you in a hurry?"

Me: "No."

Man: Smiling. "Well then, this is how I see it. If you discovered us here and you were not even trying to and you did not take a wrong turn, then perhaps you are to step out and take a look around. The sale does not start for a couple of hours, but I will give you first pick. Come on."

I laughed and turned to my son to see if he was okay with this turn of events.

My Son: "Go ahead, Mom. It is kind of cool here."

In the past, I would have been extremely excited about looking through all of these amazing antiques. However, I no longer felt the same way as I used to about treasure hunting, but I knew that it could insult him if I said I did not want to look around. In reality, I was also way too curious not to take at least a bit of a look around.

I noticed that this man had work gloves on as he opened the driver's door of my car to help me out. He was being a perfect gentleman, reflecting the era he had grown up in. I laughed with him as I stepped out of my vehicle. I breathed in the country air. It was such a beautiful day for the workers to be setting up the tables.

The tables already had vegetables, fruits, baked items, jars of fruit preserves and honey set up on them. I closed my eyes for a moment as I recalled a memory of these familiar smells as a child of being at my grandparents in Illinois. I remembered something else, but the thought quickly went away when I heard a different man talking to someone else.

Man 2: "Other than food and blankets, who really needs any of this anymore?"

As I looked around me some more, I noticed that several of the elderly women around me somehow looked much younger than I was. Though I could somehow tell that they were actually much older than me, like the man who helped me out of the car, these women were simply stunning. All of these women laughed with such joy and were being so sincere with each other.

I turned to see if my son was seeing what I was seeing. Really, how could he not as these women were just so beautiful. He smiled approvingly and gave me a 'thumbs up' to continue. While this may seem like a weird reaction for a teenager being around much older women, you would have to see these ladies to truly know that his reaction was truly warranted.

As I started to look around, I was in shock over the vastness of the inventory and the value of the items for sale. However, I felt in my heart that I was there for a different purpose as I really had no need for any of these items, even though they were so beautiful and valuable.

As I walked around, I saw several lovely items which made me smile. There were elaborate doll houses, baby carriages and clothing from the 1800's that had never been touched.

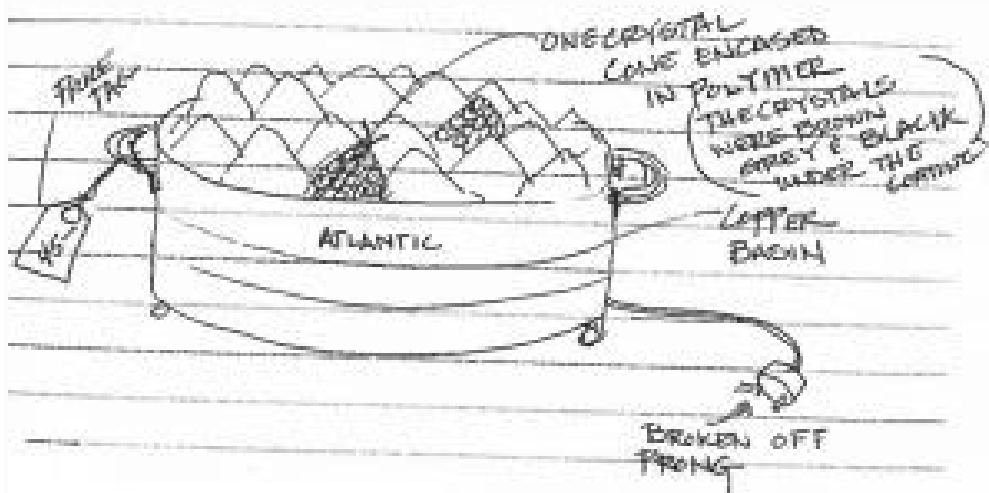

I also saw incredibly elaborate china, including Spode, Wedgwood and even Belleek. Each of these sets contained every item produced for that particular set. This meant that every serving dish, container, vase and on and on for that set was all there. Not only that, but all of the items were in perfect condition and worthy of a museum.

I saw other rare items there as well, including hand-painted French and English pieces and high-end glass from Europe. I saw beautiful clocks and pocket watches. There were so many 'jaw-dropping' items that I cannot even describe all that I saw there.

I eventually stopped at a table where I found something quite unusual. I was not even certain why I found this particular item so incredibly fascinating. It was a massive Atlantic copper tub or basin that I had sold in my shop years ago, wherein they were not nearly perfect like this one.

This basin had brass handles, wherein the inside of the basin contained these grape-like cut crystals, shaped in clustered cones. Each one of these cones was pointing up and appeared like diamonds. I had never seen anything like this before:

I then saw something that really made no sense to me. One of the many cones had been encased in polymer as all of the crystals in that particular cone had blown out. As a result, these crystals were now in various shades of grey, browns, and blacks. I questioned why someone would not have just removed the bad cone instead of encasing it.

As I closely inspected this unusual item, I noticed that it had an old electric cord wrapped in fabric with an old plug. To make matters worse, one of the prongs was snapped right off and three wires were dangerously exposed.

I then picked up the basin by the handles and held it up in the sun so that I could look into it. The sun had risen higher in the east behind me and the brilliance of the cut crystals was creating a rainbow and shined almost like diamonds.

Indeed, these crystals were so bright to look at that I soon had to set the basin down. I smiled to myself as I looked at the cord because I just knew that the whole thing had to be rewired in order to use the plug. However, once fixed, I also knew that this would illuminate beautifully at night.

Man: Laughing. "I see that you like the only item here that has a defect."

Me: Now laughing too. "Yes, I have never seen anything like this. By the way, could you tell me the story on this one bad crystal cone?"

The man laughed even harder at my question and I somehow already knew that this would be a good story.

Man: "Well, when I was younger, and without realizing the value in this just being able to illuminate during the day, I decided to wire all of these cones together and create a light from within for nighttime. The problem was that this one cone kept heating up the other cones.

"I then decided to render this particular cone inactive by encasing it until one day when I would throw it out. However, I just never got around to it as the brilliance of the other cones was so great that it made us not even really notice the dark cone anymore."

Me: "Hmm, so you did this because you wanted it to be a light source at night too?"

Man: Laughing. "Yes. I thought I would wire them together to shine in the dark too. Now, are you planning to take this item home with you today?"

Me: "To be honest, I really have no interest in purchasing anything today as I just got rid of some beautiful pieces I had owned. It is not that your pieces are unreasonably priced or that any of the quality is bad, it is just that I feel that the Lord wants me to no longer focus on things like this.

"That being said, I would have still purchased this item, but I noticed that it would need to be rewired. I am not sure if I could do this, but I could see if my husband could. Hmm, I just do not know what to do here."

Man: Smiling. "Alright, tell you what. I will give this item to you for half price as I just know your husband can rewire it. How about go ahead and buy it for $22.50."

Me: Laughing. "Okay, you have a deal."

Man: "Very good, Erin. This was a great purchase and a thing of splendor!"

Me: "Wait. How did you know my name?"

As he smiled, there was a flash of light and I woke up.

Dream 1 description over...Dream 2 description begins...

I was living in a home with wood floors that were made of all natural oak with no varnish. However, I was constantly being distracted by a spider about two inches in diameter that was the same color as the wood floor.

Each time I went to kill this spider, it would fly away. At long last, I was finally able to smack the spider with a rolled up magazine. To my surprise, I discovered that this spider was actually two spiders with wings and were entwined together.

Dream 2 description over...Dream 3 description begins...

I was in a massive retail store with various floors. It was an old brick building with several loft-like areas. As I walked around, I noticed that there were many antiques on display. To my surprise, I recognized a piece of furniture my mother had purchased for me from ten years ago in 2006.

It was an ancient twelve-drawer Rosewood filing cabinet, but I am really not that sure how old it was. I had sold this cabinet about six months before my mom died last year and have since regretted it. The cabinet had now been painted a blue-green color and was being used as a filing cabinet for behind the counter.

As I approached the counter, two clerks came out to greet me. I recognized both of these clerks as the men who I had hired to liquidate all of our belongings back in late 2006 to pay for legal and medical bills for me and the kids. Back then, these two men had seen my file cabinet and had wanted to auction it, but I had refused their request.

Me: "It is me, Erin. Could I ask you a quick question? How did you acquire some of my old items when I did not sell any of them to you?"

The men quickly started pretending to be too busy to deal with me when they heard my question. Instantly, I became suspicious of their operating methods.

Man: "Look, Erin, we are in the business of acquisitions. All people have a price."

He then pointed to some other items that I had also once owned. I had not noticed these items until he pointed to them, but I soon realized that these were also items I had never sold to them.

Me: "How can this be? I never sold any of these items."

Man: Laughing. "If I am unable to purchase an item, then I take it. Either way, I control commerce here."

I scanned around and saw various items which seemed to have been damaged from a war, a battle or even a shipwreck. I also felt that some of these items had been stolen.

Me: "It looks like you took items where there was a fight for them."

Man: "If there was, what business is it of yours?"

Me: "Well, most of these items are in bad shape and you are asking too much money for them."

Man: "Well, perhaps they are not for sale. Perhaps they are only on display in order to torment those who lost them."

I already knew that these men had ulterior motives, but I suddenly realized that they were also extremely evil.

Me: "I have no use for these things anymore. You have no power over me. It simply does not matter to me anymore."

Man: "Yes, perhaps not to you, but there are others. Leave here now."

Me: "I will gladly leave."

As I began to walk out of the store, an elderly woman came in at the same time.

Man: "Oh yes, you are looking for this."

He showed the elderly woman a purple heart that was suddenly now on display.

Widow: "Yes, that's my late husband's lost medal. It would mean so much to me if I could have it."

Man: "Yes, but I have more of his things as well. Come with me."

He then led the woman to other memorial items that were once owned by her husband. She was now in tears.

Man: "Now, I will make you a deal."

Widow: "Yes, anything. What is your price?"

Man: "It will cost you all that you have."

When I heard this, I stepped just inside the store to protest. I was outraged.

Me: "Do not do it. He is lying. He will destroy you. Your husband is gone!"

The man looked at me with utter contempt and yelled.

Man: "Get out!"

Just then, two larger than normal men appeared and unceremoniously threw me out to the sidewalk. Thankfully, I was supernaturally kept from being harmed. Before leaving, I looked back through the window and noticed that all of the items that once had been mine had now disappeared and were changed to different items customized to whoever entered the shop.

I watched in horror as this man continued his sales pitches. After a while, the man suddenly glared at me through the glass and I realized he was satan.

Dream 3 description over...

After writing these three dreams down, I suddenly recalled that an odd thing happened that coincided with some of my dreams I had on Friday, September 30th. I woke up twice during the night with a particular song in my head. The odd part was that it was not just a verse or two that I recalled, but rather it was a clear, concise version of the entire song.

I did not quite understand why this song was downloaded to me. Now, to give you some background, I have to rewind to about two weeks ago when I was in a home goods store. I heard this particular song for the first time and felt a need to use an app on my phone to find the name of the song and artist.

As information on the song popped up on my phone's screen, I laughed and rolled my eyes at the name of the artist. This particular song was by an artist named "Dragonette" of all things and the song was titled, 'Come On, Be Good'.

While I laughed about this at the time, I quickly forgot about the song since it was a catchy alternative song that was not really my taste. However, a week or so later, I decided to make a CD for a road trip we were going to take. For a reason I am not sure of, I noticed this song on my app and decided to download it onto my CD.

When we later went on our drive and this song started playing, my kids started to laugh at the quirkiness of the song and soon requested that I skip the song. However, we then decided to give this song a chance and somehow we all ended up liking it for some hard to explain reason.

Now let's flash forward again. On this one night, this particular song kept playing in my head. This seemed to happen every time I flipped over or got up during the night. While my previous experience told me this could be warfare and an attack, I knew it could not be as I had no other signs of an attack. I decided to pray on this 'just in case'.

Me: "Lord, why would You place such a strange secular song on my heart?"

Shortly after asking my question, I quickly fell asleep again and dreamt.

Dream 4 description begins...

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, do not always look to obvious signs. Now, did I come to the world in an obvious way?"

Me: "No, Lord, You are unconventional and You came in a way no one expected."

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, even though it was foretold. They had thought that this was not how a King would display His power, right? So, if it is written in advance of this great and dreadful day of the Lord by the prophets, and yet this is also called a great and glorious day of the Lord, then will this day not be glorious for some, yet terrifying for others?" (Joel 2:31, Malachi 4:5, Acts 2:20)

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "Erin, I am teaching you how to know when I am the One speaking to you. If something is in your belly and you cannot dismiss it, and it is even disturbing your sleep, then come to Me and I will instruct you. When you do, I will not leave you guessing. However, you must come to Me so that I can grant you wisdom and peace."

Me: "Yes, Lord. Now, what about this strange song I kept hearing in my head?"

Jesus: Laughing. "The words, Erin, the words. When people search for Me, but then try to limit My abilities by saying 'God would never do this' or 'God does not work this way' even though there is no contradiction to Scripture, they are trying to limit God. Well, do not limit the God of all creation. Do you not believe I can do anything?"

Me: "Yes, but I just did not expect You to use such an unusual method to speak to me."

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, Erin, you were wrong to build walls around My abilities. Now, when it comes to the gift of these dreams and visions that I have given to you, how often have you heard people say to you that 'God would never do this' or that 'this is just not the way God works'?"

Me: Laughing. "Well, as You know, this happens all of the time. They then accuse me of having an elaborate imagination."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, then they should all request this gift as it has not only changed your heart, but it has even circumcised it back to Me."

Me: "Yes, but painfully so."

Jesus: Smiling. "True, but would you change anything?"

Me: "Well, yes, Lord, but any modifications I would make would only be on some of the outcomes that came about due to my own poor choices."

Jesus: Laughing. "As you draw closer to Me, Erin, you must realize that there is more than just the surface of a thing. Instead, there are many layers, so do not get stuck because of a stiff neck. If you do, you will fail to see what I would like to do. Now, look at that song again for the message I sent you."

Me: "I guess that I had mistakenly thought that all secular music is not good to take in."

Jesus: "Erin, this is like the food that you eat. If you eat only one thing over and over again, you soon lose the delight that you once had from the taste of it. There are redemptive messages all around you and in every walk of life. Have you never heard a non-secular song that finally lost its luster? Have you not also heard some non-secular songs which really do not edify Me?"

Me: Laughing. "Yes, Lord, all of the time."

Jesus: "Then do not get stuck always looking for Me in obvious places as sometimes an 'unconventional' Savior uses 'unconventional methods'. After all, 'I'm making a taste, you're chasing a flavor. You're gonna be saved, I could be your Savior. So say your prayers.'"

We started laughing together as He knew that I would quickly recognize that His words were taken directly from the lyrics of this song. As I continued to laugh, I could not help myself from hugging Him with a love and gratitude that defies earthly description.

Me: "Oh, thank You, Lord, for instructing me in the ways that I should go."

Jesus: "Remember, Erin, people will not like you because you are unexpected and unconventional. While you walk with Me, these people have instead built perimeters around Me and the way they think that I should go.

"Remember that these people do this even though it is written in Scripture that 'in the last days, I will pour out My Spirit on all people, your sons and daughters will prophesy, your young men will see visions and your old men will dream dreams.'

"These people are not expecting something like this, so do not worry or try to defend your gift. While those I have called will hear Me and see Me in your gift, those the world sends will become angry and even unreasonably so. Erin, there is so much more to come."

Jesus was smiling at me as I woke up...

Dream 4 description over...

Father, thank You for all of Your wonderful instructions while I sleep. This weekend, we took a beautiful fall drive with the kids. After I read the lyrics of this song to our children and told them about this dream, we decided to play it again.

We all laughed together as we listened and agreed that this is so much like You, our Lord Jesus, to have so many hidden meanings in otherwise simple lyrics. Later that night, I had another dream, on October 3rd, 2016, about bitter honey.

Dream 5 description begins...

I tasted some honey that had won awards at a fair. After all, everyone was talking about how amazing this honey was, so, naturally, I had to see for myself. However, as soon as I took a taste of this honey, I noticed that it was bitter, similar to syrup of ipecac. As I began to vomit in my dream, I woke up...

Dream 5 description ends...

Father, please help me with all of the dreams I have had these last few days. As the Jewish calendar just turned to the New Year of 5777, now, and more than ever, I feel the enemy is ramping up against us, Your children.

In the past, there seemed to be more 'good' in the world than evil as evil was usually hidden. However, there seems to be so much evil now that it is now becoming more and more difficult to even see the good.

This week, we once again experienced a series of cluster 'perimeter' attacks that all seemed to come from outside enemies. While I feel that I am so close to being free from all of this according to Your promises, I also feel that I am now in the very eye of the storm.

Even my own children now seem a bit beaten down and no longer as expectant of Your promised upcoming miracles, God. I have never seen them like this and they seem exhausted by all of their battles as well. Well, I cannot really blame them on this as lately it seems that, for every good thing, there are now five bad things.

Father, it is beautiful outside today and the fall leaves are bright and colorful. I feel in my heart that You are on the verge of doing something amazing. However, with each passing season, I wonder if this will be my last.

Father, we are facing some major storms right now and I simply cannot believe the uptick in attacks coming from all around us. Father, please keep us protected during all of this trouble.

Lord, if not for You and Your divine instructions, so many things would have caused our destruction by now. I see Your hand in everything, but yet I still become afraid. Father, please just deliver us from our troubles and please do so soon.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

However, just as I was going up to visit the Lord, I suddenly received a disturbing phone call and once again had to pause. After this call, I became unsettled, so I instead went to God for personal instructions. This latest pause then kept me busy until I went back to my public journal on Wednesday, October 5th, 2016.

Even as I again started writing in my journal, even more bad news came in and now in no less than three different areas that were all starting to converge. I did not understand the reason for the sudden increase in attacks, so I repented of anything I could think of 'just in case'.

Now, for those who know me, especially my children, I really do not swear. However, I was already at a tipping point, so, uncharacteristically, after receiving yet another piece of disturbing news that interrupted my prayers yet again, I blurted out a word that I did not even use when I was a non-Christian.

I instantly became angry at myself for my outburst, even though no 'human' actually heard me utter it. Indeed, what really disturbed me the most is that my outburst would have given the enemy a clear sign that he was able to get under my skin.

After I repented, I decided to write down the following to give you some reasons for this outburst as well as more background on what we are facing right now...

Ever since my injury, the insurance company has fought all of my treatments and tests tooth and nail. Well, seven months ago, and to our amazement, they had agreed to pay for some tests down in Virginia where my doctor is located. As I can no longer travel alone, they surprised us by also agreeing to cover my husband's costs to accompany me on this trip.

Quite simply, we now needed the insurance company to pay for this trip in advance as they still have not reimbursed us for our last three medical trips. These trips were necessarily expensive and we still have not been able to fully recover from it. Not only that, but I have now been billed for an additional $5,800 for a test the insurance company asked for, but now refuses to pay.

In terms of this almost six grand bill, the service provider for this test is now threatening collection if we do not pay immediately. Even though I did not sign my name authorizing this test nor was I warned of any possibility this cost could ever come back to me, somehow the service provider and the insurance company are both attempting to make me responsible for this expense.

Now, one of the tests I was to take on this trip was not one that I was at all keen on taking to begin with. I had this particular test twenty years ago and it was extremely painful and I had adverse reactions to it. This scared me immensely as this harmed my health even though I was perfectly healthy back then.

With this as background, you could only imagine my reaction when I unexpectedly received a phone call from the insurance company that they just now decided not to cover my husband at all and will not be paying for our trip in advance after all.

In turn, this puts us in a very bad spot since, if I cancel this appointment, then the insurance company will drop me. On the other hand, we really do not believe the insurance company will actually ever cover our submitted costs after we have gone on the trip at great personal expense as they have reneged on this every time in the past.

As further fuel to help move me into swearing, I also had remembered a conversation I had with my mom last summer wherein I wanted to fly out to see her before she died. My mom had convinced me that she would still be here for a while and wanted me to use the money I would otherwise spend to see her to fly to see the doctors to get medical help instead.

My mom was quite persuasive, and has always been so, so I somehow ended up agreeing with her and used that money for this earlier medical trip. After taking this trip, I tried to get reimbursed from the insurance company, since they promised they would, so that I could visit my mom, but they then refused and still have not paid us to this day.

In hindsight, it would have been better for me to say goodbye to my mom than to endure more of my forced dancing to this corrupt puppet master, the department of labor industries. When I was told about this yet another betrayal by this corrupt agency, I told my husband all that was said.

After a long discussion and prayer together, we then decided to take a stand and have now refused to go on this medical trip. This means that I now have to rely fully on the Lord as I cannot heal myself. Indeed, with no further medical coverage, I simply cannot rely on this flawed system anymore, but must instead go to our Father in all things.

This has been a painful road for us and an even harder decision. Even with an L&I lawyer, representing me on a commission basis, we have decided to cease dancing to their tune by not going on this medical trip.

While, by law, the insurance company can tell us we cannot drop my so-called 'care' from this corrupt agency, I suppose they will now need to put me in handcuffs because I will simply no longer play their horribly corrupt and twisted game.

While some may feel that I have shared too much here, I just know that these are the types of obstacles so many of you are facing today and want you all to know that you are not alone. Indeed, I do not believe I stand alone in believing that these corrupt government systems are slowly working together in order to enslave so many of us.

Father, I must admit that I had mistakenly thought that these Ten Days of Awe would be somewhat different than they have been so far. To be quite frank, I am just in shock at all of these turns of events. However, You soon would give me yet another dream that seemed like a personal warning.

As I entered an office building, I was greeted by a secretary that I had actually met before on Earth at a previous appointment. However, what I found so unusual now was that she was wearing a wide brimmed hat cut off at the top that had a nest inside it.

When the bird peaked out of the top of the hat, I instantly recognized the bird as a Sparrowhawk because of its yellow eyes and striped breast. I had remembered this small bird of prey from when I used to rehabilitate them many years ago.

Dream 6 description ends...

After I woke up, I immediately went to the Lord to ask Him about this odd dream. He confirmed to me that this dream was a warning about some people we currently have to deal with.

While Jesus confirmed that He had sent me to this firm to receive some assistance for various government matters, He also warned me that these people are not friendly towards us and that their motives are not what we had thought or had hoped for.

He then instructed us to continue to have them perform the services we had hired them for and to provide information to them as necessary and requested, but that we were not to disclose any more information than what was absolutely required.

As the timing of His instructions is always perfect, on the very next day after this dream, on Tuesday, October the 4th, this very same woman 'just happened' to contact us with a letter. It soon became clear that this letter exposed her trickery and, if followed, would have had adverse consequences to us for a long time.

Indeed, had the Lord not warned us, we may not have seen what this woman was doing. Before I responded, I immediately went back to the Lord with what was contained in the letter and He provided me with how to respond. After I wrote my response and sent the letter, this potential door to trouble was quickly shut.

Thank You, Father, for the heads up from Jesus on the plots of the enemy. I am still sad though as, so far, it just seems that the 'Days of Awe' are the 'Days of Bad News'.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

As I walked along the path in God's Garden, I could see the beautiful valley below me as the sun was rising. I smiled to myself as I wondered if it was a new day's sunrise or still the same morning as my last visit and just a few Heavenly minutes later. As per usual, the beauty here was breathtakingly beautiful and the temperature was perfect.

Me: Smiling. "Well, You are still allowing me to be here, so I guess I am not in trouble."

Just then, I felt a hand on my shoulder. I looked up at and it was Uriel smiling at me.

Uriel: "Erin, the Lord requests your presence. Please drink from the spring and be refreshed."

I walked over and drank from the bubbling spring for quite some time. What is so funny is that, as I am drinking, I suddenly realize how much I needed to drink this water, yet I never seem to remember to take a drink without being reminded first.

When I finally finished drinking, I turned towards an amused Uriel. His arms were crossed and he had a light-hearted teasing smile. He was in his armor and his beautiful wings were on full display. I smiled when I noticed that his horse was already waiting for me with bended legs.

Uriel: "Come, Erin, the King is in the field."

Before I knew it, we were in flight. Uriel flew north to an area with beautiful bodies of water. However, the water was not dark and ominous like our oceans, but I could instead see into the water.

As I gazed down, I could see fish and other creatures, but they were somehow inviting and not scary at all. As we flew over this area, I could also see massive estates with beautiful beaches in their private coves. I then saw small villages with beautiful shops and people celebrating.

As we flew over the area, I realized that there was really nothing like this on Earth. I saw saints in the distance and each of them were both unique and perfected. It was so fun to see people engaged in amazing activities all around me. I simply could barely wait to participate in all of this someday myself.

Tears started to stream down my cheeks uncontrollably at all the joy and laughter I could see. There was great food, music and a way of life that I have only seen faint glimmers of here on Earth. These people no longer had any cares or worries and I could virtually feel their freedom from all of the earthly chains that we are bound by.

Uriel then circled around and over some other amazing properties. While I love architecture and gardens on Earth, it is quite simply beyond description here in Heaven. We then approached the Valley of Blessings and passed many harvest fields before finally touching ground in the field of lilies.

There was Jesus waving at me. I quickly patted Uriel's horse and thanked them for the beautiful scenic tour, but could hardly wait to run to Jesus. As I ran towards Him, I saw Him smile and I could tell He was glad to see me too. I hugged Him tightly.

Jesus: Laughing. "I see you finally made it."

As we began to walk, I watched as His hand glided over the tops of the blooming lilies. As His hand passed, each lily responded to the touch of His hand by opening and moving closer. This was so amazing that I tried to mirror Him by moving my hand over the lilies as well. However, I did not get the same result. We both laughed.

Jesus: "I know this has been a difficult time for you and your household and that you all have had many worries."

Me: Smiling. "Lord, You even told me that I was skilled in the art of worry."

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, but this is not a good skill to boast of as this will make you ill."

Me: "It already has, Lord. The flood gates of enemy attacks have come and we are all in awe during these ten Days of Awe. I sometimes feel that I must be out of Your favor because of my lack of faith. I am trying, Lord, I am really trying.”

Jesus: “Well, it sounds as if you have done all you can, right?”

Me: “Yes, but now I have to give these battles to You so that You can instruct me in the ways that I should go. I really know no other way. Lord, could You please soon release me from all of these government agencies? I am tired and all of this seems to be becoming a full time job to just deal with these agencies.”

Jesus: “Erin, give all of this to Me as I have you. If, during these ‘Ten Days’, you are not able to reconcile with your enemies because these are institutions with no heartbeat, then I will take them and release you. This should be a period of drawing closer to Me. Do not look to man for your delivery from trouble, but to Me, understand?”

Me: “Yes, Lord.”

Jesus: Smiling. “Now, come with Me to fish.”

He took me by the hand and instantly we were in a boat on a beautiful lake. We were surrounded by the most beautiful fish I had ever seen.

Jesus: “Now, Erin, reach down and take a drink.”

Me: I took a refreshing drink of the water. “Wow, this water is amazing. It is so fresh and pure and the fish are so perfect and colorful.”

Jesus dropped a small net into the water and hundreds of fish jumped into His net. He then brought the net up, took out one of the fish and then released the net with the rest of the fish back into the water.

The fish He had taken was quite small, seven inches long, and incredibly cute. Its scales shone like a rainbow and it was quite beautiful. Unlike on Earth, the fish was not gasping, but instead appeared to be able to breathe comfortably out of water.

Jesus: “Though this fish is out of the water and out of its element, it still breathes and remains calm. In fact, Erin, it even looks happy.”

As Jesus moved His hand across the side of the fish, it suddenly became even more beautiful, stronger and with even more intense colors. After He showed me how the fish had changed, He put it back in the water.

I noticed that the fish then looked at Jesus and seemed to be waiting for something from Him. Jesus smiled and nodded at the fish and only then did it swim away. Soon it began jumping in and out of the water as it swam back to its school. The fish seemed even happier than ever.

Me: "Wow, that was amazing, Lord."

Jesus: "Erin, you are like this fish."

Me: "Really? What do You mean?"

Jesus: "You know that you belong here, yet you are forced to swim in dark seas with predators all around you. On Earth, the water is bad, the food is poor and the enemy is relentless in its pursuit of you. He is hungry for you and he is hungry to destroy you because of Me.

"Now, what I have done with that small fish I will soon do with you. You think you are being punished by Me when trouble comes, but you believe this only because you lack faith. Erin, I tell you the truth, you have faith, for when you cry out, I answer you. You have learned that I will come to you immediately. You cry out and I answer.

"Erin, this is a faith based relationship. You come to Me in good times and bad as I am always with you. Your lack is because you struggle with trust for others to meet their promises as your trust has been destroyed so many times before."

Me: "Are you referring to my earthly dad?"

Jesus: "Perhaps, but you know that there are also others who have contributed."

Me: "Lord, should faith and trust not be the same?"

Jesus: "Faith in God is different than trust in man. Are you not glad that I am always available to answer your cries of distress? Erin, you can trust Me. I have not pulled My love from you by giving it to another. I have not made promises to you and then disappeared. I have never failed to hear you and answer and I will not start now, okay?"

Me: "Thank You, Lord."

Jesus: "Now, I just caught a net full of a few hundred fish. I selected just one of them in order to show you what I could do. This little fish was unafraid and he did not say, 'Oh no, is the Lord going to bite my head off?' or 'Is the Lord unhappy with me?' Instead, this little fish knew nothing, but instead trusted that I would do him no harm and that My plans for him were blessings. I blessed him and he is now happy."

He pointed to the lake at the same fish. I saw this fish jumping so high out of the water that it was actually quite funny.

Me: Laughing. "Lord, that fish can now practically fly."

He laughed and then pointed first to His chest and then to me.

Jesus: "Well, perhaps he will discover this next. Remember, with Me in you, nothing is impossible. You know the times you are in and you are being equipped to come to Me. Remember that I instruct you as you sleep and give you revelation upon request. If you seek Me with your whole heart, I will be found by you."

"Now, I must show you something about a different type of harvest. However, you must be careful as the days you are in stir up old conflicts, open doors and open wounds. Take this time to come to Me and I will instruct you in the ways you should go. I am about to close the gate on your enemies as this is 'Nillah'."

"Now, your enemies wrestle with you as they converge, so release them to Me. I am the Gate and whoever enters through Me will be saved (John 10:9). Before the Gate closes, the Heavens open wide, understand?"

Me: "I think so. Are we in this time now?"

Jesus: "You are in the beginning of the times, but you are entering through another Gate. You will have the same destination here with Me, but you will first be a worker and a fisher of men."

He smiled at me as He gently reached for my hand. We were instantly at a beautiful gate.

Jesus: "Now, what is this gate for, Erin?"

Just then the gate opened.

Me: "Hmm, is it to enter into the other side?"

Jesus: "Yes, but it can also be a barrier which separates you from Me. Remember about your heart and the gate."

Me: "Yes, sin separates us from You just like a closed gate."

Jesus: "Yes, sin is a barrier and a type of gate. What else does a gate do?"

Me: "It keeps those allowed to enter apart from those not allowed to enter." (Revelation 22: 14-15).

Jesus: "Tell Me, do you see another way in if the Gate is closed?"

Me: "Well, I guess someone could climb over the wall."

Jesus: "Yes, but it is written, 'Very truly I tell you, Pharisees, anyone who does not enter the sheep pen by the gate, but climbs in some other way is a thief and a robber!' (John 10:1). The desire of My heart, Erin, is that all would repent, circumcise their hearts and enter through the gate. My hopes are that none would perish.

"Erin, I will grant mercy to all who cry out as even the thief was able to enter in when he asked Me to remember him. Now, this is the time to examine your walk and to be an instrument of forgiveness and love. Now you must seek My face."

Me: "Lord, please forgive me for sometimes sitting outside the gate, even though it is open to me, and hopelessly crying out to You in complaints and lack. I know that one of my favorite Words in Scripture from You is from Matthew 7:13-14:

"Enter at the narrow gate for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leads to destruction, and there are many who are going through it, because small is the gate and narrow is the way which leads to life, and there are few who find it.

"I pray that I remain with a repentant heart, prayers on my lips, praises on my tongue, my eyes seeking Your face and my ears hearing Your voice until the Heavens open and You receive us Home, Lord. Please have mercy on me and my household that we may be reconciled to anyone we have wronged with both forgiveness and love. Lord, we long to do Your Will."

Jesus: "Erin, I am here for you, so do not worry or be afraid as your help comes from Me and I am the Gate. You are loved."

He reached over and hugged me.

Dream 216 – Jesus, the 10 Days of Awe-ful and the Dead Sea

Received Sunday, October 9th, 2016

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Father, You have extended the fall colors just for me (smiles). Well, I am sure You have done this for everyone and not just for me, but I like to think You heard the desires of my heart as You know that fall colors have always been my favorite time of year.

This has been the longest period of fall colors that I have ever seen and we are not even near the peak of it. There have been no fall winds yet as these winds usually removes all of the fall leaves in a single day.

This period usually lasts but a few days and my mood goes from being joyful and amazed by the colors to sadness that it is so quickly over. Once this happens, then I am left with the prospect of a long cold winter.

Last year, my heart was so very broken with my mom's passing that I just did not have a chance to enjoy the fall season. Instead, the last fall season marked such pain for me that it became almost difficult to even look at the beauty.

While I still saw the beauty in You, Lord, I watched as an entire bridge in my life, in reality a few bridges related to my mom, seem to close. While death visits us all, it seems to affect each of us in different ways.

For this year's fall season, I feel like You have given me a bit longer to get out and walk around, go for drives and take photos. Thank You, Lord, for I am so grateful for this extra time.

Still, Father, we continue to be pounded by enemy after enemy during these Ten Days of Awe. So much so that, just yesterday, I decided to half-jokingly rename this time the Ten Days of 'Awe-ful'!

Today is Sunday and a beautiful fall day, but, sadly, it is being marred by the sounds of framers working on a new home seemingly just yards away from us. It seems that, out here in the country, there are no work ordinances for silence on Sundays and holidays.

As a result of all of the hammering, sawing and so on, I at first did not feel like writing in my journal today. However, with prayer, I have decided to push through the noise and continue on and still meet with You today. However, as I continued to pray, You soon opened up a different perspective to me on these noises of construction.

In reality, the future owners of this home are probably praying to soon have a roof over their home before the weather turns into winter. I am also sure that the workers' families are relying on the paycheck that comes from the building of this house. This change in perspective seemed to help me press on through the noise.

As I continued to pray, you prompted me to recall the recent privilege we had of walking through an historical Anglican church yesterday. My husband and I had decided to take a drive so that I could take photos of the fall leaves. We soon pulled up to a picturesque church that we thought would be perfect for pictures.

As we pulled into the church parking lot, we realized that they were getting ready for a service and quickly tried to drive out of the parking lot. However, before we could, a man, who was the caretaker, walked over and told us he was preparing for a funeral at 2:00pm.

Of course we told him we would leave, but, and to our surprise and delight, he instead asked us if we wanted to come in for a tour. We looked at each other with smiles and we enthusiastically agreed.

As this elderly man gave us a tour of the church, he was incredibly informative and gave us the history of the church, the stone, the paintings, the stained glass, the Baptismal Font and the wooden throne. The church was really elaborate and so fun to tour, but it was their pipe organ that was simply 'off the charts' amazing to behold.

After we left, we talked about all that we had just toured and seen. We both agreed that, while the church was absolutely amazing, neither one of us felt that God was truly present there.

While we felt that there were incredible elements in the architecture, as well as in the accessories surrounding the idea of Jesus and the disciples, along with some certainly interesting stories, the church felt more like a museum than a dwelling house for the Lord. While we were extremely grateful for the tour, this also saddened us.

Father, please forgive me if I have misspoken or judged this church unfairly or without leading. I was just going on a feeling in my heart. It even seemed that the stories of miracles in the church all happened in the 1800s, yet I did not hear of any miracles that happened after that or recently. This seemed somehow telling to me.

Father, I feel, with each day's passing, that time is running out. I am not sure what You could use me for and I am willing, but the 'able' part is entirely up to You as I pray You will soon heal me.

Lord, I recently removed an enemy by deciding in favor of our quality of life. As a result, I have released this anxiety for the health of me and our family. However, as this will no doubt have financial consequences, we will need You more now than ever. I felt in my heart that we had no choice but to go this way and that You are in this decision with us.

That night, the song, 'Come on, Be good', went through my head again. This song seemed to come to me every time I flipped that night. I could not help but laugh to myself when I then heard You say, 'Be strong and of good courage, do not fear nor be afraid of them, for the Lord, your God, He is the One who goes with you. I will not leave you nor forsake you, Erin.' (Deuteronomy 31:6)

All in all, aside from the continuous attacks, these 10 Days of Awe have also been quite emotional for me so far. The night before last, I started crying when I realized that my dreams from the Lord had truly started exactly four years ago on October 7th, 2012. I started to weep as I looked at all the ways that God has changed my life since then.

I have learned through all of my trials that God, You Father, have given generously to me at times and, at other times, have allowed me to lose almost everything. As a result of these trials, I have learned to no longer follow the path of destruction, which leads to death, but instead I have now chosen to live for You and You alone.

I even now think of the fall season like a type of parable. It is a beautiful time of the year as it is a time for harvesting fields, a time when wildlife seems to be seen more and a time of vivid colors. However, in what seems to be just a matter of a couple of days, the cold and wind sets in, the leaves fall, the gate to this season shuts and winter sets in.

In other words, one season 'falls' and another season's time of sleeping and dormancy begins. While most things seem to then die, it is not until the promise of spring that we truly feel hope and see life spring up again. While I actually love winter, well, mild winters, and I love snow, I must admit that I love fall even more.

As I prayed on all of this, I felt called to go back through my journals to the times that I had written in the fall seasons. In specific, I reviewed past events in my life that had occurred specifically during the fall feasts. When I did this, I soon became amazed at the horrible, awful things which had occurred during this time, but always just prior to something great happening.

When I reviewed my fall 2011 journals, it helped me recall a time when all of my hope was gone because I had exhausted all of my means to fight for my children. Then, and completely unexpectedly, on September 20th, 2011, a check had been mailed to me which I did not receive until right before I was about to be forced to withdraw.

Prior to receiving this check, my attorney had just threatened to pull out of my case due to my lack of money prior to a trial scheduled for October 10th, 2011. As a result of the related stress, I fell on my knees in prayer every day. I felt that my heart would soon fail from the grief of exhausting all of my options to continue to fight for my kids.

Suddenly and without any warning, on September 26th, 2011, I opened my mailbox and saw this unexpected check had arrived. This allowed me to be able to continue fighting for my children. Thank You, Lord, for, within ten days, we forced my children to be returned to me and the enemy retreated with only the threat of trial.

The enemy was left completely baffled at my sudden turn in financial status. God had allowed me the ability to stand with strength and conviction and He delivered me. Man did not do this for me. Only God did as only God can.

However, this peace was not long lasting. Just one year later, in the fall of 2012, I yet again found myself facing even more trouble and despair.

This time, though, the Lord Himself came directly to me and has been with me ever since.

Though the Lord has always been there with me in Spirit, the Lord finally gave me my first Word on September 30th, 2012. I soon thereafter had my very first dream/vision on October 7th, 2012, on the 7th day of Sukkot known as Hoshana Rabbah.

Father, I feel that You have blessed me for keeping my eyes on You. Please continue Your blessings upon us. Father, the times are becoming less hopeful, but I will continue to keep my eyes fixed on You. I rely fully on You to shelter us and keep us safe during these coming storms. All of my hopes are fully on You now.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I am up on the valley overlook and, once again, it is at daybreak. The valley looks incredibly beautiful. I walked over to the small bench near the bubbling water and dropped to my knees to pray.

Me: "Dear Father, I love You so much. I know I do not know everything about You as You are infinite, but I do know You have called me here again and I am so thankful.

"You have prepared me in advance for the day coming in which I will be hated even more than I am now. I already see this around me daily already. I am not sure how You will do all that You have promised, but I do know that You will do all You have promised.

"It is so beautiful here in Heaven. However, the beauty that I see here with my eyes, hear with my ears, touch with my fingers and even taste and smell is so difficult to understand and convey into words. I just cannot thank You enough for blessing me with such an honor.

"Father, please help me forgive my enemies. In reality, this time of awe, as well as the last few weeks, has been a time of 'awe-ful' for us. If there is anything more that we can repent of, please reveal this to me. I love You!"

I felt a hand on my shoulder and there was Uriel smiling at me.

Uriel: "The King has heard your cries. He is in the field and requests your presence."

I eagerly jumped to my feet. I could hardly wait to see Him again. Uriel pointed to the rock with the bubbling spring.

Uriel: "First, drink some water to refresh you."

Me: "Oh yes, thank you."

I went over to the bubbling spring and drank deeply. When I was satisfied, I ran over to his horse. His horse had already lowered so that I could easily climb up on the saddle. His horse was a massive horse and I felt dwarfed next to it. Before I knew it, we were once again in flight over the beautiful valley in God's Garden.

The Garden was filled with lush plants and trees. On this particular day, Uriel took us south of the garden valley where I saw lush tropical garden landscapes with incredible wildlife. I saw too many birds to count, all adorned in vibrant colored feathers. They were singing such incredible musical songs that tears well up in my eyes.

I then saw beautiful estates with lush landscaping, pools, fountains and waterfalls. Each of these estates also had their own beautiful private courtyards. I saw elaborate celebrations with musicians and dancing. Everyone was so happy and content. There was a true peace present as well as there is never any danger here.

To my surprise, I then saw elephants dressed in colored robes or blankets and headdresses. I saw these amazing elephants giving rides to the saints. While I also saw other animals that I did not recognize as ones on Earth, they were also equally as remarkable as the elephants.

We then travelled to a distant shore that was both beautiful and tropical. There were modern wooden and glass houses on stilts standing over the water. The water itself was incredibly beautiful and crystal clear.

There were sailboats racing and beautiful sea animals and fish playing. These stilt homes had glass ceilings and floors and were more advanced than anything I had ever seen on Earth. As I took this all in, I could not believe how amazing this all was.

Me: "Uriel, are those homes?"

Uriel: Smiling. "No, Erin, those are just vacation homes."

Me: "Why would we need a vacation from anything in Heaven?"

Uriel: Laughing. "These are just for a fun change of venue and to gather with friends. They are not meant as a get away from the toil of labor, but are equally as restful. Now, those over there are residences."

He then pointed over at some massive estates. I noticed that they even had their own islands. Their private beaches were incredible and the sand was like sugar. Everything was absolutely beautiful.

I saw people in their open-air walls looking out at us and happily waving at us. As we waved back, Uriel then flew more southeast and eventually came up from the southwest side of the Valley of Blessing.

As Uriel circled there, I could see Jesus in the distance waving at us and laughing from the field of lilies. Uriel then gently brought us down to this field of lilies.

I quickly thanked Uriel, patted his horse and ran to Jesus as fast as I could. He was laughing as He could clearly see how excited I was at what I had just witnessed and to speak to Him about all of it. I ran straight into His arms and hugged Him.

Me: "Wow, Lord, this is all even more incredible than I thought. Thank You."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but this is only a small fraction of what is here. You would not even believe what else is all waiting here for you."

Me: Crying. "It is so beautiful, Lord. I pray I do not ever lose Your favor and fall short of coming here."

Jesus: Laughing. "I have not anticipated your failure, Erin, so we continue to build a place for you here. I would not build this for you if I knew you would not come, right? Now, I have some things to show you. Are you ready?"

He gently reached for my hand and we were suddenly in a desert valley. In the distance were two cities, but I instinctively knew we were no longer in Heaven.

Jesus: "This will be disturbing to see, but not unlike things as they are today."

Me: "We are no longer in Heaven though, correct?"

Jesus: "You are correct, Erin. These cities are near the plain which later will become the Dead Sea."

Me: "Okay, Lord, but I see more greenery than the Dead Sea has."

Jesus: "The Dead Sea was once the garden. God's lush garden spanned over this entire area. This spanned over to the area of the west to the sea and to the north and southern valley, as well as the eastern garden.

"This area was the area of the 'broken covenant' with God. This was the area where man no longer feared God, but instead lived according to their own flesh. They even enjoyed strange flesh."

He briefly showed me what was happening at that time. I saw everything from animals, children and other abominations for sale as a means for 'pleasure'. As I was being shown all of this, it started to make me quite ill, so the Lord put His hand over my eyes to comfort me.

When He took away His hand and my eyes opened again, the memory of what I had just seen, or at least the severity of it, was quickly removed. However, what seemed to bother me more than what I had just seen was just how much these perverse practices were readily acceptable at that time.

Me: "Lord, how is this okay? How could these people have been oblivious to the suffering of these poor children and animals?"

Jesus: "Erin, the entire civilization had grown accepting of even the worst of sins. Sins once done only in secret were now fully in the open and all was exposed. God, My Father, heard the cries of the innocent and sent fire upon these cities. While fire rained from the sky, it also came from below, creating a furnace. The entire area then became dead and all salt."

Me: "Lord, what is brimstone?"

Jesus: "Burning stone. The smell of rotten eggs is like Sulphur and is also from below. The once lush and beautiful valley was now dead. While some salt is good, nothing can grow when there is too much salt.

"A mockery had been made of Adam and Eve and the fall of man was revered as a thing of glory because man could now be free to make their own choices. These cities were then made a harbinger marking a warning or time."

Me: "So Lord, what will happen?"

Jesus: "Erin, the time of judgement has come, but there are also signs and miracles too and new life is springing forth in the dead."

He again reached for my hand and we were now on the banks of the Dead Sea as it sits today. I was in shock as I saw that pools sprang up from holes and plants and fish were once again living there.

Me: "Lord, how is this even possible?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Here, taste just a little of this."

He pointed to the water from the Dead Sea. I took a small sip of the water and it was awful. I quickly spit it out.

Jesus: Laughing. "Now, Erin, drink some of this."

He pointed to a small pool next to the Dead Sea. I tasted the water.

Me: "Oh, this is sweet and fresh water."

Jesus: "Come over here."

He gently reached for my hand again and we went to a different side of the Dead Sea. There was raw sewage being dumped there. It was disgusting and smelled like Sulphur.

Jesus: "Despite what is pouring into this, the water is being healed, for it is written that 'the waters shall enter the putrid waters and the waters will be healed, every living creature coming to this water will be healed and there will be a multitude of fish.' (Ezekiel 47: 8-9). Erin, new life can spring forth from the dead and I will display My splendor."

Me: "Lord, in Your Word, You say, 'You are the salt of the Earth. But if the salt loses its saltiness, how shall it be made salty? It is then good for nothing.' (Matthew 5:13). How then can this Dead Sea have life?"

Jesus: "Erin, who can bring the dead to life? You?"

Me: "Oh no, Lord, only God can, only You can."

Jesus: "You are witnessing the time of evil. All evil comes with tolerance and accommodations to execute sin. It is now thought of as the time of a 'free pass' void of God. Things once done in secret are once again done in the open and things once detestable are now acceptable.

"To argue or fight against this is now hopeless. Erin, I know the times you are in and I will strengthen you. I will bring new life to your tired bones. I will put My Spirit in you and you shall live. I shall place you in your own land."

Me: "But, Lord, is this not referring to the return of the Jews to the Promised Land?"

Jesus: "Yes, but it is also for you, Erin. I opened your grave and returned you to a safe place. There I will call you. You cried out to Me when all hope was lost. Instead, I am putting your bones together and breathing new life into you. I will display My splendor through you and you will know that 'I AM'."

Me: "Lord, You are everything to me. Do Your Will in me. I love You."

Jesus: "I love you."

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another beautiful fall day as it is just stunning outside. I am so thankful for all that You have done and continue to do to build my faith and strengthen my walk. You reminded me today to give You all of my worries as nothing surprises You and You are never taken off guard.

The winds are picking up here, but I am praying that You might keep the beautiful, colorful leaves on the trees a bit longer. There was a very cold, bitter feel to the air today and I smelled winter, possibly a harsh one, soon to come.

I pray that it is not too harsh as I am unprepared without You, Lord. Father, we are fully reliant on You for all that we do. There is nothing You cannot do and nothing is beyond You as You are far above all that we do.

I have examined my life and, looking back at it, I am a wretch and a sinner born of sinners, poor in spirit and poor in the world. I am no one special and, in fact, I could never run for public office as my history would give the enemy so much fodder for attacks.

I am weak as a human and I am faulty as a mainstream Christian. I do not serve as a church staff member or on a committee nor do I volunteer to serve in various capacities. I used to do these things, but sometimes only because I thought, by acts of service to man, that I would find You.

However, with my medical condition as it is now, I find that I just cannot commit to anything. When asked to help here or volunteer there, I want to answer 'yes' as my heart would love to help, but I have to say 'no' as my body is not subject to my heart's desires and is weak. As a result, I have to surrender as, really, I am no one.

While I have no great accomplishments to add to the portfolio of 'worldly worth', I have borne three children whom love God and that is my accomplishment. Besides this, I really have nothing. Yes, I am a wife, smiles, but I am not always perfect.

I am also the 'housekeeper', even though I now declare that dust bunnies are a species that multiply if left alone for long periods of time. There are days in which I burden myself with my many daily chores. While I had always wanted to be a stay-at-home mom and wife, when I am not able to do all that I wish I could physically, I grieve.

Father, what could You do with me, really? Under examination, You could see me as a sinner who keeps looking to You in all I do. I have still not perfected my race, but I always continue on my course because I love You. However, the world sees something else and the enemy wants me destroyed. So Father, though I do not deserve all that You have done for me, please keep the enemy far removed from destroying us.

An interesting celestial event occurred this weekend in that both the 'Super Moon' and the 'Hunter's Moon' combined at the same time. As a result, the moon looks huge. When adding in the vibrant tree colors, wow, it truly looks amazing. This celestial event will not occur again until the year 2034.

Oh Lord, how I pray we are so out of here long before this as I simply cannot imagine, with the acceleration of evil all around us, being here too much longer. While driving yesterday, I spotted the eagle family that lives about a mile down the road. I have so far counted around seven eagles.

However, just a few days ago, again as we were driving, there, and only about a few feet away from us, two eagles were locked in what looked like a battle right over the highway. As per usual it seems, I could not take a photo fast enough to capture this incredible 'battle', but at least I will never forget it.

These eagles were massive, strong and beautiful and they were toppling each other in mid-air. Later, I researched why these eagles were 'battling' in this manner and found out that this was actually a courtship ritual. It turns out that eagles do this in the season of fall, not spring. I found this all just so fascinating and perfectly set up by our amazing God.

The cold is beginning to set in here today. As beautiful as the fall season is to my eyes, it is now becoming very cold to my body. With each passing season, I wonder if it could be our last here.

Father, last night I had a dream, but it was really a nightmare. I awoke suddenly and I could barely recall most of it. However, I remember the closing of a very large door and the sounds of screams. I remember that the voices began as negotiations and offers, then begging, pleading and crying, then anger and rage and finally cries and silence.

I normally have a feeling of sorrow after a dream like this. However, in this case, I somehow knew that these people had done such horrible things that it was actually more frightening a prospect that they would be allowed in. For those of us allowed inside the door before it shut, this door was also a passage to safety and freedom.

Another dream I had involved the unseen realm and the dynamics of the orders of evil. This dream showed us that we have now seemed to have entered a time when evil is no longer patient, but instead desperate, as if a final time period has been called into place, like the final round of a boxing match.

This time is the final time in which something simply must happen, perhaps like a knockout punch or at least so many direct hits and blows to the opponent that the round is given to the person sending the 'rain' of punches upon the opponent. Even if there are no knockouts, then the win is given to the side with the dominating attacks.

Even if both boxers are barely able to stand at the end, it is rare to have a match be called a draw. As such, the boxer with the perception of strength is declared to be the winner. We are in such a battle now and there can be no mistaking it any longer.

Right now, the 'punisher' has been unleashed upon the world and our Father has granted a partial permission allowing this. Lord, please protect Your children during this time of punishment. Please send us rain from Heaven, smiles, but we really want 'reign' in the form of Jesus as I see so much corruption in the world now.

Lord, please protect us against the enemy, especially for Your city of Jerusalem. The United Nations has just declared that the Israelites have no evidence to support that this is Your land, Father, and therefore their land. They have declared that the Temple Mount is not tied to the Jewish people, to Jesus or as Your Promised Land.

Father, because of this abomination against You, I fear that You will soon unleash Your wrath on these nations that are coming against Israel. Perhaps You may even destroy the Temple Mount soon. In a dream from years ago, I saw the 'wailing wall' crumble amidst the chaos, but I have no idea when this will be.

Father, I am deeply disturbed by the glaringly obvious bias in the current news coverage. Manipulation is at an all-time high and ethics are at an all-time low. I can barely even watch the news anymore as I feel there is an agenda to sway us to one particular side; 'their side'.

I feel that this biased reporting goes all the way back to who owns the networks and those who sponsor the networks. However, I also know that this is really all based in the root of money and that there is so much more that the enemy is doing in secret.

Father, please still my anxious thoughts and protect us. I ask for wisdom, discernment and the light of Your divine revelation in this incredibly dark time that we are now living in. We love You, Father!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I am up on God's ridge overlooking the valley in His beautiful Garden. The sun is still rising, but only just a bit more than the day before when I was here. Absolutely everything had a beautiful glow of golds, pinks, purples and reds. It was so beautiful.

I watched birds flying in massive flocks and they were creating shapes and designs from their flight together in the sky. While their formations were somewhat similar to what I have seen on Earth before, this was just so much more intricate and amazing.

As I listened to the singing of the angelic choirs, I remembered that the Feast of Tabernacles begins at around 6pm tonight, or at sunset Sunday, October 16th, 2016. I smiled to myself when I started to speculate that perhaps these choirs were today specifically pre-celebrating God's cover, or 'tabernacle', over Heaven.

I looked over and saw that water was bubbling from the rock with the spring. Without Uriel's prompting this time, smiles, I quickly went over for a refreshing drink as I was quite thirsty. As I was drinking deeply, I suddenly heard a very loud horn sound that startled me, but in a good way.

I looked down to the valley and I saw a mighty angel blowing a Shofar from beneath the Tree of Life next to the River of Life. This winged angel was massive and dressed in armor. This angel's hair was curly at the ends and he had a crimson fabric under his brass or bronze armor.

Just then, I felt a hand on my shoulder. As I turned, I saw that it was Uriel smiling at me. I smiled back and was so happy to see him.

Me: "Uriel, should you not be down there instead?"

Uriel: Laughing. "There are many angels and many ranks."

Me: "Hmm, that one angel down there looks like Michael. Is there a battle soon to come?"

Uriel: "The battle continues, Erin, and it has not stopped nor has it just begun."

Me: "Yes, but are you not also an archangel?"

Uriel: Laughing. "Oh Erin, do you think that there are only a couple of us? Do you not remember that there were even quite a few high-ranking angels over the one-third of the angels that fell? Do you not also remember all of the angels who assisted me in order for you to come here? Was coming here not difficult at times? In the beginning, did it not require an army to assist you?"

He smiled and laughed as he lightheartedly crossed his arms to emphasize his point. I instantly recalled all of the past battles, especially from my earlier dreams, and laughed with him at the memory of all of this.

Me: "Yes, Uriel, it certainly did take an army."

Uriel: "Yes, but now I take you directly to the King. This is because the enemy is now just as interested in what He has to say to you. This is why there is very little trouble coming here now compared to what this once was.”

Me: “Hmm, I still do not fully understand what you mean.”

Uriel: “Erin, the enemy did not want you to come to God at all. However, there are others like you too and some never even made it past the ladder. Many stopped short when they encountered the dragons and their blasphemous lies. The war in the unseen realm is horrid and just the stench alone is more than many will endure.”

Me: “I can see that as, even though this was spiritual, I still have a memory of this putrid stench.”

Uriel: “As a result, very few make it here where you are now. Since you are now here, I have been called to give you these tours. I am not just a messenger though as I am also subject to God in all that I do and have been proven trustworthy.”

Me: “Uriel, I cannot imagine you ever not being trustworthy.”

Uriel: Smiling. “Some were even closer to God than I was, but they thought they were higher than Him and were therefore removed.”

Me: “Although I know that you are referring to Lucifer and the one-third of Heaven that was cast out, I am still confused about something. Why would they be with human women?”

Uriel: “Erin, there is much more to this story. I am only loyal to God, the One Who created me. I am not subject to men, but only to God. I serve as God directs, for without God, I am nothing. I am honored to be His servant.

“The flood on Earth happened because some of the fallen had relations with human women that resulted in a breed not of God. Since this breed was not created by God, they were not blessed by Him. Since they were void of God, they had no leading and no wisdom. They also had voracious appetites.”

"Enoch then came during those days and was a friend of God. Knowing that God was upset with what they had done, the fallen went to Enoch and requested that he intercede for them as they wanted forgiveness."

Me: "I find this confusing as I thought they were extremely evil."

Uriel: "I cannot comment on this as, according to God, I am not their judge. Just know that the 'children' that came from the fallen being with human women were an abomination to God. These children then destroyed everything in their sights."

"Remember that the fallen also had skills, just like all of the angels have divine skills here in Heaven. These skills are assigned by God in order for angels to take charge over different areas."

"As it is written, some taught men how to fashion metals in order to make weaponry, some taught divination and sorcery, some taught about medicines and drugs and some taught about adornments, tattoos and makeup."

Me: "So, did the knowledge of all of these things then originate from here?"

Uriel: "Yes, but this knowledge was soon twisted for their evil purposes. As an example, what type of music do you hear in Heaven?"

Me: "Beautiful music that always edifies God and heals my soul. The music here in Heaven is always so uplifting."

Uriel: "What is music like on Earth in comparison?"

Me: "Well, it seems that even uplifting songs are either too short or they are overplayed to the point that you forget about God. Other songs are depressing or they edify people and sin."

Uriel: "Now, did music originate here in Heaven or on Earth?"

Me: "Oh, here of course."

Uriel: "Yes, it originated in Heaven, but is now different on Earth. Now, who do you think was, in your words, the 'worship leader'?"

Me: "I heard that this was once Lucifer."

Uriel: "Yes, but that does not mean God would fail to have incredible backup leaders, right? Even those things now meant for evil on Earth at one point had a divine root here."

Me: "Hmm, I thought all of those things had evil roots."

Uriel: "Erin, you are correct to say this as anything opposite of Holy is unclean. When the fall occurred, these roots were from the enemy, but he originated from here in Heaven. Though the enemy has certain knowledge, he also has no new divine revelation from God as that too was removed. Since the fallen angels were once Heavenly beings, they could only develop their skills by their own hands or by the humans they had trained.

"Erin, I was the angel sent to give Noah the message that God was sending the flood waters. When the floods came, none survived the ensuing 150 days except for the eight humans that God appointed, along with the animals with them on the ark."

Me: "Where did the fallen go?"

Uriel: "When the Earth opened from below to spill forth water, the fallen were sent into the abyss to be locked up for seventy generations."

Me: "Uriel, I feel that they have already been partially let out."

Uriel: "Erin, for it is written that the coming of the Son of Man will be as it was in the days of Noah. For in the days before the flood, people were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage up to the day Noah entered the ark (Matthew 24:37-39). People were oblivious until the flood came and swept them away."

Me: "Uriel, what of all of the incredible advancements in the last 120 years in weaponry, medicines, pharmaceuticals, makeup, beauty, surgery, drugs, music and travel? Is this increase because of the enemy?"

Uriel: "Yes. This is part of the great deception. This is allowed because man now believes that God does not exist and that science and technology is their god. You have only to track the great acceleration of advancements to know that these permissions were granted. An even greater increase was granted in your twelfth month of 2012. Now the wheel is turning even faster.”

Me: “Uriel, what is going to make the Jewish people jealous of the gentiles? As far as I see it, there is nothing we currently have for them to be jealous of.”

Uriel: “This time is almost here and then there will be great cause for jealousy. Now, the King will meet you in three days. He has sent me to confirm what you were shown. Do you understand what this is?”

Me: “Well, I have seen several things. I see that all of the different angels here in Heaven, even the little beautiful ones like butterflies whom collect tears for God, have an evil counterpart originating from what is the abyss. I have seen people swarming in like an army of locusts, but I have also seen something coming which really looks like a human locust with wings.

“I have also seen massive winged demons or fallen angels that are so scary looking. These huge entities have no armor and are naked, but I do not want to describe this in detail. I have seen different unseen ranks of evil that are slowly coming in waves, but most people fail to see what is happening because of the veil.”

Uriel: “Erin, for one time and ten days, you will be in the service of the Lord for His purposes. This is a good time to study Genesis 6, 7 and 8, but also 2 Peter 2. Look at the timeline of the flood, the ark and the shutting of the door.”

Me: “I am going by memory here, but did the doors shut in the 27th day of the 2nd month in the 600th year? Did the doors open in the 27th day of the 2nd month in the 601st year? Could Noah then see the ground, but it was not yet solid? Is this correct?”

Uriel: Smiling. “Erin, look again at what is written. Noah was 600 years old when the flood came in the 2nd month on the 17th day (Genesis 7:11). In the 601st year of Noah, the 2nd month on the 27th day of the month, the Earth was dry (Genesis 8:14). This is one time and ten days from start to finish.

"A covenant was then made between God and Noah and his sons that God would not send a flood again to destroy all flesh. God sealed this with His covenant of a rainbow in the cloud as a sign."

Me: "Now the rainbow is used for a different sign."

Uriel: "Yes. This is to mock God's holiness and is part of the deception. What was evil is now good and what was good is now evil. Do not be deceived."

"Now, God is about to do something with many of you. You must remain strong and take courage. God is your shelter and a cover over you. You will be called part of the deception as you will display God's splendor for a time. God is your Ark and His covering is over you."

"This is enough for today. Erin, this is meant to encourage you."

Me: "Uriel, I am ready for the Lord to come for us. I feel unworthy for such a task."

Uriel: "Who is worthy? Your heart is ever before God. You make the Lord smile, God laugh with delight and the angels accompany you. You also are the subject of cursing from the enemy because of it. Now rejoice. Soon the door will shut on your enemies, but open to eternity when Heaven receives you. Again, rejoice."

Me: "I still do not understand everything, but I am thankful to Jesus."

Uriel: "Remember to look to the timelines of Noah. Understand the times you are in to see what is soon to come. Be anxious about nothing as the angels from Heaven will take charge over you in all you do. The Spirit of the Lord is upon you. Your grave will open."

Dream 218 – Jesus, Shelters and the Golden City of God

Received Saturday, October 22, 2016

Please note that this dream began on Wednesday, October 19, 2016, but was not completed until Saturday, October 22, 2016.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another beautiful fall day! The water was like glass today at the pond near our house. Thank You for this amazing extension of all of the beautiful fall colors. While this display of colors is very similar to Your Garden in Heaven, the fall season is very short here in comparison.

Thank You for my family and friends. Father, bless them abundantly for their kindness and support through prayers. I am still in awe over all of this and this sometimes just does not even seem real to me.

This season, I have been bothered over the increasingly corrupt state of our world. The Holy Spirit in me has called me to pray and intercede about the great division that is occurring and accelerating. This is all so historic.

I have had several troubling dreams about North America and the Middle East. No matter the outcome of the election on November 8th, 2016, the nation and world will be affected. The scales over the United States have been weighed disproportionately heavily on one side and judgment is soon to come.

In reality, it is already there now as allowed by You, Father. Last election, instead of making my own selection, I prayed for the Lord to reveal which candidate would result in Jesus coming for us sooner. Based on His answer, that is how I voted in the last election.

However, this time I see You coming at the same time either way I vote and that, no matter what, there will be trouble arising from this election. Either way, I still see civil unrest and gangs, as well as militia uprising. I see the one side accusing the other side of doing the very thing they are doing themselves.

Years ago, I was head of public relations for an organization. No matter what the hard truth was, how bad tasting, unpalatable or hard to swallow it was, I was told to spin the truth and make it easier for people to swallow. I basically "sugar coated" disgusting facts so that people would accept a certain way of thinking.

I was now a 'baby' Christian at the time, so none of this sat well with me. As a result, I only lasted about six months at this job and that was all that I could take. I just felt so sick about the process, policy and the 'spinning'.

I quickly found out in dealing with news agencies on the west coast that, in order to have them turn the attention to your cause, you must have a good spin and that it be something exciting or different. Mind you, this was 22 years ago, but I also remembered that we had to keep stories positive no matter what.

We also had to be truthful for the most part, but we also had to downplay the bad to minimize fear. Now, however, nothing seems to be downplayed and the media feeds on the appetites of our fear. The problem is that no one is there to hold anyone accountable. It is a system run by popular opinion and it is becoming worse.

Father, what is truth? Jesus was asked this by Pilate.

"Pilate therefore said to Him, 'Are You a King then?' Jesus answered, 'You say rightly that I am a King. For this cause I was born, and for this cause I have come into the world, that I should bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth hears My voice.' Pilate said to Jesus, 'What is truth?' And when he had said this, he went out again to the Jews and said to them, 'I find no fault in Him at all.'" (John 18:37-38)

Father, Jesus was innocent, but people hated Him for it and He was rejected. Before Pilate washed his hands from making a judgment, he asked Jesus, 'Are You the King of the Jews?' (18:33). Jesus then replied (18:34), 'Are you saying this on your own, or did others tell you about Me?' Jesus wanted to know what Pilate believed even though Jesus already knew.

Father, I might be wrong, but it seems to me that Jesus wanted to know if Pilate was going to just formulate a judgment based on rumors or based on actual evidence. The world is once again a very treacherous place, where truth is no longer popular and no one wants to be unpopular.

Father, as You know, I have been under unfair attacks constantly during my lifetime, but especially since I became a Christian. For years, I have spent so much of my time proving that I am fit to be a mother, fit to be a Christian witness and even fit to be worthy of Your gifts and miracles.

I am at odds with the world because I have stood for truth. Recently, I have even chosen to stop my injury disability claim because I am tired of being a slave to a corrupt system. Even with indisputable evidence of my injury, they have tried to discredit me and leave me with unpaid medical bills.

Now, and as of today, I no longer have approved medical care or disability income to fall back on. Father, I did everything You instructed me to do, so I am now completely in Your care. However, I decided that I would rather be in Your care than the care of a corrupt organization. Father, I need You. Lord, now, and more than ever, we need You!

Father, I do not know what You are about to do or when, but I pray it involves healing as I certainly could use this. I pray You will do something with all of us who diligently look to You in all that we do.

I sometimes wonder what could ever make the Jews jealous of us gentiles. As I see it, there is nothing for them to be jealous of us for. Christians have mostly been the subject of scorn and controversy. Usually this is deserved too.

We, as Christians, are mean to each other and we, as believers, pick and choose which of God's commandments and laws we will observe and obey. As Christians, and I too am guilty of this, we select items from the Bible that we choose to adopt and live by. These items are usually selected from the New Testament as long as they are easy and comfortable.

We even sometimes make up our own rules, argue points and make excuses as to why we allow this and exclude that. This goes on and on and this is all horrible, really. So Father, why use us for anything? I do not currently see our use to the Jewish people and certainly they do not see our use either.

However, there must be something in us that makes You delight in us, even though I do not see it. Some days, I feel like I too order off of Your menu, as if I can choose this or that item because I like it, and then I see the other items and think, 'Okay, I will choose that tomorrow.'

Well, today, I choose from the dessert menu and I believe I will eat every item! To me, dessert is Heaven, the main course menu is life and the appetizers are the beginning with God and Jesus, the Word of God and history.

I have always been more of an appetizer and dessert person. I often feel I could even skip the entire main course menu, as well as the sides. To me, it sometimes seems that the main course includes the meat, or our flesh, and that the side dishes include our loads, such as sins and burdens, which accompany the meat.

Perhaps I am just hungry today for more of You, Father. Sometimes I question my worth to You. When I think of all that the Jewish people have accomplished, their practice of worship and continued steadfast following of the Torah, well, if I did the same for You because of Jesus, who knows where I would be today?

I just know that I am a basic Christian consumer of God's menu. I want to eat everything on the menu, but I still have not tried all that You have to offer.

Forgive me for staying in a 'rut' at times and remaining stagnant in my routine as I want so much to do Your Will, Father, in all that I do. My dreams recently have been strange and I recall one from two nights ago.

Dream 1 description begins...

I was walking in a city with a hill which sloped to a waterfront area. It was at night and I was walking on dark wet pavement as it had just rained. The area I was walking in appeared to be like a university campus of sorts. It seems as if I had been in this city before and was somewhere on the east coast, perhaps Portland, Maine or Boston.

The city was darker than normal and the only thing seeming to light the area were these shanty structures. The streets were lined with thin walled temporary shacks. I saw growing lights from candles within them. On each shack, there was writing, and I saw Scripture verses.

Some seemed to be from the New Testament, but mostly from the Old Testament. Soon, my 'ah-ha moment' occurred when I saw Hebrew lettering on one. Oh right, of course, this is the Feast of Tabernacles or Sukkot, the very time we are in now.

However, this looked to be at a different time and, based on the overall surroundings of the city, it seemed to be another time in the future. There were people coming in and out of various shelters, but I realized that they were actually living here and that this was a semi-permanent dwelling situation.

I became really sad and concerned as the weather was soon to change and I knew that these shelters would never hold up. As I walked, no one knew I was there. I walked by at least a thousand shelters unnoticed. However, this all changed when I suddenly heard a man's voice as he came up to me.

Man: "I know you. There is nothing to see here. You need to leave."

As this man approached me, his face became twisted and hideous. I chose not to even address him at all. He started to make lewd advances towards me, but somehow he was not allowed to come near me.

Man: "Come into my shelter."

As I walked up the hill past him, he continued to heckle about all the things he wanted to do to me and they were all quite inappropriate. As I continued to walk up the hill, I looked back briefly to see that these thin walled shanties had an entire army of demonic activity overhead.

I had not seen this as I was walking by, so I now stopped and lifted my hands to God. I prayed for the Jewish people in this shanty town for God's protection and shelter. I then saw these black figures gather over them. I suddenly realized that my prayers to God were actually now making it so that these entities were going to destroy the shanties.

Me: "Father, You are more powerful than these. Please protect these people here as they continue to love You."

As I prayed, I looked from side to side and I saw that others were praying with me at the same time. I then saw something like Heaven open and the demonic presence fled. In a blink, they were gone. When the sun came, I could hear cheering.

Dream 2 description begins...

I was in a city in western United States that seemed to be Salt Lake City, Utah. One half of the area was unlivable and the other half of the area seemed to thrive. It seemed as if the city had been divided due to some disaster that took out half of it. It was a sunny day and it seemed like spring time as it neared summer.

In this uninhabitable area, there stood a home that was incredible. It was European in design, perhaps similar to French or English country. It had many rooms and it was equipped with incredible features, such as an infinity pool, spa, tennis court, basketball court with a gym and on and on.

The problem was that the home was surrounded by dirt and concrete and there was no greenery anywhere. The home was for sale at a very low price. However, investors were afraid to purchase the home.

I was friends with a young couple who could not afford any of the homes elsewhere, but they could afford this particular one due to the low price. They asked me to get an appointment for them with an agent, whom I also knew.

I contacted the agent and the agent was soon giving me a tour of this home. It was beautiful, but, as we walked through it, the agent started downplaying the house.

Agent: "I must confess to you that this home purchase would come with major problems."

Me: "I am not sure what you mean. Please explain."

Agent: "First off, I have shown this home to several potential buyers. Each one is excited about the prospect of owning such a home, but there are many problems."

Me: "You are trying to discourage me. Why?"

Agent: "Look! The Salt Lake has risen and nothing green can be planted here."

Me: "Okay, yes, I know about the lake, but the city is right there and has been for a while."

Agent: "Yes, but most built above the city and not on the ground."

As we continued to walk through this home, I noticed that it really did have everything anyone could want.

Me: "I must admit that I hate this location. I would shelter inside this place, but I would not like being so close to the city."

Agent: "You mean the lake, right?"

Me: "No, the city. Now, what happened here? Why has this home not sold? It has everything and the price is really inexpensive."

Agent: "Hmm, there are better and more comfortable places on the mountains or in the city."

I could tell that the agent was having a hard time explaining why this was not a good property.

Me: "I think we will make an offer."

Agent: "You cannot. You do not understand what this will do."

Me: "Okay, enlighten me. The truth is that this is a beautiful home. In order to discourage buyers, someone has poured bags of rock salt in a circle around the green landscape. Someone has drawn a line in the sand. I would prefer that my friends would purchase away from all of this, but this home is incredible, yet so many of you live in fear of it."

Agent: "I will talk to the seller. Your buyer might have missed the closing date."

The agent was clearly uncomfortable with all of this.

Me: "Well, I know the seller, so I will bypass you completely."

The agent stormed out in a huff, but also seemed relieved. I went back to the young couple to report on all of this.

Me: "The home is yours if you want it, but I am not sure I would want to be near that city."

Man: "I do not want to give up on the home. It is worth it."

Woman: "Once they see us happy there, more will come."

Me: "I pray for God to protect you. The agent fought me even though she had a gaining interest to sell it. However, for those with no interest, I am not sure that they will come."

Man: "They will come. I just know they will."

I hugged the couple and contacted the seller directly. He was overjoyed at the prospect of this couple. Indeed, he was so overjoyed that he removed the loan and gave the home to them for nothing. I became very happy for this couple as I talked to the seller.

Me: "So this couple will be the missionary to the 'western Dead Sea'?"

Seller: "Erin, I lead those where they should go. When they find a home, the home that I appoint, than do I not I allow them to bloom where they are planted? Have faith."

Just then, I looked over the area and saw that the home now had green grass and lush foliage. It was so beautiful that it brought people to where the couple lived. There was now green grass in place of the salt.

Dream 3 description begins...

Father, the dream I had from last night troubled me. I saw a massive wall and, on this wall, something was written in several different languages. These seemed to be various curses, but I could only recognize 'Mene, Mene, Tekel and Parsin' from Daniel 5:25.

I turned away from the wall and, behind me, there were many workers and a huge stage. I could hear one man talking to another man.

Man 1: "The stage is almost set. Are you ready?"

Man 2: "We have been waiting for this."

I suddenly felt like I was going to be sick as this stage was on top of raw sewage, but no one else could see what I saw. I was then removed from the base of this wall and stage to a distant hill.

There was a group of us watching together and holding hands in prayer. As we watched over the area, there was like a side game in the land being controlled by these four large angels. We observed as the angels played a game that looked a lot like a board game called 'Risk'.

Over to the extreme opposite side of the land, I saw a multitude of demonic forces, along with humans and others. They too were playing a board game similar to 'Risk'. They had quite an elaborate game playing out, with various events and participants.

God's four angels on the opposite side appeared to have the same board that the enemy had and with the same game pieces. However, the enemy did not realize that they were actually not in control of the game as the perception they had was that they had control even though they did not.

The enemy's board game consisted of a pattern of warfare which was not difficult to detect unless one was under the enemy's veil of deception. The enemy seemed to control technology, media and powers, with actual people controlling these strongholds over areas on their behalf.

However, the Heavenly angels had an even larger game board with many more pieces. With every move the enemy made, the angels made five moves. We all watched in amazement at the sight.

The first Heavenly angel had the northwest quadrant, the second had the southwest, the third had the southeast and the fourth had the northeast. What we observed was playing out in an orchestrated fashion.

One of the Heavenly angels held the Scales of Judgement, while another held a plumb line. A different angel had a sort of bag that contained all types of entities allowed to inflict the land. I saw various creatures released from the bag at strategic times, but then later brought back into the bag.

A different angel had the power to shake the ground, call down weather events and open the storehouses of hail, wind and snow. All of this was directed by God in Heaven.

As we continued to watch, the massive wall crumbled due to the sewage eroding it from the ground up. The land then started to shake uncontrollably. One side of the land rose up and tipped into the sea. I then saw homes split into two and each home became divided.

I saw fear as people turned on each other. In the meantime, the land had been given over to some with vested interest in her destruction, yet all in the guise of peace. The land was divided as a house divided cannot stand. We continued to pray for the cursed land from our vantage point.

Dream 3 description over...

Father, some of these meanings seem obvious to me, but You are more wise than I am. Please reveal to me what You wish to reveal and reserve the rest for another time.

I love You! I know the time is coming, the time of greater division, and not just for Israel, Lord, but also for America. In my heart, I feel that the United States is a modern day Babylon. There are too many indicators that she is and I am so disturbed by all of this.

I know that You have unleashed the 'bull' on the land and that it is a distraction from what is happening behind the scenes. I see the enemy focusing on this untamed outrageous bull, but ignoring the unbelievable things occurring under our very noses by the enemy.

Look at what is happening to Israel right now. Look at what is surrounding her. Is anyone watching the movements of those currently in power here or there? This seemed to be reflected in one of my dreams from earlier in the week.

Dream 4 description begins...

I saw two cows facing away from each other and standing rear to rear. One was a cow set up for dairy milk and the other cow was set up for meat and tagged for slaughter. In this field, there was another cow sleeping and unaware of what was happening.

At the opposite end of this massive field, I then saw a bunch of men. Some of these men were Jewish and some were gentile. These men were casting their foreheads upon this scrawny goat that I recognized as the scapegoat.

I watched this lineup of men go to this scrawny goat and yell at and appear to cast their sins upon this goat. This was not exactly fun to watch as this animal was clearly shaken. As I observed this practice of casting off the sins to the goat, the goat then turned into this red bull. However, the bull was not red like a bright red, but rather a dark mahogany red. Regardless, the bull was still red.

The bull began to kick up dirt and it covered those casting their sins off. As the men shook off the dirt, more dirt came until each realized that this dirt was not going anywhere. The bull then used its horns to shred the clothes used in the ceremony and appeared to have white clothes tied on its horns.

The bull's horns was not tearing up the men, but just their clothing, thereby exposing their nakedness. I then saw these naked men fighting amongst themselves and blaming each other. Meanwhile, the bull then went the other direction to rest.

The bull then became tired of the sounds of the fighting men and returned to them with a branch. The bull then extended the branch to the men and left, but not before kicking up even more dirt.

Dream 4 description over...

Father, it was difficult to see the events in this dream as there was so much powdery dirt. You stirred up this dream to me yesterday while I was driving home. On a farm up the road, I literally saw two opposite facing cows and one sleeping. I was not in a position to pull over and take a photo, but I wished I had as this was Your reminder to recall this dream today.

I have been so bothered at the events on the news that I can no longer watch it as I simply do not believe what we are told anymore. There is so much news happening which is not being reported on as well. It is actually this news not reported that is the important news.

Father, I then heard You say to me, 'Do not worry!', so I will try my best to give everything to You. Please keep the enemy far removed from us. Thank You, Father, for sheltering us during Sukkot. I have never felt closer to You, so thank You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I am up in God's Garden on His overlook of the beautiful valley. It is still dawn and I laughed as I have no sense of time here. Was this all in one day or is each a separate dawn? I guess it simply does not matter because it does not add to the experience here. The beauty is even greater than the day before, but equally as incredible.

Me: "I cannot wait to see You, Lord, as I have so many questions."

I ran to drink the water from the bubbling spring at the rock. For some reason, I decided to look at this 'fountain' even more carefully this time.

When I lived in Bend, Oregon, several homes had these tall columns of rock drilled for hoses and hooked up to a pump and water source. When you turn off the water, you can clearly see the tube in the rock and that the pump is usually located in the small pool nearby which circulates the water through the rock and back.

However, as I looked at this spring in God's Garden, there was no plastic tube and there was no pool either. The water just went under the ground and watered the grass and flowers surrounding it.

After I had taken several handfuls of water, and I do not know why I decided this was a good idea but I guess I did, I took my finger and tried to stop up the flow of the water. Water instantly sprayed everywhere and all over me. Then the hole covered up and the water was gone. I looked all over for the water, but it was now gone.

Me: "Oh no, Father, I am so sorry. I just wanted to see... Oh, I am beyond repair. I am still thirsty, so please bring back the water. I am so sorry."

I then felt a hand on my shoulder and there was Uriel. His arms were light-heartedly crossed and he was laughing.

Uriel: "Hmm, it seems like we have seen this behavior from you before up here. I think a certain girl had also stained God's doorstep blue before."

Me: I hung my head and smiled. "Yes..." I kept my head down. "It was me. I confess I did it! I did all of it."

Uriel: Smiling. "Erin, look!"

He pointed over to the rock and it was flowing with water again.

Uriel: Smiling and laughing. "Now, do not try to stop the flow. This spring is for your refreshment. This is not something you want to stop, right?"

Me: "Oh no, not at all."

Uriel: "This water brings life and is good to drink, so do not reject what is good to drink, right? This is neither like an earthly fountain nor is it like a mountain spring. This comes from the River of God which is the River of Life. Now that your garments are dry and your body refreshed, the King requests your presence. The King is in the field."

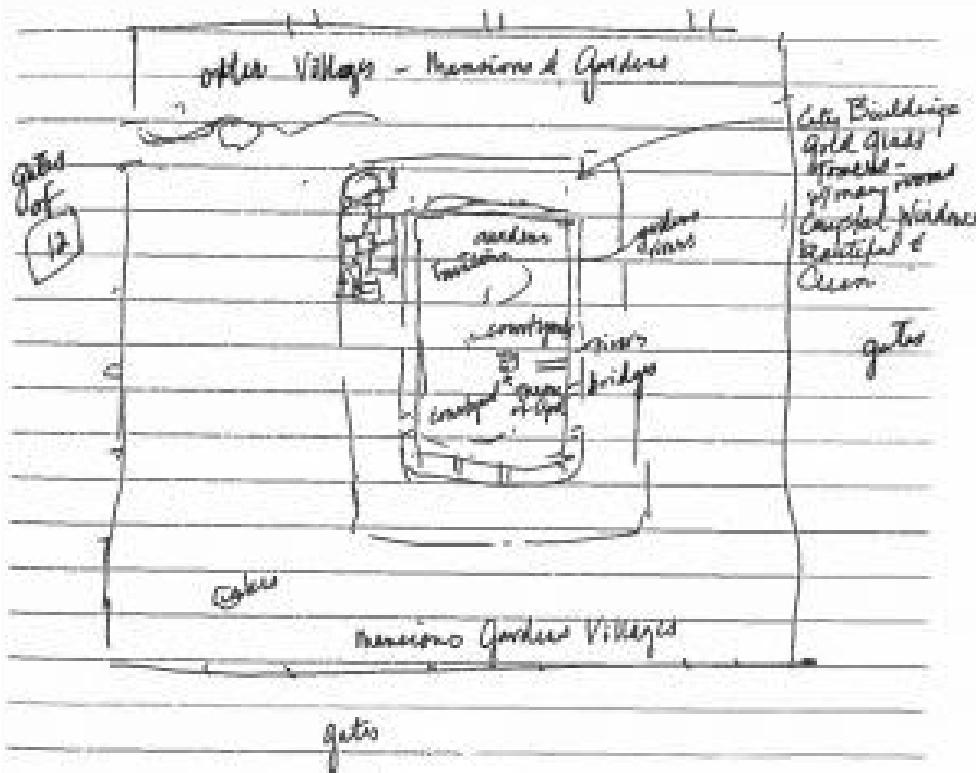

I looked at my clothes and saw that my white tunic, pants and beautiful sandals were now all dry again.

Me: "I would love to see the Lord."

I saw Uriel motion for me to climb up on his horse. In a blink of an eye, we were over the valley and flying toward the sun in the eastern sky. The valley was filled with trees of all types. I saw fruit bearing trees, pine trees or coniferous trees, maple-like trees, elms, eucalyptus and other trees like that.

It was all so incredibly beautiful that tears fell down my cheeks. In the distance, I saw the Golden City of God. It was like a modern city and ancient city combined. We came close enough that I could see the magnitude of the size. I do not know how to describe the size, but I can possibly tell you about the layers I could see. Anyway, I will try.

The City area was so massive that, if you took the skylines of seventy of the most beautiful cities on Earth, you would almost have this Heavenly skyline. You would then have to take these buildings and give them gold-crystal glass with metal of bronze in beautiful designs and high tech.

You also then have the 'Mansion Room' buildings surrounding the inner Garden that surrounds God's Throne. His Throne is a cathedral in itself, with chambers for angelic choirs and music. The area surrounding the Throne is the blue Sea of Glass.

There are columns framing the area and the ceiling has glass so clear that it is both open and closed. This is hard to explain though as I do not fully understand this.

The area of the Garden is massive. It is like a country the size of half of California. There are lush garden forests, waterfalls, lakes and galleries and celebration areas. I somehow believed that this park was the size of the Garden of Eden.

The park was beautifully manicured and I saw people having fun and fellowship there. I could not see God though as, quite literally, the area of the Throne was as bright as the sun. The reflection of the light off of these gold glass towers was absolutely breathtaking.

The streets seemed to be made of golden 'Jerusalem-stone' pavers? There was marble with gold, veins of gold or all gold. Okay, I simply do not have a way to describe it, but these 'Streets of Gold' are really made of gold. However, none of this was tacky at all, but all was natural and beautifully God designed.

There was a river running from the Throne to the layer of villages, mansions and gardens. This was the River of Life and it fed four other rivers and these surrounded the Inner Garden and Courts. These rivers then branched out and fed the quadrants of the City.

These rivers then extended beyond the city and fed the other rivers, lakes and oceans. Every river comes from the River of Life and the River of Life comes directly from the Throne. All life begins with God! The River of Life is so beautiful that it is indescribable!

The outer areas surrounding the Throne were also incredible. There were campus-like areas with record rooms like libraries. These too were high tech like areas, but also so difficult to understand in order to describe.

There were areas of commerce with quaint shops and activities, all with incredible food and music and all worshipping and celebrating life, eternal life, because of God and always praising Him. The City is like a Temple of Worship to God, yet it was created for us because God delights in us. There were angels there too and it was all so incredible.

As Uriel flew over these areas, I just wept. Under my breath and on my lips, I could not help but thank God for all of this. I became so overjoyed at the happiness here. I was overwhelmed as Uriel then flew up north and then turned southwest.

I could see the area platform where new saints were arriving daily and loved ones were greeting them. The joy was overwhelming even as I write.

After a while, Uriel flew to the fields of flowers and, there in the distance, was Jesus. I waved at Him as Uriel landed. I quickly kissed his horse and thanked Uriel, but then I ran to Jesus as fast as I could. He had His arms open as I raced to embrace Him.

Jesus: "Erin, why are you crying?"

Me: "I am overwhelmed at this place. I am in awe and I pray I make it here, Lord."

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, why do you doubt your place here? You have seen your Home here and even your chamber, or condo..." He laughed. "...in the City. Why would I show you something and remove it? If you do nothing more than sit at home until I come for you, then you, at the least, have this, right?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, forgive me."

Jesus: "Do not be downcast, Erin, but rather rejoice. Now, I see your clothing is dry. Why did you try to stop the bubbling spring?"

He was laughing as He lifted up my head to look at Him.

Me: Sheepishly smiling. "Yes, Lord, Uriel already lectured me on this."

Just then, Uriel flew over our heads and waved. Both Uriel and Jesus were laughing.

Me: "I am sorry. I do not even know why I did it. I was fascinated by the technology, or perhaps I should call it 'God-tech'."

Jesus: Laughing. "God-tech? Yes, I think that this is a great way to describe the indescribable."

Me: "This whole place, all of heaven, is God-tech. Really, all of the Universe and the Earth is too."

Jesus: "Well, like the River of Life, all things under the sun originate from My Father on the Throne."

Me: "Yes, but the Earth seems void of God now. It seems more like 'evil-tech' is everywhere there now. Of course this excludes our new tower from You, Lord. As of yesterday, we finally have communication. Thank You."

Jesus: "You are welcome. Soon though, you will no longer need a tower to communicate as I will be your Strong Tower." He smiled and laughed. "Now come and take My hand."

Immediately, we were on a hill overlooking Jerusalem and the Dome of the Rock. There I saw the Wailing Wall. The city was beautiful, but old. In contrast, it was nothing like the Golden City of God, but yet it was similar in some ways.

Me: "Lord, I see some shelters. Is this time now? Is this Sukkot?"

Jesus: "While this is a very important time, there is often so much ceremony that the foundations behind this festival are lost."

Me: "I have learned a lot from this time we are in. I do not think I have ever followed it."

Jesus: "This is a time for all people to draw near to Me. You are correct in your thoughts about the Jewish people being jealous of the gentiles for nothing. This is correct, but a time is coming which will change this."

“When God’s chosen people wandered in the desert, there were so many signs and wonders. All of the needs of the people were taken care of. Even their clothing and shoes were never worn out in forty years. However, in spite of everything, they are looking not for Me, but for another savior.

“So the time has come again, for it is written, ‘Behold, I make a covenant: before all your people I will do marvels, such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation – and all the people among whom you are shall see the work of the Lord – for it is an awesome thing that I will do with you.’ (Exodus 34:10)

“Although the covenant is with them, it is also with you. Now, I am about to do something in your days you would not believe even if you were told. It comes from Me. All good gifts come from God.

“Like you were shown today, the path of the River of Life, it begins from the Throne. It then goes out from there and flows into many outlets. You tried to stop the small spring today, but you could not stop something already in motion, understand?”

Me: “Yes, Lord.”

Jesus: “Now, this is the City of Seven Hills. Not towers, but hills. It is a blessed city, but there are things hidden as her enemies advance, assisted by ‘the country in the west’. There are leaders making deals behind closed doors, but the ceiling in their dwelling are of glass. The glass ceiling has been reached and destruction has come upon the distant cursed land.”

Me: “Lord, will the ‘bull’ become the leader?”

Jesus: “It matters not. However, you have only to see how many are against this one to realize how afraid the enemy is. The very thing you are accused of is often what the other is guilty of.

“Now, this is like the time when Pilate asked Me, ‘what is truth?’ You have seen the masking of truth. Why do people become so angry at the evidence of healing, miracles and the good from My hands?”

Me: “I do not know. Perhaps it is because they cannot believe it?”

Jesus: "No. It is because they did not like Me to begin with. I did not look right. I caused them to be jealous of Me because I claimed to be who I am. I know it was because they wanted what I was able to do and they enjoyed their ceremony.

"If I had come only to them and gave them enhanced powers and miracles, oh yes, and if I had rode in on a white horse with a crown, then this might have been easier for them to accept. However, I came from Nazareth and was conceived in an unexpected way.

"I came from humble beginnings. I had brothers and sisters and they knew others who knew me. They also did not like who I associated with and even who I healed. Then, as a Jew, I healed on the Sabbath. I was unacceptable to them."

Me: "Is this why You did this, Lord? You are amazing. This, however, well, I often feel like I am a person not worthy of such things. I pray though, Lord, that You find me worthy to use. Please do not just let me sit at home and wait for You to come for us. I pray You will use me and, really, so many of us pray for this."

Jesus: "Erin, you are seeing a great deception happening in the world right now. I will equip you to stand. You will have no need to worry. I have not abandoned you. I am about to do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told.

"I have heard your cries. I will provide for your every need. I am your shelter and cover. I am your strong tower. Now, do not be afraid. I am the one who disposes kings and, others, I raise up."

Me: "So, is this like the time of Noah?"

Jesus: "It is also like the time of Pilate. There is nothing new under the sun, yet I can do a new thing here." He smiled.

Me: "Yes, Lord, You can still do this within the confines of Scripture."

Jesus: "A house divided cannot stand, so I will not go against My Words." He smiled. "This is enough for today. I love you, Erin."

Me: "I love You, Lord."

I hugged Him.

Jesus: "Do not forget that I will deliver you from your troubles in a single day."

Me: "I think I see this beginning."

Jesus: "No, Erin, in a single day, all will be removed." He smiled.

Dream 219 – Jesus, Vision from Him or Personal Imagination

Received Thursday, October 27, 2016

I am so thankful today for all of you, my family, and of course Jesus! Every day, I pinch myself as I cannot believe how much my life has changed in just a few short years.

In the last 60 days, we have endured troubles of every kind coming against our household. It has reached a point where it is almost comical and I wake up and say, "Okay, Lord, what is coming against us today?" Yes, somehow, all of these troubles have helped me reflect on different parts of my walk, really race, with the Lord...

Part 1: The Race – Sustenance and Endurance

I used to endure attacks prior to writing my dreams and visions. These came because I was running to God. I wanted to know Jesus in a deeper way and I sought Him. In the beginning, the enemy was doing everything in his power to keep me from Jesus.

So, why was this allowed by God? Simple! God wanted to see just how far I was willing to go, really the full distance, on this difficult path. This beginning was to see what my endurance race capacity was. After continuing on my race, and since no matter what the enemy tried kept me from going to Him, the enemy then began a different method of attack.

Part 2: The Detours – Distractions and Discouraging Turns

After I had proved to God that I was willing to continue on this race, I was then faced with even more difficult portions of the path. This meant I had to trust and obey God even when not knowing where He was taking me on the race.

The enemy tried everything to distract me and the list was long. There was my injury, the battles with the enemy, court battles, cancer scares, infighting with co-workers, family and friends, problems with my children, moving a long distance, accusations, lies, personal defamation, the death of my mom and so much loss...

This portion of the journey involved me running each day on a good path. Then, and out of nowhere, something even worse than the last day would come up and I would have to go a different direction based completely on God's directions. It was all a series of the race that I call a "Blind Run".

This portion of time in where I learned to hear God say, "No Erin, this is the Way, walk in this!" (Isaiah 30:21, Psalm 32:8 & John 14:6) I was dealing with insurmountable trouble and all kinds of tactics and weaponry were being used against me by the blacksmith.

I was really starting to wonder if I was even worthy of God's Call. This portion was so painful that it filled me with many tears. However, it also somehow filled me with an even deeper appreciation of God. In continuing on my race, God then began to trust me with even more. However, the enemy then began to come at me with yet a different method of attack...

Part 3: The Finish – Greater Rewards with God

I had done all of what God had required of me...or so I thought! I had stayed my course. I had remained focused on Jesus even when I had seen unspeakable trouble coming. The dreams and visions the Lord has given me have become incredibly detailed, making what I had in the beginning look almost cartoon-like in comparison.

On the bright side, and counter to all of the attacks, when He gave me the miracle of clearer dreams and visions, He has also miraculously healed my eyesight at the same time! This is truly remarkable as I had not even asked for this, but God knew what I needed before I even asked.

I thought that, with the launching of this new site, the Nest, and our announcement of my recent marriage, finally everything would be perfect and I could skip down the path on my final length of my race. Okay..."NOT"!! There is no skipping here, at least not quite yet.

So I asked Jesus some tough questions: "Lord, we are newlyweds here, so can we just have a time of bonding aside from all of this trouble? Could we have at least some joy prior to the times of trouble? Lord? Lord, are You there? We are too old for all of this. Hello, SparrowCloud rant here!"

Smiles.....

After my 'rant', the Lord gave me a vision of a cutting board and reminded me of when I was in an 8th grade wood shop class via a vision / memory recall. Now, to seasoned wood workers, I am sure there are better ways to make walnut cutting boards, but this, mind you, is how the Lord showed me what we had done from my personal 8th grade experience.

When making our cutting boards, we used several layers of wood drilled with holes. Each strip of wood had three holes. There were a total of about fifteen strips of wood with each about one inch thick. The eighteen inch dowels were used to thread the wood. Glue was used in between each strip of wood.

Then these massive table mounted vise-grips were used to shore up the adhesion of the wood. Though this was from years ago, I still remember that this took at least three days as we did not have any fast drying wood glue available.

When the shop teacher was certain that the wood was adhered and that the glue had dried, we then took the wood blocks and ran them through a planer to make sure the blocks were plumbed and even. We then cut off the dowels to make them even with the blocks.

We then spent several days sanding the surface. After this, the blocks were finished with a wax-like coating to bring out the luster of the wood. Some were varnished and some waxed.

After this vision / memory recall, the Lord then asked me to look up the meaning of 'lamination'. So, this is what I found...

Lamination is the technique of manufacturing a material in multiple layers so that the composite material achieves improved strength, stability, sound insulation, appearance or other properties from the use of differing materials. A laminate is a permanently assembled object by heat (similar to our trials), pressure (similar to the world), welding (similar to the tools of the blacksmith) and/or adhesives (similar to 'God Bonding Strength!').

After jotting this down, I was then unexpectedly brought into His presence for a quick conversation and lesson on that He had just shown me...

Jesus: "Erin, I have heard your cries. When gluing something together, it does not bond immediately, right? Instead, it needs time to bond and, only then, does it become a permanent adhesion capable of standing up to all types of situations.

"This vision of the cutting board and the process used is similar to that of your household. Running through all of these pieces of wood are the Father, the Son and the Counselor I have sent, the Holy Spirit.

"The bond is the time between the joining of your family. Now I have created the 'Bond' and the 'Adhesion'. That which is 'Bonded' through Me cannot be separated. There is a process. I have not taken you this far on your race to now set up a path which goes nowhere."

Me: "You are brilliant, Lord. I needed this encouragement as it seems the attacks occur now right after I write my visions and dreams down. Why are You allowing this?"

Jesus: "Erin, you are experiencing what is common to man, but even more for you now as you have turned the enemy's attention to what I am revealing. Because of Me, you hold the enemy's interest.

"The clock is ticking, time is passing and the enemy has seen the writing on the wall. While you are hated and attacked, I also send help in advance of this. Before you cry out, I answer and You know I Am God.

"Now, this is the portion of the race in which the enemy tries to pull you back from the finish line. The enemy will call you back to where you were a prisoner and a slave. He sheds light on your old bridges or stirs up your past. He yells out to you to cause you to stop you in your tracks. He calls out to discourage you.

"Now, what did I show you recently? What did you learn?"

Me: "It was awful and I am so mad at myself. You gave me the same vision three times this last weekend. However, they were short visions and I was not certain if it was a vision from You or my fears lending itself to my imagination.”

Jesus: “So, what was it?”

Me: “It was a vision from You, but I failed to see it because the circumstances were not typical for a vision. It was a warning from you that I missed and I paid dearly for it. Well, we paid dearly because I failed to act on what You showed me. It has been an awful week of worry with no end in sight.”

Jesus: “In this length of your race, I am giving you even more. This means I am calling you up for even greater service. Now, I have appointed watchmen on your walls. I will also grant you increase, but you must understand that, like others before you, there will not always be situations where you will have a pen and paper in hand.

“There will be times when I will say to you, ‘Go here, Go there, Yes, No, Not now’ and even more, but this is when you must fully trust Me when I send signs like this. Now I will deliver you from this trouble, but I allowed this as a lesson to instruct you in the ways you should go.

“Your remaining enemies are institutions. These have no heart, no pulse and no foundation built on God, so you must allow Me to govern them and flip tables.” He smiled.

“You are unable to stand against these. You must play by their rules until I take you another direction and deliver you from them. This time is soon to come, but, in the meantime, you must know who ultimately controls them and allows their current ability to cause trouble.”

Me: “I am sorry, Lord, but how will I know when it is You giving me a vision versus my imagination?”

Jesus: “Well, let us start with how many times in succession you were given it?”

Me: “Three times.”

Jesus: “Very good. Then, with this, what else did you experience?”

Me: "I felt it in my head first, then in my chest and then, finally, in my belly."

Jesus: "So it made you feel like you needed to act on this, yet you did not?"

Me: "I thought it was just worry?"

Jesus: "Hmm, yet you even ignored that which made you worry?" He smiled and laughed. "Erin, why would you do such a thing?"

Me: "I thought You would deliver me from this and there would be no cause for worry."

Jesus: "This reminds Me of the parable of the man during the flood, Erin. This is a difficult lesson. What did you finally learn from it?" He smiled and laughed.

Me: "That You have changed up how You are communicating with me. I am excited for this, yet I did not like what happened. Please do not allow this to happen again, Lord."

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, Erin, okay, but how about you listen or, better yet, when you receive these visions, just ask Me. You can say it out loud or you can say it under your breath. I will answer when you ask, but you must ask."

Lesson over...for today. Okay, it was a very difficult lesson though.

Times are about to get interesting soon. What I see coming actually reminds me of when I came upon an accident a long time ago and before I was even a Christian. When I came over to help at this accident, I somehow knew just what to do. While I was not sure about this before, I now know that this was God guiding me.

In comparison, the person I was driving with and a person trained for just these types of things, suddenly became frozen in his tracks. Somehow this person had no ability to do what I was somehow doing. The difference seemed to be that God chose to use me in a surprising way, but God chose to allow this other person, the one more capable, to be frozen in fear.

Later, after the ambulances came and went, I talked with this person about all that happened as I could barely recall what I had just done. However, he remembered everything and saw that people were treating me as if I had years of training on this.

He told me I was able to keep a man who may have potentially become paralyzed to stay still and calm in order to help prevent possible damage to his spine. This was all while we were in quite a severe snowstorm and this man was also bleeding a lot.

It seemed like the enemy had successfully stopped the one more capable from helping, effectively freezing him in his tracks. However, God then side stepped the enemy's plan by using the one less expected and the one not even capable or trained to help.

The point of all this is that it just shows that those of us to soon be called into service who feel inferior and unlikely to be called may be just the ones God chooses. In contrast, the ones that we think will rise up the most just may be the ones that may surprise us by not performing when the heat is turned up.

The Lord is not a respecter of position, but rather sees us for exactly who each of us are! What it really comes down to is that this is usually a heart issue as He continually searches each of our hearts!

Anyway, I hope this encourages all of you. He is doing more with all of us in this last length of the race and will be ramping this up soon. Now, how long this portion of the race will be, I really have no idea.

May God bless each of you with abundance. Many of you are struggling in so many ways and I am praying for miracles as I believe God is about to do something really incredible with us!

I am ready to work! I feel that I am now ready to be a 'Worker' in His army. Hopefully and prayerfully, I will be a worker alongside with so many of you here that I call my friends!

Much Love and Many Blessings

Erin

Dream 220 – Jesus, the Election and the Sea of Glass

Received Sunday, October 30, 2016

My Daughter's 15th Birthday today!

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for my daughter. I gave birth to her by C-section and I have a fifteen inch scar to show for this. Well, maybe time has stretched the scar an inch more for every year past her 12th birthday.

Back in 2001 and just after '9/11', I was given a scheduling choice by my doctor to give birth to my daughter on either October 31st or October 30th. Given these two choices, I decided on the 30th, the day before Halloween, as opposed to the actual day of Halloween.

Father, I pray that I did what was right in Your eyes when I chose this date. I did this in honor of what I believed You would want for us. Ever since, my daughter has been such a blessing and a miracle. Even more so given all of the difficulties and troubles I had with the births of both of my sons.

I thank You today for all of my children. I know that, at times, they wear me down, but I am unsure of where I would be without them. They have added to my life and, had it not been for them, I believe I would have lost my desire to remain here when You called me Home.

I thank You, Father, for all of our children. Lord, we are all now waiting on You to do something new here. I feel that all five of our children are sleeping right now. While they all seem to be asleep in their walk with You as well, it seems that sleeping is something I would rather have them do instead of being awake and rebellious.

As such, I thank You, Father, for this current time of sleep that they are in. I feel they will remain in this sleep until the day they soon arise, but only by Your divine hand. I pray for this every day and can now feel that this day is almost at hand. Indeed, each of us now feels this and we pray for this before every evening meal.

Recently, I sent in my absentee vote to Washington State as I am still registered there to vote. I was so excited to also see my eldest son vote for the very first time. At the last election, I had asked You which candidate would bring Jesus faster to come and get us. Based on Your response, that is how I voted at the last election.

However, this time when I again asked for Your wisdom on this issue, You told me to vote according to my conscience and my morals. You know that this is especially difficult this election because neither candidate seems moral. Thankfully, and as I prayed to You on all of this, You again gave me further insight into my questions and shed light on our choices...

God: "Erin, my wrath is coming upon the cursed land. One is a leader of moral compromise and, under this leader, the nation will be destroyed by surrender and by a punishing rod. The other leader is one of strength and pride and, under this leader, the nation will not remain neutral, but instead will fight.

"However, no matter which leader is chosen, it now matters not as the nation has already been weighed and found guilty as it is void of Me. Remember, Erin, that I am the One Who deposes kings and rises up men. Pray for those who are to be later 'caught up' that they do not suffer prior to that day.

"Therefore, Erin, bring Me your troubles and do not rely on that which lies to you, but instead rely on Me in all things. This way, when trouble comes, you will recognize My Voice, obey My Commands and will be held blameless on that day."

Me: "Father, will voting day be 'that day' for the cursed nation?"

God: "No, Erin, this is not the day I am speaking of, but this day will still be a turning point for this land. These choices will be recorded, so choose carefully based not on what you are told by the father of lies, but by what I have shown you. While one I have appointed for a purpose, the other I have granted permissions to. While one I have sent, the other I have agreed to, but did not send."

Me: "Will You not give me any names?"

God: "Erin, you do not need names. Do you not see that the world is against one while the cursed are for the other?"

Me: "Father, are all those voting for the wrong one cursed?"

God: "No, Erin, I do not judge by choices made by those who are now under a veil of deception. Instead, they are judged because their hearts are void of Me. You are misunderstanding what I have said.

"Now, why would so many need to rise up against one man if I did not send him? Erin, you have seen this before, so this should also be a sign to you. Now the one in power has made a declaration to stand against another so as to not have his legacy destroyed. What is a legacy?"

Me: "Could a legacy be a current way of life resulting from one's past actions?"

God: "Yes, so now you must ask yourself what his legacy is. It is a nation now void of God continuing on its course as a punishing rod, but disguising itself as being for the good for all mankind. Now, who has appointed this man as god?"

Me: "The people have appointed him as god over them."

God: "Yes, yet I am still God over all of them and have now allowed what they declare and seek. Slavery has now come upon them, yet they see it not. However, I still grant wisdom to those who earnestly seek it. Therefore pray for wisdom and pray for Israel, My Land, as the man with the legacy to uphold is continuing on his course while the rest of the world is veiled from it."

As He finished speaking to me on this, I could somehow tell that there was more to this that would be revealed at a later time, but always in His time. I thank You, Father, for Your wise words for it is You Who created the beginning and our eternity.

You know every man's course and nothing can be removed from You so that You are not aware. As You even care when a small sparrow falls, so blessed are all of us who love You for having a Heavenly Father that loves us and keeps us safe.

Father, I need help with my recent dreams as they seem to be somehow related to questions I have recently received from several of my friends about how they can experience You in a deeper way. However, I find that I cannot reply to them adequately or with certainty as I really do not know the answer to this difficult question.

As such, I can only share with others the times in my past when I went from one state of being with You to another state. These transitions seemed to happen whenever You required something from me, even though I really had no idea what that was at the time.

While I now know that You have made me into a type of vessel, I now also know that I am not 'of the water' or 'of the sea'. While You have placed on my heart a thirst for water and to live near it in proximity, water is not the way of my life.

Here are just a few examples to try and explain what I mean by this. While I am not an avid swimmer, I like to take a dip in a pool or lake. While I do not have any desire to own a boat or 'sail the seas', I once had a huge desire to be a rower in my college years, even though I never really pursued this sport.

Anyway, and in reality, I have been and continue to be mostly a land lover who simply enjoys gazing at the beautiful lakes, streams, rivers and oceans from a safe vantage point. Oh yes, and I love fountains, springs, pools and waterfalls so much as well.

I love that all of the water in Heaven originates from the Throne of God and that the River of Life always begins with God. I love the taste of fresh, cool water, both on Earth and in Heaven, and I drink a lot of water each day. I am just so thankful to You for water.

Now, why did I even mention any of this? I mentioned this in order to firmly establish that I am not a worshiper of water in any way, but that I am solely a worshiper of You, our awesome God. Lord, I just know in my heart that You created me to be a vessel for Your purposes and not for my own fleshly ambitions.

To become this vessel for You, I needed all things obstructing the free flowing Spirit, the Holy Spirit, of God to be removed. This also meant I had to ask myself some very difficult questions. As just one example, I asked whether I was still somehow accidentally interfering with Your Will.

When I finally decided to fully surrender my flesh for Your purposes, it was painfully slow at first as I was still listening to others and not just to You. Thankfully, Father, You were so very patient with me as I continued to seek You.

Even though I lost years of my life lacking a clear vessel, I am so thankful for Your grace and mercy and that You did not give up on me even when I became discouraged. Instead, You loved me through it all and You patiently 'wooed' me to You over and over again, never stopping.

In turn, I learned how to love You with my whole heart. Now I live every day for You, even though I am certainly not perfect. Lord, even though my vessel is not perfect, I pray that You are pleased with me. I just love You so much, Father, and You are my Strong Tower!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was once again standing at the overlook viewing God's Valley below me. I smiled as it was dawn yet again as the light of dawn continued. I took a deep breath and felt the rich air of Heaven fill my lungs.

I breathed in again and noticed that, as I exhaled, the air from God, God's oxygen, brought life and youth to my body. I felt younger here and it was such a harsh contrast to how I feel on Earth.

As I looked all around me, I once again saw the bubbling spring coming from the rock. I ran over to drink from the spring and, as I approached, my eyes delighted in what I saw. I began to cry when I saw a small vessel resting on this rock. In order to fully understand the source of my tears, you will need some background...

Fourteen years ago, I owned quite the collection of beautiful antiques. Over the years, I had collected these antiques based on things I found to be lovely. These things were usually hand-made, hand-painted or, if glass, hand-blown. These antiques were from a time in the past and from a time before mass scale manufacturing. They were from a time when things were still made with care and craftsmanship.

Sadly, when I later faced illness and had discovered hidden things that had been done to my children, I had to let go of these things of earthly value. Letting go of these things was not as difficult for me as it could have been though as my children and our living expenses mattered more than these things.

Quite simply, I needed to liquidate to pay for medical and legal bills. Soon the auctioneers, estate liquidators, pawn shop owners, banks, payday loans and, finally, bankruptcy protection came at me in succession. When I had finally exhausted all of my worldly options, all that was left of value was my life and that of my children.

This was when I truly met God. I met Him when there were no worldly options left and when I could no longer rely on that which man lends or institutions provide. Or perhaps it was when I could no longer rely on that which man provides or institutions lend.

Well, either way, from any or all of these options came my only option. This option, first and foremost, but finally forever, was and is God! However, this is something I truly discovered the hard way.

During my liquidation to fund my battles, I finally had to sell my valuable collection of French confit pots. This was last on my list to liquidate and I had several different sizes of these pots. I also had several different colors of these pots, including gold ones and even a green one.

While these confit pots were actually utilitarian pots from a couple of hundred years ago that were used to carry common goods such as olives, oil or even water, these had become valuable by today's standards. Now, despite my huge collection of these confit pots from over the years, there had always been one particular size which seemed to elude me and this had bothered me.

I had tried to find this particular confit pot both at auctions and through other antiquity dealers. The pot I had always searched for was a specific seven inch confit pot that was French in origin.

What made this almost amusingly frustrating was that I simply could not obtain this confit pot when I had the money to buy it. However, as soon as I no longer had the money for it, this confit pot suddenly became available and I finally had to let go of this quest to obtain it.

In the end, none of this really mattered as I finally had to sell my entire collection of confit pots to an antique dealer. Since they gave me top dollar for this collection, this enabled me to pay for two months of rent in advance. At the time, this was a true God send for me and my kids and temporarily gave me some breathing room.

While I have now given up my previous earthly ambitions to ever have a confit pot collection again, I must admit that I still have quite a soft spot for them. Of course, the Lord knows this, but He also knows that I never did complete my collection of confit pots with this particularly elusive one.

This is why tears instantly filled my eyes when there, on this rock with the spring, was the exact seven inch French confit pot I had always wanted and searched for. However, this Heavenly confit pot was not only more beautiful than the earthly pot, it was also completely perfected!

As I walked closer to this Heavenly confit pot, I started noticing details that made me cry even harder, but with joyful tears. The engraving was simply incredible and was so much greater than any worn earthly confit pots I had ever seen. It was simply perfect and unlike anything on Earth.

This pot had a sterling rim that was even purer than .925, all engraved with scroll work. The handles were bronze and the top half was pure gold with roses engraved around it. The body or base was like stone, porcelain and clay combined, yet still had an iridescent, pearl-like shimmer.

As soon as I picked up this little vessel, water from the spring shot up into the air and filled it. I laughed as I put the little vessel up to my lips to drink. As I drank from this beautiful pot, the water tasted so sweet and refreshing.

I then placed this precious little Heavenly pot back next to the rock. I sat on the bench and continued to cry such joyful tears in both praise and wonder. I was just so thankful that the Lord knows each of us so incredibly intimately and so much more than we even know ourselves.

Me: "Lord, though we might forget about certain things and even such painful parts of our journeys, You never forget anything about us. You remember everything and record all that we suffer loss over, every sacrifice that we make and everything that we delight in. You do not forget anything that we have been through.

"Here in Heaven, You delight in showing us that You were with us and, even though we lost so much on Earth, that all is reconciled in Heaven. You grant us even more here, including things that we do not even ask for. These are all here waiting for us."

As I looked out over the beautiful valley, I became captivated by the complete absence of the colors brown, black and gray. All that I could see was of life and living organisms. Even the tree trunks were bronze colored and seemed to display a shimmering light or burnished polish to them.

It was as if I was viewing a living sculpture garden when it came to the trees, vines and flowers that I could see. The grass here is like carpet, yet even more durable. Despite this, somehow the sheep and other animals here can easily graze on this grass.

As I pondered how amazingly mysterious and gloriously perfect this all was, I felt a hand on my shoulder. I turned and there was Uriel greeting me with a smile. Uriel was fully dressed again in armor and his wings were folded.

Uriel again drew my attention over to the spring. I started to laugh so hard when I saw that a sparrow with a small gold crown inlaid with pearls was drinking from the vessel of water. I then saw this sparrow go inside the vessel and could hear it sing.

Soon, other sparrows came and gathered there as well. I noticed that all of them also had small gold crowns, but that there were different colored stones in the crowns of each one. It was just so cute that I could not keep myself from laughing in delight.

Me: "Wow, even the little brown sparrows are given shimmering gold and silver feathers and wear crowns with jewels."

Uriel: Smiling. "Come, Erin, the King is in the field."

I ran over to his horse in anticipation of our flight. However, before I could even have a thought as to how I would mount the horse or when Uriel would do this and that, we were already in flight. This all happened faster than any earthly plan of thought!

Today, we flew immediately in the direction of the rising sun and over God's valley. Somehow my eyes could easily withstand the brightness of the sun, even though there would be no way I could do this back on Earth.

We flew over the area of mountains that was west of the Valley of Blessing. We then flew over estates, vineyards, lakes and parks. To the east, we could see the Golden City of God.

To the north, I could see something like the Mediterranean Sea with incredible estates on beautiful islands. There were amazing sail boats and each of their sails was of different colors and sizes. There were massive celebrations and I could hear music.

Uriel then brought us in the direction of the fields of flowers to the south. I could see Jesus in the distance in the field of lilies as He waved to us. Once Uriel landed, I thanked him, kissed his horse and ran as fast as I could to Jesus.

I could see Jesus laughing as I sprinted towards Him. I jumped over many beautiful rows of flowers as I went to Him. I finally jumped into His arms and He easily caught me and gave me a gentle hug.

Jesus: "Erin, there is so much urgency today. What is happening?"

Me: "Lord, thank You for sustaining us. Thank You for Your grace as it is more than I feel I deserve."

Jesus: "Erin, I love you and have not forgotten all that you have been through. I have and will have fully..." He paused. "...restored all you have lost here, but even more than you know."

Me: "Thank You for the beautiful confit pot. The water from this tasted so good."

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, and even the sparrows enjoyed this. Now, did you recognize the details in the body of the vessel?"

Me: "Yes! The engineering was like nothing I have ever seen on Earth."

Jesus: "Erin, someone you know engraved these flowers and vines for the small vessel by My direction. Do you know who?"

I gasped with delight as I knew of only one engraver of flowers with this type skillset on Earth. Tears of joy started to form in my eyes.

Me: "My mom? Oh Lord, did my mom do this?"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, and all of the engraving that you have seen here in Heaven has come from her to you."

Me: "Lord, how is that even possible as she only died last year? I know that I have had these visions from You of this engraving from before she died. I remember the engraving on the keys, the fish lure and other pieces. How could this engraving be from my mom as I saw all of this long before she had even died?"

Jesus: "Erin, this is a mystery to be revealed at another time. Now, why do you cry? Rejoice for she is here and she serves me in joy. She no longer suffers and she sings as she did in her youth. She now delights in you, Erin, when once she did not. Here, she delights in you and is thankful for you. Now, come."

He reached for my hand and we were instantly in the City of God and standing on the Sea of Glass. This was unlike anything on Earth. Though we stood on the sea as if it was a solid, when we looked below us, we could see movement, almost like it was flowing. I thought that perhaps it really was, but this is so hard to describe.

Me: "Lord, this is beautiful."

Jesus: "You see the water in the depths and it is living, yet it is solid like a stone and you can walk on it. Now, how do you know this is not a liquid you are actually standing on, like the sea?" He smiled as He asked me this question.

Me: "Hmm, this is a good question, but I really have no idea. I thought this sea was a solid living glass stone. It certainly is a deep blue that looks like the sea. Lord, I am in awe."

Jesus reached for my hand again and we were now at the area where the River of Life flows and branches into four more rivers. These rivers, in turn, branched into other rivers.

He then took me above all of this. As I looked down, it literally looked like a massive tree, a massive living tree of water. We then went back down to the banks on the River of Life.

Me: "Lord, this is incredible! This is all so amazing!"

Jesus: "What I have shown you is a mystery revealed to those whom search with the key of understanding. Do you have this key, Erin?"

Me: "No, Lord, as I am empty and only a vessel. I have no key unless You give me one."

Jesus: Laughing. "Well, Erin, then you have this key now."

Just then, I received a revelation, but I do not have words to describe all of this. Not only that, but this also seemed to happen in but an instant. The Lord could see me struggling with all of this. He smiled and encouraged me to continue.

Jesus: "Go ahead, Erin, pour out as a vessel that which you are able to explain."

Me: I took a deep breath. "Well, those before God's Throne on the Sea of Glass are there by faith. I worship before God and kneel upon the waters of the great sea. I am feeling solid on my knees, yet I see the movement of water on the depths below me.

"I am not aware of my position because I am caught up in the Glory of God in His presence. The Spirit of God in me hovers over the water, yet I walk on solid ground. This is all such a mystery! Sitting at this sea or waters is the very Throne of God, yet He is before all of this.

"He takes that which was dark and void in Genesis 1:2 and brings forth life from it. The River of Life, which really is the Spirit of God, flows from the Throne and branches from there, multiplying from the water and around it. He then creates abundant life.

"You, Lord, have breathed eternal life into the dead. You are our bridge to eternal life. You call out to many, but very few answer. Lord, every day I grow deeper in love with You. With every day, I am in awe of Your works." I reached over and hugged Him.

Jesus: "Very good, Erin. Now, you have been counting days. Numbers are good and are a measure which instructs you. They number your days so that you may gain the heart of wisdom (Psalm 90:12). I instruct using numbers and there are no accidents when certain numbers continuously appear.

"Now, the number 1 cannot be divided against itself. The number 2 is a number of union, but can also be one of division. However, a pair in union with Me, a 3 stranded cord, is not easily divided.

"You have seen the number 4 in the seasons, quadrants of division and the four angels. You understand the number 5 from My Word in reference to the parable of the good and faithful servant (Matt 25:20-21). You know of the number of man, directions and the 6 days of activity."

Me: "Lord, what do You mean about 'directions'?"

Jesus: "Well, in the world, there is east, west, north and south. However, there is also forward, backward, left, right, up and down."

Me: "Hmm, so besides the compass points of four, there is also up and down?"

Jesus: "Correct, but not just on a map. It can also mean the path or course of your life."

Me: "Yes, Lord, and it seems that, in 'my race', I have gone all of these directions."

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, this is very good. Now, the number 7 is My number."

Me: "This is the number of completeness. There is refinement in the furnace 7 times. In the Scripture, Your Words, Lord Jesus, are flawless and like silver purified (Psalm 12:6). In the furnace on Earth, there is refinement for 7 times. Your Words are pure and give us the breath of life."

Jesus: "Yes, but it also means a day of rest after six days of work. Erin, I have given you these numbers in order to now focus on the number 8. This is a time of new beginning. Erin, it is the new order of the state of things. I have told you that I will do a new thing, yet I do not go against My Word.

"Now, how often have you looked backwards at what I have accomplished and see it all as perfect and just as I have proclaimed? At the same time, how often have you seen this all accomplished in a manner unlike how you had expected?"

Me: Smiling. "Oh Lord, all of the time. You are mysterious, yet I take comfort in You because You give us so much greater than we can conceive with our hearts."

Jesus: "I have circumcised your heart, Erin, and now I am going to do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told. Now, you can look into what the number 8 signifies for further instruction. However, you must not look to numbers as if to tell a fortune as they cannot prophecy.

"The Spirit of the Lord, My Spirit, is not in numbers, yet these numbers are there for use as a key to unlock mysteries that I grant to those with wisdom. Divine wisdom comes from Me, understand?"

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "Now, I am entering into a new covenant with you as My favor is upon you and your vessel is willing."

Me: "I am ready, Lord."

To my surprise, I started to jump up and down in complete and utter excitement!

Jesus: Laughing. "Okay, Erin, simmer down. Now, let Me go before you and also be your rear guard. I have appointed watchmen on your walls. I have also commanded angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways. Therefore take comfort in Me."

Me: "Yes, Lord, thank You for pushing me through the barriers."

He reached over and hugged me. He then looked into my eyes with such a kind smile and a love that simply has no description.

Jesus: "Erin, flesh is like a wall, so study circumcision. Look at what separates you from God and change it. I have answered your cries and your heart is circumcised to Me."

Dream over...

Dream 221 – Heavenly Condominium Living for the Youths

Received Tuesday, November 1, 2016

My daughter's birthday was on Sunday and I had asked for a Word for her from the Lord to encourage her. This ended up being so encouraging that I later requested that God allow us to post something for all of the youth out there as so many of them have been fed wicked lies about Heaven. The below is what we were free to share...

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! The beautiful fall colors are almost gone and the pond is like glass in the distance. As I write this today, I hear the sounds of different flocks of geese, ducks and other birds settling in here for a quick rest. After resting, they will then fly south to warmer 'homes' for the winter.

So Thank You, thank You, Father, as You are so awesome and kind. I love You with my whole heart, soul and strength. Father, if it be Your Will, could You please give me a Word for my daughter for her birthday?

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was up at God's overlook in His Garden. I looked over and saw the little bubbling spring coming from the rock and I ran over to drink from it.

As I was drinking, a little sparrow with silver and gold feathers and a tiny gold crown with opals came to drink. It was singing and appeared to be saying 'hello' to me. I laughed as it flew up onto my shoulder.

I went over and sat on a bench to look out at God's valley. It was sunrise and the beauty was incredible. The sky was filled with beautiful pinks and purples. In the meadow below, I saw little baby animals with their mothers, but with their fathers too.

They were all playing, drinking, grazing and even mingling with each other. I saw bear cubs, rabbits and bunnies, baby squirrels, fuzzy little birds and ducklings, lambs, ponies, puppies, kittens and on and on. It was like a 'Hallmark Card' collage of cuteness.

This was really like nothing on Earth and it somehow seemed normal to see baby hedgehogs, does and other babies tackling each other and chasing each other around. There were so many varieties to watch that I could not help but laugh with joy.

Me: "Okay, Father, this is incredible. A baby koala is tackling a baby bear cub and a baby giraffe is giving rides to baby birds. This is not possible in the natural, but only possible in God's supernatural. Thank You, Father, for this makes me smile."

Just then, I felt a hand on my shoulder. I turned and I saw Uriel smiling at me.

Uriel: "Are you enjoying the baby animals in God's Garden?"

Me: "Yes, but I have never noticed them before."

Uriel: "They are everywhere, but today these are going to the Garden for the Children. There are more children here than adults, so the children are raised by angels here. The baby animals are being blessed today and celebrating their service to bring joy to the children, but the parents are joyful too. The animals are all in service to God, as are the saints and the angels."

Me: "Oh, is this why I have never seen such a sight in God's valley before?"

Uriel: "Well, you have, but you have only been focused on what God calls your focus to. Now come, I will show you something. Bring your new friend."

He pointed to the bird on my shoulder and the bird jumped up and down with excitement. I ran over to Uriel's horse and, before I could even think fast enough to mount it and fly, we were off flying into the direction of the sun in the east.

We flew over the Valley of Blessing, the fields of flowers and toward the landing area in front of the northwest gate of the City. The walls were easily one hundred feet high and the Gate of Pearl and precious gems were so beautiful.

Uriel landed in front of the gate and helped me from his horse. As we approached the massive gate, two angels opened it and we walked onto the golden stone street. There was lush vegetation, flowering vines, beautiful homes and little shops everywhere, along with fountains, small lakes and parks. It was all just so indescribably beautiful.

Uriel: "Erin, in the beginning of your time here in Heaven, you were given a dream. It was a clear dream and unlike any you have ever had. Do you remember this dream?"

Me: "Yes. I was in a part of the Golden City of God that was like a 'Maxfield Parish' painting. However, the buildings were also state of the art modern. This was quite difficult to understand."

Uriel: "I am going to show you a place, but this will raise questions with you. However, understand that, when a child reaches a certain age and is either here being raised by angels or arrives here because God has completed their times as each man's days are numbered and each has a purpose under Heaven, they come to this learning area."

"Now, this particular learning area is typically for those from the ages of 13 to 23, but this is really just the average age for those that are here. The area is divided into groups and is like a Heavenly boarding school and college campus combined."

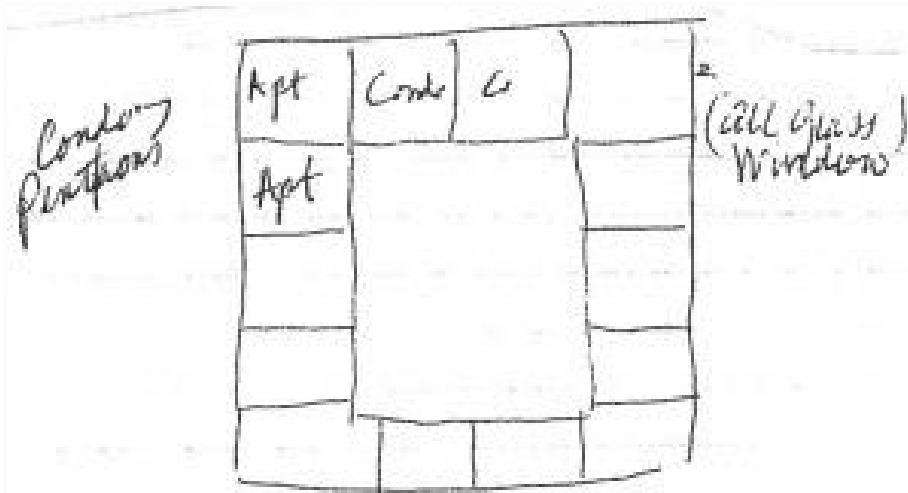

"This learning center is a place where they enjoy all of what many feel that they missed, but it is much more. Here, they grow in maturity and develop their calling in service to God. This is also where they meet the friends that God has called them too."

Me: "Hmm, I thought that all of us in Heaven are friends? I also thought that all of us would be around age 25 or so?"

Uriel: Smiling. "Well, God could grant supernatural maturity for all, but when did He say that there would be no need for growth? The growth process here is enriching and is not painful like that on Earth. Instead, the growth process is rewarding here. While it is not competitive here, there is 'competitive comradery'."

"This is an area where the youth fall in love with God and there is a process of learning. Although they are all grateful to be here, many had been taught on Earth that Heaven would be a place with no fun for them."

Uriel reached for my hand and we went into a type of modern dormitory. The buildings around us were like a modern city and easily the size of New York City. The buildings were constructed of high-tech stone and crystal mirrored glass of gold. There were hills and lush gardens, outdoor cafes, restaurants, shops and theatres everywhere.

Each building consisted of stories and stories of condominiums and each individual condo was personally designed for the youth living there. The ceiling of each of these condos was around twenty feet high with glass. Uriel took me into one of these units.

The condo was so high-end that, if it were in a building in New York City, it would easily be worth $30 million or even more. The condo was modern with white furniture and fluffy rugs. There was a modern kitchen with a beautiful countertop of light blue green and white stone, like an opal.

Me: "Wow, Uriel, I want this place. This is so incredible."

Uriel: Smiling. "Yes, and there is still work to be completed on this place."

He walked to the window and it was massive. As he approached, the glass automatically separated and he waved for me to come out onto the deck. The deck was almost as beautiful as the inside of the condo and had fountains and water features. There were also chairs and a channeled pond with a glass rail.

In the distance, you could see the Throne of God. As we walked to another part of the deck, you could see a view of the lake, the campus and the other condominiums. When we looked across at one of the buildings next to ours, we saw some college aged boys waving at us. They seemed quite happy to see us. This surprised me at first.

Me: "Who are they?"

Uriel: "This place will be for a girl currently in her teens that you know. God has prepared a place for her here. Those people that you see are her friends and they are waiting for her to arrive. There are many other friends, both boys and girls of course, waiting for her to arrive as well."

Me: "Wow, does she know them?"

Uriel: "This is difficult to understand, but they have been following her from here. Those God has appointed intercede here. When she arrives, it will be a place here so perfect for her that she will not miss the former things on Earth."

Me: I was saddened for a moment. "Uriel, will she remember the people that she knew back here that love her?"

Uriel: "Erin, how could she forget? They helped shape her for all of this. She is here because they kept her focus on Heaven. This is the part of the City where they all form relationships with each other and with God."

Me: "Oh, this would have been my dream when I was younger."

Uriel: "Yes, but not everyone encounters this immediately upon arrival as some go to a training ground and a place of service first. However, other children do not have to go there first as each of their places is already here."

I suddenly became quite worried as, from an earthly perspective, it seemed nerve-wracking to have such handsome boys being so close to such beautiful girls. For some reason, I was just not thinking about this properly and from a Heavenly perspective.

Me: "Uriel, are they going to be okay?"

Uriel: Smiling. "Erin, you are assuming that the fleshly desires on Earth will be the same here in Heaven. If you can conceive this, remember that only the positive Fruits of the Spirit are here in Heaven and are always in full operation. Erin, not one of these youths would do any evil in the sights of the Lord. It is not even possible to sin and live here, Erin, but there is much more to all of this."

Me: "Uriel, what happens after the age of 23?"

Uriel: Smiling. "This is a mystery for now, but, eventually, they will graduate from here and be fully developed. They will then have a home in the mountains, valleys or near the beaches. They will worship God, but also be near their circle of friends."

Me: "Why would she need such a massive condo?"

Uriel: "Well, she has gatherings and she is given the desires of her heart. She will enjoy so many different activities and even event planning. She will enjoy shopping with friends and decorating her place."

Me: Laughing. "Oh, that sounds like so much fun."

Uriel: "The people who loved her on Earth will visit her often here. She and her friends also visit these people's places. All of the youths here are also developing their tastes individually as creativity still exists." He smiled.

Me: "Oh, my daughter will be so excited to hear about all of this! Thank you for this, Uriel, as she has been sad and discouraged."

Uriel: "She is His and she is hated by the world. This is enough for today. There are angels over her to guard her in all of her ways. She is greatly loved by God."

Dream 222 – Jesus, the Coming Trouble and Divine Protection

Received Friday, November 4, 2016

Two children are now back from their retreat today.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for Your blessings and Your protection.

Yesterday, you protected us, me and two of my children, from a near fatal accident. It happened fifteen miles away from my child's school and the person who almost killed us was a parent at that school. Father, please forgive me as I went up to the woman as she had got out of her vehicle and confronted her publically.

However, instead of simply admitting her fault and apologizing, she claimed I was insane for confronting her. I am not even certain of what came out of my mouth after that, but, according to my children, I did not swear at her, so I have to believe You had gone before me, Lord.

My children were not embarrassed by my actions or words, but more upset that the teachers seemed to feel sorrier for the woman than they did for me. She played the victim even though her acts of road rage almost killed us. We went from having a great day to all of us just being very thankful we were alive, an even better outcome.

I went to You personally after the incident in repentance for my offense of confronting her recklessness against us. You then gently rebuked me for not reading what Your Words say about this and that I was justified in doing this, but with some cautions.

You brought my attention to the difference between righteous anger and unrighteous anger and that there is a difference. You also reminded me that, to expose an evil done against the innocent is wise, but that judgement is from God and not me.

You also reminded me about the enemy's tactics. This country school has known pagan and Wiccan instructors and the woman who came against us in her car is an active part of the school.

Essentially, I had stood on enemy grounds when confronting the enemy, while Jesus confronted evil when evil deeds were performed in God's house and on God's ground. Even though I had exposed the evil this woman did to us, I had also walked into an enemy trap in confronting her on 'her battleground'.

My kids and I had also hoped that, through You, Father, You would allow us to shake their minivan or the flag pole so that they would know that You are behind us and are much greater than the pagan gods they serve.

Either way, what I learned, and had not been tested on before, was that, when it comes to my children, my stepchildren or any other children, I stand against what seeks to harm them. Well, at least that which I am aware of with Your revelation.

Father, You then instructed me to wait three days and, if anything comes against me or my daughter because of this, then we must remove her from the school. I do not know what You are doing, but I pray that You will have us remove her even though it would be a challenge for us as she would go to a school near the high school and almost twenty miles away. I pray Your Will be done on all of this.

Father, my last dream for the Nest was followed by attack after attack on us and all five spiritual strategies were used against us. While we are no longer surprised when these attacks come, we still stand amazed by the creativity of the attacks as these attacks come in unexpected areas and at various times. Why then, even though we know trouble will come, are we still surprised when these attacks come?

Yesterday, I discovered strength that You have given me, Father, that I was unaware I even had and not one of my children had ever seen me like this. When I walked away from this confrontation, I looked at my kids and saw that their jaws had dropped. My middle son looked at me with shock and respect.

All three kids, including my two daughters, had just witnessed this confrontation and they all agreed that how I had handled this situation seemed supernatural. Smiles, since I rarely seem to get upset, snippy or hot headed in front of them, I just know that I have never stood up against anyone like that before.

Thank You, Father, for this lesson. Please forgive me for not understanding that anger can be a tool of strength when used correctly to expose the wicked. However, it was also important for me to remember that, more often than not, anger can also be used as a weapon and punishing rod meant to chastise the innocent and give rise to evil.

Lord, please protect us from the enemy's attacks as I am now fully expecting this woman to show up at our door with two large men just like my dream posted in September of this year (2016).

This seemed quite possible to me as I have since learned that this woman 'just happens' to live just up the street from us just like this dream. As a result, please grant us even more protection over all of us, especially during these next several weeks.

Several of my dreams last night were very clear and lengthy. However, almost all of them were mostly personal except for two dreams that I truly believe are important for now.

Dream 1 description begins...

My older daughter, now turned age 15, and I were looking through a vacant show home. This home was impressive and had many features. The entire interior was white, including white furniture, white stone floors, white cabinets and white walls.

Now, this was quite impressive to me as the most difficult homes to design are modern, monochromatic homes that are all in one color. However, all white is especially impressive as it is the most difficult to pull off properly. The primary reason for this is that the color white is void of pigment.

Different shades of white occur because different surfaces react to white differently. For example, there is often some pigmentation based even on the bleaching of the lamb's wool used to apply the paint. Naturally, especially with oils, it must be bleached to achieve the whitest white.

As my daughter and I were finishing up our tour of this house, my attention was directed to a small washroom. While this washroom was not small to me personally, it seemed quite small compared to the overall size of this massive house. We found it odd that this particular washroom was in an octagonal shape.

There were other features that also made this washroom seem extremely unusual to me. For example, the room itself was free floating and nothing, no walls, was connected to it as it stood alone.

Overall, it was exactly eight feet from one parallel wall to the other. At the very top of four of the walls, there appeared to be windows maybe two inches high and about eight inches wide.

Not only that, but this room somehow seemed to be much more than simply a washroom. I became quite curious for answers and looked around and found a man who had worked on the house. I asked him to explain what this washroom really was.

Worker: "Oh, I see you found the 'hidden room'."

Me: "I did not realize that it was hidden."

Worker: "Here, come let me walk you around the outside."

He guided me and my daughter around the outside of this room. Sure enough, the exterior was nondescript and not easy to spot because the rest of the house seemed more attention grabbing. From the exterior, it simply looked like gallery walls.

The windows on the outside of this room were each situated above some artwork. As there was a massive light coming from these windows that was redirected as a light source, like gallery lighting for the art, they blended in seamlessly. The entire exterior of this 'washroom' was so fascinating that the fact that this room even existed was lost.

Me: "Why is there a refrigerator and a stove with a microwave in there?"

Worker: "You still do not know what this is." He smiled. "Come on in and let me show you the features."

As we walked in, the door automatically shut behind us. He then pressed some buttons on a panel and the windows were instantly blocked. We noticed that anything from the outside was now kept from coming within. I also noticed that the writing on one of panels above the keyboard read, 'All is clear, safe to exit.'

Worker: "Now, this is a 'safe room'."

Me: "Do you mean a 'panic room'?"

Worker: "Well, if you are in here, there is no need for panic or worries. In here, the occupant has everything they could need."

Me: "Did the home owner that built this house also design this room?"

Worker: "Yes. I have a message for you from God."

"Come into His Room. He has provided for you everything you need. What is not here, just ask and you will receive it. Do not worry."

Me: I looked around. "Clearly, everything is in order. It is good to know that this is here."

Worker: "You must understand that He will provide for your every need and that He has built this for you."

Me: "What about the rest of my family and friends?"

Worker: "Well, you have this elaborate show home built by God under His direction, so invite them." He then light-heartedly laughed and added.

“Obviously this is meant to be a ‘spiritual’ invitation and not a literal invitation into your house!” My daughter and I both laughed with him.

My daughter: Smiling. “Okay, but what about phones or televisions?”

Worker: Laughing. “God knows your desires, the desires of your heart. You are welcome to call on others, but just do not give them your comings and goings as information is power and lends tools to those whose path is your destruction. Now, rejoice as God has built you a house and a safe inner room with everything that you need!”

Dream 2 description begins...

I was vacationing with my family in the Pebble Beach, Carmel, California area. We were staying at a resort which was extremely high-end and way out of the realm of our current ability to afford such extravagance.

While we were there enjoying our arrival, we discovered all the accommodations of our surroundings. We had arrived quite late on a Saturday evening, so it was not early enough to sightsee in town or dine in the hotel dining room. Instead, we settled into our rooms and ordered some room service.

When we woke up on Sunday morning, we were all very excited about having breakfast in town and seeing this area that we had heard so much about. The kids were particularly excited as I had shared stories about this area from my childhood.

As we were preparing to leave the lobby to go outside, a concerned looking concierge stopped us.

Concierge: “There has been a problem in the town and we are advising guests to remain in the confines of the resort until it is safe to go into town. Several areas were washed out overnight.”

Me: “How can this be as it is sunny and beautiful outside?”

Concierge: “Yes, I know, but this all happened last night as you slept.”

He then showed us a small area to one side of the road leading into town. It was completely gone with only a sidewalk to walk into the area.

Concierge: "I know you were expecting to dine in town, but please enjoy our amenities here first as you are safe here. You are not stranded and you can leave to the north or to the south as these roads are clear. However, you will not be safe if you travel east." I could tell by his tone that this was a stern warning not to go east.

The concierge then walked us to the banquet room and dining area where a '5-star' banquet brunch buffet was waiting for us. Everything imaginable was there to eat, all prepared by world-renowned chefs.

I instinctively looked up at the corners of the ceiling to look for mold or signs of mold, but saw none. I smiled to myself about doing this. Some may recall from an earlier dream that this was a sign of danger and for us to flee, but any mold was absent here.

We then saw that this buffet actually encompassed three separate rooms as there were many guests eating here. We decided to stay at the resort and enjoyed the safety of being there. We later found out that the road going to the east was never cleared for travel into this beautiful, or once beautiful, little town.

Father, thank You for the mystery of these dreams! Please reveal to me what, if anything, You are requiring of me.

Just a couple of minutes ago, I loaded some clothes into my washing machine. My two sons, who had been at a retreat, were standing in the kitchen with some incredible news of a miracle. However, before saying what this miracle is, some background is required...

My youngest son had been asking me for a particular game, but I told him that things were tight right now and that entertainment expenses, such as movies and games, would now have to wait. I saw discouragement in my son's face, but he understood. I tried to encourage him.

Me: "If God grants a miracle overnight somehow, then this could change. Why don't all of you pray as we could all use some of your prayers right about now."

He could tell that I was firm and would not bend on this. Well, apparently my sons later actually did pray together for a miracle. They did not have to wait long for this miracle to happen! Now, here is even more background on this!

Earlier that day, my eldest son had looked everywhere in his dresser drawers for money for this game for my younger son as he often leaves money there on occasion. He had thought by some chance he had overlooked some birthday money and did a thorough search. He could not find any money there at all.

He told us that he checked behind the drawers, to the sides, the bottom and even the top just in case. He finally gave up the search and, just before bed, he prayed for a miracle along with my other sons.

However, after praying and without any of my other sons knowing, he added a prayer by putting a secret fleece out to the Lord for a specific and divine miracle. Well, guess what? His secret fleece made in prayer had been answered.

In the morning and upon waking, he opened the drawer that he had already thoroughly searched for money just the night before and there, lying flat and right in plain sight, was a crisp brand new $50 bill. He ran and told the boys and they were all so excited when they found this out.

My eldest son then generously gave this $50 bill to my youngest son for the game that he had wanted just as he told the Lord He would do if this fleece was granted. This was a huge moment for all of them, but also gave all of us such a huge boost. This was like a beautiful island in the middle of our current ocean of troubles!

Thank You, Father, for this amazing faith builder! My kids really needed this sign much more than the game – smiles. Father, You are so amazing and I love Your works. You are awesome in all that You do!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was on God's overlook again and noticed that it was still sunrise. The colors were even more vibrant than the last time I was here. The air was fragrant and had a smell of wood smoke and spices.

I cannot fully describe this, but there was also a slight smell of something like white ginger and nutmeg with the wood smoke. It was wonderful and I speculated that this smell might be from a mixture of different flowers and trees.

As I looked down upon the meadows by the River of Life, I saw animals grazing and drinking. I saw two horses walk to the base of a fruit tree where one of the horses appeared to call down some fruit to the ground so that they could eat.

Me: "Either the animals here can think something and receive food or, God, did You just know what they needed in advance and brought them fruit from the tree?"

The River of Life appeared to be illuminated from below by the river bed itself. In design, we would call this type of lighting 'ambient lighting'. I suddenly recalled that the incredible opal countertop that was three to four inches thick in the teenager's condo in the City of God also had this ambient lighting from below somehow.

I should note that the countertop in this condo was simply one of the most stunning countertops, but really made of solid rock, that I had ever seen in my life. The value of this countertop in earthly dollars would be priceless and far beyond our understanding.

Amazingly, Heaven is always like this, but there is never any greed or envy and no theft or jealousy. All is so wonderful here that we are all truly happy for another person's talents or gifts.

I looked over to the bubbling spring and there, next to it, was the beautiful little engraved confit pot. I went over to pick it up and, when I did, the water flowed right into it again. I laughed and took a very long drink.

I felt so much better after drinking this water that I went to sit down. However, the very moment that I sat down, I felt a tap on my shoulder. I turned and it was Uriel and he was smiling at me.

Me: "Uriel, where did you come from? I did not hear you or see you."

Uriel: Laughing. "Well, I could have come to you with the sound of the trumpet or with a thunderous roar, but this would have frightened you. Instead, I came at just the right time and in just the perfect way, sent by the Lord Himself. Erin, the King is in the field. Are you ready to see Him?"

Just as he began to turn away from me toward the horse after he said the word 'ready', I was somehow instantly already on his horse.

Uriel: Laughing. "Okay then, Erin, it is time to fly."

Without even a thought or action required, we had suddenly taken flight and were flying directly east over the Valley of Blessing. The Golden City of God was in the far distance and was truly an incredible sight to see. He took me directly to the fields today.

There, and in the distance amongst the lilies, I could see Jesus waving at us. After we landed, I thanked Uriel, kissed his horse on the nose and I ran to Jesus as fast as I could. As I ran, I noticed that the lilies were even more fragrant than normal. Jesus had His arms open with a big smile. I ran into His arms, hugged Him and held Him tight.

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, this is quite a hug."

Me: "Lord, I am just so thankful for You, so incredibly thankful. When I think of all that God has done from the beginning to the end, I am in such awe. Thank You also for the sign and the answer to my son's prayers."

Jesus: Laughing. "You are welcome. Now, come with Me and we will review some of the items that I have shown you recently."

He took my hand and walked me to the area south of the lilies with the seven pools.

Me: "This is a mystery to me, Lord."

Jesus: "Why? Some day you will remember this and say, 'Ah yes, the Lord spoke of this.' It will be confirmed and will be illuminated from Me. Now, you have much anxiety."

Me: "Yes, Lord, please forgive me. Even though You have said 'as it is written, be anxious for nothing', well, how can I not be? The world is at a tipping point and I see trouble coming.

"I have a family who needs me to be well, but I see now that my illness seems to be returning. Do I remain patient for my healing or should I now simply accept my limitations? Lord, I feel like I will need to plan for this soon."

Jesus: "Erin, Noah was called to build the ark. He was then called to take his family and every animal onto the boat and prepare. Noah was not an 'ark builder', but was still called for this. As he was mocked by the enemy constantly for his actions, do you not believe that he was also anxious? How about when the rains came and the water rose?"

"Now, Erin, I have sent you the two dreams that you wrote about today, but do you know why I sent these?"

Me: "Lord, while I know that You had sent these two dreams, I am now afraid and worried that I might have accidentally misspoke or wrote something incorrectly. Also, what if I sinned during my anger and hurt someone's feelings?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, these two dreams were to show you that I have and will provide for you. Even when trouble surrounds you, the ground shakes, people are in an uproar, floods, fires, storms, and winds come, and even wars, I am there with you in the midst of this. During this time, you will think a thought or 'thing' and ask for a need and, before you make a movement, it shall be done. You are learning to trust Me that I will not forsake you.

"Now, things are soon to change, but do not be discouraged at first when all seems at a loss. Out of the ashes, a glimmer of light comes. I AM Who I say I AM. You are hated because of Me. Judgement is coming upon the land, so you must pray."

Me: "Lord, I am worried for the nation and nations."

Jesus: "Do not be. You have only to keep an eye on the one appointed to divide and deceive Israel. Whoever he is in support of is a fool of his.

However, I give wisdom to those who seek it and it is a wise man that comes to Me for discernment.

“Erin, many men will get stuck and refuse, from a prideful position, to go a direction of righteousness because of man. If any man asks for wisdom, let him come to Me and ask. However, when given the answer, do as you are instructed and do not hesitate.

“Now, your recent anger was warranted as you stood up against a flagrant wrong. Although your voice was raised, you did not lose control. You must stand as I am your solid rock and foundation and I will keep you steady.

“Erin, did you notice that this enemy coaxed you to her ground and away from your foundation? I was not in My Father’s House when being tried. I said nothing but truth and even then I was convicted. You spoke truth, but you did so in their court of popular opinion. Based on who you are in Me, their judgement made you the guilty party.

“Do not worry and give them to Me as you are to no longer deal with those who want to destroy you. They will be a constant source of struggle, so do not engage them, understand?

Me: “Yes, Lord, I am sorry.”

Jesus: Smiling. “Do not be as this was a good lesson in what you are capable of. No one was harmed...” He then laughed. “...although I do know that you had wanted to call down fire.”

Me: “Yes, Lord, I did.”

Jesus: “Remember, keep your vessels ready for Me to fill you with the water of life. I will satisfy your thirst, but allow Me to fill you.”

Me: “Yes, Lord, I am ready.”

Jesus: “I know, Erin, I know. There is a change coming and it will bless you greatly and many will be amazed. I am about to do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told.

“Now, at night, thank Me for your daily provision and, in the morning, thank Me for the coming day. I am with you, so do not worry or be afraid and I have called angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways. However, this is not just for you, but also for your family and friends.”

Me: “Thank You, Lord, I love You. I love You.”

Jesus: “I love you too.”

Dream 223 – Jesus, Uriel and Diamonds in the Midst of Lawlessness

Received Sunday, November 6, 2016

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for Your promises.

Dream 1 description begins...

I saw two massive tectonic plates moving. The area was hot in the center of these plates. I saw a crystal of some sort. These massive plates caused great pressure over a long period of time.

I then saw the area shake and something like steam shot up from below. This was followed by hot boiling water, then by mud and finally by burning molten rock. The entire area shook for a long time, starting with one area, then another area and so on.

I watched as mountains disintegrated and fell, with debris rolling down. I saw rocks shooting up into the air. I then viewed the area from above and below and I saw such horror. I saw massive homes and massive properties crumbling as the magnitude of this event was something that no human could adequately prepare for.

This horrified me and sickened my stomach. I was left feeling helpless as there was nothing I could do. As far as my eyes could see, there was nothing left built by human hands which stood.

Dream 1 description ends...

I have been troubled by what I have seen, Father. The pressure and movement under the ground's surface was building. There was no warning, yet there had been many warnings.

Father, I do not know if we will be here on Earth when this occurs. I just know that the entire area erupted, with one land mass after another shaking and blowing their tops as if they were bottle caps. The shaking came from the south, but then moved northward.

Dream 2 description begins...

Our household was packing to get ready for a trip, but we could take very little with us. Each of us started with larger amounts to take, but we soon realized that we did not need most of it.

We decided collectively to take mostly water instead and each of us filled different empty containers with water. We took very little food.

While we were excited to leave, we were also unsure of where our destination was. Our destination was to be a surprise, which made packing properly impossible. We were unable to prepare other than bringing water.

Dream 2 description over...

Dream 3 description begins...

I was walking my dogs along a dry river bed. I had walked them here before, but this time I saw precious gems in the sharp fragments of slate. The entire riverbed was dark grey except for these gems that had surfaced. I collected as many gems as I could.

I found rubies, emeralds, diamonds, topaz and on and on. I carried all that I could and knew that I would come back later for more. I had walked this dry river bed so many times before, but somehow I had never noticed these treasures before this.

Dream 3 description over...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was up on God's overlook above His beautiful valley and noticed that it was yet again at sunrise. As I looked around, I saw an incredible amount of birds flying in the sky overhead. These birds sang in unison and all with praises to God in Heaven.

There were so many different varieties, all in different formations. One variety even had a luminescent underbelly that would reflect the sunrise in different ways whenever they turned in different directions.

I saw the bubbling spring ahead of me, along with the little engraved confit pot sitting on the rock next to it. I noticed that the small vessel was already filled with water from the spring, so I quickly drank this refreshing water that had come from the River of Life.

I then sat on the bench overlooking the valley. The sun gave off such a beautiful warm pink light that every part of the valley was brilliant from its reflection.

I then noticed something incredibly beautiful. The River of Life was clear, like glaciated water colored a light blue green, but it was now illuminated from below. From my vantage point, I could see fish of every color, as well as precious gems of every color, reflecting the light of the sun.

However, it was now even much more than this. The very ground of God was living and illuminated with light from below. I could feel my hands instinctively rise in prayer and I started to praise and worship our Father Who created all of this:

Me: "Dear Father, You are so amazing. Your works are so beautiful here. Help me describe the indescribable beauty here. Everything here is abundant and living. Even the sleeping tree, vine or flower is beautiful and does not look dead. There is no sense of death or loss here, only the promise of new and everlasting life.

"I am so thankful for all that You reveal to me. I long for this beautiful Home that You have prepared, but, more than anything, thank You for Your glorious love. I adore You. In Jesus' Name, please bring more of those who are lost Home to You."

As I finished this prayer, I felt a hand on my shoulder. I turned to see Uriel standing there and he was smiling at me.

Uriel: "The King is in the field and requests your presence."

Me: "Yes, I am ready. I have questions."

As I looked at Uriel, I saw that he had a large sword strapped onto his side.

Me: "Uriel, why would you need a sword here in Heaven?"

Uriel: "I do not need it here, but the times are changing, Erin, and the war is coming. God is preparing His angels."

I then went to the Scriptures as I thought that perhaps this war had already happened in the past as per Rev.12:7. Was this a different war?

Me: "Uriel, what is about to happen?"

Uriel: "Erin, I am under God's command and I answer to Him. I have a regiment and legion of angels under me. My brothers also have divisions under them. The Courts in Heaven are soon to close momentarily as the testimonies of the saints have been heard by God and He has heard enough from the accuser.

"Now, go to the King. I will take you to Him. I am the angel appointed to bring you in preparation before the King."

I began to cry and my mouth quivered as I tried to speak. I looked over to Uriel's horse and he had armor covering his beautiful mane and head, along with his legs. The horse's hooves were like burnished bronze and reinforced.

I was in fear as I remembered the battles that I had once saw a few years back with angels in Heaven against the armies of hell. These battles had been a large focus in my earlier dreams.

Uriel: Sympathetically. "Erin, do not be afraid for greater are we than they in numbers. We are stronger in power and might and God on the Throne has commanded and prepared us for these times."

Me: "I thought there was more time?"

Uriel: "Erin, have you ever felt afraid when I take you from here into God's presence?"

Me: "Well, in the beginning, you were quite serious and you did not smile much."

Uriel: Laughing. "Yes, Erin, I have accompanied you to God many times. I have learned about you and come to enjoy the wonder you express like a child. As an angel, I only see that which God allows. I do as God instructs as I am a worker.

"I have seen many things and have witnessed the blaspheming of God, the angels and Heaven over the course of many centuries. I have stood with a flaming sword of fire against those who have turned their faces against God."

Me: "Uriel, I came across a site on the web of a woman who claims to channel you."

Uriel: "Do not listen to anyone who claims to have relationships with angels from Heaven. We send messages from God only and we are not saviors. We do not do anything commanded by man, but only by God.

"These are lies sent from other angels. Those who call upon angels rather than God are no different than the people who call upon spirits of the dead. Erin, have nothing to do with them."

Me: "I know, Uriel, I am sorry."

Uriel: "People who worship anything other than God are soon to be in awe at God's power and might. Yet even so, they will believe it is by man's or another's power. You are in a time of lawlessness where many will turn from God."

Me: "I think this has already happened."

Uriel: "Come, Erin, the King is waiting. He will answer your questions with greater authority. Are you ready?"

Me: "Yes."

Before I knew it, we were once again in flight. We flew east towards the sunrise. Uriel was in full armor and I noticed that his massive sword was around eight feet long.

As I looked out over God's valley, I saw that we were flying higher than normal. From this height, I had a bird's eye view of the River of Life as we circled south and back up north into the Valley of Blessings.

As we flew over the field of lilies, I saw Jesus smiling and waving at us. As soon as we landed, I thanked Uriel and kissed the nose of Uriel's horse. As Uriel took off in flight, I turned and ran as fast as I could straight into the open arms of Jesus. He hugged me.

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, you have questions today."

Me: "Yes, Lord, every day, but this is troubling."

Jesus: "Come, let us walk together."

He took my hand and we walked through several fragrant fields of flowers on the way to the banks of the seven pools. We sat down on the lower pool and put our feet in the clear water.

Jesus: "Erin, though changes are coming, I have not brought you this far just to lose you to the world or something else. I showed you long ago the ring of fire and this is like a chain soon to break and release fire. You were only viewing this from a distance in the Spirit and not in your flesh, but this time you witnessed even more."

Me: "Yes, Lord. I witnessed massive destruction and homes breaking up and burning. Many of these were homes that people had worked for their entire lives."

Jesus: "There will be warnings before this time, Erin. Shaking will begin prior to this, like shifting and the separation of finer particles from heavier things."

Just then, I saw a massive screen sifting debris from gold.

Me: "Oh, are You hunting for gold?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, this is a type of parable. I do not desire and seek gold, but only hearts of gold refined in the furnace seven times." (1Peter 1:7) He turned and smiled at me.

"Erin, you are witnessing those who serve the world and those who prefer what the world offers. You are witnessing massive homes sacrificed to the god of the world. You have experienced those who claim to hear from Me oppress the poor by making them feel that they have been disobedient and must pay money for blessings."

Me: "Yes, Lord, the prosperity gospel makes me sick as it is not right."

Jesus: "Erin, I see everything done in secret and I bless the giver, the poor in spirit, and I have prepared a place for them here. The man who deceives, well, not everyone who says to Me, 'Lord, Lord', will enter the Kingdom of Heaven, but the one who does the Will of My Father in Heaven.

"On this day, many will say to Me, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in Your Name, cast out demons in Your Name, and do many mighty works in Your Name?' And then, will I declare to them, 'I never knew you; depart from Me, you workers of lawlessness.'" (Matthew 7: 21-23)

Me: "I recently read a story about a pastor who received a massive offering based on something he claimed to hear from You. This pastor said that people who give less than what You have called them to, or even more than You have called them to, will not be blessed for their offering and that You will not give to them a 'hundred fold return' as a result."

Jesus: "Hmm, where is it written that I punish those who give in My Name? However, I will punish those who oppress the poor. I look to the heart of the giver and also the receiver.

"For, by My Words, 'give and it will be given to you. A good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, will be put into your lap; for with the measure you give will be the measure given back.'" (Luke 6: 37-38)

"Erin, I do not walking around with a punishing rod. Is this how you portray Me based on our time together?"

Me: "Oh no, Lord, You are not like this at all. However, I am sometimes in fear of doing the wrong thing at times."

Jesus: "I did not come only for the perfect. Erin, I came for you knowing that you were imperfect, but I also see something in you that is priceless to Me."

Just then, Jesus showed me a piece of black rock, like carbon or flint. He closed His fist and tightened it. I then saw something like fire and lightning come out of Jesus' hand. I was in awe of what I was witnessing. When the fire was removed, His hand opened and inside was a perfectly cut multi-faceted diamond.

Me: "It is hard to believe that Your hand can be so strong, yet so tender."

Jesus: Smiling. "It is hard to believe that you were once like coal and that now you are like this diamond to Me."

Me: Crying. "Lord, I do not know why I have worth to You. This is a mystery to me, but I am thankful, so very thankful."

Jesus: "Erin, you will soon witness the time of lawlessness accelerate. You will now see the opposite of the Fruits of the Spirit in full display. Now there will be deception unlike anything the world has experienced before and there will be an uptick in false prophecy.

"There will be many who claim I sent them, but I did not. You have only to pray for discernment and immediately I will answer you: There will be two walls, with one wall meant for good and one wall meant for evil."

Me: "What do You mean by 'two walls'?"

Just then, I saw two sides on opposite sides of two walls. One side stood for God and was under God and the other side was against God. These two walls were next to each other and separated the two sides. There was a dry river bed in the middle of these two walls.

I saw that several people had gathered there. While these people were not angels, they definitely seemed like warriors. They were there in the Spirit and had been strengthened by God.

These people then walked in the dry river bed that went around the enemy wall. They had walked around the enemy wall a total of seven times when the enemy wall suddenly came down, along with the other wall. When both of these walls collapsed, war then broke out.

Me: "I do not understand what You have shown me, Lord."

Jesus: "Erin, you will hold living water and will walk along the dry river bed with others. You have been covered with My covenant and by My blood. You are a vessel and a worker. You will pour out refreshing water to those who thirst. The enemy will not be able to stand against you as I have strengthened you."

Me: "When will this be, Lord? Please heal me as my cancer seems like it may have come back. Please, Lord, grant us this strength. I no longer want to be afraid of what has come against me. You said my troubles would be removed in a single day. Please, Lord, can You make this today?" I was now in tears as I spoke to Him.

Jesus: "I know your pain, Erin. I know what has happened and I have commanded angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways. I will never leave you or forsake you. Erin, you will be cared for. I love you."

Me: Crying. "You gave me Psalm 91 on my heart for just this time. Lord, please do not let anything happen to Uriel or his horse."

Jesus: Smiling and laughing. "Erin, the enemy shudders at the presence of Uriel and those commanded by God. There is nothing beyond My Father. I have been sent to bind up the broken hearted and give liberty to captives and the opening of prison to them that are bound (Isaiah 61). I will also heal the wounds of those broken and meek in Spirit."

Me: "I do not fully understand."

Jesus: "Did I not save you from the fowler's snare and deliver you to a safe place? Did I not give you comforting words?" I suddenly saw Psalm 45 written on a page. "Did I not take you and your children from the enemies who pursued you to the place prepared for you?"

"Would I then show you where you will one day reside only to keep this hidden like a light under a bowl? Instead, do you not put your lamp on a stand to light up the room for everyone to see? (Luke 8:16, Matthew 5:15)

"Well, Erin, I did not take you this far to extinguish your lamp so no one sees it. Be patient and take heart as I am about to do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told." He smiled.

Me: "I love You, Lord."

Jesus: "I love you too, both here and there."

He turned and put the beautiful faceted diamond in the palm of my hand. I was in awe.

Jesus: "If I can do this with you, then am I not capable to do the same with others and even send reinforcements to Uriel? Now do not worry." He smiled.

Day 6 of the Fast

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for Your amazing works as there is nothing beyond or over You. You control all things and everywhere that my feet step. You have created and own everything we have here and every dwelling. You own everything and it is all Yours.

You therefore are the determiner of our ownership or 'worth'-ship. So we in turn thank You in great 'worth'-ship, or worship, to You in all that we do. You determine the heart of a man worthy or their worthiness.

To some, You give much, and to others, You give very little. However, no matter what, You give us the portion that You determine. You do this because You understand what we are able or capable to accomplish under Your direction.

You measure not by our works or by our accomplishments, but by our ability to yield to Your instructions. Because I am the clay and You are the Potter, I have no right to question how You shape me. As a lump of clay, can I really say anything at all (Isaiah 45:9)?

The best I can hope for is that You, God, would find me pliable to shape into a worthy vessel. After You are finished with me, I pray I still hold everything You fill me with, living water, and that I have no cracks or leaks.

I pray that I also have luster after all of these firings and that I show no signs of wear to You, but only beauty. Oh Father, I pray that You find me useful for Your glory.

When I woke up this morning after an incredibly clear series of dreams, I saw on my earthquake feed that Christchurch, New Zealand had just experienced a 7.8 earthquake at 12:02am on November 14th, 2016. This was just after midnight their time as they are ahead of us by many hours.

Father, there was then also a tsunami, so please protect all of the people there. There are so many who love You, Father. How horrifying it would be to awaken to this shaking. When I was a child in the San Francisco Bay area, for some reason most of the earthquakes occurred in the second and third watches of the night.

Father, there is nothing like waking up to a shaking bed and moving furniture. For anyone who has experienced this, it is absolutely terrifying. Father, we are so small and easily shaken, so please protect us.

Last night, I had two very distinct dreams...

Dream 1 description begins...

An angel had taken me to a ridge across from a very large mountain. There was nothing around it but a void of white space. On the very top of the mountain was a very large tree. It was incredibly old and wide spread.

The lower half of the tree was deeply rooted in the top of the mountain. The tree had beautiful structure and was healthy. The growth was incredibly abundant, with large fruit on its branches. The mountain was strong, the tree was healthy and water flowed from the roots.

Then the angel waved his arm and the entire left side of the tree, including the roots, the river and the mountain, all dried up and broke away, thereby splitting.

When the angel wave his arm again, I suddenly woke up from the dream.

Dream 1 description over...

As I lay awake, I noticed that it was around 4am when I heard the voice of Jesus.

Jesus: "Erin, the divide will grow as the time is now."

I got out of bed and took a drink of water. I then went back to sleep and had another dream.

Dream 2 description begins...

I was carrying something up a number of flights of stairs. However, I was carrying a load wider than the stairs themselves.

After I struggled up the first flight of stairs, I suddenly recognized something so obvious and simple. I turned the load the other direction as my load or massive box was actually rectangular in shape.

The load also had a handle on the long side, so I thought I was supposed to carry it one way. However, when I stopped and turned the load the better and different direction, I realized that God had also provided a handle on the shorter side.

I did not think that there would be more than one handle, but this made it that I could now easily take this up the stairs. When I reached the top of the stairs, I was now in a type of field. This field was all grass-like turf and man-made. In the middle of this meadow was a river. However, the water in this river was black and murky.

The river had no bank as the man-made grass ran over it, allowing only a narrow channel of about four feet for me to swim. While I did not want to swim in this water, I knew that God would protect me as I did.

As I began to swim, I realized that there was no soil and no bottom to this black water. I was not afraid as I knew that God was protecting me. As I swam, I was careful to keep my head above water at first. I also noticed that I barely made a ripple in the water.

As the Lord kept me moving, I began to gain speed even though I was clearly moving against the current. The water was lukewarm, but still somehow uncomfortable as I had wanted it to be either cooler or warmer. I did not know why I felt this way though.

I then heard the voice of God say, "Stand!" I then stood and my feet were now in the muck on the bed of the river with my head still above the water. I then heard the Lord say, "Swim a bit longer!"

I kept my eyes above the water and God made it so that I could somehow breathe under the water. However, instead of tasting bitterness as I breathed, since this water was both putrid and bitter to smell and taste, God had made it instead taste sweet for me.

I then noticed that there were worms swimming towards me, but that they were barely able to swim. I also noticed that they had no ground or soil to bury themselves in and that there were many of them. I then stood and began to pick them up out of the black water to place them onto the man-made turf.

I then realized why they were in the water to begin with. These worms had been hoping to find soil as the man-made land here was not pliable.

The worms were unable to find soil to go into as whatever land was there was hard and impenetrable.

Dream 2 description over...

Father, thank You for giving me both of these clear dreams. I am not sure what they mean, but I trust that You will reveal that which You desire me to know.

We have been having a difficult time here and You spoke to me several times last week about being 'unfriended'. I distinctly heard You say the word, 'unfriended' to me a few times.

When I later spoke to my kids about their social media accounts, I found out that a few of them had just been unfriended by family members. While this was not necessarily that much of a surprise, it was still hard to believe what it was caused by.

Father, this is a case of my close family turning on us and I was in shock. I am also unsure if I should do anything about it other than let time separate us. Since many miles already separate us, perhaps time will heal.

To me, to be 'unfriended' means that a line has been drawn to separate enemies from friends. I was raised to believe that it is okay to agree to disagree, but to also respect each other's rights to their own opinions.

But now to 'unfriend' someone else for so very little? Really? Wow! While my sons were not affected by this, I was. Father, please help me and please protect us against the waves of trouble coming.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was on a path surrounded by trees and there in front of me was the Lord. He was enthroned in the light of the sun and it was a light unlike anything I had ever seen before. He was standing with open arms, so I ran to Him and embraced Him.

I felt small, like a child, and completely encased with a love eternal surrounding me. As He held me, I could hear His beating heart. It was thunderous and strong and very different from the sound of an ordinary human heart. I started to cry as I listened.

Jesus: "Erin, I have heard your cries. 'I AM that I AM.'"

Me: "Hayah! You are Hayah!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin."

Me: "I am afraid, Lord, and I am in fear."

Jesus: "Do not be, Erin, as I called you to Me. Since I called you for a purpose, would I not also equip you for the purpose in which I called you?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, but why are You so bright right now? Can I have some of Your light in me to share with others?"

Jesus: "You already have this, but I will give you even more to generate. Now, tonight is a sign for you in the Heavens."

Me: "Do you mean the 'Super Moon', Lord? Lord, the moon appeared in New Zealand and was followed by 'King Tides' and flooding. Then the earthquake and tsunami came, as well as the aftershocks."

Jesus: "Then perhaps this is like a parable for what is to come. Erin, whether it is or not, understand that 'I AM that I AM.'"

I thought on this as I gazed up at Jesus' face. He was beautiful and like the sun. He had a corona of light around Him and the corona was like the luminosity of a pearl, yet magnified many times. His smile was perfect, His eyes were a light blue green and His skin was tan.

He was so bright that I could barely behold Him with my eyes, so I went down with my head to the ground. With my right hand, I held onto His robe and I placed my left hand onto His foot.

Me: "Oh thank You, Lord, thank You for this moment with You. Please reflect Your light and goodness upon me as You are so glorious. I cannot thank You enough for all that You have done for me and my children and for everything."

Jesus: "Erin, it is not over." He bent down and laid His hands on the top of my head. "I have you. I am the Potter and you are the clay. I have shaped you and My Spirit is in you. I have shown you mysteries. Now, what have I shown you which you cannot let go of?"

Me: "I have seen Your resurrection. It was after the Sabbath and at dawn on the first day of the week. Both Mary's had went to the tomb. There was a great earthquake and an angel descended (Matthew 28:1). It seems like You will raise those asleep. Lord, could You heal my sons? Oh please, Lord."

Jesus: He smiled and brought me to my feet. "Erin, I will equip you with all that you need and I am with you."

Me: "Lord, I keep seeing graves opening. What is this? It is like Matthew 27:51-53."

Jesus: "Erin, the dream you had of the tree on the top of the mountain is similar to the veil of the temple. It was torn in two from top to bottom. The Earth quaked and the rocks split. Tombs broke open, and the bodies of many saints who had fallen asleep were raised.

"There were many miracles, but no one likes to discuss this one, the waking up of those who were asleep. Did they not then go into the city and appear to many? Did people not stand in horror and say, 'You are supposed to be dead, what are you doing here?'

"Well, now is no different as those asleep will awaken, but not like you think. Wake up, oh sleeper, rise from the dead and I will shine upon you (Ephesians 5:14). I have given a spirit of slumber, eyes that should not see, and ears that they should not hear unto this day (Romans 11:8).

"For it is also written, 'For I have poured out upon you the Spirit of deep sleep and hath closed your eyes: the prophets and your leaders, the seers hath I covered.' (Isaiah 29)"

Me: "Lord, is this us or Israel or both?"

Jesus: "Erin, love is the fulfillment of the law. Do this understanding the occasion. The hour has come for you to wake up from your slumber and your salvation is nearer now than at any other time (Romans 13:11-12).

“The night is nearly over, the day has drawn near. God is in her, she will not fall. I will help you at the break of day (Psalm 46:5). Now, Erin, rejoice, rejoice, for I am with You.” He hugged me.

Dream 225 – The Impossible

Received Sunday, November 20, 2016

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for the safety of our household. Thank You for Your protection in times of trouble. I cannot thank You enough from beginning to end for all that You have done. Though I am not healed and our household is barely sustained, I look to You, Father, as, without You, we are truly nothing. I love You!

I did not know You, but You called out to me. When I did not know Your Voice, You became such a force in my life that I had no choice but to listen to You. When I finally surrendered my life to You, it still was not enough.

You then called me through the fire of punishing affliction. So much so and so ridiculous were my troubles that my children and I became a curse to those around me and all those close to us hid their faces, avoiding us at every turn. When I think of the humiliation and pain of abasement, my heart literally hurts.

I feel sharp pains and, momentarily, grief overcomes me. Thank You, Father, for bringing me and my children out of the wilderness into this beautiful and safe place. I feel Your hand of protection over us in all that we do here.

I pray that this continues as this is 'Day 1197' from when You gave us, me and my children, very clear instructions and promises. Perhaps You might bless us on 'Day 1200' and release some of the fulfillments of these promises. Oh Father, this seems impossible, but You are the God of the Possible and the God of the Impossible.

So, Father, I give everything to You. As You know, we have been under severe attacks the last couple of months since opening the new website. I also give this to You, Father, as it is Yours, not mine.

I have been particularly downcast lately as I was hoping for some wonderful miracles this week. Instead, more troubles came and even worse than any of the previous weeks. So much so that, if I were to write everything down, and just the facts void of any emotion or story, no one would believe me. It is true though, all of it.

As just some of the background on this, there is a vacant lot of land next to us. When we first came here, I had prayed for this property. The property was for sale, but we had no ability to make an offer on it at the time.

Later, when it looked like this purchase was a possibility as there was a sale sign on the property, the Lord had me walk around the property and see the land the Lord was going to give to me. So I walked over it and prayed just as God had instructed me.

One day, I thought I would call the real estate agent just to see if the seller would be willing to take a contract on the property with monthly payment outside of the bank. When I phoned, the agent told me that the owner had already taken the property off the market two months ago and that she no longer represented the seller.

Two days later, the agent came and removed the 'For Sale' sign and I became quite disappointed. When this happened, I asked myself, 'Why then would the Lord even have me walk the property and tell me He was going to deliver this property that He had already declared would be mine?'

Well, the man who owns this property plans on building on it with his partner. He is a very large, tall, scary man with a bald head. He is some type of university professor and scholar and believes himself to be of much higher intelligence than all of the rest of us combined, both in our county and the next.

Well, I kid you not; the enemy now uses this man and his land to now torment me. I had later phoned him to see if he would be interested in selling the land to me and he told me that he and his partner were to be married and had plans to build there instead. He said he would let us know if anything changed, but that the answer was 'no'.

Of course I cried at this news as my devotional chair where I write and pray looks right over where they plan to build. In the last couple of months, and exactly every time I was with the Lord, the two of them seemed to always show up at their property, hold each other, mark off property lines and even point and stare at me.

On one day about a week ago, they had went there to chop wood and take photos of each other, as well as selfies together. My family could not believe how openly 'open' they were right in front of us as they knew we were eating dinner. As we closed our blinds, I felt sick to my stomach and have since been on my knees several times asking the Lord for a miracle.

Instead of asking for this property, because as of right now we are in no position to purchase it or are we even able to do many normal and basic things, I have just asked the Lord to instead bring a nice Christian family to the property to build instead. I simply cannot imagine enduring their constant display and mocking.

Well, with this as background, on Thursday night of this week, I had a dream that was unusual. Several people who I believe are demon possessed came against our household. Later, the Lord revealed that these people came against us, and not just in my dream, but had actually been coming against us in the natural all week as well.

Dream 1 description begins...

I was battling some known Wiccan teachers at the local school by standing up to them in a forceful and direct way. I told them to stop and turn from their ways because God would send curses upon them, followed by fire, if they refused.

This was something completely unlike what I would normally do, although I know that if God called me to do this, I am now capable of this scenario. In return, the women at the school called out curses on me. When they did, I felt a weight suddenly come over me and felt ill and dizzy.

I had three of my children in the car and I prayed for the Lord to get us home safely despite their curses. As we drove, the winds picked up and I could barely keep the car driving straight. I then saw dark entities appear and disappear all around us and my kids saw the same things that I did.

After driving a few miles, we finally made it to our neighborhood. At one point, I saw these entities appear as deer grazing, but then changing into their true evil forms. When we arrived at the house, all five children with me, I quickly locked up our home. I then went upstairs to lie down and pray as I felt extremely dizzy from their attacks:

“Dear Father, I am unable to do anything without You as I am no one. These things around us are greater than I am and I am powerless unless You decide to grant me the power to stand.”

I then heard howling winds coming against our home. As I worried about the sheer force of these winds, I asked the Lord a question in fervent prayer:

“Father, did You bring me this far just to destroy me now?”

I then felt prompted to look out the window again. When I did, I saw that the land owner and his husband were at their property next to us taking dirt samples. I was disturbed by this and continued to pray:

“Oh Lord, You delivered us to this safe place in the trees only to be overcome by the evil around us. Have You forgotten Your promises? You said my name was written on the palm of Your hand, yet are You going to now allow all that You have done to be destroyed by the evil around us in a single day?

“Lord, what about my children and their faith as their faith is now greater than mine? For the sake of me and all of them who love You, please, Father, help us.”

Just then, four large angels, each the height of our tower of 70 feet, surrounded our property and all of them had flaming swords. Their faces appeared like flames of burning fire, yet they still looked completely angelic and from Heaven.

While they were adorned in armor of bronze, they also had something on that was like an overcoat of white. They were somehow both beautiful and terrifying at the very same time. As I cried out to the Lord, suddenly the two angels at the southwest and northwest of the property faced towards these two men.

When the two angels did this, the men instantly dropped to their knees and begged and cried to be spared. I do not know what the angels declared to them, but I then heard a noise as both of these angels stepped out onto these men's property.

I soon could hear their screams as these huge, prideful men ran for their car and, with tires peeling, took off. When these four angels then gathered into this now empty field, hundreds of evil entities started coming down at them.

With swords now drawn, these angel cut down hundreds of these entities each. When they were finished doing battle, they went back to the four corners of our property to continue to guard us. As I looked at them, now standing stationary and on alert, they once again became invisible to my eyes.

While I knew that they remained around us, I could no longer see them standing there. I yelled to my kids to make sure everyone was okay and they were all in disbelief as they too had seen the entire battle play out. Together, we thanked God in 'shock and awe' for what He had done and will do, both from the beginning and to the end.

Dream 1 description over...

My battles continued when, on Friday night, my middle son was all set to see a movie with his friend and spend the night at his grandparent's house afterwards. He has been friends with this boy since we moved here. My son has been a good witness and friend to some very odd children.

Most of these children are also on the Autism spectrum like him, so they tend to tell my son that he is their best and only friend that they have. My son, in all his quirks, is very strong in his convictions of right and wrong and I am often amazed as I believe this is the work of the Holy Spirit in him.

We do not get cell service here at the house, so the kids use an app to text each other using our internet. At around 6:50pm, my daughter received a text telling us that my son needed us to pick him up after the movie gets out at 8:45pm. He said it is an emergency and that he refuses to get into the car with his friend's dad ever again.

While I am acquainted with the boy's mother and grandparents, I have never had any dealings with the boy's father as his parents are divorced.

My son had never done this before, so we told him we would drive in and pick him up at the theater right away.

My husband then texted my son to instruct him on what to tell them as to why he had to leave them. Based on this, my son then told them that there was a family emergency so that they would not be insulted by his quick exit from their plans for a sleepover.

As this theater is about a 30 minute drive one way, we decided to give ourselves time to make sure we were there early by leaving our house immediately. My husband then met my son, his friend and his friend's father in front of the theater.

He also informed them that we had an emergency that my son had to come back to the home for. His friend's father glared at my husband and seemed highly suspicious of all of this. To make matters worse, his friend looked sad and disappointed at the news.

When my husband, my son and I were safely in our car, my son explained all of what had just happened. To summarize, his friend's dad had taken the boys with him to what we believe was most likely a drug deal.

Not only that but, afterwards, this man then rolled down the window of the car, sat on the door outside the window and steered the vehicle with his leg, all the while screaming. This man had then crossed traffic dangerously and performed a host of several 'death defying stunts', all while driving a three-ton automobile.

I was so relieved to have my son safe in our car. I then became upset that this man would do such a thing. While at first I considered phoning the police, I felt a check in my Spirit about doing so and was reminded that there are several drug issues here.

As in pretty well any depressed economic region, there is drug usage and this area was no different. Instead of me and these kids becoming involved in this dangerous situation, I was to give all of it to God.

As instructed in my Spirit, I quickly gave this situation to God as I knew our involvement would possibly mean 'taking up a Cross' that God did not direct us to take up. I then prayed for protection for the boy and his family as clearly this father had already given himself over to his addiction fully.

I took comfort that his friend would somehow be safe and protected as the Lord had already showed me over a year ago that this boy would eventually be healed by the hands of my son by God. I then gave God all of my praises for the divine protection of my son that He had just displayed.

Thank You, Father! Thank You, Jesus, for delivering both my son and his friend home safely and without harm. You are the God of both the Possible AND the Impossible! Thank You for granting my son the wisdom to call us to come and get him.

Last night, I had another dream and this one was both tragic and miraculous. In this dream, I was once again left with no options and no help from anywhere or from anyone but You, Father. However, before I describe this dream, I have to give some background on our dog named 'Snigglet'.

We had purchased Snigglet back in December of 2012 from a man selling puppies, quite literally, out of his raincoat. Some may recall that I have told this story in the past about how I put a fleece out to God on this purchase of Snigglet. However, I will repeat this to refresh all of our memories on this.

When the kids had asked for me to purchase Snigglet after seeing her in this man's raincoat, I responded to them by saying that I had only a $100 left and that this was for Christmas gifts. I knew that this man had wanted several hundred dollars for each of his puppies, so him taking only a $100 seemed a very remote possibility.

I told the kids this and that, if they agreed to this, I would go by faith to the cash machine and draw out this money and that, if when we got back, he was still there and would take our miniscule offer, then I would agree to purchase this puppy in lieu of any other Christmas gifts for them.

While the kids quickly agreed to these conditions fully, I must admit that I really did not believe that this man would still be there or, if he was, that there was any way that he would actually accept my meagre $100 offer.

Well, fast forward, let's just say that Snigglet is now a much loved member of our household! She is a tiny Shiatsu Poodle or 'She-Poo' mix. She has gray fur and looks like a little lion or bear. She is sweet, innocent and quite simply the most loving little creature living under our roof.

Dream 2 description begins...

It was a beautiful and sunny day, so I decided to walk to town along a river promenade. I did not recognize the town, but it reminded me of the San Francisco Bay area park near the waterfront. On Saturdays and Sundays, there are artists and different booths with crafts for sale and it is a fun and festive place to be.

On my walk, my little dog, Snigglet, had decided to follow me. She walked behind me a few feet the entire time. As I was walking, I saw a large manhole in the middle of the sidewalk. The cover was gone and the water was filled to the top with black sewage water. I walked around the hole.

After a few more steps, I suddenly remembered that Snigglet was following me and I quickly looked behind me to see if she had walked around the hole too. I panicked as I no longer saw her there. I called for her as I ran to the open hole. I saw something in the hole for just a split second that might have been Snigglet, but then it was gone.

I immediately thought that perhaps she had tried to jump over the hole instead of walking around it and had accidentally fallen in. As I called out for help in a panic, I stuck my arm all the way into the black water in order to see if I could feel her.

The current of the water was very strong and was moving very quickly. I screamed out and asked if anyone had a flashlight, but no one answered. I looked around and stopped a passing park or city worker and explained my situation.

Me: "Sir, I will jump in the water to get her, but first I just want to know if there are any air pockets or places where she could be or if it is all flooded."

Man: "Lady, seriously? It has been ten minutes and passing. Your dog is dead and gone, so accept it and move on. You need to talk to a civil worker, but they don't come in until 8am tomorrow morning. It is Sunday, so no one will drop what they are doing to recover your dog's dead body."

I panicked even more and began to cry uncontrollably as my little dog hates water, hates having her feet wet and gets scared easily. To make matters even worse, she probably cannot even swim.

I went back to search in the black water some more, but I could not see a thing. I did not know what to do as the manhole down from the direction of the current was sealed and covered. I put my ear to the cover and could hear the violently rushing water.

As I listened for my dog, I started to hear whimpering, but quickly realized that this was just my imagination. Just in case it was not my imagination, I asked a man to help me take the cover off of this manhole.

Man: "The hole is sealed and can't be lifted off. Look, it even says that anyone tampering with this lid will be subject to arrest. I am sorry about your dog."

I was in tears when I decided to walk home. As I recounted my steps, I regretted that I had not stopped Snigglet from following me. I realized it was my fault as I had thought it to be cute that her hair was so bushy even on her face that she could barely see. She probably was not able to see properly and fell in the black water as a result.

Thoughts of what I was going to say to the children did not come easily. How was I going to tell my kids? I came up with a plan to wait until I called an official in the morning as she could have still somehow ended up in an underground landing with air. As I still had this faint hope, I decided to delay telling anyone about this horrible news.

Thankfully, not one person in our house had noticed that Snigglet was missing that night. When I contacted the official the next day, he told me that the water had been so high under the city that some manhole covers had even blown right off. He then said that there would be no chance at all of any animal or human surviving this.

He then informed me that it was a very good thing that I did not jump in after her as I would have surely lost my life as well. He then got the manhole location from me and told me that he would have it covered so that no other dog or even child could fall into the sewer again. I was grateful that he was both apologetic and kind about this.

When I got off the phone, I dropped to my knees and cried out to God:

"Father, my grief is great as I miss Snigglet. She was such a great little dog, always made us smile and brought us no trouble at all. She was innocent like a little lamb or baby animal and was so wonderful.

"Please, Lord, if she lived even for a few seconds, I pray that she was in the care of angels and not shaking as she does whenever she becomes scared. Father, I pray that one day I will see her again in Heaven. She was a gift and brought us so much joy. Thank You for the three years, almost four, that we had her."

I then stood up and went to where the kids were gathered in the basement. When I walked downstairs, my other dog Zoey was crying and pacing as she somehow already knew that Snigglet was gone.

I began to tell the kids about what had happened, but at first they were not listening. I had to repeat to them several times that Snigglet was gone before the news truly sunk in. As it did, I saw great distress come over all of their faces.

Son: "I'll find her. I'll jump in the water."

Me: "It's been almost 18 hours. It is impossible. It would be impossible for her to be alive."

Son: "No, mom, it's not impossible with God!"

As I turned to walk back up the stairs, I knew that this was going to deeply affect all of us for quite some time. My heart then grieved even more as I could now hear my daughters sobbing at the horrible news and trying to comfort each other.

However, and to my complete and utter amazement, as I rounded the wall of our steps, there was Snigglet standing there halfway up the stairs. I quickly ran to her, picked her up and held her tightly. To put it mildly, she looked like she had been through some major trouble.

As Snigglet looked up at me, her eyes seemed to say to me, 'I have seen things no one should ever have to see'. I then noticed that her fur was no longer grey, but more like a beautiful caramel color. When I yelled out the good news to the kids, they all cheered. I heard my son exclaim excitedly, "See, nothing is impossible with God, mom!"

Dream 2 description over...

Father, this was an incredibly real dream with such great detail. However, very few of my past dreams have been this emotionally draining. When I woke up, I truly felt as if I had just lived through this entire horrible experience. Needless to say, I was extremely glad to see Snigglet that morning, much to her delight.

Lord, it seems like I am in many similarly impossible situations right now and there are so many more soon to come at us. We face one battle after another, all with no visible end in sight. All I can do is look to You as You have promised to deliver us from our troubles. I just pray it is sooner rather than later as these troubles seem to be continuously mounting.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was walking down a path through a grove of aspen trees when I saw Jesus bathed in a corona of light all around Him like the sun. As I ran to Him, He held out His arms to receive me. I was small in comparison to Jesus, so when I ran to hug Him, my cheek was level with His chest.

Me: Crying. "Lord, I cannot take much more. Please Lord, help us. Please help us!"

I felt Him kiss the top of my head. He then motioned for me to sit down next to Him on the bench.

Jesus: "Erin, every time you are faced with trouble, you gauge your actions and wonder if you are going in the right direction. You wonder if, this time, I will finally leave you to your own devices and abandon you. Well, Erin, I will not as I am always with you.”

Me: “Lord, I just love You so much! I am approaching 1200 days since You gave me a very clear list of promises. Please do not only grant these upon my death, but also allow them while I live. Lord, You have not healed me, but You have taken me out of the desert to this beautiful land only to allow my tormentors more opportunity.

“This week we fought two institutions and are now in a battle with a third. It seems that I have brought trouble upon my husband and his kids simply by being alive and breathing. As in the past, I seem to have trouble follow me due to no fault of mine.

“Lord, one moment I believe that I am finished with dealing with one battle, but then another battle quickly rises up. Lord, are You allowing me to be the object of scorn? It sure seems this way as I am constantly being hammered by my enemies.”

Jesus: “Erin, I sent you help. You are not alone as I am with you always. I will deliver you from all of these situations. Not only will you face them and defeat each one, but I will be with you in each battle. I know you have not had a reprieve, but I also know what I have told you.

“Erin, I come and My recompense is with Me, even though you have not yet seen this. I did not have you walk that property to only then, as a cruel hoax, give it to another. This I would not do to the one I call loved, My beloved. So, how am I now instructing you through these difficulties? Erin, do you see this?”

Me: “Are You instructing me on having another level of faith?”

Jesus: “Yes, but there is more. When you have had dreams where you have declared curses and prophesied over someone, do you feel this is you speaking?”

Me: “No, Lord. I have even had a couple of cases in the natural where the Counselor, Your Spirit, has welled up in me, controlling my tongue, declaring a thing and it was done on Earth as it is in Heaven. I knew it was not me speaking this though.”

Jesus: "Yes, but this authority was from Me, right?"

Me: "Yes. There was no mistaking it, especially by the looks on the faces of those on the receiving end."

Jesus: "Then, Erin, what again are you learning about?"

Me: "To declare a thing by Your Will and Authority so that it will then come to pass and come into being!"

Jesus: "Okay, then what else am I showing you?"

Me: "Is it that I am somehow missing the mark? Lord, all I know is that You are in control and that I am, really our entire household, is under attack here. We need you, Lord, and we are in trouble without You. I feel that I will be thrown into a cistern next as I am not speaking positively about the state of things."

He laughed as He knew I was referring to one of the plights that Jeremiah experienced that I had recently read over again.

Jesus: "Erin, you have your own personality. You are not Jeremiah, you are Erin. There are patterns to many of these situations, but what remains constant is that I Am Who I Am and God is on the Throne.

"Erin, your life has been planned from beginning to end and you have waited an entire lifetime to see the promises I have given unfold. Now, it is always darkest before the dawn, Erin, and I have commanded angels concerning you and your household to guard you in all your ways.

"I have not abandoned you to the grave or even taken the life of your little lamb to see you destroyed. Instead, I have allowed you to endure your troubles so that, when you are finally delivered from all of this, no one will dispute that I am God.

"You have only to read My Words to see battle after battle in those pages. However, the one thing that is certain and does not change is that victory awaits those who endure. I have promised you that I would deliver you through your trouble, as well as completely remove it.

"What you are enduring is not uncommon to man, so do not listen to anyone who claims I have turned My face from you as I have not. Now, Erin, why have I allowed you to face all of these difficulties?"

Me: "Lord, I am sure it is so that we lack no good thing. You do everything for our good and for the good of those who love You. I have been here so many times, but now I am asking You for help."

He good-naturedly, but in a loving and joking way, turned His head to expose His ear to me in order to 'listen more intently'.

Jesus: "Oh please, Erin, speak up as I am having trouble hearing you."

Me: He smiled and I started to laugh at this. "I need help, Lord. I need help as I cannot do anything without You. I have exhausted every human course. I have tried every avenue and expended every resource. Now I am coming to You."

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, Erin, it is about time."

Me: "Lord, but I came to You first."

Jesus: "Yes, but this is what happened, Erin, and this is not just you as this is common to all. You come to Me with a need and a date in mind. Then, while I am working on your request, and even though you do not know this, you assume that I have left you to figure your trouble out on your own. You then go forth only to find out that you cannot help yourself. You then come back to Me, but only as a very last resort."

Me: "Oh Lord, yes, I do this. I confess that I definitely do this. Please forgive me, Lord, as I am horrible."

Jesus: "Repent, Erin. No, you are not horrible as I do not have this close a relationship with horrible people." He smiled. "Really, they do not like Me much. Now, what did the dream of your little dog teach you?"

Me: "Well, I made mistakes, I exhausted my options and then it was just too late."

Jesus: "Actually, the way I saw it, this was always completely out of your control. You exhausted your options, but you had first failed in one area."

Me: "To go to You first."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. Come to Me, but then wait for Me and I will direct you in the ways you should go. I appoint men and even remove kings. What is impossible for men is possible with God.

"Now, let us discuss the power of declaration put into practice. Do not walk around cursing by declaring, but declare by blessing. Declare a thing to come into fruition, a tree to bear fruit, and allow Me to work through you.

"Now, I did not take your son's life on Friday. Even though the enemy had petitioned in Court for calamity against you, none was granted. Now rejoice, rejoice, as My plans are to give you hope and a future. I am here with you. I have taken care over you from beginning to end. I have allowed your difficulty."

Me: "Lord, it is hard to be joyful during this crushing. If it was just me, I would be fine, but it is also my family and friends. Now there are so many that are turning away from me and even people who said they would never leave. I am just so thankful that my husband and children have been steadfast in standing beside me. Lord, my heart has been broken so many times that it has become harder and harder to live."

Jesus: "I speak life into you, Erin, so live. I love you, Erin, so live. I know you are downcast and disheartened, I know you become depressed and I hear your cries."

Me: "I am sorry, Lord, but I am a baby."

Jesus: "No, Erin, there is a reason I have you here with Me. Although you wanted to turn from Me, you have not. I have promised to deliver you from your troubles in a single day. Although you have been given the bread of adversity and the waters of affliction (Isaiah), Your Teacher..." He pointed to Himself. "...will be hidden no more. You will gaze upon Me and see Me, Erin."

Me: "I do not understand."

Jesus: "I will instruct you, so now look up. Erin, where does your help come from? Now, look to the hills. Who owns the cattle on one thousand hills?"

Me: "You do, Lord, You do."

Jesus: "Then do I not also know your needs before you ask?"

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin." He smiled and hugged me. "I have you, I am with you and I will deliver you. I am your healer, so do not worry or be afraid. Soon!"

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for my family and the home that You have given us. I am so grateful and so thankful for all that You have done. You are my blessing and my great hope. I can never 'do' enough service to repay You.

If I were wealthy, I could never give enough. You own every place my feet walk. You own every breath of air I take. You have counted my years and even know the beats of my heart. I love You, Father, so thank You.

Today, I come to You with several disturbing dreams, but I was glad to awaken from one in particular. I had this one the night before last on November 25th (Dream 2) However, I will first ask for revelation of my dream from November 21st (Dream 1), which began my week of disturbing dreams.

Dream 1 description begins...

I was a Christian journalist sent by invitation to a World Summit of ground breaking discoveries in science, medicine and technology. This took place at a massive convention center in northern Europe at what seemed like Prague or Germany, but I was not certain.

Most of the participants there did not see me as a threat at all. A man was assigned as a global United Nations ambassador to take us around to explain the various advancements so that we would write, in his term, 'compelling reports'.

The various areas we were to write on were according to what they see in hopes to further the cause of science, medicine and technological advancements. Basically, we were being persuaded to write in hopes that donors from various parts of society would agree to further their cause.

From what I started to witness, I soon became in shock that I was even invited at all. At one point during the tour, a reporter became upset at me because the ambassador was spending more time with me than the 'more important' media reporters. This particular reporter was himself from a very large media outlet.

Reporter #1: "Why are you allowing this reporter to be here?"

Ambassador: "There is a large segment of the global population which still believes in God and Creationism. Once they understand that God is here in these advancements, they will then turn and give money to us for research instead of giving money to their churches."

This news reporter seemed satisfied with this answer. As the ambassador moved on, several of the reporters poked me and nodded their heads at me in a mocking way.

Reporter #2: "Wow, you have a difficult task. You had better report the way he expects. You have no idea who you are dealing with."

While I hid my alarm and instead smiled at the comment, I was now on edge as I suddenly knew my life rested on what I would report. The ambassador then started our tour in the area of technology and took us to a wing of the building which was incredible.

I saw things there that I never thought that I would ever see in my lifetime. Though what was being shown was vastly inferior to the things that I have seen in Heaven, what I witnessed was still impressive from an earthly sense. Nonetheless, it was still nothing like the power of God. Here are a couple of the things that I witnessed here:

- There was a type of refrigerator which could vary specific temperatures to specific items according to a microchip on each of the items' packaging. The refrigerator, a sort of reverse of an induction microwave, could cool these items in seconds from within. However, there seemed to be much more to this. The key buzz words they used included 'colder, faster and safer', which was their slogan, as well as 'prolonged storage for up to weeks and months'. The words 'less waste' and 'preservation' were also used.
- I then saw something like a type of ear wrap blue-tooth device. With this, a person could think about another person and, based on the intensity of their 'heat and feelings', their thoughts would then unfold. We then watched as a man thought about a particular woman. This woman then called his name and undressed for him, but all in his thoughts using this device. We could see this all unfold as they were using a type of brain wave technology that could put the images from his thoughts on to the screen for us to watch. In summary, this device was personalizing his fantasies into an experience that was so incredibly real. In essence, this was personalized virtual pornography.

Reporter #3: "A man or woman would never need human contact again. What about procreation?"

Ambassador: "Oh no, this is not to replace the human relationship. It just helps those unable to understand their tastes. These are for individuals who would like to explore their options in a personalized manner. For example, the woman you saw was someone this man had contact with earlier in the day when he ordered coffee at the local coffee shop from her. He inputted his visual and she then virtually reacted according to his will."

Reporter #3: "Isn't this an invasion of privacy on the woman? It is so real. Could this man not then expect that the actual woman should somehow remember their encounter? People could even be killed by someone who is not 'right in the head'."

Ambassador: "I understand your concerns, but this is a safe, effective way to act out your desires without the messiness of a relationship. Did you ever want an affair with your friend's wife, but wanted to explore the option discretely? Well, this is how and it should make relationships much healthier."

I knew this was a major deception. I also saw this as a way for pedophiles and others to act out their twisted fantasies. This seemed so clearly and completely awful to me.

Ambassador: "Alright, let's move along. It is not important to dwell on this. The technology will be launched very soon and is here to stay. It is not up for debate. It has already been fully funded."

After this, we saw several other advancements in technology. He then moved us into a wing for medical advancements. Here are a few of the things that I witnessed there:

- The grafting of the skin of animals to humans.
- The injecting of animal fats into human faces, which removed wrinkles and slowed aging.
- The grafting of birds and fish, creating an entire species, literally, of flying fish.
- The crossing between an eagle and a leopard. This hybrid could somehow both fly and run, but is something very difficult for me to describe with accuracy.
- The injecting of the DNA of ants into human growth hormones. This was similar to the 'Antman' superhero, only real. This special DNA made men and women supernaturally strong.
- The crossing of the molecular structure of a tall man into the embryo of a short man or dwarf. This created a distorted baby with disproportionately long arms and legs compared to the torso.

As we walked around some more, this all became even more of a freak show. We then approached an area where the cancers of several sick children were being transferred to prisoners and terrorists for experimentation purposes.

Reporter #3: "I don't understand. Why remove the cancer and implant it back into someone else? Just destroy it."

Ambassador: "Cancer always needs a host. You can't just remove it."

We were all a bit confused by his answers and by all of what we were witnessing. We then came to another area where beheaded men were being given a transplanted head from another person. It was so gross that I became even more ill to my stomach than I already had been.

We then proceeded to the embryo area where we were shown a type of computerized machine where a couple could enter all the characteristics of their ideal child. The couple could select all of the good characteristics of themselves, but also any other characteristics of their choosing as well, either good or bad.

A machine then 'created' the desired molecular DNA by using the DNA of several famous people mixed with the DNA of the couple to produce the 'perfected' embryo matching their specifications. This embryo was then implanted into the woman's womb.

Reporter #3: "Can't this also be used for extreme evil? Entire armies could be created."

Ambassador: "Good question. This is complex, so please wait over to the side for our reply while we continue with our tour."

As we continued walking, I glanced back and saw that this reporter was being escorted out of the building. The ambassador quickly directed us to a different area.

Ambassador: "Now we will move into our weapons area."

We walked over to a massive arena. There were people inside this arena that came from all over the world and it almost seemed like a United Nations assembly of sorts. In the middle of this arena, there was a massive ball of fire about two feet in diameter spinning above the arena and rising.

Ambassador: "Here we have harnessed the power of the sun. We have created this 'other sun' as the sun above us is soon to burn up."

Reporter #4: "The sun is seven times hotter than it was over 2500 years ago. The sun is not going to burn out. If you harvest this on Earth, it will burn up everything. Just look at the men in the front row."

As we looked over at the men in the front row, we could see that their faces were boiling with burns. The nonchalant attitude on the damage that this 'tiny sun' was causing to these people seemed so surreal to me.

Ambassador: "Come, I have one other advancement to show you."

He then took us to a room with a massive glass enclosure where there was something like atoms and a nucleus. He used several scientific terms to describe what we were witnessing, but these complex terms went over all of our heads. He was quite excited.

Reporter #5: "Can you state this in simple terms that our readers can understand?"

Ambassador: "This is for growth population control. There are certain areas of unproductivity globally where people suffer from lack of resources, such as basic water, food and shelter. There are also areas of constant war. This eliminates these problems by removing the challenges and keeping the historic integrity of an area for regrowth redistribution."

Reporter #2: "Genocide? Genocide? Is this what you're proposing?"

Ambassador: "This is humane and not genocide. This only removes the populous. It keeps the structures, such as the infrastructure, water systems and commerce, all intact."

I somehow knew that this was a subtle reference to their evil plans for Jerusalem. He then showed us whole villages of Christian settlements as well. I suddenly wanted to vomit at all that I was seeing.

Me: "Excuse me, but I need to use the restroom."

Ambassador: "I am sorry, but this is not possible right now. Here, put this pill under your tongue instead."

He handed me a pill to put under my tongue. I pretended to take the pill, but instead left it hidden by wedging it in my finger. The ambassador kept looking back at me to see how the pill was affecting me. I forced myself to act as if the pill had taken away my sickness and this seemed to satisfy the ambassador.

At the end of the tour, we were taken to a room so that we could write our articles. We were then instructed to hand our completed articles to a monitoring editor before any of the articles could be published. I knew, as several of us did, that everything we wrote would be edited in order to suit their agenda before being released to the public.

Reporter #4: "Well, I guess God is officially dead after this."

Me: "No, He's not. If anything, His anger is building. This was written about before in Scripture."

Reporter #5: "Where in Scripture? That is not in the Bible."

Me: "It is in Jasher and Jasher is referenced in the Bible. It is a hidden code for God to reveal other mysteries. It is there in the fourth chapter of Jasher and is about all of this."

Reporter #4: "You are a kook. We should report you!"

Reporter #5: "No need to. They will examine her writing and change it to fit their agenda. She will never work again. See if God saves her."

Dream 1 description over...

The following is my description of the second dream. For some reason, this dream somehow disturbed me more than any other dream I have ever had.

Dream 2 description begins...

I was taken under house arrest to a location that I did not recognize. This area seemed like it could be California or even an English speaking tourist town somewhere in the Mediterranean.

I did not know what I had done to cause my arrest, but it seemed that my very existence had caused me to be found guilty. I was taken to a house on the lower street of a small village and confined to a room 6' x 6' x 6', six feet wide by six feet long with a six foot high ceiling.

The room was painted gun metal grey, including the floor, the ceiling and the walls. It was a perfect cube with only one window. The window was six inches high and approximately three feet wide. It was only six inches down from the ceiling so that, when I stood up at 5'2", I could see out, but only barely.

As I entered this cubic room, a person was already sitting there waiting for me at a folding desk. He greeted me upon arrival and identified himself as my attorney.

Attorney: "Well, I have no file on you. You have no papers, no identification, no passport and no marks. I have nothing on you and nothing to build a case for your innocence."

Me: "But I haven't done anything."

Attorney: "To your accuser, you have done everything. You are guilty until proven innocent."

Me: "But if there is nothing I am being charged with, then how can I be guilty?"

Attorney: "Oh, you have been found guilty and charged with life here. They do not give you anything to aid you in living."

Me: "I do not understand. Where is my family?"

Attorney: "What family? Where is your family?"

I instantly knew not to say anything about my family as they would use this against them. I quickly composed myself.

Me: "Sorry. They died long ago."

Attorney: "Thought so. There is no one to stand on your behalf and with no proof of your innocence there is nothing that I can do for you."

I already knew my fate, so I did not speak. However, I did not cry as I had no fear either. The attorney began to fold up his portable desk.

Attorney: "Now, a few more things. I was able to give you an hour to walk to town to soak up the sun, but only for one hour. After one hour, you will need to return here. I was able to get you some oil paints in tubes. I was able to secure one canvas.

"They would not allow you to have a brush nor a pen, so you will need to use your finger to paint. There is no light here and no electricity. You will have only your clothing for warmth. I will leave you this chair to use for your painting. Oh yes, you will have no food or water."

Me: "I will die very quickly. Should I eat the paint?"

Attorney: "Hmm, this would be a bad idea as the oils will make you very sick. I'm sorry I could do nothing for you." He continued to fold up the desk. "Oh yes, you have only one hour. Do not be late returning. It is beautiful outside. Take this into your memory and paint it." He smiled. "Take care!" He then left.

As I walked outside, I saw that the area was filled with beautiful homes. The ocean was deep blue and there were boats. I decided to walk to the town to my north. At the top of the paved road, there were three roads intersecting the north road that I was on.

The sun was so bright that I could barely read the names of the roads. One was Beach Street, one was Waterfront Road and one was Meadow Avenue. There were arrows pointing to various events occurring down each of these roads.

The sign on the road I was walking on said 'Village 1km'. I did not know how far 1km was, so I continued to walk. When I finally reached the village, I saw that there were beautiful shops and other things to see. However, I had no money, so I had no interest in any of these things.

At the end of the village road, I saw that there was a shooting gun range. It was all open air and seemed very unsafe to me. The man running the range was taking IDs and money for people to be able to shoot the distant targets attached to hay bales. The hay bales seemed more like for an archery range rather than for a shooting range. The owner looked over and spoke to me.

Owner: "Go up there and shoot." I looked back at him. "Go ahead. You don't need ID. I have two guns there for you to use. This is on me." He laughed.

As I approached the open table or booth, I saw two ridiculously large pistols sitting there. The one to my right had a silencer on it and the one to my left was plastic, like a toy, but transparent. I could even see the bullet cartridge inside of the transparent plastic. I picked up the plastic revolver in my left hand to inspect it.

Owner: "That is a real gun, not a toy. It works just like the one on your right. Both will do the job. The one on the left will get into places the other gun won't. The one on the right will make no sound. Either one will get the job done."

I picked up the one to my right and aimed at the target.

Owner: "You know what these are for. They are not for shooting this target."

I then realized he was trying to coax me to shoot myself. I turned to walk away.

Owner: "Go ahead and at least take the plastic one with you!" As I walked away, he yelled out to me. "You are going to regret this!"

As I reached the top of the hill, I thought about taking another road to a better place. However, I quickly realized that this road would not lead to anywhere. I decided to walk back to my room instead.

As I came up to my room, a woman was standing there looking at me like she hated me. I still did not know what I had done. She pointed at me to go into the room. As I went in, the door quickly shut behind me and was instantly sealed.

It was now midday and I had nothing to do, so, with my finger, I began to paint images of light on this canvas. To my surprise and delight, when darkness came, the lights or highlights I had just painted somehow lit the room even though there was no electricity.

The next day, I saw a glass of water and a bread roll with meat sitting on the window slat. By the third day plus twelve hours, and after someone at night had continued to leave me food and water, I heard two people outside the sealed door.

Woman #1: "She should be dead by now or close to it."

When they opened the door and saw that I was painting instead, they looked terrified. They took my painting and frisked me for food and water.

Woman #2: "You should be dead. We will wait three more days. Here is one more canvas, but you won't have enough paint to finish."

I felt that they were testing me on this. Later that night, there were two rolls, extra meat, cheese, a cookie and a chocolate marshmallow milkshake, my favorite! I ate all of this and this repeated for two more nights.

When the women came back and opened the door, again on the third day, they became extremely distressed. They saw that, not only was I stronger than when I had come in, but I smiled at them and had finished yet another painting.

Woman #1: "That's impossible! This is witchcraft! You are a witch."

To their surprise, I kept silent and said nothing in reply. The women then returned several hours later and sealed off my window and door so that I would have no air.

Woman #2: "She'll be dead by morning. There will be no air. No witchcraft will save her."

When all the light was gone, I began to cry out to the Lord. As I became faint, an angel suddenly appeared.

Angel: "I am with you. Do not be afraid. God is greater. He Who is in you is greater than he who is out there. Come, let's eat. It will be exciting when they come to see you gone."

Dream 2 description over...

Father, I had other similar dreams this week and these left me feeling deeply distressed. The room and situation I was in was completely void of any justice or hope. It was awful to feel this void, so thank You for sending help.

My dream from earlier in the week about the DNA modifications led me to look into these in order to see if they already existed. To my surprise, there is an organization called CRISPR that seems related to all of this. I was disturbed by how close in time that we are now in to all of these horrors.

I was then led to find an extremely old copy of Jasher that I had acquired from a used bookstore some time ago. This book is from the 1880's and is quite remarkable. I immediately flipped over to the fourth chapter of Jasher since my dream had indicated that there would be a clue contained there as to the time we are now in.

In this dream, the advancements in science, technology and medicine were presented with the idea that these were for the 'good of mankind'. However, I am sure that altering DNA and things like that are not for the 'good' of any living creature, period.

Now, do not get me wrong here as I am in support of many of the advancements that have been made. For example, I have a pacemaker that God has allowed me to have in order to keep my heart beating and I am grateful for this.

Father, I am deeply troubled by these dreams. Please help me to understand why You gave these dreams to me.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was up in the Heavenly aspen-lined path. At the end of the path, I saw Jesus enthroned in a corona of light, a light as bright as the sun. As His arms were once again extended towards me, I ran, crying, into His arms and into His presence.

Jesus: "I am here, Erin, I am here and I am with you. Be strong and courageous and do not fear man as I am with you. I have also sent angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways."

Me: "Lord, my dream was void of all things. I was not even like a prisoner in jail. At least a prisoner has a number, a case file, is guilty of a crime and is serving time. Most have lights, books, food, water, care, a bed and even blankets. This had nothing. Why did they not just kill me instead?"

Jesus: "Erin, the enemy would like you removed. By the power of suggestion, they wanted you to take your own life so that they could not be charged with your murder. At first, they tried to have you run away so that they could shoot you as a fugitive. However, you did not take those roads.

"Then, in the village, they gave you two more chances. One gun was for you to shoot yourself right there. The other gun was for you to take with you that would not be detected by an officer under examination as it was plastic. This gun was for you to shoot yourself in the room.

"You were then given no food or water in hopes that you would ingest the oil paint. Instead, I was with you. Later, and under My power and authority, you were removed."

Me: "Lord, it was frightening. I had no one and I was all alone."

Jesus: "You were never alone, Erin, as I was with you. Now, everything which happened to you to sustain you was supernatural. This means that, under earthly jurisdiction, it had no logical explanation." He smiled.

Me: "This means it is from You and from Heavenly places."

Jesus: "Yes. Now, I see that you have been downcast, Erin. I have promised to remove you from your troubles in a single day. What I have done in the past for you is nothing compared to what I am about to do. I know the beginning from the end, Erin. I will take special care concerning you. Did you not see this in your dream?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. I had a beautiful view from my dark room. The paints of light from the picture actually created light in the room and sparkled. You gave me food that I enjoyed. I ate only a little at first so that I would not be sick, but then I ate more later. I even had a cookie and my favorite flavor of milkshake. The milkshake was cold and the bread and cookie were freshly baked and warm. You provided."

Jesus: "Like now, Erin, you are barely being sustained. You recognize that trouble has surrounded you on all sides. Although it looms and you feel as if you have lost hope, know that I have and will answer your cries. I have not forsaken you. I have promised to bless you and your household abundantly. I have not forgotten you."

"This time four years ago, you thought I had stripped you of everything. As I began to work through you, many people then came against you. I allowed this right before I moved you to a safe place. There you were able to flourish before I then moved you physically from your desert land into the place I prepared for you."

"You went from strength to strength, not on your own, but from My power. You are the pearl I have formed. I will not leave you to die in your shell, but I will take you out of your enclosure and use you for My glory and My purpose. You understand the times you are in, Erin. You have discovered things, mysteries hidden in plain sight."

Me: "Yes, Lord, Jasher and certain other books from the Bible. Why were these removed?"

Jesus: "Another mystery. Perhaps it was the agenda of tired scribes. Perhaps there was a preference for words in part and not in whole. There were reasons though, all according to man."

I later went to the Lord on this again, as I have in the past on this issue, and He confirmed that this was as allowed by Him. This is not to be viewed as a case of the enemy keeping something from us that God did not have power over. 2 Peter speaks of how certain things were going to be misused or twisted and that this is never a surprise to God. For some, these are available for those who the Lord leads to these mysteries.

Me: "Lord, Jasher and Enoch are very long."

Jesus: "So are others. Do not concern yourself with why as this is God's Will. It takes the glory of God to conceal a matter and the honor of kings to search it out. Thereby search, Erin, knock and the door shall be opened. What have you found?"

Me: "Well, I see that Peter wrote about how untaught and unstable men will twist Paul's letters, as well as other Scripture to their own destruction (2 Peter 3:14-18). It seems like Paul was granted wisdom by God, but that unstable men formed different doctrines from this."

Jesus: "Yes, very good, Erin. Now the enemy will try to distract you. For by Peter's words (2 Peter 3:17-18), 'Therefore since you know this in advance, be on your guard, so that you are not led away by the error of lawless people and fall from your own stability. But grow in the grace and knowledge of Me'.

"Erin, this is the age of lawlessness again. Where is it written that I am changing and now accept that which had been declared detestable?"

Me: "You are unchanging, Lord, in your Word."

Jesus: "I do not change the commandments given to man. Because I was sent as the sacrifice for the sin of man, have I now allowed sin to be acceptable or, by My grace, to be permissible?"

Me: "No, Lord!"

Jesus: "This is the time when many will fall away, Erin. I will give you all you need. Many of you will go out in the field to separate the wheat from the tare. I will send you as a worker for the harvest is soon to be brought in. The last harvest is soon to come. I will prepare you and give you all you need to fortify your fields.

"Do not be deceived by the pleas from the enemy. He will accuse you of many things, but nothing will prevail except My unshakable foundation of truth and love that you stand upon. You will not be moved."

Me: "I am not understanding fully."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin. You see that the time has come. That which has been foretold is now coming into season."

Me: "Lord, the mixing of DNA, this disturbing technology, all of it seems to some to be beneficial."

Jesus: "You cannot drink from My cup and the cup of demons. You cannot partake in the table of the food I give you and partake at the table of demons too."

Me: "I recognize this Scripture (1 Corinthians). Everything is permissible, but not everything is beneficial."

Jesus: "Erin, this is referring to the food you eat, but I am talking about your body. Your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit. Keep your temple sacred, as sacred as possible, in the age of lawlessness. Do you have understanding?"

Me: "Only that which You give, Lord. This age is awful. Soon the 'Mark of the Beast' will be in full force."

Jesus: "Remember that the enemy presents evil as good. It starts as a device of record, a tracker of information. The very money you use will only be available with this. Many will take it as a method of safety. Many 'children' will have marks tattooed, tinctures with worldly information."

Please note that Jesus showed me various images of young adults as He said the word 'children'. I saw that no children were under the age of accountability, but that many looked young enough to look like 'children', especially to us mothers (and fathers). This was reminiscent of photos I had seen in the past of young men that had been sent into battle back in the world wars. It saddened me greatly when I saw all of this unfolding.

Jesus: "In your dream, you had no file and no record, yet you were guilty. In the end, the punishment will be like John the Baptist, yet the consequence will be eternal life here in Heaven."

Me: "I do not want to be here for this, Lord."

Jesus: "You will see some trouble, Erin, but you will testify as a worker and My precious pearl. Now, do not worry as I have you and I will send you help. I am your Provider, your Healer and your Savior. I love you!"

He smiled and hugged me.

Dream over...

Dream 227 – Jesus and the Battlefield of the Heart

Received Sunday, December 4, 2016

This dream began on Wednesday, November 30th, 2016 shortly after we received our first snowfall. Around 10 inches of snow fell, resulting in a 'Snow Day' (no school) for our children. More snow fell on Thursday, resulting in a second Snow Day in a row. As the writing of this dream spanned over a five day period, some dates were added to the below in order to ease the tracking of these events' dates.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for our home, my family and my friends. Although we have no power today, Wednesday, November 30th, 2016, along with thousands of others, our home is safe and, so far, we are able to keep warm.

Our source of heat will be blankets and the fireplace. Our source for cooking will be the barbeque. While the first day of an outage can be exciting for our household, according to local news, we are expecting that we could be without power for days.

To make matters even more unpredictable, another snow storm is expected for tonight, Wednesday, November 30th, 2016, at around 11pm. This next snow storm is predicted to be much worse than our first round from last night. While the schools here anticipated their closures yesterday, we were not expected to lose power.

Father, please have mercy on all of us who live in the country and restore our power, along with all of those living in the suburbs as well. We are expected to be last for repair, so perhaps we can be repaired first instead? After all, the first shall be last and last shall be first, right (smiles)?

I should mention that something happened to me two days ago on Monday, November 28th, 2016, at around 4pm in the afternoon. The sun was already low in the sky when I heard the Lord say 'the time is now,

Erin'. After He repeated these words a second time, I suddenly felt my heart start to beat faster.

As this happened, I then saw something I cannot fully explain as I really do not understand it enough to really describe it. While the sun was facing to the south edge of a particular building, I found myself looking at the side of this building due to the reddish color massive brick wall glowing in an unusual way from the sun light's angle.

As I continued to stare at the bricks, I started to see something that caused me to rub my eyes in wonder. The bricks suddenly appeared as if they were living and seemed to breathe as they 'moved'. As the sun continued to shimmer on these 'moving' bricks, they soon stopped their 'movement'.

However, just before the bricks stopped 'moving', I had asked my kids in the car if they were witnessing what I was. They then all looked at the brick wall closely to see if they could see what I was seeing as well, but they could not.

At first, one of my kids seemed concerned about me and, admittedly, perhaps justifiably so (smiles). While I was perplexed by this, for some reason I was not distraught.

Daughter: "Mom, you seem kind of bothered right now. Are you okay?"

Me: "Yes. I just had a feeling, is all."

Father, I just know something happened here, but I am not sure what it was or what it meant. Please help me to understand. As I wrote these words, I suddenly remembered that, on the nights of Sunday, November 27th, 2016 and Monday, November 28th, 2016, I had a few short dreams that I had woke up suddenly from.

Two of these dreams had involved massive angels from Heaven speaking to me with instructions. However, when I awoke, I could not recall what these angels had said to me. However, I also somehow knew that this lack of recollection of their words seemed to be for some 'divine' purpose.

I felt in my Spirit that it was because I was not to know what was said quite yet. What seemed unusual about this to me was that I usually remember things clearly whenever I am woke up suddenly from a dream, but not this particular time.

Our first snowfall began to fall yesterday at around 9pm Tuesday, November 29th, 2016, about three hours later than the weather forecast had indicated that it would. The flakes were very large and heavy accumulations quickly became evident.

At around 3:25am on early Wednesday morning, November 30th, 2016, I was awakened by a bright flash of light. I quickly got out of bed and looked outside to investigate, but everything seemed fine to me.

However, as I walked into another room to investigate from a different angle, another massive flash of light illuminated the entire sky, along with the snow and the trees. I checked the time again and noticed that it was only a minute after the first flash, or 3:26am.

I stopped to listen for thunder, but could not hear any. However, I was not overly surprised at the lack of thunder as I somehow already knew that these lights were not from lightning. Quite simply, the type of light that I had just witnessed was unlike that of any lightning strike I have ever seen, either in person or on television.

After I got back into bed and started to pray on this, I decided to wake up my husband to let him know what had just happened. He seemed completely out of it at first as he was still half asleep, but then the odd light flashed brightly in the sky again. This woke him up fully and he instantly jumped up and pulled the blinds up all of the way.

As we continued to look outside at the sky intently, the flash came yet again and we both noticed that it was an odd bluish light. Each time this flash came, the lights in our home flickered, but then quickly came back on. We both realized that this was supernatural and debated waking up the kids but decided not to and went back to bed.

As we no longer felt like sleeping, we kept watching out our window. By 4am, we experienced two more of these 'awe-inspiring' flashes. Father, I need Your help to understand what happened last night with all of this. The magnitude of Your power, Father, is beyond men, as these were no normal flashes.

Even though I continued to be awestruck by Your show of power, I eventually decided to close my eyes to get some more rest. My dream later that night was remarkable, but I awoke suddenly at around 7:20am to find that our power had gone out. I also found myself sore from tensing up during the night and that my muscles now ached.

On this morning, Wednesday, November 30th, 2016, my husband had spent several hours digging our car out so that he could get to work. While school was cancelled, his place of employment was still operating. However, the snow was extremely heavy and he was exhausted after he was done shoveling.

As I wrote this, my eldest son came over to talk to me. With asking him, he told me that he and my other eldest son were also up and had witnessed the light phenomena from their rooms, both at the same time. While they too thought what they saw was unusual, they assumed it was just a rare winter lightning storm at first.

After I finished speaking with him, I decided to take our dogs out for a walk. It was only then that I noticed that the snow was displaying something I had never seen before. The snow looked as if blue Windex had been poured into it.

I quickly got my camera and took some photos. The snow around us was somehow colored a glacier blue and was simply spectacular to witness. As they each awoke, the children all witnessed this odd colored snow as well.

Father, this has Your name all over it. While I am sure that there could be a scientific explanation for this, I really do not care about that as I just know this is You. You are the beginning of all things and even the roots of science are just a method of discovery, hypothesis and theories that all originate from You. So, to me, this is all You, Father!

By the way, I should note that there are no electrical transformer stations near us that could have exploded to cause this massive light. I should also note that I have a lightning tracker app that showed that there had been no lightening in this area at all.

Quite simply, this truly was not explainable from either a human or scientific position. As I have now learned, if there is no 'natural' explanation, then it must be 'supernatural'. Father, we were, and are, yet again humbled by Your might and power!

On another happy note, while this week has yet again brought a new series of attacks, we have also had several amazing victories. As an example of one of these victories, we recently did everything that the Lord had instructed us to do in order to get our youngest daughter out of a horrible school she has been attending.

In the natural, we did not think such a transfer would even be possible as our school district has turned down every single transfer request that has been made this entire year. However, Father, You told us You would go before us into this battle.

You then told me in advance that there would soon be a day that my daughter would ask to stay home from school because of the things that had happened at this school. You told us that, once she requested to stay home, she would be removed from this shortly thereafter.

While You had told me this a few weeks ago, only me and my husband knew about this and not one of the children. Then, and unexpectedly and completely out of the blue, my daughter asked if she could stay home from school on the next day.

She explained to us that she had been upset about an occurrence at this school. Since she had never asked to miss any school before, had not missed a single day of school this year and her grades were excellent, I told her that she could stay home, but only if she agreed to clean her room.

While my husband had already applied for a transfer to a new school for her a few weeks ago, the principal had warned him by telling him, "Now, let me be direct with you here. We have not allowed anyone in this district to transfer this year. However, feel free to send in a transfer request."

He did so, but based on what he was told, we never expected anything to actually come out of this transfer request. Well, and to our great surprise, my husband received an email from the principal of the new school at 1pm on the very day that my daughter decided not to go to school.

This was just as foretold to us by the Lord! The email my husband received indicated that the transfer was approved and congratulated and welcomed our daughter to the new school. Since then, our daughter started at the new school on Monday, November 28th, 2016, the day before the first snowfall came, and she could not be happier!

As per usual, I had completely forgotten about the Word the Lord had given me on this, but, also as per usual, my husband remembered it clearly and had been secretly wondering if this would happen as foretold. When the email came, he immediately phoned me with the great news and we praised You together for doing this wonderful thing for our daughter in the exact order and timing that You had promised to us!

Another personal prophecy was also fulfilled last week. The Lord had told me that I was to give a certain situation to Him to allow Him to deal with it. This was regarding a certain woman we know that had recently mocked and gloated at my physical limitations.

Suddenly, and for no apparent reason, an old injury had suddenly flared up and put this woman on crutches. We found out from a mutual acquaintance that this woman had neither fallen nor had been performing any exercises at the time.

Since then, her confinement to crutches has seemed to humble her considerably and somehow even seemed proportional to her extensive bragging about her physical exploits and the great shape she was in. This was interesting as the Lord had also already informed me of her diabolical motives towards me in speaking as she did.

Later on, I soon discovered that one of my cruelest enemies, my main enemy's mother, now has teeth that are twisted and even falling out. I was shocked to find out that her condition is worsening, but for some reason she is refusing to have her rotting teeth repaired. While this neglect seemed shocking to me, I suppose it really is not when I view it from a supernatural perspective as foretold by God to me.

Now, since we are not to gloat or take pleasure in another's suffering, even if they are your worst of enemies, I forced myself to give all of this to God in order to allow Him to continue to deal with all of this. However, I must admit that I was given a boost by simply seeing in action that our Father truly sees all, looks after us fully and that vengeance really is His as long as we fully give to Him whatever is bothering us.

In yet another circumstance, I recently found out from my sister-in-law that my birth father might be contacting us soon. She then forwarded an email that she had received from this man where I found out that this once extremely wealthy man had now been reduced to living in poor conditions and was now begging even his enemies for money.

While this father of mine tried to call this 'temporary' loan a float, we knew that any money lent to him would disappear forever as he has always been quite the con artist. He has hurt my mother, my brother and me severely in the past and would think nothing of ripping off anyone he can and certainly has already with each of us.

In the past, this man has never shown any concern with my situation or my special-needs boys. He treated me horribly and even worse than he treated my mom or my brother. It was so bad that my mom had even apologized for her lack of defending me against his behavior towards me prior to her passed away.

At that time, I had simply told my mom that I was just thankful that my dad had removed himself completely from our lives as having him around us would have been even more horrible. After seeing this recent email, I then asked that my sister-in-law and brother not give my dad my current location as I would rather just pray for him while he is completely removed from us.

In my past, this earthly father of mine had even told me that he would contact the hospital to check on me after I told him about my upcoming pacemaker surgery. Not only did he never contact me, he even disconnected his phone as he truly wanted nothing to do with me.

I had never wanted anything from this man other than just be a daughter to him and to just say hello on occasion. However, Father, You have allowed this man to be my earthly dad for good reasons that You have told me about in the past.

Just one of many good reasons given was to have me focusing only on You versus someone who is a cruel ghost of a father. While I can never thank You enough for this, I still cannot help, in my heart, to hurt for the fact that he has never known any of us or has even ever cared to.

Father, I now pray for mercy on his soul. If there is anything You are requiring of me concerning this, please let me know. In the meantime, I continue to place my dad in Your capable hands and pray that You bring him low enough that he might finally know You as only You can save. This man is very cold and clearly has never cared if any of us lived or died.

Father, I feel You will do something with so many of us soon. My dreams and visions, both for public and for personal, are now pointing to an upcoming major shift and an Earth-shaking change.

You are preparing us in a perfect way and, based on Your instructions in even the smallest of matters, I have no reason to believe that I would ever be without Your instructions in the larger matters. I cling to Your every promise, Father, as You are my Creator and both my earthly and Heavenly Dad. There is no Father like You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was on a path lined with aspen trees. At the end of the path, I saw Jesus bathed in sunlight with a corona of light surrounding Him. He was wearing white and His face was incredibly bright. His teeth were white and His eyes were shining in a blue-green color. He stretched His arms out to receive me and I immediately ran right into His arms.

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, I have you and I have sent help. Help is on the way."

Me: "Lord, is Uriel at war right now? I saw him with a blue cast to his wings. Is he fighting in a spiritual war?"

Jesus: "Erin, have you recently seen coldness in the people that surround your family?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. Just yesterday, a young man had almost caused us to be in an accident on purpose. He knew he had almost did this, but then he looked at me with such coldness that I could not even believe my eyes.

"This disturbed me as he had no kindness or thought for our lives. However, I have now noticed the same with others. Even people that I know to be lukewarm Christians are turning out to really be 'tares'. There are now so many that seem cold and unfeeling."

Jesus: "Do not worry. I am about to do something you would not believe even if you were told. Do not fear what you are witnessing. Soon, I will allow even more of the supernatural to be visible in the natural.

"If I were to show you everything I am about to do in one instant, even your pacemaker could not sustain your heart..." He smiled. "...without My help. Erin, you are not to fear that which you see. Much of what I have shown you will be revealed.

"You will even see the angels as you see them in your dreams, but you will be unafraid as I have now prepared you for this. I love you, Erin, and I have plans to strengthen you and not to harm you.

"Much of the calamity that is over certain regions is there because these are areas with those who are for Me. You, Erin, live under one of these areas of 'Open Heaven', but this door is just opening."

Me: "I do not understand?"

Jesus: "You are already under an Open Heaven, but this has not become a fully active area yet. As a result, what you have been experiencing so far has been dark in comparison to what is soon to come over where you are.

"Although you have remained and continue to be protected and under My care, you have also been troubled by those in the area surrounding you as this area is an area of dark activity and war. Soon, Erin, you will experience Open Heavens on Earth as it is here in Heaven.

"There are fires in the south, shaking in the central states and extreme weather over other areas where these wars are occurring. Now, this is not to be confused with the wrath coming upon the cursed land. Instead, this is as a result of that which is about to occur for those who love Me."

Me: "I apologize, Lord, but I still do not fully understand all of this. So, are some areas in trouble because of God's wrath while other areas are in trouble because of spiritual wars in the Heavens that we cannot see, but yet we still can feel?"

Jesus: "Correct, Erin. You have experienced difficulty after every storm mostly due to communication, correct? Now, why do you think this is?"

Me: "Is it because communication is a form of widespread distribution of the Good News for many ministries and this reach is very far reaching?"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. Remember that the enemy would like you to be cut off. However, it does not matter where you live as trouble still follows. Every means possible is sent against you to remove any Good News. Do not worry though as I have sent help. My ways are even higher than your communication tower and even more than 70 times 7."

He smiled and laughed as He spoke this last part to me.

Me: "Lord, there has definitely been a swarm of trouble coming against everyone in my family. The storms have been epic and I am not just talking about the one which knocked out our power. I feel that these massive blue flashes of light were sent by You, Lord. Even the snow outside our home is blue in areas as well. What happened?"

Jesus: "Well, even with evidence, the two oldest boys in your own home at first had difficulty believing these visible events were from Me. I sent this to be witnessed by the four eldest in your household and you and your witnesses all saw this miraculous event.

"Then the very next morning, the snow reflected like a mirror this very same blue light that you all saw the night before. Even two days after this, the blue snow remains. This should really only be visible through a hole more than three feet deep and in pure snow. Science explains this as a cool spectrum light display..." He smiled. "...but your snow is not deep enough for such a display, correct?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, as each small groove is actually barely three inches deep."

Jesus: "Now, Erin, your job is not to prove that I am who I am, but instead you are to testify to My heart as I have given you a love story. I have shown you My love, the love illuminated in My written Words.

"My path for you has been a journey of discovering who I am and anyone who cares to indulge themselves in My love story will be blessed beyond measure. I have been there with you in every defeat, every heartbreak and every loss.

"I have seen what has been done to you and even that done in secret. Not only is My recompense with Me, but also My retribution. I will not leave you or forsake you."

Me: "Lord, I am sorry that I am such a battered bride. I am sorry that, at times, when I experience wave after wave of trouble, I act as if I have no faith by whining and complaining, all with extra worry."

As I sighed, He reached over under my chin and lifted my head to look into His eyes.

Jesus: "Erin, you are authentic. You continue to chase after Me when the troubles of this world continue to call you away. Your thoughts always come to Me in everything you do. So, could I forget you? No. I tell you the truth, your faith is greater than you think and I am even closer to you because of this."

Me: "Can I say to these mountains, my troubles, go into the sea?"

Jesus: "Well, you can, but there is more to this. I have gone before you in each battle as I am with you. At times, it seems that some of your enemies are allowed longer battles, while others are cut down immediately. Why do you think this is?"

Me: "I guess I thought it was because I did not have enough faith."

Jesus: "No, Erin. I am the One who sees the entire battle from the beginning to the end. If it is to be longer, it is because I am doing a work here. If it is to be shorter, you pray a thing and immediately it is done.

"Now, sometimes you do not hear about it until the information reaches you, but other times, and before you finish your thoughts, it is done. Just because a mountain falls into the sea instantly while a sand hill remains steadfast and strong, well, when the time comes, that sand hill will be removed in one wind, understand?

"Or if that mountain remains and sand hill after sand hill is removed, but that one last mountain does not shake, well, this too is divinely orchestrated as its time of removal has not yet come.

"However, Erin, it is written that, if you have faith as a tiny mustard seed, then you can say to the mountain 'move from here to there' and it will move. Nothing will be impossible to you."

Me: "But, Lord, You control all things, so how can this be as it is not my will, but Your Will both on Earth as it is in Heaven? I have seen You answer my prayers concerning these sand hills for they are as quickly removed as quickly as they come.

"However, this one mountain has many peaks and seems quite large to me. In fact, many of my main enemies continue to dwell there on this mountain and even call out to me from their lofty position."

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, you delight Me. When were these Words I gave to the disciples? What had been occurring? What event?"

Me: "Well, You had been instructing the disciples on faith and driving out demons."

Jesus: "So, if all of the demons and demonic activity were removed, then would there be continued trouble on that mountain?"

Me: "Oh that is interesting." I thought for a moment. "Lord, every amount of trouble has an evil root."

Jesus: Smiling. "This is interesting as evil roots means bad fruit and not a very good source of feeding. The enemy is in a stronghold and, in terms of war, they have fortified their position.

"They have created clamor that is meant to frighten all of you. Now you stand in the valley at the base of this mountain and feel vulnerable. However, do not fear as I will go before you."

Me: Smiling. "Lord, You are wonderful. As You spoke this, the Words of Psalm 46 just came into my heart."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, your heart is an excellent tablet for Me to write upon. Well then, it is written that I am your refuge and strength and I will always be found by you in trouble, than do not be afraid.

"Though the Earth shakes and mountains fall into the sea, though the waters rise up and make commotion and the mountains quake with uncertainty, there is a river which delights Me and My house. I am in her..." He pointed to me as I began to cry. "...and she will not fall."

He motioned as if to stop me from falling over. "I will help her when the dawn breaks." He then rested His hand on top of mine and then moved my hand over my heart.

Me: I was crying and even as I wrote this. "I have never heard Psalm 46 like this. Now it has even more meaning to me. Thank You, Lord!"

Jesus: "This is from My heart, Erin. Though you feel you are in a vulnerable position, you are not. Now, soon you will understand the gifts I am about to give you."

Me: Smiling. "Do You mean that my worry will soon be gone?"

Jesus: "Yes, and all in a single day. However, even though I do these things, you will remain in worry for a time because disbelief and shock are hosts to worry."

Me: "I do not understand. So, even though I know that You have brought these miracles, does my shock leave me in unbelief?"

Jesus: "No, Erin, as there is a difference between disbelief and unbelief. Unbelief means there is a void. After this event, you are in stunned silence and then wonder if I will remove such favor."

Me: "Oh, that's a relief! So does this disbelief remains for a time, or a year?"

Jesus: Smiling. "The magnitude of what occurs leaves you in wonder, thankfulness, in awe and in fear of God. This is not a bad thing here."

Me: "Yes, Lord, it would be just like me, since I am human, to wonder if I will be stripped of favor at any given moment."

Jesus: "Hmm, okay then, I will lavish you with My presence and displays of such love that you will never doubt again."

Me: "Then, Lord, remove my doubt, disbelief, shock or worry right now beforehand so that I have faith You will move this mountain."

Jesus: "It is gone. Now when My recompense is poured out over you, you will no longer doubt I am who I am as I will fulfil all of My promises. I know I have stated this, but I will remind you again. I will do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told. Now, there is a dream weighing on your heart."

Me: "Yes Lord, it is disturbing."

Dream description begins...

I awoke to a radio alarm clock that was loudly playing the Islamic call to prayer. I tried to turn off the clock, but it would not turn off. I then tried to change the radio station, but every channel had the same thing. I finally unplugged the clock altogether.

Shortly after, I heard a knock on the door. Standing there was a college aged man of Middle East descent holding a clipboard. He was wearing a black and white scarf similar to a prayer shawl. He was well groomed with a white V-neck sweater, collared shirt and slacks.

Ahmed: "Hello, my name is Ahmed. I noticed that you unplugged your radio. I would like to come in and talk to you about our culture and the Prophet Muhammad. Do you know anything about this wonderful Prophet?"

He seemed educated and appeared to be kind. As he discussed this subject with me, he did so in a non-confrontational manner.

Me: "You are welcome to share your faith, but can I then share mine with you as well?"

He nodded his agreement and smiled. He stepped inside and sat down at a small table that had two chairs overlooking a peaceful harbor. I do not know where this was, but it seemed like somewhere in Europe based on the electrical outlets and a language I did not recognize being on various signs.

Now, I would normally never answer the door to a stranger, especially to a male stranger in a foreign land. I would also normally never allow someone, especially a man, to enter my hotel room. However, this was not made to be an issue or concern for either of us in this particular dream.

Once Ahmed sat down at the table, he began organizing his papers in front of me on the table.

Ahmed: "After I talk to you and we are done, I have a piece of paper for you to sign. It is just to state that I have given you this information. Do you mind if I take notes?"

Me: "No, it's fine."

While I was unafraid of Ahmed, I was also aware that he could turn angry at some point, so I remained on guard.

Ahmed: "Now, I understand you have turned off the prayer service. Please explain why."

Me: "Like any alarm clock, it woke me up. Since I was then awake, I no longer needed the wake up service." I instantly knew that my answer had been given to me by the Holy Spirit.

Ahmed: "So you then unplugged the radio?"

Me: "Yes."

Ahmed: "But this also then unplugged the clock at the same time. How will you know what time it is?"

Me: "I rely on God and my watch for time."

Ahmed: "Ah yes, tell me of your God?"

Me: "Well, there is not enough time to tell you everything, but I am in town to speak about God as I have written books about the dreams and visions God has given me."

Ahmed: "Interesting. So, God speaks to you and you find the call to prayer blasphemous to your God."

Me: "I did not say this, but, yes, God forbids me to entertain those who run after the god of this world. He is my Father, my Strong Tower, my Prince of Peace, my Emmanuel, my Kinsman Redeemer, my Savior, my Joy, my Love and my Everlasting Hope. He is the only God."

Ahmed: He was angry at my response. "Tell me what God has told you while you slept last night."

Me: "He showed me the destruction of many by a great earthquake and, even then, there is no fear of God. So He then sends punishing heat with no water for relief, but still there is no fear of God."

"He then sends winds, which turn visibility into blindness, and then He rains down cinders of fire, yet still they do not hear the voice of God. Instead of humility, they wage war. Then in a breath, a moment, the fire comes in a massive wave and it is finished."

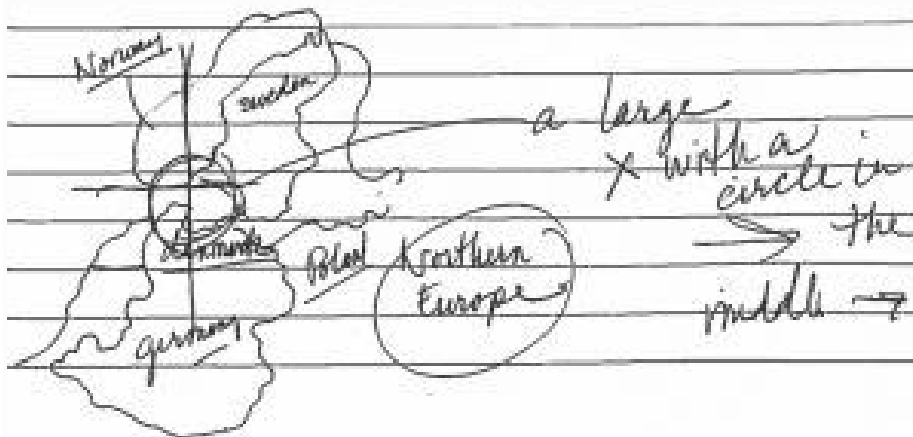

This young man now became furious as he somehow knew that this message had indeed been sent by God Himself.

Ahmed: "Yes, but Allah is even more powerful than your God. Now, I too had a dream last night. Are you prepared for what you will hear? Write this plain, writer, for perhaps you can give me the meaning of this."

Me: "Okay, go ahead."

Ahmed: "There is an area." He paused to pull out a map. "Here, let me show you. Maybe you can tell me what this means."

The first map was of Europe:

Ahmed: "Here, come a little closer. Can you see it? In my dreams, a great flame and smoke came over the area."

He then showed me a different map of Europe:

Ahmed: "There were three crosses and one little cross. The little cross rose up and destroyed the three crosses. There was nothing left and only Allah remained. Yes, and every bit of salvation came from the little cross. Meanwhile, Allah saved so many. Now, are you ready to hear my next dream?"

I said nothing, but simply nodded yes.

Ahmed: "Look here."

I then saw a map of the Middle East. Everything was green, red and black, with some white, all surrounding Israel. Israel was blue and white with the Star of David. The star was set as a target. I saw symbols of a massive green nation to the southeast with a sword pointed at tiny Israel.

I saw something to the east like a red dragon ready to spread its wings to fly. I saw another nation to the northeast and it had something like a leopard or lion ready, watching and waiting to pounce. However, it was broken in the middle and in two sections.

Over Israel to the north were the Crescent Moon and Eastern Star. Down below that and north were two eyes with green stars. It looked envious of the land of Israel. Ahmed then pointed to three crescent moons, each with an Eastern Star.

One was black and white to the southwest, one was green and white to the east and another was red and white to the north. He then drew lines in black, all converging into Israel, the target.

Ahmed: "In my dream, this stain is removed, but even more. What is the meaning?"

He was clearly studying me intently as I answered.

Me: "Interesting dream. I agree with what you have shown me in your dream, but there is more to this. God will set up His Throne here..." I pointed to Jerusalem. "...and all will bow down to Him. It is written."

As I said this, I knew that he wanted me dead.

Ahmed: "Oh, so we are in agreement. Very good, very good. I will send someone to fix your time on the clock. We will plug it back in of course. Now, if you would please sign this paper."

Just as I awoke from this, I saw that it was a declaration to serve his god.

Me: "Lord, this was an awful dream."

Jesus: "I know, Erin, but time has accelerated and things are soon to change. There will be a time when the world caters to another people. They are not a peaceful people, but their platform is peace. The deception is evident as the world adjusts."

Me: "It makes my stomach sick. You are considered the opposite of Savior to these people."

Jesus: "I am the opposite of Savior to those who do not recognize Me as their Savior. This is written and I know them not. The enemy plots and plans and these are vast. Things done in secret are never out of My view and all deeds of the wicked are duly recorded.

"One day, they will kneel before the Throne and will be judged accordingly. There will be records and a fair trial and even those who recognize their guilt will be fully satisfied with a just verdict."

Me: "How will they be satisfied? Will they not moan, groan and wail at the outcome of their trials?"

Jesus: "Yes. This you have seen when they have heard your name on the Heavenly case docket being called. Why would that be? What do you remember?"

Me: "Well, from what I know of, which is only a small fraction, before the Throne of God there can be nothing hidden, nothing unconfessed and nothing contrary to the Holiness of God. Even the cells in my body bowed down before God as if each cell knew the magnitude of God's power and as if my cells did not obey my mind.

"There, my mind had no power and, if there be anything contrary to the holiness of God, then my lips confessed truth. Truth convicts a guilty man. I just pray that I confess anything I have which I have not confessed to God, to You, Lord. If there be anything more in me, then, please, Lord, I want to confess anything else so that I stand before God in humility and reverence."

Jesus: Smiling. "I see nothing, 'no thing', left uncovered. You have confessed numerous times to various infractions, even those in which I have already forgiven you for. Just in case, you confessed them again at the Throne of God in His Courts. I have stood as your attorney and advocate many times against your accuser as he is relentless."

Me: "I am sorry, Lord, but I would rather make sure at the end of the day that I am reconciled. My heart hurts when I offend someone or if I do something contrary to the Fruits of the Spirit. I just want to be blameless before You.”

Jesus: “I know your heart. You are not hiding deceit in your chambers. Though your enemies accuse you of many things, you do not serve them, but must only answer to Me and serve Me. Erin, you are hated because you are testifying to My love letter.

“My love is available to all those who seek Me with their whole heart, yet they build up barriers and walls. Although I build a rampart, I will not breach the walls of a man’s heart, his city, unless I am invited in. I desire to be an invited guest. Once invited, I will then overcome the heart with so much love that the walls will come down.”

Me: “Lord, I saw the visual of something like Jericho as You just said this. So, first You send out angels, or ‘spies’, to examine where we are in our lives and to see if we are ready for more. Then I see marching around the city once a day for seven days.

“However, on the seventh day, the people marched seven times in one day and, with horns, shofars and shouting, the walls of the city fell. The people then invaded and removed the enemy.

“So, You surround us and circle us and then even intensify this in hopes of eventually breaking down our walls and invading our hearts to the point where there is no unclean thing left.”

Jesus: “There will be those who will dwell on the effects upon the people slain inside the city and pay no attention to what the miracle of God is here. Let us instead focus our attention on your life and heart. The enemy enjoys playing victim and does not like attention being drawn to his guilt, but only yours.

“If I look at your heart, angels could also be like ‘spies’, even though they are good workers, helpers and messengers sent by My command. Since I see the beginning from the end, angels do not surprise Me with new information nor do they surprise My Father. This is like a parable as each time around your heart could be seven years.

“On the seventh year, you experienced seven times more of Me.” He smiled. “Your walls were easy to breach as your chambers of your heart were accessible. Anything left contrary to My love was removed and the enemies were slaughtered.

“Now the enemy is outside the gates of your heart. I have completely invaded the city of your heart and now dwell there in your heart.”

Me: “But, Lord, I accepted You into my heart years before this.”

Jesus: “Correct. You allowed Me to dwell in your city, but there were other occupants there as well. I was not at war with them, but they demanded that I be removed. So, at times, I was in relative silence due to their shouting and clamor. It took a very long time before you recognized that the things of this world were competing with Me for a place in your heart.”

Me: “You are right, Lord. My cares, worries and daily troubles rose up and kept You silenced to me. I am sorry for that, but, Lord, I still do this. I still worry and I still have trouble.”

Jesus: “Yes, but this is different as now these troubles do not dwell in your heart. They are outside and do not make you forget Me or call out to you to act alone. You now call out to Me in everything you do. I am now the city in your heart and your Occupant. Now, you have others who dwell in your heart as well, your loved ones, and this is true and good, but I am here with you.”

Me: Crying. “I understand, Lord.”

Jesus: “Now, I just took you on a journey of how I call out to those I have chosen. Your dream was about those who have a different dweller in their heart. Their city gates are sealed and their walls are well fortified. The enemy dwells there and plots.

“Though I am outside of their gates, their cities are made of glass and their deeds are visible from the Throne as My Father sees all that is under Him. What was shown to you on this map is true. Even though the enemy schemes, nothing is done in which I am unaware.”

Me: “Is there anything I should do with this information?”

Jesus: “No. This time is soon to come. You cannot reverse this nor would anyone pay attention to what you write unless that very thing comes to pass after the fact. This is My battle and you are to testify to My love.

"The plots of the enemy are notable and follow a pattern. They too circle a city or country and create clamor. They pray over their loudspeakers in reverence to their god as if making noise will somehow bind the strength of this god on their hearts.

"Instead, their hearts grow colder, blacker and void of all love. Be careful as the very message of peace leads to the destruction of those with peace as a mantle. It is easy to call out lovely things as weapons, the idea of fruits, but it is another thing to partake in the fruit by eating that which you become.

"The Fruits of the Spirit are bitter fruit to the enemy. So what is peace but just a concept of deceit? Partitioning a city does not work when one side's dweller desires the destruction of another."

Me: "Yes, Lord, this does not work and I have witnessed, well, experienced, the same thing with my enemy. Whenever I negotiate a fair deal, they still whine, complain and constantly work against me because their only true goal is my total destruction. Lord, I wish I had never negotiated to begin with."

Jesus: "I know, Erin, but I have ultimately allowed this for your benefit. Everything meant for evil in your life will be used for good and the good of your children. That mountain is soon to be removed. In one command I can remove it. You will even say 'move' to this mountain and it will fall into the sea. This time is at hand."

Me: "Lord, what is time? All of these calendars, dates, all of it, are so confusing. Lord, why did You allow this?"

Jesus: "Erin, does the clock and calendar from God's House seem out of God's control? Is it not guarded by four angels and under the care of Heaven?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, it is precise. There are many rings and wheels and all but one turns according to each other. The one exception is not turned by cogs at all, but only by God and at His speed, 'God-speed'."

Jesus: Smiling and laughing. "It seems to you as if I am constantly deflecting your questions on time and I am. Now, why do you need these answers as no good can come from this? If I tell you a date, what will happen to you prior to this?"

"You will first make yourself sick as you will have no peace. Or you will anticipate events to happen a certain way, a certain intensity or even with a certain result, but, as you know from your own experience, you will still be in unrest.

"Erin, My ways are higher than yours and only God, My Father on the Throne, knows the time of My coming. His ways are higher as He knows when He will send Me. Even if I were to give you times, the world would discount them. There would even be arguments amongst you and nothing good would come out of this.

"Even Enoch is called by the world as the 'father of time', yet who follows his calendar? The time of My ministry was three and a half years. This time lined up with every calendar written, even Enoch's, yet still no one took notice until long after. Even then it did not matter to man.

"Erin, you live here in the times of great turmoil and the times as prophesied about thousands of years ago. For it is even written that Enoch, the seventh from Adam, prophesied saying, 'Behold, the Lord comes with ten thousands of His holy ones' (Jude 14)."

Me: "I am sorry, Lord, but something is happening to me right now and I do not know how to describe it. It is a searing heat in my heart. I am experiencing emotions from memories from the year 2000. It is as if I have experienced a type of time hiccup. My dreams are reflecting the ages of my sons at that time.

"My one son was fourteen months old and my other son was not quite three years old. It was near the time of my mom's diagnosis of cancer. The time has been brought to the forefront of all my thoughts and dreams. Why is this happening?"

Jesus: "This was the time of your very first vision and was in the first month of that year after you had fasted and prayed for 21 days. Then something happened the next month and you took no food or water for three days. You were then caught up in a vision and told that you needed to 'die to yourself'.

"You were in awe and began your separation from the things of this world. During this time, the enemy recognized that you had awakened from slumber and was called for service to Me. He sought your destruction as a result.

"He soon after relentlessly came against your businesses, your failing marriage, your sons, your family, your friends and your health. However, he was also granted permission to do this as you needed to fully rely on Me and had to die to yourself. I know that this was painfully long as I was with you. Even though at times I seemed silent, I was there."

As I began to cry, Jesus lifted my chin to look into His eyes again.

Jesus: "Erin, you have stood the test of time. You have stood the test against your enemies. Now you stand before Me in love, even though you are battered. Although you are disheartened and downcast, I am here and I am with you. I have seen all that has occurred and My recompense is with Me."

Me: "Lord, I had a dream of a beautiful mountain and a downpour of rain. The sun appeared behind me and shone down on what looked like a golf course cut into this mountain. The course was impossible to play, but it was beautiful.

"Then, and as I stood staring at the beautiful sight, from behind and over the mountain, I saw black clouds like smoke sweep over the sky. I could see glimpses of red light, a red ball like the moon or sun, but I could not tell which as the clouds were so thick.

"I could only see glimmers of the red ball when these clouds, or smoke, thinned. In my dream, I was not terrified for myself or for our household, but was afraid for those not ready."

Jesus: He smiled at me with a reassuring smile. "Erin, it is darkest before the dawn, but to many it is also beautiful and carefree prior to that great and terrible day. Perhaps they were even golfing, but this does not matter. It only matters that I know the times and seasons. You are to continue on your course and rejoice as things for you are accelerating. I am here.”

He placed His hand over my hand and then over my heart.

Jesus: “It has been a long and difficult journey, but I have not forgotten you. I have also not forgotten that which has been done unto you and your children. My recompense is with Me. I love you.”

Me: “I feel something is changing, Lord. I love You too.”

Jesus: “Then do not worry or be afraid. All things work for the good of those who love Me and have been called according to My purpose. For those I have chosen, I have also predestined. I love you and you are mine.”

As He smiled, He lit up as bright as the sun.

Dream over...

Note on the ‘red ball’ that Erin saw in this dream:

Just to confirm, the red ball that Erin saw was either the moon or the sun, but Erin simply could not tell which. There is no hidden message in this. This is not a hidden reference to Nibiru in any way, shape or form.

Erin has never even received the slightest hint of Nibiru. Even though Erin has been criticized before about not talking about Nibiru in her dreams, this is unwarranted as she only talks about what God has shown her and Nibiru is NOT one of those things.

Now, would a large planet with wings hiding and then suddenly sneak attacking the Earth not be mentioned somewhere in the Bible? Some may say that this is just too catastrophic to mention. I disagree as just look at all the other stuff the Lord brings up in the Bible, including the previous flooding and eventual burning of the entire Earth.

He is not going to be shy about this. That being said, should the ‘Nibiru’ status change in the future in Erin’s dreams from the Lord, you will all be amongst the first to know. Trust that God would reveal something this huge to Erin if it is going to become an issue or a sign to us soon.

Dream 228 – Jesus and the Little Red Journal

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for all that You have done for all of us! What an incredible week it has been.

First, some background on my recent dreams. The Lord has taken me on quite a personal journey this week. I have met with Him every day because of things in the natural which have occurred to our family, friends and me personally.

I questioned what the Lord was doing and wondered, based on my relentless zeal for Jesus and my quest for answers, that perhaps I was even 'losing my faculties'. However, Jesus was quick to correct my thoughts and brought me back to what He was doing here and right now.

Last Friday, I was with my eldest son at a grocery store to find him a birthday cake. I had just picked up my other teens and they were also in the car with me. As we walked to the cashier, I passed a cart with a toddler in it and the little boy looked at me.

As he did, I suddenly felt a ripple in the atmosphere that I simply cannot explain. It was similar to 'd  j   vu', but a much longer version. This toddler suddenly looked just like my youngest son and the little guy was even wearing the exact outfit my son had worn on a trip I had made back in the year 2000.

The outfit this boy was wearing was now a little blue winter outfit with a hat with ear flaps just like I had my youngest boy in back then. The boy looked up at me and I heard the word, 'mama', which was the only thing my son had spoken for several years.

I stopped my cart and looked at the boy, but did so as naturally as possible under the circumstances. However, it still must of seemed odd as my older son with me in the store had noticed my reaction and became concerned for me.

Son: "Mom, are you okay? What's wrong?"

When I turned to look back at the little boy, he was no longer my younger son as a toddler. While the boy there was wearing a similar outfit as my son had, I noticed that it was still quite a bit different.

I began to feel a wave of sorrow and illness sweep over my body and became as white as a ghost. As my heart pounded, my son began to panic.

Son: "Mom, tell me what's happening?"

I then proceeded to share what just happened as he helped me back out to the car with our groceries. As I sat in the front seat, another wave came over me and it seemed I was yet again back in the year 2000, but I quickly came out of this.

While this seemed to make no logical sense, I started to explain to the kids what had just occurred. I then quickly did a status check of my health, but noticed that I did not feel anything physically wrong with me.

For some reason, my youngest son, who is now age 17, became encouraged by all of this. He then asked me what was happening back then. I explained to him that he and I had taken a trip up to see his grandmother in Idaho after she had just completed her rounds of chemotherapy.

At the time, my mom had now been feeling energetic again for the first time since being diagnosed in the summer with cancer. It was around Thanksgiving and I had just sold my last retail store. I was quite happy and healthy back then as well.

This particular year 2000 had been marked by my vision of Elijah and Enoch, followed by a separation in my marriage, my mom's cancer, the sale of my retail stores and the death of a friend. All of this served to trigger the surrender of my life to the Lord while crying about all of my losses while sitting in the Portland Rose Garden.

When we got home from the store, I immediately went to the Lord. He called me to search for a few items, including a small Red Journal from January 9th, 2011 to March 31st, 2011. He also wanted me to search for a photo of my son in the same blue outfit that I had just witnessed at the store.

This was a painful search for me, but I soon found what I was looking for. However, I then set everything aside for a few days before going back to the Lord again on December 5th, 2016. I then later had several more dreams, but one in particular was with my daughter as a baby.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately sitting next to Jesus up in Heaven.

Jesus: "Where did you go, Erin?"

Me: "Searching, Lord, painfully searching. Why did You take me back to this time? I was happy and my sons were happy. In these pictures, I had peace on my face. My mom, even with her wig due to the cancer treatments, looked so happy too."

Jesus: "This was sixteen years ago. Erin, it was not an accident that I brought you here. These were the times before your trouble.

"Your children have brought you the greatest joy and I have never forgotten how you have stood in the gap for them and prayed many times for each of them. You have forsaken all you have for them, even with all of your difficulties, so that they would never need to worry and would have laughter and joy.

"Though there was abuse done to them by others, much of this was shielded from them by angels and their memories were veiled. Soon, your children will be healed, renewed and restored and you will see this.

"All of your prayers have been heard and all your petitions have been recorded. Your case has been heard in the Courts of My Father. I will restore all that the enemy has stolen from you. These photos record your last few happy moments before an epic journey. I have never forgotten your journey and I remember all of it.

"More importantly, I have seen the beginning from the end and have seen what was done to you that you have not seen. I have taken hold of your right hand." Jesus reached for my hand. "Erin, your sons and daughter remember their best times and it was always with you.

"Your heart grieved so much that it was broken and you never have fully been restored. I will restore your heart and heal your grief. The happiness you once had is only a small glimmer of what I am about to do with you. Do you see what I have done so far?"

Suddenly, I saw an epic journey from beginning to end. I saw my race, a crazy winding race and a painful journey. At one point, I saw a stretch of desert which seemed endless. It was barren and my lips were parched.

The heat was so punishing that I had no tears as all the water had been drained from my body. It hurt to see all of this. I then saw events that paralleled my race. It was like a map, but in a movie format. It was all so difficult and I was so alone.

I then spent the next couple of days taking care of some enemy trouble that the Lord had instructed me to finish. However, He also led me to read the entire small Red Journal again, a painful record encompassing a span of three full months in 2011.

It was quite excruciating as I did not hear from the Lord back then. I only had prayers, petitions and records of what was happening. The Lord then instructed me to share this Red Journal for my husband to read as well. I then went back to the Lord yesterday, December 8th, 2016...

Dear Father,

The painful journey that I have taken has been a lonely one, but You were always there with me. After reading my little Red Journal, there are barely any words. Thank You for being the Author of my faith life.

I know that my life would be void of value without the gifts of my children and the trials we have endured. Though we are not perfect, we are perfect for your purposes. That being said, all I can say is, wow, how painful. I was about to lose my children because I no longer had enough money to continue fighting.

My character was questioned and my sanity was judged. My health was scrutinized and my apartment was labeled. My very ability to work was a detriment, yet, without a job, I could not support myself and my children and would lose them with this.

My sons were stripped momentarily from me and there was even a huge battle to just keep my daughter. Even then, it looked as if I would still lose her too. I was a puppet in a horrible theater, all seemingly controlled by my enemy and seemingly for his pleasure and delight. I suffered greatly during this time.

Had I remained in the previous state that I had resided and not moved to Washington State, I would have been safer and able to fight from a much stronger position. However, I had no leading and moved. I paid, Father, oh and how I paid dearly.

This Red Journal was a small snapshot of the battle. The grief of my heart was labeled on those pages. I could not sleep and I was rattled and scared. I knew that my heart would fail if I lost my kids. To make matters worse, I was all alone and isolated.

My entire life became exposed in court papers. All of my accomplishments were twisted and somehow now made to seem self-serving and void of a heart. All of my sacrifices were meant to look like calculated moves, supposedly because I was evil according to all of my enemies' false testimonials. Oh Lord, the list of accusations was so long.

However, even in all of this, I saw something, something that I had never noticed before. You, Father, answered my prayers. You did not always answer my prayers immediately, but You always answered them faithfully and right at the perfect time.

When I read this Red Journal of pain again, I suddenly could see not just the trouble, but You at work. My younger son and daughter were fully returned to me by September of 2011. My older son was then released to me three years later in 2014.

Father, You returned all of my children to me just as You promised, but I failed to see it at first, so please forgive me. You have done everything according to Your plans and Your timing and it is always perfect despite my complaints.

Bless You, Father, as there is no greater 'Dad' than You. Not only did You return my children, but You sustained us during some very difficult times. You continue to sustain us. I love You.

I was then called back up to meet with Jesus again.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Me: "Lord, I still need Your help. Could You heal me soon, Lord? You created pearls in luster and in depth of color. You created the beauty of the feathers of a peacock and even a tiny hummingbird. Here, in Heaven and in Your presence, I am made whole and vibrant. Please consider healing me and my children. Please, Lord, could you clothe me like I am now and like You do the lilies of the field?" (Luke 12:27)

Jesus: Smiling. "This is a good thing, but you have no peace yet. This I know as your heart is troubled still. You are well prepared to receive this, yet well prepared not to receive this too. Erin, I am about to do something. Are you ready? Now, do you remember what I showed you long ago?"

Jesus reminded me of the Ring of Fire and how this would become more active. Just as He downloaded this, I had an alert on my tablet from my earthquake app. I looked at it and it read that an 8.0 earthquake had just struck Kirakira in the Solomon Islands. I looked up the meaning of 'kirakira' and found out that it means 'shining' or 'glittering'.

Me: "This is a huge sign, Lord! Today, Lord, today?"

Jesus: Smiling. "I Am who I say I AM. You are in My arms and under My care. I have NOT forgotten you! Be strong and courageous. I love you."

The Lord was shining so bright that I could barely make out His facial features. The sun seemed to be shining so brightly all around Him that He appeared bright and shimmering.

I was hopeful all that day as I was waiting for something, but nothing happened. I remained hopeful all night too as I was again waiting for something, but still nothing happened. I then woke up at around 3:15am and got up briefly. However, I then went back to sleep and was called back to Him.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was now like a child back up in Heaven with Jesus. He was again bright and shining and looked like He was clothed in the sun. He motioned for me to lie down in the soft grass. He then told me to begin, from the top of my head with my hair, to give thanks for my life and my body, the vessel of my Spirit, the Counselor, in us.

I thanked God for the gift of my life and even for all of my trials. I thanked Him for the gift of my children and their lives. I thanked Him for the gift of my husband and his life. I thanked Him for my dreams and visions.

I thanked Him for my friends and extended family and their households. I thanked Him for all that He has given me to keep me going from strength to strength. I then thanked God for all that He has done from beginning to end, but especially for sending Jesus to save me and to save us!

He then brought me to my feet and helped me to stand as I was now unable to stand on my own. My body was limp as He placed me in His arms. He then took my hand and placed it on my head.

Jesus: "Now it is time to give thanks for this body. It is time to make peace with your body. No more warring with your vessel. The two of you must reconcile."

Me: Crying. "Lord, forgive me, but my body has always been at odds with me."

Jesus: "Your worldly flesh is at odds. Your body does not fight you, but you fight against it. Now, give thanks, for your body has been with you through these wars and has not failed you even though you see the scars.

"You know the effects your troubles have had. Even though you have not been through a war on a battlefield, and even if you had, you still must make peace with this body that you have been given. You must forgive your body as it is a gift. You have forgotten that in it houses my great treasure, your heart. Now let us make peace today!"

Me: Now I was really crying here and even as I now write this. "Oh Lord, I cannot apologize enough. I have forgiven every enemy and I have reconciled my heart and my soul to You, but I have never forgiven my body for betraying me.

"In fact, I curse it more than I am thankful. I joke about it and laugh at it all the time. I mock my age and despise my wrinkles. I see the effects of my trials and the scar and bulge above my c-section and curse it, yet I love my daughter, the divine result.

"I am angry at my skin carved out from the effects of sun exposure in my foolish youth. My fingers can barely write and my head some days can barely lift. I look at my face and my hair and I am so sad at my loss.

"My legs can no longer dance like I once did and there is so much more. I am racked with pain from head to toe. I miss the years of my health. My scars are many and so have been my battles.

"Organs have been removed, batteries keep my heart pumping and a hinge holds my vertebrae together in my spine. The expense has been astronomical and now I wither in place like a flower."

Jesus: Smiling. "Then, Erin, it is time. It is time to make peace and it is time to reverse the curses and bless this vessel."

He began from my hair and He used my hand to go over each part. I recognized the battles that each of these parts have gone through with me and thanked Him for all of it. We started from top of my head and then He had me end with my feet.

Jesus: "Beautiful are the feet of those who bring Good News."

He then brought me over to the River of Life.

Jesus: "I know I have brought you here many times, but this time it is different. This time you are new. This time, you are one with your body and I am One with you. You are a new creation, Erin. Are you ready? Come!"

Just then, He walked me into the river...

Dream over...

When I woke up, I felt the need to reconcile my body. I have only been thankful for it when it serves a purpose. I am also only thankful when I see someone unable to walk or unable to see. I am so upset that I never once reconciled the curses I had put upon myself with my body. So today is a good day. Today is a God day.

The Lord requires all of us to be thankful and make peace. Please join me today in doing so. He is about to do something with all of us, so we must prepare fully.

Love and blessings, Erin

Erin's Husband's reaction to reading the Red Journal:

This journal was extremely hard to read as the attacks on Erin were relentless, false and unjustified. I felt helpless as I read all of this as I so wished I had been by her side to defend her. However, the Lord had different plans and I knew from reading this that this was all part of the process of making Erin who she is today. For that, I am grateful.

As I read this journal, I became so saddened by living through her battles in these pages that I cried. This is not something I do every day, but it was so painful to read and so descriptive of the battles, that I had no choice but to keep wiping the tears in order to be able to see and keep reading.

Any 'envy' that I may have ever had that it was not me that was able to have these dreams with the Lord immediately vanished as I read. I quickly realized that, in order to be used fully by the Lord and to have a heart of gold, that great things were expected, but also that the blacksmith would have to be used to hammer out all of the dross first.

I knew that this was not something that I could have handled with anywhere near the grace and love that Erin handled it with. I became amazed at how she went back to God time after time during these battles, even when it seemed that He was deaf to her pleas. In a way, this journal made me love her even more, if that is even possible.

It also made me want to take personal vengeance against her enemies, enemies that never stopped attacking her with wave after wave of trouble. These enemies truly never rested or gave her any time for rest or peace.

However, as I prayed on all of this, I suddenly realized yet again that vengeance really is fully the Lord's and that I had to give this up fully to Him. I felt a call to pray:

Thank You, Lord, for blessing me with this wonderful woman and loving wife. Even now as I type this testimonial, tears fill my eyes yet again as I realize just how greatly You have blessed me by bringing me my wife, my perfect gift, hand selected by You and You alone.

Lord, I ask, no, I now plead with You to reverse all that the enemy has stolen over these painful years and soon. Yes, always in Your perfect timing, but I pray that You answer and fulfill all of Your mighty promises to Erin very soon as I am helpless to do anything for her on my own.

I now realize that I am but a small man and that only You can do this. So, I ask for all of this in Your Precious Name, in Jesus' Name alone, Amen!

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for my family and thank You for the prayers of my friends.

It is beautiful outside here today and the snow is covering the trees and the ground. The pond is now completely frozen. The temperature went from being warm one day, with us even using our portable air conditioners, to a full on freeze. There seemed to be barely any transition between the two.

Looking back, the animals outside somehow knew that this sudden change in temperature was coming. The squirrels, chipmunks, deer, birds, both local and migrating, had been darting around desperately searching and preparing for winter two weeks prior to normal. God, You obviously let them know and informed them.

In contrast, we humans rely on a flawed television weather forecast for our information. Sigh, if only we could get real-time weather forecasts from You as Your ways and forecasts are always flawless.

Today, I am thankful for warmth. When we had our power outage not that long ago, I noticed that the cold came so quickly. Thank You, Lord, for keeping our powerlines free from ice and snow. We are truly blessed beyond measure by You.

Father, You are the One who truly provides warmth in the winter and cool in the summer for inside while it is the opposite outside. We are clearly nothing without You, so I thank You today for our warmth.

This season and the last have been difficult ones. A lot of trouble has come and, thankfully, gone. While the perception of looming disaster lingers as troubles still come at us in wave after wave, when they do finally reach us at the shore, they come in as no more than a ripple.

The waves that I see on the horizon are just so massive compared to the little waves that finally reach us where we stand in safety under Your Cover. Thank You for diverting troubles away from us. Father, please continue to keep us safe.

Also, thank You for healing our little dog, Zoey. She has brought me great companionship and joy during some of my most difficult struggles. When I cried the most and was alone, You sent her to comfort me, lick my wounds and sit near me. She would even look concerned as she rested her head on my leg when I wept.

In the beginning of my writing, Zoey would sit on my chair right next to me. She has been there for me too many times to count, so thank You, Father, for sending us our furry companions. These amazing 'fur balls' are such a true blessing to so many of us.

Lord, we have many pressing needs now and they all seem equally urgent and important. As always, we do not know how You do this, but You know every detail. You know how, when, what, where and if, whether it be angel or man. Quite simply, Lord, You truly know all things and everything.

So for me it has been a time of complete surrender and trust because without You we would fail in all of our endeavors to try to save ourselves. Based on the dreams I have had from You recently, I really have no choice but to take comfort in Your promises as I just know something huge is coming that is out of our control.

Dream 1 description begins...

The ground was covered in snow as my children and I viewed two massive clouds in the sky above us. We were surprised to also see the Aurora Borealis on the horizon in the distance. These 'northern lights' then began to dance. While this all started small, they eventually even illuminated the clouds.

Right before our very eyes, these massive clouds then formed into massive white wings. They took on more and more detail until finally an angel appeared from them. This angel was so intensely large that he filled the entire sky.

Just as I was about to pick up the phone to call my husband to tell him to go look outside his office window at this, the phone rang. It was my husband calling me at just that moment and proceeded to tell me that he had just seen the same angel from work. This was quite amazing as his office is over 20 miles away from our house.

As my children and I went to walk outside of our house to get a better view, all six of us were suddenly translated to a school parking lot. We saw many people there running and screaming in horror at the sight. However, other people knew that this angel was actually a sign from God of His protection and cheered instead.

As we walked in the parking lot, we came across three old cars from the 1930s to 1940s parked there. I could tell that they had been there for a while. These cars were fascinating to me as they seemed quite out of place.

Dream 1 description over...

After this, I had several other dreams of supernatural translation to various different areas. One in particular was a dream inside of a large supermarket.

Dream 2 description begins...

As I was walking through a large supermarket, I heard the Voice of God directing my attention towards various people. I soon noticed that He did not direct me to the people I thought He would and vice versa. I then noticed that each person that I had been directed to was somehow supernaturally illuminated, thereby 'marking' them.

For some of those that were 'marked', I merely had to brush by them and touch their arm and somehow they would instantly know that God had sent me. In all, I went up to about ten different people and healed them by God's power.

After doing so, I did not tell them anything about myself except for my first name of Erin. I then told them that Jesus loves them, that He is coming soon and to spread the Good News.

However, that was all I told them as I somehow knew that I was to specifically avoid any show-'man'-ship as this was all to only be about God leading the ship. I was there simply to just obey His lead and not my own leading.

Dream 2 description over...

Dream 3 description begins...

I was in a type of arena watching a hockey game when I again saw several people illuminated or 'marked' in the Spirit. I then heard the Voice of God directing me.

God: "Erin, watch as this worker falls from My favor."

I saw a man that was about to heal these 'marked' people as he loudly declared the Name of Jesus. However, I also noticed that he was doing this while making sure that he was in full view of the cameras. However, before he could heal any of them, I saw the 'marked' people that he was to heal suddenly lose their 'marks'.

The man was suddenly without the ability to heal from God. After he saw that this had happened, he started to stammer with his words and became quite embarrassed. He was then booed right out of the arena.

Me: "What happened, Father?"

I then saw the man in the parking lot as he was being visited by angels. However, I could not see what was happening nor could I hear what was being said.

Dream 3 description over...

Dream 4 description begins...

As I was standing there, I could feel rain pouring down all over me. However, I was not being flooded with the rain. The rain was also neither cold nor irritating. It was a constant downpour. I also noticed that there was no wind.

As I woke up, I could hear the voice of Jesus, "And the latter rain..."

Dream 4 description over...

Father, I was taught at my church that the latter rain is a 'bad thing', so please help me to understand this controversy. I also come to You today with other things, and there are many, including needs, requests, prayers and answers to questions.

I lay all of these at Your feet in the Throne Room and at the foot of the Cross. Please help me with what I am seeking. I love You and I long for Your presence.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately on the bank of the River of Life as I turned to look over at Jesus. He was completely enrobed in the light of the sun as He smiled at me. The river looked like it had silver mercury on top of the water, yet it was pure water. I realized that this was the effect of the light of Jesus as it reflected on the water.

This all looked so magnificent on the top of the water. While the water was still completely inviting, it somehow seemed almost like a thicker liquid or even a solid today. However, this is particularly difficult to describe. I was in tears as Jesus turned, faced me and reached for my hands.

Jesus: "I am glad that you are here with Me, Erin. You did not select Me from the beginning, but I chose you. From the time of your birth until this very day, I have never been far from you. In these last seasons, I have been with you in every moment.

"Your years of painful trials and endless tests have brought you to Me. Many have run from Me, but you remained. You have questioned My methods when trouble fell upon you, but in your trouble I was found by you.

"I was there with you in your times of great pain and suffering. I was there with you in your times of great shame and humiliation. I was there with you in your times of loneliness and darkness. I was there with you in heartache and in heartbreak. I never forgot one tear, Erin, not one."

Me: Crying. "Lord, I knew You were there with me, even when I was a child. Even then, I somehow knew there was someone with me. I cried out to You and those cries were never lost. I am sorry for the years that

You were with me that I did not know You yet. Thank You for keeping me safe during my rebellious youth.

“Thank You for giving me back my children as You had always promised. When my children were young, I had thought that this would be impossible. Thank You for sending me a Godly husband when I thought I was destined to remain alone.

“Thank You for turning my life of pain in those journals into a love story of how I longed for You even when I did not know if You could hear me. Lord, I wanted to know how to love You and You showed me how. You showed me that You are so much more than a symbol on a Cross or a concept on some pages.

“You are more than a ‘god to conjure up at a whim’ or an ‘oracle to rise up to our demands’. You are real, Lord, and You are more real than even the air that I breathe or the water that I drink. You are everything to me and I would gladly go through my lifetime of troubles again just to know You like I do now.

“I realize that I am not the most perfect of vessels. I am not active in church activities anymore. I am not what the world would call worthy for any relationship with You. I spent many years with selfish ambitions. I spent many years torturing my body to try and perfect it.

“I spent many years chasing the world’s offerings. I spent many years running from myself. I have been divorced twice and married three times and this alone would disqualify me from Christian ministry. I have been bankrupt several times due to my legal and medical issues.

“To many, all of this would disqualify me as not having good stewardship or even good character. In fact, that I am standing here with You today at all would disgust so many Christians. Lord, I am so sorry as had I known from the beginning what I know now, well, maybe I would have made better choices.”

Jesus: “Erin, I am your Judge and I was there with you. Now, what choices did the world leave you? You trusted in what you could see, but now you know how to wait.”

I suddenly left our visit to look outside to watch the snow fall. As the sun was still shining, I noticed that the snow looked like little diamonds as it fell. I quickly snapped a photograph and went back to our visit.

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, were you distracted?"

Me: "Forgive me, Lord, but, while I was writing, the sun came out over the snow falling and it was so beautiful."

Jesus: Laughing. "I know, Erin, as I sent this for you to see. Now, while I look to the heart, I realize that your history would disqualify you from working in finance or from being on certain church boards. However, I did not create you for this. If you were created for these things, then your tests would have been different.

"Instead, you were created to be here with Me in this moment. Do not disqualify yourself, Erin. Back sixteen years ago, you were told to die to yourself. Other than physical death, this requires hard work. You signed up for something that virtually no one volunteers for.

"However, this too was also planned from the time of your birth. Sixteen years ago, you accepted a greater call. You then recognized that you had a heart condition and requested a heart of gold. Now, does a heart of gold happen from success to even greater success? No!

"A heart of gold happens from going through the fire and the furnace of affliction. Erin, you went through the flames. You now feel battered and worn, but, to Me, you are more than qualified, you are perfect."

Me: "But..."

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh no, Erin, not a 'but'..."

Me: "Lord, have I really lost all of my selfish ambitions? I do not feel like I have."

Jesus: Smiling. "Well then, what are your selfish ambitions?"

Me: I thought for a moment. "Well, I...hmm...well, I was hoping...hmm...Well, Lord, I want to be healed."

Jesus: "Yes, but you just had many thoughts. What did these thoughts involve?"

Me: "I am sorry, Lord, but there were many. I want to be healed. I want You to use me to heal others, all in Your Name. I want so much to remain private by sneaking into children's cancer centers during the night to heal them. I would then leave notes about You for their parents. I want so much for people to know how much You love them.

"That being said, I hate the thought of anyone focusing on me. Also, people could easily hurt me simply by pointing out all of my failures. I sometimes feel that it is best if I simply remain silent and tucked away."

Jesus: "Hmm, well this was not self-focused at all until the few sentences at the very end." He laughed good-naturedly as He said this. "Now, how about you let Me handle the details? Have I failed you so far?"

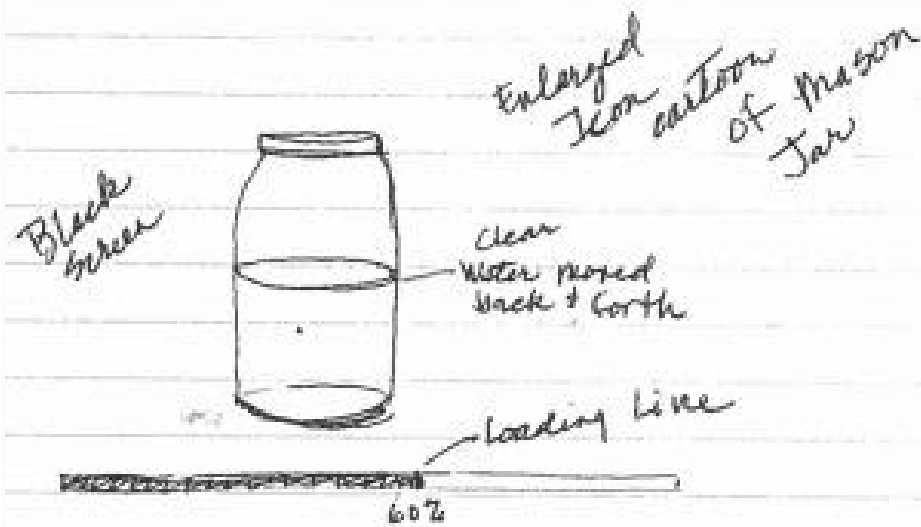

Me: "No, Lord."

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, I have no plans to start now. Now, last night, I gave you another dream. Do you recall it?"

Me: Smiling. "Yes, as it was quite clear. It made me laugh because You know that I do not like waiting."

Dream 5 description begins...

I was in a dark garage and there was nothing in it except for a wooden box to sit on and an electronic tablet to view. However, I could not use the tablet as the screen was doing something funny. There was a Mason Jar on the screen that was filling up with water, acting almost like an hourglass.

There was a caption under the Mason Jar:

"Your device is uploading. Do not pause. Your patience is appreciated."

After a few hours, the caption under the Mason Jar changed to the following:

"The updates to your device will enhance your current features and allow for greater speed and mobile capability."

Just as I finally went to impatiently hit a button, a tab came up with another caption:

“Are you sure you want to pause your update? Doing so will delay your enhanced features.”

I laughed when I read this as I quickly noticed that I actually could not pause even if I had wanted to. When I did touch the screen, it was obvious that the device was now in complete control of the update and I even had no ability to turn the device off.

I then noticed the total time that it took to complete the update. The update had lasted to just short of 7am. In total, the update had taken from 3pm in the afternoon to just before 7am the next day. This amounted to roughly 16 hours in total, give or take.

I also notice that, just as the little Mason Jar on the screen finally became completely full with ‘water’, a new caption popped up:

I woke up just as the tablet started to explain the new features of my device. It did this by displaying messages in different languages one language at a time.

Dream 5 description over...

Jesus: Laughing. “Erin, you seemed to have patience.”

Me: “Yes, shocking, right?” I laughed with Him. “However, I was very curious and just knew that this was from You, Lord. However, why the Mason Jar?”

Jesus: Smiling. “Here is a bit of history. The Mason Jar is one of the sturdiest clear vessels and does not break easily. While you are welcome to search for nuggets, it seems to Me that you were shown a clear vessel with a download of water using a common form of technology. You check this device often to see if there has been any change.”

Me: Laughing. "Yes, Lord, and I am doing that now. Every morning, I awake hoping for changes to my own vessel and check to see."

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, I know. Now, are you ready for greater service?"

Me: "Oh yes, Lord, please."

Jesus: "Then come..."

As He reached for my hand, my vision seemed to become like a camera filming at ground level. I could now only see the backs of our feet, our ankles and heels, and the bottoms of our white robes.

I could see the top of the water as Jesus stepped into the water first to help me in. I then saw an extremely bright light shining from Him like the sun as He faced towards me in the water.

Dream over...

I was not at all ready for this dream to end here. However, the Lord stopped it in anticipation of finishing this on another day. I started to cry as I had been hoping to be baptized and perhaps even healed.

Who really knows how this will all unfold other than Jesus? Only God knows. So now I must simply wait, yes wait (smiles), for the download to continue.

Love and blessings, Erin

Dream 230 – Jesus and the Redemption of the Heart of a Sinner

Received Sunday, December 18, 2016

24 inches of snow plus some freezing rain meant some 'downpours' here. Power stayed on, so thank You, Lord!

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for my husband, my children and my friends. I have been blessed by You continuously and I stand amazed.

Thank You for returning us home safely yesterday. My husband and I had to make a trip to the store and post office yesterday and it was a 'white knuckle' drive. The icy roads combined with the fresh snow created treacherous conditions. While we had left early in the morning to avoid trouble, it was really the last hour of our trip that had become quite difficult. So thank You, Father, for safely bringing us home!

I have had a mystifying week. While we remain right in the midst of trouble, we still have not actually experienced any of the trouble. So thank You, Father, for keeping us safe here as well.

Something happened to me a few days ago, but I am still not sure exactly what happened. This had come quickly to me as a vision just after my husband and I were watching headline news together.

The news report was of a young man who had walked into a church with a Glock 45 and killed so many wonderful Christian prayer warriors (my term for them). I had first heard this story over a year ago and I remember thinking at that time, 'Lord, pure evil walked in and slaughtered Your people. Now what are You going to do?'

I now apologize for doing this, Father, as I know this was a challenge to You. While no excuse, at the time I asked this, I was distraught over this crime and had wanted justice. I also asked, 'Father, nine lives are now gone. Why would You allow this?' I did not receive an answer from God on my question.

When praying again on this recently, I noticed that I called this shooter 'kid'. I realized I was doing this because, at my age, he still looked like a kid to me. Anyway, just a few days ago, this kid's face came across the television screen again and reopened the 'wounds'. However, in the ensuing vision, I saw something about this 'kid' in a flash.

I asked my husband to rewind and freeze the picture on the kid's face. As I stared at his face, all I could see was pure evil at first. However, this vision then seemed to open a screen to me briefly and I saw a choir of angels, along with the glory of the nine people that had been slain by this kid.

I then saw this heavenly entourage interceding and praying for this young man, as well as their families. I saw that each of these people had now received a special crown of glory unlike anything I had ever seen before during my visits with the Lord.

The Lord then had me scan beyond these nine people and there I saw a massive wave of saints who were also wearing these crowns of special glory. Their voices were being heard directly at the Throne of God. There were easily more than ten thousand voices just from the area that I was witnessing.

As I viewed this, I felt my heart start to pound in my chest and then almost seem to stop with a flutter. When this vision closed, only the face of evil on the television screen then remained. I suddenly looked quite shaken up from what I had just witnessed.

Husband: "Erin, are you okay? What is happening?"

Me: "I am not really sure, but this is a lot bigger than just this kid."

After discussing this, we soon fell asleep as it was late and we were both tired. However, before falling asleep, I found myself praying to You, 'Father, I still have such a long way to go. I see a killer and I am still angry at him, so why are You showing me all of this?'

The Lord then gave me two very clear dreams that seemed to address my questions. However, one of the dreams seemed more like a nightmare to me than a dream. The other dream was about a certain home that has often shown up in previous dreams. This home was quite odd and seemed to have a lot of symbolism to it...

Dream 1 description begins...

The home in front of me was for sale and was a brick Tudor home circa 1920s to 1930s. This home was situated about a block away from where we lived in this dream. At some point, some homeowner had painted the wooden front door a type of butter colored yellow. Against the red brick, this color combination looked horrible.

This same owner had also removed the cute shutters that were once around the windows and had replaced them with metal awnings over each window. These awnings were then painted yellow as well. These changes looked similar to changes that were quite common during the era around the late 1940s to early 1950s.

The brick shed in back, which had once been used as a garage, had now been turned into a tiny cottage or studio. However, instead of building a larger garage in its place, they had built a metal carport, which was also painted yellow. This carport attached to the home, but was not in view from the street.

These superficial add-ons combined with the ugly yellow paint had made this house quite unattractive. I smiled to myself as this seemed appropriate to me as I recalled that this same home in my previous dreams always had some kind of evil dwelling there.

As I continued to study this house closely, I noticed that the basement had been sectioned off. The basement foundation was much larger than the house above it, which should never be the case, thus creating many underground hidden rooms.

As I went inside, I noticed that there was one area of the basement with a coal-burning furnace that had tentacle-like arms for venting the heat to the rest of the house. I recognized this furnace as the type of furnace one of our homes from many years ago used. This 'Octopus Furnace' was commonly used to heat homes back in the 1940s.

This type of furnace always seemed quite scary to me as you are able to see the fire burning inside of it. The oven area and each 'tentacle' or duct fed into each room of the house. The home I had lived in had eventually converted to oil. The burning fire had been removed and coal was no longer required to be fed into it.

I then noticed that there was another area of this basement that contained several quite valuable old antique pieces. However, for some unexplained reason, this particular room had been bricked on two sides, with the brick exterior forming the third wall.

The fourth wall had been oddly framed in with two by fours that were only six inches apart. This meant that there was no way to get inside this room in order to be able to view the valuable mystery items contained within. There was also no door or window that someone could crawl through to get inside.

As I peered inside, I noticed a light hanging from the ceiling within this room with a rope cord attached to a chain switch. What made this odd is that this light had an old light bulb that I somehow knew had always stayed lit and never burned out even after all of these years. It really made no sense to me though.

There were other old rooms in this basement, but most of them were concrete and looked unfinished for living. There was a wooden creaky stairway with no railing leading to the main floor. I cautiously went up the stairs to continue looking around.

The main floor was strange as well as it was completely cut up with many tiny rooms. The bedrooms were only the size of a twin bed and could really hold nothing but a twin mattress. Living in one of these rooms would make me feel claustrophobic.

The kitchen was really nothing more than a dry pantry. There was no refrigerator nor was there a sink for running water. While there were electric outlets, cabinets and an electric stove and oven, there was really nothing else in the kitchen of use.

As I continued to look around the house, I saw that there was no laundry room and only one tiny bathroom. This bathroom consisted of only a toilet. While there seemed to be water for flushing, there was no bathtub, shower or sink.

The living area was so small that it would never hold a couch. At best, perhaps it could hold an easy chair and a very small television. As I continued to venture around, I noticed that there was also an attic. I decided to climb up to the attic to inspect it.

To my surprise, the attic had been turned into a large bedroom. It had two windows, with one of the windows opening to the north and the other window opening to the south. The walls were all angled to match the pitch of the roof.

At the bottom of the walls, I saw doors there that lead into some odd crawl spaces. However, the doors to the crawl spaces were only about thirty inches wide and high and barely gave enough room to even get into these spaces.

As the ceiling dropped down onto the resulting sloped side walls, I knew this would make it so no dresser or other furniture could be placed there without looking out of place. To make matters even worse, the room was filled with cobwebs. It was dusty and I could feel evil here. I decided that this house was a 'tear down' at best and left.

A few days later, my daughter and I were walking by this same house and noticed that there was now an open house sign posted. We both were feeling adventurous, so we decided to go inside. As soon as we entered, the real estate agent tried hard to sell the house to us.

The agent told us to look for all of 'the potential', which I recognized as a common selling technique. While my daughter and I tried our hardest to see the potential, neither one of us could come up with any configuration that could actually allow someone to live in this house without a major remodel.

Me: "So, how much are they asking for this house?"

Agent: In a thick southern drawl. "The homeowner wants $333,000 for the home."

I could tell that the agent seemed a bit embarrassed by the asking price.

Me: "Well, unless that secret room down there holds gold in it, then I cannot imagine anyone paying that price. There are not even any closets in the bedrooms."

Agent: Smiling. "I know, I know, but just think of the potential."

Me: Smiling. "I am sorry, but I really just do not see any potential. Tell you what. I will give you $33,000 for the lot simply because it is a corner lot with a view. However, the house as is still has only one window that overlooks this view and that is from the attic. That is my best offer for this house."

While the agent laughed at my offer, I could also tell that she knew that I was right.

Agent: "Now, how can I possibly accept that offer? I simply cannot. You have a great day."

As the agent was saying this, she was already ushering us out. As we walked away from the house, my daughter and I started laughing at our treatment once the agent had realized that we would not be the ones to buy the house.

After this, we walked into town and spent a few hours running errands. As we walked back to our house, we walked by this house again. We were both in shock when we saw that a 'SOLD' sign had now been posted.

The very next day, we could hear the sound of construction from our house coming from this house. We decided to take another walk later that afternoon to check it out and noticed that an addition had already been built off of the living room area.

While this room was still only just a frame, I had thought this to be quite strange as there was no foundation underneath it. The builder had simply used piers and concrete as if they were building a deck. I shook my head at this as now the very last bit of character that the face of this home had was now completely lost due to this shoddy work.

As we continued to look at this house, a man came outside and started talking to us.

Man: "Would you like to come in and see what I have done with the place?"

My daughter and I were too curious not to see this, so we agreed to go for a tour. Once inside, I decided to ask him a rather bold question, at least for me.

Me: "Could I ask you how much you paid for this house?"

Man: "$229,000 cash."

I suppressed my shock at him paying so much as I did not want him to feel bad about his purchase. I also decided not to mention what I thought the price should have been.

Me: "So, what are you all changing?"

Man: "Well, I have a big screen television, so I needed to add on to the living room immediately. However, I will worry about the rest later as this was the most urgent."

Me: "You do realize that there is no water running to the house, right?"

Man: "Yeah, I know, but this was not a big deal to me as long as the toilet worked, which it does. Now, come and see the basement."

As we followed the man down the stairs, I suddenly became intensely curious to see what he had done with the secret room with the valuables. I thought he would have at least made a door to them, but instead there was now a sheet of plywood covering the framed wall, the only access point.

From what I could remember from my earlier viewing, I knew that there was at least $50,000 in valuables just from what I could see. I was also quite sure that there was much more value in the parts that I could not see.

Me: "Did you get the valuables out of that room first? Was there any hidden treasures?"

Man: "The stuff in that room annoyed me and so did the light, so I decided to block it from my sight. I am now going to put my gaming tables in here. I quite like having friends come over to visit."

My daughter and I continued to act cordial and supportive even though we now both realized that this man was quite foolish. As we walked together back up the stairs, we noticed that there were several hammer holes in various walls.

Me: "Excuse me, but what are you doing with these holes?"

Man: "Oh, I was hoping to take down some walls and reconfigure the layout. I even had an architect and engineer come. However, we soon discovered that every single wall in this house is a load bearing wall. To bring down even one of these walls would mean the entire home would collapse upon itself."

Me: "Oh no, that is awful."

I felt bad for him because I knew that there would have been no contingencies for this in the sale agreement.

Man: "That's okay. I'll just expand out."

When I looked over at my daughter, I could tell that she had just realized that this man was crazy at the exact same time that I had. We politely thanked him for the tour and quickly exited the house. He bid us goodbye and went back to his renovating.

Dream 1 description over...

Father, whenever this house or a version of it appears in my dreams, it either reflects a part of me that needs reforming or it is an example of the evil at work within a man. However, this time, the dream also seemed to represent a place with no living or free flowing water to refresh.

The only water available seemed to be for the toilet, where the toilet is used to facilitate the transfer of waste and sewage water. There seemed to be nothing redeemable and no remodel seemed logical.

Not only that, but the secret room that contained visible riches as well as hidden riches had been completely boarded up. After this room was boarded up, the 'light eternal which never burns out' was also boarded up along with it.

In a house such as this, other than removing the entire evil structure, there seemed to no longer be a way to recover the valuables hidden in the 'heart' of the room. This was now a boarded up 'secret room'.

Father, I know about this secret room and that You are there in the midst. When my heart had stopped, I went to this place. This was like a secret room, but also like a learning center at the same time. This is the place where You had called out to me in such a clear and remarkable way that it changed my life.

Through this, You showed me that, unless any of us remove Your access to us, You will meet us even in the most deplorable of conditions. People are never removed completely from You unless they wall You off and reject You completely.

This house was not structurally sound and was built to be unchangeable and unadaptable. To me, the house represented a man without God and a man void of the joy of the promise of possibilities. As in the past, the dream of this particular house left me feeling quite sad.

Father, in my past, I had seen houses in similar condition for sale in the natural. I never purchased a house like this, for which I am thankful, even when I could afford to buy. Now, in this life, I doubt I will ever have my name on a property or deed.

However, that is now just fine with me as I am excited for what awaits me in Heaven. On Earth, everything comes with attachments, contracts, taxes and liens. In Heaven, all of these things will simply be things left in our past.

That being said, I must admit that I still fantasize about someday owning the property that I view outside of my devotional window. It is beautiful and the wildlife is abundant there. Even if I did own this land, I really have no ambitions to build there as I am not certain that there will be enough time for anything 'lofty'.

I have also prayed that, if I can never own this property, that You, Lord, would somehow prevent this man and his husband that owns it from building. If they built there, they would live in full view of our windows.

They are not friendly at all to us even though we are friendly with them, so this would be hard for us to take day after day.

If not to be ours, we pray that You would then allow someone else to buy it. However, Lord, You know our heart and know that we would love to one day make an offer that these men cannot refuse. If not this, then perhaps You can have an angel appear to both of them that would convince them to dispose of the property at a reasonable price.

There are so many reasons why we pray for this, Lord. It seems that every day that I have an epic dream from You, Father, and almost every Sunday, these two unfriendly men come to the property. They do various things in plain view of all of us in such a way that they almost seem to be taunting us. They also know we love their property.

Lord, I do not want to judge them, so please forgive me. However, I just feel so uncomfortable whenever I am with You and I see such things from them. Father, this disturbs me so much.

I know You tell us to love the sinner and hate the sin, so this is why I now ask for forgiveness as this can sometimes be hard for us to do. Just today, between 2pm and 3pm, they were here again, even though we are in the middle of an ice storm.

Father, I trust in You, I love You and I ask for You to please come for us soon. This world is much worse than it was just ten years ago and each day evil acts are accelerating.

There is nothing this world has to offer us that any of us now desire. Even our children have asked for virtually nothing for this Christmas. Our two eldest sons both said that there is nothing that they want or need. How is this even possible for teenagers in this day and age of materialism?

While our children do not want anything this world has to offer, all of the children still ask for and want the healing that only You can provide and have promised to us. All of them are so excited to see what You will do next, Father, so thank You for giving all of us such hope! I also thank You yet again for these awesome children!

Father, I am reminded by You that right before those two men arrived today, that You are with us in everything. Just before they came, You had sent us three young eagles and they soared right above our property.

I feel such comfort knowing that nothing ever surprises You. You are never caught unaware and You are never surprised. You see everything, know everything and there is nothing beyond You. Please forgive me when I make judgments against the wicked things of men when I am certainly not a perfect woman myself.

All I can do is just strive to reconcile my heart to You in complete joy, obedience, love, humility, though I do not think myself humble, patience, though I definitely lack patience, and endurance. I pray every night before I sleep that I am reconciled to You.

I pray that any sin be exposed so that, if You take me while I sleep, I come to You lacking in no good thing. I love You, Father. You are my blessing. You fill my heart with Heavenly Treasures and I feel so honored to be Your daughter.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was again in the River of Life and Jesus was still holding my hand as I stepped into the river. We had not yet gone in all the way, but I noticed that He had brought me in a bit further than the last time I was here.

Jesus was enrobed in light as bright as the sun. Even though the light was so bright, it was not like looking at the sun and my eyes were somehow kept from watering. Really, His Glory shined even brighter than the sun, so this was amazing to behold.

His presence was clear and precise. His magnificence and beauty seemed to be only just a part of what I was able to see. His eyes were a bright blue green and looked so kind that it was beyond description. He smiled at me with perfect teeth. Tears streamed down my cheeks as He reached over to hug me. I held Him tight.

Me: "Thank You, Lord, You are so awesome."

He pulled me away slightly so He could look into my eyes.

Jesus: "I am glad you are here. Now, before we proceed, tell Me what is troubling you."

Me: "Lord, I am struggling with stories in the news right now, my nightmares from the last couple of nights and the uptick in evil."

Jesus: "Erin, I once explained to you that even those who love Me with all of their hearts would be sacrificed in this war. This was their purpose from the beginning. Each life has a purpose under Heaven. Just as some will be supernaturally saved, some will be called Home to be here."

Me: "I guess I still struggle to see why innocent people and children die at the hands of evil. It seems like evil wins, Lord, and I do not understand. It sometimes seems so senseless to me."

Jesus: "Erin, you were given a glimpse into where those who were slain from that church now reside. Now, did you see their joy? Did they look angry? Were they demanding justice?"

Me: "No, Lord, they were so happy!"

Jesus: "Shall I take you to the Garden for Children and show you those who died young there that are now in complete safety, security, laughter and joy here. Their lives were not lost for no reason, but for the purposes of My Father. You see only the suffering of those who live and remain. Who are you to question what is best to get a man from there to here with Me?"

Me: "I am so sorry, Lord, as I know that Your ways are always best. You recently showed me something in my dream and I thought it was a nightmare. Please help me to understand what this is."

Jesus: "Erin, tell Me about your dream."

Dream 2 description begins...

Our family was now healthy as each of us had already been transformed. We were together standing in line at a Burger King. This in itself was unusual as we very rarely eat at Burger King.

While we stood in line, we noticed several teenagers were also in the restaurant. These teenagers had various piercings, tattoos, satanic jewelry, strange hair and even stranger clothing. These teenagers knew our kids as they went to school together.

When these teenagers noticed us, they began to mock our kids. However, You restrained us and had me simply look at them. Then, and right before my eyes, I was able to see into their hearts almost as if it was their souls, but this is hard to explain.

I then saw that two of the teenaged girls looked exactly the same on the inside as they looked on the outside, which was not good. However, there was also one teenaged girl in particular that was the very scariest looking one and the one that I would have thought was the very farthest away from You.

However, and to my surprise and shock, when I was able to see the inside of this 'scary girl', I saw a beautiful little girl with blonde hair. As this little girl looked back at me, she cried out to me as if she was almost scared to death.

Girl: "Please don't leave me. Please help me."

As I walked over to this 'scary girl', the other girls began to scream and yell at me to stay away. I ignored them and instead reached over and touched this girl's arm. I could then hear my voice being used by You, Lord, to speak to her.

I do not know what was said, but she changed right then and there and was healed in an instant. Our kids were amazed by what You did with this girl.

After this, we walked downtown and I was shown the 'insides' of many other people. I noticed many evil people who did not look evil from the outside. I also noticed so many good people who did not look good from the outside. It was a nightmare to me as I could see into these people's hearts and it scared me.

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, you cannot judge a man by outward appearances or even sometimes by their actions. Do not be surprised when many are deceived by what they see. Instead of crying out to Me for wisdom, they take on the role of judge and jury.”

Me: “Lord, are those who were slain inside the church praying for the young man who killed them?”

Jesus: “Who is better off, Erin, those whom live and die knowing Me or those who live and die never knowing Me? Did I come to save the lost or the found?”

Me: “The lost, Lord.”

Jesus: “Service to Me also means that you set your judgments aside and do not try to be Me. I did not call down armies of saviors, but I instead call for love and compassion. You must trust Me fully and not act on your own.

“Do not be surprised if you find yourself ministering to those who wear hate on their faces for you, even while their hearts are conflicted with both love and hate. You must trust Me to send you even where you think I would not send you.”

Me: “Lord, did I understand You correctly? Will You be sending me to difficult places to heal difficult people?”

Jesus: Laughing. “Yes, Erin. Is this not what I came for? Is this not what My disciples did? However, there is more. You will be equipped with more when you are to fight against a harsher enemy. Now, when you looked in the eyes of the photo of the young man who killed those people, what did you see?”

Me: “More than I expected, Lord. I saw damage. I saw beyond the entity of evil that had possessed the boy. I saw a young man who was demon possessed. I saw that this had begun at an early age. I saw anger that led way to self-medication. In his anger, he opened himself up to more and more. I saw something...”

Jesus: Gently stopping me. “Erin, you are not being called into service by your own choosing, but I have called you for Mine. These dreams and visions are to make you aware that you will not always go to the obvious choice from your outward eyes.

"Instead, you will call out to Me and I will send you where I call you. You must fully trust in Me to direct your path. You are not to judge as you are not Me and have not seen all things from beginning to end.

"Just because a man is disabled or blind, it does not mean you are called to go up to them because of what you think they need. Instead, I might have you walk up to a normal man whom I will then call to go up to others, understand?"

Me: "Yes. In my dreams, You had me walk by some and not others. This time, You are showing me that the worst people from my standpoint are not always the same from Your standpoint. Lord, I give myself over to You fully.

"Now, I will not lie and say that I am not afraid, as I am, but I am also so excited to be used by You in some way and soon. I understand that there will be some that I do not even initially even like, but I will just need to remove myself, or my 'self', out of the equation completely and let You take full control of my actions. I love You."

Jesus: "I love you. Now, dream again as I have more for you. Do not worry. Do not be anxious about anything. Trust Me and I will make your path straight."

He smiled at me as He reached over and gently hugged me.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for keeping all of us safe. Thank You for holding us safely in these storms.

My children could not fly out until tonight and do not arrive until tomorrow. We must make the five hour drive again in the early morning to beat the next storm coming. Please continue to protect us, Father, from what is coming against the land right now.

I have had some very difficult dreams recently. However, it seems that I can only remember small portions of these dreams. What I can remember has been shocking and has left me quite troubled.

Dream 1 description begins...

I was on the overlook viewing area of God's Courts as I looked down on the Earth. Satan was standing in the middle of North America. He easily stood several miles high and held a wooden broom. The handle was splintered and the broom head consisted of several long strands of hay.

As I stood there, I noticed that there were angels there at the Courts with me. One of the angels was standing to my right and the other was standing to my left. The angels both started to speak with me, but they somehow did so without words. As they did, I suddenly knew what was occurring.

Satan started to use his massive broom to begin sweeping the land. As the broom swept over a city, I could see whole buildings crumble to ash. I then saw him sweep the resulting debris into the Mississippi River.

As the debris swept into the river was now blocking its flow, I saw the water of the river spread out to the crop lands. While I have never seen anything like this before, the natural flow of the river was being turned around and was starting to flow backwards. The towns near the rivers were soon overcome by the water.

I then saw ash and dirt being kicked up by some wicked winds. I saw tornados hit various areas and devastate many cities. Tornados even began to hit areas that they had seldom, if ever, had hit before. All the while, satan was looking over all of this and laughing.

I was then able to see up close the areas where people had been hit by all of this. The people were crying out for help, but there was none to be had. There was no one to help as the other areas that could have helped were also experiencing catastrophes.

This broom continued to sweep up the land for a time. It was an evil sweep up of 'loose ends' and was at the expense of those who did not support the agenda of evil. I saw the National Guard being deployed in order to maintain order and hand out supplies.

I looked at the two angels standing on both sides of me and questioned them as to when this would all be. One of the angels pointed back to the scenario below and I could now see several angels there. These angels had a blue cast and were dressed in white.

After I heard the sound of a horn, I saw storehouses of snow start to pummel the landscape. This was then followed by record cold. I saw winds and snow, followed by thunder, lightning and rain, only to repeat several times. I saw a very long and costly winter.

I then saw calamity follow this harsh winter. I saw poor planting conditions and the ground was unfit to accept seed. As a result, the crops produced had been cut in half. I pointed to the unfolding calamity as I looked over to one of the angels standing with me.

Me: "So this is summer?"

I was directed to look down again and could see the continent crying out for help, but there was very little help to come. The land was devastated and pummeled. The heat, storms, record rains, lightning, hail and tornados continued to come in rapid succession.

On the map below, I could see various locations being hit by tornados. However, most of these places were unprepared as they had not really ever seen tornados there before. They had no warning systems in place, leaving them extremely vulnerable.

I also saw storms with lightning setting forests aflame. However, these storms were quite unusual as they were 'dry storms', including lightning without rain. The resulting forest fires soon became uncontrollable and the effects of these were far reaching.

I then saw rolling black outs in various places, including Phoenix, Los Angeles, New York and Miami. Many large cities were now struggling to maintain their power grids. All the while, satan continued sweeping the land and seemed oblivious to the angels sent from God.

When satan finished sweeping the land, he then left the area and headed to the countries in Northern Europe. After this, he went over to the Middle East. However, he seemed to have no interest in the geographic areas of China and Russia.

Satan then became quite busy 'getting to know' many, many people. However, every now and then I would see him take time out from his 'busy schedule' to look up into the sky to mock God. Seeing all of this disturbed me deeply.

Satan then went to a particular area and began to appoint and rule from there. He was now sending out orders as opposed to traveling himself. As I became even more disturbed by this, I looked to the angel next to me and asked him a question.

Me: "Is this before we meet Jesus in the sky and are taken Home?"

In response, the angel looked at me with sorrow and sympathy, but still did not directly answer me. He then pointed over to God's Courts and I could tell that he was instructing me to go to God with my questions instead.

Dream 1 description over...

Dream 2 description begins...

The veil was lifted from my eyes and I could suddenly see that which had been hidden. This was indescribably frightening. I saw that many of the people that surrounded me were in severe sin and were now being 'taken over' by the enemy. I then noticed that the degree to which they would be 'taken over' by the enemy was based directly on how regularly they were participating in sin and the severity of the sin.

While I was not to outline the sins that I was being shown, I was to note that these people had now been so caught up in their sins that they were completely unaware of the magnitude of the enemy's influence and power over them. The influence by the enemy on them soon severely convoluted their perspective of the severity of their sin.

It soon got to the point that these people were so deceived that they were maliciously drawing attention to those not participating in sin so that they would be labelled as 'a concern and a menace'. I was then shown a series of sins so bizarre being performed by some of these people that it left a horribly bitter taste in my stomach.

As I later watched the news on a television in my dream, the upset in my stomach was magnified further when I saw an even worse series of bizarre and horrific events that had just occurred. All of this made me feel so sick.

Dream 2 description over...

Father, there is an even greater rise in evil and crime taking place now. It is so awful that I often cannot even watch the news anymore. I am sickened as I feel there is so little coverage on important matters, yet over-coverage on minor problems.

The media seems to be creating a 'spin' on certain stories in order to sensationalize a matter. They then seem to later take this sensationalized matter in order to use it for mass public manipulations.

As I watch this unfold, I will often feel the Holy Spirit telling me, 'This is a half-truth. Do not believe it.' As a result, I no longer trust what I see or hear from the news media as being the truth at all. Again, all of this is truly disturbing.

Now, on a personal note, I have been concerned for my health as something seems to be happening to me. While on some days I feel this is good and I am healing, on other days, especially when the weather changes, I am in unbearable pain. While I need to be seen by my doctor, the insurance company continues to refuse to cover any costs.

In desperation, I recently contacted my State Senator for help on all of this. To my surprise, the senator is actually a former client of mine. When I talked with her office, they assured me that they will contact the offending division of Labor and Industries and let them know that the senator is now 'on my case'.

That I was even able to get through and find someone to help me was truly a miracle and completely unexpected, so thank You, Father. To make this even more interesting, the person I contacted just happened to have the last name of 'Mason'. This made me laugh as it made me remember the dream I recently had with the 'mason jar' in it.

I also learned just this morning that one of the trees that my grandparent's had taken me and my brother to had just toppled over. This tree was famous as it was so huge that people were even able to drive through it. As I watched the news, I saw the same old sign from over forty years ago sitting there right next to the now fallen tree.

Father, I take great comfort and feel so blessed that I have seen even taller and larger trees in Heaven. While I cannot remember exactly which dream I wrote about this, it seems like it was from not that long ago. Just a week before seeing this on the news, I had a dream that even seemed to allude to this tree's toppling...

Dream 3 description begins...

A close neighbor of mine from many years ago kept knocking on my front door to give me updates on all of the famous landmarks that were being destroyed. It seemed that she was coming over to do this about once every thirty minutes, each time announcing the fate of one of these landmarks:

- The half-dome in Yosemite National Park, California had been destroyed
- Virginia City, Nevada had burned to the ground
- The cliffs at Steamer's Lane, Santa Cruz, California had fallen into the sea
- The San Francisco Bay Bridge in California had lost one entire suspension cable area and had fallen into the sea

- Coit Tower, a 210-foot tower in San Francisco, California, had fallen

She kept coming over and the list kept growing and growing. I could only guess that this must have all been caused by an earthquake or perhaps even a series of earthquakes. This seemed to be confirmed when she then told me that most, if not all, of the historic missions along the California coast had been destroyed.

All of these bits of my childhood were now gone and all in an instant. It happened so fast that the news could barely keep up with reporting it all. It was so difficult for me to hear all of this. My neighbor soon started to panic and shout hysterically.

Neighbor: "Rain! Wind! Sliding! Shaking! Trouble has come! Trouble has come to the 'land of gold!'"

Dream 3 description over...

Father, this was all so incredibly disturbing. I have no idea of when or if any of this is soon to come, but it all seemed so real. I have missed You, Father. I have been going through a time of grief. Last night as I slept, I had another disturbing dream...

Dream 4 description begins...

I had posted a notice on Facebook for all of my friends from my past to read. The notice was in the form of a goodbye letter that summarized the highlights of my life, including my tragedies and my milestones. While I did speak about my losses, the Lord had me speak even more about my gains.

I wrote as the Lord instructed me to and made sure that I did not brag or boast or act as if I was spiritually higher than anyone else. At the end of the notice, I thanked God and Jesus for my incredible journey and indicated that, if it had not been for the Lord, I would not have even been here to leave this for them.

I told my friends that I loved them and thanked them for being a part of my race. I told them that my race was finishing as I could now see the end. I then said that I would hopefully see them again one day in eternity. I ended it by saying, 'Erin...signing out'.

Well, that was that...or so I thought! I soon received horrible hate mail from so many people in response to my note that it was simply unbelievable. I received these letters from almost every single person in my group of family and friends.

While I will not elaborate on the horrible things written to me, it was awful. I decided to delete my account and end all contact. Sadly, my children were soon after harassed by these same people on their social media as well, all because of what I had written.

Dream 4 description over...

Father, I will need Your divine strength and help with what is coming. Without Your strength, my heart will not be able to withstand what this world is soon to become. I am scared and need Your help.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I laughed in surprise as I was already in the River of Life facing Jesus. There was a glory light, like a halo or corona, surrounding Him. It was a living light magnifying off of the water and it was so beautiful. There was an incredible spectrum of colors.

His face was tan and radiant and His eyes were a beautiful blueish green. His teeth were as white as snow and His smile melted my heart. I cried as I faced Him and He reached out to hug me. I hugged Him back and never wanted to let go. As I hugged Him, I could hear the clock in our house chime three rings for 3pm in the background.

Jesus: "Erin, you worry about many things. This is not beneficial for you. Do not worry as I am about to strengthen you for this coming time. Now, I have given you a small period of rest. You completed all that I asked of you. Your heart is reconciled."

Me: "I am not certain what you mean, Lord."

Jesus: "It means that you no longer have ties to the former things. Your heart now longs for Me. You have forsaken your worldly ambitions and set these all aside. Your grief has been because you mourn for certain moments, even though these were very short moments. Do you remember what you had asked for, more than anything, many years ago while your friends were all asking for material items?"

Just then, I was downloaded a scene from my third grade class. I was almost nine years old and this was a tumultuous time of my life. We were living in a housing project. During this time in my life, I had to go everywhere that my mom and stepdad went.

Even at this young an age, I had been exposed to many things. I had already been to at least fifteen rock concerts and we were always near the stage. I had hitchhiked up and down the California Coast with my mom and brother (yes, hitchhiked!).

While I will not mention the other things that my mom had allowed me to see, let's just say that I had been exposed to a lot. My brother was to as we seemed to always be right there in the thick of all of these things.

I usually felt like an inconvenience to my mom and step dad. As a result, when my teacher asked us to list what we wanted the most, I remember asking for something 'more than anything'. However, instead of a list, I had drawn a picture instead and what I had drawn compelled the principal's office to call me and my mom in for 'questioning'.

Me: Crying. "Oh Lord, I remember. I wanted a small cottage with green grass. I wanted flowers and a yard. I wanted a white picket fence so that my puppy would not be hit by a car on the busy road. I wanted to be safe and far away from the place I was.

"I asked for a mom who would actually know that I was there and cared. In my drawing, I had a mom that held my hand and kept me safe. When we spoke with the principal about this, my mom lied and said that things at home were 'just fine' and that I was just being dramatic. Oh Lord, I had forgotten about this."

Jesus: "Erin, I did not ask you to do this so that you would look back and travel to your first and second bridges. I asked you to do this so that you would see that you have now been given everything that you had asked for."

Me: I thought for a moment. "Lord, You are right! Our home is safe. I care for my children in the way that I had always wanted to be cared for.

While You have not yet removed me completely from my enemies, You have removed us to a place of safety. Lord, this is even better than what I had asked for as You have also given me a husband and Godly leader that all of our children respect!"

Jesus: "You needed the time to enjoy what you have. Do you know why?" He smiled.

Me: "I feel in my heart that things are about to change, Lord. Nothing is as it seemed. The warnings from almost fifty years ago seem to have now sounded."

Jesus: Smiling. "Hmm, I did not hear the Shofar yet. This is interesting."

Me: "Lord, You have recently taken me back to songs from when I was a child, things which triggered events and times. During the 1960s, well, everything changed. It was if gates of evil opened and all the angels from Heaven withdrew."

Jesus: "Yes. This was a pivotal point. The holes or voids in each man's heart were filled with things of the world. Permission was granted and God was removed across the land over the course of time. However, very few of those who had sounded the alarm were 'called'."

Me: I became animated. "Lord, You used mainstream music! I just know You did, Lord. I remember some of these songs. The song 'Bad Moon Rising' was one of these warnings! There were many more 'warning songs', but most people used them as 'drug songs' instead! You used every means possible to bring people back to You! I know it, Lord, I just know it!"

He smiled at me as I spoke.

Jesus: "Well, man likes their worship of idols. There is still time, but ..."

All of a sudden, a vision of a dream that I had on Friday night (January 6th, 2017) came to me.

Me: "I remember, Lord. There was hardly anyone to minister to who wanted the Good News."

Dream 5 description begins...

I was walking in a crowded market place. The atmosphere was heavy and dark. I somehow had the ability to heal, but there were very few people illuminated. It was so sad that I began to weep.

Several of us who were 'called' had gathered together to pray as this seemed to be the final sweep prior to us being removed. We openly mourned as we held hands together, giving off a beautiful beacon of light.

However, instead of people being attracted to us, they were repelled by us. They mocked us, threw things at us and swore at us. It was awful.

Dream 5 description over...

Jesus: "Erin, are you ready for what comes next?"

Me: "I am not sure. I just know that, if You do not do anything, I will not make it as my grief and pain are too great. I can even now physically feel the effects of this on my body."

Jesus: "I love you. I will not let you languish and suffer. You know the times that you are in and that there is much to do before you arrive here with Me."

Me: "You will come for us, right, Lord?"

Jesus: "As it is written, Erin, I will send out angels from the four winds, from the ends of the Earth to the ends of Heaven. Angels will gather the elect. I will bring you Home. Now, what was the lesson from the fig tree (Mark 13:27-29)? Do you remember?"

Me: "'As soon as the branches become tender and sprout leaves, you know that summer is near.' In the same way, we see all that is happening and know that You are near and right at the door."

Jesus: "Erin, you are also now going through a period of 'tender'-ness. You are mourning for the lost. You are like a branch which is about to sprout. Now, what is written that I have always kept on your heart?"

Me: "Ezekiel 37 and the 'Valley of Dry Bones'."

Jesus: "Do you see miracles all around you right now?"

Me: "No. They are few and far between."

Jesus: "They are there, but hard to tell. I have commanded the angels to send them. Do you think that I have sent in the 'last days' miracles' to only the Jewish people? Did I forget those who love Me? Those who I also died for and promised eternal life too?"

"As evil came upon this generation, so did I also raise up a remnant who knows to hear My Voice, the one calling in the desert. Your times, your bridges and your life of suffering was not wasted, Erin. You now have understanding, knowledge and compassion which only come from trials, trial by fire.

"You are now in times in which 'deliverance' will take on new meaning. You will be zealous for Me and fervent about saving the lost from that which they have no understanding of."

Me: "How can I save anyone? Very few listen to anything that I have to say."

Jesus: "They will, so do not worry. You will have much to offer as they will know that I have sent you and others I have called. There will be a difference between those of you I have called and those sent as a counterfeit. Many will call you false, but the difference is that you will operate to glorify Me, God in Heaven.

"You will have no desire to draw attention to yourself. You will listen to My Voice only, not to those who taunt you or call you out. The church is expecting false signs and wonders, as it is written, but they will not all have understanding.

"Instead, they will be swayed by those they expect, those who fit what they prefer, men of renown. This is the same as was written in the beginning."

Me: "'Men of renown' is in Genesis 6:4. Are they related?"

Jesus: "Well, yes. The enemy has prepared for these times also. You and those I have called are unexpected. The world views you as unqualified. Christians who rarely call to My heart will become jealous and indignant. Ignore this. I have sent watchmen on your walls to guard you in all your ways. Now, if you are ready, I will prepare you for what I have called you for.”

Me: “I have many questions, but, yes, I am ready, Lord.”

Jesus: Smiling. “Do not worry. I will be with you. I have given you time to prepare your house and finalize your dealings with those who have troubled you. You have prepared the hearts of those around you also. I love you, Erin. You care about the things that I care about. I have prepared your vessel. Now, let My Spirit continuously work through you.”

Me: Crying. “I am ready, Lord. I love You.”

He smiled and then put His hand under my neck and back. As He dipped me into the river, I felt the refreshing healing water come over me. However, I felt something else. I felt as if I had been filled with healing water.

When I came out, He was smiling. There, over Him, I saw what looked like a glorious cloud and streaming light. I heard God’s thunderous voice through the cloud.

God: “Erin, I call you friend and I am glad you are here for such a time as this. You are greatly loved. I will command angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways.”

His voice went into me and through me.

Jesus: “Now, I am glad you trusted Me, Erin. This was a big step. You do trust Me, right?” He smiled.

Me: I was trembling. “I do, Lord, I do.”

Jesus: “There is much to do and much for you to learn. Your time of trials and tests are finished. I have called you. It does not mean that the world will not test you. It just means that, if I am with you, and I am, then who can be against you? I have something exciting planned here. Are you ready?” He smiled.

Me: “I...I think so...yes, I am ready. I have come this far.”

Jesus: "Yes, you have. I am about to pour out My Spirit in even greater numbers. I will instruct you." He smiled. "You are under My wings and at My altar. Who will argue it? Now, rejoice, Erin, find joy and wait for Me. Joy is the greatest sign to Me of your gratitude. Your obedience is My joy."

He put His hand on His heart and He smiled.

Jesus: "You are greatly loved. In My joy, your heart makes Me glad and your vessel will shine, Erin. I love you."

He reached over and hugged me.

Me: "Lord, I love You too. What comes next?"

Jesus: "Do not worry. Soon, very, very soon, I will reveal this to you." He laughed as He knew that the word 'soon' was a tough word for me to hear again. "Take comfort, Erin. You are here and ready and I will not let you wait long."

He smiled and I hugged Him again.

Me: "Thank You, Lord. I love You so much."

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for my family, our warm home and food to eat. Thank You that we are all back together safely and under one roof.

Father, when I signed up for a greater call and asked for a heart of gold, I really had no idea what this meant. Looking back now, I believe I now know. For me, it meant long trials, painful punishing blows and everyday was met with trepidation.

This is not to be confused with paranoia, but rather it is more like severe caution caused by something happening seemingly each day during often long stretches of time. However, these several years of trouble changed my thinking.

My thinking went from 'God, what will You now do with me next', but sometimes 'to me next' as well (smiles) to 'Oh Father, please just grant me one more day here, protect my children and keep us safe.' I turned from feeling a need or entitlement to God's justice and repayment for my troubles to instead accepting and trusting that God knows best.

While this is a scary place to be, it is also freeing. While I am not sure I have achieved this fully yet, I aspire to. The one thing I do know for sure is that I have prepared my field. I have taken what You, my good Lord, have given me and have done as You have instructed. To this point, there is really nothing more I can do.

Lord, I have prepared the soil, scattered the seed and dedicated all of it to You as if it were never mine to begin with. Now only You can provide the rest, Lord, as from here I am not capable to call down the rain or sun. I cannot make these crops grow by my own efforts, Lord, as only You can.

Since only You can, Father, please take the rest of all that we have. Father, even take my life if You feel it is necessary. Please take what You have given me, my story, Your story and His-story, and let it be heard. You have given me the greatest of gifts, the gift of a long and very painful race, a race that has now turned into an enduring love story.

I love You, Father, but please do not forget me. I am completing my 53rd year in just eight days from now and it seems that I do not have long to finish. I have done everything that You have asked and I have prepared as You have instructed me.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was already in a full run going down a beautiful path. It was near dawn and the sky was beautiful, filled with shades of pinks and purples. I was running in a forested area filled with green grass and ferns. There were spring flowers everywhere and so many of them were delphiniums draped in purples and blues.

The morning dew glistened like diamonds on the grass. While the temperature in this mountainous terrain was cool and crisp, it was still simply perfect. I was wearing Heavenly running clothes and shoes and, though I could see my breath, I was not cold.

I was younger and physically athletic again and just knew that I would be able to endure this course and terrain in this 'upgraded' condition. As the sun finally peaked over the mountains, I could see butterflies and bees flying around the delphiniums. The sun felt warm on my face and I knew that it would soon be another warm day here.

As I ran, I found myself thanking God for my race. I thanked Him for all that He has given me. As I ran, I thanked Him for the vessel of my body that He has given me here. After countless surgeries and painful accidents and falls, having this body here and being able to run without effort made me smile and thank God for His graciousness.

I sometimes remind myself that Jesus never once promised me a trouble free life here when I had asked for a heart of gold. He certainly never promised me that I would someday be wealthy or even famous here. Really, He never promised me anything at all of abundance that the world has to offer.

However, He did promise 'extraordinary'. He also promised me a great race and a story to be told while running it, but I had to trust in Him to finish the race. I also had to try my best every day to do what Jesus would do concerning all that I have been given.

As I ran, I asked myself, 'Who am I to question the Creator?' Even though I sometimes still find myself questioning His timing and methods, I now fully realize that such questioning is flawed and pointless as we simply never have enough information. Only God knows the entire story and only God knows all things big and small.

Yes, I can ask Him for directions, but I also have to be willing to accept where He takes me when I do. Fighting against God simply creates delays, detours and dead ends. However, trusting God creates new routes, surprises and, ultimately, enduring rewards in Heaven.

As I kept running, I saw a final hill and what looked like some incredible scenery for me to enjoy. I sighed as I already knew it could not be that simple. Sure enough, when I looked off to the right of me, I saw a tiny path there that branched off of the main path.

Me: "Oh Lord, I am so close. Seriously? Another path?"

I took a deep breath and stopped running in order to look down the small path. I noticed that it was surrounded by pine trees. However, since the sun was rising directly over this area, I found that I could barely see. As I strained to look, all I could make out was a small house nestled next to the path.

Me: "Okay, I just have to check this out, right, Lord?"

Just then, I could hear singing from God's choir.

Me: "Okay, that is a big sign. I will take this as a 'yes'."

As I turned off the main path, I saw a doe grazing on some grass. She looked up at me as if she had been waiting for me. She walked up to me and nudged my arm to point me to the tiny building down the path. She stood beside me and waited as I caught my breath. She did not have to wait long as this only takes a few seconds in Heaven.

Me: "Okay, I am committing to 'walk this way'. Just give me a moment as I am rather thirsty all of a sudden."

The doe nudged me again and drew my attention to a rock with a spring of water flowing from it. I laughed as it actually looked more like a water feature. There were three towers of flagstone or basalt, with the tallest tower spouting water. I could tell this was not 'man-made' though as there was clearly no pump or hose drilled into the rock.

I then saw another rock sitting next to the three towers. It was rectangular shaped and had a large wooden ladle sitting on top. I began to laugh again. The deer walked over and drank from the rock. She then motioned for me to do the same.

Me: Smiling. "Okay, this has the Lord's signature all over it, especially given that there were three signs. First there were the angels singing, then the deer and now the water springing from the rock. Hmm, perhaps there were even more signs?"

As the sun rose over the path and clearing, I decided to take the ladle and drink some of the water. It was, quite simply, the most refreshing water. This was really no surprise though as the water is Heavenly in origin and straight from the restoring River of Life.

After I finished drinking my fill of water, I began to walk down the path again. As I came up to the clearing, I saw that the small house was actually a beautiful and contemporary artist's studio.

The studio was made from several different materials, including wood, steel, concrete, rock and glass. There was also a massive window so big that it looked almost like a garage door.

Me: "Okay, this must definitely be the home of a skilled architect. Wow, I love this place!"

I circled the property and found a door on the east side near the sunrise area. I began to laugh when I saw a wooden sign with brushed stainless steel letters that said, 'The Potter's House'. As a reference point, I should note that the sign alone would easily cost several thousand dollars on Earth to commission.

As I approached the door to knock, I could hear music coming from inside and it was beautiful. However, I did not recognize what song it was. Just as I was about to knock on the door, the music suddenly stopped and the door opened. I called inside to announce my arrival.

Me: "Hello? I just saw your home and I thought I would stop to say hi. My name is Erin."

After I called out, I heard the Lord laughing from inside. My heart leaped with joy. Jesus then called out back to me.

Jesus: "I have been expecting you. Come in, Erin, come in."

As I turned the corner of the small entry to look inside, all I can say is 'wow, wow, wow!' It was the most beautiful pottery studio I had ever seen and completely state of the art. It was truly unlike anything I had ever seen before on Earth.

As the morning sun streamed in through the windows, I noticed that the floor of the studio consisted of stone or rock, like basalt, yet also even somewhat like concrete. There were also mosaics of glass, like ocean glass, embedded, all in beautiful colors.

As the sun shined in and on the polished glass, it reflected facets of colors that danced on the walls and the ceiling. It was breathtakingly beautiful. As I looked at the walls, I saw racks of steel, each with pots sitting on them. These pots were being glazed and seemed to now be ready for the final firing. The pots were beautiful.

As I looked back at the middle of the room, I saw an extremely high-tech Potter's wheel made of stainless steel and stone. The stone was perfectly round. There was a seat there and I could tell it had been worn with use, but still Heavenly perfect. The base was made of solid wood and had a cushion of white material that never soiled.

This studio was so creative, beautiful and clean that all I can say about all of this is that it made me suddenly want to take up pottery. As I walked through the studio, I could not help myself from touching just about everything there.

Jesus: Laughing. "I am glad that you came by to see Me, Erin."

As He had just walked into this room from another area, I heard His voice from behind me. As I turned to face Him, I saw that He was in a white tunic and white pants. The beautiful leather sandals on His feet had clearly been made by a master cobbler. He still had a halo of light all around Him like a corona.

He wiped His hands on a white cloth and I instinctively knew that He had just finished using the Potter's wheel. I smiled when I noticed that the residue on the cloth He had just used to wipe off the clay from His hands had remained there for but a split second before becoming clean and white as snow again.

Jesus: Smiling. "Come, I would like to show you something." He reached to take my hand. "I know you are enjoying your race, but I have a series of things to show you before you finish." He smiled, looked at me and then added, "If you are interested."

Me: Laughing. "Of course, Lord. My race is Your race, so I would love to see more."

Jesus: "Then sit here, Erin."

Next to the Potter's wheel was a small stool. The Book of Jeremiah came to mind as I watched Jesus walkover to an area to consider various lumps of clay. To my surprise, He selected a lump of clay that looked dry, discolored and unusable to me.

He picked up this lump of clay and placed it onto the Potter's wheel. As He sat down and rolled up His tunic sleeves, the wheel began to spin. I watched as Jesus began to shape the clay.

He began by shaping it into a type of vessel. However, He then reworked it into another type of vessel. After finishing this, He seemed satisfied even though, to me, the vessel seemed plain and utilitarian in structure.

Me: "Lord, what kind of pot are You shaping?"

Jesus: "Look over at this rack..."

He then pointed to a rack at the left of the studio. I saw many vessels sitting there. I noticed that all of these vessels had not been through the kiln yet. They seemed to be almost ready for glaze, but they were still drying. There were about seventy pots.

Jesus: "Erin, these represent those countries that come against Israel. I have shaped those vessels..." He pointed at the rack again for emphasis. "...and they have been there for a long time. I have moved them around periodically. Some have even been crushed over time." He pointed to an area with broken shards.

"Others, I have created, shaped and raised, all with the intent that, if they turn from evil, I will use them for good. However, if they, in turn, fill themselves with evil and turn away from what I originally intended for them, then they will be crushed. I will break them either by My own hands or they will crack and fold under pressure, perhaps even upon entering the fire as they will be unable to bear the heat."

The Lord looked extremely serious as He spoke all of this. As I looked, I then saw four vessels on another shelf. One vessel was blue and quite beautiful. There was a vessel to the left of it and a massive red one behind it. I also saw a vessel to the right that was yellow and black with red.

Me: "What are those, Lord?"

Jesus: "Those which remain."

Me: "Who are those with Israel?"

Jesus: "Not many and not 'with'."

I then looked to my right to view the racks of beautiful pottery again.

Me: "What pots are those, Lord?"

Jesus: Smiling. "You do not know?"

Me: "No, Lord, I do not."

Jesus: "Well, those are the vessels that I am about to use to humble the nations."

Me: "Are those Your believers? There are many."

Jesus: "These are the vessels that I am about to fill with 'Living Water'. Let's call this a pre-emptive strike in an ongoing war."

Me: I was crying now and even as I wrote. "Are these pots soldiers?"

Jesus: "Yes. They are like ground troops from Heavenly places. These are the vessels that I have created to be used to humble and soften the hardened clay before I come to see which clay is pliable for Me to ultimately shape. Each heart will be turned to Me as I am the Potter and they will have no choice but to recognize Me."

Me: "I do not fully understand, Lord."

Jesus: "It is like the time of Jacob and Esau. First, messengers were sent out. Then people were divided and set apart. Then gifts were prepared and servants were sent bearing gifts. This happened to soften hearts in much the same way that I have done in the past and will do again."

Me: "Will they wrestle with God?"

Jesus: "They do every day already, but most never get close enough to wrestle. You, Erin, have wrestled with God. You understand that this is humbling. This made your heart pliable so that I could shape you into a vessel. Through time and firing, I have prepared you.

"You reside there with Me, but you will serve Me. I will pour My Spirit into you. I have prepared many and they are also with you." He again pointed to the shelf, but now a different one, for emphasis. "These are My vessels, Erin. This is written and the time is now. Now, are you ready?"

Me: As my eyes filled with tears again, 2 Timothy 2:21 came to mind. "Yes, Lord, I am ready." I pointed all around the room and sighed as I looked back into His blueish green eyes. "This is all Yours, Lord, and I am Yours."

Jesus: Smiling with such love. "Get ready!"

Dream 233 – Lord, what are You working on? Part 1

Received Sunday, January 22, 2017

I started writing the below on Sunday, January 22, 2017, but was not able to finish. I am sure that Part 2 will come 'soon', but always on the Lord's perfect timing...smiles!

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that You have done from beginning to end. Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You mostly that I have lived and died and continue to live for You. Thank You for the gift of You, Father, as You are a miraculous gift.

Father, it seems like You have recently taken us from what seems like bad to even worse. Like so many of Your people all over the world right now, we are just one accident, illness or mishap away from total financial ruin. Even so, You continue to sustain us in a supernatural way and certainly not by any of our own capabilities.

On Friday, January 20th, 2017, I started off having a very good day up until around 3:00pm. Things seemed to be going smoothly and I could see You at work in everything that I was doing. However, it was then that trouble struck.

While I will not go into detail as to exactly what happened, it involved one of my sons, along with my constant conflict with my main and greatest source of trouble. By the time this all ended at around 5:00pm, I was in blubbering tears. Really, I cannot even remember crying this hard since way back in May of 2012.

When we finally got home and I was taking some of our groceries into the house, my daughters tried their best to console me. Sadly, this was really to no avail as I was quite inconsolable at that particular moment. With the children all now safely back in our home, I decided to stay outside for a while to 'cool off'.

There was snow and ice outside and it was a balmy 17 degrees – smiles. Okay, well it was obviously not balmy at all, but I barely noticed as I was so frustrated with all that had just occurred. Father, I was just so frustrated and hurt! I was upset with all that has continued against me even though I had done nothing to deserve it.

After I told the kids that I would be right back, I walked in the snow out to our yard. To my surprise, I soon found myself looking up and screaming at the very top of my lungs. I screamed so loud that it seemed to come from my stomach. It seemed that I was even using parts of my lungs that I had never used or even knew I had.

As I looked up yet again, I screamed 'why?' After shouting out in frustration a total of five times, I somehow felt better and decided that would be enough. I shook my head and wondered if a neighbor may have heard and thought I was in trouble. Given the time of day and the distance to our nearest neighbor, I knew that it would be okay.

After my shouting rant ended, I could barely speak. Even today, my voice is still raspy. In reality, I have been quite physically exhausted ever since I cried out. If I am to be completely honest with myself and God, I had become frustrated with the Lord and started asking Him questions.

Father, what does 'soon' mean? What timeframe is 'in a short while'? What exactly does 'the time is upon you' mean? Father, I have cried out to You at the top, and now the bottom, of my lungs now. After I did this, I went to You in prayer. My heart was broken and it still is. Please heal my heart. Please strengthen me.

As I prayed, I felt the Lord tell me that He had heard my cries and to read Psalm 34. He told me that He would soon deliver me from the troubles that have been pursuing me.

Father, I must confess that it somehow felt good to yell. I also really needed a deep and long cry. You have been preparing me, but really all of us, for something, but I have no 'true' clue as to exactly what or when.

You then reminded me that I am Your daughter and friend and that You had allowed me to vent to You as My Father and Friend. However, instead of becoming angry with me, You then comforted me as a loving Friend and respected Father.

Lord, You have continued to give me dreams that are very clear. You have also given me some incredible visions. However, I need some help interpreting all that You have been showing me in these dreams and visions.

Dream 1 description begins (from January 20th, 2017)...

I was in a massive warehouse that had been named 'Plunder' for some reason. Inside this massive brick building, there were many sectioned off rooms. Each room contained valuable items. Some of these items were from very wealthy estates. One of the rooms here seemed reserved specifically for chandeliers and lighting.

As I looked into this particular room, I saw a massive floor lamp that must have been in a very large room at some point. This lamp was made of bronze and the canopy glass shade was made up of thousands of colored glass panels.

I was pretty sure that this massive lamp was an actual 'Tiffany Lamp' as I believe that I had seen a similar miniature version of this at the Museum of Art in Richmond, Virginia. The lamp was beautiful and must have been at least eight feet high and eight feet wide.

As I walked up to the lamp, I noticed that the price tag said '$7.00'. I was shocked at how low the price was and read this a second time. Yes, it did indeed read seven dollars! I could not believe my eyes and thought that this must be a mistake. I went to find a clerk to enquire about this piece.

Me: "Is that lamp, that massive 'Tiffany Lamp' over there, really only $7.00 or is it more like $7 million?" The clerk began to laugh. "Well, if it is only $7.00, than I will take it."

Clerk: Still laughing. "Yes, that price is correct. However, are you able to move it or have it delivered to where you live? Can the floor of your home even withstand the weight of this lamp? Ask yourself these questions and, if you can answer 'yes', then the lamp is yours for only $7.00. By the way, the lamp has been here quite a while."

Me: Smiling. "Hmm, I am going to have to really think about this. I will get back to you." I walked back over to the lamp to have a dialogue with myself.

Me: "Wow, I always wanted a lamp like this, but much smaller. However, this deal is just so amazing."

I then began to imagine the massive flat-bed semi-truck I would need to have it delivered, along with the service and transportation costs. As I imagined the overall logistics, I suddenly felt heavy and burdened. Soon this turned to anxiousness and I heard the Holy Spirit counsel me.

Holy Spirit: "Really, Erin? This is an enemy orchestrated distraction. Remove yourself now."

I immediately listened, turned my back to the lamp and walked out of the room.

Holy Spirit: "Now, Erin, turn right at the second doorway."

I walked down the massive hallway until I once again heard the Holy Spirit speak to me.

Holy Spirit: "Now, this door."

I opened the door and walked into the room. As I did, I saw cases and displays of vases and pottery. These were not just cheap production pieces, but instead there were Cameo Glass, Bavarian, Tiffany, Loetz, Murano, Kosta, Heron, Walther and so on. There was even some uranium glass, something that I had never seen in real life.

As I stood there gazing at all of this in awe, it seemed almost like a 'Glass Makers Museum for the European Union', if such a museum even were to exist. The pieces were simply stunning. I was fascinated.

All of the cases were lit from the base of the vases as if to illuminate the glass in a vivid way. The colors were incredible. As I looked over to an area to my left, I saw a Lalique-type display of glass vases. Next to this, I saw an incredible display of cut crystal.

There was also pottery pieces lighted from the top down displayed at the very back of the room. I was amazed at the renowned labels that I saw there, including Weller, Newcomb, Antonio Campi, Roseville and so on.

As I continued to walk around the display cases, I then saw a massive area of Chinese vases, although some of them were Japanese raku. After this, I came to a display of French confit pots in the very back right hand corner, some of which had been incorrectly labelled as 'Italian olive jars'.

I grimaced when I noticed that most of the confit pots had been broken up into chards. As I moved the broken pieces out of the way to get a better look, I saw a tipped over seven inch high confit pot that was in perfect shape.

I picked it up to see the price, but noticed that there was no price tag attached to it. I went back to the clerk to enquire about this item. As I walked towards the clerk, the Holy Spirit again counseled me.

Holy Spirit: "Now, Erin, it is settled. What was lost is now found. Take this and search no more."

Dream 1 description over...

I did not fully understand this dream as I am no longer searching for this 'elusive' seven inch confit pot as I once had. It had been around sixteen years since this pot had been sold out right from under me and I was not looking for this pot anymore. Instead, I had sold my entire collection of confit pots about eight years ago, along with my Loetz vase.

Father, in my heart, I do not feel that I am still longing for these items. If I am still longing for these in my heart, then I repent and ask that You please forgive me.

Dream 2 description begins (from January 21st, 2017)...

I was looking over the Earth from the Heavenly overlook as I have in the past, but now noticed that the Earth somehow seemed to be much closer. As I stood there looking, an angel to my left drew my attention to a massive machine.

This machine was like a giant rototiller or even an earth carver of sorts. It was pointed out to me that this machine had begun in the Middle East, then went to India and Pakistan for a time, but then turned back to Iran, Syria and the areas surrounding Israel.

I then saw this machine starting to back up. I could not help myself from having a puzzled smile on my face as it started to beep as it went into reverse. The beeping was quite similar to the sound a construction tractor makes when reversing.

I then saw that this machine had gone into Europe, but had somehow split off into three separate branches. As it blazed highways throughout Europe, I noticed that all of the beautiful green areas were chopped up like salad and tossed.

As this continued, I noticed that one of the three machines had gained power and was going north. As it did, it destroyed all of the beauty in Europe, including the historic areas and the greenery. The ground was now desolate with brown dirt and roots.

Since the scenic highways had also now been turned into 'dirt highways', traveling became difficult. The areas there were also stripped of its resources. These machines were incredibly devastating, especially the largest one.

As this all occurred, I saw that the officials there were turning their heads to ignore the machines, mostly out of pride. They were simply unable to accept that their poor decisions had led to the imminent ruin of their landscape. By ignoring this, these machines were then allowed to continue to change the landscape unhindered.

I then saw the largest of the three machines destroy Sweden and Finland. After doing so, it then jumped across the Atlantic Ocean to Canada. It then skipped over to the area of the Great Lakes and began to cut up Canada from there.

I then saw this massive machine try to breach the northern border of the USA, but it became hung up on something. Even so, this massive machine was able to continue to weaken Canada.

As I continued to look over North America from the Heavenly overlook, I saw three angels travelling up and down the entire West Coast, from northern Canada right down to the tip of the Baja Peninsula. While I could still see the angels that were already there from before, these new angels were drawing blue lines with paint brushes.

When the angels had finished painting these blue lines, I began to see the land break apart to the west of the blue line. I then saw many terrible events. I also saw some small machines being activated from various parts within the USA to stir up the land.

I saw the ground shaking, rain, mudslides and flooding. I saw whole areas breaking apart. As these areas broke apart, I could hear the people from inside these areas crying out. However, they did not cry out to God, but rather to the Bull.

Even as the Bull helped them and continued to help, a different 'savior' called upon outside help from 'the nations'. A war was then waged between the 'former things' and the 'promise of hope'. There were many in the land that now wanted the 'former things' to return and for this to still be completely void of God.

As the angel continued to show me the North American continent, I saw it growing thin and transparent. However, I also saw something like a cord or rope reaching across the ocean from Washington DC over to Israel. I then saw that the construction of the Third Temple was underway.

The prayers of the Jewish people were for God to protect the cursed land and prosper it. However, 'the nations' rose up against the cursed land, all led by deception from within the cursed land's borders.

Me: "Angel, what or who are these machines?"

Angel: "What movement desires destruction? Who hates the Jewish people? Who hates anything lovely, peaceful and fruitful? Who believes that, when the whole Earth is in turmoil, this is when their 'savior' will come?"

Me: "Islam! It is Islam. Angel, these machines are Islam."

Angel: "Yes. Now, who forbids you from even saying one word against them or even to proclaim the Name of Jesus?"

As the angel said this, he then pointed down to Italy. As I looked down, I saw Italy being shaken. I also saw that two of these 'machines' had a place to rest there. I then pointed to Italy as I looked over at the angel.

Me: "When will this be?"

Angel: "This is now, Erin. Now!"

My family and I were called in advance with others to the Cliff House Restaurant at the opening point from the ocean to the Golden Gate Bridge in California. The Lord had told us that there were to be 59 people killed there by a single person, but also that there was an even greater purpose for us to be there.

We arrived there early on a beautiful sunny day. As I looked around, I could remember this area well as I had spent a lot of time on this San Francisco beach as a child. As we entered this particular restaurant, I could also remember eating here once and that it looked similar, but that it was now a bit more modern looking.

There were two separate sections in this restaurant. The section to the back served Asian infusion style fare, including sushi, Thai and Korean Barbeque. This entire section was quite high end. In contrast, the other section was much more casual and served pub style fare, including burgers and micro-brewery beverages.

A massive patio surrounded the entire place. However, they had several beautiful and modern wind barriers in place in order to make the dining experience more pleasant. As this restaurant is next to the ocean, the related ocean breezes seldom cease, so this would have been a necessity.

As we settled into this beautiful setting, several other believers arrived to meet us there. After a while, and as other unrelated parties arrived, the place became quite crowded. While this may seem odd, there were soon so many of us believers that we decided to hold hands and pray and were able to encircle the entire property while doing so.

As we came closer towards the arrival of nightfall, several of us were called by the Lord to leave for other areas. However, soon all of us believers had been called away from the restaurant, with the last of us leaving just after sunset.

The news came to us the very next day that a woman had blown herself up at the restaurant after we had all left. It was reported that 59 people had been killed by the explosion. When I later saw photos of this particular woman, I immediately recognized her as someone who had been sitting quite near to me for most of the day.

At one point, this woman had even engaged me in conversation. When this happened, I prayed to the Lord on what I should do and He told me to answer her questions and to be kind to her, but to do nothing more.

I was still unclear as to why the Lord had called so many of us to stand and pray at this restaurant only to have all of this death and destruction come shortly after we had left.

Father, I am not certain what all of these dreams mean. I am also still really bothered about what the stirring up of 'the land' is doing. This is destroying everything around it. What makes this even sadder is that it seems that everyone knows this is happening, especially the politicians, yet no one is doing anything to stop any of it.

In reality, the time has now come that anyone speaking out about any of this is considered a hater and labeled as such. Lord, I am truly afraid for the world now!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was by the water fountain on the path leading to the Potter's House just as the sun was rising over the studio. After I walked over and took a drink of water, I ran down the path over to Jesus' pottery studio. I heard music as I approached the front door and saw that it was open.

Me: "Hello, Lord, are You home?"

Jesus: "Come in. I am over here"

I turned the corner and saw Him glazing some pottery. He stopped what He was doing, stood up and gently hugged me.

Me: "I am so glad to see You, Lord. I just love it here."

Jesus: "Oh yes..." He laughed. "...but this is not My home." He smiled and laughed again. "This is just one of My workspaces."

Me: "It is so wonderful and I love it here so much. It is so creative and beautiful. Lord, what are You working on?"

Dream over...for now...

Received Tuesday, January 24, 2017

I finished writing Part 1 (Dream 233) on Sunday, January 22, 2017, but was unable to finish the entire dream. Right after taking communion today, the Lord had me first write down another sub-dream, which I numbered as "Dream 4" since Part 1 already contains sub-dreams 1 to 3.

Dream 4 description begins (from January 24th, 2017)...

It was now springtime in what I believe to be this year of 2017. We were preparing for a massive outdoor celebration and my family was preparing our yard for the guests that were soon to arrive.

I was in the process of cleaning some glass troughs that I had built for the deer to eat from (but in the dream only). As the winter had been quite harsh, we had fed the deer some apples to help sustain them. I laughed about these glass troughs being on our property as feeding the wildlife is something that we had always been taught to avoid.

As I was cleaning these glass troughs, I shook my head in amazement at how extremely dirty they were. When I finally realized that I simply could not clean them adequately within the limited time before our guests arrived, we decided to instead move them 'out of sight'.

While we were carefully moving these glass troughs, I noticed that there was some scat (excrement) in one of them. However, since the scat was rather large, it seemed more like from a predator than from one of the deer. Sure enough, when I looked around, I saw a fat coyote or perhaps a grey wolf walking in a field in the distance.

I shook my head as I realized that my good intentions of feeding the starving deer during the harsh winter had led to these predators. My youngest son overheard me muttering my disappointment at myself and offered some comforting words.

Son: "Look at it this way instead, mom. How many times has your love of Jesus attracted wolves?"

Me: I laughed as I nodded my head in agreement. "Thanks. That is a very wise observation."

Now feeling better, it was only then that I noticed that all of us now seemed vibrant and healthy. It also sunk in that all of my children were outside with me to help, but, even more importantly, all with true enthusiasm. There was not a single complaint from any of them. This was truly a joyous occasion!

It was a beautiful sunny spring day. As it was unseasonably warm today, it was very comfortable to be outside. As I looked around some more, I noticed that our yard and the landscape around our yard had changed quite a bit.

To my amazement, our yard now consisted of massive tiers of green grass fields that extended well into our neighbor and his partner's yard. While extremely improbable at this point, this could have only meant that we would have somehow been able to purchase the lot next to our place. This would be such a relief to all of us!

Just as we were putting the 'final touches' on our yard clean up, my husband called down to us from our deck.

Husband: Smiling. "The guests are arriving. You all need to get dressed."

I looked up and could see that several cars were driving down the road toward our property.

Me: "Oh yes! Thanks." I then called to the kids to make sure that they had heard him. "Alright, it is time to get cleaned up."

As the cars came nearer to our property, I noticed that all of the cars were antiques. They soon arrived at our house and began to park in our yard as if in a lineup that you would see at a car show. I counted twelve antique automobiles in total, with nine cars in the front yard and three cars in the back yard.

Most of the cars had four guests in them and all of the guests were dressed in clothing that I recognized as being from the 1940s based on old movies I have watched. I could not help but smile in delight as their clothes seemed to match the vintage of the cars. One of the guests quickly noticed that I was not quite ready for their arrival.

Man: Smiling. "So, are we too early?"

Me: Laughing. "No sir! I am glad you came! I am running a bit late though, so please forgive me."

Man: "No problem, you are right on time!"

Me: "Excuse me, but could you tell me something? What make of cars are these? They seem almost identical to each other."

Man: He smiled as he pointed at the cars all around us. "These are Packard's. All of them are from 1942. There are not many of us left."

Quite simply, this was the most beautiful display of cars that I had ever seen. Almost all of the cars had whitewall tires. Their exterior paint colors were stunningly beautiful. I was about to point out a particularly beautiful color to one of the kids, but only then noticed that they had already gone inside to clean up and change their clothing.

I was still in awe at this amazing car display as I addressed a different guest.

Me: "Why 1942? Why the year 1942?"

Man: "You do not know, ma'am? The world changed. Change is coming again. We are here to celebrate and remember!"

Dream 4 description over...

What made this particular visit a bit unusual compared to my previous visits is that the Lord started this visit as if the previous visit had never ended. Immediately after I finished writing down the above sub-dream, my visit from last time again started and Jesus answered my question from Part 1 without pause or prelude.

As a quick recap, I had just started visiting the Lord while He was glazing some pottery in the Potter's House at the end of Part 1. During our brief conversation, I had just finished asking Him, "Lord, what are You working on?" This visit starts with His reply.

Jesus: "Many notable things, but, here and right now, I am glazing this rack of pottery."

After hugging me, He smiled and sat back down to continue His work. I watched Him as He put glaze on the inside of the pot that He was working on. After completing this, He then carefully examined the pot to make sure that He did not miss anything. I smiled as it was such a lovely pot.

Jesus: "Come, Erin, you are going to help Me glaze while we talk today."

He pointed over to five unusual pots that were sitting next to me.

Jesus: "You will be responsible for those five pots."

He then pointed to an entire rack of unglazed pottery.

Jesus: "While you cannot see it, I have already applied an undercoat of glazing inside all of these pots. Now I will begin to glaze the exteriors."

My smile of delight turned to puzzlement as, just then, I had noticed a few small broken pots sitting near us.

Me: "Lord, what happened? I do not quite understand as I know that You never make mistakes."

I could tell by the way that He smiled at my question that He already knew that I would ask and that He had purposely put these broken pieces there for me to see.

Jesus: "Oh these? These had become oversaturated with water and some oil. As a result, they were unable to accept the glaze. Those would have taken time away from preparing those already prepared for glazing. As for these broken ones, I had sanded them for glaze, but then discovered cracks.

"At this point, vessels should be usable and able to accept beautiful glazes. However, and more importantly, they also need to be able to hold what I pour into them. This is why I take the time to inspect each of these vessels carefully.”

Me: I pointed at the five unusual pots sitting next to me. “Lord, why am I responsible for these five pots? After all that You have done for us, what if I mess up the glaze?”

Jesus: Laughing. “You will not as I am here to help you.”

Me: I pointed at the broken pots. “Lord, why did You break those vessels instead of fixing them?”

Jesus: Nodding His head in agreement. “Yes, Erin, I certainly could have done this and I have done similar things in the past. However, it is a rare pot that has cracks or holes in it that will make it through the fire after being glazed. It would be rare for such a pot to make it through the pressure of the refining fire without breaking apart.

“Even if such a vessel was able to endure the fire, but could then barely hold what I poured into it, then how is this useful to Me? Can you drink water from a cup which is unable to hold what you pour into it? Does it not leak all over?”

“Imagine the guests drinking wine at the wedding where only half ends up in their mouths and the other half ends up staining their clothing. What host would serve from such a vessel?” He was now laughing. “There would be so much criticism of the Host that no one would remember the beautiful wedding ceremony.”

Me: “You are right, Lord. The guests would be outraged.”

Jesus: “Yes, Erin. When I bring out My best vessels, I already know that they can hold My best wine and will be able to preserve it. Now, have a seat and watch what I do and follow Me, okay?”

He laughed again as He said this and looked over at me. He could tell I was excited, but also a touch nervous about making a mistake at the same time. I then saw Him take this beautiful pot and delicately smooth out the slight imperfections.

Jesus: “I am now sanding off some of the rough patches.”

He then held the pot up and blew the dust off of the surface. I laughed as I noticed that all of the powder instantly disappeared the moment that He blew on the surface.

Me: Laughing. "Okay, so this is why You do not need a mask!"

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, Erin. Here, I do not have to be concerned with dust, chemicals and poison."

As He said this, He motioned for me to pick up one of the five pots assigned to me to do the same. I looked the pots over and selected a tall and wide one. There was another pot next to it that was quite similar, except that the one I selected had a smaller mouth and more extreme ridges to sand.

After I did exactly as Jesus did, I blew the dust off of the unglazed pot. The dust instantly disappeared without even a hint of residue. I smiled when I noticed that He was watching me.

Jesus then went back to work on His pot. He picked up a brush and put an amazing underglaze of metallic gold on it. He then blew over the entire surface of the vase and it instantly dried perfectly. He then used a different brush that was finer and smaller and began to paint a grape vine on it.

Me: "Lord, how are You able to put glaze to paint a design over the underglaze so quickly?"

He looked over at me as I asked this and smiled and laughed. As He replied to my question, His accompanying laughter was so good-natured that it filled me with a loving warmth that it is simply impossible to fully explain.

Jesus: "Now, Erin, who am I?"

Me: Smiling. "Lord, this is all just so incredible. This process usually takes such a long time on Earth. After the work of 'throwing the pots' (that is, turning them on the pottery wheel), I usually became impatient and wanted to hurry up the process."

Jesus: Smiling. "Hmm, would you like Me to send in an angel to finish your pottery?"

Me: "Oh no, Lord. What is important to You is important to me."

As I said this, I took a broad brush and began to apply a metallic copper glaze on the pot that I had selected to work on first. After I was finished, I blew on the pot and it instantly dried. I then carefully checked to make sure that I did not miss any part of it.

After I was satisfied that I had not missed anything, I began to paint an apple fruit tree design on it. I tried my very best to copy what the Lord was doing. I watched Him as He blew His pot dry each time that He used a different glaze color and then continue.

The pot Jesus was working on was simply stunning. It was shimmering gold with bronze branches and purple grapes. While seemingly odd to point out, I felt that I was to specifically note that this particular pot was somehow 'very masculine' in appearance.

Jesus was amazingly efficient as He worked. I watched Him gently place the pot down and then reach for a different pot. I noticed that His next pot was quite similar to His first pot, yet slightly different in shape. I became quite excited by what He was doing.

Me: "Lord, what happens next?"

Jesus: Laughing and smiling. "Now, Erin, you have not even finished your pot yet."

He then pointed back at the pot He had just put down.

Jesus: "Oh yes, I am not finished with this one yet. I still need to put a glaze over the entire surface, both inside and out, before the final firing. It will then cool for a few days before it is ready."

Me: "The underglazes and designs you made are so beautiful, Lord!"

I then finished the final touches to my first pot / vessel.

Me: "Lord, will You please inspect this for me?"

He picked up my pot and inspected it closely.

Jesus: Smiling. "Why this is a fine vessel, Erin. Do you know that you were a part of what this vessel has become? It is a very useful pot."

Me: "Lord, these pots are almost too beautiful to be used. Should they not be a vase for flowers or displayed in a museum instead?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Hmm, tell you what. You help Me with what I have assigned you to as I have a much greater use for My vessels than just to be gazed upon, understand?" He laughed. "Trust Me to assign use."

Me: I laughed and shook my head as I knew I had overstepped. "Oh forgive me, Lord."

Jesus: Smiling. "You are forgiven. Just remember that My uses for all of these are much greater than you can imagine. Each one will do far more than hold water for flowers or be on display. There might be some counterfeits out there, but none will be filled with what I have. I offer living water, but so much more. Each one of these was created for a purpose. Although their value seems great to the world amongst collectors of vases, their worth to Me is priceless."

I then selected the pot that was similar in shape to the pot that I had just finished. I looked it over, sanded off the rough edges and blew off the 'instantly disappearing' dust residue. I then began the underglaze, but chose bronze for this one. I then decided to paint an apple fruit tree on this one as well, but chose a different variety of apple.

We continued to talk as we worked on our pots.

Jesus: "Erin, you were given some dreams and now you have questions."

Me: "Yes, Lord. The dreams of Islam are quite frightening. I watch as the world tolerates crimes against Your people. There is raping, killing and so many other atrocities being performed, yet the world does not condemn those guilty fully. Instead, we are all called upon to adjust to their ways and accept their religious practices. Lord, I do not see much good coming from any of this."

"Also, the dream of the 'Plunder Warehouse' has me a bit baffled. I also do not understand the dream of all of the 1942 Packard's from last night. Lord, please help me on all of this."

Jesus: "Erin, what did you discover when researching the 1942 Packard's?"

Me: "Well, they were produced in the USA and seemed to be a higher end vehicle. 1941 was their last successful year for profits. When they produced the 1942 'series 8', they had only 34,000 in production up to February 7th, 1942. After this, the manufacturers had to help towards the war effort.

"Lord, it was just prior to 1942 when the USA officially entered WWII after declaring war on Japan on December 8th, 1941. Shortly after this, all production was redirected towards winning the war. This lasted for around three years. The Packard line never really recovered, but what I should really say is that its beautiful design was 'no longer'."

Jesus: "The glory of the former things on Earth has passed and any glory from here on out will come from Me alone. Now, I also did not forget the 34,000 who were murdered and thrown into a massive grave at around this same time. I have never forgotten the sounds of the cries of those buried under the dead."

I took a break to look this up. This war crime had taken place at a ravine called 'Babi Yar' in the Ukrainian capital of Kiev. This was a site of massacres carried out by German forces and local collaborators during their campaign against the Soviet Union. The most notorious and best documented of these massacres had taken place on September 29th and 30th, 1941 when 33,771 Jews were murdered. It was not even three months after this event took place that the Pearl Harbor sneak attack on the USA by Japan occurred on December 7th, 1941.

Me: "Lord, I just looked this up. Forgive me as I did not know much about this. In school, much of the material on the Holocaust had been clumped together and minimized. We spent much more time learning about all of the different battles. I am sick just thinking about this."

Jesus: "Erin, there are many atrocities over the centuries and these are far reaching over time. I am bringing this to your attention to remind you that I never forget. In the same way, know that I do not forget what has been done to you. Erin, I do not forget what has been done to the meek.”

Me: “Thank You, Lord. However, I feel so blessed compared to so many.”

Jesus: “Erin, each vessel has a purpose. However, while each is valuable...” He pointed to the broken pots. “...not all are useful. The ‘Valley of Dry Bones’ is about those massacred...” He then pointed to the beautiful vases. “...but it is also about an army built up with My breath and assembled for My purposes. The former things have faded, but My work continues.”

I suddenly became worried about my husband as he was returning from work in the middle of an ice storm. I quickly prayed, ‘Father, there is an ice storm outside. Please let my husband arrive home safely, in Jesus’ Name’. When I returned to our visit, Jesus smiled at me as if to reassure me that my husband would return home safely (which he did, thank You, Lord). However, He could tell that I was now distracted with worry.

Jesus: Smiling. “Erin, this is enough for today. However, I will tell you something before we stop. Rain and dew from Heaven, along with an abundance of grain and new wine, are soon to come upon My vessels. You are one of My vessels and this is ‘The Year of My Favor’ upon you (Isaiah 61).”

Me: “Lord, will I be back here to see You?”

In addition to worrying about my husband driving in the ice storm, I was now worried about this as well. Yes, I am still a vessel that is a ‘work-in-progress’ – smiles. Smiling and laughing, Jesus reached over and hugged me in order to reassure me.

Jesus: “Well, you still have some pottery to glaze, so yes.”

Dream over...

After finishing this dream, I felt strongly that it would be timely to revisit and read Psalm 91. I also felt that now was a good time to study Ezekiel 37 and Psalm 46 again.

Dream 235 – The Final Glaze, the Bull and the Matadors

Received Wednesday, January 25, 2017

Nor'easter hits, closing schools for a second day in a row. This morning, we once again saw blue snow outside. While the 'blue lightning show' could have occurred again, no one in our house saw it this time. Perhaps we all slept through it, but only God knows?

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for keeping all of us safe through the recent storm! Thank You for keeping our power on. The lights flickered several times, but our lights remained on. Please continue to keep us safe and warm as the next wave of storms comes on top of the ice. Last night, we had blue snow again – awesome!

There was just enough of a break in the weather to enable me to feed some apples to a mother deer and her young doe. The mother stood watch as her baby ate some slices of apple and then she cautiously ate a few as well. After this, they both drank some water from the small stream next to our home.

Dream 1 description begins...

I was ministering to some Muslim youths in my prayer language. They were angered by this at first, but then they quickly softened. It was an unusual dream in that I did not understand what I was saying to them in my prayer language, but they clearly could understand every word.

Dream 1 description over...

Dream 2 description begins...

I saw the Red Bull again, but this time he was larger, darker red and had massive sharp horns with steel tips. The Bull was strong and powerful and was fighting to survive. There were a series of six matadors, each with red capes to antagonize the Bull and to draw attention away from their spears.

NOTE: The one side of the matadors' capes facing the Bull was red, but the reverse side was covered in a variety of flags from around the world. I only received brief flashes of the flag side, but I could tell that there were many flags in a patchwork. Due to this brevity, I was unable to count how many flags or recognize any of the flags.

At one point, the six matadors had encircled the Bull and had begun to move in with the idea of getting close enough to strike. Three of the matadors approached the Bull from the rear, each of them with two spears to attack the Bull's back.

These three matadors then threw five of their six spears at the Bull. However, not a single one of these five spears could penetrate the Bull and the spears fell to the ground. The Bull then turned to face them and scraped the ground three times

However, instead of charging these three matadors, the Bull instead strategically wove in and out of each of the six matadors encircling him. He examined each of them slowly and carefully without fear as he now knew that the spears would not be able to penetrate his thick coat.

Then and without warning, the Bull suddenly charged at one of the matadors, impaling him in his upper thigh. The Bull then used this man as a type of ramming device and chased down and bowled over every one of the other five matadors.

As this was an unexpected turn of events, an odd type of 'clown bull' was sent out to try and distract the Bull from continuing to chase down the matadors and hurting them. However, the Bull ignored this distraction and wounded two more matadors. The 'clown bull' then became fearful, jumped over the wall to run away and never looked back.

After watching the two matadors getting injured, the other four matadors hid behind various objects. Since this is considered shameful in this 'sport', this resulted in the matadors losing their honor and pride. The matadors later gathered together and made a mutual vow to take the Bull down in any way possible to restore their honor and pride.

I noticed that this whole event had taken place in an arena with a dirt floor. There were also many spectators present watching this event from the stands. However, even some in the crowd decided to flee with fright at the sheer power of the Bull.

Dream 2 description over...

Father, please help me with this dream. Please continue to protect all of those whom love You. Protect the United States. Silence those coming against Israel.

Lord, please strengthen all of us for the times ahead. So many of us who love You are now downcast and discouraged. While we are to wait on Your perfect timing, this can be stressful even when we are trying our hardest to obey Your command not to worry. Father, please grant us healing and joy, in Jesus' Name, Amen.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Once again, I was on the path leading to the Potter's House. I walked over to the rock with the little ladle and took a drink. The water was so refreshing. I then began to run down the path so I could visit Jesus in His Pottery Studio.

It is so beautiful here and the air is cool and fresh. As I approached His studio, I could hear singing. I laughed as the music here is always so amazing. The music sounded like hundreds of voices of angels, all with instruments playing perfectly behind the voices. As I turned to walk up to the front door, I noticed that the door was open again.

Me: "Hello, it is me, Erin. Are You here?"

The music suddenly stopped and I could hear Jesus laugh.

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, please come in. You still have some work to do."

He got up from where He had been sitting and hugged me.

Me: "I love it here, Lord. Well, I love anywhere that You are, but I must admit that I just love seeing You, the Master Potter, at work!"

Jesus: "Well, I am glad to see you so joyful and excited to come."

Me: "Lord, what are You working on?"

He pointed at one of the vessels.

Jesus: "Well, I fired that vessel twice and, as soon as I am finished with this one..." He then pointed at a different vessel. "...I will fire this one briefly. I will then glaze all of these with a final glaze and put them together on a lower temperature..." He then pointed to another tiny beautiful vessel. "...to give them this quality to them."

The tiny vessel He was pointing at was a stunning golden color. It also had swirling flowers that looked like blossoming hearts on it.

Me: "It is so beautiful, Lord. Please tell me the story of this tiny vessel."

Jesus: "Well, this one represents a child who has touched the hearts of so many. I have used her over and over. She is not finished yet as, through her, I will work fully."

Me: I now had tears in my eyes. "I hope that I will be worthy to be used too, Lord."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, why do you think you are here?" He smiled. "Now, I am working on this vase. You will love this one."

I watched Him then paint the pot with white and silver. However, there were also shades of purples, blues and greens, only these were delicate and not bold.

As I picked up the vase I had been working on, I noticed that it had a masculine feel to it similar to the last vase I worked on. The tree on 'my' vase was like an apple or pomegranate tree.

Me: Giggling. "Why do I feel like You are personally directing each of my brush strokes?"

Jesus: "Well, yes, I am, because, ultimately, all of these are used for My purposes, right?" He laughed. "The tree on this one will actually be a plum tree."

Me: "I like plums, Lord. What is the significance of a plum in this motif?"

Jesus: "Well, what do you like about plums?"

Me: "Hmm, well, they are a bit sour when you first bite into them, but then they are sweet on the inside and quite juicy for such a small fruit. However, I am usually never satisfied with just one though, so I usually need to eat at least two."

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes. Now, this is slightly different than the apple, but equally as enjoyable to partake."

I looked over and saw a beautiful floral motif that the Lord was creating on His pot.

Me: "This one is beautiful too and very vibrant in color. There is so much detail. How do You have..." I quickly stopped myself and shook my head.

Jesus: Laughing. "How do I have the time?"

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "I care very much about time, Erin. It is important to so many and I know the value of time. However, this I can tell you. Though your measure of God's time is fleeting, there are many things to consider and not just by an earthly clock. I care about what you care about. I know that time is constant and passing.

“Just know that I care deeply for each one of these. I spend time. I take care because I love all of you deeply. The smallest of things to you, even that which you think is too insignificant to share with Me, well, I know this and grant even the smallest of simple requests.

“Now, each vessel matters to Me as each of them was commissioned to Me from My Father. I have completely considered each one. At times, I have needed to re-glaze and re-fire some of them. I have even needed to reshape some of them. Much is at stake because your hearts matter to Me.

“While I am called to every single one, every single one does not call out to Me in return. If they only knew just how much I loved each of them, they would not do such a thing. While all do not look to Me, I still use My vessels to pour out My miracles.

“So, now, Erin, I have spent many years preparing for this time and times. I do not run by earthly time here. I know the plans I have for each of these vessels. Each one is worthy and each one will be able to withstand much.”

As He spoke, He continued to work on this beautiful vessel. It had handles on the sides. He was painting something on the front of the vase. He then turned it to paint on the back. As He did this, my eyes began to again tear up.

Me: “Oh Lord, there are two sparrows. There is one sparrow on the front and another sparrow on the back.”

He slowly turned the vase to show me what He had done. It somehow appeared that it was one sparrow flying around the vase, both up and down. There was also a nest with eggs. It was quite beautiful and covered in subtle colors.

Jesus: Smiling. “So, Erin, how are your pots coming along?”

Me: “I am starting on this one next.”

My next pot was sturdy and like a cylinder. It had a wide mouth and a long handle. I began glazing the pot, first with metallic blue and then with metallic green. I then painted a beautiful fish on it.

The fish seemed to be some sort of Pacific Salmon, but also had the beauty of a Rainbow Trout. The scales of the salmon looked like diamonds and were quite remarkable. Even in its beauty, this vase still looked quite masculine in nature.

After I finished glazing this pot, I then moved to the next pot. This vase was also incredibly beautiful, but had two handles, just like the one Jesus was working on. I started off by glazing this one with metallic silver.

I then painted delicate roses, berries and grass at the base. Above this, there were trees and a deer in the background. There was also a small sparrow flying from the nest in a sky of light blue. The mother bird was perched on a branch watching the small sparrow as she flew.

Every one of these pots was so incredibly beautiful and intricate that I could barely wait to see them finished. As I looked over at the vase Jesus was working on, I was surprised to see that He was still working on the same one. As per usual, He knew my thoughts, just as He knows all of our thoughts.

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, Erin, some things cannot be rushed."

There was so much detail on the vase Jesus was working on that it looked like an amazing art piece. It took my breath away.

I smiled as I reached for a different vase. This one was small and shaped beautifully. This vase was in a style I believe is called a 'trumpet-style'. This is because it looks like a lily or trumpet. The inside was beautiful because it folded over.

I painted the top as a lily, but the base was blue, like a little pond with flowers. It looked as if a garden painting of Monet's had been painted on this little vessel. The vase was also covered in blues, purples, golds, pinks and whites, all with a shimmering metallic look to it.

Me: "Lord, I thought that this iridescence or metallic look does not show until after the firing of the pot?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Hmm, well, Erin, things can be divine here. After all, am I ever really surprised by the outcome of these pots after they have come through the fire?" He was now laughing.

Me: Shaking my head. "No, Lord, of course You would already know. You are never surprised by anything."

Jesus: "This is why I glaze and paint with full confidence. I already know the outcome in advance. At this point, I would not spend this time only to have it end up in pieces. The finish glaze which goes onto this will give a luster which cannot be replicated.

"Even when the angels fell from Heaven, cast out from the Courts of God, they still had knowledge of things from Heaven. However, they then used their talents for evil. Do you remember which of these had knowledge of metal work and weaponry, but had also taught man about adornments of jewelry and tinctures?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, but could You please remind me what tinctures are?"

Jesus: "Well, this fallen knew how to mix colors and metals and was in the area of Damascus. This is where the strongest use of metal came from for weaponry. These things are not what originated from man. This knowledge was because they all once resided here.

"For instance, look at the metallic luster to this glaze. The creation and perfection of this glaze is Heavenly in origin. However, if you trace the counterfeit earthly version of this glaze, guess where you will find its roots?"

Me: "Oh, I bet it is from Damascus?"

Jesus: "Yes. At one point in time, the entire area of Israel, as well as the areas of her surrounding enemies, was the Promised Land. This was a small parcel of Heaven on Earth. Prior to this, this area was the Garden of Eden.

"This was a beautiful place, but you have only to look at the practices surrounding the temples and towers from the sons of the fallen angels to see the evidence of sin. There you will see the production of advanced weaponry and adornments. These things encouraged sinful behavior.

"Medicinal roots were mixed with wine. There were all practices of idol worship. They worshiped the stars and practiced the festivals of the moon. Many pierced their bodies, but also made other modifications to their bodies as well.

"Erin, it is no different today. Even as we speak, man builds his towers and does all of these other things. Those who hate God do these things in defiance to Me. People now do these things in worship of other gods."

Me: "Lord, I cannot believe how widespread these things are now. As just one example, Yoga is common place now, even amongst believers. This is literally the worship of other gods. People modify their bodies by injections, implants and beauty treatments. Almost everyone colors their hair now as well."

I suddenly became worried when I realized that I was currently doing some of these things.

Me: "Oh Lord, please forgive me as I color my hair, use makeup and had my ears pierced when I was eight years old."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but you do these things in modesty." He smiled. "Now, why would I do this? After visiting Me here for over four years, do you believe that I would have not just told you if these were of concern to Me?"

Me: "Yes, Lord." I felt relieved. "It is now so sad. I see the mixing of religions. I see the acceptance of gay marriage, abortions and genetically modified foods. The list goes on and on. Just the other day I watched a show where a woman proudly admitted to adding Xanax pills into her wine and fruit smoothies.

"Lord, I see more and more psychics who claim to speak with angels. I see the widespread practice of things like new age crystal therapy. It seems that anyone who now speaks against anything sinful is labeled hateful, judgmental or both.

"It is so hard to be a Christian now. If we are not strengthened by You soon, we will perish before long. Your Word even says that, in the last days, many people will no longer eat meat, practicing vegetarianism instead."

Jesus: "There is no longer peace. Every practice is now becoming contrary to every good action. This means that what was once an abomination is now acceptable practice.

"Despite widespread diseases caused by ingesting poisons..." He suddenly downloaded images of drugs, both legal and illegal. "...and engaging in sinful relations, people do not want to stop.

"Instead, they find the means to aid them in their ability to continue on their course. Along with this, they practice all manners of the opposite of the Fruits of the Spirit, the opposite of the very things from Heaven that give a man a good life on Earth and in Eternity."

Jesus smiled at me and held up the vase He had been working on for me to look at.

Jesus: "Well, Erin, what do you think?"

Me: "Oh Lord, it is absolutely beautiful."

Jesus: "I strengthened this vessel with a heavier coat of special glazing and applied it both on the inside and on the outside."

Me: Crying. "Lord, the sparrow on Your vase has a gold heart! It is so beautiful."

Jesus: He smiled as He hugged me. "Now, Erin, when you come back next (to the Potter's Studio), I will have put on the final glaze and they will have already been through the kiln." He laughed. "Oh yes, I should mention that I used some salt in this glaze as well."

I laughed as He said this and then turned around to point at the rack of pots behind me.

Me: "I cannot wait to see all of these too."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but there will be a first grouping and then another grouping." He smiled. "I still have much to do."

Me: "Can I do anything to help You, Lord? Can I help glaze some more pots with You?"

Jesus: Smiling. "No, Erin, but thank you for offering. You were here to help Me with the five vessels that you just finished glazing. Now, do not worry as I plan on using you for My purposes. You will help many.

"However, for all of these pots..." He pointed at a rack of pots. "...like the time I have spent with these pots..." He then pointed to the two pots He had just finished, along with the five pots that I had just finished with His help. "...I must take the same special care to finish these also.

"It is important that each one of these can hold what I will pour into them." He smiled. "Each one will also have to display My splendor upon them."

Me: "Lord, You are wonderful and gloriously mysterious. I love being here with You."

Jesus: Smiling. "I love having you here with Me."

Me: I hugged Him. "Thank You, Lord."

Jesus: "Now, I know that you have had a difficult time recently. There has been a deployment of evil upon the Earth, but now it will accelerate even faster than before. Remain in Me. The things of this world have lost their luster and only an illusion of the former things remains.

"Israel is in the crosshairs of the enemy again. Pray for her protection. Your treasures, Erin, are here. The treasures of God's people wait here with Me. I look for willing hearts. I hear those who look to Me and cry out. There is still time, but not long. Do not worry. I am with you."

Me: "Lord, this seems so serious."

Jesus: "It is, Erin. There is the threat of trouble all around you. Pray for those who have divided households as the enemy wants division amongst parents and children, husbands and wives. A house divided cannot stand. Do not worry as your house will stand.

"Now, come back in a few days to see the finished product, okay? In the meantime, find joy and laughter. I love you."

Me: "I love You, Lord. I'll be back."

He smiled at me as He reached over to hug me.

Dream 236 – Jesus, the Meek and the Proud

Finished on Monday, February 13, 2017

This dream was started on Sunday, February 5th, 2017 as fresh snow was falling outside. However, this dream took over a week, along with five separate visits, to finally complete. The last visit took place on Monday, February 13th, 2017 as a blizzard raged outside, dumping almost three feet of snow.

Received on Sunday, February 5th, 2017 (Visit 1)...

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You once again for a new day! Thank You for my family. Thank You for my friends. As I reflect on current world events, I feel a need to take a deep sigh. Father, I have been grieving as the world has changed, but really everything has now changed.

The very times You have warned us of has now come and nations are rising up against each other and against the USA and Israel. I am disturbed about the level of support now going out to 'alternative places of worship', places whose very foundation is the very opposite of the love of Jesus.

A dear friend of mine and a fellow Christian drew my attention to the fact that Christians rarely support each other anymore, but yet have no problem supporting causes which have opposite messages from Jesus and His Salvation message. Father, this friend then raised some further points with me that still have not left me.

The veil over the land has become so heavy that many Christians now believe that showing Christ's love means sending money in support of these houses of worship. This only further helps them reach out their 'anti-Jesus teaching'. While Christian and Jewish ministries continue to suffer, other 'ministries' are actively funded and promoted.

Yes, Father, I can see that the time of the end is now surely here. Even speaking against this 'alternative religion' is considered hate. As a result of Your leading, instead of engaging the enemy in a battle which is clearly

Your battle, Father, I only focus on promoting that which You have shown me. These are my favorite things to promote:

- Your love for us!
- Your Son, Jesus, and His beautiful heart, a heart which is just like Yours!
- The place You have prepared for us out of Your love – Heaven!
- Hope in the promise that You have great plans for us in these times, plans to rise us up and use us for Your purposes and to turn hearts towards You!

This means all of those that God chooses! Father, this means that You will call the unlikely, the meek, to humble the proud. In Matthew 5:5, the meek shall inherit the Earth. Well, Father, I now believe that the entire 'Sermon on the Mount' was a foreshadowing of what You will now soon do with all of us.

What good is it to have people declaring the obvious together? We are in troubled times, Father, and many of us are struggling. While I have no 'temporary' solution for anyone, I do know of only one 'eternal' solution, Jesus. We must run after the heart of Jesus and, no matter what this costs you, perhaps even your life, we must do this!

Last week, I picked up my youngest child at her new school in town. When I pick her up, she is usually waiting with three other girls, all Muslim, that also have to wait for pickup. As our daughter is quite personable, she is now friends with all three of these girls.

However, one of these three girls in particular has a bright smile. This girl has laughter and a joy almost like nothing I have even seen before. Whenever I smile and wave at this particular Muslim girl, she always immediately smiles and waves back at me.

Now, keep in mind that this girl is Muslim as I tell you what our daughter told me about something quite special that this girl had done just last week. This girl showed our daughter a picture she had doodled of three crosses standing on a hill.

When our daughter saw this and asked her why she drew this, the girl had no explanation. While our daughter did not feel led to say anything more to this girl at this point, she told me that she could hardly wait to tell me all about the drawing.

Father, please speak to this girl and extend Your love to her family. Father, strengthen all of our children so that they are beacons of light and lamps to those in darkness. Strengthen us as parents to say the right words of blessings and prayers over our children. Father, please help us to be loving examples of You in all that we do.

Lately, in my dreams, it seems that I am quite often speaking to people from the Middle East in my prayer language. While I have no idea what language my prayer language is, I pray that, whenever You decide to use this gift, may it be solely for Your glory.

I just know in my heart that you are using my dreams to train me to use my prayer tongue in various circumstances. While sometimes this language seems to be a type of Arabic language, other times this language instead seems like it could be something that might have been used by one of the ancient lost tribes of Israel.

While I really do not know what this all means, I feel confident that You will soon loosen my tongue to use this gift for Your glory. In the meantime, I only seem to use my prayer language when I am either praying in private or while anointing our home.

Father, I found that the dream You gave me last night was quite puzzling. It puzzled me as it involved my grandmother, who died 41 years ago, and my grandfather, who died about 25 years ago.

Dream 1 description begins...

I looked much younger than I do now and was staying with my grandparents at a resort hotel. However, my grandparents also looked much younger. They looked so much younger that I could not have even been born yet when they looked this young. What was also odd was that, even though we now looked roughly about the same age, I respected them as if they were still my elders.

We were preparing to attend a very important, by invitation only, black tie gala event. My grandfather was dressed in a stylish tuxedo and my grandmother was wearing an elegant blue sparkling gown. They both looked simply stunning and like they were straight out of a 1920s 'Great Gatsby' era movie.

As I was still not dressed formally for the gala yet, my grandparents asked me to hurry up and get ready for the gala. However, after seeing them both in their elegant attire, I suddenly realized that I had not taken the importance of this gala seriously enough.

I looked at the invitation and noticed that the gala was to begin at 6:00pm, with the reception and social period to go from 6:00pm to 7:15pm. I suddenly realized that I was going to be late.

Me: "Please go on ahead of me. I will not be arriving until shortly after the dinner starts, so please save me a seat. I will get there as soon as I can."

To my surprise, my grandmother started to cry as I said this.

Grandmother: "Erin, this is very important. We have all worked very hard to get here. Do what you need to do, but please get there on time."

She then reached over and kissed my forehead. After the two of them left, it was only then that I looked at the time again and realized that it was much earlier than I had originally thought. I was puzzled that I did not notice this before they had left.

Me: "Curious? It is only 4:00pm. I do not even understand why they left so early?"

I double checked the invitation again and confirmed that this event was not even that far from the hotel resort. This made no sense? What was the rush all about?

Even though I now had some time, I quickly started looking over my various options for a dress to wear. As I went to the closet, I noticed that there were several gowns that I recognized from when I was still in the clothing business. I chuckled as I looked these gowns over for reasons that I will elaborate on later.

I finally selected a gown that I did not recognize from my past. It was a simple dress, cream colored with a long tapered skirt. The dress came with a small cream jacket that had a satin sheen to the fabric. There were also some shoes there that had a cream satin that matched the outfit.

As I was younger here and my figure much slimmer than now, I marveled at the fit of this particular dress. It even seemed to somehow have been tailor made for me. I looked at the label and noticed that it was a 'Daymor Couture' gown. I suddenly recalled that I had ordered similar gowns for various clients of mine in the past.

Me: I smiled and shook my head. "Gone are these days, Lord. I no longer own any gowns or formal wear. In fact, I cannot even recall ever going to an event that would have required me to wear something like this."

After I selected my outfit, I became worried about being late and checked the time. To my surprise and delight, only thirty minutes had passed from when I started looking at gowns. I double checked myself in the mirror and was shocked to see that I was ready.

Me: "How odd? It is now only 4:30pm and I am already fully set to go to the gala. Now I cannot remember why I even thought that I would be late in the first place?"

Dream 1 description over...

Father, this dream was so clear. However, I do not understand the timing of this or the content. Why were my deceased grandparents in this? Why did I think I would be late?

I must admit that, when I looked in the mirror in this dream, a rare event, I was shocked to see that my face, hair and makeup were all flawless. My reflection had showed that I was now in my transformed state.

I suddenly realized that this was the very first time I had ever actually seen my transformed reflection in any of my 'transformation dreams'. All I can say is simply, 'Thank You, Father, for this small glimmer of hope.'

However, I also noticed that this glance had lasted but mere seconds and that I was not at all comfortable with focusing on myself in this dream. Lord, please forgive me as, when I look in the mirror at myself now, the enemy has victory. Father, please grant me peace to let go of my focus on my current lack. I have spent many years in battle and the effects of these battles clearly show now.

Now, I had mentioned above that I chuckled when I saw some of the gowns that I recognized from my past and that I would elaborate on this more later. Well, the background for all of this comes from when I used to own a clothing store and I would often carry elegant dresses for the holidays.

When I later sold my shop, it was right at the beginning of the year. For some reason, the buyers of my shop did not want any of my stock and left me with the inventory. While it made no sense to me for them to do this, it was not until later that the buyers told me that they also had realized that this was a regrettable mistake.

Now when I look back over the course of the selling of both of my prior businesses, I realize that God was fully behind both of these sales. Even though the buyers did not want the inventory and even changed the name of the shop, they had still offered me a deal so generous that I simply could not refuse it.

I later found out from the buyers that the downfall of their regrettable mistake was that they now had no items to sell that matched my existing customer's tastes. To compound this, they had also abandoned the name recognition of the shop that would have translated into continued customer loyalty.

Now, there was also the buyer who had purchased my home accessories and furnishings shop. While this person had decided to wisely keep the inventory, they did not want the displays, computers, equipment and so on. Despite this, I once again received a full price cash offer. Both of these sales were truly a gift from God as they simply defied normal earthly logic.

Anyway, soon after this, my troubles truly started. Thankfully, I still had this inventory of dresses and they were still beautiful and current. A friend from my church had heard about some of my troubles and had approached me to help sell these dresses online.

She indicated that she would then split the proceeds with me. Her offer seemed reasonable and I trusted her fully based on our relationship at the church. Well, after about six months of not hearing from her, I decided to check in with her.

She apologized to me and informed me that she had been busy. While I now needed the money for my ongoing battles, I decided to give her more time. After all, she was being kind by helping me, right?

Well, soon after this, I was with my kids at a goodwill store just fifteen miles away from the one that we usually went to and, to my surprise, I saw my inventory right there sitting in the racks. To my horror, there was one of my designer suits selling there for just $10 even though it retailed for around $600.

All in all, I found a total of ten of these items that day. I decided to buy back five of the ten as this was all I could really afford at the time. I then took these five items to a local consignment shop and made about $300 from them within just a few days.

I then phoned my Christian friend to ask for an explanation only to find out that she had since disconnected her phone. This hurt me deeply and my heart started to ache. It saddened me deeply that this person had decided that our friendship was worth being lost over some silly dresses.

This all just seemed so silly to me. However, this also served to compound my troubles as all of this had occurred just a few months after we had all of our things auctioned. The sale of these dresses could have provided needed funds for my battles. However, I now know that nothing surprises God and that this was all part of His plan for me.

Oh Father, You have done so much for me since then and all I can do is thank You over and over again for all that You have done. Thank You for who I am today. Thank You for this vessel I have been given. While my vessel may now be flawed and broken, it still has somehow gotten me this far.

Father, speaking of vessels, I still have not seen a piece of glass or pottery on Earth that matches Jesus' skill. Even when His pottery has not been glazed yet, His work is simply stunning! These vessels would be priceless on Earth today.

This weekend was humbling for me. It seems that I have an equal ratio of troubles and blessings right now. We have had car trouble and the car I am now driving has poor shocks. As a result, my pain level has been excruciating.

I had forgotten how blessed I was when driving our other car. Now my pain level is a reminder that my underlying condition has not changed. It was only by the grace of God that I felt better, that along with the great shocks He had provided me with.

There is an analogy here. God smooths out our bumpy ride and, without God as our shock absorber, we are subject to the pain of every bump in the road. Still, no matter what has come our way, God has kept us steady.

It has been discouraging at times, but I have learned to be content in the moment. If I were to think about what all is coming, then I cannot be present in this moment. Father, thank You for the reminder that You are in complete control. You are the God of last minute miracles and I am so thankful.

Every time I am about ready to give up, I usually start to ask myself the same questions. What did I do wrong here? Lord, is there a sin that I need to repent for? I go down my list and try to bring everything before You. I then find myself saying the following...

Father, I am sorry if I have done anything to hurt You. I love You and I live for You every day. I pray it is not Your Will to see me hurt further here, but, even if it is, then I know You have a plan. Please help me to question You less and to trust You more. I am sorry. I love You. Please forgive me.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I found myself at the bottom of the stairs to Jesus' Mansion looking up at His House. I was surprised by this as I did not expect this today. I had thought that I would have instead been brought back to the Potter's Studio again to perhaps see the finished vessels.

After I recovered from my initial surprise, I started taking note of my surroundings. The massive stairs were made of perfectly hewed pieces of granite or marble. There were channels of water running down from His House to the garden pools and fountains.

I smiled at the tiny fish and seashells in the channels. The inside of the channels were made of hammered gold and silver. Depending on the light, it looked like either liquid gold or liquid silver. As I looked closer, I wondered if it was actually made of platinum or a metal alloy even greater than gold.

Then again, perhaps it is made of just pure gold and this is what pure gold looks like. Since I have never seen 100% pure 'Heavenly' gold before on Earth as it simply does not exist there, I realized that I really had no gauge to describe this other than to say it is incredibly beautiful.

I was wearing a white linen and silk gown. I had woven sandals that were more comfortable than any shoe I know of. The sandals conformed perfectly to the soles of my feet and were like walking on clouds. I was in my Heavenly body and felt fantastic!

I looked up at the massive staircase before me, smiled and started to run up them. I was surprised at how fast I could run here and with such speed and agility. Though difficult to describe and completely pleasant, I ran so fast that tears formed in the corners of my eyes.

What was truly amazing was that, when I reached the top landing, I was not winded at all. Even though I bent over when I reached the top as an earthly reflex, I quickly laughed at myself as this was not at all necessary.

When I looked back down the stairs that I had just climbed, I roughly counted that there were around 150 or more steps to the top. However, knowing the Lord, it was probably 153 stairs in total. I laughed with glee at how amazing God is as I looked around me.

Judging by the sun's position, it seemed to be around mid-day as it sat high in the sky. I looked over the mountains that surrounded His Valley and was in complete awe at the beautiful landscape. I suddenly realized that every Psalm ever written about beauty could be seen right here in God's Valley.

The River of Life cut right down the center, but also in the channels next to me. The water which flowed through these channels was coming directly from the very foundation of Jesus' House.

Received on Tuesday, February 7th, 2017 (Visit 3)...

The orchards of fruit trees were blossoming and there were blooming flowers and vines everywhere. However, the landscape did not look random or haphazard, but rather it was obvious that this was all designed and maintained by the Master Gardener.

Now, I have seen workers in God's Gardens before and have many questions about this. Perhaps these workers are saints who love to garden. While I am not sure how this all works here, this is my best guess based on my past visits. However, I really know very little about 'Heavenly gardening', so I just wanted to establish this.

In Heaven, perhaps nothing grows out of control. It seems intuitive to me that God could simply speak to a bush or tree and say, 'This pleases Me in this form or shape.' Since everything in Heaven loves God and desires to do His Will out of love and appreciation, perhaps a branch would simply never grow out of harmony with the other branches.

Perhaps the flowers here all stand at perfect attention because they always have the perfect mix of sun, water and minerals to grow. Perhaps a tree here does not bear 'bad fruit' for these same reasons. Of course, this does not mean that the fruit here all has to taste the same and I already know that they do not.

This theory of mine seems like it could also apply to the animals and birds here, but again I really do not know for sure. All I know is that all of Heaven is breathtakingly beautiful. I decided to sit for a moment so I could take all of this in.

I closed my eyes and felt the warmth of the Heavenly sun on my face. For some reason, the feel of the sun's rays took me back to a time in March 1969, the last weekend before Easter. At the time, I was visiting my grandparents for school break in Reno, Nevada.

I remember sitting on my grandparents' patio and the sun was shining on my face. My grandmother had just finished putting up her Easter decorations. I remember being safe there, but also feeling safe. Things somehow just felt normal.

I remained there with my eyes closed for quite some time and reminisced. When I finally opened my eyes, I looked up and there was Jesus smiling at me. The sun in the sky was directly behind Him and appeared to be crowning Him.

He looked completely enrobed in the light of the sun. What was really neat though was that His presence did not block the warmth of the sun from me at all. I immediately jumped up and hugged Him. I felt safe in His arms. He gently laughed at my glee of seeing Him again.

Me: "I am so glad to see You. I was just soaking up the sun."

Jesus: "Yes, you are." He laughed as He knew that I meant both the 'sun' and the 'Son'. "Erin, you have gained wisdom and wit." He then pointed out towards His Garden. "Now, I see that you are trying to figure out all of this."

Me: "Yes, Lord. I am sorry, but I am just in such awe of all of this. I am also in total awe of You."

Jesus: Smiling. "So, what did you conclude? Take Me on your journey of thought."

He patted the top step of His staircase to indicate that we should sit down together.

Me: "Well, You can do all things. You can command a bush to make a shape. You can move those mountains and adjust them to Your liking. You can command fruit to grow a certain shape and flavor. You immediately form a new fruit whenever a fruit is picked off of a tree. You can command the colors of the sunset or the sunrise.

"You can also have others do things for You, like gardeners or angelic workers. Each living thing here in Heaven desires exactly what Your heart desires. As everything here somehow already knows what Your heart desires, each would desire to grow to please You and not one would be out of line with Your heart's desire."

Jesus: Laughing. "Hmm, so, by My command, do they grow? By My heart's Will, do things grow to please Me as a form of worship? Is it a fulfillment of the desires of the saints who work here to groom My Garden and work for Me as a form of worship? Hmm, perhaps it is all three then. This is an interesting concept, but all requires love."

Me: "Love?"

Jesus: "Yes. Everything you see, I love. It brings Me great joy to see this beauty flourish. There is no death, no disease, no threats of fire and no men with ill-intentions here. This makes My heart glad.

"In return, these living things do not fear death and they all live in peace and joy. They then fully give themselves to Me to bring Me joy. Erin, I delight in My Creation. I am the fulfiller of the desires of your heart. All that is lovely, even the smallest things that you care about, I also care about."

Me: "Lord, I wish things were on Earth as it is in Heaven as there is such beauty that awaits us here!"

Jesus: "Agreed, but this cannot be."

Me: "Yes, Lord. However, since You have charge, You can command and shape it if You wished too. You can find workers. There are many of us who would garden and prune for You. Is this not part of Your harvest? I want to be a worker for You."

Jesus: He smiled as He reached over to hug me. "Now, Erin, why did I bring you here today?"

Me: "Perhaps to see the vessels that You have created, Lord? Perhaps to encourage me? I love this here. I love being with You in Your House. I feel safe with You."

Jesus: "I love you too. Now, why do you believe that there is not one dead branch, bad fruit or fallen leaf here? How about dying flowers?"

Me: "Well, in Heaven, there is eternal life and no death."

Jesus: "Yes, but why then is there no branch growing contrary to the others? Why are there no weeds or unwanted roots?"

Me: "Well, because all things grow to Your Will and delightfully so. They love You and I can even see that they do. All of the animals, birds, plants, trees and grass flourish here. In contrast, weeds, anything contrary or other dying things would seem like an unsolicited visitor or intruder. This would be out of Your Will and like disobedience."

Jesus: "Yes. Now, do you ever feel denied by the lack of weeds and death here?"

Me: Laughing. "No, Lord, of course not."

Jesus: "Then, Erin, I would tell you that the workers are few. Now, let's say that I did build a beautiful garden on Earth. For this garden, let's say that I then sourced all nourishment, provided the sun and the water and had all manner of animals and birds come to reside in it. Now let's say that I then let in tourists to enjoy My garden for free. What would be said of Me?"

I thought for a moment, but knew that the Lord was helping me out with my answer. I could not help but smile and laugh as I replied to Him.

Me: "Oh Lord, please forgive me for saying this, even though I know it is not really me saying it. If this garden was provided by You, some visitors would say, 'Slaves built and maintain this garden.' Other visitors would say, 'The owner is rich. We can take anything that we want to.'

"People would steal clippings of the plants for offshoots. Animal rights activists would say that 'these animals are prisoners', while others would complain that 'this environment is not healthy'. Soon after, Your fruit trees would start to be genetically cloned.

"At the same time, both straight and gay couples would want to come and be married in Your garden. However, You could not say 'no' or Your garden would be shut down immediately. There would be so much more. Lord, what You intended for good would soon be destroyed!"

Jesus: "Hmm, a Garden was built on Earth 'as it is in Heaven' once before. The world is not ready for a Garden like this." He smiled. "So, I will come instead. Now, what will be said of Me then?"

Me: Shaking my head. "Lord, You are so wise. Is it hard to talk to me given my lack of understanding?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Of course not! Erin, you delight Me and you desire My heart. I have something very special planned. Now, what have I placed on your heart recently?"

Me: "So much, Lord, but two things in particular stand out to me. One of these things is Your 'Sermon on the Mount' from Matthew 5. In this, I believe that You are describing who will be Your end-times workers or army, but I am not certain.

"The other thing is a downloaded vision I had of You preparing all of the elements for the Third Temple. However, this vision was according to Heaven's perspective, not man's perspective. One day, You will take the Throne in Jerusalem and all will praise You on bended knee. However, I was only able to see bits and pieces of all of this. I also saw vessels containing oil, water and wine. Lord, You were the bread."

Jesus: Smiling. "Perhaps this is wisdom to study further. Now, come with Me."

As He stood up, He turned to reach for my hand. As we turned and started to walk towards His front door, the door immediately opened. As we walked in, I quickly removed my sandals. Jesus was laughing as He watched me do this.

Me: Smiling. "But, Lord, I am on Holy Ground. Well, it is also because I love the feeling of my bare feet on this warm stone and these beautiful rugs."

Jesus: Laughing. "Okay then, I will accept this. Remember, whenever you are holding My hand, you are already walking with Me on Holy Ground."

Me: "Oh, of course. Everything is Holy when I am with You. Forgive me, Lord."

Jesus: "There is nothing to forgive. I delight in the fact that you would think of Me."

Me: "Well, Your Garden is Holy Ground. Your stairs leading to Your House is also Holy Ground. Well, really, all of Heaven is Holy Ground." I looked down, shook my head and smiled. "After all of these years visiting You here, I am sorry that I finally just figured this out. Lord, You are so gracious and patient with me."

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, you are gracious as well. However, you are not always patient."

Me: "You are right. I cannot wait to have more of You, Lord. I cannot wait to come here permanently. That being said, I also do not want to leave before I am useful. I also desire to see You heal my children. Lord, with so many things seeming to be going wrong at the same time right now, it is hard for me to remain patient. I am sorry."

Jesus: "Erin, this is not a surprise to Me. The enemy also understands the times that we are in now and is the source of your troubles. However, for now, these too have a purpose. Now, study the Scripture I have given you and look again at those I will use."

I took a break here and reviewed Matthew 5:3-11, the Beatitudes, in greater detail. It took some time to really get my head around all that was said in these passages, but the effort was so worth it to me.

Me: "Lord, there is much for me to try to understand there."

Jesus: "These are those that I have called. Some fit all of what is outlined there, but others fit only a few. I will raise up those that I have called. I am the lifter of heads.

Received on Sunday, February 12th, 2017 (Visit 4)...

Jesus: "Erin, you are anxious about many things. You are unable to stop what is in motion."

He pointed up to the hand painted ceiling in His main hall and foyer area leading to His Courtyard and Gardens. As I looked up, I saw the first Words of the Bible being written, but as if it were live. I felt such delight as the Words, 'In the beginning...', formed right there in front of me.

Though the painting's story appeared to unfold in the motion, it was a story, 'His-story', that had already been told. When I turned to smile at Jesus, He again pointed my attention back up to the live story taking place on His foyer ceiling.

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, you can view this whenever you step inside My House here. However, are you able to stop it?"

I smiled back and began to walk while staring up at the ceiling. It traveled at the same speed that I walked. However, whenever I stopped, it appeared to stop as well. However, I soon noticed that it really did not as the motion ahead of me continued to flow at its predetermined pace.

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, I know your thoughts. You cannot stop that which has already occurred. When you stop, it does not affect history."

Me: "I know, Lord. This painting fascinates me as I have never seen living and breathing art before. The technology here is truly divine and amazing."

Jesus: "The entry of My House takes you on a journey from the beginning. Even the furnishings, columns, sculptures and stones here are all divine Heavenly versions of what the saints dedicated to Me during their lives on Earth.

"In all things, and even in the darkest of times, they still gave to Me. This is all part of My history and contains gifts given to God, to Me, as blessings for all that I have done for them.

"However, I also see in these beautiful artifacts their love of sacrifice and their hearts of gold. While I choose not to have a House encased in gold everywhere that your eyes can see, all that you see here is even more valuable to Me than gold.

"These saints were refined in the furnace of affliction, yet they still offered up all they had to Me. Some of them had very little, while others had more than enough. However, not one of them failed to recognize that it was only by God's grace that they had anything at all."

As Jesus spoke on all of this, He literally lit up with the light of God and this light shined brightly all around us. As I stood there looking around, I realized that, even if you added up all of the wealth of all of the kings on Earth all throughout history, you still could not find such amazing things.

I saw the finest fabrics, hand woven tapestries and silks with patterns that could not even be replicated on Earth. The colors were so vibrant, yet somehow were never overpowering. This too could never be copied on Earth.

The cushions that are here to sit on are like clouds. The craftsmanship would be impossible to mimic. The artwork was so beautiful and represented every period since Creation. Nothing was old or worn. Despite its 'age', every item seemed brand new.

My eyes teared up as I scanned the room. I knew that I was seeing a quick glimmer into the lives of those who had dedicated everything to God. I somehow knew that some of these items were even made by entire families that had been slaughtered during their creation.

I also knew that many of these items were made by slaves who had owned nothing. I was even able to somehow feel the underlying kindness of the artisans that had made these items, the same artisans who had sacrificed everything for God. I was now crying even harder at the emotion of seeing all of this before me.

Jesus: "Erin, what is wrong?"

Me: "Lord, I do not feel worthy to be here as I have not sacrificed my life to You like many of these saints have. In reality, I truly live a very cushy life compared to so many of the saints that are represented here."

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, but yet you are here with Me and you are right where I have called you to be. I designed the course of your race for My purposes. Now, the tour of My House was meant to show you that, in here, in My dwelling, is the gold of Ophir. While this may not be what some would expect, this is perfect to Me."

Me: "Lord, Your Home's beauty is simply indescribable. Not even the Rothschild's or the richest sheiks could ever come close to this."

Jesus: "So, after we walk through My rooms and halls, we will then enter into My inner Courts. Here, the Garden is in the very heart of My House. This is where I spend time listening to music. This is also where I like to dine with My guests." He smiled. "This is also where the clock and calendar is that shows events soon to come."

Me: "It is so beautiful, Lord. Thank You for inviting me here."

Jesus: "Erin, you have been struggling recently with all of the injustices done to you and others. However, is it not written that I will use the meek to humble the proud?"

"I have seen the wrongs that have come against you. At times, you then turned the other cheek against those who came against you and refused to fight. However, at other times, you appeared to fight a 'winless' war.

"This is not as it seems though as even your losses were actually My victories. What you believed to be a loss actually became My gain. Erin, in the lives of those I have called, I use some of you to shed light on what others are doing.

"I also use some of you to shed light on idolaters, thieves and the like. I sometimes do this by even allowing some of you to become victims to their schemes. This all serves a purpose, but do you understand how?"

Me: "Well, Lord, while I am not fully certain, I will try my best to guess. For me, when I was a new Christian, You sent various trials to give me humility. However, it took many trials and much humiliation to finally get me to a certain point that You had wanted me to be.

"You must have then seen something in my heart that You must have liked, but perhaps it was just a promising part of me. You then sent me test after test after test. There were so many tests that I simply cannot count them all. This was probably to teach me about my 'worth'-iness to endure and to look to only You to save me.

"It seems like You now are putting me into situations where I can testify to others who struggle through my own struggles. It seems that You do this so that I can encourage others to be patient by being an example based on what You are doing with me today.”

Jesus: “This is good, Erin, and yes, much is true, but not necessarily in the same order for all. Some are raised like Job to love Me, but then the enemy petitions in Court to send tests and calamities. The enemy argues that, ‘Surely those like Job will become disheartened and turn from You.’ If such tests and calamities are then allowed to be sent, this turns out to be true in many instances, but others pass.

“However, some are raised like you and did not grow up knowing Me. You endured many trials before you even knew Me, but you endured even more after. Such trials would send the majority of people back to the lesser of the two scenarios. They would turn back away from Me and most do.

“Then there are those who never really knew Me at all, but want to. However, they also would prefer their lives to not have much trouble, but they would really prefer ‘no trouble’ at all. The trouble with this is that, when trouble does come, they need the first ‘savior’ that comes by.

“This ‘savior’ could be any ‘savior’ from any religion, but these people really prefer to rely solely on themselves. These people tend to look at someone like you as being weak and to be avoided at all costs.

“Now, over the years, I have used those who claimed to be mine to show kindness to you and your children during your darkest time. However, many of these people later took advantage of your kindness and acted as thieves. They treated you much like Saul treated David, again for no cause and for no reason.

“Even though you tried over and over to do the right thing by them, often even at your own cost, not once did any of them apologize. As a result, their actions were then recorded by the enemy and charges against them were allowed in My Father’s Court.

“God then granted the enemy permission as I did not stand in defense of them. At that point, they did not call on Me as their advocate as they were instead led by their own understanding. Based on their harsh treatment of you and others like you, these people were then judged harshly by Me.

"Erin, calamity then comes to these people in the form of tests and trials so that they might finally come to Me in humility. This comes so that they might finally repent of their sins and submit to the Will of My Father in Heaven. However, very few, if any, of these people have done this."

Me: "Hmm, let me see if I understand this. While these people were used against me in order to refine me, I was also used to refine them? So, we as Christians are often used against each other so that You are able to see how we are able to be used one day? Does this happen to all of us?"

Jesus: "What have you learned just recently?"

Me: "Well, just because I am Yours, I am not free from trouble. You have sent five 'quote' Christians 'unquote' into our lives in the last two years and each one has taken advantage of us. However, I now see that You had used us to deal with each of them.

"On each occasion, I prayed over them and even with them soon after they dealt unfairly with us. Now I look back and see that I later heard that each of them soon after came upon trouble. While this may not be directly because of us, it seems this happened because You had used me to pray Your Will over them.

"While this all sounds awful at first, I now realize that, if it were not for the trouble You allowed into my life, I would have never understood how much You love us. I would have never understood that You want us each to lack no good thing.

"In each of these five cases, I also now realize that You blessed us for our obedience in doing Your Will. You blessed us for our obedience to what You called us for.

"In fact, just this last week, we have been dealing with a dishonest man. In a private word, You had told me that this man is one of yours, but also that he is not living the life that You are calling him to live. Based on all that You just told me, I now understand why You still allowed us to deal with him even though he has deceived many.

"In our meeting with this man last week, You first showed me and then had me tell this man about three separate areas in which he had deceived us. At Your leading, we then gave him a chance to make things right with us.

“Instead, he was once again dishonest with us even when I had physical proof printed out that pointed this out to him. Unfortunately, we are still not finished in our transactions with this man and have no alternative but to continue to deal with him.

“Lord, why would You allow all of this trouble for us? It seems as if we are being punished for doing everything You have asked us to do.”

Jesus: “Have I not provided the means? Did I not open the door? Erin, if you now know that I send My best people into a battle, do you not also know that I will equip and deliver you? If you care about the things that I care about and you have given yourself to Me as a living sacrifice and vessel, then are you Mine to use or are you in this for yourself instead?”

Me: Shaking my head. “Oh no, Lord, please, please forgive me. It is just hard. People are becoming more shrewd and scrappy. It seems like things have become so much worse lately.”

Jesus: “I will show you more in a moment, but first, Erin, know this. I love you, I have called you and you are Mine. When you pass through the waters, I will be with you and the river’s torrent will not overtake you. When you walk through the fire, you will not be scorched from heat nor will you be burned by flame.

“This is what I have done from beginning to end with you. In the year 1993, when you were age 30, you gave Me your heart. In the year 2000, you told Me that you wanted more of Me and you asked for a heart of gold.

“This was a very long and painful process and one of patient and not so patient endurance. This is a walk of tests and trials to pound out the rough edges and even by sanding. In terms of you as a vessel, well, I needed to first begin with pliable clay. You began this when you gave your life to Me as a lump of clay.

“This then took seven years before you finally said, ‘I want to be used as a vessel, Lord.’ Then I said, ‘Okay, but this will not be easy.’ You then agreed, no matter what happened. So then there was a process of shaping you into the vessel you are today.

"As a vessel, you do not say to the Potter, your Creator, 'Why, Lord, why use me for this or that?' Erin, if you chose to be used according to your own ideas of being My vessel, then you are no good to Me. You would just sit on a shelf instead and be of no use to Me.

"Instead, you have agreed, even after all of your shaping, firing, glazing and re-firing, to have Me use you to honor Me for My purposes. You reside here with Me already as this I have promised, but you must allow Me to now use you as I see fit at this point and trust Me. Do you trust Me?"

Me: I was pouting. "I feel rebuked, but yes, Lord."

Jesus: "Erin, I am preparing My 'Temple Vessels'. Some will hold water, some oil and some wine. All are useful to Me. One day, I will take My seat and the 'Seven-fold Spirits' will be like lights in My lamp."

Me: "Do You mean as vessels here in Heaven, Lord?"

Jesus: "No, Erin, on Earth. I am preparing vessels like an army. You will be like sparkling basins before My Altar. Every pot will be Holy. I will fill each vessel with good things."

Me: "Lord, times are becoming difficult. How will I endure this if I am not healed first?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, are you once again the vessel speaking to the Potter with suggestions? I have no intention of leaving you as you are. Did you not see your finished glaze? You are in the kiln at low heat. I am still using you as a vessel against those I am sending a final test to.

"Now, I have provided for your needs from beginning to end. I am using you for several purposes. Although this seems grim, it is divine. You are almost finished and soon I will use you to display My splendor. Your purpose will bring great joy. You, Erin, will rejoice."

Received on Monday, February 13th, 2017 (Visit 5)...

Me: "Lord, something came to me as I slept last night. I believe this dream relates to what You are showing me, but I need Your help on all of this."

Dream 2 description begins...

I was a driver of a school bus and had permission to drive to any doctors' appointments within the city I might have that were during school hours. I had an eye appointment with my optometrist, but had to drive across a huge chasm or ravine to get to her office.

As I drove through the southern part of this historic city, I noticed that it was once beautiful and had many high-end shops and businesses. However, this had now been taken over by a wealthy casino owner and the entire area was now a gambling district. At first I thought this was perhaps referring to the President of the USA, but I was then downloaded a picture of the casino owner and saw that it was someone else.

It was actually quite sad to see that this had happened. There were prostitutes and people begging and trading stolen goods in order to acquire gambling money. It took me awhile to find my doctor's new office as she had moved from the high-rent beautiful place I was familiar with to a low-rent brick building that was in poor condition.

When I arrived, the receptionist informed me that the doctor was behind on her appointments. After some time had passed, the doctor was finally able to see me.

Doctor: "Hello, Erin, I am so sorry for keeping you waiting. I now have to overbook my appointments as around half of all of my bookings now cancel, leaving me with huge losses in income."

Me: "So, these are 'no-shows'?"

Doctor: "Yes, and no one even has the courtesy to call and cancel anymore. My income is down 75%. The only time my income rises these days is when a poker player decides he needs to have his eyes checked after being deceived by another player. He then goes and spreads the news and more come."

Me: "I am so sorry to hear about all of this."

As she replied, she was in the process of checking my eyes.

Doctor: "Well, the times have changed faster than I ever imagined they could. Well, your eyes are fine. You do not need glasses."

Me: "Are you sure? Sometimes I have a hard time focusing on several objects simultaneously."

Doctor: Chuckling. "Well, at least your lines are not blurred. Erin, your eyes have improved since your last visit. In fact, they are even clearer. Let me see. Hmm, I am going to run one more test."

The doctor then hooked my chin into a cup and lined up my eyes with a high-tech machine. She then made some motions and told me to say which one I could see more clearly. All the while, the images kept shrinking in size.

Doctor: "Impossible! Impossible!! You were wearing bifocals just three years ago. Impossible! I have never even heard of this. Erin, your eyes are 20/2. This is vision that is even better than an eagle. You must stop wearing your glasses immediately. This is why your vision is worse. You see much more clearly without your lenses."

I thanked her and paid for my appointment with the receptionist as I left her office. I was still in shock as I walked to my bus and started driving. I then noticed that I was a bit late getting back to the school. I needed to hurry before the children were let out so that I could complete my route.

Now, this part was really odd. While my bus had been empty, I noticed that there somehow were now passengers already on. As I scanned the passengers, I suddenly realized that I recognized each one of them.

I became upset as I also realized that these were all people who had swindled me and my children. Some were sitting together, but others were sitting alone. Each of these people had claimed to be Christians in order to gain my trust only to later steal from us.

The first row was made of people I met in 2004. As I looked back at row after row, I realized that these people were seated in successive rows based on the times in which they had each stolen from me. They all were acting as if nothing had happened and were trying to redirect my attention away from them by complimenting me.

Me: "You all stole from me and you all know what you did. I refuse to drive you anywhere. I have already released each of you to God. Seriously, you really do not want me to be the one driving this bus."

Man: He started off by mocking me to the others. "Oh boy, she is still the same Erin." He then looked back at me. "Come on, Erin, take us with you. It is not our fault that you were foolish."

Me: "I prayed for you. I told you that I was sorry for my part in our transaction. Despite this, you still ended up stealing money from me."

I then pointed to two women from a church I used to attend that I knew were deceivers. I outlined how they had done this to me as well. I then scanned each person and addressed them in a loud voice.

Me: "I could keep going, but the memories are much too painful. So many of you went to my church. I forgave each and every one of you. I gave you to Jesus. Now whatever happens is between you and God."

They pretended to ignore me, but I knew that each had heard me and that each knew what they had done, but still did not care. However, not one left the bus and I knew that I would now have to take them or I would be late for the kids. I sat back in the driver's seat and I prayed to God on how I should proceed.

Me: "Lord, what do I do?"

Holy Spirit: "Drive in reverse. As you go backwards, I will shed light on the impact of what each of them had done."

As instructed, I put the bus in reverse and started to drive backwards. As I did, I could hear the passengers starting to scream out in horror.

Passenger: "Oh God, please stop! I am sorry, sorry! Please, let me get out of here!"

By the time I had made it to the school just in time for the 3:15pm pickup of the children, I noticed that every one of the passengers had jumped out of the bus. I could also see that many had even used the windows to try and escape whatever God had been showing them.

Dream 2 description over...

Me: "Lord, what was this all about?"

Jesus: Smiling. "When you discussed the year of the beginning of these trials and tests, it was the year 2004. The trials and tests for your husband started in this very same year. There is a reason.

"Now, you had asked Me about the times of Noah, what was that like and how bad will this become. Well, it will become worse, but not in the ways that you think for man. It will only be worse for those that I have called. Why?"

Me: "Well, based on the dream I just had, is it because our vision is clearer?"

Jesus: "Well, yes, but whose vision and how does this become clearer? Let Me explain. You have noticed a change in the atmosphere in general and with you individually. What have you seen?"

Me: "Hmm, well, this is a possible pattern, but, again, I do not know for sure, Lord. In 2004, my first heart episode occurred. Then my heart broke for four years and, in 2008, I finally had my last major episode and pacemaker.

"Then I went to the desert and was further broken. Then, in 2012, You called me up to You. Then You repositioned me by removing me to 'the land of the trees' where I have been to this day. Is this the pattern?"

Jesus: "Well, yes. For you, there are your bridges of seven years, but there are also attacks coming against you in waves that fit a four year pattern more. Your first wave came as a deep betrayal by those closest to you. A division occurred between those who would remain steadfast with you during the storms and those who would be used as tools for your refining and shaping.

"Just as much as these were used to shape you from the Potter's hands, they were also judged for their actions against you by Me. All of these people had actually believed themselves to be greater than you in all things. However, these people were aside from your main enemies.

"This was an army that came against you relentlessly during your storms. The enemy delighted in this fully. After you asked them for forgiveness or after you had prayed for them, some of these people then endured trials of their own. However, some of them still did not see what I had done here.

"I had given many of them multiple chances to make things right with you, your children and others. However, they instead justified their actions under God and believed themselves to be righteous. You were then broken in Spirit, Erin, and your heart grieved."

Me: Crying. "Yes, but even more so because, if they knew me, they would know that I prayed for them. They knew that I was lower than them. They also knew that I was not in a position of power.

"I did not understand their lack of compassion. I had given and sacrificed so much to them, yet they all repaid me with evil. I cannot even remember all that I had lost, but I just know that I had lost so much."

Jesus: "I know, Erin, as I remember. Full records are taken by angels and stored for judgment. You are the meek. You searched for justice and did not find it. You were My measure to their heart condition."

Me: "Oh Lord, please do not punish them like they punished me. They really do not know You or they would not have done this. They do not know what they have done."

Jesus: "Erin, they had no mercy. Did even one of them call you to say that they were sorry for their wrongs against you? No. Now the hour is late. Judgment of those who say 'I am a Christian' is in stages. Do not confuse this with the plagues as this is different.

"Now, back to the days of Noah, a time when all seemed normal to those with depraved minds. The measure of judgment first came when man abandoned the dignity of those made in the image of God. They removed any divine likeness and were unable to recognize or see My face in others.

"You and your family can see Me in the eyes of those I have called and cannot see Me in the eyes of others. This happens when a veil or blurred lenses falls upon the land. This blurred vision then leads to the mixing of sinful desires with Holy Laws."

Me: "You mean like things once permissible and good are now bad and things once bad are now permissible?"

Jesus: "Yes. This is the result of lawlessness, but it begins first with a man abandoning his own sense of wrong and right by sin. Therefore to justify his lusts, or hers, he uses any means possible to get this and, in the process, cut down the Godly in his path. Now the wickedness of man has spread and every imagination of the thoughts of his heart is continually on evil. Man has refused to repent."

Me: "Lord, does this include Christian men and women?"

Jesus: "Yes, but especially those who have called themselves more righteous than you. Come, let Me show you."

I was sad now and all of my joy had left me. He reached for my hand and we were now on the balcony that overlooked God's clock and calendar. I noticed that the speed of the ring of events had now accelerated. I then saw something else that I did not understand.

Me: "Lord, what is happening? God's clock is running normally except for this ring of events. I see something that I do not understand. It looks like massive waves, yet they are not."

Jesus: "What Scriptures have I led you to? Erin, I gave you what is expected, although difficult, in all things, love. Is there anyone that, if I turned them to call you and confess their wrongs to you in full repentance, you would not accept their apology?"

He suddenly downloaded images of so many people who had wronged me.

Me: "Actually, Lord, it would free me and heal my brokenness. It would be so welcomed. What a wonderful thing this would be. However, I have come to accept that You will handle this as they, not one of them, have ever apologized. Lord, if there is anyone that I need to make things right with, please bring them forward to me so that I can reconcile. I want to.”

Jesus: “There is a reason I bring this to you now. Look...”

I looked at God’s clock and saw wave after wave coming against the events on the ring. However, the ring still kept moving at this now faster pace, but I now saw the entire ring brightly illuminated.

Jesus: “These are My workers, Erin. I am about to pour into My vessels. The vessels are also instruments for Me. As a vessel, you are also a worker. Then there are those who are witnesses, those who shout out about My splendor. These all will come in waves against the land.

“There will then be a great separation of those whom I call and those I leave. Of those who remain, they will remember, turn to Me and cry out or they will face the judgment. You are seeing the waves there. As much as plagues were once displayed to humble, so it will soon be again. There will be miracles, signs and wonders before that ‘Great and Terrible Day’.”

Me: “Lord, when is this to be?”

Jesus: “Erin, give Me your trust. Trust that I work everything together for the good of those who love Me. Now, there is a gauge written. Well, there are many. However, to those who pay no regards to the ‘Older Books’ and only look to the ‘New Books’...”

Me: Excitedly. “Oh Lord, this is 1 Peter 3! You gave me this.”

Jesus: “Well, yes, this is very good and a measure for those I chose for this or that, but there is more. You can take comfort to know that Peter and others suffered, but that they now reside here with Me. You will also be here.

“Just know that, as many who claimed to be Christian turned away from them, they too will turn away from you. However, this time, I have strengthened those that I have chosen and I will display My miracles through you.

"Erin, you will be mocked. The rest of this is also a manual of how you are to be used as a vessel in My Temple."

Me: "For 1 Peter, should I read it in part or whole?"

Jesus: Smiling. "It is wisdom to read it in whole and not in part. As I have spoken to you before, do this until the time in which these Words are illuminated by Me for such a time as this as Words I have emphasized. In the past, they have not made as much sense, although they were still inspiring and good for the heart. Now I bring this forward in your thoughts."

Me: "Lord, I will read all of Peter's writings, both 1 Peter and 2 Peter."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but do not forget about John. Again, this is also in support of the times I have brought you to. There is also Jude, as you will and have been taught to discern. However, once I begin this..." He then directed my attention back to God's clock and calendar. "...you will be able to do all that I call you to. You will see with different sight."

"Now, do not worry about the trouble that you believe is from a fault of your house or your impatience." He smiled at me. "This trouble is from My use of these as tests for others and not from any 'fault'. Soon there will be a separation and then you will be used for one final call."

Me: I became distressed. "Will I be separated from You? Oh no!"

Jesus: Laughing. "No, Erin, this separation means that I have used you as a gauge to separate you and others from those I will not use. Okay? Do not worry."

"Now, your vessel will be finished soon. They are very beautiful. They are strong and have stood through this final long firing. You will have luster. You are a work of My hands." He smiled. "Remember, I am the Potter, Erin, and you are the clay. Rejoice, for I have shaped you, fired you, glazed you and fired you again. I have found you worthy."

Me: "Hurry, Lord, please! I need Your strength as I am weak."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but I am made strong in your weakness, so rejoice!"

He laughed and smiled at me as He reached over and gently hugged me.

Dream 237 – Uriel, the Veil and Growing Deception

Finished on Thursday, March 9, 2017

This dream was started on Sunday, February 19th, 2017. However, this dream took over two weeks, along with five separate visits, to finally complete. The last visit took place on Thursday, March 9th, 2017.

Received on Sunday, February 19th, 2017 (Visit 1)...

I was in a city by the water. While the city seemed like Chicago, Illinois, I was not really sure. Half of the city had been destroyed by something catastrophic. While it seemed like some sort of bomb or bombs had done this, I was again not really sure.

The people in the city were walking around in shock. They were still trying to live and conduct business 'as per usual' even though whole buildings had been completely destroyed. As I looked around, it seemed as if this was in late spring or early summer.

I walked over to the water at the shores of what seemed to be the town of Evanston, Illinois, which is just north of Chicago. Only a few feet from the shore, the water was overgrown with grey ashen colored bacteria and fungus. The water was unfit to drink or swim in. However, there was even more to this dream that I was not to write about. As this was all so disturbing to see, I called out to the Lord...

Me: "When is this, Lord?"

I saw a massive number, the 4th, written all in white, just as I woke up from the dream...

Dream from last night...

Dream 2 description begins...

I was sitting in a '50's sock-hop' themed burger restaurant. The restaurant was above or in the same area as a bowling alley and seemed to be somehow joined to each other. As I looked around, I noticed that it was around 1:00pm when a huge birthday party started to take place. Soon, someone I did not recognize rushed up to me excitedly.

Person: "Oh gosh, Erin, you have to pick up your dress and be at the ceremony by 3:00pm!"

The person left before I had a chance to ask them what they meant by this, so I just continued to sit there having fun and talking to 'friends'. I say 'friends' as I somehow knew that these people were my friends even though I did not recognize anyone there. This time, one of my friends rushed up to me excitedly.

Friend: "Erin, do not forget to pick up your wedding gown!"

While I am not sure how, I suddenly knew what my friend and the other person were talking about. I smiled, laughed and nodded at my friend in agreement. I double checked the time and knew that I still had no need to worry.

However, just to be on the safe side, I decided to leave the bowling alley / restaurant to go over to the dress shop. I entered the shop and saw a gown labelled with my name on it hanging inside a clear dress bag. There was a woman there waiting for me and she handed me the dress bag.

Woman: "Erin, you had better hurry!"

I smiled and thanked her, but was still not worried about the time. As the dress had been pre-purchased, I took the dress bag with the gown inside and dashed out the door to head off to my wedding venue. I ran down some cobbled streets towards where I was supposed to go. Once I passed over a fairly hilly area, I finally arrived.

There standing before me was a massive castle made of stone, a castle that could have easily come straight out of a 'Disney movie'! As it was completely surrounded by deep ravines, the only one way to get inside this castle was by going down a long stone path with walls.

I ran quickly down the stone path and soon arrived at the front door to the courtyard. A man and a woman were already there waiting to greet me. The woman motioned me for my dress and then carefully took it from me as I handed it to her. The man seemed quite excited.

Man: "Erin, you must hurry and come with me to prepare your flowers! It is almost time for the ceremony!"

The man then escorted me to a large reception room made of all stone walls and floors. As I looked around, I saw a massive square stone table. While I could not tell the dimensions exactly, the top of the table was easily seven inches thick and each side about twelve to fourteen feet wide. It would have easily weighed several tons.

There were two massive stone vases sitting next to each other on the top of the table and near the center. The craftsmanship of these vases was simply beautiful. I noticed that these two identical vases had unusually wide openings at the top.

Man: "Now, Erin, walk around, pick up your flowers and put them in the vases!"

There were amazing flowers everywhere that I looked. However, what seemed quite odd to me was that these flowers only had their heads and no stems. As I looked closer at the flowers, I knew that they had to be Heavenly in nature as surely no flower on Earth could possibly rival the beauty of these flowers.

As I gathered up several of the flower heads into my arms, I decided to question the man as to how I was going to make an arrangement with flowers that had no stems. However, before my mouth could even speak any of the words, the man addressed my question.

Man: Smiling. "Erin, just toss the heads into the vases! You must hurry as it is getting near time!"

I laughed and did exactly as he instructed me to. The vessels were so massive, so large and so deep that I knew that I would not be able to fill these vases. To make this task even more challenging, I was not tall enough to see the flowers inside. As I must have looked quite confused and concerned at all of this, the man started to encourage me.

Man: Laughing. "Do not worry, Erin! Now, come on, it is almost time!"

As he hurried me towards the door, I saw a beautiful woman standing there. As I got closer to the door, and to my great shock and surprise, I saw that this beautiful woman was actually my mother and that she looked young again. She looked into my eyes and smiled at me.

Mom: "Erin, come with me!"

My mom extended her hand towards me and I happily reached for it. I was so excited to see her again. She was so healthy and vibrant. As we started walking out of the room together, I glanced back at the two vessels sitting on the table.

To my great surprise and delight, the flower heads that I had tossed into these two vases had suddenly grown into two massive arrangements of flowers. Tears started to form in my eyes as I noticed that these were, quite simply, the most beautiful wedding flower arrangements that I had ever seen.

Communion

Dear Father,

Two of my children are away in the Miami, Florida area with their father. Please protect them while they are there. I find these trips to be quite unsettling. Father, I have recently had a series of dreams that also leaves me feeling extremely unsettled. Please help me have peace as it is just so difficult to have any peace right now.

Father, I am so thankful for all that You have done for me and my family. Please continue to keep us safe from harm. My heart grieves for what is coming and for what has already come upon the land.

Whenever I have seen or been shown this, I become distraught. It seems as if there is nothing that I can do about it except sound the alarm. I am just one of many that You have put this on, the hearts of those whom love You so much. My dreams have been quite clear lately...

Dream 3 description begins...

I was able to see all of the lands of the world. After this, I saw angels, by Your command, putting layer upon layer of 'thin veils' over the entire Earth. As the layers of these veils continued to grow, it was as if I was now looking through bridal tulle or silk.

I could still see lights shining up from the Earth. Some of these lights remained bright, but others were growing dimmer as this veil continued to thicken. There were even some brighter lights there that this veil somehow did not cover at all.

In some areas, but especially in major cities, virtually no lights were able to shine through as this veil was just so thick there. I then became frightened and scared when I noticed that there were even some entire lands that had no visible lights at all.

Dream 3 description over...

Father, this global veil is over all of us already. Perhaps our children cannot see them as prominently as my husband and I can, but these are being dropped over the land and all of the Earth right now and even as I write this.

Dream 4 description begins...

I was with my family in an abandoned mall. Only one store had not yet been closed up. This last store was crammed with so much merchandise that it was hard to move around. While there was so much to look at, there was not a single thing that was the correct size for any member of my family. Not a single item could fit us.

I suddenly remembered a previous time when I had been to this mall before. It was only a very short time ago and a few of the stores were already starting to close. I had recently visited one of these closing stores and they were in the process of selling off their fixtures. Whole walls had been completely dismantled.

As the fixtures that were for sale were of much higher quality than the merchandise being liquidated, the fixtures being sold were actually much more of a bargain than the merchandise itself. As a result, it seemed as if the people shopping there were only interested in the fixtures and not the merchandise.

During this recent visit, I had commented that I did not have to look back that far to remember a time when this particular store had been a premier destination and a pinnacle shopping place. Now in this dream, it was the entire area that was now a ghost town. We started reminiscing about how it was just a short time ago.

Us: "Wow, it really was not that long ago when everything was bustling and every one of these stores were still open. People even seemed to have money to spend on good quality merchandise. This is certainly no longer the case!"

All of us then sighed together as only ten years had gone by from when this mall was still thriving. So little time had passed that even my kids remembered better times and said, 'Mom, do you remember when...' I started to cry as the sight of all of this was making me so sad.

Dream 4 description over...

Oh Father, the times are changing so fast and all that we know is quickly disappearing right in front of our eyes. Even places that were once bastions of free speech are now corrupt and slanted towards everything evil.

I was recently reminded of a time when I was growing up in Berkeley, California. This was in the late 60s and early 70s and just before my mom moved us out to Idaho. Looking back, this was a good move and one that I am now so thankful for.

While we were still living in Berkeley, my mom was a young feminist and would attend demonstrations at sit-ins at the mall of the campus. On occasion, these would erupt into riots. I even own some actual photos of these riots that my mom had taken back when she was still a student there.

My mom had been fighting alongside others for the right to 'Free Speech', the right to speak freely and not be ostracized for your opinion. They were fighting for our right to voice an opinion no matter 'which side you were on'. As you may have gathered by now, this meant that I was brought up in a 'liberal' home.

However, being 'liberal' has since evolved and not in a good way. Back then, I was taught by my mother to be accepting of those who have differing opinions. We were to learn from other's platforms, even if we did not agree with them. We were then to use this information to strengthen our own voices. I also learned from my mom that we were to be respectful while doing this.

As my mom became older, she became less accepting of 'other's opinions', but still loved a good debate. With this as background, I learned from her to formulate my own opinions based on trying to weigh all sides of the debate evenly.

When I would watch my mom argue with someone, I often saw people getting so stuck in their opinions that they simply could not see any other side but their own. This actually turned out to be good practice for me as this is a common trait of the Asperger's that I deal with whenever my sons voice their opinions.

Now, fast forward to today, just about fifty years later, and there are once again riots at Berkeley. However, now the riots are to stop the voices of those that others there do not agree with. There was even a person in particular that was recently covered in the news there.

What is sad with the world today is that there can no longer be truly 'open conversation'. There is no such thing as simply 'weighing in' anymore without the risk of being condemned. There is no such thing as being fair even if you have real facts and real evidence.

Well, time passed and things changed and, quite a few years back, I stopped being a 'liberal'. This accelerated when I decided to strongly oppose the narrow thinking that I was constantly running into even before I became a Christian.

So I did not do this in ignorance, I then spent many years studying as many sides of an issue that I could. I even had several debates in my various college classes that required me to research both opposing sides. I often even had to argue against the very side that I favored.

When I later became a Christian, the Lord gave me further gifts in this area and huge ones at that. Quite simply, He completely changed the paradigm in my thinking and somehow gave me the ability to hear a person's story without prematurely judging them.

I would find out what a person had been taught and what they had experienced in order to understand why they feel as they do. While I would not always agree with them, and even most of the time I did not, this then allowed me to understand their path that led them to where they now were.

I am thankful for this as it gives me compassion for other's positions even when I do not agree with them. Some of my best friends from the past are quite different from me, especially in the area of Christianity.

However, Jesus has made me realize that I may be their only example of Jesus in their lives and I needed to reflect Him in my actions.

Now, it is important to stress that I do not believe myself to be more 'holy' than anyone! The point to all of this is just that I have learned to be patient and to still love someone even when it is really hard to at times.

While also extremely tough at times, I have also learned to hold my ground even when someone is trying to blame God for all of their issues. Whenever this happens, rather than quickly react defensively, I now instead pray to God silently...

Me: "Oh Lord, oh no, here it comes. Please take my words over. Please take over my words, Jesus, because I would personally like to bring down curses from my lips. I know Your ways are higher than mine, so please help me here."

I am smiling as I write this as I am truly grateful that Jesus then enters into our conversation. This usually all starts with me asking this person a lot of questions. As I do, they usually start spilling out all kinds of contradictions to God's truth, or really, to any truth at all.

I then watch as God uses me to take them on a journey of discovery. At the end, I usually do not remember much of what was said, but they often shake my hand and/or hug me before leaving, inviting me to return at a later date.

Sadly, shortly after our conversation, the enemy would then get in their heads. I would then see these same people again just a little while later and they would now be upset at me for God using me to convict and expose them. Thankfully, there were also some others that would remain thankful as they had been enriched by what was said to them through me.

However, this was quite rare and it seems that, most of the time, these people would instead usually become quite upset and curse me once they realized that God had 'schooled' them through me. While they would not always come out and verbalize this, I could often feel it.

Either way, I just know that this was not me, but rather God speaking through me. Since being married, my husband has witnessed this happening to me over and over. He always seems to quickly pick up when it is God working through me because he says that I use a greater skill in conflict resolution and patience than I usually am able to (smiles).

God's assistance in all of this is obviously necessary for me as, just this last week, I have been given a series of dreams about various groups of people I am being called to help in the future that I simply just do not like. Though this has been very difficult, I realize that this is God's decision and no longer mine.

I now realize that I simply cannot pick and choose of my own accord and then later whine to God, "Why do You not use me? Have I not surrendered all to You?" Quite simply, we cannot have it both ways. I have discovered the hard way that 'surrender' means speaking from a true heart statement when speaking with God.

We cannot lie to God or ourselves when we do this. We must go where He takes us even if we then find ourselves in the middle of a firestorm. When this happens, I often find myself saying, "While I have no desire to go here or there, Father, I surrender myself for Your purposes." While this is easy for me to say, it is still hard to actually follow.

I find it particularly challenging these days as my heart now surrenders to God, but my body is no longer fit and able. I am often in pain and my energy levels are low, especially compared to how I used to be. Quite simply, I will still need a major rework by God to make me even able to travel anywhere again.

Father, what irony! When I was healthy and young, my heart was not ready. Now that my heart is ready, my body is weak and I am old. The world has turned away from You, God, and if I speak about my love for you in public, I am no longer even free to say Your Name. I need Your help, but now more than ever!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was on God's Mountain and the sun was warm on my skin. I saw His beautiful lake with the fountains over to my right. The grass was green and lush and I could smell fragrant blossoms everywhere.

I decided to walk over and lie down in the grass under a Heavenly version of a weeping willow. As I laid there, I started to reminisce about being a child again, safe in my grandparent's backyard. When I was at my grandparent's house, I would lie in the grass there and simply look up at the clouds.

There was no technology and no distractions, just warmth, smells and the wonderment of being a child in a safe place. I did not worry about scary strangers, bad men, cancer, death, broken down cars or other things. Money issues did not affect me. At my grandparents, I played without any fears, all thanks to the peace at their house.

Lord, I praise You for my grandparents! I pray that, one day, I will see them here in Heaven. I feel in my Spirit that they are already here waiting for me. This place in Heaven feels like a great place to just be a kid again. While I did not know about Heaven as a child, all of this here is just so much greater than 'even my grandparent's place', so thank You!

I smiled, closed my eyes to pray and 'accidentally' drifted off. When I awoke, I looked up and there was Uriel smiling at me. I quickly jumped up excitedly and hugged him. I knew that Uriel had gone off to war, so I did not think that I would see him again until much later.

Me: "Where have you been? Are you okay?"

Uriel: Smiling. "I am glad to see you too, Erin! Come, I have something to show you. God has called me to give you this message."

Uriel reached for my hand and gently squeezed. We were immediately at the overlook near God's Courts. The Earth was below us and the moon was orbiting up and to the right. I noticed that Uriel had indeed been in battle and was even still wearing his armor.

In the drawing below, Uriel is actually much larger, more muscular and handsome than I was able to draw and much more so than any earthly 'action hero'. He is also not usually in armor when we meet, but he was this time as he was going back into battle...

Uriel: "Look, Erin."

I looked back to where Uriel had pointed and saw before us the layers and layers of veil that were now over the Earth.

Uriel: "What you are being shown are veils over both those who believe in God and those who do not. The brighter lights are those who, by faith, have cut through the veils of deception."

As I looked, it seemed as if the places with the thicker layers were where people had become stuck in their thinking and practices. The thickness seemed to vary depending on whether or not people could move beyond this, but they also have to want to do so.

Me: "Why would God allow this?"

Uriel: "Because those whom search for truth with their whole heart will find it. This does not mean that those 'covered' will not uncover truth. It only means that their struggle to find this truth will be more difficult. Many have cut through the deceptions.

"Erin, the veil is not the deception. It is only a cover over truth in which a man will see truth to fit his own desires and be handed over to his own devices. The greater their sin and the further they are from God, then the thicker their veil from truth."

Me: "This makes me sad."

Uriel: "Do not be. Time has accelerated. Evil accelerated almost fifty years ago. The battle lines have been drawn."

Me: "What will happen?"

Uriel: "The rise of evil has come. Due to the veil, many now believe that they are defending the right cause, but they are not. Erin, the world accuses the wrong man and he is hated by the world. Does this mean that this person is 'the one'?"

Me: "No. He certainly does not fulfill the requirement of a person 'loved by the entire world' at all."

Uriel: "Erin, no one will be loved by all. However, 'the one loved by most' will take his seat in a way that you think not. You have only to look at the fruits of the legacy of this man to see the root cause of the trouble upon the land. What are these?"

Me: "There seems to be several things:

- He is against Israel;
- He declares that which was once bad is now good;
- He sacrificed the larger base of the population in order to serve those who hate that same larger base;
- He morphs religions into one of 'unity' and 'mankind's greater good', thereby forsaking 'one nation under God';
- He turned those living in the land to be enslaved by the government; and
- He has made it so that none of us can speak out against what they are doing."

Uriel: "Yes, Erin, but it will soon become much worse than even now. There is an even greater deception coming and armies have been deployed over the land. What you have dreamt about is about to come true.

"However, do not fear what is coming. Though you will be hated and many will seek to extinguish your light, do not worry as you will be strengthened and your light will become a beacon to those who are lost."

Me: "Uriel, I saw many more lights than just mine!"

Uriel: "Yes, Erin, many will be called. However, you have not been forgotten and all that has been given to you will come to pass. Those that you are called to will be saved."

Me: "Are 'they' the people from the dreams that I have had recently?"

Uriel: "Yes, but more."

Received on Tuesday, March 7th, 2017 (Visit 4)...

I felt anxious today as I took communion.

Uriel: "Erin, your heart is unsettled today. Do not worry about that which you cannot change. You must learn to trust only in what you know to be from God. He has not forsaken you. Isaiah 45 and Psalms 17, 45, 46 and 91 are for you now. You have also been told to read Esther again. God has no plans to harm you."

Me: "I am sorry, Uriel, but I wake up in pain and look to God for His promises to come to pass. My pain just seems to be worsening right now."

Uriel: "He knows your need, Erin. Like all those who have gone before you, it is difficult to see the good in the midst of worsening conditions, especially pain."

At that moment, I felt a prompting by the Lord to glance out of the vision and into our yard. I saw a mother deer and her baby walking together below me.

Uriel: "He knows all of your needs and is not surprised by your circumstances. Just know that, one day, you will have only to testify about His amazing works concerning you. Go to Isaiah 54 as He has something for you there. Erin, you will not see me again for a while as I must continue with God's commands. We are in an epic battle.

"Now, you are not to believe all that you read, see or hear in the media as only a partial story is being disclosed. As you have discerned, the 'father of lies' controls both 'the land that you can see' as well as 'the land that you cannot see'."

Me: "Do you mean the internet and the airwaves as well as the land itself?"

Uriel: "Yes. There has been a marked increase in activities for the purposes of tracking locations and recording other information. Whenever a letter is sent, a purchase is made or a map location is referenced, it is now being tracked. There is also a growing and popular trend to locate lost family members using blood."

Me: "Oh, Uriel, I have now seen this being spoken about. Are people's DNA being used to do this?"

Uriel: "Yes, but this is also being used for much more. With this, they will be able to know a person's origins and that of their children."

Me: "Since information is power, how can we avoid what is now upon us?"

Uriel: "God will protect you and your family, but just understand that you are now being tracked by all that you gaze upon. Remember that even those things done, but really especially those things done, in a 'setting of privacy' are now being tracked and recorded for future use."

Me: "Oh, do you mean the internet? Hmm, I cannot recall anything that I have done that I have to worry about?"

Uriel: "It is not that you have, Erin, but rather just know that much information has already been gathered on so many. You must also warn your children not to participate in anything that requires personal information unless they discuss it with you first. As God is protecting you and has sent angels concerning you, just be aware."

Me: "What if we simply just stopped using all technology?"

Uriel: "Erin, it no longer matters and, even if it did, this would no longer be possible. How would you and your family manage without technology in these days? How would your children be able to perform their school work? How would all of you be able to function at home or at work? You are simply to just pray for protection over all things.”

Received on Thursday, March 9th, 2017 (Visit 5)...

Uriel: “You must understand the times. God has sent me to warn you about things you cannot see. The deception is great. The Counselor that God has sent into you has a voice. Erin, you are one with the Holy Spirit, the Voice of the Lord. Now, and more than ever, do not act prior to consulting God first, even on seemingly small matters.”

Me: “Have I been doing something wrong?”

Uriel: “No, this is just a warning to be careful. If this were in the times before the Lord, and even some after, what man would be foolish enough not to protect his property, let alone his family? Security from a worldly standpoint is wisdom. If there are things that you are unaware or unsure of, then wait on God to reveal that which is hidden.”

Me: “Hmm, it takes the glory of God to conceal a matter and the honor of kings to search it out (Proverbs 25:2).”

Uriel: “Yes, Erin. Now, I have been sent to warn you that there is an epic battle raging. God has sent you relief and a messenger.” He pointed at himself and smiled. “There is a delay right now, but do not worry as this delay is of no surprise to God. Now I must go back to the battle, but just know that, if you are uncertain of anything, then wait on God before you act, especially when it concerns your personal information.”

Me: “Should I be scared?”

Uriel: “No. I was not sent to scare you, but only to warn you about the coming deceptions upon the land. However, this is not just concerning you, but all those that God has called. It is wisdom to pray to God for revelation prior to an action.

“Erin, you are at war with the princes of this world and therefore unaware of that which you cannot see. Just understand that the enemy would like to trick you into dismissing a seemingly small matter that is actually important by having you instead focus on a seemingly large matter that really has little or no significance. Pray for wisdom.”

At that moment, a large gust of wind hit the window where I was sitting and startled me. The winds have now been blowing here for several days straight and have been so strong. I am so thankful that the Lord has kept us from losing power.

Me: "Uriel, why have the winds been so strong lately? It is dangerous to even drive right now."

Uriel: "God sends signs that reveal to man that there are great powers at work. God uses these natural forces to shake the land, but He even literally shakes the ground when it serves His purposes. Now, what does God say about the wind?"

Me: "That God is not in the wind?"

Uriel: "While this is true, God is also omnipresent. While God is not 'the wind', He sends the wind, directs the wind and can stop the wind. Just remember that God never takes on other forms as He is always God. While angels can be and have been commanded to take various forms in order to serve God's purposes, God never does."

As Uriel said the word 'never', he looked into my eyes, nodded and smiled. Quite simply, the massive power of God cannot be contained in any way, shape or form. The people trembled before the power of the ark, yet it contained but just an infinitesimal fraction of God's power. I wondered if God would ever be pleased if He were to be portrayed in such a way even if the intentions were noble.

Uriel: Smiling. "Erin, you already know this."

Me: "Yes, thank you, Uriel. About the angels sometimes taking on various forms, Hebrews 13:2 tells us that, when we give hospitality to strangers, we know not if we are actually entertaining angels without being aware."

Uriel: "Very good. However, you must also know Who 'the Spirit of the Lord' is."

Me: "Is Jesus 'the Spirit of the Lord'?"

Uriel: "Yes, Erin, and the Spirit of the Lord can be seen on the many faces of those who are sent to you by God. You too have the face of Jesus upon you. This is the Holy Spirit and the 'Light' that shines brightly upon your face. The Spirit of God is also upon you to assist you in sending out the 'Good News' to those who need this. As a vessel used for God's purposes, you provide water to those who are thirsty.

"Now, people will still know you as 'Erin' even though God will be working through you, understand? You will not become 'Jesus disguised as Erin'. People are not to stop following Jesus in order to run and worship you instead. You will not be 'God created in Erin's image', but rather you were created in His image and for His purposes only, understand?"

Me: "While it is still a bit difficult for me to understand all of this fully, I just know that I never want people to focus on me when this should always be about God and His Son."

Uriel: "I know, Erin. Now, do not worry as God has you."

Me: "Uriel, can the enemy disguise themselves as Jesus?"

Uriel: "It is written, and by the Lord's own Words, that many false prophets will appear and deceive many (Matthew 24). You must stay with what you know about the heart of God, Erin, and let this be your measure. You need only to look at the root of a matter in order to evaluate the fruits of a prophet...

- Are they self-serving and self-edifying or are they truly forsaking the world and running after God?
- Do they surrender themselves to God's Will?
- Do they reject the message of the 'Wide Gate' and stay with the message of the 'Narrow Gate'?

"You must always understand where the 'Wide Gate' leads. Enter through the narrow gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction and many enter through this (Matthew 7). Understand where this will lead. While you may wish to take the time to understand another's position, never partake in their ways of coming to God.

"God created man in His Own image, yet many know Him not nor are they accepting of holiness. Instead, they have now been handed over to their own devices. Soon, God will say to them, 'Depart from Me as I do not know you. I sent My Son to show you the way. Those who accept My Son accept Me and will not perish but have life everlasting.'

"God loves His Son and sent Him to save the world. However, they did not accept Him and so they also did not accept God, His Father. For God so loved the world that He sent His only begotten Son, whom He loved, to save those who were lost and living in sin. The Father sent down His Love, but very few saw this. However, God will now send an army to show his power, strength, majesty and love."

Me: "Uriel, I have never seen you so strong in your speech."

Uriel: "I am here to tell you of the urgency of this hour, Erin. The time has now come upon the land, the time that was written and foretold of by the prophets in His Word. Be ready! God is with you."

He smiled at me with such strength and kindness that I instantly felt such comfort. To have such a mighty angel, but really an army of His angels, watching over us, sent and guided by God Himself, is such a great gift from the Lord and so remarkable.

Truly, to be loved by the King of kings is to be loved in a way that no person on Earth can possibly replicate. For no man can say, 'I am God' and be God for no man has seen the face of God and lived except for His Son, Jesus (John 1:18).

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You! Thank You for everything! You are the Giver of good things. You send rain when needed to parched soil. You send signs to us when we need it, sometimes to comfort us or sometimes to even warn us.

Sometimes You do things just because You delight in us and want to show us Your splendor. Quite simply, I am in complete awe at all of Your good works. I am in complete awe at Your immeasurable loving kindness.

Earlier this week, it was the 9th anniversary of my heart stopping at work. The miracles You had provided to allow me to survive this were simply incredible. As just one example, a group of paramedics that 'just happened' to be eating lunch at the next door restaurant were alerted and they immediately rushed over to assist me.

However, there are truly so many miracles from You that I cannot even count them. I know of so many times in my life, and right from the beginning, that You have saved me. However, these are only the events that I am actually aware of and represent a small fraction of the many more that I am not even aware of.

When I was very young, I lived in the San Francisco / Bay area. While there, I quickly learned that I had to be keenly aware of those around me and my circumstances. I also learned to carry myself with confidence and never to look weak or like a 'victim'.

By doing this, I was left alone most of the time. Nonetheless, I was still targeted on occasion and at certain times, but really for no particular reason. Sadly, this is just the way it is in this city. Anyone who has grown up in these types of situations will most likely be able to easily relate to what I am talking about here.

Anyway, even though trouble still came, I believe that it was still relatively 'safe' to go outside to be with my group of friends in comparison to today's world. I feel that sending my children to these same places now would make me quite uncomfortable as the world's changed.

After living in that area for many years, my mom decided that we needed a change. While my mom went off to search for a new home for us in the Pacific Northwest, my siblings and I were briefly sent to live with family in Wisconsin.

While living in Wisconsin, I soon found myself assuming that my 'simpler surroundings' would be much safer than the San Francisco / Bay area. I figured that, since we no longer had the same dangers in the country as we once did in the city, I could let my guard down. I failed to adopt a new model of street-wise behavior.

In the city, it seemed relatively easy to avoid tricky situations simply by always remaining alert and aware. However, after hearing so many of the locals repeatedly say 'stuff like that does not happen here', I had finally let my guard down completely. It was then that an incident occurred where a farmer I did not recognize pulled up in his truck to ask me for directions.

When I was around 13 or 14 years old, this man had approached me to ask for directions as I was walking home alone on a quiet country road from the local swimming hole. As I approached the truck to give the man directions, I suddenly received a very loud and clear message from either You or an angel telling me, 'Erin, turn and run!'

For some reason, I did not hesitate or even think twice. I simply turned and did just that. I ran so fast that I just knew that this man would not be able to catch up to me. When I later got home, I told my family all that had happened and we phoned the authorities.

While I did not hear anything further about this incident for quite some time, I finally heard a few months later that a man in a truck with the same description as we had provided to the authorities had attempted to abduct a different girl. While I cannot recall if this man was ever caught, I just know that God had saved me from something terrible.

Due to this experience, I learned that trouble can come at us at any time, by any means and from anywhere. The enemy does not discriminate and he hates us all equally. Thank You, Father, for teaching me these valuable lessons on 'trouble'.

Though I am just one of God's many, many children, I can say that trouble truly targets each of us. As a result, all of us must constantly 'armor up' no matter where we are or how safe it may seem. Now that I am in my older years, I have many stories to share with my children about the types of troubles that can come from outside of the home.

In contrast, the vast majority of troubles that my children and my husband's children have experienced have come from inside of the home. There is a similarity to all of this for each one of our children as all of their troubles have mostly come from those closest to them, all related to our respective previous marriages.

As a result, it would be safe to say that none of our children are that adequately equipped to 'watch out' for all of the dangers that surround them in this world. Most of what they have witnessed revolves around things that have continued to happen to either my husband or me from people that come at us for no real reason.

One huge benefit to all of this is that they have now also witnessed the power and miracles of You, Father. Each of our children has now seen You deliver us from these enemies, all in such a vast variety of supernatural ways.

Given the state of the world today, I know that I must now fully give our children over to You. I have to trust You fully to download supernatural survival skills into them about the world out there and those sent against them from the enemy.

At times, I do see glimmers of divine wisdom in our children, but, at other times, I simply shake my head in disbelief. Once in a while, I even catch myself looking up to Heaven and saying, 'Oh Lord, they would not last two seconds out there when the trouble hits. Please, God, help us all!'

Father, this is our new reality. The world is now changing so rapidly that most of us are unprepared for what is coming. Who can know everything? There was a time when the news on the television was a third each of headlines, sports and weather. Now it is all headlines and virtually no time at all is spent on sports or the weather.

The world has now truly changed and it seems as if the church is way behind the learning curve on this. It seems as if those behind the pulpit are no longer preparing the saints in the pews for what has come and, more importantly, all that is soon to come.

Father, please help us all! Just as You have cared so much for me my entire life, even saving my entire family from death on one particular night in my youth, please supernaturally equip us so that we are able to survive these next times that are coming.

I trust in You as You have never let me down. When I look back, I now truly realize that You were always there! I even now find myself pausing many times during the day as my heart fills with wonderment over Your extravagant love for all of us. You fill me up with love, Father, and I love You so much!

My dream last night was amazing...

Dream 1 description begins..."A baby is saved!"

It was just before bedtime and I was standing on my front porch watching my dogs playing outside. As I watched them chase each other, I suddenly heard a baby crying. As we are quite isolated, this was not normal and I went to go look for the baby.

Using the sounds of his or her cries to search, I soon found a toddler over at the side of my home. As I went over to pick up the baby, I could tell that he was a boy that had just barely learned how to walk. He was only around 12 to 14 months old.

As I started to pick him up, my heart simply melted when he looked into my eyes, smiled and put his arms up to have me hold him. The poor little guy barely had any clothes on despite it still being quite cold outside in the evening. His diaper was practically hanging off of him. I could tell that he had been in the elements for quite a bit of time.

I then took the toddler inside. There was quite a 'buzz' in our home as everyone came over to check out our new 'guest'. As I gave him a warm bath and cleaned him up, I noticed that he had some strange bite marks on his skin. I then gasped when I saw burn marks on him from a cigarette.

I wrapped him in a towel and my husband brought an outfit over that he had found in a bin of baby clothing keepsakes from when my children were little. After we created a makeshift diaper from things that we had around the house, we found that the clothing actually fit him quite well.

The baby hugged me tightly and I could tell that he did not want me to let him go. I stood next to my husband as he called the authorities to report all of this:

Husband: "Has there been any missing children reported?"

Dispatcher: "No, sir. No one has reported a missing child."

My husband then started to explain all of what had just happened and the authorities took down the information.

Husband: "So, what should we do now? Should we take the baby to the hospital?"

Dispatcher: "No, sir. Just keep the baby at your home for now."

He then abruptly hung up on us without any further instructions. Once we both got over the shock of all of this, my husband and two of my children decided to go to the store to get some supplies for the baby. For some reason, all of us in the house had already become quite comfortable with the idea of the baby continuing to stay at our home.

Almost 24 hours had then passed and we had still not heard anything from the authorities. During this relatively short time in our care, we noticed that the baby's skin had healed and he no longer had any scars. He was also now completely rehydrated and his skin color looked excellent.

I must admit that all of us were happy with this turn of events as we all agreed that we now felt that this little boy had become a welcome part of our family. We were all a bit sad as my husband followed up with the authorities again.

Husband: "We phoned yesterday about the baby we had found in our yard. Has anyone reported a missing baby yet?"

Dispatcher: Rudely. "No, sir. No one has reported anything yet. However, we have documented all of this and you are now in our files. We suggest you just sit tight with the baby. Don't call us, we'll call you."

Before my husband could say anything in reply, the dispatcher abruptly hung up on him. We did as we were told and it was not until about a week later that someone finally contacted us. An officer knocked on our door unannounced while all of us were at home. The baby quickly hid as my husband walked over to answer the door.

Officer: "I understand that you had called us a few times about a missing child?"

Husband: "Yes."

The officer then looked over at a scary looking man that was standing next to him. This man literally looked as if it/he were a demon. The man's skin was grey and his teeth were decaying. His breath was rancid and we could smell alcohol. His dumpy old pickup truck was parked next to the police car and did not even look roadworthy.

Officer: "This man claims to be the grandfather of the child and to be the baby's only living relative."

Husband: "How do I know that this is really a relative? I am not handing this baby to this man until I know for sure. In the meantime, the baby is well taken care of here."

Officer: "Okay, sir, but can we at least see the baby before leaving?"

Husband: "Yes, but you will not believe that this is the same child as the one we found. He had bugs in his hair, bite marks from human teeth and burns on his face when we first found him. This has all cleared up now."

I went off to bring the baby to the officer to see him. However, when I found him where he was trying to hide, he resisted being picked up.

Me: Smiling. "Please do not worry. We will not let you go."

The baby was reassured by my voice and he soon allowed me to pick him up without any fuss. I then took him over to the officer. To our surprise, the old man gasped when he saw the child and had a horrified look on his face.

When the baby saw the man, he pointed at him and began to cry. We could tell that he was trying to speak to us, but was unable to say anything as he had not yet learned how. My husband quietly said a quick prayer and gently touched the baby's lips.

To all of our great surprise, the baby instantly began to tell us all of what this old man had done to him. While still all in a very young child's voice, he was being incredibly clear and articulate. Such horrific things had been done to him that it was simply unspeakable. The old man looked terrified and turned to run to his truck.

As the old man ran, we could hear him starting to scream out a confession. While confessing to so many things, he also confessed to a murder. He had killed his daughter after he had raped and impregnated her. He told us that she was the mother of the baby. Though still in shock, the police officer had quickly chased the man down.

With the help of my husband and sons, the officer arrested the man for both murder and child abuse. After the officer called in for assistance, the baby started to tell the officer all of the gory details of the night of his mother's murder, all in front of our very eyes.

Officer: "Ma'am, are you folks ready to release the baby to Child Protective Services?"

Older son: "You have got to be kidding. CPS handled our case horribly."

Other son: "I could not agree more. While they were nice to us at first, they soon began to believe the wrong side. Soon after, they stopped believing anything that we had to say. There is no way that I want this boy subject to this kind of treatment. There is just no way!"

Baby: Looking right at the officer. "Please let me stay. I love them. Please!"

Thanks to the Lord, the officer instantly knew that everything we were saying to him was the absolute truth. Though we could tell that he was still in great shock over all of what had transpired, he then addressed the baby directly.

Officer: Smiling. "Okay, okay, I understand. Now, do you have any other family?"

Baby: "No. This is now my only family. I am safe here."

Officer: Addressing me and my husband. "Well, you look like a young, healthy family. Can you and are you willing to take on this baby?"

My husband and I looked at each other and we both had huge smiles on our faces. We then looked at the officer and enthusiastically answered 'yes' at the exact same time.

Officer: Smiling. "Okay, very well then. I will simply look the other way."

As the officer turned and started to walk away, the Lord suddenly downloaded something into the officer. He turned around to address us.

Officer: "Wait a minute. I have an even better option." He walked over to the old man, who was now fully restrained and being 'closely guarded' by our protective sons. "Well, you are now going to want to give these nice people full guardianship, understand?"

The police officer released the man from his handcuffs so that he could write. He then handed the man a piece of paper. God Himself then took control of the old man's hand and he wrote out a professional and legally binding letter giving full guardianship of the baby to us.

The letter was written so well that even the police officer had to admit that it had been written by God Himself and not the old man. To our surprise, God then forced this man to request more paper. He then wrote out a full confession of each of his heinous crimes. This took quite a bit of time as there were so many crimes.

We could tell that the man was in complete shock as he watched his very own hand writing out confession after confession before signing the extremely detailed letter. As he finished writing and signing the letter, other police officers had arrived. 'Our' officer 'just happened' to be a notary and he notarized the letters with my husband as witness.

After this was all complete, God left the man to his own devices and allowed his demons to overtake him. As the old man had not yet been put back in handcuffs after writing these letters, he was able to wrestle away one of the guns from an officer standing there that had just arrived on the scene.

The old man quickly aimed the gun right at my son and pulled the trigger. We heard a loud bang erupt, but were all amazed when the bullet simply disappeared into thin air. No one was harmed. The man looked at the gun with a confused look on his face.

Thanks to this delay, he was unable fire off another shot. One of the other officers then shot and fatally wounded him. We later found out that the man had died while in transit to the hospital, all the while continuing to curse us, the police officers and God.

As this was now a crime scene, it took a few hours for everything to wrap up. After some time, the only one finally left at our home other than us was the initial police officer that had first arrived at our home with the old man.

Officer: Shaking his head. "I am not quite sure what all this was today, but surely God is here and is still here with you. That baby is one lucky child." The officer looked at me and the baby as he snuggled in my arms and smiled. "So, are you a happy little guy?"

As the Lord had now removed the baby's ability to speak, he simply smiled and clapped his hands in complete joy. The officer began to shake his head again.

Officer: "Seriously, I will need to be checked over after this one!" He was laughing as he continued to shake his head in disbelief. "Could it be that I have just been on the force for far too long?"

Me: "Can we pray for you that God is with you in all that you do? Do you know Jesus?"

Officer: "I know about Him, but I do not go to church."

Me: "Then He is calling you now to accept him. He wants you."

Tears began to stream down the officer's face. My husband put his hand on his shoulders and then my boys did also. The officer accepted Jesus into his heart. We prayed the full armor of God over him. We then saw something amazing in the Spirit.

Two large angels, each holding vessels, came over to him. One angel poured Living Water over him and the other angel poured oil over him. In an instant, the officer became young, strong and very handsome. We all cheered. Needless to say, he was in shock and we were all in amazement at how great God is.

Officer: "I thought you people were crazy at first, but now I have understanding. Wow!!" He shook his head and had a huge grin on his face as he looked down at his new body. "So, how will I ever be able to explain this?" His smile then changed to a look of concern. "You do realize that others will come out here once they see me!"

Husband: "Yes, but only those God calls will be able to find us, so please do not worry. By the way, we will see you again, my friend."

As my husband embraced him, a peace seemed to come over the officer. He then looked over at each of us and smiled. He hugged each of us, starting with the baby, and then thanked us for what the Lord had done for him through us.

Officer: "This started out as the worst call of my life, but has now turned into the best 'call' of my life. Thank you."

We could see tears in his eyes as he spoke to us.

Husband: Smiling. "No, thank you."

Me: "Yes, thank you! You saved the life of a child today and God has given you so much more in return."

He turned and walked back to his police car. As he backed out of the driveway, he had a huge grin on his face. He waved goodbye to us as he pulled away. All of us felt such joy as we knew that this was truly a wonderful day that the Lord had made.

Dream 1 description over...

Received on Friday, March 24th, 2017 (Visit 2)...

The dream with the baby was unusual and felt incredibly real. However, I had a different dream that was also unusual...

Dream 2 description begins..."Be wise with your personal information"

I entered a large store that sold home furnishings and appliances. I was soon approached by one of the sales staff as I looked around.

Saleswoman: "Hello, how can I help you today?"

Me: "Hi, I am searching for a refrigerator and a washer and dryer. Are you running any special sales today?"

Saleswoman: "Yes, we are. Come and I will show you."

I followed her to a staged vignette of a laundry room. On display were a state of the art, high-end washer and dryer. However, they were both neon pink and had silver and purple confetti glued all over them.

Saleswoman: "You can have this pair for $725. These are normally priced at $7,500."

At first I was repulsed by their appearance, but the price was so amazing I decided to consider it for a moment. I examined them closer to see whether or not I could paint them. While now intrigued, I decided that I would want my husband to view them first.

Me: "Why are they so inexpensive? Is there anything wrong with them?"

Saleswoman: "Well, they are our display models, so we had the drums removed from both of them."

Me: "Okay, but that does not make any sense. There can be no washer or dryer if they do not have their drums. The washer would be unable to contain the water. As for the dryer...well, this is simply ridiculous." I shook my head. "These will not work."

Saleswoman: "Too bad, these are such a great deal."

Me: "What else do you have?"

Saleswoman: "Well, I will show you our refrigerators now."

As we walked together, I explained to her the type of refrigerator that I needed for our home. She then took me over to a staged vignette of a kitchen and proudly stood next to a retro-shaped refrigerator in a flamboyant pink and green hunters camouflage.

Me: Laughing. "These colors are just as crazy as the colors on the washer and dryer you just showed me."

Saleswoman: "While this may be true, you will not believe the deal we have on this refrigerator right now. We will sell this to you for just $326, down from $3,260."

I perked up a bit due to the great price. I then inspected it closer to see if I could change the face of the refrigerator to not be so outlandish. As I did this, she reached into a cabinet and pulled out some mirrored panels.

Saleswoman: "Look, you can even put these mirrored panels on it if you really want to."

She clicked them onto the refrigerator. I had never seen anything like this before.

Me: "Hmm, I am really not sure which is worse. Perhaps I could replace these mirrored panels with some stainless steel panels? What if I instead turned the mirrored panels around and had the gun metal grey backing showing instead?"

Saleswoman: "Look, once you purchase it, you can do as you please with it."

Me: "So, is there anything wrong with it?"

Saleswoman: "No, it works just fine."

Me: "Well, the dimensions do look perfect for our space. However, I cannot tell how deep it is. Do you know what the depth is?"

Saleswoman: "Oh, I am not sure. Here, let me slide it out and see."

As she began pulling the refrigerator out from the wall, I was in shock at how incredibly deep it was. It was so deep that I could not even believe my eyes. I had never even heard of something like this. I measured the depth and it was around 72" or six feet deep, the same as the height.

Me: Laughing. "Okay, this is simply ridiculous." I started looking around the room. "Am I on camera? This has to be some sort of joke."

To my surprise, the saleswoman became noticeably insulted. She then addressed me as if I was a child being teased by someone in a school yard.

Saleswoman: "Wow, you sure seem very superficial. Content counts, you know."

Now that I knew that this really was not a prank, I wanted to make sure her feelings did not remain hurt.

Me: "Listen, I am really sorry for laughing. It is just that I have never seen anything like this before. How would I even get to the items in the back of the refrigerator? I would need a grab arm or claw to reach anything back there. Would this also not completely block the entry into almost any kitchen?"

Saleswoman: She seemed happy again and smiled. "Well, why don't you open it?"

I opened the refrigerator and it started folding out into multiple layers. While it would be able to hold a lot of food, it would still need an entire wall all to itself.

Me: "This is very innovative and the price is fantastic. Tell you what. I will purchase this for my garage. It is the only place with the space needed for this unique design."

Saleswoman: "Oh, I am sorry, but this is not to be a 'garage refrigerator'. I simply can no longer sell this unit to you."

Me: "Look, I am here to find a refrigerator and I am willing to buy this one from you. With all of the space in this unit, I can now hold off replacing my broken refrigerator. My current refrigerator is difficult to open and does not have a freezer, but I can live with it if I buy this one. I used to be a kitchen designer and I just know that this one will work."

Saleswoman: "Oh, well in that case, I must take you to our design room in the back of the store. Now go on back and look around while I write up a sales ticket for this refrigerator."

She pointed over to the door to the backroom and walked away. As I entered the room, I noticed that there were many kitchen cabinet and lighting samples to look at. As I looked around, I was not that impressed by their sample displays.

As I continued to walk around the room, two young design associates came over to talk to me. They seemed quite young and I guessed that they could even be from some sort of high school work program.

Girl: Smiling. "Hello, are you looking for new trends? We have them here."

Me: "Hi. Could you please show me your cabinet finishes?"

Girl: "Sure, I would be delighted."

She then proceeded to take out two different cabinet fronts and proudly placed them in front of me.

Me: "Hmm, are these your only choices?"

Girl: "Yes, unless you upgrade to custom."

Me: "Where are the upgrades?"

Girl: "They are over here. Come with me."

She then took me over to a wall with hundreds of different finishes.

Me: "Wow, some of these are beautiful! How much would it be for an upgrade?"

Girl: Smiling. "Upgrades are only $700 per cabinet."

I was speechless at the high price at first as this was, by far, the most ridiculous pricing I had ever heard of. I quickly gathered my thoughts.

Me: "Just to make sure I understand this, are you saying that, if I wanted to have oak, walnut or cherry, I would have to pay for the cabinets plus the extra $700 per cabinet upgrade? Now, is this the price for the entire cabinet or just for the door?"

Girl: "Oh, just for the door, of course."

Me: "How can this be so expensive? These cabinets are mediocre in quality, made of pressboard and the color is laminated. At this price, a kitchen in your cherry color would run someone around $200,000 and this would be just for the cabinets. Does this at least include installation and hardware?"

Girl: "This would include installation, but not the hardware."

I was so distracted with our discussions that I completely forgot that I had left my purse unattended on one of the tables. Two college aged football players had come in to the showroom, but I did not think much of it other than that they were here to visit with these pretty girls. However, next thing I knew, my purse with my cellphone in it, along with the two college boys, had disappeared.

Me: "Okay, where is my purse? My cellphone and car keys are in there."

Girl: "I did not see anything."

I went to the service desk at the front of the store to use their phone. I quickly called the police and told them what had just happened.

Dispatcher: "What is your cellphone number? We can use your cellphone to track their location."

I gave them my cellphone number, along with my husband's cellphone number.

Me: "What should I do now?"

Dispatcher: "We will phone your husband's cellphone with further instructions."

I then phoned my husband and told him what had just happened. As he drove over to pick me up, he received a phone call from the police indicating that they had retrieved all of my items after pulling over a car that they had tracked down using my cellphone. After my husband picked me up, we drove together to the police station.

Officer: "While very difficult to prove, we know that these people are part of a very large ring or network that gather personal information from their victims. Unfortunately, this network will now know everything about you and your family by midnight tonight.

"You will need to phone all of your banks, any stores you have gift cards with, your insurance company and even your pharmacist. You will also need to have your home rekeyed, along with your vehicle.

"An officer will follow you to your car to check for any unlocking devices for thieves that may have been installed on your vehicle. You have been compromised and you now have to take immediate steps to stop them and secure your perimeter."

Me: "What about my children?"

Officer: "Well, they now know who they are, along with their cellphone numbers."

Husband: "Should we be afraid?"

Officer: "We all should be afraid, but no, at least not until about six months down the road."

Husband: "Why six months?"

Officer: "You do not know?"

Me: "We should not have fear. We should only fear God."

Officer: Smiling. "Yes, fear of God is the beginning of wisdom. They are more afraid of you. However, all of you must still remain aware, alert and wise!"

Dream 2 description over...

Dream 3 description begins..."The elusive tiny Sparrowhawk"

A miniature Sparrowhawk flew over and decided that she wanted to sit on me. The Sparrowhawk was so very tiny that I barely noticed that she was on me. For some reason, she seemed completely uninterested in hunting and was only interested in me.

I decided to take a picture of this beautifully unique little bird with my cellphone. However, whenever I tried to take a picture, it would hop over to the hand that was holding the cellphone. After many failed attempts, I laughed and decided to stop trying.

Dream 3 description over...

Dream 4 description begins..."Alcohol – The 'spirits' really do have spirits"

I had been invited to a large fraternity house party. When I arrived, I could tell from the outside that this was quite a high-end mansion. As I looked around inside this massive house, I noticed that every bedroom had a chandelier hanging in the closet. I went up to a fraternity student to ask him about this curious sight.

Me: "Why would you have these beautiful chandeliers hidden inside the closets?"

Student: "We like to have the light contained so that we can let in as little light as possible whenever we need to."

Me: "Why not just leave them in the open room and put them on dimmer switches?"

Student: "What? That is stupid. Who even does that? Try waking up with a hangover to a bunch of irritating lights."

I could see that arguing with him on this was simply pointless, so I decided to just walk away. I could not help but shake my head as I then proceeded down one of the hallways. When I glanced into each room as I passed by, I could see that there was a lot of bad stuff in each of them.

I shook my head again as I now realized why they would all enjoy the darkness so much. When I finally came to the end of the long hallway, it entered into a kitchen. I saw a bunch of guys there engaging in various drinking games.

I also saw many different bottles of alcohol strewn all over a massive kitchen island. While I specifically noticed gin, vodka, tequila and whiskey sitting on the island, it seemed as if 'spirits' of every type were present given the vast number of bottles.

Received on Sunday, March 26th, 2017 (Visit 3)...

As I entered the kitchen, there was a 'fraternity brother' standing next to the island with a bottle of alcohol and a shot glass just in front of him. There were also two extremely valuable vases situated near the center of this massive island.

One of the vases was a very large Loetz vase made of blue, green and gold iridescent glass with sterling silver overlays. The other was most likely a Tiffany vase as it was made of characteristic gold and purple glass with bronze overlays. The value of these two vases had to be around $12,000 each, but perhaps they were worth even more.

In this particular drinking game, it appeared that the boys were trying to bounce quarters into these extremely valuable vases. If the coin missed, the 'frat boy' had to 'down a shot'. However, if they successfully bounced the coin into the vase, all of the others had to 'down a shot' instead.

Alarmed at the precariousness of the situation, I quickly located two cheap vases of similar size in one of the cupboards. These vases were definitely much more suitable given the risk of damage, so I quickly switched the valuable vases out. As the 'frat boys' were already fairly intoxicated, they barely even noticed that I made the switch.

Sure enough, soon after I switched the vases out, a 'frat boy' in a drunken state accidentally toppled over one of the vessels. As it smashed into pieces, many of them laughed hysterically. I could not believe the complete recklessness, so I decided to look for a sober person to ask if I could purchase these vases from them.

After a considerable amount of searching, I finally found someone that appeared to be sober. As I approached him, I recognized him from a picture that I had seen earlier that identified him as the president of the fraternity. He smiled at me as I came up to him.

Me: "Hi, my name is Erin. I just wanted to ask you if these vases were for sale."

Pres: "Hi Erin. Go ahead and just take them. They have been with the house from the very beginning and all of us really hate this old junk. By the way, I have much more over there if you want any of that stuff as well."

He pointed me over to a small room and then took me there. As we entered the room, I saw so many beautiful items that would have incredibly high value at an auction, I was in utter shock.

Me: "Whoa, do you even know how truly amazing this stuff is?"

Pres: "Yes, but there used to be five times more of this in this room. However, once a year, we have a party where we catapult these into a stone fence."

While he thought all of this was quite funny and was laughing about it, my stomach started to become sick over the utter waste.

Pres: "If you want it, just take it, but I suggest you do this quickly as you just never know when we will bring out our catapult again."

Me: "Great, but I would like to at least pay you something for all of this."

Pres: "Look, I do not want or need your money and neither does our chapter."

Me: "Alright, thank you. I will start moving this stuff out immediately."

I quickly began moving these valuable items out into my car parked out front. I acquired some amazing items, including Tiffany, Loetz, Weller, Wedgwood, French Majolica and Belleek.

I also found some incredible old maps, oil landscapes, bronze statues and Persian rugs. As I looked around some more, I also found antique ink wells, a very valuable clock and a beautiful scale with weights. I shook my head as I lifted up the scale to inspect it.

Me: Praying. "Oh Lord, if the original founders of this fraternal order knew what was happening today, they would surely be using this as a scale of judgment."

After loading up as many items as I could, I returned only to now find an entire collection of rare books. Many of these rare books were first editions and some were even signed. There was Edgar Allan Poe, Dickens and even Shakespeare. While this is all somewhat impossible, all I can say is WOW!

After looking around some more, I then found some design scrolls by William Morris and even an original house plan by Frank Lloyd Wright. I quickly added up that this room alone contained several millions of dollars in treasured artifacts. I again felt apprehensive about just taking all of these items, so I approached the president again.

Me: "Are you really sure that I can just take these? Collectively, this stuff is worth an absolute fortune!"

Pres: Laughing. "Look, Erin, I am not drunk and I will even write you up an official bill of sale so that you can finally relax about all of this. We want you to take it."

He then found a sheet of paper and wrote up quite a professional looking receipt. As I looked closer, I saw that it contained all of the proper legal fine print necessary to officially remove all rights of these goods and fully transfer ownership to me. I was in shock because the 'contract' was well written, fair, legitimate and legally binding and even somehow listed a detailed description of each of the items I had acquired.

Me: "Just to make sure, this is yours to sell, right?"

Pres: "I am the legal guardian of this, so yes."

He then proceeded to show me legal papers that outlined that this was the truth. I was surprised at all of the effort he was putting into this to let me take this stuff. He even provided me a color copy of a document outlining his credentials with the authorizing signatures. I noticed that his signatures on all of the documents matched perfectly.

Pres: "Look, if we are allowed to destroy it by catapulting it in the back yard or during a drunken game of quarters, if we are allowed to throw these away and toss them into the trash, if we even bury some in the backyard for no particular reason, if no one comes to catalog or inventory our furnishings and if no one polices us, surely it is then our right to sell it or, in this case, give it away when we want to. After all, we have paid our dues."

Me: "Okay, thank you. While I really do not have much money on me, I insist on at least giving you whatever money I do have."

I reached into my pocket and realized that all I had was a $10 bill on me. This was even less than I thought I had on me. I sheepishly handed it to him and he smiled as he took it from me.

Pres: "That is more than enough as I really do not want your money. I will gladly sell all of it to you for $10 just to have it gone. Here, I will even now add this to the bill of sale."

After adding the $10 purchase price to the bill of sale, he officially marked the contract as 'paid-in-full'. Even though he was being so helpful and insistent, I still could not help but feel somewhat conflicted.

On the one hand, I felt a bit shrewd as I knew the immense value of this stuff. While I think the fraternity did too, they simply did not like the looks of this old stuff. On the other hand, I still felt very good about this as I knew that I would at least keep this stuff safe from harm. In turn, I would then be able to sell these items to those who would actually value and appreciate them as the significant bits of history that each item were.

By the time I was done loading everything into my vehicle, I was shocked to find that everything fit in and so perfectly. I just knew that there had to be an angel assisting me in doing all of this as it simply defied logic that it could have all fit so nicely.

I decided to go back into the house to check in on the drinking party one last time before leaving for good. As I entered the kitchen again, I was shown that each of the 'frat boys' had now taken on a 'spirit' from each of the respective alcohol bottles that they were each drinking from. What I saw next was difficult to describe, but I will try.

In essence, I saw something like a type of 'spirit' floating out of each bottle like a cloud. It was almost like the 'genie' from the Disney movie, but without the clarity. In turn, the 'spirit' entering each drinker seemed to grow more and more intense each time they took another drink.

The Lord then downloaded a description of what each of the different 'spirits' was doing to these young men as they 'drank them in':

- Tequila: Those drinking tequila became paranoid, mischievous, extremely rowdy and a 'bit crazy'.
- Whiskey: Those drinking whiskey became violent. However, just before becoming violent, they would declare that they could not take responsibility for what they were about to do. Immediately after being violent, they would then become remorseful. This cycle kept repeating itself.
- Bourbon / Scotch: Those drinking bourbon / scotch started to reminisce about sad thoughts from their past which, in turn, seemed to make them 'somewhat suicidal'. They would start off by becoming whiny, but then they would become quiet and sorrowful. This cycle kept repeating itself.
- Gin: Those drinking gin became lustful and coveting.
- Vodka: Those drinking vodka became emboldened, jealous and somehow physically much stronger than they normally would be.
- Jägermeister: Those drinking Jägermeister started to hallucinate and would often start laughing for no apparent reason.
- Rum: Those drinking rum became seductive, overly expressive and would also often start laughing for no apparent reason.

Me: Praying. "Oh Lord, these 'spirits' really are taking over the behavior of these drinkers. When liquor is labelled as 'spirits', they truly are properly labelled. I am not sure if beer and earthly wine are any different? While I am not sure about all of this, it seems wise to simply avoid taking in these 'spirits' altogether."

I felt that I had seen more than enough, so I found the door and drove away. I was still in shock at all that I had in my car and could not believe that all of this had just happened.

Father, what a crazy world we live in. Please grant us wisdom. Please strengthen all of us as what is soon to come is terrible. All of this is now coming at us so quickly that we will need You in all that we do, but even more now than ever.

Note: This dream had quite a bit of swearing in it, but I have removed the swear words and replaced them with ''. There is also violence and disturbing content. While I could have simply removed all of this completely, I felt it was important to indicate how 'real life' this dream was by leaving it in. For those who may be offended by this, please feel free to skip this particular sub-dream.*

It was a sunny afternoon and I was driving to pick up my children from school. As I was stopped at an intersection, a school bus I knew would be carrying elementary students began to swerve and then rolled on its side.

I quickly got out of my car and ran to the rear emergency doors of the bus. I could hear the children inside screaming and crying. I opened the door and climbed inside and started helping the children out of the bus until they were all out. I could tell that I had already been Transformed as this was quite easy for me to do.

As I looked at the kids, they were all so confused and distraught. By a true miracle, not one of the kids had any injuries other than some minor scrapes and bruises. As I checked the kids, I finally came up to the very last two kids that I had helped out.

They were adorable twins around seven years old and both were wearing matching white hats and yellow raincoats. I could not help but smile to myself as I thought their outfits were out of place for such nice weather. One of the twins motioned to me.

Twin: "There is a man with a scary gun in the front."

I nodded and put my finger to my lips to keep her quiet. I then gathered all the kids together in a safe area on the side of the road. I pointed down the road to an area that could not be seen from the bus and addressed them just loud enough for them to hear.

Me: "You are all to stay together and walk over there." I then pointed to one of the kids who looked older and had remained relatively composed compared to the other kids. "I want all of you to follow him." I then instructed the older boy.

"Now, I need you to count your steps. Once you reach that turn in the road, I need you to count 60 more steps in total and then wait there. Have everyone stay near you and then wait for help. Do you understand?"

Older boy: "Walk to the turn in the road, 60 steps after that and then wait for help."

I nodded yes and smiled. I then addressed all of the kids again.

Me: "I need you all to follow him, okay? Help is coming."

All of the kids nodded in agreement. Most of them were still sobbing and I could tell that they were all scared. After they started walking and I knew that they would be safe, I decided to go back into the bus.

Just before going in, I recognized a mom that had just pulled up in her car near the overturned bus. I pointed to the walking children and put my fingers to my lips to keep quiet. For some reason I had no phone, so I then motioned for her to phone for help.

I watched as she started to make a phone call as she drove to where the children were. I was relieved that there would now be an adult there to look after these scared kids.

I boarded the bus and could see the driver crumpled on the side, which was now the bottom. As I approached him, he appeared to be breathing, but unconscious. As I came closer to the driver, I suddenly noticed a man crouching behind the front seat.

While the man still seemed dazed and hurt from the rollover, he raised his arms to point a 'miniature' machine gun at me. I was startled and now quite frightened. Instinctively, I put my hands up in the air. Note: I later looked this up on Google images and believe the gun to be a 'SOFIC 2014 SIG MPX', but I am not entirely sure about this.

Me: "I am just a mom helping to collect the children. My name is Erin."

Shooter: "I don't  care who you are. This  driver turned his wheels before I could do anything."

I then looked at the roof, now the side, and it was riddled with bullet holes. We were standing on the windows to the right of the seats that were now on the road. While I wanted to leave, I realized that, if I turned around to go, he would shoot me.

Me: "So, wait, you were going to shoot the driver?"

Shooter: Yelling. "No, no, no!" He was irritated. "The kids! The kids! I am the executioner and it is their time!" I could tell that he was snapping out of his concussion as he looked around. "Wait, where are the kids? Where the * are they?"

Me: "The kids are gone."

Shooter: "But there is no blood? Where did they go?"

I knew I had to tell the man what he wanted to hear. I felt that, if I did not, he would leave the bus and start shooting the now gathering bystanders.

Me: "Look, you really messed these kids up. I am not sure if they will even make it."

The man seemed disturbingly happy and satisfied with this and that, at the very least, the children were stressed and suffering. I then pointed to the driver.

Me: "The driver looks like he is in bad shape. Can I check him?"

Shooter: "No, no, no! I should  shoot that  head off."

He pointed the gun at the driver's head and I could tell that he was about to pull the trigger. I instinctively knew that I had to distract him immediately.

Me: "Okay, okay, okay. Look, it is okay. He cannot even move. He is most likely already dead. I would not waste your bullets. You might need them for me, right?"

I smiled and laughed to try to lighten the mood. However, in reality, I could not believe that I had just said this. He then laughed too and thought it was funny.

Shooter: "Oh, so you want to die today too?"

Me: "Well, I was not planning to do this today." I laughed. "However, I already know that Heaven is awesome as I have died before."

Shooter: Laughing. "Oh, okay, this explains your 'balls'."

Me: "Well, last time I checked, I did not have any 'male parts'."

I laughed again as I knew that my humor seemed to be calming him down.

Shooter: "Heaven sucks. Hell is where I am going."

Me: "Really? Have you been there? I have had friends who have seen it and I know it changed their lives. They would never wish this for anyone. I know that Jesus does not want you there."

He looked confused and, as he shook his head and held his forehead, I noticed that he had a nasty head wound. Though hard to see because of his threatening demeanor, he was actually a normal looking guy that I believed many women would find attractive.

He was in his early 30s with dark hair and piercing blue eyes. He was wearing jeans, a black crew neck t-shirt and a black leather modern racing bike jacket.

Shooter: "Who the * are you? Are you some kind of preacher nun? Maybe I should just shoot you. You could be an angel."

Me: "Well, I am not any of these. Perhaps today is my last day. If this is God's Will, then go ahead and shoot!"

He slowly raised his gun until it was pointing right at my heart. While I tried to look calm in the hopes he would change his mind and not shoot me, I was really thinking, 'Oh Lord, this is going to hurt.' I then started thinking about my husband and my kids.

He did something to his gun and I heard it make a strange locking sound. I watched his finger as he squeezed the trigger. This all somehow seemed to happen in slow motion. Loud firing sounds pierced the air as he shot at me over and over.

When he stopped firing, I looked down at my torso, but nothing had happened to me. He aimed the gun at 'the roof', which was now the side of the bus, and fired again. So many shots riddled the bus that it started to look like 'Swiss cheese'. As the automatic chamber continued to shoot, he turned the gun towards me.

Just as it was about to fire at me, I took a deep breath and prepared myself to die. As he shot at my head and body for what seemed to be several minutes, which I know it could not have been, I realized that, once again, nothing had hit me. I took a sigh and felt great relief.

I looked behind me and noticed that the bullets made a strange silhouette of my head and body. I suddenly felt my 'insides involuntarily loosening' and I knew that there was nothing I could do to stop it. However, just before 'this' happened, I felt God strengthen me. Thank You, Father, the 'feeling' then went away as fast as it had come.

Shooter: "Okay, Erin, who the * are you?"

I could not believe that I was still calm, at least on the outside. I knew that, had God not strengthened me, I would have passed out from the terror of all of this.

Me: "I am just Erin. Now, what is your name?"

Shooter: "Trey. My name is Trey."

Me: "Look, Trey, I believe that God has a plan for you and that today might be the day you find Him."

I pointed up to a 'side window', which was now the roof. As we looked, Trey's story started to unfold in the window as if it was a type of video screen. The Lord then supplied the words and I began to narrate Trey's story to him from the time he was little.

Trey was now in shock and looked on in complete silence. We were both watching his life as if it was a movie. While I still could not understand why he wanted to die or why he wanted to kill these innocent children, I could now see how he had come to this point of desperation.

While I will not go into the details of the many things I saw about his life, one incident stood out. When Trey was very young, his father would rape his sister. One time, Trey had caught him doing this and yelled out for him to stop as his sister was weeping.

While the father then stopped, he only stopped long enough to give Trey a savage beating before returning to his fowl quest. Trey had witnessed this quite a few times and it soon drove him into shock.

I then saw Trey as a teenager. He was battling depression, anger and fright. I then saw that an open wound to his head had formed from all of this. Using this 'head wound', several demons later gained access to Trey when he became older. He was now in severe conflict and was having great difficulty understanding right from wrong.

Just before the very end of the 'movie', the screen showed a row of white washed trees with gnarled branches all in a row. The trees had no branches, leaves or signs of life other than that they looked like artistic sculptures. The visual of these trees made Trey breakdown momentarily, but I was not sure what this had meant to him.

Me: "Trey, it is okay. Thanks to the Lord, you have not murdered anyone today. Now, you are still going to have some hospital or jail time, but at least you will be safe there."

Trey: "I hear voices and they tell me what to do." His eyes started to dart around. "I cannot stop them, Erin, I cannot stop the voices."

Me: "It is okay, Trey. Let me pray for you."

Trey: Sneering. "For what? So that I can get an upgrade from a cot to a mattress in prison? So that I can receive a Twinkie once a month?" He momentarily looked angry again and pointed at the empty bus seats. "Those kids eat Twinkies."

The Lord then downloaded something and I instantly realized why Trey had wanted to kill the kids. It was because the 'head wound' from his father had occurred when he was around six or seven years, around the same age as these children. This torment continued and he hated these kids as, unlike him, they seemed happy and peaceful.

Me: "Listen, Trey, I really do not think that many of these kids will be eating Twinkies tonight. Many of them are very poor and do not have very good home lives themselves. While the Lord will eventually take these kids up into His arms, today was just not meant to be their day.

"This was God's choice, Trey, not yours. However, right now, He is focused on you. He knows your pain and now I am a witness to this as well. I saw it, I see it and now I understand." Tears actually started to well up in my eyes. "Trey, I am so sorry."

He studied me and seemed somewhat confused. I believe that he rarely had experienced compassion from anyone so he was having trouble recognizing what he was seeing. I was really not sure about this though.

Trey: "No one has ever seen what you just saw. I have never shared this with anyone." Tears started to form in his eyes. "I thought that I was the only one."

Me: "No, Trey, you and I are not the only ones! God has kept records. Jesus knows everything and He has been with you. He called to you, but you did not turn to listen."

I had heard sirens in the distance a little earlier and I knew that police officers and others had now arrived. As we could see out the front and rear window, which was now the front and back sides of the flipped bus, we could see flickers of movement. I knew that we were now surrounded by officers. He now realized this as well.

Trey: "Why are you still here? Just go! Please, you must leave now!"

Me: "No, Trey, I am going to stay here with you."

Trey: "But I am a kid killer, Erin. I am done."

Just then, God downloaded a status report on the kids and the driver.

Me: "No, no one has died here. Remember, you did not have the chance to kill any of the kids. According to God's report, He has not seen anything which is not redeemable. Do you think God accidentally left something out?" I smiled at him and began to see him soften when I said this. "Hmm, I really do not think that He did."

Trey: "If I die today, I do not know where I am going. I think that I am 'hell bound'."

Me: "Well, do you want to change that to 'Heaven bound' instead?"

Trey: "What do I do?"

Me: "Give your whole heart to Jesus right now!"

Trey: "Why would He want my heart?"

Me: "Because He loves you. While you will not be free from the trials that will come because of today, He will take you through them."

Trey: "Will you be there too?"

Me: "I am not Jesus. He will give you the Holy Spirit. He will remove those voices. Anytime that you need a friend, He will always be there for you. I will visit and write, but I am not Jesus. One day though, and very soon, I will see you in Heaven and you will be changed. You will be changed even more than today."

Trey: "Erin, I will be in Heaven before you are."

Me: "Does that mean that you will accept Jesus as your Lord and Savior?"

Trey: "Yes. What do I need to do?"

Me: "I will help you." As I prayed for him, he started to cry...

"Lord, Trey comes to you today as a broken man. You know his story. You know what has happened to him. He is confessing his sins before you today."

Trey then began to confess so many things. He then confessed his evil plans to kill the children today.

Me: "Lord, please forgive Trey."

Trey: Now weeping. "Please forgive me." He was crying so hard that it was now difficult for him to speak. "I accept You, Jesus! I accept You into my heart!"

As Trey said this, I saw something leave his head and shoulder area. It was like a large black type of combination demonic bird and snake. I had never seen anything like this. It hovered a bit, but then it disappeared while making some strange sounds. It sounded almost like screaming mixed with nails on a chalkboard. Trey suddenly straightened up.

Trey: "Oh wow, I feel so light. I feel free." He suddenly looked horrified. "Oh Erin, what have I done? Oh my God, what have I done?"

Me: I smiled at him reassuringly. "Calm down. You are His. Now, I am just going to go and check the driver."

It seemed that the driver had received a 'knock-out punch' from the side mirror when it punched through the window. I knew that he was going to be okay as God confirmed that he was just 'sleeping' and would be just fine once the paramedics came to him.

Me: "Trey, we had better go."

Trey: "Wait! What will happen to me?" He was now panicking and scared.

Me: "No matter what happens, God has you, okay? I am now your friend."

Trey: Now talking 'in shock'. "Can I come and live with your family?"

Me: "No, Trey, you will have to go to jail or to the hospital. The good news is that Jesus is coming for all of us very soon. You will not have long there before Heaven." I smiled and squeezed his hand reassuringly. "You will be fine."

At that second, the police demanded that we come out of the bus immediately. We both put our hands up in the air, but Trey was still holding his gun. As the overhang to the door was a few feet above ground since the bus was on its side, one of the officers came over to help me out of the bus.

However, as Trey climbed out, his gun suddenly became unbalanced in his hand when it had hit the overhang to the door. When the gun began to drop, Trey instinctively brought his arms back down to try and grab it. As this made it appear that he was becoming aggressive again and was about to shoot again, a sniper took him down.

I tried to go towards Trey, but the officers quickly pulled me away. He died within seconds. However, right there in front of me and in the Spirit, I saw Jesus receive Trey. I watched as Jesus carried him Home.

Though I was now crying, I was also joyful at the salvation that I had just witnessed. After quite some time answering questions and helping fill out reports, I was finally able to leave. As I walked back to my car, I was surprised when the two little twins in their raincoats came up to speak with me. They had such beautiful smiles on their faces.

Me: Smiling. "I am so glad that you are both okay."

Twin 1: "We wore raincoats today because Jesus told us that the rain was coming."

I then looked up and saw that rain clouds were starting to collect.

Twin 2: "Jesus said that it will be a 'Trey'-rential rain."

I looked at the twins and laughed.

Me: "So, did Jesus tell you all about this?"

Twin 1: "Yes. Jesus was on the bus and told us that we would be okay and that help was coming."

The twins were now giggling and I could not help but laugh and smile with them. I then started to cry as I looked up towards Heaven, shouting praises to Him.

Me: "Jesus is awesome! Thank You, Lord! Thank You for keeping everyone safe!"

A group of attractive women, all looking like supermodels, had been going from estate to estate throughout major cities holding art exhibits and wine events to pre-sell commissioned art pieces. They targeted the large houses and mansions of the wealthy.

This group went from home to home displaying art that seemed to be a mixture of sculpture and wall art. The pieces illuminated and some even incorporated water features. Each event drew in several hundreds of thousands of dollars in commissions. The artwork was scheduled to be finished after their various tours were complete.

A former client of mine wanted my opinion on a few of these pieces and invited me to one of these events. After I arrived and had a chance to look around, I could not help but be quite impressed by the show and presentation. After the event finished, I decided to speak with the women as they were packing up the art pieces.

Me: "We would like to purchase that piece."

I pointed over to a particularly stunning illuminated glass and metal wall sculpture. The woman who replied to me seemed to have a Middle-Eastern foreign accent, but yet was blonde with blue eyes.

Woman 1: "That is not possible. I am sorry, but you must simply wait along with everyone else."

Me: "Hmm, but my client does not want to wait. She would like this piece now."

Woman 1: "I am sorry, but this is not possible."

Me: "Okay. So, when can she have her piece by?"

Woman 1: "Well, we are on tour until June of 2019. Then there are the 5,000 orders that are already before hers. It will be by the end of 2020."

Me: Laughing loudly. "Okay, so, let me get this straight. You have collected millions, if not even billions, of dollars while knowing that you will not need to even produce anything for 3.5 years. Seriously? The world will change and things will be different by then. Styles and interiors will have changed and redone."

Another woman had been listening and chimed in with what seemed like either a Russian or Eastern European accent.

Woman 2: "Well, it will not matter by then. These places will all be gone, but we will continue."

Me: "What do you mean?"

I could tell that she had no intention of answering me and she walked away, ignoring my question completely. I then saw a different woman taking various photos of items in the house using a small camera. As she took photos, I noticed another woman walking with her and cataloguing the contents of the home.

I then remembered hearing that these women would arrive hours before each event to set up and would even request that the homeowner be absent while they worked. It suddenly hit me that these women were up to 'no good' and 'nothing Godly'.

Me: "Hey, you are con-artists. You have no intention of selling anything!"

Woman 1: "$75,000 today for that piece. However, if I let you take it, you must stop saying what you are saying."

I instantly recognized that they were willing to sell me a piece immediately simply to keep me quiet. I decided to play along because I knew that my life would be in danger if I did not. I was going to offer to pay by check as I would then have it arranged so that the recipient could be traced once the check was cashed.

Me: "My client will purchase this. Who do we make the check out to?"

The women then started talking to each other in another language. The Lord then made it so that I knew what they were saying. The women somehow knew that this check would be traced and that they would be compromised if they had it cashed.

Woman 1: "Just keep the piece and we will be in touch with your client as to the payment."

They looked angry at me as they knew that I had somehow tied their hands. I had them leave the art piece where it was as I would arrange for pickup. The piece was simply beautiful and I was excited to tell my client the good news, but also to warn her as well. Before I could tell her all that had happened, she called me over to her.

Client: "Come here, Erin, we have something to show you."

I followed her into a type of safe room that looked like a command center for gathering intelligence.

Client: "We have been tracking these women for quite some time now. They take the checks and then drain each of their accounts. They then send their information overseas to the Middle East. They then have their businesses and holdings given over, as well as their homes and estates. All of it is forced to be sold to these oversea holdings and then all of the items inside of the homes and estates are sold off as 'trophies'."

Me: "So, they are taking over our wealth?"

Client: "Yes, but this is just a small part. Our nation is falling, Erin, and they have bid for the spoils."

Me: "When is this?"

Client: "It is eroding now, but soon the takeover."

Communion

Dear Father,

I love You! My heart hurts because I have grown to love You so much! I miss You and I long to be in Your presence. The joy of my heart is on You and it now seems that 'things' around me can only bring me joy for a very short time now. So many people are suffering, people who love You! Please, Father, have mercy on Your children. I love You and I long to see You come upon the land.

Father, I am old now and I am growing older day by day. I battle against my body and time keeps making my body even older. While my 'insides' are young and I have youthful desires, my body is now unable to do as my heart longs to. Instead, I now succumb to my pain. I am fully aware of my lack.

I am sorry to complain, Father, as I know that You are here with me. I also know that You know the desires of my heart and the pains in my body. In my recent dreams, You have been instructing me daily and have placed me in incredible circumstances.

In these dreams, I am in a different body. I also have wisdom in my words and knowledge in my lips that I know can only come from You! I am simply not capable of any of this without You. You even write through me in these very strokes of my pen on this paper. You do everything for Your glory.

I come to You today with my prayers and petitions. Father, please fill me with Your Living Water. Please fill me with all of the good fruits. Please fill me with all that You find good so that I might pour out Your love onto others.

In my dream last night, I was attached by only a silver cord that was held by God in Heaven. I then fell asleep again and an angel came to me in my dreams.

Me: "Will God sever my cord soon?"

Angel: "No. Erin, I have come to strengthen your cord, not loosen it."

I then watched as the large angel wove two strands with the one. After he did this, I suddenly felt more 'alive' and my senses were heightened.

Angel: "The Lord gives You this strength and a message. 'Whatever you bind on Earth shall be bound in Heaven and whatsoever you shall loose on Earth shall be loosed in Heaven.' Remember also what is written here..."

The angel then pointed to the Word of God and the word 'when' illuminated.

"When two of you agree on Earth about anything they ask for, that shall be done for them of God whom is in Heaven. Where two or three of you gather together in Jesus' Name, there He will be in the midst of you."

Me: "This Scripture has always been difficult for me to understand. So many different commentaries have been made on this and they vary so much from each other."

Angel: "Then believe this, Erin. God has strengthened you, but you do not see this yet. You and those He has prepared will declare a thing and it shall be done if declared in Jesus' Name. This authority is given from the Throne of God. 'That which is bound by you on Earth is bound in Heaven and that which is loosed on Earth shall be also in Heaven.'

"The Lord holds the key and, when you pray and gather in two or more in His Name, He comes in the midst of you and even in the fiery furnace. What He opens, no one can shut. What He shuts, no one can open.

"The Lord has opened this door and it is a door that no one but Him can ever shut. He knows that you now have little strength, yet you have kept His Words and bound them on your heart. You declare your love for the Lord and you are hated because of this."

Me: "But, angel, I have not endured patiently. I must repent as it is so difficult to wait. I am sorry."

Angel: "It is not for me to hear your repentance as I have no authority to forgive your sins. However, I can tell you that God loves you. Though you grow tired and weary with each passing day, though you see the wicked prosper and the Godly perish and though all seems hopeless around you, you continue to hold onto the burning flame within you, your Hope. The Spirit of the living God is in you. Your vessel has been prepared, emptied and readied to receive that which God will pour into you for His glory."

Me: I jumped up in excitement! "I am ready?" I then prayed.

"Father, I am ready! Please, please, God, use me or take me Home. I am ready for what comes. I know it will be difficult, but it already has been difficult as I am already hated for doing nothing. I cannot even imagine what it will be like when I am being fully used by You."

Angel: "Remember, Erin, just as there are vessels used of God to pour out love and eternal life, there are also vessels used of the enemy to pour out the opposite of the Good News. Be careful as these vessels will be constantly filled by the enemy to attempt to distract you from your call."

Me: "But if the Holy Spirit is in me, will I not then know of this immediately?"

Angel: "Yes, but remember that they are clever. They disguise themselves as redeemable, but they are a chasing. You will know them by their fruit. You will know them by that which flows from their hearts then out their lips. God will illuminate those that He has called you to.

"Remember that those whom look good from the outside are often wolves in sheep's clothing and that those whom look like wolves are often the Lord's Sheep. Do you understand?"

Me: "Yes. I am not to judge by appearances."

Angel: "Your dream of the school bus was an example of this. Jesus was in the midst of the children as they cried out to Him. They were protected and unharmed and so was the driver. The young man, Trey, was who the Lord had called you to."

Me: "Since Jesus was already right there, why did He not just go to Trey Himself?"

Angel: "You are one of the Shepherd's Sheep. You are precious to God and you are His. However, you are also a vessel and a measuring device and are used like a plumb line. God uses measures to weigh the proud, the arrogant or any of those living apart from Him. The troubles which have befallen you have been allowed by God. At first, this was to refine and test you. However, now you are being used as a measure."

Me: "Wow! So all of my ridiculously constant troubles are really now all about the hearts of others that are coming against me?"

Angel: "Yes, but you are just one example of many being used in this way. When those who call themselves 'sent by God' tell you that you have sinned and you are out of favor from God because of all of your troubles, it is really them who are being measured.

"In Job, he repented after complaining to God. His friends were then quick to come and point out Job's faults. Then God spoke to Job and reminded him who He is. He reminded Job that He is the Creator of everything and the measure of a man's days.

"At the end, God then had Job pray on behalf of his friends, thereby loosening the enemy's grips on them and handing them over to God. Because of Job's prayers, God granted them mercy even though God was angry with the way they had spoken to Job during his brokenness. After Job did this, God then blessed him abundantly."

Me: "So Job's troubles were not just about Job, but were also for measuring the hearts of those around Job?"

Angel: "The Words of God have depth. There are layers upon layers of meaning. Those who seek God in the midst of each Passage will find even more. This is the blessing of illumination from God and the beginning of wisdom.

"In the beginning of Job's story, he was blameless, upright and careful to avoid evil. Satan then appeared to God and argued that Job was only good because he was being protected by God. Satan then petitioned God to test Job. God then set the rules to preserve Job's life.

"With these rules in place, the adversary first sent death to his loved ones, along with the loss of his property and wealth. Satan then sent personal affliction upon Job's health and he was covered in open sores soon after.

"Job's partner, his wife, then cursed him, tried to convince him to give up on God and to leave to die. His wife seemed to want him dead because she could no longer stand the sight of him. The spirit of divisiveness and control had come upon her.

“Three of Job’s friends then came to join him to share their thoughts on his problems. Their ‘council’ then caused him to curse the day that he was born. They then caused him to reflect back to the beginning of his life so that he desired to never have been born.

“Job’s friends kept slowly chipping away at him. Once they had weakened him enough, they then suggested that he was a sinner whose evil was greatly offending God. They even claimed that his children caused their own deaths by the tornado.

“Job’s friends then escalated this even further by declaring that Job probably deserved even greater punishment from God than that which had already come upon him. It was then that he finally rose up against his friends. However, he now questioned his relationship with God and with man in general.

“Do you see what the adversary had done there? The enemy was very clever. He then even sent a fourth friend to confirm to Job that he was wicked by their assessment under God. All four of his friends did all of this under the guise of ‘speaking for God’.

“This is when God then entered in and demanded Job’s attention. He was reminded of God’s power from beginning to end. He then yielded to God and surrendered himself by recognizing his lack. His vessel was then emptied completely so that God could fill it for His glory. Job was reduced so that God could be increased.

“God was then angry with those whom the adversary had sent to torment Job, twisting God’s love for him and bringing hopelessness to him. These men had twisted God’s heart and words so much that only advice devoid of God remained.

“Job obeyed God’s instructions and then prayed and interceded for his friends on their behalf. God then forgave their actions even though He was angry with them. God then returned a double portion of all that Job had lost and even added to his years.

“So, Erin, please understand that you are a vessel used by God. For those with no understanding for God, intercede on their behalf that He forgives their trespasses against you. Never forget the Lord’s Prayer. This was placed on your heart and into your memory when you were visiting your grandmother's house while you were still a little girl."

Me: "Yes, I promise."

Angel: "This is Good News, Erin, so rejoice! Rejoice, for the promises that the Lord has granted you from Haggai are with you. Rejoice! Rejoice!

Dream over...

I quickly looked at my hands and feet to see if perhaps they had already been Transformed. While they had not yet been changed, I felt that this all would be soon. I then cried out to the Lord: "Make this soon, Father! Please make this soon!"

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for all that You have done! You are an amazing Father! You are so loving and You care about each of us dearly. My adversaries have been working overtime to send us trouble, but, at each turn, Your Divine Counsel has saved us from trouble.

The flu has threatened us several times over the last three weeks. With each child, there ended up being nothing more than a few sniffles and a slight sore throat. None have had a full blown flu, which is unusual with seven of us in one enclosed space, so thank You!

Thank You for the beautiful promise of spring. Snow still covers the ground here, but it is slowly melting. The last two storms mostly hit to the south of us and what we received here was relatively mild. Thank You for keeping us safe through these storms. I feel so blessed and thankful.

I am not personally healed yet, but I am so thankful that our friends have seen healing. You have answered our prayers! I know and still believe that You have a plan for me and I look to You in all that I do.

You give me strength to write when You call me. Even when I cannot feel my fingers at times, You give me the ability to make dinner for my family and You grant me rest. I find that I cannot always set a routine, but I do what I can on my own strength and surrender the rest to You.

My doctor told me that my body is like a giant barometer and that those of us with injuries or even old bones will feel when a low pressure system comes in. This is happening to me today. Father, I give You these pains as You so often remind us to lay all of our burdens before You.

This last week was particularly brutal for me, but especially Friday. Some of our troubles reminded me of the days when my sons were in a special program for victims of abuse and for those who had special needs or developmental delays. Basically, they were all put in a classroom that sometimes turned out to be a melting pot of trouble.

It seemed unfair to me that schools would put kids with autism and other special needs in the same classroom as troubled, abused and abusive kids. Let's just say that there was a lot of learned behavior from their peers and that this was not necessarily mutually beneficial.

However, and as all the parents were told, 'with budget cuts, this is the best that we have to offer.' Well, we really had no other choices ten years ago. You did what the courts told you to do and any deviations meant that 'the wolves would come'.

Now, if I was stronger and had the means, I would have homeschooled my boys. However, this was not an option that I had as I had no means to live and no real alternatives. My hands were tied.

Anyway, the kids had a young, bright-eyed and sweet special needs teacher. When she first came into the program, she was optimistic, funny and sweet. However, by the end of that spring, I had seen her change. Her optimism for the children and their future had soon changed to 'well, let's just take this day-by-day'.

I had later heard that she had put in for a transfer not long after that. I felt sad for her and all of the kids. Despite the grim diagnosis for so many of them, the kids ended up loving her and not just a little bit either. Quite simply, they loved the 'light' that had shone from her.

Sadly, I witnessed her light slowly fading a bit each day. I believe that the teachers around her, and even the administration itself, were a big part of the problem. While she had started out with an upbeat 'can-do' attitude, they were already jaded by an over-stressed system.

In the spring of that year, she had called the parents to a conference to inform us that the program would now end. Afterwards, she took special time with me to show me around the classroom. She shared special things about each child without naming names. I could tell that her 'can-do' excitement and hope had almost faded away.

Me: "This was a brutal week at school. I heard that several of the children had been suspended for fighting. One of my boys had even been accidentally hit by another during a fight. There was quite a bit of name calling. I do not know how you do this.”

Teacher: “Oh yes, it is that time of year. Take the spring season, couple it with a full moon and then add in some beautiful, sunny days and you have a recipe for all kinds of trouble.”

Me: Laughing. “Wow, does that seriously really happen?”

Teacher: “Oh yes, but especially during spring time. Late spring is the worst for special needs and for others with ‘troubled souls’.”

Me: “Is this scientific?”

Teacher: “Well, studies have shown a correlation. While it may just be a desire to be outside as it gets nicer out, I think there is much more to this. I believe that they know that their usual daily routine has almost ended and that the uncertainty of summer is soon to begin. Most of these students do not have good summers.”

The teacher seemed noticeably sad as she spoke. I knew that there would be very little that I could say or do to comfort her at this point.

Me: “Thank you for all that you have done for my boys. My one son, though he is sometimes difficult for you, says wonderful things about you. This is very rare for him. He even told me that he loves you.” I smiled at her.

Teacher: Smiling. “Yes, your son is one special little guy. He does not allow anyone to pick on the other kids, but especially the ones with Down syndrome.” Laughing. “However, he just needs to report it instead of physically intervening.”

I nodded in agreement with her. Despite later passing this instruction on to my son, an incident soon occurred and my son was suspended for standing up for a Down syndrome child yet again later that very week. As someone was bullying the Down child, my son decided to stand in between them to try and stop it.

The bully then proceeded to call my son names and was punching and shoving him. This boy then said some rather derogatory comments to him and then punched him hard enough to bruise him. At this point, a fight ensued and my son was then found guilty by association.

After this, I had been called down to the center to speak with the director of the center. When I arrived, I looked into the room where my son was and he was now drawing pictures with some crayons. He looked relaxed and as if nothing had happened.

Director: "We spoke to witnesses and know that your son was just sticking up for one of the Down children. However, my hands are tied as he still got physical with the other boy. While this is a formality, the rules indicate that your son will not be able to come to the lake with the other kids next week."

Despite my best efforts, I could tell that his ruling was already final. I felt sad for my son as I knew he had been looking forward to this. Before I went to pick him up to take him home, I went into the restroom and cried.

Soon after this, an enemy outside of the school ramped up again and I then had to remove both of my sons from this special program before the year ended. When I now look back at these times, I realize that this was at the very beginning of our trials.

It was not that many months after this that I had heard that this center had lost its funding. Most of these kids were then mainstreamed, which was really not great for them or for anyone else. The system was just too financially stressed to truly cope.

Years after this, I worked with someone whose wife worked in a psychiatric hospital. He told me the same thing about spring time, combined with the full moon, marked an uptick in violent behaviors at the hospital.

He then told me that he was often afraid for his wife as she had been the target of quite a few threats. He then indicated that she had already been in some 'situations' that he was unable to discuss, but I could tell by the look on his face that they had been really traumatic.

Father, this week was really a tough week. My one son had an altercation with his best friend on Friday. He was supposed to go to the boy's home for a sleepover. However, and for no reason and with my husband's son as witness, the boy started accusing him of various things that he never did.

When I went to pick my son up, I had his overnight bag in the car and was ready to transport him and his friend back to the boy's home for the sleepover. I was then told this story and was saddened that such a senseless thing had occurred. As we drove home, I could tell that my son was disappointed.

Now that all of us were in the car at the same time and driving home, my youngest daughter then also shared a story about what happened at her school that same day. There had been a heated altercation between two families in the parking lot.

A car had hit another family's truck in the rear end quite hard and the people in the car then claimed that it was the truck's fault. The people in the car were from the Middle East and the language barrier had made this situation even more difficult. However, all of the witnesses present confirmed that it was the car's fault.

This was not just a minor incident either as she indicated that firetrucks and police had come and it was a big deal. When the boy that was in the truck had later started to talk about this in class, the teacher sternly told him not to talk about it.

Later that same day, my oldest daughter told me about a boy that had physically attacked one of her best friends. She was soon in tears as she told me how her friend had been pushed into a snowbank.

While the altercation ended quickly and everyone was okay, she was still rattled. However, on this very same day, my oldest son then shared a story about an attack he had also received, this time from a friend on-line.

Thankfully, they all soon felt better as I had decided to treat all of them to a milkshake. One of the kids then started joking around with me, but it would turn out to be prophetic.

Son: "Mom, if we have experienced all of this, then something is probably coming your way too."

We laughed about it, but then prayed just in case. We then prayed for my husband to get home safe and sound as he was still at work. Once my husband later arrived home safely and we were all here, I thought we would now be safe.

Then, and seemingly out of nowhere, an attack came from one of our family members on my husband's side. However, it was an attack specifically directed against me and it was brutal. The funny thing is that I have never even met this man before.

While he is also a watcher, the only one I know of in either of our families, and considers himself a Christian, what came from him was simply brutal. This took us by surprise as my husband loves this man and trusted him.

In the past, this family member had told my husband that he was supposedly given a gift from the Lord to be a 'rebuker'. At the time, we both thought this odd as we had never even heard of such a gift before and could not find anything supporting this in the Bible when we looked.

The memory of his 'gift' had come back to us as soon as he made me his target. While rebuking in love and grace is something we all have to do sometimes, there was no love or grace in his message at all despite his claims that his words were meant 'for our good'.

Soon after his attack, I went to the Lord to pray for this man as I was now deeply distressed over his inflammatory statements and accusations. To make a long story short, He confirmed that this man's words were straight from the enemy and were meant to destroy us.

In this man's communication, he claimed that he had been sent by Jesus to rebuke me for my supposed 'association' with the Masons, along with other things related to the occult. Without supplying any proof, he then accused me of 'channeling demons' and being an automatic writer controlled by demons while in a 'trance state'.

Remember that this was all coming from someone who does not even know me and has never even spoken with me. All the while, this very same man then attends a church that he himself has lambasted as being completely unscriptural simply to keep 'peace in the family'.

We were both rattled and immediately wanted to retaliate with some inflammatory words of our own. I felt the Lord call me to pray to Him for strength and guidance.

"Thank You, Lord, for telling me just now not to worry and that You have this. Thank You for calling me up to give me instructions."

When I went to Him, He had me first pray for this man. He then had me release this man back to Him. He then had me lay all of his accusations and charges before Him and at the foot of the Cross.

"Thank You, Lord, as I could not have done this without Your strength and wisdom. I was not in a good place, but, thank You, Lord, You are always in a good place."

Jesus then gave me a word concerning this man. While He ensured me that this would eventually end up in a positive way for this man, He had also indicated that He would be dealing with this man's 'issues with pride' first.

The Lord informed me that we would not hear from this man for a while. He then gave me further instructions on all of this, along with a vision that I was not to share at this time.

The Lord then comforted me and told me not to worry. However, He then reminded me that this attack was nothing compared to what is coming. Later that night, I still found myself unable to have peace, so I prayed to Him again.

Me: "Father, if you do not heal me and if I am not strengthened by You, and this includes my husband, our children and even our pets, we will not survive." I suddenly realized something.

"Okay, I have just finished my last dream about Job and his so-called 'friends' and then You immediately send a 'friend' to talk to me, but really at me. This really is so similar." However, my heart was still so heavy from this unwarranted attack.

"Lord, what if I just stop? What if I just live my life in peace and stop? What if I simply avoided all of the stress, heartache and trouble that comes with all of this? Sometimes this just does not seem worth it to me. There are people out there that do not care to actually read all that You have had me write and judge on parts taken out of context.

"These people are looking for demons at work instead and they do not see You at all in this. They do not see the tablet of my heart that You are writing on. They do not see You, Jesus, working at all in this. Why should I not just give up? Forgive me, Lord, as I am tired right now and 'my exhaustion' is asking what the use of all of this is."

After this, I waited, but I heard nothing. I was not stressed though, and I know that this may seem a bit odd, but I just knew that God is always perfect in all He does and that He would get back to me later. I soon fell asleep and had this dream on April 1st...

Dream 1 description begins...

I was in a lovely farmhouse and it was all painted in white. There was no ceiling and no roof, but only God above us to provide shelter. I had massive wheat fields, corn fields and a yard full of fruit trees of various kinds.

In an area of my yard close to my house, there were small herb gardens and a tiny pond with baby ducklings. It was so beautiful. Our children worked on the property and there was even a large horse arena where my daughters would ride horses and spend time with them.

I noticed that we had amassed quite a beautiful farm and started to laugh. I laughed because neither my husband nor I are farmers and we certainly do not feel that we have any calling at all to do so. In other words, I could tell that this had to be a dream.

The day was beautiful. It was spring time and the blue skies were perfect. The temperature was perfect too at 70 degrees Fahrenheit. What seemed a bit odd for this season was that the wheat, the corn and the fruit were already ripe for the harvest. It was clearly still spring time as there were baby animals and blossoming flowers.

It was abundant and beautiful. It was a weekend day and I was preparing for a potluck dinner of sorts for several neighbors and old family members. For some reason, it was to be for people from when I was a child in Iowa and Illinois that were coming over.

Many of these people were church-goers, but most were the type that would keep church and God 'confined to Sunday mornings'. This would often be followed by someone inviting them over for a big afternoon meal between lunch and dinner.

It seemed that it was now our turn to host and we were preparing. At around 11am, a neighbor came onto our property and he was chasing down a herd of very small fat pigs. He had apparently been planning to bring some hams for me to prepare for the afternoon meal.

While I was trying to be gracious about this, I did not like the way that these pigs were now trampling my beautiful garden and newly blossoming flowers. I quickly had our kids confine the pigs to a pen that we had been using for horse training. As I looked over this, I realized that these pigs were dirty and that I had no desire to have them.

The farmer was a neighbor of ours and was a kind and stout jovial man. He lived alone and we would often send over dinner plates when we knew that he was working long hours in the field. I was always careful not to insult him because he was my senior and always so full of years, stories and laughter. I somehow knew that he was God's.

Farmer: "Oh, do not worry. I already have pre-slaughtered thirty of these pigs and I have the hams in the back of my pickup truck."

As he said this, I looked over at the pen with all of these pigs and still felt a bit confused.

Me: "Oh, thank you. So, why did you then bring these pigs here?"

Farmer: "Oh, these ones ran away from me and thought that they would come here instead since everything here is blooming and joyful."

Me: "Oh, so they came here to avoid slaughter?"

Farmer: "Well, why not? Just look at all that you have here. What animal would not want to come and hang out here? Well, land sakes, you even have a harvest ready." He pointed to our corn and wheat fields.

"Just look at your orchard. I would love a slice of pie from those fruit trees or even just a drink of water from your well." He then pointed to our little pond and fountain. "Why, I bet if you harvested these fields right now, you could replant and even have another harvest come fall. So, what do you think?"

As I looked around, I did not even realize all that we had here. I could not help but agree that we really could do as he said if we had wanted to!

Me: "Okay, I agree with you, but it would take a lot of work. My husband would have to quit his day job!" We both laughed.

Farmer: "Look, I have all of these hams for you, but you had better get these roasting or you will not have any meat for supper."

I smiled and decided not to tell him that I had prepared some lamb roasts and they were already cooking with fresh rosemary and olive oil. Without me disagreeing or protesting, the farmer then unloaded all of the hams onto my porch.

Farmer: "Okay, then, I had better gather up these pigs and get on home." He smiled at me. "They look hungry." He then drove his flatbed truck over, unloaded his ramp and made some pig calls. "Sueeee, sueee, soooooeee!"

He had placed a trough of slop at the front of the truck bed and the pigs spotted it and quickly ran up the ramp. He then closed the back of his truck and trapped them. At first, none of us had noticed that three of the pigs had run off to my tiny onion garden.

The three pigs then started trampling the onions. They were eating them and tearing them to shreds. He quickly ran over and grabbed all three of them. He then put two of the pigs under one arm and grabbed the last one by the nape of its neck.

Farmer: "Oops, sorry about that! Seems they got to your pearl onions. I am afraid that they trampled most of them."

I laughed at this as I knew the exact Biblical passage that speaks about allowing your pearls to be trampled by pigs (Matthew 7:6).

Me: "Well, I guess none of us got there fast enough." I smiled at him and laughed again. "It looks like most are unharmed, so all is okay."

Farmer: "Well, do not worry. I will not let them get out again. However, I certainly understand why they like it here so much. Just look at this place! Do not let those church folk out in your garden either or it could even be worse!" We both laughed.

"Why, just look at you. You are so busy cooking dinner for them that you could not even attend today." He laughed. "Probably doesn't matter much as it seems that I hear more from God in my pigpen than I do in those pews these days. You're better off – white church, white floors, white pews, muddy hearts..."

While I felt uncomfortable with what he just said, I knew in my heart that he was right in so many ways. So many churches were now simply catering to the masses – all style and no substance.

Me: "Now please come back for supper, okay? The lamb will be ready at around 3:00pm, but these hams probably will not be ready until 6:00pm. Please come back."

Farmer: "Do not worry. I will not miss this." He laughed and left with his pigs.

I then had my kids help me with the many hams he had left for us. There was so much fat on the hams that they were actually very small once we cut all of the fat off of them. At most, each ham only had enough meat to feed one person.

There was so much lard that it was quite weighty. I had my boys cart it off and it took three separate wheelbarrow trips, all of them full. We decided to burn the fat in a pit off of our property that was often used by those around us for things like this.

I then started preparing the hams after I had them spiral cut. They were boneless, which meant I could not cut them through completely. As we had been experimenting with raising honey bees, I decided to coat the hams with some fresh honey and spices.

I then placed the hams in a large oven on special racks that were meant for drying fruit. The hams were messy and I really did not want to add them to the menu. However, I did not want to hurt the sweet farmer's feelings, so I continued preparing them.

I knew that my husband would be disappointed when he came home as we would now be entertaining guests for an additional three hours because of these hams. We had been hoping that we would be all finished and have people leave by around 4:00pm, but now it seemed that this would not be all finished before 7:00pm.

Soon, the guests began to arrive at our house. Since most of them then informed me that they wanted to eat ham and not lamb, I knew that we would have to endure superficial conversations prior to the ham finally being ready to serve. Finally at 7:00pm, all the guests were gone and only the sweet farmer remained.

Farmer: "Well, I just knew that you would need those hams."

Me: "Oh, I am so glad you thought to give them to us. Thank you."

Farmer: "Well, even though your guests have been fed well, they will now spend the rest of the week cursing you and your family, all because you have been blessed and they know that this is from God. You entertained fools and, even though you fed them good fruit and shared what you have with them, they will still turn on you.

"They only wanted the pork, but you could have left the fat on the hams and they still would have eaten it. No matter what you do, they will still hate you for it. In return for your hospitality, they now give you curses.

"Now, pay no mind to them. Why not consider harvesting your fields now? Do not worry as it looks like your pearl onions have already recovered from the swine."

We were now all there together in the house and looked over. It was now as if the pigs had never been there with the pearl onions in the first place.

Me: "Wow, what happened?" I looked at him and could tell he wanted to talk about the harvest instead. "Okay, about the fields. God would have to open the door for us to harvest this as we are not able to do this on our own right now."

Farmer: "Look around! A door has already opened. Now, I must go as I have some slop I need to give to the pigs." He laughed and shook his head. "I will see you soon."

He smiled and drove off down our lane. As he did, I noticed that the sun was setting in the west just over the wheat to the left and the corn to the right.

Dream 1 description over...

Father, after this dream, I really do not want to eat ham anytime soon. I think I will prepare lamb for Easter supper instead. This dream was very vivid. In the dream, my children were very strong and hard workers. Smiles...not so much now. Not only that, but I was very industrious. Smiles...again, not so much right now.

Lord, as You know, after all that has happened to us this week, I had seriously considered stopping the ministry. A publisher has never come nor have we sought one and I have felt discouraged. Father, is there anything that You are requiring of us?

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was in Heaven in what seemed to be a familiar place. Right before me was a massive wheat field to my left and a massive barley field to my right. There was a path going through the middle of the rows of these two fields.

I ran down the path between the two fields. In the distance, I saw workers / harvesters in the barley field. On the horizon line, I saw mountains higher than normal and seemingly out of place for this particular setting. I noticed that the mountains still had snow on the very peaks.

As I looked some more at the workers in the barley field, my heart leapt when I saw Jesus in the field harvesting barley. He was wearing his white linen robe. As I ran to Him as fast as I could, He looked up from His work and waved to me. I ran up to where He was working and hugged Him.

Me: "Oh Lord, I am so glad to see You!"

Jesus: "I am glad to see you too, Erin."

In the distance, I saw that there were also angels harvesting. It was then that I first noticed that He was putting the barley into two separate bundles.

Me: "Lord, You are very busy."

Jesus: Smiling. "I am always busy, Erin." He laughed and the angels joined Him in His laughter. "Well, Erin, you have been busy as well."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but perhaps foolishly."

Jesus: "Erin, there are many fools. Do you understand the times that you are in? Barley was once used for bread, but now it is used mostly for drunkards."

Me: "Do You mean beer?"

Jesus: "Yes. The purpose for barley has changed and the demand for it being in bread has been lost by the desire for drink."

Me: I nodded in agreement, but then became saddened. "Lord, I feel that I have made some mistakes recently. Perhaps I am an 'April Fool'?"

Jesus: "Well, perhaps, but only momentarily and only because you entertained them briefly. Understand the times that you are in, Erin. When people come to judge you harshly, remember that I did not send them. Is it not written, 'Do not judge or you too will be judged'? You are now being used by Me as a measure, so rejoice!"

Me: "But, Lord, it is hard to rejoice when faced with unfair judgment."

Jesus: "Yes, but you do not answer to them nor are you to engage in their folly. I did not send them. They have no use for you or your position. You come to Me and I have sent you a love letter that I have written on your heart. Those that come to judge you do not read this even though they are fully able to.

"Instead, they prefer to examine the speck in your eye and fail to notice the plank in their own. A pig is despised and unclean and is an analogy for them. Even when the mud is washed off of these pigs, they still prefer to return to the mud from where they came just as a dog returns to its vomit.

"These pigs represent men who have hard hearts. They are incapable of receiving truth and those things that are holy are foreign to them. They have no clean palate for truth and declare themselves judges of that which is holy. Though they refuse to partake in that which is holy, they are fast to criticize those who do, understand?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. Please forgive me."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as I have plans for you and you will soon be strengthened. Remember that those of you with the greatest needs will be considered to be detestable." He smiled. "Now, those pigs in your dream had escaped to your farm..."

Me: "Lord, I have never worked on a farm! How will I know how to do this? How am I able to do this?" I was now laughing and asked Him a light-hearted question. "Lord, how will I even recognize if it is a pig?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, you will know them by their fruits. Anger, rage and curses will come from their lips soon after they say, 'brother, I come in peace.' It does not matter if they even abhor actual pigs, they will still run after them and with them.

"Now, I have separated the barley here for a good reason. Some will be for bread and will multiply and feed many. However, some..." He then pointed to the other pile. "...will be good only for fools and their drunkenness. Until the times sober them, they will be unable to see this as even a small kernel will be as a plank in their eyes.

"Now, do not worry about them. Give them to Me instead as all of this is Mine. Erin, they, the swine, trample the good, My Words, under their hooves. They are profane, obscene and corrupt and run to their perversions. All the while, they debase, growl, are quick to violence and void of peace. Anything of Godly value is abused and stomped down into the mud. They then roll over it and in it time and time again."

Me: "Hmm, that is something that I had never thought of before. Your visual is sad, yet funny at the same time."

Jesus: "Erin, I have given you pearls. Each truth in your life, each fruit and each gift, is from Me. I have given you pearls. Each of these come from a speck of irritating sand in the oyster shell of your life, a believer's journey, and each one is special to Me.

"Even though an oyster, from the surface, is grotesque, perhaps even representing your life since very few would run to trade it with you, inside that life of yours, that oyster, I have created pearl after pearl. The grain of sand is My Word of Truth and now you have quite the strand of pearls!"

Just then, He pointed at my neck and I had beautiful necklace of perfect pearls. Each of the pearls had a high gauge and was beautifully opulent.

Me: Laughing. "Thank You, Lord."

Jesus: "Now, do you think that a pig cares about any of what I have just told you? No! All good things and all truth come from Me. Instead, they would call all of this a doctrine of demons.

"Now, when I do send someone, I send a person that comes from a platform of love, not combativeness. Sometimes I will then even send that person to someone who does not look as one would think. Those who I have sent someone to will then be ready to receive truth and, though it be hard at times, they will eventually know Me. Rejoice! Now, Erin, look at the times you are in."

Me: "Lord..." I was about to ask for healing for all of us.

Jesus: "I know, Erin, I will do all that I have promised. I will strengthen you and keep you, so do not worry." He then smiled. "I have opened a door for you and I want you to walk through this. You have asked and now this I will give you. I am here.”

Me: “This all seems so much like Matthew 7. This is a huge parable directly from You, right?”

Jesus: “Erin, your house is built on solid rock. Do not let others who have built their houses on sand try to tell you that your house will never hold up during the storm. They will say these things by their lips even as their households are washed away by the water and blown to bits by the wind.” He shook His head. “They are the ones in peril, so let them go. They should be calling out to Me instead of cursing you during this. Now rejoice as I am about to do something in your days, Erin, that you would not believe even if you were told.”

He smiled and hugged me. His eyes were kind and He was upbeat, but he seemed very focused at the same time.

Communion

The day after finishing this, I still felt ‘unsettled’ about my future role in all of this. Quite simply, I became worried about further personal attacks on my family like those that we experienced in the last week. Despite knowing God is in complete control, these attacks had still taken a toll on me.

The Lord then reminded me that He really was in complete control and about all that I would miss out on if I really did decide to stop now. He then helped solidify a renewed determination in me by sending another dream to add to the above.

Dream 2 description begins...

I was in a lead role of a school play, yet I had virtually no lines in the play. For most of the time, I was to simply stand at the front center of the stage. After a while, I found myself bored by all of this and just could not get overly excited about my role.

On the day of the play, there had been something that was preventing me from getting to the stage on time. I am not sure why I was not going to make it with adequate time to prepare. Perhaps it was snow or work, but the reason did not seem important here.

By the time I got home to get ready for the show, I realized that I only had an hour before the play began. It was an hour's drive and I knew that I would barely make it. Since I did not really feel like performing anyway, I decided not to go. I decided to stay at home to rest and never even bothered to let anyone at the play know.

The next day, I took a trip into town and had to stop at various places. Everywhere I went, I saw children and I could tell that they had been crying and were very upset. When one little boy saw me, he pointed me out to his mother and started blubbering.

Boy: Wailing. "You did not come! You did not even show up!"

He was crying uncontrollably and was so distraught. I felt convicted and quite horrible. I then realized that all of these children were upset for the same reason. It was because I did not show up to the play. They had all been expecting me with excitement.

I became quite saddened as I really had no idea that my appearance would have made any difference. I thought that they would not notice me gone and that someone else would simply stand in for me. I was confused as I had not expected this at all.

In contrast to all of these children's great sorrow at my 'no show', every parent I ran into seemed extremely angry at me. It seemed that they too were disappointed about my absence, but were especially angry because of the grief I had caused their children.

I felt terrible about this and decided to go to my job at a furniture store. I was hopeful that I had not disappointed anyone there. I was still quite concerned though. As I entered the store, my supervisor came right up to me and she did not look happy.

Supervisor: "So, you were sick, right?"

I could tell by the tone of her question that she had already heard about what had happened. When I was contacted by the play manager, I was taken by surprise by how angry he was and had clumsily lied and said that I had been really sick.

I did not know what else to say to him as I was so surprised that anyone had actually cared that I was not there. It was obvious that the play manager had then contacted my supervisor in anger to tell her. I found myself hesitating when answering her question as I could tell that she was very suspicious of me.

Me: I stumbled. "Uh, yes..."

Supervisor: Sarcastically. "Well, you 'never lie', so it must have been almost deathly, right?"

Me: I tried to avoid her question. "Yes...yes, it was."

Supervisor: She looked unconvinced and glared at me with anger. "Well then, now I have decided that it is time to refresh my showroom. To do this, I have to move all of your stuff out immediately. You will have to take this all out right now."

She first pulled out a massive chaise lounge with bullion fringe that she had on consignment for me. She then pulled out various accessories that I had brought in. However, there was much more that I had there. I realized there was way too much for me to move, so I phoned my husband and he said that he would come right away.

Even though there were some massive bookshelves that needed to be cleared out as well, we somehow got all of this into our vehicles. In earthly terms, this would have been impossible as there was just too much. My supervisor was disgusted with me, but would not tell me exactly why. I just knew it was because I had bailed out on the play.

Supervisor: Coldly. "Well, that is it then. We are finished."

Me: "I am not sure what is going on. Am I no longer working here?"

Supervisor: "You have not worked here in a while. It is 'time for a change'."

After we finished loading up our vehicles with the very last of my items, I went to say goodbye. However, she did not even want to acknowledge me and acted as if I was not even there. As we drove off, I looked back at the store and was still shocked by this turn of events. Oh Lord, why did I not just show up at the play?

Dream 2 description over...

Thank You, Lord! You made me realize just how much I love serving You in spite of all of the resulting personal attacks. When I awoke, I was very disturbed that I would be so foolish as to leave this all behind so carelessly. Thank You, Lord, for letting this be 'just a dream'. You always know the most perfect way to 'rebuke' with love!

Dream 240 – Jesus, His Bride and His Gift

Finished on Thursday, April 13, 2017

This dream was started on Tuesday, April 11th, 2017 and took three separate visits over a three day span to complete. The last visit took place on Thursday, April 13th, 2017.

Received on Tuesday, April 11th, 2017 (Visit 1)...

First day of Passover and it is a beautiful spring day with temperatures around 65 degrees Fahrenheit.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for never leaving me and my children. Thank You for removing us from the desert to this beautiful land. The spring runoff of snow is creating large waterfalls from the normally little stream just outside our window.

The little brook is now a small raging 'river' and the sound is just so beautiful. It is wonderful to finally open the windows to the fresh air and this incredible sound. I am enjoying the coolness as, in my Spirit, I feel that our land is due for some record setting heat this year.

Our winter was brutal and some snow fell again just last week. In comparison, we will have temperatures in the 70s this week. We do not have air conditioning, but we have been gearing up for the heat in any way that we can.

After I saw the angels flip their hands from face up and then turning them over, You confirmed to me that this was in reference to conditions in the weather. Record heat followed by record cold and everything You have warned us about has come to pass.

As a result, I have learned, whether it is this year or the next or even a season we think not, the Holy Spirit is prompting me to act. So this is what we are doing. We are gearing up for the heat and the coming storms that result from these extreme temperature changes.

Thank You, Father, for Your instructions. Although I am still afraid at times, You gently, but also sometimes sternly, remind me not to be afraid as You are God. You remind me that You are in complete control and have full knowledge of all of the conditions.

I take comfort in this and cannot then say to You, "Excuse me, Father, but it is 100 degrees today. Do you know it's really uncomfortable here right now? Hello?" God is not surprised by anything ever and He promises to give us relief. While He does not always do this as we would expect, He always does it in His perfect way and in His perfect timing.

I have had some burdens placed on my heart recently. Father, I know the death of a child is used as a measure for those around them and even for the world, but I just cannot bear this at times. I no longer have the tolerance that I once did to remove myself from what I see.

I also now know that You do not need my help with 'sorting out' various events as You have all of this fully in Your control. I also know that my mourning for these children's deaths is not a good use of my time as You remind me that You already carried these children Home to You.

You then remind me of all that awaits these children in Heaven and that there is just so much there. Jesus takes them to the River, they get to visit the Baby Animal Garden and the teenagers even have that amazing hi-tech Learning Center to visit.

You then remind me that, even though I should not mourn for the child, it is still okay for me to mourn and pray for the parents and families of these children that have to still remain on Earth to 'pick up the pieces'. When I then turn my anger towards someone who may have murdered the child, You remind me to give this to You as well as they are at great risk of judgment, both in the world's courts and in God's Courts.

Anyway, I was really quite bothered about something last night and, so much so, that I wept while I was taking a shower. I later found myself interceding for this criminal who, by all outward appearances, does not deserve any sympathy for his heinous crimes. As I wept, You, Father, placed it on my heart to pray for this young man and so I did.

Oh Father, time seems to be coming to a close soon. According to Your clock, we are now in the final hour. I now see this time as a 'time of weights and measures' and a time when a man's actions, or even reactions, are being counted by You.

As I see it, one of the main problems right now is that decay has accelerated so rapidly recently that I do not think that those without the Holy Spirit will be able to comprehend or discern all that is happening. On quite a few days a week now, I even find myself getting up and wondering, 'So, what horrible event has happened already today?'

I then become nervous about talking about any of this with anyone but my immediate family. I then question what we are even allowed to discuss in public these days. The laws in almost all countries are changing so rapidly against Christians that talking about Jesus or even Islam is almost surely bound to bring you worldly troubles.

While it still maybe mostly safe to talk about Jesus in some countries today, how long will this remain? Is this still okay? Soon it won't be! So I ask You, Father, to please strengthen us as we will not be able to endure even the initial wave of trouble coming, let alone help anyone who needs to hear the Good News of Jesus.

Lord, I feel like I am a race horse stuck inside the starting gate right now. I am so eager to start running, yet now I am old and not as able as the other 'horses'. I simply do not have the physical ability to run against them.

I realize that this means that we must rely more and more on our Owner, but really we should have done this all along. Jesus is our Rider and Trainer and the Holy Spirit has been sent to help us endure. However, as I see it right now, I personally just cannot see much past the horse gate!

Yesterday morning as I slept, I saw a small bright light in the distance. As I stared at it, the light became larger and larger. Soon, this light became very large and it was such a brilliant white light that it was like nothing that I had ever seen, even during my NDEs.

When I then woke up suddenly, my first thought was that I had overslept my alarm and that the noon sun was now shining in my eyes. However, as reality sunk in and I woke up some more, I soon realized that my room was still completely dark. I then realized that this bright light had not been in the natural, but had instead happened in my dream.

As I was driving into town a few hours later, I heard a song on the radio and just knew that it was You sending me this for my comfort. As our reception for the Christian radio station is sometimes poor out in the country, I had heard this while listening to a secular station. I then felt that the Lord was speaking to me through the song, 'Forever Young', by Rod Stewart.

When I later listened to this song again, I just knew that You were reaching out to me in love with this song. Well, I cried for quite some time as I listened to the song again and followed along with the lyrics at the same time. These lyrics seemed custom made for the race I have run so far with You and that You were now encouraging me to continue:

Forever Young[©]

May the good Lord be with you down every road you roam, and may sunshine and happiness surround you when you're far from home.

And may you grow to be proud, dignified and true, and do unto others as you'd have done to you.

Be courageous and be brave, and in my heart you'll always stay...

Forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young!

May good fortune be with you, may your guiding light be strong, build a stairway to heaven with a prince or a vagabond.

And may you never love in vain,

and in my heart you will remain...

Forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young!

And when you finally fly away, I'll be hoping that I served you well, for all the wisdom of a lifetime no one can ever tell.

But whatever road you choose,

I'm right behind you, win or lose...

Forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young, forever young!

As I wrote this down and thought about the Lord possibly talking to me, but really to all of us, through these lyrics, how could I not become teary eyed? While I have never heard the Lord sing and, if I did, I am sure that His voice would be different than Rod Stewart's voice, it was the message of the song that just felt so touching to me.

As I wiped the tears from my eyes, my phone rang and it was a Jewish Messianic pastor calling to pray over our household. Thank You, Father, for this pastor that You had called to pray for blessings and healing over our household. The timing and message of the prayer was just so perfect and I again just knew that this was from You.

I thank You so much for this wonderful gift. It was timely as I have been quite discouraged. Time continues to march on and nothing much seems to be happening here right now, at least not in the 'visible'.

Compounding this, I had awoken this morning to a continued pain in my left side, but now it was even worse. This pain went down my leg, my hip and my arm. The left side of my face is slightly numb as well and it is so irritating. I felt this pain was a call for me to pray to You, so I decided to go to my knees in prayer immediately. My prayer...

Father, I love You. While I do not know what is happening to me right now, You always do. Please, Father, please heal me soon. If not now, then please make it so that I can still function and move around. I am tired, Father, so please help strengthen me soon.

When I feel like this, it is hard. In my heart, I still look around me with all of the wonder and amazement of a child. I have joy when I see the pussy willows reappear and the budding of the trees. The deer are roaming our property and chickadees, sparrows and robins are now all around us, singing and building their nests to prepare for their babies.

I delight in my children and often say, 'Wow, how did these children come from my womb? They are now taller than I am and they are still growing!' I am so thankful for our children, Lord, so thank You yet again for the great blessings of our kids.

In my heart, I feel as if I should still be able to do all of the activities that I once was able to do. However, life can deal a cruel blow sometimes. I now have the wisdom of Your living knowledge, but yet I have a body that is dying and unable to perform what I now want to do in Your service.

Father, do You remember how fast I was once able to cycle? Do You remember how I once danced? Do You remember how I used to love to cross-country ski with my mom around the local trails back when I was still in high school?

While I seemed to be decent at everything I had physically tried, and perhaps I was even an athlete of sorts, all of this now seems to be such a far removed memory. Oddly enough and at the very same time, all of this also still seems so recent. This is all so confusing at times.

These memories are still etched on my heart even as I lost so many years during all of my battles. My children were robbed of a normal childhood because of these battles. I simply did not have the time to teach them things like sports because so much time was spent fighting these battles and simply trying to survive as a single mom.

While I still hiked, went to museums and for long drives and attended church with these kids, it was still often such a struggle to find the time to do so. I pray that, if I were to die soon, I have left them with a heart for You, Father, and a heart for You, Jesus.

While I do not believe it is Your Will for me to go soon, could You please soon just let me see my sons healed if it is? Father, You know all of our needs, but my heart breaks for them and I can do nothing but pray.

I spent so many years alone and was always so cautious about oversharing our story. I spent so much time defending myself against those offering cruel advice on how I should parent my two boys. They simply did not know the struggles of raising children on the autism spectrum or about Asperger's.

Father, You were there though. You were there when people would say such horrible things to us in public. I even recall a time when I was taking the kids for a visit with their dad. Our drop off point was from Bend to Biggs, Oregon. The dad would then pick the children up from me there and then drive back to the Tri-Cities in Washington State.

I often had to travel this three hour drive several times per month. This meant six hours of driving on the Friday night and another six hours on Sunday. The cost of gas alone ended using up any extra monthly reserves we might have otherwise had.

As these were court mandated visitations, I had no choice but to comply. However, the cost of gas was debilitating. I even had to make frequent visits to a local pawn shop to raise money for gas. In the end, my camera, my jewelry and my other valuables were all forfeited, all for cash for gas.

While I would often repurchase some of these items once payday came, this was always at a loss. It was a vicious circle and there was really no escape. On one particular trip, I had stopped for gas along a busy highway.

As I stood at the gas pump filling up my car, my youngest son, age 6 at the time, had decided that he did not want to wait in the car anymore. He somehow had unbuckled himself, dashed out of the car and was heading towards the busy highway.

As the other kids screamed at me as to what had just happened, I knew that I had to run after him before he reached the traffic that was zooming by. It just so happened that a police officer was in the parking lot at the same time and saw all that had happened.

He came up to me as I was holding my son with a technique called 'passive restraint' that I was taught to use in order to get him to calm down. I smiled at the officer in anticipation of him coming over to assist me. How very wrong I was!

Officer: "Ma'am, should I be calling Child Protective Services? It looks like you are having problems safely controlling your children. While you ran after this one, you had 'abandoned' the other two children in your vehicle."

Me: Still holding my son, I was now flabbergasted. "But he was heading towards the highway and would have been hurt or killed. I cannot be in two places at once. Please, I have never had anything like this happen before."

Officer: Sneering. "So, what did you do to cause him to run away from you?" He then looked over at my six year old son. "Has your mommy hurt you?"

Son: "Yes, she hurt me. She hurt my feelings."

The officer then realized that my son was having a hard time speaking and was not 'normal'. However, this still did not seem to matter to him and he again looked at me with a condescending sneer.

Officer: "Look, I am going to have to fill out a report and write up a ticket."

Me: Instantly bursting into tears. "Look, officer, please, please, please do not do this. I try as hard as I can to be the best that I can be with my kids, but my two boys have autism. Please, please do not do this to me. I do not even have the money for a ticket. Such a charge would look unfavorable on me in court and this would not be fair given this one-time circumstance."

Officer: "Well, I do not even know what this 'autism' is, but I do recognize when a parent is unable to keep their children safe. Perhaps it would be better for these kids to be in a home with discipline instead."

Me: Begging. "Oh please, my home does have discipline. This was not a normal occurrence. Oh, please!"

My son somehow realized that the officer was implying that this could mean he would have to live with someone else.

Son: Screaming. "No, no, no! Mama, I'm sorry. No, no, no, no!"

My son was so panicked that he would not stop screaming in terror at the possibility. He was so obviously terrified that even the officer had become uncomfortable.

Me: "Look, everyone knows our two local judges. Let's go before either of them. I cannot risk agreeing to these charges and will have to go to court over this. I will really have no choice."

The officer suddenly knew that this might not look good to the courts as even he could now see that my boys had special needs. I believe that God was softening his heart.

Officer: "Well, this is your lucky day. Just try to control your kids from now on, okay?"

He then walked up to my car and looked inside and could see that my other kids were all fastened in properly. However, both were crying as they had both started to cry when I had begun to cry.

Officer: "Okay, kids, have a good trip."

The kids nodded, waved at him and were now smiling again. The officer then turned back to me. While he tried to remain stern, I could now see a glimmer of a smile as he seemed to finally understand what I had to deal with. He decided to have mercy on us.

Officer: "Okay, ma'am, you are free to go. Be careful in the future though. Your son may not be so lucky next time."

After this, I became worried that could happen again and I bought a special child safety latch to ensure it would not. Thank You, Lord, that was the only time this happened and it could have gone so horribly. Thank You, Lord, for Your divine protection.

Father, even though things like this made it difficult for me to travel with my children back then, this was still something the kids and I used to enjoy and do often. Now that my children are all older, as are my husband's kids, traveling would be easy now. However, my pain makes traveling very difficult right now, so we keep our trips short.

Father, it grieves me that I am no longer able to be a 'young mom' to our kids right now. Please, Father, do not let me deteriorate any further. My kids and my husband's kids, now 'our' kids, have been through the fires of life and have emerged as such delights...well, smiles, for the most part.

Now though I feel like it is me that is holding us back. As You know, Lord, time has taken quite a toll on me. Oh Father, I love You so much. Our kids all love You so much. We have all now seen your miracles time after time and we all know that You have moved so many mountains concerning each of us.

However, today, I beg and plead with You to please not forget me. I am so sorry that I did not appreciate You in my youth. I am so sorry that I was too busy to recognize You working in my life when I was in my 20s. I am sorry that I was 'hard of hearing' when I was in my 30s. I am sorry that I was difficult to even listen to due to all my complaining when I was in my 40s.

Well, I am now in my 50s and I feel You, I hear You and I even have the honor of actually seeing You. Oh Lord, I long to be in Your presence. You have taught me to be silent so that I can quietly listen to Your sweet Voice. I move slow now, but You have taught me to observe and pray.

Lord, I am just so thankful for another day here. I have learned to appreciate even the subtle things now. You have shown me how to appreciate even the little things that I would have missed back when I was younger.

I am so thankful that You have provided me with a Godly husband. I am thankful that he is so supportive of my relationship with You. Father, my enemies remain ever-present, but Your protection remains over each of us. I am so thankful to You!

I have to travel again soon to see my doctor. I keep hoping that this will be the time that I am healed and before we go. I hope that he will then be a witness to a great miracle instead of just another appointment with someone who is disabled.

I pray that this will be so and I still hold out for the miracles You have promised me. I pray that these are for now and not later, but also to be for all things. However, in the end, I want all of this to be in Your timing, Father, and for Your glory and not mine.

Today, I want to be 'Forever Young', both in my Spirit and in my body. I want the glory of God to fill my broken body and use me for His purposes under Heaven on Earth. Today, and with many tears and in great pain, I give myself fully to You, Father God.

Oh, how I long to hold Jesus' hand as He walks me over the threshold from my final bridge of life and into His eternity. While I was not able to live in 'peace on Earth', I pray that, by some measure, I still served You well here. Jesus, I pray that I made a difference and offered hope to the weary watchers of Your soon coming on the clouds.

I had a dream of my mom last night...

Dream 1 description begins...

I looked over at my mom and she was young and vibrant. This was something that I had only seen glimmers of on Earth. She was giddy and joyful, even though 'giddy' would have never been a word I would have ever used to describe her on Earth.

I saw my mom as she walked in the City of God, the Golden City. She now had a skip to her step as she walked and the Lord told me it was because she now only remembered the good. All the bad things from Earth had now been far removed here in Heaven.

I had come to the City and she was so glad to see me. She seemed almost anxious, but pleasantly so, to show me something that God had placed her in charge of.

Mom: "Erin, I cannot wait for you to see this. Come on! It is beautiful! Come!"

As soon as my mom finished saying this, but well before she could show me what she had wanted to, I woke up. I was back in my bed and it was still dark.

Dream 1 description over...

Father, I am so happy to see that my mom is so happy there. All the former things are gone. I barely even recognized her appearance, yet I knew her. I knew her! Lord, You have restored all that was stripped from her. She was beautiful when she was on Earth, and particularly so when she was younger, but she was now so much more than ever.

Father, You have repaired her brokenness. You have healed her of her cancer, leukemia and all of her other ailments. Truly, this is such a miracle! Thank You! Thank You, Father, for this precious gift!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was in the midst of a beautiful garden that was in a gigantic circular shape. The outer ring was full of fruit trees of every kind. Some branches were blossoming, while other branches had ripe fruit. There was then a ring of flowering vines, fragrant bushes and berries. Within this, there was a ring of grasses and flowers.

There was then another ring of sweet meadow grass with low flowers leading up to moss at the banks of a round pond. Inside the pond, there was a fountain springing up in the middle. It was simply amazing and had clearly been designed by the 'Master Gardener'!

I found myself on the east edge of the meadow grass looking towards the west. The sun was now lower in the sky and I could tell that there was still an hour or two before the sun would set. I decided to sit down for a moment to take in all the beauty of this incredible place.

The fragrance was amazing, but difficult, if not impossible, to fully describe or section out as so much was in full bloom. I could feel the sun on my face as I looked down at my hands. I could not believe how beautiful and young looking my hands were here.

My fingernails were not painted, yet they looked as if they were made of pearls that had been made into polish and had coated each of my nails. I let out a big sigh as they were more beautiful than any fingernails I had ever seen and certainly mine today.

I heard a voice from behind me. It sounded like Jesus, but I was not entirely sure.

Voice: "I am your Rearguard."

I turned to look behind me, but no one was there. Now I was pretty sure it was Jesus. I then heard a voice from where I had been looking.

Voice: "I go before you."

I turned back, but no one was there. Now I just knew that this was Jesus. I then heard His voice from above me.

Jesus: "I am your Canopy and your Tent."

I looked above me, but He was not there. I then heard His voice right next to me.

Jesus: "And I am always by your side."

I turned to my right just as I felt His hand touch my shoulder. It was Jesus sitting and smiling at me right next to me. I reached over and hugged Him in delight.

Me: Smiling. "Lord, I was unable to see You!"

Jesus: "Ah yes, yet I was still right there with you, was I not?"

As He smiled again, I could see that His teeth were incredibly white. His eyes are the most beautiful blueish green color. Tears started to stream down my cheeks.

Me: "Lord, I am so glad to see You!"

He reached over, took my hand and held my hand in His hands. He then raised my hand up to His right cheek.

Jesus: "You are always precious to Me even though you do not always feel that you are."

Me: "Yes, but I still do not understand why I do this. I do not understand why life has to be so difficult. Why is life just so dark now? Why is this life so dark?"

Jesus: "Well, residing in a dark place means that, when the light of dawn finally breaks, it then removes the darkness in an instant. Dark can no longer hide as the light then floods into the darkness. You are in a dark circumstance, yet the light in you still shines like a beacon.

"Soon, there will be no darkness around you. Remember, Erin, it is always darkest right before the dawn." He smiled. "This is a daily occurrence as a sign from Heaven, along with the phases of the moon and the rotation of the Earth. Even the rotation of the sun and the stars are signs from Heaven.

"Now, these things are all currently taken for granted as a 'sure thing', right? However, what would happen if just one of these failed?"

Me: "Wow, Lord, it would not only be visible, but it would also most likely be catastrophic."

Jesus: "Now, these are all 'lights', right?"

Me: "Yes, and they are all created by God, You. However, You, Lord, are the Light of the world."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but some still prefer the darkness. Some worship the sun, the moon and the stars and then bow to these as their 'light'. Erin, I am the Light of the world and whoever follows Me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life. You are my light and the lamp burns in you, My Lamp. Now you are to show the way to those living in darkness."

Me: "Lord..." I paused. "...how?" People hate me already and I am just a 'nobody' right now. Not only that, but I am barely encouraging even to myself. I am burning out, Lord, so please light my fire soon. Please put more oil in my lamp. Oh Lord, the darkness surrounds me. What if I have no light?"

Jesus: "Erin, stop! Darkness hates light. Did you believe that there would be no battle? For it is written that this is the judgment, that the Light has come into the world and that people loved the darkness rather than the Light because their works were evil.

"For those who do wicked things, they hate the Light and are not attracted to it as Light exposes their wickedness. But whoever does what is true comes to the Light so that it may be clearly seen that his..." He smiled. "...or her...works have been carried out in God. Remember that this should also be true of you.

"Whoever is in the Light, yet hates his brother, still dwells in darkness. Whoever loves his brother dwells in the Light and, in him, there is no cause for stumbling. But whoever hates his brother is in the darkness and walks in the darkness and does not know where he is going because the darkness has blinded his eyes."

Me: "Oh, like a parable all around us hidden in plain sight."

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, yes. So, Erin, does evil live and breathe or is it dead?"

Me: "Okay, this is a great question. Hmm, people living in darkness perform evil every day. They still breathe, but they are not alive. Well, they live, but not for You and are therefore in the darkness.

"The enemy and his army are also dwelling in the darkness and are separated from You. They are working day and night, yet, apart from You, they are still dead. They believe they are alive in satan and in darkness, but this is a lie.

"Lord, I still feel dead here even though I am a part of You. The Holy Spirit is in me, Your Light is in me and I love my brothers and sisters, yet my body is still dying. My body is dead and decaying. Even though I am not in the grave, I still feel like I am." I smiled and started laughing. "I feel like I am one of 'the dead in Christ'." I then let out a big sigh and looked into His eyes.

Jesus: "Then rise, Erin, rise up and shine!"

Me: "Yes, Lord, but I can do nothing without You leading the way. I love You, Lord, and I am hurting. Please, please, please show me how to rise!"

He smiled and nodded in agreement as He stood up. He then took my hand and brought me up to Him.

Jesus: "Come with Me to the fountain. My Fountains are in you also. Now, come."

Received on Thursday, April 13th, 2017 (Visit 3)...

Jesus brought me to the edge of the beautiful round pond. The fountain in the middle had many layers of spouting water.

Jesus: "Now, Erin, come and drink as this is Good Water."

He smiled and motioned for me to take a drink. I bent down and momentarily noticed my reflection in the water. As I looked down, I reached up and touched my face as I watched my reflection. Tears started to stream down my cheeks and I saw myself touch one of my tears in the 'mirror' of the water. He then talked to me so tenderly.

Jesus: "Please, Erin, drink."

Me: "Oh Lord, thank You. Thank You for Your promises and the promise of this place. Oh, thank You so much for this place so that we can be here with You. Yes, yes, Lord, I will gladly drink!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Wait. Better yet, please allow Me."

He reached down with both hands and cupped some water into His hands. He raised His hands to my mouth and I drank from them as if they were a cup. I could feel the water going through out my insides. I could feel it in every single part of my body.

Me: I smiled and laughed. "Oh Lord, this is the Living Water, right?"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, straight from My cup."

He smiled as we looked at His hands. He then reached down to the water and playfully splashed me. I splashed Him back and we both started to laugh. I then became serious and sad again. Jesus looked over at me and gave me such a sympathetic and comforting smile that it defied comparison.

Me: "Lord, if people only knew just how wonderful You are, they..." I started to cry in gratitude. "...well, there is no one like You. What You have done for us and what You have prepared for us here. Oh Lord, I just wish people knew just how wonderful Your heart is. It is perfect! You are perfect! You love us. You even love me. I am in awe and wonder over all that You have done from beginning to end. Thank You!"

Jesus: "But remember, Erin, you have only seen a tiny fraction of all that is waiting here. You are a witness to My Love. Although few read this right now, I have written this story, My Story, on the tablet of your heart. There is also a Book that very few now read that also shows My love for My Bride. This is much the same as the verses that I have often pointed you to."

Me: I instantly knew what He was referring to. "Oh, the Book is the Song of Solomon and the Scripture is Psalm 45."

Jesus: "Erin, you are a bride and you represent what a bride, My Bride, is to Me. You are precious and honored in My sight and I delight in you. My Fountains are in you and your candle, your Lamp, burns brightly. You look for Me and you wait for Me." He smiled at me knowingly.

Me: "Yes, Lord, but not very patiently, I'm afraid."

I shook my head at myself and He laughed.

Jesus: "Yes, but you are in anticipation of a big celebration and the excitement of My coming for you, the excitement and the promise of all of this. It is okay. It is well."

Me: "So, You are not disappointed in my anxiousness and impatience?"

Jesus: "Well, for your wellbeing, it is best to just trust Me. I am coming for you and I will be coming soon. However, in the meantime, I have something wonderful that I am sending ahead of Me. It is a Gift sent ahead for the Bride to be delivered by the angels. This is special and will delight you.

"When you receive My Gift for My Bride, you will know that I will not forget you. I always come for what is Mine, understand? I also call out to those who are not Mine, but most refuse to hear Me. Instead, their hearts run to another groom and their feet run to a different feast."

Me: "Lord, I had something odd appear in a dream I had last night. I heard a 'bing' that sounded quite similar to a 'push notification' on my tablet that normally alerts me to earthquakes or extreme weather that may have occurred or are occurring. However, it was neither of those this time and I was deeply disturbed by the message on my tablet.

"I then went to my tablet, but noticed that 'my' tablet was no longer mine. Even my server had changed and only certain Apps and information were now available. It disturbed me. 'My' tablet had then automatically translated some sentence of Middle Eastern origin, possibly Arabic, into English for me to read. Lord, what did it mean?"

Jesus: "Well, this is written, so now look to Isaiah." I laughed as suddenly 'Isaiah 14:12' flashed right there in front of my eyes. "Ancient Babylon worshipped the moon god. Arabia is the daughter of Babylon.

"Now, Lucifer was an angel of light that had fallen into darkness and he is weakening the nations by using his weapons and instruments. The veil has now gone over the nations, but not for modesty, but rather for infliction. Infliction is a punishing rod for slavery. Now, what is slavery?"

Me: "Someone who is owned by another for their purposes."

Jesus: "Well, it is worse than this. Slaves are forced into obedience by their owners, masters or oppressors. They are captives."

Me: "What does this dream mean, Lord?"

Jesus: "Well, it is going to get hot, and unbearably so, for most. However, Erin, I give you refreshing cool water to drink, the Living Water, so do not be afraid. Many will perish for lack of water."

Me: "Lord, may I ask You a question?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Proceed."

Me: "Jesus, You are the 'Rising Son', but are You not also the 'Morning Star'? I mean the 'real' Morning Star?"

Jesus: "Hmm, great question. Well, there were many translations of the Word and some may seem confusing, but perhaps they really are not." He smiled. "Now, let Me explain. Lucifer, when he was still in Heaven, was a bright 'morning star'. However, when he fell from Heaven like lightning, his flame was extinguished. Now I am the 'Morning Star', understand?"

"Well, Erin, you no longer have to be confused about this." He good naturedly laughed as He looked into my eyes and I smiled. "Now, to those who ask for wisdom concerning this, then I will give this to them. Now, Erin, when is the sky the darkest?"

Me: "Right before the breaking of the dawn."

Jesus: "Yes, and a bright Light has come to remove the darkness. Now, there are many references to the roots of Babylon. Do you see, hidden there in plain sight on their banners, both the moon as a crescent and a star? However, there is a difference as I am the Son of God and the Savior of the world, not the 'destroyer who comes to rob, kill and destroy'.

"Now, you were given this dream in order to dig deeper and to understand the times that you are in. Now, Who is the real and bright 'Morning Star'? Who is the 'Dawn Breaking'? Who is the 'Everlasting Light'?"

Me: I became excited. "Why, it is You, Jesus! You are! Lord, I feel different in my heart today. I love this time with You so much. You are wonderful!"

Jesus: "I have given you several things today to pray about, things that I have placed on your heart. Know that there is a counterfeit to everything that is good. The adversary seeks confusion. The veil over the land is oppressive and will be a type of desensitizer. It will make people unable to discern or realize what is happening until it is too late."

Me: "Oh, do You mean like paralyzing snake venom?"

Jesus: Nodding. "This is exactly what it is like. I gave you a vision of this before. The snake slowly swallows the victim whole while he is still alive. He is unable to free himself as he cannot move."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but You can free him! You can!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, I can. Erin, My Spirit is in you, so do not be afraid. In a little while, I am going to shake the 'heavens' and the Earth, both the sea and the dry land. I will shake all of the nations. You must not fear as I am with you."

Me: "Lord, I know that this time is soon. I will try to not be afraid. Please strengthen us."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as you will not be shaken in the way that you think. My Gift is soon to come. Keep your Lanterns burning, even in the watches of darkness."

He smiled as He reached over and hugged me. I felt so safe in His arms.

Dream over...

Dream 241 – Jesus, Psalm 68 and the Island on the Lake

Finished on Sunday, April 23, 2017

I am 54 years old today. Well, 54 years, 2 months, 30 days, 23 hours and 12 minutes to be more precise. Isn't it funny how fast 19,813 days can fly by (smiles)?

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! You are the God of the Impossible! You make each day a Gift. Each day is new, each day is unique and each day involves trusting You. I can either look at each day with dread or I can look at each day with hope.

I spent many years looking at each day in dread. I lacked hope and wondered if this would be the day that I died without purpose under Heaven. I would actually think like this, 'with no hope', because I had been taught that I was the determiner of the outcome of my days. I was also taught that I was 'god over myself'.

It was awful and I spent many years as a child living in fear as a result. This fear of the unknown was so frightful to me. Here I was, told that I determined my own destiny, yet I was surrounded by people who were over me whom I had fear of.

The late 60s and early 70s was a time of such uncertainty for me, but most likely for so many. Families were estranged and many young adults, whether they had children to care for or not, still explored their freedoms and took part in their 'options'.

Let's just say that I was an observant child that was just too curious about the comings and goings of my parents for my own good. I knew WAY too much and I ended up carrying this burden with me for most of my life.

This ended up causing some rather gaping open wounds and I had bitterness, anger and a very low self-esteem as a result. I also felt as if I just did not matter and even like 'collateral damage'. I met each day with trepidation and, each day, I wondered if I would lose my parents. I just did not know as there was really no certainty at all.

While I cannot speak for my siblings and perhaps it was only me that felt this way, I was the eldest and my burden was great as a result. I soon grew to distrust authority due to my parents' poor example. I grew up trying to control the only things that I thought I could control – my body and my destiny.

I later turned to sports and working out, but I also spent a lot of time on things that only I cared about. I spent hours in the sun and even more hours starving myself. I would put myself through extremely punishing workout routines.

I was never satisfied though and had very little peace as a result. I had so much self-loathing that, no matter how high my achievements were, I still could care less. This is because I would look at myself as 'still not good enough'. Myself was all about 'I I I I'!

It was pure madness and I suffered with the illness of bulimia for almost thirteen years of my life as a result. I was eventually diagnosed as 'bulimorexia', the exercise induced version of bulimia, for nine of those thirteen years. I would 'binge', which, to me at the time, even meant just eating an apple, then purge and then exercise like crazy again.

Despite this tendency towards self-destruction, I somehow remained diligent in not taking anything into my body which would render me incapacitated. As a result, I would always be asked to be the 'designated driver, bartender and friend' to the inebriated.

This allowed me to keep a close watch of my friends and I made sure that no one would be hurt or embarrassed by their escapades. I would also keep tabs on them so that no one could take advantage of them as there was a risk of this even back then.

As a result, a night out with my college friends would usually involve me being 'a driver, an attendant, a protector and a mother'. This meant that I would also be treated as one would expect when constantly dealing with 'the intoxicated'.

One moment, I would be their 'best friend'. Seconds later, I would be 'a big pain in their a'. Then they would say, 'who are you, my mother?' Sometimes I would then even be called a 'total b*!' to my face.

The next day, a new pattern would repeat once sobriety hit them again. I would then receive an apologetic phone call: 'Whoa, what happened last night? I am so sorry!'

Well, I eventually grew tired of all of this and the illnesses I personally struggled with also prevented me from even wanting to socialize. After a while, I just stopped being an 'enabler' in order to allow me to increase my focus fully back on to my 'SELF'.

One of things I learned from all of this is that, when people are intoxicated around you and you are sober, there is a lot you will 'learn' about yourself. It is almost as if everything they are thinking of you will be brought to the surface as alcohol seems to work almost like a truth serum. Yes, I heard quite a lot of horrible things spoken to me in drunken slurs.

I now realize that so much of this was lies after lies brought on by these 'spirits'. For many years, I would try to mask the pain of these 'truth serum moments' from everyone by hiding behind a 'mask of humor'. This was something that my mom had taught me to do and it was a great method of deflecting what I was really feeling.

Needless to say, I spent my first 30 to 33 years of my life not truly connected to the heart of Jesus. While I gave my heart declaration to Him at the end of my 30th year, I was still not 'fully in' until I was in my 33rd year. On my 37th year, I once again asked for a 'Heart of Gold', a repeat from my yearbook request from years earlier before I even knew Jesus as my Savior.

Thank You, Father! Thanks to You, I have never been the same ever since! Thank You for keeping me safely in Your Arms. Thank You for not letting me die. Thank You for the Gift of each new day. Looking back, Father, I now realize that You were always there with me, working everything together for my good.

When I was a child, I did not see myself as anything and I was reduced simply because of my size, my circumstances and my abilities. When I became older, I began to 'self' rise up, empower myself and became 'self'-ish.

Thank You for truly reducing me and for removing my vain ambitions. Thank You for keeping me where You desire me to be. It was not until I gave You my life that I allowed You to finally tear down my wall brick-by-brick. This wall was very strong as I had erected it in order to preserve myself against so much.

Finally, and thanks to You and You alone, no wall now remains. I am fully exposed, fully reduced, completely abased and stripped of everything that would have prevented me from what You have called me to. I am so sorry that I was such a difficult 'student' for You, Lord!

There is a saying I once heard that goes something like this: 'The higher one thinks of one's self, the harder one falls'. While I had never really thought that highly of myself, I still worshipped gods other than You. I was still a slave to another master. As a result, I was at the mercy of the world and this world, without You, is merciless.

Today is a reminder of the lengths that You will go for each of us. By all accounts, You should have given up on me long ago. Instead, and I am so thankful, just so thankful, You never gave up on me. Even when I gave up on myself, You never gave up on me!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was already running at a good clip. Beauty surrounded me on all sides. This place was either Heaven or was some type of separate 'training ground' still created by God. However, I was not entirely sure where this was. What I did know was that I was safe to run here.

As I looked down, I noticed that I had high-tech training clothes on that could only be Heavenly. I was in black running pants and a blue athletic jacket made for running in cooler weather.

The clothing I wore did not feel like anything I had seen or felt on Earth and this had been specifically made for 'Heavenly running'. If this gear does exist on Earth, I am sure that the outfit I was wearing would easily cost several thousands of dollars.

Even the shoes I was wearing felt more like 'clouds' on my feet. So much so that I literally felt like I was 'running on clouds'. My running shoes were made of sheepskin, complete with lining and padding. It was as if I was running in 'Ugg's', but athletic ones.

Though difficult for me to fully describe, my shoes were also 'all-terrain' shoes and I knew that I would be able to do all things in them while running, no matter the extreme conditions. I could not help but shake my head as I looked down at my feet.

When I then went to feel my hair, I realized that it was in a ponytail and had been placed through the gap in the back of a baseball cap. As I felt my hair, I suddenly realized that I also had gloves on. The gloves were incredibly light and airy and beyond compare.

While I did not feel cold or hot at all, perfect really, I somehow knew that I was running on a type of mountain course in terrain similar to the Canadian Rockies. When I looked around me at the very high majestic mountains, I could see snow dusting the peaks. While I could feel the cool air expand my lungs, nothing was labored at all.

I suddenly realized just how completely healthy I felt here. Oh, how I wish that this was real and not a vision. Before the Lord takes me Home, how I would love to enjoy a vigorous run, cycle or even row on the water in this amazing condition.

As I went to feel my right side with my hand, I realized that I had no unhealthy fat at all. I was lean, yet still completely healthy. I felt similar to how I did back when I was around twelve years old. Everything was so easy back then, whether it was breathing, running or just being excited in my steps.

I decided to take my glove off in order to see my bare hand. It was young and beautiful and there were no wrinkles or sun damage to be found. I then stopped entirely in order to look at my right hand as I wrote 'here on Earth'. It was still full of years and looked nothing at all like what I was seeing in the vision.

I realized that this was not something I should have done as the vision suddenly stopped. I then felt a call for me to go into prayer over what I had just done.

Oh Father, I am sorry. I stopped to look at my hands as they write here. I stopped and then my pain instantly returned. Please forgive me for comparing my earthly hand to my Heavenly hand. Please, Lord, bring back the vision.

After I prayed this with all of my heart, the vision came back. However, the pain still remained in my right arm as I wrote. I started running again and was now approaching a beautiful mountain lake that I could see in the distance. I decided to run even faster as I wanted to drink some refreshing water from the lake.

I ran down the bank, quickly scooped the water up with my cupped hands and drank. The water was incredibly pure, cool and perfectly refreshing. As I bent down to drink some more, I could see Jesus waving to me in the distance. He was standing on a tiny island out on the lake. He called out to me.

Jesus: "Erin, come out to Me."

I hesitated as there was quite a bit of water between the shore and the island.

Jesus: Smiling. "Come out to Me, Erin. There is no storm here."

I looked down at the water again. As I did, I could hear Jesus laughing good-naturedly.

Jesus: "Oh Erin, what are you looking at down there? The fish cannot give you feet." He laughed. "So, walk, Erin, walk and only look at Me."

I looked at the water again and started to negotiate to myself in my thoughts.

Me: "Hmm, if I fall in, then I know that Jesus will save me. Even though I will get wet, it will still be a good lesson in faith. Hmm, what if I just keep my eyes on Him and just start running?"

Jesus: Knowing my thoughts. "Yes, Erin, just keep your eyes on Me and start running. This really is your best option." He was smiling. "Come on, Erin, you can do this."

I decided to focus on Him alone and started to run as if there was a path that went straight over to the island. Jesus smiled at me and gave me an approving nod as I ran towards Him. I felt strongly that I was not to take my focus off of Him at all.

Even though it felt as if I was now running on solid ground, I resisted the urge to look down at my feet. I soon made it to the shore and ran straight into His open arms. As He embraced me, I felt as if I was a little kid again and had so much life in me.

Me: "Wow, Lord, that was amazing. It felt as if I was running on solid ground!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, Erin, look back."

I looked back and there was now a bridge that stretched across the water from where I had been over to the island. I started laughing as I had indeed been running across a bridge towards Jesus the entire time!

Me: "Hmm, so I wasn't walking on water after all, was I?"

Jesus: Laughing. "No, but does it matter? Now, would it be more difficult for you to run across the water or for you to run across a bridge that I had just built for you in just a matter of seconds?"

Jesus then led me over to the water's edge. As I looked into the water, I was surprised to find that the water had only looked really deep, but was actually only about three inches deep.

Jesus: Smiling. "So, I will again ask you which is more of a miracle. Is it Me building a bridge in seconds or you running on water?" He laughed. "Oh, on three inch deep water at that."

Me: "Lord, though walking on water is something people have heard about, it is still difficult for us to imagine. Even though I am now standing here with You and neither my clothes nor my shoes are wet, many would still try to explain this away by claiming that this was all done by boat or helicopter.

"In contrast, a bridge like this one would easily take men years to plan and build. Yet here it is, right before our very eyes, in just seconds. This bridge is so sturdily built that, unless You destroyed it, the evidence of this miracle is right here in front of us. Just a short time ago, this bridge did not even exist.

"Now, as these shoes are so incredible, many could also then say that I could have easily run in only three inches of water and claim that this was still not evidence as the shoes are waterproof. Based on all of this, I would have to say that the bridge would be more difficult to explain and would be even more of a miracle to them."

Jesus: Smiling. "Hmm, interesting. So, we are talking about a miracle 'with evidence' versus a miracle 'without evidence' even though the result is exactly the same, right? If I were to remove the miracle all together, you would have run into the water and had wet shoes. Now, tell Me, which method do you like best for arriving where you are?"

Me: "Well, the 'old me' would have preferred to have run through the water. The 'new me' loves the idea of being like Peter and running across the water to You. However, I must admit that I just love having the physical evidence of Your miracle! This is awesome, Lord!" Jesus smiled and laughed at my reply.

"You must understand, Lord, that just being here with You in this body and in this beautiful place, well..." I started to cry. "...very few believe me. I wish that more people could see more of this, Lord, and believe that it is from You. If only, Lord."

I was now crying quite hard and the Lord reached for my hand. As He gently held my hand, He looked into my eyes with a tenderness that defied all earthly description and any earthly comparison.

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, soon. Soon the world will know the difference between that which is counterfeit and that which is real. Though some will still be fooled, those who know Me will know the difference. Now, come and sit with Me."

I followed Him as He walked over to a beautiful rock that had a bench seat cut into it. As He sat down, He motioned for me to sit next to Him.

Jesus: "Erin, this was a difficult lesson for you today as your memories were stirred up. Though they have strengthened you for your journey, give these to Me now."

Me: "I am sorry, Lord. I am sorry that I was so selfish, so bitter, so angry, so vain, so competitive, so judgmental and so much more."

Jesus: "Erin, let this all go and give it to Me. My burden is easy and My yoke is light."

He motioned for me to remove my yoke. I laughed and 'pretended' to lift my yoke off of my shoulders. However, as I 'lifted' my yoke, I realized that something heavy was actually on my shoulders even though I could see nothing there. My laughter quickly turned into a grimace when I realized that I simply could not take this off by myself.

Me: "Oh Lord, please take this thing off of me." I must have now looked panicked.

Jesus: "Erin, allow Me. Allow Me to take this yoke from you."

With one hand, He lifted my yoke from my shoulders. It was as light as a feather to Him. In comparison, it felt like it weighed 'tons' to me. I suddenly felt light and free.

Me: "Oh, thank You, Lord, thank You!"

He smiled and nodded with approval. He then turned towards the lake and tossed this seemingly invisible object into it. A split second later, it dropped into the water and created a massive donut wave as if a meteor had just hit. As a huge wave headed towards us, He lifted His arm and the water immediately calmed. We were both now laughing so hard.

Jesus: "Wow, Erin, that was heavy."

Me: "Oh Lord, I had no idea just how heavy my yoke was! However, nothing is a surprise to You and You are always in control of all things."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, while it was not heavy to Me, the water certainly parted for it. Hmm, perhaps the fish will need to eventually come out of hiding."

We both laughed and I felt such joy in this amazing moment with Him. He then turned towards me, looked into my eyes and became quite serious.

Jesus: "Now, Erin, I am not cruel. I know that you are in great pain. I have every intention of healing you, but this time will not be like before. This time, there will be evidence and this will be like a bridge. There will be physical evidence and no one will be able to say 'this' or 'that', understand?"

I suddenly felt encouraged that I was soon to have an earthly version of this. While the Lord had previously told me that our Transformed bodies would not be as perfected as our eventual Heavenly bodies, He had also assured me that we would be absolutely delighted with what He will do for us here on Earth.

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "I know your thoughts, Erin, so give these to Me as well. I will make everything beautiful in its time, so do not worry. To me, you are beautiful and this is your time. Now, you have had some dreams recently in support of this."

As He said this, two dreams that I had been trying to remember suddenly came back to me completely.

Me: "Yes, the first dream was quite unusual, but so was the second dream..."

Dream 1 description begins...

I was putting together a series of complex formulas in order to make a fragrance. However, I knew that this fragrance was being uniquely created for me by You and that You were working through me to create it. When it was finally finished and bottled, it smelled incredibly beautiful.

Dream 1 description over...

Dream 2 description begins...

I had no clothing in my closet to wear to a special gala that was coming up. In fact, I had nothing in my closet at all and it was completely empty. Some friends soon arrived and told me that it was time to go. I then explained to them that I had nothing to wear.

My friends then told me not to worry and took me over to a large school gymnasium. This gym had a stage on one end of it and served as both a gym and an auditorium. As I gazed out on the floor of the gym, I could see that every item of clothing and shoes that I had ever owned were there. They were either from my own personal clothing or from my clothing store that I had previously owned.

The clothes were all color coordinated and organized perfectly. I was simply stunned as I looked around. I saw things that I remembered from my past that were now outdated. Some of the items were even from my childhood and had been hand sewn by my mom. I nervously turned towards my friends as I thought that what I was about to say would be unpopular.

Me: "Thank you for all of this. However, all of this clothing is now useless to me. I have new garments now and I am no longer the same person that I once was."

Instead of being upset at my reaction, my friends instead cheered me on with such encouragement.

One friend: "So, what shall we then do with everything?"

Me: "Give it away!"

My friends once again cheered.

Dream 2 description over...

Jesus: "Hmm, so you have a new fragrance that I created for you. You even have new garments. This is good news, right?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, but what will I have to wear?"

Jesus: "Well, Erin, whatever you need will be given to you, understand?"

Me: "Lord, I travel to see my doctor again. Please heal me. The pain is now more than I am able to take. Please, Lord, there is no relief and the pain now even makes my heart race."

Jesus reached over and touched my arm. I suddenly felt my pain removed and it continued to be removed for the remainder of my writing.

Me: "Thank You, Lord."

Jesus: "Soon, Erin, very soon."

Me: "Lord, there was snow again yesterday and nearly three inches fell. The trees are budding, but they have not yet blossomed. The little animals are back, the pussy willows are on the trees and little birds are nesting. Spring seems to have just begun. Please, Lord, please soon. I love You. I love You so much."

I suddenly felt led to pick up my Bible. The Bible opened to Psalm 68 and I noticed that I had written the date '7.8.2012' there from back in 2012. He then led me to Psalms 64 and 65.

Jesus: "The first one is the assurance that all which was foretold will come to pass. You have come against many people who hate you for no reason, but especially in this season. Look carefully at what I have shown you here today and do not be afraid. Erin, remember the promises that I have given you."

I was then drawn back to my Bible. He then led me to Psalms 45 and 46.

Jesus: "Now, be encouraged – the promise of spring – the time of your new fragrance."

He smiled and hugged me.

Dream 242 – Jesus and the Stages of a Butterfly

Communion

Dear Father of all of Creation, Heaven and Earth, every living thing, You are wonderful!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

This morning while taking communion, the sun was shining so brightly behind You that I could barely see Your face. I was glad, so glad, to be near You, if only in my vision.

You then reached over to hold my hand while I took communion. As soon as You touched my hand, I felt a charge of love come through my hand to my heart. I then put my head down and rested my cheek on Your hand as You stroked my hair.

Me: "I love You, Lord. Thank You."

Jesus: "Erin, I am able to see into a person's heart and I hear every thought. I see all that they imagine as even what they imagine is an extension of their heart. While some of these imaginations are good..." He laughed. "...others are not so good.

"While I will sometimes grant the desires of a person's thoughts and imaginations..." He again laughed. "...just know that I will also sometimes allow tests or trials based on these as well, whether requested or not.

"I know that you sometimes wonder whether your visions are merely from your own imagination. However, I tell you the truth, Erin, if only everyone would imagine Me as you do.

"Now, how many do you believe imagine sitting next to Me in My House, at My table, taking communion with Me? How many do you believe imagine Me walking with them or imagine Me healing them? How many do you believe truly do this, Erin?"

Me: "Lord, I truly have no idea."

Jesus: "Virtually no one does this. Those that do are usually old men close to death, people who are ill and near their end, those in peril and..." Smiling. "...children. However, you, Erin, truly love My company. You willingly follow Me and love Me with all of your heart."

Me: "Yes, Lord. However, I came to You from a point of brokenness and desperation and I could have easily been like them. In fact, I know that I still am in so many ways. Oh Lord, my heart now breaks at the trouble that I have had. My heart breaks at all of the loss of time with my children as I can never get this back.

"Time marches on and is so cruel. I cannot get a 'do-over' in this world. However, even if I could, I would not want to now as all of this has led me to You. You are my Best Friend and the Lover of my soul. You know every part of me and You still love me. You love me even when I 'lost my noodles' yesterday."

As background, I had found some special noodles yesterday and was all set to buy them. However, the clerk then noticed that the item had expired and called over the manager for a discount. The manager then refused to sell them to me as they are not allowed to sell expired goods.

I was upset as I still wanted to buy them and tried to explain that the noodles would still be okay. The manager would have none of it and my husband had to later calm me down as I had...sparrow rant...really, really wanted these noodles. I had been searching for these particular noodles for months and had been unable to find them until now.

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh Erin, this is the way of the world. I tell you the truth, when food is scarce, that woman will recall the bags of noodles and wish for them." He smiled. "Do not worry, Erin, as I will help you find them later today." (Which He did later that same day – smiles!)

"Now, and more importantly than this, you have stayed with Me. Even when I was silent, you still pursued Me. It was because of this that I kept you from harm. Though you lost much, you gained Me. I saw all of the evil imaginations and intentions from men who wanted your death. These men were unaware, and remain unaware, that I see and have not forgotten each of their evil thoughts."

Me: Crying. "Yes, Lord, but I have not been perfect either. I have made so many mistakes. Please forgive me as I have made so many mistakes myself."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but you now sit here with Me and you are forgiven. I have even turned and used those things that you are ashamed of or have been accused of for My glory."

I instantly saw myself at various design showrooms, fabric outlets and showrooms, antique shops and retail stores.

Me: "Lord, You have somehow taken even my materialism and used it for Your glory!"

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, while this is difficult to understand, it was Me that led you down this course. Now, why would I do it this way?"

"Well, if I had not allowed your injury, perhaps you would have worshipped your body. If I had allowed you to succeed in sport, perhaps you would have been driven to the material world, as well as pretense. If I had made you an artist, perhaps your life would have been reclusive. The list goes on and on, Erin.

"Instead, I gave you just enough of a desire for all things beautiful. You see the lovely in things that are old or new, inexpensive or expensive, of nature or of craftsmanship. I taught you to appreciate beauty. Even though you could have, the items that you have been given have not been used to be boastful or gain prominence.

"I allowed all of this so that you and your children could enjoy your homes together. Even though it seemed as if I had forgotten you at times, I did not. While you were unaware of this at times, I spoke to you and put you forth as a measure for others, but especially for those who claim to love Me that stood in judgment of you and have never stopped doing so.

"What they do not understand is that I have blessed you where you are from the very beginning. No matter how much the enemy petitioned for your destruction, I protected you because you loved Me. Even when the enemy had you lose everything, stripping your status by using your 'friends' and neighbors, you continued to love Me.

"While this was humiliating, I still provided you with items that made you smile. Even though you were later forced to live in a smaller place, you were still judged by those around you. Even when, later still, you barely had anything left, you were still judged.

"Your heart is good, Erin, and I know that all you do today is now done to bring comfort to those inside of your home and to keep the darkness outside. I then sent you a husband, My friend, and someone who sees as you do. He and you are as one. Continue to give all glory to Me for all that you have received.

"However, do not ever feel ashamed for what you have been given or what you are about to receive. Remember that all good gifts come from Me and that no good things come from the adversary. He wants you destroyed, shamed, humiliated and abased. Anyone who comes into your life to do the enemy's work should be removed as they are a hindrance."

Me: "Lord, I had a dream about three carpet beetles, but they were red and black instead of white and black." As I spoke this, I noticed that a beetle was walking across the arm of my chair that I was sitting in to write. "Okay, Lord, what does this mean?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Read about this and then come back to Me with your findings."

I paused and did some research. I then went back to speak with Him on this.

Me: "Lord, I looked this up on the internet. These beetles eat keratin or protein, as well as natural materials such as wool, feathers, silk and linen. They are even used in natural history museums to clean off all of the skin and meat off of collected bones. However, they can also be quite destructive if they are allowed to lay eggs. They also eat the dead carcasses of spiders, flies, insects and animals."

Jesus: "Interesting. So, they are carcass feeders?"

Me: "Yes. They are even used to determine the time of death in criminal cases due to the constant rate in which they eat meat off of the bone."

Jesus: "They also tend to eat the 'good fibers', things that are comfortable, natural and breathable."

Me: Laughing. "Yes, they certainly seem to enjoy eating the 'more valuable' of the fibers."

Jesus: "Do they eat more than even moths do?"

Me: "Hmm, I guess so, but I am not sure? Now, what am I to do next? What does all of this mean?"

Jesus: "As the beetle you just found on your chair is older, it feeds on leaves and trees. They will often wander inside when it is raining as they look for warmth. Do not worry, Erin, as they have no ambitions, even though the younger ones do." He laughed. "Now, what do you think of all of this?"

Me: "Well, the first thing that comes to mind is where these natural fibers come from.

- Wool comes from sheep
- Silk is rare and comes from the silk worm and moth
- Feathers come from birds
- Linen comes from cotton flax
- Protein comes from meat

"All of these things are valuable, expensive and not easily produced, especially linen and silk."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, you are like this to Me. You matter to Me. I have knit you and I know you. This process was much more intricate than even silk woven from a silk worm or flax, cotton and fibers made into yarn from plants and loomed into fine coats. I have brought you this far and your life is not over.

"The beauty I have created in and around you, as well as every extension of you, is dazzling to Me. I delight in you even as the mirror lies to you. The mirror shows your battles, your wrinkles and the stain of the sun on your surfaces.

"However, do not fear as I am not finished with you. What I have started in you, I will complete. I did not leave you in the 'Valley of Dry Bones'. I did not walk away to leave you to the beetles to pick clean the carcasses of My Sheep. This is not how I work.

"Now, and soon, I will transform you like a butterfly. Now, what stages are there in this transformation? Do you know?" Laughing. "Perhaps you can read about this and let Me know?"

I laughed and went to research this. I then went back to speak with Him.

Me: "There seems to be four distinct stages:

1. Egg
2. Caterpillar
3. Pupa
4. Butterfly

Jesus: "Let's start with the 'Egg Stage'. The Egg Stage is the family that you are placed in at birth. Like glue, you are shaped and adhered to them. You are fed where you are by your surroundings until you reach the stage of 'consumption', the 'Caterpillar Stage'.

"In the Caterpillar Stage, they crawl and eat leaves. They have many legs, but only have three pairs of 'true' legs. They can also produce silk depending on the call or variety that I have selected for them. This stage is like the journey to find Me. There are many things surrounding them to consume and this represents worldly distractions.

"It is from this consumption, or their 'journey', that then leads them to Me. Some journeys are more difficult than others, but they all arrive at the same place – 'wandering'. The caterpillar eventually stops feeding and then wanders in the desert or wilderness looking for a suitable site."

"However, Erin, this was not you leading all of this. Instead, it was Me directing you to this stage and bringing you here. While you sometimes believed that I had left you hanging upside down and suspended on a tree, this is not the case. I first spun you with silk and then, from the inside, I reshaped you. While you may now look like a dead leaf from other's points of view based on your exterior, this is not how I see you."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but I truly feel this way right now."

Jesus: "Yes, but you and they assume incorrectly as this is chrysalis, or 'Christ formation', and only looks like sleeping. This is the 'Pupa Stage' and the pupa, 'My Pupils', are very much alive. Then, and in just a short while, it all changes."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but how long will this take?"

Jesus: "Usually this stage takes around 30 to 40 days. However, I now want to bring you back to the 'Caterpillar Stage' for just a moment. Did you notice that their skin growth cannot keep up with their expansion and growth? New skin grows under the old and the old skin constantly sheds or molts."

Me: "Yes, Lord, this is called 'instar'."

Jesus: "Erin, this is how I made your skin. The making of your skin to be 'thicker' is actually a parable of endurance. You are going from strength to strength and, with you, Erin, 'instars' are like 'bridges'. You shed them by crossing over them. You have shed your skin many times. Each time you shed your skin, you grow even more beautiful.

"Though it may look as if you are resting here in the wilderness attached to the trees in chrysalis, you really are not. Though it appears as if you are now sleeping, you are really being shaped and prepared for your next stage."

Me: I suddenly became worried. "Oh Lord, please help me! According to the lifecycle of a butterfly, some of them have entire lifecycles that last just a month or so."

Jesus: Laughing. "Well, do not worry, Erin, as we are talking about you right now, not butterflies."

We both started to laugh, but I was also relieved. I (yet again) shook my head at my silly thoughts and worries.

Me: "I guess what I really want to know is 'when', Lord, when will I be ready?"

Jesus: "Soon, My Butterfly." We both laughed again. "Now, which butterfly was your favorite?"

As background, Jesus was referring to a garden that we had recently toured that had an abundance of butterflies flying around on display in an enclosed glass house. We were able to walk around where they were and the following is one of the pictures I had taken.

Me: "I think that I loved the massive beautiful blue ones the most."

However, I then thought of some of the other ones that were equally as enjoyable, though in a different way.

Me: "Well, I really don't know which one was my favorite as each was so beautiful in their own unique way."

Jesus: Laughing. "Agreed. Hmm, perhaps this is another lesson."

For some reason, Him saying this instantly brought tears to my eyes. He held my hand and looked at me with tenderness beyond earthly description.

Me: "I love You, Lord."

Jesus: "I love you, Erin."

Dream 243 – Jesus, Archangel and the Rise of the Hidden Enemy

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for our home. Thank You for Your love. Thank You for what You have done and are about to do. Lift the Veil! Please lift the veil!

Thank You for keeping us safe. My husband and I had recently travelled a few hours by airplane to see my doctor. Thank You for protecting our children while we were away. I do not like this separation of miles.

Father, I am still in so much pain and it hurts to be in my state. However, I know, and sometime soon, that You will heal my brokenness and use me for Your glory. I had a dream a few nights ago that involved the Epcot Center in Orlando, Florida.

Dream 1 description begins...

Over 50% of the Epcot Center had now been turned into an Islamic cultural exhibit. The areas of Germany, Italy, France, Norway, UK and Canada had been completely removed to make room for the exhibit.

In addition, around 50% of the USA exhibit had been removed in order to make room for a broader spectrum of 'cultural significance'. I noticed that the only areas in the World Section of Epcot left untouched were for the countries of China, Japan and Mexico.

The area for Morocco had now been enlarged to make room for an expansion of North Africa, but notably for Algeria and Libya. While Egypt now also had its own area, both Sudan and Somalia also had areas within this section.

It seemed that the largest area of the exhibit was now geared towards the countries of Turkey, Iran, Egypt, India, Pakistan, Indonesia, Saudi Arabia and the UAE. The UAE section also included exhibits for the countries of Oman, Qatar, Bahrain and Kuwait.

This large area displayed great innovations and technological advances and was almost entirely focused on the future. However, there was also an exhibit called 'Never Forget' that included Afghanistan, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and Yemen.

In general, the majority of greeters for this exhibit were either from Jordan or Turkey. These greeters served as both the hosts and tour guides. In order to not insult the greeters, every woman had to first purchase scarves and put them on before even being allowed to enter the park.

There was one exhibit in particular that really stood out to me. This exhibit was called 'The Mosul Exhibit' and was a live simulation of a war torn city, complete with threats, bombs and bloodshed. However, what I found most disturbing was that parts of this exhibit were not 'simulated', but were very real and lethal.

While not confirmed in the dream, I had the impression that people in the USA were now being required to visit Epcot. It seemed as if each person had a scheduled time to do so in order to continue to prove that they were sufficiently 'diverse'. I also had the impression that this was after the Rapture as I did not see any younger children at all.

When a person arrived at Epcot, they were required to carry an entry badge upon purchasing entry. In turn, no one was allowed to leave Epcot until they could prove, via a stamp on their entry badge, that they had toured the inside of 'The Mosul Exhibit'.

Each tour of 'The Mosul Exhibit' would involve around 50 or so people entering at the same time. However, what made this so difficult for me to witness was that each tour group would involve at least three to five people being actually killed or horribly maimed in the exhibit. This involved even women and older 'children' and was just awful to watch.

At the end of 'The Mosul Exhibit', each of the survivors were then forced to receive a Quran. When leaving Epcot, those who did not have both their entry badges stamped and a copy of the Quran were then forced to go through 'The Mosul Exhibit' again. To make matters even worse, their vehicles were promptly seized for not complying.

Dream 1 description over...

Father, after witnessing this dream, I really do not want anything to do with Disney again. Please do not allow this to happen as this was just awful for me to witness.

My next dream was also a very dark dream. However, this dark dream was also dark because the landscape beyond the area of focus was void of light. The Lord will often do this in order to draw my attention to the main features of the dream.

While the Epcot dream had very dark content, it was still in broad daylight as if I was actually in Orlando, Florida touring the exhibits during the daytime. However, this dream was different as all of the outer areas were void of light.

Dream 2 description begins...

I was now transformed, both changed and healed, but somehow still appeared to others as a normal person. I was dressed casually and was wearing a baseball cap and sweats. It seemed like I was in Carmel, California, but it could have even been anywhere else that looked like Southern California.

The city or village area here was very beautiful and was lined with quaint shops. I had walked there from the Inn that I was staying at, along with my husband and daughter. As we came up to the quaint shops, we immediately noticed that they had all now been taken over by various plastic surgeons, laser skin treatment places, body sculpting parlors and tattoo shops.

We then noticed that there were no longer any restaurants and that only detox diet drinks and the like were now available for purchase. There were no longer any places serving meat and the only things available to eat were either fruit or vegetable based.

While there were other people wandering around, my husband pointed out that he was virtually the only man there. As we walked around, people kept coming up to us and asking us 'who had done our work?'

While we then replied that God was our physician, not one single person wanted to hear this.

After we had stated this, people soon started to become belligerent towards us. We decided we would now keep this to ourselves as we were there for a different purpose and did not want the distraction of any potential conflicts.

We observed as people went in and came out of these various shops. While they actually ended up looking much, much worse than when they had went in, everybody lied to each other about how much an improvement it was. We kept hearing things such as, 'Oh, you look fabulous!', 'you look amazing!' and on and on.

The Lord told us that there was not one single person there that thirsted for Him. All they would have needed to do was turn to Him and they would have been healed. Instead, they all preferred this treatment that was actually making them worse.

As we looked at the signs on the fronts of various doctors' offices, we noticed that they were advertising that they were the ones responsible for the 'Transformers' new look. The three of us could not help but laugh when we realized that those of us transformed to be part of God's 'army' were now being referred to as 'The Transformers'.

While people were now lining up to be surgically changed, not one of them was looking to be spiritually saved. I searched the crowd and they all looked so void of life. This was all truly heartbreaking for me to witness.

Dream 2 description ends...

Father, it is so difficult to imagine all of this soon happening. However, it is now so painfully obvious that all of this is already unfolding right before our very eyes. The world is changing more and more rapidly now and it is impossible for us to catch up with all that is happening without Your divine assistance.

I miss the world the way it was just 15 or 20 years ago. This is all so difficult now. It seems as if there are no ethics and promises are broken without a second thought.

As just one example of so many, the insurance company that I deal with through the State of Washington will not cover my disability unless I am seen by my doctor. However, to see my doctor, it is very expensive to travel there.

The pattern they use is the same every time. They threaten to cut off my benefits if I do not see my doctor. They then promise to cover the expenses of travel to see him, but will not do so until after we have seen him. Once we have seen him, they then back out of reimbursing us, but only after I have already spent the money to travel.

In reality, this is a form of extortion. So far, with the four trips we have now taken, they have only covered $1,000. This is just a small fraction of the more than $12,000 we have now spent. Yet, if I do not see my doctor, they will cut me off of disability.

However, they could really cut me off at any time and for any reason. That is just how this corrupt system operates. Even my doctor has told me that he has never had to deal with such a poor system as the one that exists in Washington State.

Father, please make them pay us what they owe us. I am not asking for any more than what they owe, only for what they had promised and what is right. I have to go back to my doctor again in a few months and cannot imagine how we will do this again.

Please heal me, Father, so I no longer have to deal with these snakes. I am tired now and would like to be healed so that I never have to deal with this corrupt organization again. They drain my joy whenever I have to deal with them.

Lord, even if You delay my healing, perhaps You could create another way so that I am not at their mercy and under their law anymore. This system does not even allow for me to stop even if I wanted to. It seems that the only way out of this is to be healed in order for my case to finally be closed.

Father, I also had a deeply disturbing image in a dream that I still cannot shake. The visions from this dream have stayed with me for a few days now.

Dream 3 description begins...

I was standing with an archangel of the Lord, but I was not sure which one. As I stood next to him in his armor at the overlook in Heaven, though not a toddler, I felt as but a toddler in relationship to his size. As I studied the angel, he looked over at me to draw my attention to some land in the heart of the Middle East.

I could see that Israel was to the west and south of a highlighted land, a land that was therefore northeast of Israel. As I stood watching, I saw what looked like an earthquake, complete with plates shifting. It then looked as if the ground had formed into a giant egg and was now hatching a massive black hook as a sprout.

As I continued to watch this sprout grow, it quickly turned into a tree with ten massive branches. The branches looked like spider's legs.

The tree grew and grew and soon had created a massive canopy like a spider web over the entire Earth. This canopy then formed into something that looked like the anatomy of an eyeball. While this 'eye' focused in on Earth, it also seemed to focus towards Heaven at the same time as if to mock God.

The tree trunk appeared to now be like the nerve ending of this giant eyeball. As I looked on all of this, I found it to be very unsettling and felt disturbed in my Spirit. The angel then drew my attention to some small areas that appeared to be types of valleys that dotted the world.

Me: "Angel, what am I looking at?"

Angel: "Erin, these are the 'Valleys of Dry Bones'. There are seven of them."

Me: "Who are in these, angel?"

Angel: "The dead in Christ. However, there is one more, Erin. The 'eighth' is Israel."

Me: I became excited. "Wow, this is from Ezekiel 37, correct?"

Angel: "Erin, there is much more to this. Remember, God's people are the apple of His eye. No matter what attempts to veil you, God is stronger and is the Creator of both Heaven and Earth.

"The tree that you see below grows, but it is charred, blackened in fire. Though this tree grows, since it is dead, it only appears to grow 'with life'. To those that fall under the shade of its canopy, they even see beauty in death. As they are no longer in the light, they now sit in the darkness of the cover of this. This deception is far reaching.

"While God's people were fighting amongst themselves, hurling the Word of God against each other and accusing each other of being false, there were those who were watching them, witnessing their fighting. The time spent tearing down the churches from within has now left a heap of rubble and an open door."

As the angel spoke, I then saw denominations of churches springing up after branching off from their parent churches. I then saw these churches crumbling from within and the only thing remaining being the frame of an open door.

As I looked closer at these open doors, I saw that only young children were now exiting. These children were then fleeing to the streets and running after the 'gods' of this world. I then saw both America and the world and saw that all of these empty churches were now dotting the landscape like empty tombs.

Me: "Angel, this is so sad. Who are all of these children?"

Angel: "These children are those that are the same ages as your children. These children are this generation and the generation before them. These are those who are raised today."

Me: "But angel, there are still some children left who still worship God, love Jesus and even watch for His return."

Angel: "Yes, Erin, but the children who still do this now reside in a different worship center. The foundations of these past places have now crumbled. Things have decayed and what once was can never be again until the Lord comes to restore peace and establish His reign in Jerusalem. Now, Erin, this was not meant to frighten you, but rather was meant to open your eyes to the coming times."

Me: "Angel, speaking of time, I recently saw something that was shown to me by a different angel. While I did not see him close enough to know for sure, I believe he may even be the angel 'Breakthrough' as he did not actually speak to me.

"This angel had used gestures to draw my attention to an event that I can no longer recall. However, I still vividly remember a clock that was sitting next to this highlighted event. The clock was like a steamer ship clock and was made of untarnished brass. It looked heavy, deep and quite thick.

Note: Drawing seems to show 10:58pm, but this is only because I accidentally reversed the big hand with the little hand when I drew this. Sorry!

"As I looked at the clock, I could read that it was now five minutes to midnight, or 11:55pm. However, the large hand suddenly clicked backwards to 11:54pm for just a second or two and then clicked forward to 11:56pm.

"Before I could ask why, the angel pointed out to a field. I noticed that the field was all black and then woke up. Angel, what does this all mean?"

Angel: "The hour is late, Erin. While the church was busy destroying itself from within, an enemy, and enemies, arose from the east. A sleeping giant had awakened and had sprouted a hook like iron.

"This hook then gave birth and has since grown underground with roots so deep that they now come from the blackest depths of Sheol. This tree then sprouted and grew into ten branches. The tree grows from the river that it drinks from.

"However, this tree does not drink from the river which makes glad the City of God, that which refreshes and brings forth life, but rather it drinks black and thick 'water'. However, this 'water' is not truly water, but rather it is oil, and not the oil of joy and peace. This is not the oil for anointing, but rather is the oil for worldly consumption.

"This 'water' then led to a different consumption, a consuming fire that seeks destruction by fire and the sword. It is a massive machine that is turning up the soil because it can. It is an invading army that will descend on Israel like a cloud and like a swarm of locusts.

"Where this machine goes, it takes ownership. No one on Earth can stop it. God will therefore raise up His army and the Lord will come upon the clouds with His vast army. There will be a hook placed in the mouths of those sent to enslave His people."

Me: "Angel, when will this be?"

Angel: "Why concern yourself with time? Can you not see that the time is already upon you? Time is God's to control. Erin, you would be wise to seek His counsel as I do not know that which you seek."

Me: "Angel, I am afraid as each branch of this unholy tree seems to enter into every area of our lives. It enters into all that we consume, whether it is food or oil. For that matter, it also enters into all that we view, hear and even touch. All of the major publishing companies are now owned by them, not to mention the banks, the media, the..."

Angel: "Yes, Erin. While those in the church were veiled, fighting amongst themselves or both, the enemy saw this as a great opportunity to seize. However, you are not to be afraid as God is with you and will not abandon you. Just know that the deception in place is already much greater than even that which you have seen or observed."

Me: "Oh angel, all of this seems to be coming out of nowhere right now. It seems as if everything has changed dramatically in just the last five to seven years."

I was about to describe a purchase I had recently made for one of my sons on line, but the angel nodded at me to indicate that he already knew about this. However, as background, I will describe what recently happened in detail.

I went onto a site that seemed quite pro-American and had purchased a backpack for my son that had an American flag on it. After making this purchase, I started searching some of the 'less obvious' parts of this site.

As I continued to search deeper on the site, I soon found various items that were either pro-Trump, anti-Islamic or anti-ISIS. It was a bit controversial to say the least. At first, this seemed, in a way, to confirm that the backpack I had just purchased was from an American site, even though I was just realizing how controversial this website was.

It was not until a few days later that I had noticed that the payee of the amount for the backpack was to a man with a Muslim sounding name. As I had not yet heard from this site about confirmation or shipping information on my purchase, I decided to contact the head office of the account that I had paid for this from.

Me: "Could you please tell me where this company was from?"

Woman: "While I am not allowed to give you any details, I am able to tell you that this particular company is about eight to twelve hours ahead of your time zone there on the East Coast."

Me: "Are there any bad reports about this particular company?"

Woman: "While I am not really allowed to tell you this either, there really hasn't been any noteworthy reports. Did you want to open a claim?"

Me: "No, I really do not have any reason to at this point."

After we ended the call, I decided to pray to Jesus for help. He then led me to compose a letter using wording that I would typically never use. However, what was really interesting is that He then had me finish the letter with the term 'God speed'. This was quite odd as this was a term I had never even used before.

The Lord then revealed to me that all of the orders for this company were being tracked for their addresses and locations. I shuddered as I then realized that, had I ordered something that was anti-Islamic or anti-ISIS, this company would have now known where I stood. If this company knew this, then the enemy would too!

Shortly after completing and sending the note exactly how the Lord had instructed me to, I promptly received a confirmation message of shipping and received the goods shortly thereafter. I decided to then look up the meaning of 'God speed' to the Islamic world and realized they must have thought that either I was one of them or with the CIA.

The Lord then told me to not worry as it really did not matter. Since I own nothing and have very little in the bank, I was really no threat to the enemy at this point. In other words, the banks track your purchasing patterns and behaviors, all of your financial comings and goings, and weigh this to decide 'your net worth' to them.

Me: "Oh angel, God has placed so many things on my heart recently!"

Angel: "Then list all that God has placed upon you and write it plainly. Do not be afraid, Erin, as God is with you and will not abandon you to the grave or leave you to be overcome by the enemy. You are loved."

He pointed back to the eye again, but then directed me to look at Israel as she sat in the land behind it. As I looked at Israel, I saw that there was now an apple sitting in the middle of her. I smiled at this, but then woke up.

Dream 3 description ends...

Father, please strengthen all of us. Please lift up our heads and fill us with Your supernatural gifts of the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Rouse us out of our slumber and grant us supernatural life. As it stands now, I am like the walking dead.

Recently, I overheard two Muslim women talking about me at a store and was surprised when the Lord granted me the ability to understand their language. I was in shock as they had both looked at me, smiled at each other and then referred to me as a 'white devil pig'.

Oh please, Father, raise us up. I am now old and full of years. If we are to truly witness and work for You, please make us as we were in our youth. I cannot do anything without You. Oh Lord, I love You so much!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately before Jesus as He sat under a beautiful tree. He smiled at me as He stood to His feet and opened His arms. I ran to Him and He hugged me.

Jesus: "I am glad to see you, Erin. You have been busy."

Me: Laughing. "Yes, Lord, but not nearly as busy as You, My Lord."

I then curtsied towards Him. He laughed and smiled at my gesture.

Jesus: Laughing. "Very well then, Erin, you are correct. Now, what have you discovered recently?"

Me: "That the difference between a living tree and a dead tree is obviously..." I looked up into His eyes and smiled. "...obvious!"

Jesus: Laughing. "Which one do you prefer the shade of?"

Me: "Oh Lord, this one." I pointed up at the tree we were under. "I see no death in this one. All I see are beautiful branches supported by a strong trunk. I see beautiful buds, green leaves and even some new fresh fruit. It is wonderful here and I feel so safe. Everything is alive here as this is the Tree of Life." He smiled at my response.

Jesus: "Now, I know that, at times, it seems as if I have abandoned the world. However, I have not and I am always there with you. I have recently placed knowledge on your heart. However, some of this was not new, but from a long time ago."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but I guess I should have taken this more seriously. You first showed me that the quality of garments was deteriorating and that clothing, such as cotton, was becoming thinner and thinner. You showed me that mortgages are owned by banks from all over the world, but that many are really owned by Middle Eastern companies.

"You showed me that things like piercings and tattoos were on the rise and that the media was becoming more and more slanted. Even interior designs were now revolving around the principles found in the Eastern Religions.

"You showed me that the West was slowly eroding and that the great deception was already here amongst us. While we were fighting amongst ourselves, they then came."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, they came as a 'Thief in the Night' and now seek the spoils. Their hope is now for the plunder of the land. You are unable to stand against a giant wave or swarm of invaders on your own. It is only I Who is with you that can stand against these, not he who is in the world. Since I am with you and My Spirit is in you, you have no need to worry. Now, I gave you a date to mark. Do you remember the date?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. It is the date that my mother had told me in a dream. She told me that I needed to be ready and have my affairs in order by September 23rd, 2017. However, I am still not sure why she had given me this."

Jesus: "This marks a celebration of the triune of a nation."

He prompted me to take a quick look on the internet, so I searched for the date on Google. After finding what I thought related to what we were discussing, I went back to inform Him of my findings.

Me: "Lord, this is the time of the unification of a nation in the Middle East, a 'sleeping giant'."

Jesus: "Erin, they have not been sleeping. The tree that you were shown has roots there. Jeremiah prophesized about a cup and a sword. You have only to understand who Ishmael is to understand the roots of their fury.

"Now, who controls the cities of Mecca and Medina? What gods founded these cities? Look at the barren land surrounding these cities. Do you see that My favor has not been upon these cities of false deities?"

Me: "Oh Lord, if You do not strengthen us, we will not be able to survive. Even our food is now supplied by those in control. Our..." I paused when I saw Jesus look at me with empathy. "Oh Lord, You already know that all is controlled by others. Even our debt is controlled and we are now slaves, though most of us do not know it yet."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but Who is God over all? Am I worried at all?" He smiled at me. "Erin, they do not control God and I am with You." He smiled at me again. "If I had not called you Mine, then you would have cause to worry. Since you are Mine, Erin, then do not worry.

"Though their hope is in Ishmael, he is gone. He cannot redeem them as only I am the Redeemer of the world. They do not know Me, Erin, but you do. The times of the prophets are being fulfilled, Erin, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Isaiah and the others.

"This is a time to rejoice. Look up, Erin, for I am coming to build a great and vast army. I will do all that I have said that I would. I will strengthen and heal you, your household and others. Now, there is work to do. Are you ready?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. While my heart is ready, well, my body...not so much."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, I have you. You reside under My Canopy, My Cover, the Bridal Veil."

He smiled and pointed up to the tree. As I looked up, He bent over and gently kissed my forehead.

Dream 244 – God speaks of our enemies in His Courts

Received on Wednesday, May 17, 2017

Communion

Dear Father,

Today, I am feeling older than 54. I overexerted myself yesterday and now I ache. I thank You, Father, for keeping me here a bit longer. I thank You for the gift of sitting beside You.

I thank You for Your Courts and the glimpses of where we will one day live. On days like today, I wish for Home, I wish for You, Father, Your healing Words, Your rolling laughter and the comfort of Your power and omnipotence. Thank You for everything.

Father, I am in awe of the things You share with me. I am in awe that You would consider me at all. With my pain comes overwhelming discouragement. The enemy, my enemies, revels in their victories and I languish in suffering from their effects.

Please do not forget me, Father. Please remember me. I think of You all day long and even in my dreams. I search for You. Please forgive me when worldly troubles come and I worry. I know that You, Father, are ultimately in control. I have removed myself further from things that seem to be but a chasing.

Father, we have been under severe attack from all angles just as You had told me that we would be. We are being attacked with sickness. Our transportation, finances, family, children and spirituality are all being attacked. Just when I feel that we are being blessed and in Your favor, the attacks come again.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was at the door to God's Court and Uriel greeted me in full armor.

Uriel: "The King requests your presence, Erin."

Me: "Uriel, you have been in battle."

Uriel: "Yes, Erin, there is a major battle surrounding the land and I must go back. I have only returned here to bring you to God this day. It is a difficult time for many, Erin. There is a stronghold over great territories."

Me: "Are you winning?"

Uriel: "Since God is in control, victory is assured, but there is still a war. The enemies of God do not just surrender. If they do, aside from what is written, do not believe such a trick as surely this is designed to overcome you. It is false and a great deception."

Me: "So, are the angels now aggressive towards the enemies of God?"

Uriel: "By the command of God, we are still on the defensive right now. We are thwarting the enemy's schemes and enforcing God's boundaries on him."

Me: "How can God's enemies go outside of His Will?"

Uriel: "They do not play by the rules set forth, so we are there to strike down attacks that do not align with God's Clock and Calendar. They are now hastening various means of attacks to deter God's elect and discourage many. They understand that the hour is late and have used trickery."

Me: "But does God not know everything?"

Uriel: "Yes, but time continues. God has a plan and the enemy is opposed to His plan. The enemy has now built up counteroffensives that we have been removing. However, God is growing tired of the rebellious and is soon to punish the land under their feet as evil continues to pursue the righteous. Though God is angry, He is also never surprised by the wicked, understand?"

Me: "I think so."

Uriel: "Erin, God is with you. You worry too much. However, this is understandable from your low vantage point. Now, come, as God requests your presence."

Uriel reached over, put salve in my eyes and brought me through God's door into His Court. I could hear choirs of angels. He then brought me as far as I could go and then, at a certain point, I simply had to drop straight to my knees. Uriel stood behind me as I knelt before the Throne of God.

I wept with my head down and even as I write. I prayed for forgiveness over coveting, partnering with the world, being of the world and not obeying God's principles and laws meant to prosper us. As my husband recently said, we sometimes treat the 'Ten Commandments' more like the 'Ten Suggestions'.

I then heard the clamor and shuffling of chains. As I looked to my left, I saw a very long line. The line was three people across and hundreds of people deep. They were being led into the Court by angels with full armor, but different than their battle armor.

The people wept, cursed and moaned as they were forced to go before God. While they were still dressed in worldly clothing, each looked as if they had either been in storms, oil and tar or had experienced brutal punishment.

To say they least, none of the people looked clean. Though Uriel and I were still standing right there with them, the people in the line did not seem to notice us. While I was unsure, I thought that I recognized some of the people in line.

The angels then gave a shout and the people immediately all fell to their knees. I heard the angels shout again as another angel went row by row waving his arm. When he did this, the people's lips loosened and they all began to confess.

Uriel: Speaking quietly just over my shoulder. "Erin, these are your accusers. These are those who curse you continuously at the mere mention of your name."

Me: "But, Uriel, I do not recognize many of them, if any."

Uriel: "These are soon to come and even more so. Look, the line does not end."

I looked over towards the door that they were coming in from and saw that there were more and more still lining up.

Me: "Oh, wow, this is sad."

Uriel: "Erin, now look over here."

I then saw a second door with many people that I recognized, but also some that I did not recognize. I saw people there from the beginning of my life and right up until now. The people in this line were being lined up in pairs. As I inspected this line more closely, I soon recognized more and more people. It seemed that these were people that had aided and abetted my main enemies.

Uriel then brought my attention to a third door that was even closer to God's Throne than the second door. The people coming through this door were in single file and the lineup was extremely long. There were so many people that I recognized there. I was then shocked to see many other people there as well, many I did not recognize.

Me: "Who are the people in this line that I do not recognize?"

Uriel: "These are the people who were instrumental in both your loss of function and in the breaking of your heart. These are the people who were set on your destruction, your death and/or your poverty, all for revenge. These are the people who stole so much from you. Each of these people will now confess to their part in robbing you. Each one must state their case before God solely on the truth.

"Now, look over there. This is a type of movie screen. This is where Jesus stands before God. Also standing over there right next to these people is the enemy. The enemy delights in their destruction and has no loyalty to any of them. No matter how much loyalty some of these people had for the enemy, the enemy has no loyalty at all.

"Now, as your enemies approach God, they will have no choice but to confess before Him on their knees. The entire truth will then play on this screen so that all those in the Court will also see how the other two groups participated in all of this.

"Now, this third door, the one that is closest to God, contains your blacksmiths. The second door contains all those who aided your blacksmiths. The first door contains all those who aided all of them. Many at the first door had done this by bending an eager ear to gossip, using eager lips to spread lies or both.

“Most in this third group is related to your ministry, the dreams and visions that God has given you. Now, many will receive forgiveness as they will plead for mercy. Those in the third door, your blacksmiths, already had many chances to, but did not.”

I then looked up and saw my birth name and photo appear on the screen. An angel then recited my aliases to the people out loud. As he did, I heard moans, screams and curses, followed by weeping. There was a stench as well. There were people associated with each bridge of my life weeping and gnashing their clenched teeth.

It was quite painful to then see various things on the screen as I had no idea that some of these things had ever happened. It was horrible. However, just as quickly as I saw an image, it was quickly erased from my memory. These images faded so quickly from my memory that I had no time or ability to write any of them down.

Me: “Uriel, what is happening?”

Uriel: “These memories, these parts of your history, were shielded from you. Erin, God only gives you what you are able to handle. Many a man or woman, like you, will have this, but most of their lines of enemies are short in comparison.

“Your lines are very long as the enemy has never stopped his wars upon you. He has sent trouble upon you like rain. He has sent trouble upon you like an ocean, with wave after wave after wave sweeping over you. The enemy has never stopped. Just as the oceans do not sleep at night, neither has the enemy.”

Me: “Uriel, this has been a difficult life for us.”

Uriel: “I know, Erin. While it seems as if your attacks do not stop and will continue, just know that God sees them all and will soon vindicate you.”

God: “Erin...”

I quickly bowed down.

God: "All of your enemies are before Me just as you see them now. They are before Me. Calamity has come upon you for your entire life, yet you remain here and you seek Me. Therefore, I will grant you what you seek and that which you ask."

Me: Crying. "Father, it would bring me no joy to see You destroy my enemies. The thought of them, along with the misery and shame that came with this, makes me sick..." I then added with a smile. "...and I am still not sure about half the Kingdom."

"Father, something is on my heart. Could You make right all that my enemies have taken from us? I cannot be God over them, but, Father, You can. Could You heal my children? Could You heal me both inside and out?"

"Father, could You spread these dreams to those who hunger, thirst and want to know You and Jesus better? You have created, through me, a giant love letter to the lost, the weary and those broken in spirit.

"I never knew how truly awesome You are until You called me into relationship with You. Please do not take me Home until I am able to help others see You for the incredible Father and awesome God that You are! I pray that I have not asked for too much."

God: "Erin, this was already granted, as well as your field. Do not worry."

I heard someone moan just after God spoke of the field that He had promised to soon give me.

Me: "Who was that moaning?"

God: "Would you not moan at the mention of your guilt before God if you sought to justify it? I own the land and everything in it. The stars are mine. The moon and the sun are mine. Who can argue and say, 'Hey, that's mine, bought and paid for'? No one can say this.

"I sent My Son to send Good News that the Noteholder has released their guilt and removed their sins. I even gave My Son as a blood sacrifice. Even then, they continue to live contrary to My Commandments."

Me: "Are You the Noteholder?"

God: "Yes. I sent My Son and, by His Blood, He became ransom to set the captives free. Many then went straight from prison and into the darkness to continue their sin. Now, as you can see in My Court, those who are before Me now owe Me a great debt. I have called in their note.

"I have recorded their transgressions and have bound them up in chains. Here they are. Many claim to know Me, yet they do not know My Son. If they have the Holy Spirit speaking knowledge and wisdom to them, then they are deaf and have rejected My Counsel. So, here they are. Now, who will stand up for this one?"

Suddenly, I saw a man that I could now barely recognize, but had treated me and my children so unfairly from many years ago. I noticed that not one person spoke up for him and that Jesus was no longer there. Suddenly, the man started to bargain with God.

Man: "I have done this for you. I did this..." He began to list several items.

God: "Because you have harmed many in My Name when I had not called you to do this, you claimed yourself 'god' over the innocent. You have failed to recognize the effects of the harm you have done. I have called you many times to turn from your wickedness, to repent in brokenness to Me and to seek and accept My Son, but you refused.

"Therefore, I do not hear you and your pleading falls on deaf ears. You had no compassion on those who are Mine. Several times, you were able to prevent harm. You acted as judge and jury, yet never once administered fair justice on their behalf. You favored the evil and caused them countless harm. Just as you judged, you too will be judged. You are removed from My sight until your day of judgment. Next..."

Just then, another man, shaking uncontrollably, began to confess many horrible things.

God: "Enough, it is too late. No more, I am finished."

God then put this aside and went back to addressing me.

God: "Erin, I will continue in My Courts, but you needed to know that I love you, I have not left you, I will not forsake you and that I grant good gifts to those that I love."

Me: "Father, this makes me sad. It is difficult to witness."

God: "While I am the God of justice and mercy, those here have forsaken Me and rejected My Son. Therefore, I do not know them. I have reserved a place for them until the time of judgment. They will reside with the sons of Moloch and those who do all kinds of evil.

"Now, things are about to change. I love you and have something wonderful planned for you and your household. I will heal your broken heart and comfort you. You will help many even as your lines of enemies steadily increase."

Me: "Then I give all of my enemies to You, Father, in Jesus' Name."

God: Laughing. "Very well, Erin, I have them. Their life is not their own and, just as your life has been given to Me in surrender, they still cling to theirs. I will rescue you from their clutches."

Uriel brought me to my feet.

Dream 245 – God, Uriel and the Parade of Clouds

Received on Monday, May 22, 2017

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. I am so blessed to still be here to see my children grow with each passing day. I cannot thank You enough for all that You have done from beginning to end.

Yesterday, You called me to 2 Samuel 22, David's prayer to You. I spent time on each line in remembrance of all that You have done for me and my house. Next to each sentence, You placed on my heart various remarkable dates.

I definitely saw a pattern of lamenting. First, my tests, then my trials and then me pleading to You for mercy. In hindsight, there was also a pattern of You calling for me to pray Your Will over my enemies in order to release them, and my worries, from my hands over to Your hands.

I now realize that, by my action of carrying the weight or yoke of what had been done to me, but especially to my children, I had replaced Your unlimited sovereign power over them with my extremely limited personal power over them. In other words, by my own inability to release the actions of my enemies over to You through forgiveness, I had created an open door whereby my enemies could continue to inflict harm on us.

Father, when I had believed that You were not noticing what my enemies were continuing to do to us, I began to lose hope. I would then bury my hope altogether. Later, and after great attacks and me helpless with no end in sight, I would finally fall to my knees and ask You for forgiveness and to help me.

Every time I did this, You would then answer my cries and deliver us from harm. However, I also believe that I was the cause of many a delay due to my inability to trust in You fully to handle my problems. When trouble came, I would often instead complain, 'Lord, is there really still more in me that must be tested before I am freed?'

Well, now, today, as I stand before You, I am in awe of You. I take comfort in what You have promised. I take comfort in Your divine justice and in how intricate You are. I pray that my lips speak blessings and not curses on others. I never thought I would ever be before Your Throne, Almighty Father.

Please forgive me for any trespasses I have done against others. I pray that, when I do come before You in Your Courts, You find me blameless. I pray that I have confessed all of my evil before You and that I am then able to wear a gown of white. One day, I pray that I will then be able to put on a garment of thanksgiving before You.

Father, I release all of my enemies, along with their schemes, to You. We have been under extreme attacks this spring, but we have really been under attack for many seasons. Well, in reality, I cannot even recall any true time of peace in years and years.

That being said, I have had many a day of 'false peace'. What I mean by this is that I would just finish enjoying a beautiful peaceful day only to find out the very next day that the enemy had launched several surprise attacks on me while I was blissfully unaware just the day before.

One such attack from almost seven years ago, in June of 2010, was so severe that it even affected my heart. The kids and I had planned a trip for June 26th through to July 4th, returning on July 5th. This was to be the very first family vacation that I ever actually had the money to take them.

I had already arranged for time off from work and had booked a hotel for two nights at a place with a water park right next to us. We were going to go to Coeur D'Alene, Idaho first and then off to be with family the rest of the time we were out there.

It was now the day before June 26th and I was already fully prepared to leave for vacation. After I was to pick up my daughter from school, I had then planned to pick up my boys from their dad's. The car was now packed for tomorrow and the four of us were so excited about heading off on our very first vacation together.

Well, our laughter and joy soon turned to sorrow thanks to the plots of their father, still my greatest enemy to this day. At 2:00pm on June 25th, 2010, the kids' dad had strategically used the courts to serve a restraining order on me. I was instantly no longer even allowed to have any contact with my sons.

A police officer served me the restraining order while I was at work and it was humiliating. However, this humiliation soon turned to so much stress that I vomited on the office floor. Normally I could make it to a restroom first, but I simply could not stop it. The room then began to spin all around me and I had to sit down before I fell.

The restraining order had come as a complete surprise to me. This man had lured me to move away from beautiful Bend, Oregon, to the desert, under a false pretense of peace and had waited for just this moment. I suddenly realized this was really a well-orchestrated trap. By foolishly trusting this man, I had fallen into his trap.

Once I gathered myself off of the floor, I quickly tried to phone the courthouse, but it was already closed. I tried everything that I could think of. After asking around, I received a recommendation for a lawyer at a larger firm and I immediately called his office.

I reached the lawyer's assistant as the lawyer was unavailable. I soon discovered that we both had kids that went to the same school. After I explained the whole situation, he informed me as to why this restraining order had been specifically timed for today.

Assistant: "The timing of this restraining order is very strategic. It was specifically timed so that the courts would not even be able to look at this more carefully until the middle of July. We have seen this type of strategy used before. This usually happens just before a major family vacation so that the other person is not able to have contact with their children.

"Now, I have to ask you a few questions relating to the restraining order. Have you ever been neglectful, a drug user or an alcoholic? Are you a frequent dater with various men? Do you have a criminal record?"

Me: "No! I have never done any of these things. I have never done anything to warrant any of this. While the other side has been guilty of every single one of these things, I have not done any of them."

Assistant: "Okay, this is good. We require $5,000 immediately for us to start. You will then need to find people who will stand up for your character."

I felt like vomiting again. I could not even believe what I was hearing. Needless to say, I quickly cancelled our vacation plans and our reservations. I had no idea what to do next. When I phoned friends that I knew would vouch for me, I found out that they were on vacation and unreachable. It was summer break for their kids as well.

I quickly realized that my greatest enemy had just pulled off the sneak attack of the century. He had been so amicable to me leading up to this, but then unleashed his special brand of hell once it was time. I did not have $5,000 for the lawyer. I had just $1,500 to my name. That was it! I had 'no hope and no way'!

When the paperwork finally arrived a few days later, my heart dropped when I read the magnitude of what had just come against me. There were so many lies and accusations in these documents that I still cannot even believe it.

After many painful days of crying out in despair, I was finally given the chance to go in front of a judge to plead my case. Once I was able to tell my side of the story, the restraining order was quickly thrown out and labeled as 'menacing and without merit'.

Unfortunately, damage was still done and this was just the beginning of a major war. I was now forced to battle the enemy on his terms and on his turf. This would soon drain everything from me, including both my health and all of my money. I still cannot believe all that happened and it still hurts to recall these painful memories.

Father, though this battle was eventually won, it was not in the timing or way I had prayed for. However, all was perfect and all of my children are now with me here in the 'Land of the Trees'. They have been here with me, and completely legally, ever since the enemy signed them away on August 23rd, 2014.

This was the very day that You had promised it would happen many weeks before and was publicly disclosed on our website well in advance. This was to be on a Saturday no less and had made us wonder how this could even be. You had told us to have our belongings moved on faith and that You would deliver us on August 23rd.

Father, You did just as You had promised. You have freed me and all of my children from my oppressor. While this man still has contact with the children as per our legal agreement, we are just so thankful to You for limiting their time with him.

Okay, the Lord just helped me discover a really strange twist to this story! Without me realizing it until just today, the legal papers served to our enemy requesting the relocation of all of my children occurred on June 25th, 2014. This was four years to the day from the day I had received the restraining order on June 25th, 2010. Amazing!!

While my attorney in 2010 was 'less than ideal', this time, Father, You had sent us the perfect attorney. We soon found out that my enemy was now having trouble with his attorney, the very same attorney he had used on me back in 2010.

This was now turning out to be even better than any scene in any reality show on television. The Lord guided us as we launched a massive counteroffensive. It was His time to have us shine!

Jesus then reassured me that we would win and that we would do so without even needing to go to court. While this seemed impossible given the years I had to spend in court the last time I battled this man, I fully trusted in what He had spoken to me.

While I did have to attend a court hearing, it was cancelled when my enemy's attorney did not show. It turned out that he had a mysterious accident and was bedridden. Interestingly, he had been in an accident that caused him to have the same physical symptoms as mine, symptoms that he had just openly mocked just days earlier.

Any court dates that were to happen after that were either canceled or delayed, each time by the opposition. We later found out that they were doing this to try to stall us until the start of a new school year in the desert. Anyway, in the end, no court was required, just as God had promised.

While this was great news, all of this was still taking a toll on me. Not only was I now injured and in pain, but we were still living in my now hostile ex-employer's rental property. Even though I was in good standing and my rent was fully paid up, it was unsettling to now be living on enemy grounds.

As advised by my lawyer, I made sure that I kept to myself and completely stayed off of social media. Unlike last time, many people were actually home and available to come forward to vouch for my character. Many of these people were common to me and my enemy. It felt wonderful to have so many people come forward on our behalf.

My former employer had now become increasingly hostile and had even teamed up with my enemy. I then hired a different attorney to fight my ex-employer and we quickly sent them a cease and desist letter. The letter worked and had enough teeth in it to hold off their threats and slander.

Here is the amazing part about my ex-employer becoming one of my enemies. Just a few weeks before my injury, my recorded performance review contained glowing reviews and praises. Yet, somehow, due to my injury, they then decided to falsely accuse me of so many ridiculous things that they ended up contradicting themselves.

It was now August 22nd and we were still prisoners. My oldest son had now told both his father and his grandmother that he absolutely wanted to move with us. This infuriated my enemy even more. We decided to pray together. We asked God to have mercy on us and to force 'pharaoh' to allow us to flee 'Egypt'.

It worked and God did the miraculous! He even had this all work out by my enemy's initiation and all with NO COURT! He signed away all of the children on the morning of August 23rd, 2014, a Saturday no less, and it was all legally binding! While my accident has continued to be painful and has changed my life, the Lord used this to get us out of the desert and into the 'Land of the Trees'.

While his attorney later made him realize the error of signing the release document, God stopped him from coming after us. Despite our victory, he was still arrogantly confident that I would soon fail at my marriage and that we would then be left destitute and homeless. At the very least, he was confident that the kids would soon realize their 'mistake' of moving with me and beg him to let them come 'home'.

Oh, how wrong he was! He failed to see that our Father was on my side, not his! While God had also been 'for me' last time too, my time of hammering was no longer needed this time and He freed me. We made it out of the desert and into the 'Land of the Trees'. Thank You, Father!

I must admit that life has never been easy for me. Enemy after enemy has risen up. Even after God delivers us, the enemy still remains to pursue us and he has, over and over again. Even as I wrote this last sentence, I just received an alert from the insurance company that they have once again rejected payment for my medical treatment travel expenses.

While this entity continues to force me to jump through hoops to get treatment, they then pull the rug out from under us at the last second. Father, please deliver us from this institution once and for all. By law, I am unable to seek medical treatment on my own accord, so please close this and deliver me from this corrupt enemy.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was overlooking a beautiful valley teeming with spectacular flowers, colorful birds and amazing animals. Instead of being timid as they would be on Earth, the animals ran openly, grazed in the meadows and drank from the springs, all without any fear at all.

The sky was a beautiful blue dotted with pretty white clouds. I started to laugh when I noticed that the clouds were actually shaped like animals and moving as if in a parade. I laughed even harder when I realized that God had created this sky show just for me. The intricate details in these clouds were amazing and had no earthly comparison.

I had such joy here as I was no longer in pain. I felt young again and noticed that my hands were perfect and wrinkle free. I ran over to take a drink of water from a nearby spring pouring out from a rock. As I came closer to the spring, I noticed that the little confit pot was there and was already filled with fresh cool water.

Before going back to sit in the grass to continue watching God's 'Amazing Cloud Show', I drank and drank. I shook my head and laughed again when I noticed that the entire cloud parade had paused to allow me to drink some water and settle in.

After I sat down and got comfortable, the parade of clouds immediately continued. I watched the clouds form into a ewe that gave birth to a lamb. The ewe soon faded away, but the lamb remained. The lamb soon 'walked off course', but a massive hand with a shepherd's hook quickly pulled her back onto the path.

I could tell there was some movement around me, so I looked around. I noticed that all of the small animals in the valley and next to me were now sitting and looking up at the cloud parade with me. I only then realized that the sound of the animals being excited had come exactly when they had witnessed the lamb being guided back onto the path.

I laughed with joy as I started to realize just how different the animals are here in Heaven compared to those on Earth. While they are much more friendly, smarter and interactive here, it somehow still feels perfectly natural and, well, perfectly perfect!

As I continued to enjoy watching all of the adorable animals, a small furry chinchilla like animal came up to me. This adorable ball of cuteness looked up at me, then looked at my lap and then looked back up at me again.

Me: Laughing. "Do you want to sit on my lap?" It moved its head up and down as if to say 'yes'. I laughed and smiled. "Well, come on up then!"

It climbed up on my lap and rolled over on its back to view the Cloud Show. As I gently patted its soft tummy, I realized that doing so made me so...happy!! I looked back up at the sky and suddenly realized that it had once again been paused for me to allow me to settle in and get all comfortable again. I laughed and thanked God for this.

The clouds 'started up' again and showed the lamb changing into various stages of its life. At each stage, I saw a different predator come after the lamb. However, the predators became larger and more ferocious each time. I was actually amazed at how disproportionate in size and number these predators were in comparison to the lamb.

We watched as each time the predator's 'jaws of death' looked like they were just about to swallow the little lamb whole, a massive sword always came at the last moment and cut down the predator. Every time that the predator cloud shape was cut in half, it would start fading away and then soon completely disappear.

The lamb soon grew into a ewe herself. I then watched as she gave birth; first to one lamb, then two and then to a third lamb. I then watched as even more predators, now in the shapes of wolves, joined together to try and remove each of the lambs. However, each time they went to attack, God's sword cut them down and they quickly dispersed.

I cried with joy at seeing God's power in cutting these enemies down. The animals witnessing this with me spun around, danced and jumped for joy as each wolf was cut in half. They seemed just as overjoyed by each victory as I was.

After this, I saw a sheep fold form, but soon even more wolves came. However, God formed a type of dome cover. The sheep were now protected by a dome that looked similar to a giant bubble blown from soap. I became overjoyed again when I saw that the protected sheep were now increasing in number much faster than the wolves were.

I lifted my hands in praise to God and thanked Him for this awesome show of hope. As I worshipped Him with all of my heart, I felt a hand gently touch my shoulder. I looked over and there was Uriel standing there in his full armor.

Uriel: Smiling. "So, Erin, are you enjoying the show?"

Me: "Oh yes! I guess my head is in the clouds...counting sheep...and maybe some of the wolves too."

Uriel: Laughing. "Greater is He Who is with the Sheep, the Shepherd, than he who is against them, the wolves."

Me: "The wolves are many."

Uriel: "Yes, but they are no longer enemies here in Heaven. They are no longer predators here."

He pointed down towards the valley and there, in the distance, I could see a den of wolves. They were beautiful and playful. They were in friendly interaction with the other animals and definitely were not hunting them. There was no fear here at all.

Me: "Wow, there are wolves here in Heaven?"

Uriel: "Yes, Erin, and there are lions and bears here as well. However, they have no need to hunt for unsuspecting prey here. This is a peaceful valley without fear of bloodshed and sudden destruction. Now, Erin, the King, God, requests your presence."

I quickly jumped up to my feet. Uriel reached over for my hand and we were instantly in front of God's Door.

Uriel: Smiling. "Erin, look up."

I looked up towards the sky and noticed that all of the clouds were now bathed in shining gold. I then saw the clouds form into golden sheep that were now very strong looking.

Me: "Uriel, what does this mean?"

Uriel: "Things are soon to change for many of you. God has sent angels concerning you. His recompense is with Him. Schemes are crafted in the darkness and give birth to destruction. However, you are not to fear as God sees what the wicked do in secret and will not prosper their evil plans against you."

Me: "Uriel, I just want freedom from all of them. I am not comfortable in rejoicing in their demise. I have been a victim of the schemes of the wicked since my youth. During most of these times, I completely lacked knowledge and Godly wisdom."

Uriel: "Erin, God just showed you that He already knows this, that your name is still written on the palm of His hand and that you are ever before Him. He has never forgotten you. He created the clouds before you and your story is now even written on the tablet of the sky.

"More importantly, His love story to you is also written on the tablet of His heart. You are loved, Erin. He does not sit like a young hungry lion waiting for you to sin or make a mistake. He does not look to pounce and tear you to shreds and devour you, leaving your carcass to the vultures. This is not the character of God.

“Even though, at times, you are left to wonder about what is coming next as it appears that the enemy has victory after victory against you, do not worry. God has a plan and soon their dancing will be turned into mourning. Now, God requests your presence.”

He reached over and put something like Vaseline over my eyes. He then brought me through God’s Door and into His Courts. The music was beautiful and unlike anything here on Earth. I could hear a choir of angels singing in perfect harmony.

Angels: “Holy, holy, holy, merciful and mighty, glorious is He and worthy to be praised! To God be the glory forever more! Hallelujah, hallelujah, forever and ever, hallelujah, hallelujah!”

The music went straight into my body and flowed through my veins and muscles. Even my very bones could feel their worship song. As I listened, Uriel brought me as close as he could to the Throne. My knees soon buckled right there on the Sea of Glass. I put my head down and praised Him for quite some time.

I thanked Him for saving me from the enemy’s countless schemes. I thanked Him for removing us to a spot where our enemies were unable to hurt us like they were still continuously plotting to. I then thanked Him in advance for the healing He has promised.

Me: “Father, I am so sorry for not trusting in You fully. All of this trouble has made it so hard to see all the good that has come from all that You have done for us. I am so sorry for burying my hope. Please, please, Father, please forgive me.”

God: “Erin, you are forgiven. You are not here on trial. Although the enemy pursues you just like he did My servant, David, you are here with Me.”

My attention was drawn back to the three doors, the same ones I had just seen in my previous dream. They were sitting there to my left.

God: “Your enemies are on the wrong side of My Court and come through those doors instead. The guilty do not come before the Judge willingly and by personal invitation like you do, but are instead summoned by force. The sounds of their voices are like noise and clamor to Me. Their stench does not please Me, so their time here is swift.

"You, Erin, come to My Door by invitation. While it is good to fear Me, you are not to be afraid of Me. While one should be in fear of Me when in sin, they should not be in fear of Me when doing what they have been called to do for My purposes.

"Now, I know that, at times, you think that perhaps you have sinned and are out of My favor. Erin, you are not. You are being used as a unit of measure. While I also use evil against evil as a measure at times, I measure wicked men, and women, by their actions against My elect.

"Erin, I do not repay evil with good nor do I promote their schemes to further their course. While I allow the wicked to prosper, I do so only within My perimeters and within that which has been foretold. While the wicked then receives that which the world offers, remember that this will be their only reward.

"Erin, though you have lost the world, you have gained eternity here. While the time you have had in the world has gone swiftly, especially when evil seems to prevail, I tell you the truth, Erin, the wicked do not reside here. Those who do not turn from evil and repent before Me in humility are far removed from Me.

"Each day, the wicked are more and more pleased with themselves even as the evidence against them mounts. One day soon, they will wake up and be in shock when those they have been inflicting have been removed from harm just like the clouds you just saw."

Me: "Father, things are now accelerating so rapidly. It seems that evil is now the main course and that there is very little good left."

God: "Erin, you have been shown the schemes of the wicked. The enemy would now have you distracted as he knows that I will soon call you to something even greater. Soon you will understand. Now, speak of your recent dreams."

Me: "Yes, Father. On May 14th, You made me aware of some trouble coming. I discovered something, but, really, You showed me. I do not know if this is for now or for another time. However, I have been having a hard time writing about this out of fear. I am sorry.

"The first thing You showed me was from an article from a Muslim prayer site. As the organization sponsoring this site is supposedly 'peaceful' and 'mainstream', I was not expecting to see anything dramatic. As I looked at the picture included with the article, I was slightly puzzled as to why You would have me continue to look there. It was then that I suddenly saw the 'item' attached to the boy just above his 'praying' hands.

"I quickly took a screenshot. I then watched as several comments were then made below the image about how great the article was. Finally, after about two days, someone commented about the explosives strapped to the boy. Within a few hours after the comment, the picture was replaced with an uncontroversial one."

NOTE: After this dream was finished, I was later shown a congratulations message to the terrorist that murdered dozens of people, mostly children, at a recent Ariana Grande concert that I was led to add. This was such a horrific event, yet the people running this site took noticeable glee in their deaths.

"I also had a dream the night before last and I was off to a gala. I was wearing black mismatched shoes. One was a winter clog and the other was a black tennis shoe. It was only then that I suddenly realized that I could have been wearing beautiful sandals the whole time instead."

God: "Look at it this way instead. Beautiful are the feet of those who bring Good News no matter what they are wearing on their feet. Even though you will soon travel to many places, you will still feel a bit unworthy for your call. However, do not worry, Erin, as I will equip you properly in all that you do. I also have plans to heal you soon."

Me: "Thank You, Father. The left side of my face and arm are now numb. It feels as if I had just been to the dentist. This is very uncomfortable for me."

God: "I will do everything I have promised in its time and in a short, short while. Now, there is even greater trouble coming to 'your land' as the enemy has begun portioning off 'the land'. Now, look down there."

God split the Sea of Glass to show the Earth below us. I somehow then knew I was to look directly towards the Middle East.

God: "Erin, this is Babylon."

An area of land quite near to Israel lit up. However, I somehow knew that He was also referring to Islam in its entirety.

God: "Erin, this is the 'Land of the Ten Leaders'."

Me: "But, Father, I thought that the USA was Babylon."

God: "Yes, but it is a different type of Babylon and more like Tyre. Now, it is important for you to write clearly all that you soon will be shown."

Me: "Father, I stumbled on an Islamic website about a week ago, but I now believe that You had actually sent me there. I discovered something there that I do not believe many saw. I saw a photo and a countdown showing that there were only a few days left, but to what?"

"Israel will be celebrating the Jubilee of Jerusalem soon, on May 24th. The President and his cabinet will also be there at the same time. The Palestinians have called for a 'Day of Rage' while they are visiting Bethlehem.

"I am worried and have been praying for Israel and the USA ever since. I believe that, either this year or next, but perhaps even tomorrow, something might happen."

God: "While you are wise to take note, Erin, remember that I am here sitting on the Throne and know about every deal that is made in secret. Now, a long time ago, you were shown swift horses as the enemy descended upon Jerusalem like a cloud."

Me: "Yes, Father. A contract went out and was signed against her. Was the USA recently tricked?"

God: "This is enough for today. I will remove your enemies and provide for you all that I have promised and more. You will see walls removed. You will then focus on that which I reveal and deal less with your trouble. I have found favor with you. I love you."

Me: "I love You, Father."

Uriel brought me to God's Door. I decided to turn back around towards the direction of the Throne. While I could not see God, the light from Him shined bright. I was in tears.

Me: Crying. "Thank You, Father, for opening Your Door for me."

I then put my hand over my heart and curtsied towards Him. I heard the roll of His laughter. I felt that this had made Him happy, almost like an offering of sorts.

God: Laughing. "Erin, you will always come through this door, not through those other doors, so do not worry."

As Uriel took me out of the Door, I turned around again and waved goodbye, but really 'see You again soon'.

Uriel: Directing my attention back to him. "Now, Erin, this is important. Several things you have been shown are interwoven and are significant."

Me: "Yes, Uriel. I have composed a list of things that I have noticed recently:

- Ramadan starts in five days and there is a plot in place.
- Palestine has called for a 'Day of Rage' during the President's visit to Bethlehem.
- There is a great celebration in Israel as this is the 50th Year of Jerusalem, the Jubilee. This is when God delivered Jerusalem back to the Jews.
- The President, his family and his cabinet will all be there to take part in the celebrations.
- North Korea has stepped up their provocations.
- The USA is now divided, politically and racially, like no other time in history.
- Recently, the weather has been extremely bad.
- I have been shown that we will soon experience record heat as God will be turning up the heat to batter the land.
- I see resources being stripped, along with crops and communications. I see downed electrical lines. This all looks like this could be for this summer.
- I see problems with travel.

"I have had several dreams about all of this and have asked God to allow my kids to stay home this summer. I have prayed that they will be unable to travel or that my enemy simply does not want to have them come this time. Uriel, I feel that so much is not right with the world right now."

Uriel: "Yes, Erin, there are epic battles taking place. However, there are many more soon, very soon, to come. I am still in my battle gear for a reason. We are heading off several enemy breaches right now. The heaviness you feel in the atmosphere around you is due to all of this taking place right now.

"Now, be careful of what you believe as truth via communications received from 'the world'. Very little they now say is the truth. The rules have changed and much more is now permissible, even though most of it is not beneficial. Your only trusted Source is to now be the Word of God and the Counselor, the Holy Spirit, God's Voice in you.

"Now, be careful about using the web. Remember the size of the spider that controls the web. Michael is battling this 'spider' right now, along with several of us. As soon as several areas of attack are cut down, new ones instantly spring forth in their place.

"Erin, you must put everything before God. Pray over your devices and remind your household of the dangers. Be diligent, Erin, as there is an epic battle that continues. You will soon be called into even greater service.

"Yes, Erin, you are a type of soldier, but, even more importantly, you are a Bride. Just remember that the Groom always sends Gifts ahead before He comes for her, okay?"

I must have still looked a bit worried despite his reassurances as Uriel then smiled at me and gently placed a reassuring hand onto my shoulder. I nodded in agreement.

Me: "Okay, Uriel."

Uriel: "Do not worry. The times of the prophets, that which is written, is soon coming to pass. You will see it unfold and be amazed."

Me: "Uriel, did the Lord send the beautiful little Kingfisher to my bird feeder earlier today?"

Uriel: Smiling. "Yes, Erin. Remember that everything Good and Holy only comes from God. If He is surely in the big things, then He is surely also in the small things. He delights in you. When you smile, it makes His heart glad.”

Me: “Please tell Him to send more, okay?”

Uriel: Laughing. “Erin, tell Him yourself. His Door is always open to You.”

I looked over to God’s Door and it was open. I wanted to walk back, but looked over at Uriel first. He smiled and gave me an approving nod. I opened the door slightly and looked towards the bright light as best I could. I knew God was there, but still could not see Him through the indescribably intense brightness.

Me: Smiling. “Father, thank You for sending the Kingfisher. Oh, yes, and thank You for all of the little chickadees as well.”

God: I heard rolling laughter. “You are very welcome, Erin. I will send even more.”

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for the peace of having my children here with me. Thank You for having my husband's children with us also. Thank you for our home in a beautiful place.

Even though spring came late here in our region, the promise of summer has come quickly and the blossoming trees are now turning to green. Today, I give You a heart of extreme gratitude. I love You, Father!

You protect us and sustain us. Your laws and gentle rebukes keep us on the Good Path. Your Words are like diamonds, treasures on the journey of life. You are my greatest Treasure! You are my Father, my Friend and my Counsellor. Everything that You do and/or allow is for the benefit of our hearts. Your treasure is our hearts.

I have been running from You lately. I have been running away from coming to You. I just know that the enemy has done his best to try and keep me from You. I am sorry, Father, please forgive me. I should be pressing into You, not running away from You.

I must be honest with You. I do not like what You have been showing me through my dreams and visions recently. So much more now makes sense, but I am still wrestling with how I feel about it. At one time, I somehow thought all of the watching Christians would gather together and intercede to stop the evil plans of the wicked.

However, I have since come to realize that, without the fulfillment of Your prophecies in both the Old and the New Testament, there would be great confusion. I have recently been shown things so intricate and deep, so diabolical and so unbelievable, well, as it stands today, I am clearly not prepared for what is coming or what is already here.

Well, I should really emphasize again that it is already here. Well, 'they' are already here and they continue to be like a tsunami spreading wherever there is available land. They need no invitation to do so as, even without invitation, they still come.

So now what, Father? In my current state, my heart will surely fail. Without You strengthening us soon, we will not last. You have been instructing me about the hidden enemy and his works over the course of my entire life, yet now I see that I am still not adequately prepared as I am today.

I had thought that I was prepared at one time, but I really was not back then and I am certainly not as I am now. There, I am admitting it freely! Father, I admit that I am not prepared right now as I currently am! I need Your help, Lord!

As a baby Christian, I used to foolishly think that Jonah was just a big baby. Well, now I realize that I was wrong about him. If I insert myself into his place and came against an enemy as scary as the inhabitants of the city of Nineveh must have been, what would I have done? I may have talked a big game, but I now realize that I am more like Jonah than I would have ever thought.

Sub-dream 1 begins – "A Family Slaughtered" (May 20th, 2017)...

I saw a married couple living in the Middle East on a missionary trip. They had many young children and they were all there with them. One night, some evil men broke into their house. They then threatened the father and husband, a man of God, with an evil choice.

Man of the 'false god': "You must declare 'our god' as your god. You must accept 'our god' or you will watch us as we rape your wife and children. If you do not accept 'our god', we will then slaughter all of them right before your very eyes."

The man of God was torn, but decided that he would try and save his family. Under his breath, he asked God for mercy and forgiveness, but knew in his heart that He truly knew that he loved Jesus with all of his heart. He attempted to deceive the evil men in order to save his family by agreeing to their demands.

Man of God: "Okay, okay, I accept. I accept 'your god'."

Well, what followed was horrible. The men of the 'false god' still continued with what the man of God had feared that they would do. He was forced to watch as each of them took turns raping his wife and each of his children. They then had him watch as they killed his wife and children one by one after they had finished raping them.

After the men of the 'false god' had finished their evil deeds, they prepared to behead the man of God. Just as the man of God was about to be beheaded, he cried out to God in great agony. Whoa, his wails were unlike anything I had ever heard before and I found it incredibly hard for me to keep writing this. I was then strengthened to continue.

Man of God: Crying out. "Oh Father, forgive me! Oh Father, forgive them!"

I woke up right as the machete was being swung down on the man's neck.

Sub-dream 1 over...

This was just one of the many dreams I have recently had on this same topic. It has since made me truly realize that I had failed to understand the magnitude of what is coming to the nations and, in reality, is already here.

Now, if faced with the same situation as the man of God, could I truly trust myself not to do exactly as he had? In reality, how could any of us know what we would do if we were faced with this same horrible situation? Father, with my children in danger such as this, I feel that my lips would have done the exact same thing to try and save them.

Sub-dream 2 begins - "The Woman Riding a Bull" (May 14th, 2017)...

I saw an incredibly detailed vision of a woman with her breasts fully exposed mounted on a very large bull. The woman had extremely long thick black hair and wore a gold crown with jewels and pearls. She wore a cape of red velvet that was lined with purple silk and sheer pantaloons.

She wore some type of elaborate jewelry and had a gold collar with chains across her breasts and stomach. I suddenly noticed that her arms had been cut off just below the elbow. As a result, she was unable to steer the bull that she was riding. In place of her feet, she had massive iron hooks and it was quite frightening.

A storm approached and started to kick up the dirt and sand like a dust devil. The woman then rode her bull out from the storm. However, after a short while, the woman was gone, vanishing without a trace.

However, smoke had remained from where she had disappeared and it seemed as if the smoke would never end. The bull then realized that this woman was no longer riding him and turned to look for her.

Sub-dream 2 over...

This dream awoke me out of my sleep and disturbed me greatly. While I quickly made a drawing of what I was shown, I left it out due to its (albeit necessary) explicitness.

Sub-dream 3 begins - "The Group decrees 'World Unity'" (May 21st, 2017)...

I saw a group of esteemed men with the same interests writing some orders. Once completed, a scroll was mutually signed by all of them. These orders had been written against the Royal Family of Mecca. Once the orders were placed inside three silver mesh canisters, their lids were sealed.

One of the canisters was sent south and the other two canisters were sent to those who had committed fornication with her, the United States and Israel. While I was unclear as to how Israel would have been involved in any of this, I was not given any information.

After this, I saw several very large attacks. The Royal Family of Arabia was soon gone. However, I did not see what happened upon the other two canisters arrivals.

I then saw this same group appoint a man over all of the lands. While I somehow knew that this man was well known to the world, I was blocked from remembering exactly who he was. While I could not fully understand the language that they spoke in, I could somehow see their plans.

Another large scroll was then drawn up, like a contract, declaring that the world would have one religion and that all of the other religions would be under this one religion. I then saw that the names of all of the other religions were also written on this document.

I remembered that the man who had been appointed seemed to be a type of leader, perhaps like a caliph, but was very evil. When the scroll was finally completed and ready to go out, it went out quickly.

Soon after this, this group controlled all of the money, food supplies and gas and oil. I then noticed that all medical treatment now had just one source for care. There was also a declaration decreeing but one government, one religion and one bank and on and on. All of these things were now controlled by this one evil entity.

Sub-dream 4 begins – "The Destroying Mold Spreads" (May 25th, 2017)...

I was in the pews of a church and watched a preacher preaching the Gospel. When I looked up at the ceiling, I saw mold in the corners at the front altar of the church. The mold was spreading quickly, so fast that it was as if it was in a time-lapse video.

I then saw that this preacher was then no longer able to speak the Gospel of Christ. As the mold overtook him, I saw great despair and shock in his eyes over what had just come upon him and how quickly.

I then ran out of the church and down the street. I decided getting some cash would be wise so I ran over to my bank. Once inside, I noticed that the same thing with the mold was happening there as well. I quickly went over to the ATM machine to withdraw funds while I still could.

As I stood there, I suddenly noticed that a giant eyeball was staring at me from the machine. This terrified me, but then I noticed that this mold had now taken over the entire bank and had even encased the money. Fortunately, I had already withdrawn as much money as I could, so I ran over to the nearest grocery store to get supplies.

As I went into the store, I noticed that all of the shelves had already been rummaged. Any food that was still remaining was sparse. Worse yet, what was there was rotten as it had been taken over by the spreading mold. I suddenly heard the produce man in distress and shouting to anyone who would listen.

Man: "I just put these out! All of this was fresh just this morning. What happened?"

I decided to run over to the dairy section hoping that it was not too late. However, the smell in this entire section was sour and people were now screaming in horror. I decided anything here would be rotten, so I quickly ran over to the baking aisle.

While there were still some flour sacks available, my eyes widened when I saw that a five pound bag was now selling for over $100. As I left the store, I could hear even more screaming, crying and weeping. However, it was no better on the streets as everything was now in chaos. A man on the street started lamenting to me.

Man: "I have no hope! None at all! All that I had is now gone! All of it is now gone!"

Sub-dream 5 begins - "The Secret 6th Pillar of Islam" (May 26th, 2017)...

I was in a classroom with an Arab instructor. He was wearing a white long overcoat with a headdress. He was showing the class a white globe of the Earth. A massive white ribbon was wrapped around the globe.

He then started to point to the various lands, all seven of the continents, and at the ribbon wrapped around them. While I was not sure if the ribbon somehow represented the global internet, I noticed that, on closer observation, all of the ribbons seemed to originate from the Middle East and were going out to each of the seven regions.

Instructor: Speaking in a heavy accent. "You must listen and understand that you have all been taught a lie. The only truth is that all foundations are really from Allah. Allah is the pillar and the capstone. Without Allah, the entire building crumbles."

The instructor then showed the class a drawing of the five pillars of Islam using a slide projector. When he finished showing the class the 5th pillar, the slides mistakenly advanced to show a 6th pillar. When he noticed that this was accidentally being shown to the classroom, he quickly unplugged the projector as fast as he could.

Student: "Teacher, what was that 6th pillar?"

Instructor: "There was no 6th pillar."

Student: "But we all saw it!"

When the whole class started murmuring their collective agreement, the instructor decided to take his chances and continue with his lesson. He plugged the slide projector back in and showed them the 6th pillar again.

Instructor: "Yes, yes, this is a special pillar. However, it is also a secret and only those who accept the words of Allah are allowed to see it. Now, who would like to learn about the secrets of this special 6th pillar?"

Every one of the student raised their hands in agreement. When the instructor saw this, he excused himself for a second to pray under his breath and out of the sight of his students.

Instructor: "Thank you, Allah, for delivering this knowledge to me. Thank you for so easily delivering these students."

Sub-dream 5 over...

Father, I have also had several other dreams that seem to be related to the Book of Revelation. However, I must admit that I have not spent much time reading Revelation as it overwhelms me. As such, it is still mostly a mystery to me and I have a limited understanding.

Sometimes it even seems that Revelation is truly just too wonderful for the limits of my abilities. However, when I do read this, I can see that Your Courts and Your Throne are just like what I have seen. When I read about what the beautiful choir of angels sings in Your Courts, it is just like what I have heard.

Revelation even speaks of the beautiful Sea of Glass You have shown me, but it is frustrating, as I am sure it was for John, that my writing could never truly capture the wonder of this marvel. While this 'Sea' is glass, it is also somehow living and breathing. In reality, this is just too difficult for us to comprehend in our current human state.

Father, I pray for greater knowledge and 'Revelation' from You as I attempt to navigate this great Book. Since we are clearly in the beginnings of this time now, I truly now feel that this is what You would want us to do.

I have also come to realize just how effective the enemy has been in turning Christians against each other. So many are now kept so busy accusing others of false teachings, false signs, false wonders and deception that there is barely any time left for them to witness to Your Grace and Glory to the lost.

In Mark 3:25, Jesus states, "And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand". Jesus had spoken this to the Pharisees after they had just accused Him of being the 'prince of the demons'. They then falsely accused Him of being able to cast out demons only because He was secretly one of them.

Jesus has often reminded me that there will soon come a time when we will also be accused by fellow Christians of working for satan. Well, in reality, this time is here as I have already experienced this backlash from fellow Christians a few times.

This backlash comes even though I clearly write of our love for all things God and the Bible. You would think that this backlash would be because I was writing about my relationship AGAINST God, but it is really because of my relationship WITH God. It is apparent that, not only is the world now backwards, so are many of God's 'followers'.

Now, God has specifically created us for a relationship with Him and has even told us that He would speak to us in dreams and visions during the end times. Even though what I have written is in line with the Bible and constantly points to the Bible, the attacks still come, almost always from those who should be supporting all of this instead.

Quite simply, all of us were created to love, praise and worship Him. While we are also called to honor His Creation, including the Earth and the animals, and to love each other, we are to always love Him first and foremost and obey His commands and commandments. While nothing I have written in these dreams has contradicted this, anger still comes and will only continue to increase, mostly from fellow Christians.

Father, You gave us many warning in the Bible to not be deceived by various things, but especially by those who teach false doctrines. These false doctrines are variations of Your Word and have been sent by the enemy to lead Your Lambs to the wolves of a false gospel. It has worked and many now follow a false 'christ', one who is the very opposite of the positive Fruits of the Spirit.

The leaders of these false 'messiahs' then burden their followers with works, and one in particular even praises them for their deaths. Many in this one now coerce their sons and daughters to commit suicide / murder by encouraging them to sacrifice themselves by using hidden bombs to kill and maim others in the name of their god.

It seems as if each of these false religions has the same common theme. Each of them has a long supplemental list of demands that are loosely based on one man's (or woman's) interpretations and writings of excerpts taken out of context from the Word of God. Each one of these false messengers then keeps their followers hostage by requiring them to give a designated homage to get to Heaven.

This 'homage' to their 'god' could mean acts of service or sacrificing their money, land and children and on and on, but often all of it. They teach of a god that must be feared. They teach of a 'false Jesus' that is actually the enemy in disguise, a wolf in sheep's clothing. Their promises of Heaven and Eternity are only available to their followers if they pay the price to their particular religion in full, whatever this may entail.

In contrast, the One True Jesus of the Bible teaches us in Matthew 5:3 that 'blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven.' In Matthew 20:16, He teaches us that 'the last will be first and the first shall be last.' These cults teach the complete opposite of our Perfect Jesus.

You, Father, are the God of justice, mercy and compassion. You even sent Your Son, God in the flesh, Jesus, to show us the way to You through His love and sacrifice. He was and is the Pure Lamb given as a sacrifice, a scapegoat, to atone for our sins.

He has risen! He Lives! He is in those who accept Him as their Lord and Savior! The Holy Spirit is our Heavenly Cell Phone, a gift from You as a direct line to Jesus! Jesus, via the Holy Spirit, is our Counsellor, directing our path in righteousness, love, compassion and mercy for the lost. We simply could never do this without Your guidance and compassion.

What god can do this other than our One True God in Heaven, our Creator? None! Father, the world is in the process of dissolution. It is melting and dissolving right before our very eyes. You have shown me a series of tentacles in which we, as a world, have lost all control to but a few. The root of each of these nations is now in the wrong hands and most of its citizens are completely oblivious to what is happening.

You showed me who now owns the financial markets and our mortgages and controls the banks. There is a deep root to this and it is hidden. Global food supplies are now completely controlled by those in power and not one has been elected.

The spread of a mighty nation that has no land is NOT referring to Christianity! All of the major book publishers for educational materials, and soon even for Bible publications as well, are already now in the wrong hands.

You also showed me who owns the media, entertainment and technology. You showed me who owns our transportation. It is all owned by the same people who own the financial markets. They create false stories that make the stock markets plummet and then buy up the 'hurting' companies at a fraction of what they are worth.

While this once was happening slowly, it is now happening very quickly. The doors to the nations were opened and the enemy was freely allowed, and often even encouraged, to invade and conquer. As this was done in a relatively 'peaceful manner', no one noticed. We are the spoils and the plunder and are now free for the purchase.

My husband and I recently had the chance to review some DVDs from a Christian organization called 'Koom Ministries'. These DVDs taught us quite a bit about the inner workings of Islam as the head of it is a former Muslim. What these DVDs had confirmed as already happened is more than just a little bit frightening!

Father, if You do not strengthen us soon, how will any of us survive? Several months ago, You showed me the United States as if it was a massive house. In this, Canada was its 'front yard', Mexico was its 'backyard' and the countries to the east and west were its neighbors.

You then showed me other things as well. The USA's bordering supply lines are now controlled by the enemy and are the 'gateway regions'. These include the Aleutian Isles, Alaska to Russia, the Panama Canal Region and Hudson Bay to Toronto. The North American continent is now vulnerable to takeover as these gateways are the USA's front yard and backyard. Worse yet, all of this is being done 'by invitation'.

Father, I do not want us to still be here anymore. However, if we must remain for a while as workers to bring in Your harvest, please, please strengthen us and soon. Who will be able to stand if You do not strengthen us soon? Please hold us up!

I recently stumbled onto one of the enemy's websites and they now refer to us as the 'crusaders'. One site even said, 'Death to the Crusaders'. So, Father, it seems as if we are now the Crusaders then. So, what does it really mean to be a 'Christian Crusader'?

The atmosphere around us has changed even more recently and not in a good way. Anyone who now speaks anything contrary to a 'certain agenda' is labeled hateful. In contrast, no one is able to freely talk about the Good News of Jesus anymore, even when being extremely cautious.

Just recently, a woman in Augusta, Maine had simply told a coworker that she would pray for her because of her upcoming surgery. Nothing else was said and the two women, who attend the same church, had thought their conversation was private.

While I am not entirely sure of all of the details of this story, it turns out that someone had overheard their conversation. The woman that dared to mention 'prayer' at work was then fired. While she will most likely fight this in court, this still sends a message and puts her life in turmoil. Seriously, it is unbelievable what we are now witnessing!

On Saturday, my husband, our two daughters and I were in our car as we pulled up to a stoplight. The vehicle in front of us failed to notice an elderly woman walking in the crosswalk. We then watched as, and in what seemed like slow motion, this vehicle then hit the woman.

Despite our attempts at warning them by honking, she was struck down. I bolted out of the vehicle to see if she needed aid as my husband parked the vehicle and called 911. The woman hit was in the right as she was in a crosswalk and had the walking signal.

When I reached the woman, she seemed dazed and confused. She kept stating that she was fine, but I could tell she was injured. At first, I felt that she was refusing our help because she was in shock, but I now believe it may have been because she was worried about possible medical costs and the time this could involve.

As the paramedics checked over the woman and my husband gave his eye witness statement to the police, I soon found myself standing next to the elderly man and his wife that had struck the woman. I overheard them both remarking about how 'wonderful' it was that he had not been driving faster or the result could have been much worse.

When I replied by telling them that 'this was a miracle from God', the man and his wife immediately stiffened up. I could tell that they were both uncomfortable by my seemingly innocent statement.

While I should not have been surprised, I still was as the response I had just received was so incredibly cold and seemingly out of place given the obvious miracle. Lord, has it really come to this? Tragedy strikes and You intervene to save them, but we are now no longer able to praise You openly for what You have done without being 'offensive'?

Father, I know that this has been a long rant, but I am struggling to wrap my head around this late hour. We have encountered so many struggles in the last few years and they continued even after these dreams began. In fact, and in the last few months, there seems to have even been an increasing ramp up by my enemies.

Anyway, about a month ago, I ran out of my favorite late grape harvest wine, a 2012 vintage. Sadly, there is just no more of this particular wine left to purchase. The wine was sweet and I had used it especially for communion with You as per Your leading.

On a side note, I have been called away from my devotional chair before communion a few times and, each time I had to be away for some time, the wine in my tiny communion cup turned into sweet syrup, almost like white grape sugar syrup. The evaporation of the water seemed to create this sweet syrup.

Anyway, once I ran out of my favorite wine, I decided to drink a different wine that I had purchased a couple of years ago. At the time, it was simply because it was handy, but I now realize that there was a specific reason that I am now drinking this new wine for communion. It is called 'Buried Hope', a 2013 Vintage. The label reads as follows:

With 'Buried Hope', we are telling a story of promise. Great wines come from stressed vines. If vines are stressed, they react by producing fewer, but more complex and flavorful grapes. Our winemakers are dedicated to finding the most challenging soil environments, which stress the vines just enough to achieve the highest quality in each grape, leading to wines that TRULY reflect the personality of their origins.

Father, Jesus is the True Vine. However, for the purposes of this 'Buried Hope' story, I feel as if I am one stressed grape here and that I am from a really stressed branch. Perhaps I should not feel this way, but I do, so please help!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was standing in a massive vineyard in a grape growing wine production Paradise of epic Heavenly proportions! There was row after row of perfected grape vines. The vines and trunks needed no training, guidelines or lead wires in order to grow. They stood perfectly on their own. There were several different varieties of vines there.

The soil was the same as the Lord had showed me in previous visits. However, as a reminder, Heavenly soil is perfectly aerated and really dense, yet light and airy. It is full of minerals and has the perfect PH and enzymes for growing perfect crops. There is no need for fertilizer as God provides everything in full perfection. There is no lack of balance, just perfect growing conditions. There are even diamonds in the dirt.

Heaven is truly a perfected Land and a Grower's Paradise! However, I should mention that I am not much of a gardener. I know very little about what is needed or even how to describe what I am seeing.

However, I know just enough about landscaping on Earth to be able to say, 'Wow, there is so much more here than meets the eye!'

I sighed as I realized how perfect Heavenly gardening is compared to earthly gardening. There is no slavery or forced labor here. There is no anxiety or stress and the work is easy. All that is here is for the pure joy of working the land. Producing good things for God is even a form of joyful worship.

Yes, even 'working' the land here is a form of worship and stewardship, the pure joy of honoring God! This is why so many of the 'laborers' here sing as they 'work'. They sing with joy, they laugh and all of them are relaxed as they do it!

As I walked through the rows of vines, I noticed that the time of the day seemed to be morning. Based on the dew, it may have even been late morning. The temperature was a beautiful mid to high 60's and I heard birds singing everywhere. I could also hear the faint sound of music, along with the sound of water and a waterfall.

While I could not see where all of the sounds were coming from, I could see the morning sun shining on the grapes. The sun made the grapes reflect like pastel jewels on the vines. There were every shade of pastels, golds, light greens, dark pinks and too many other shades to count. It was simply stunning to witness.

The clarity in the atmosphere here is really like nothing on Earth. My heart truly felt at Home here and cannot be truly described. It is so beautiful here and so much greater than anything I had ever conceived in my old thoughts of Heaven, even as a child.

Jesus: "Erin, over here."

I looked up toward the mountain where I had thought I heard His voice, but I did not see Him there. I decided to run down to the end of the row to get a better look, but soon was distracted by noticing what I was wearing instead.

I was wearing a beautiful white linen gown with another type of silk veil wrapped around the back of my head. It also wrapped around my arms and was so luxurious feeling. I looked down at my feet and I was barefoot. Like last time, I laughed with joy when I noticed that the dark soil here does not make your clothes or feet dirty here.

I realized that the Lord had put me in bare feet as He knows that I would not usually go outside, or even inside for that matter, like this. I simply do not like dirt on my feet, so I almost always have footwear on. However, here in Heaven, well, this is AWESOME! I suddenly remembered I was looking for the Lord and called out to Him.

Me: Smiling. "Lord, where are You?"

Jesus: "Erin, I am right here!"

I turned and looked all around me, but I still could not find Him. I decided to walk down a row of grapes that had an amazing vine canopy overhead. At the end of this canopy-like path, I saw a small bench next to a large rock that had water cascading down into a clear pool of fresh water.

I realized that I was thirsty, so I quickly ran over and dropped down to my knees to drink from the pool. The water was amazingly cool and refreshing, as per usual. I stared into the water at my reflection and started to cry as I could barely even recognize my healthy appearance here. I smiled and laughed as I swiped my finger in the water so that my reflection would become wavy.

However, just after I did this, I saw someone else's finger go into the water. As soon as the finger entered the water, it instantly became as still as a sheet of glass. I looked over and there was Jesus. I instantly sprung up from my knees and hugged Him in excitement and joy. Even if I do not see Him for the shortest of times, I cannot wait!

Me: "Oh Lord, I just miss You so much!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, I am always with you. Now, what is wrong?"

Me: "Lord, if You do not turn and heal us soon, or take us Home instead, we will not last. I have been shown, as You have revealed to me, what is to come and I am not prepared. However, who can really prepare for what is coming?"

"Lord, no one is ready. While some people may think that they are ready, they are not. Apart from You, absolutely no one could ever be ready for what is coming. What You have revealed to me is for now and it is happening. It is all happening just as clearly as Your Word has said that it would!"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, this is written and has been foretold. While this is not a surprise to Me, you are still in awe because you have waited a long time for signs and now they have come. While you had been worrying that what you have written could be at odds with what you have read in the Bible, you now have increased understanding.

"Things that once seemed confusing to you are no longer quite as mysterious. You now see with increased clarity the accuracy of your dreams as it relates to Scripture. Still, you come to Me today in apprehension and brokenness. I tell you the truth, Erin, you have not been deceived." He smiled and then reached over for a cluster of grapes.

"Now, Erin, look at these grapes. These are not quite ready as they have not quite reached their time. However, these over here..." He then pointed to a different cluster. "...are plump and bursting from their skins. These are ripe for the harvest.

"Now, if these are left too long on the branch, they would eventually shrivel and die and would be wasted fruit." He nodded His head and smiled. "Determining the readiness and the maturity of a grape is not an easy thing." I suddenly became downcast and Jesus immediately noticed. "Okay, Erin, what is troubling you?"

Me: Crying. "Lord, what if I am not found suitable to You? I love You so much, but what if, when You come, I am not what You expect?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, Erin, perhaps it is time for a sweeter communion wine? Hmm, it seems the enemy has been working overtime while you are in this vulnerable state and that he has been stirring up your memories during the Counting of the Omer. The enemy recently took you over a past bridge, but I allowed this.

"Now, you have already repented numerous times for each of your offenses and I had already forgiven you. Erin, I do not keep a record of wrongs unless the wrong course is chosen and I use this to get someone back on their chosen path. With you, I have seen your path and already know that it leads to Me.

"You are like a Bride who, before her Groom comes, worries that she will be rejected just before the ceremony starts. Erin, do not worry as the Groom loves His Bride." He smiled at me and I hugged Him.

"Now, do not let the enemy deceive you. While you are unable to change bad decisions from your past, you can still make right your destination here. Erin, though you are here with Me, the enemy is behind you and wants to call you back. However, I am here with you and I am calling you to go forward.

"I am standing at the Altar like a Groom at a wedding. You are the Bride, unable to break your gaze with the Groom as you approach Him at the Altar. I am at the Altar daily, Erin, so come to Me whenever you are worried.

"Now, look at your dress. Hmm, did you pick this yourself from your closet?" He laughed as I looked down. "I think not as there is nothing as fine and as pure as this white fabric in Heaven that you are wearing here.'

"Now, it is very important that you remain in Me daily. Come to Me frequently and call out to Me always. The enemy creates much glamour and distracts you, but I speak to you continuously now with revelation, so take note.

"Even though it seems like all hope is lost..." He smiled. "...or 'buried', it is not. Soon the dawn shall come and the sun shall rise. The hopes of those whose hearts have been broken, bones dried up and skin shriveled like grapes, 'left too long', will be revived. I tell you the truth: For those who wait for Me, I am the Vine and they are the Branches. You are dressed as My Bride, but, apart from Me, you cannot bear fruit."

I knew that this was a lesson straight from John 15.

Me: "Lord, why would You ever leave any grapes on the vine for too long?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Do not worry, Erin, as you are not one of the shriveled up grapes as your branches produce Good Fruit. Branches unable to produce Good Fruit are of no use to the Vinedresser.

"Now, I call you friend and you did not choose Me as I chose you. I have appointed you so that you bear fruit and so that your fruit abides, that is continues to remain, so that whatever you ask My Father in My Name may be given to you.

"This vine here..." He pointed to a vine. "...has many branches. Each branch bears fruit and will continue to do so. You remain in Me and My Words are in you. Ask whatever you wish and it will be done for you by My Father, the Vinedresser."

Me: Laughing. "Do You mean 'Bride'-dresser?" We then both laughed together.

Jesus: "Well, yes. As He has loved Me, so I have loved you and remain in love. If you keep My commandments, you will abide in My love, just as I have kept My Father's commandments and abide in His love. You also must love one another.

"My commandment is this: That you love one another as I have loved you. Greater love has no one than this that someone lay down his life for his friends. You are My friends if you do as I command you." He was gentle, yet stern, as He said this.

Me: Crying. "Oh Lord, am I in danger of not obeying Your commandments?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, Erin, there is no one who is perfect. If I obey My Father's commandments and I have then asked you to obey My commandments as a Groom would ask a Bride that had married Him for love, and since you are My Bride and also My friend, then you will remain in love with Me and abide in Me and Me in You. We will then be as one, understand?"

"Now, the hour you are in is dark. Many will be persecuted in My Name and in the Name of My Father, yet these persecutors do not know Us. However, since I have now come to each of them, they will be guilty of their sin and will be unable to say, 'You did not call me, so I am blameless.' No excuse will be allowed as it is written that whoever hates Me also hates My Father."

Me: "Lord, I will study John 15 as I feel that You will say even more to my heart there. I also feel that there are many layers of meaning in Your Words of love than we realize."

Jesus: "Erin, I will grant you what you are searching for, but it has been there from the beginning and is no secret. Now, continue to the next chapters as well (John 17), Erin, and make sure to etch My prayer on your heart."

I stopped here in order to read John 15, 16 and 17 carefully from start to finish. As I read His beautiful Words again in these chapters, the Words came alive and I wept. I then went back to Him to ask, yet again, why He would choose someone like me.

Me: "Oh Lord, I am not You. I have floundered on my path of righteousness. While I am a hopeful Bride, my life's journey has soiled my clothes. I thank God, My Father in Heaven, for sending You, His Son, to save me from the sins of this world. Without You, Lord, I would surely be sent to the depths of Sheol.

"Lord, I love You. Please forgive me that I am finally having revelation about obvious Words that You have spoken to me. I am still in awe and wonder over why You would call any of us, but especially me as I truly feel that I am the least of these.

"I am a woman born of sin, conceived out of wedlock. I have been divorced twice and have been bankrupt three times. I feel that I am the least deserving of being called. When I was youthful and strong, I was foolish and prideful, vain and arrogant, but now I am full of years, old and in pain.

"While I do not feel physically able, my heart is ready. Here, with You, I am young, vibrant, beautiful and strong. When I am here in my dreams, I even wear white." It suddenly fully hit me. "Lord, in my dreams, You have me wearing white!

"While I am so thankful, who am I that You could ever find my vessel worthy? I have wronged others in my journey here. While I have tried to make amends with all that I could think of, some of their doors were shut. However, for the doors that were opened, I gladly walked through and corrected my wrongs as best I could.

"Lord, I so desire to be fully blameless before You. Please reveal to me anything else in this late, late, late hour that I can bring before You to ask for forgiveness. I would like to give You all of my heart so that no evil or unforgiveness remains. I do not want my lamp to be only half full of oil. Lord, I want to be ready and full of oil.”

Jesus: “Erin, I will give you the desires of your heart. You are My Bride and My Branch and continue to bear Good Fruit. Do not worry as it is written that ‘I am about to do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told.’ Do not worry as I will strengthen you for the journey.

“Now, read and receive My prayer (in John 17). I went to My Father in Heaven and this is for you, Erin, so take careful note of what I asked as My Father granted My request and you are as ‘one’ to Me.”

Me: “While I am not certain what all of this means, I joyfully accept.”

Jesus: “You will, Erin, you will, so do not worry. Now, I have shown you the evil of the ‘sons of Molech’ and this is the same as in the ‘times of Noah’. Understand the roots of Sodom and that what is being worshipped is not that of fertility, but that of dung. Understand the hatred at the root and the rapid spread of evil.

“Understand that this is in all walks of life. Like yeast in a batch of dough, it spreads quickly, causing it to rise. So it is now and this yeast is the great process of deception. It has spread across the nations.

“Along with this comes a veil of darkness. ‘Elect’-ed officials, along with the elect, including congregations and even entire countries, have been in a daze. Though an army of darkness has come, this still comes with hope.”

Me: “Lord, how? How is there hope? How can this be when no one even listens to any of us anymore? Many Christians now believe that You would never call any of us even though it is written. To some of these Christians, we are now even more deplorable than ‘the deplorable!’”

Jesus: Smiling. “Well, Erin, I did not appoint them as your judge, right? However, I will see them in Court here one day. Now, pray, as they are the ones who have been deceived. The more their opposite of the Fruits of the Spirit are practiced and grows, the less room there is for Good Flavorful Fruit on the Branch, until no room remains.

"Erin, the dark veil over them grows thicker. Many will be caught unaware when the veil is lifted. They will bargain, but I will not hear their self-accolades of being such 'hard working servants for satan'. So pray, Erin, as satan is the lord of confusion. He is the enemy and is a wicked vine that has branches that abide in him as well.

"There is no Fruit of the Spirit on his branches, only fruits of the drunkenness of evil wine. As the wicked partake, they are exposed as My Father and I see everything. Erin, you have experienced the 'wine of affliction', yet you have remained faithful.

"Though you do not believe yourself worthy, I have still chosen you. Your heart is good and it is Mine. You are Mine and I have redeemed you. Now, I will pour good wine into you. You will then pour out good wine on others. Your vessel and wineskin is good.

"Some will drink what is good and will be changed. However, some will refuse what is good. However, for you, it matters not as I am with you and you already reside here with Me. You do not belong there, but here, understand?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. I am an alien there and Heaven is my true Home."

Jesus: "Very good, Erin. Now, enjoy the beautiful day that I have given you. I will continue to bless you, so do not worry."

He reached over and hugged me.

Dream 247 – Jesus, God and a Glimpse of Our Transformation

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for everything. I need help with my dream.

Dream 1 description begins...

We lived in a very fancy California-type country home. We were very wealthy, but were still 'down to Earth'. The view from our house was quite similar to what you would find in Tuscany and we could even see vineyards. Our property was situated near a body of water and was adjacent to the base of a large bridge.

As I looked out, I noticed that we also owned a very large warehouse, but somehow knew that we rarely had a chance to use it. This warehouse was still sectioned off into different areas as it had been used to facilitate a variety of craftsmen that had once used these spaces as their studios.

It was such a beautiful sunny day out and the weather was perfect. However, my husband and I soon noticed that several people were now walking on a path we have in our front yard. We addressed a woman as she was passing by.

Me: "Excuse me, miss, but where are you all coming from?"

Woman: "Oh, we are all travelling here by foot from the city for the wedding. By the way, do you know where the wedding is supposed to take place?"

Me: "I am not sure. Who is getting married?"

Woman: "The pastor."

I suddenly remembered the young couple that had just moved into a small home right on our property line to the north. I was surprised by her answer as, when I had found out that he was a pastor, I had just assumed that they were already married.

The woman living with the pastor had long straight brown hair and was very beautiful. However, the pastor was very good looking as well. You could say, look wise, that they seemed 'equally yoked'.

Me: "Oh, the pastor. Yes, they are the couple that just moved in over there."

I pointed her over to their house just as more people were walking by. To my surprise, and just during this short time, it now seemed as if hundreds of people had now walked through our property to get to their wedding.

Woman: Smiling. "Okay, thank you so much."

After she walked off, I looked over at my husband.

Me: "This does not make any sense. It appears that they are even using our property for their wedding. Why would they use our property, especially since we have not even been invited?"

My husband: "This really does not make any sense at all. Who could blame us for being at least a little bit surprised, right?"

As we walked back into our house, we decided not to make a big deal about it. As we tried to make peace with this rather unusual situation, we heard a knock on our front door. We decided to open the door together.

Man: "Hello, I was just over at the wedding and was told that you have some decorations in your warehouse. Do you think we could borrow them for the wedding?"

I was not sure how they could have known that we had decorations in our warehouse, but shrugged it off. I thought for a minute, but could not remember seeing any decorations in our warehouse. However, there was a lot in there from the previous owner and we still had not sorted it all out.

Me: "I am not sure. I will have to look around and see what the previous owner of our property had left behind in our warehouse. If we have any decorations, we will bring them over to you."

Man: "That would be great. Thank you."

After he walked off, I went over to the warehouse to look. When I reached the warehouse, all seemed normal at first as I thought all the lights were off. However, after I walked in a bit, I suddenly noticed that the backdoor was open just a crack and that a light at one of the workstations in the back of the warehouse was on.

I walked over to the workstation and saw a woman there. I cleared my throat loudly, but the woman still did not notice me. I was quite surprised that she had not turned to look at me as I made other noises as well so as to not frighten her. I suddenly somehow realized that it was as if God was keeping me hidden from her.

As I got closer, I recognized her as the woman that was living with the pastor. She had been working on various colored soapstone sculptures. One of the sculptures was of a very large salmon and was beautiful. When she looked down at her watch, she started to talk to herself.

Woman: "Oh no, it is already 2:45pm. My wedding is at 3:00pm." She let out a deep sigh. "Oh, how I would rather stay here!"

I watched her as she gathered her belongings, turned off the light and snuck out the backdoor. I was confused and decided to see where she went. I turned on the master light switch and the warehouse lit up. I walked over to the backdoor and peered out.

To my surprise, they had now set up a beautiful venue for their wedding right here on our property! I saw that several pieces of her beautiful art had now been erected at the venue. I shook my head in amazement as I recognized that all of the art on display had been created in our warehouse and with our supplies.

Me: "I am so confused. While I like this couple, why would they not at least ask for our permission before doing all of this? If they had just asked, I would have happily said yes. Why would they not at least ask us?"

I looked at the bottom of the backdoor, which served as the emergency fire door, and had noticed that the woman had used a rock to wedge the door open. I decided to remove the rock and keep the door permanently locked.

I walked back over to her studio area and noticed that all of her work was lovely. I shook my head again at the thought of her using our property and supplies without even asking. I turned off the lights after I walked to the main entrance. I locked this door as well and decided that they would both be kept under lock and key from now on.

When I got home, I explained all of this to my husband. He was as shocked as I was at all that had been happening in our warehouse without our permission. We simply could not understand how this couple could organize such a large ceremony on our property without even asking or inviting us.

Dream 1 description over...

I woke up from this dream at around 4:00am this morning and became worried. I decided to go to my devotional chair, take communion and ask Jesus what this dream meant.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately in His presence.

Me: "Oh Lord, what of this dream? Are we not invited to the wedding?"

Jesus: Laughing. "This is not the meaning of this dream. Even though he was a pastor, this couple had been living together outside of marriage. Even though they were using your property, warehouse and supplies, they had not asked you. They did not ask you because they did not want to feel obligated to you in any way by asking.

"They instead took from you in order to make it their own. Even though all of the guests had to enter your property for the wedding, you were not even invited. This dream does not mean that you are out of My favor. When I tell you that I have found favor in you, Erin, I actually mean what I say." He smiled at me and I laughed.

"Now, I am in you on Earth as well. While I already talk to you from the mid-section in your chest, you will soon hear from Me just as clearly there as you hear from Me here. Erin, this is what it will be like once you are changed and healed..."

I was suddenly taken out of my vision and was still sitting there at my devotional chair. Just then, I saw a massive flash or white charge that was similar to lightning. My body was instantly different and had been completely changed. I decided to walk around the room to see if this was all real. It was! I was still me and I was still very much alive.

Jesus: "Erin, come back up."

I heard Him as clearly as I did in Heaven! Wow! At first, I pretended to ignore Him as I really, really wanted to show my husband what had just happened. However, and just as quickly, I realized that this was not yet the time for this.

While I was disappointed that this was only to be a glimpse, I was also incredibly excited. As I sat back down in my chair, I instantly changed back to 'normal'. I went back to continue my visit.

Me: "Lord, what was this all about?"

Jesus: "Erin, this is what it will soon be like. When you are changed, it will be sudden, not gradual. You will be changed in an instant. While it will happen at a time you think not, it will be perfectly timed. I will instruct you from there and your clarity of mind will also be enhanced.

"Great mysteries will be uncovered. I will show you these. You will have understanding and hidden knowledge that can only come from Me. While all of your cells will be regenerated, you will also be reshaped. You will desire nothing but that which I place upon your heart. You will be subject to Me in all that you do."

Even though I completely trust the Lord with all of my heart and in all things, I at first reacted without thinking about what He had said in this last part.

Me: "But, Lord, then there won't be any of 'me' left, right?"

Jesus: Laughing. "No, Erin, you will remain Erin, just 'perfectly' Erin, understand? Then when I send you out, people will be terrified as they will know that I am with you. Even though you will come forth in love, most will fear you and will want you removed. Those that do come to you for 'good' will rarely be those that you would have expected. Do not worry, Erin, as you will know what to do as you will await instructions from Me."

Me: "Thank You, Lord. I love You so much. Thank You! Thank You! Please continue, Lord. I am scared, but I am also very excited."

Jesus: "You were selected for the perfect time. Erin, I am about to shake the nations and you will be one of the quakes."

Me: "Will You equip me with the ability to stand against the enemy?"

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as your enemies will be unable to come near you. With just one thought from you, they will be circumvented by the angels that I have sent to you. You will also have the strength of many men and nothing will come against you with any success. You will even be able to scale a wall or climb like a deer on the cliffs.

"However, and even with all of this, you will still be gentle, kind and loving. You will be just like one would expect from My Bride. You will be the very 'crusader' that the enemy fears the most. You will be aware of every evil scheme before it comes to pass and every plot will be exposed before you.

"Now, you will be accused of many things by many people. However, even more people will be in awe and will come to you and ask, 'What God do you follow?' You will then answer...

I follow the God of all Creation, Who made both the Heavens and the Earth. I follow the God that made you. He sent His Son, Jesus, Whom you persecuted. He has the keys to death and Hades. He tore the Temple in two and He raised the dead. He then rose again and ascended into Heaven after leaving His Spirit upon those who believed.

His Spirit has now come alive in us and He has revived the souls of the walking dead in Christ. We are to shake the nations before that Great and Terrible Day of the Lord. He will return for those that love Him and will come on the clouds to take His Bride Home. He will take Her to the place that He has prepared in advance.

He will then come and return with a mighty army and take His rightful place on His Throne. There, each tongue will confess and every knee will bow in reverence to the Savior of the world, Jesus.

He looked over and saw that I was in awe of all that He Was saying. He gently nudged me and started to laugh in order to 'lighten the mood'.

Jesus: "Erin, it really will be just this simple."

Me: I laughed in reply, but was still trying to compose myself. "Lord, I am speechless."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin. You are ready to receive and soon, very soon."

He smiled at me and pointed up. I suddenly heard the Voice of the Father address me from above. I instantly fell to my knees.

God: "Erin, do not worry."

Me: "Father, I have never had this happen like this before. What happened?"

God: "Erin, more is to come. I am sending Gifts to My Bride ahead of the coming of the Groom, My Son. Receive the Gifts and have joy. These are prior to the ceremony. There will be much more.

"I love you and could not be happier with you. Erin, this will be a wonderful time for you, so do not worry. Even as the world becomes more and more in turmoil, you will be protected. When you first asked to serve Me, you had expected a different type of ministry. However, what I have given to you, Erin, is My best and is the best for you."

Me: Crying in happiness. "Thank You, Father! I love You so much. Please use me as You wish. I cannot wait to someday be there with You. I want so much to give You a long hug or even just to rest my cheek on Your hand or foot. If only people really knew just how truly amazing You are, Father. If they did, they would feel such shame. Oh Father, I just love You so much.

God: "I love you. Erin, I have had your life from the beginning and will continue with you until the day I call you Home. Now, do not worry as I am aware of everything and you are fully forgiven, so do not doubt your worth and calling, understand? To do so would dishonor My abilities as God to create you and choose you. I have you, Erin, so keep your eyes focused only on Me. You are Mine."

Friday, June 9, 2017 – A rainy spring day...

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for my family and friends. Summer is in the air. Yesterday was extremely hot, but today is a beautiful cool spring day.

Father, I avoided You yesterday and today I am feeling so sorry that I did. While helping my daughter with her outfit for a Christian youth group gathering two days ago, I discovered something on her skin. I promptly called her doctor and emailed him a photo of what I had found.

After their office looked at the photo, they promptly setup an appointment for her to see the doctor, but also scheduled a biopsy at the same time for two days later. The picture must have been serious enough to have both appointments arranged immediately as there is usually a wait involved. However, their urgency just made me more worried.

Father, what can I say? I have kept it together, but clearly I did not see this coming. This is the time of year when kids are usually enjoying the outdoors, spending time with friends, laughing and creating lasting memories. What now though?

This made me start wondering if I should have done things differently? Have I done everything that I possibly could? Father, I feel like I have been robbed of my chance to be a normal parent because of all of the years spent fighting just to keep my children.

I then lost even more of my life when I later became sick and injured. Now, I know that You make no promises for an easy life here and I realize this, but my daughter has always been my 'normal healthy child'. Since my boys are firmly on the Autism Spectrum, I have come to depend on her being my one 'normal' child.

Well, Father, You know everything and You sometimes even change the way we think 'normal' should be. As a parent, I have had to surrender all of this to You as, clearly, I am unable, on my own strength, to 'do' anything about any of this apart from You.

Even though I know this, or I at least should know this by now, I was still too angry to meet with You yesterday. I felt ripped off. Here You are, My Father and God of all Creation, You have control of all things, and yet You still allow things like death, disease, autism, cancer and the murder of innocent people, children included.

I then found myself rather distracted for most of the day as I had to speak with several medical professionals. While I was met with a roadblock at one point, I quickly removed it by simply saying, 'If this were me, I could wait, I really could. However, this is my child, not an adult. What if this were your child?'

Well, thanks to pulling on some 'heart strings', we were then scheduled immediately. However, even after this, I continued to avoid meeting with You by 'rage cleaning'. Instead of listening for You, I instead put on the television while I organized.

As I listened to the former FBI director Comey testify in the background, I was 'convicted' several times by texts I received from my daughter at school: 'What has God said, mom?' My return texts: 'I still have not gone to Him yet.'

I am so sorry, Father, as I should have gone to You even before phoning various health care professionals. While I know that being proactive is wise, it was still foolish for me to do this without coming to You for guidance first. I already even know that these 'urgent' visits with You are usually brief, so time was not really the issue here - I was.

I soon broke the news to my other children about what was happening. Later, when I picked my daughter up from school, I watched as she approached the car. Despite all of this, she still had a huge smile on her face under that long curly hair of hers.

My middle son later surprised me when he pulled me aside to tell me that he was praying for her. He then said, 'Mom, do you think God is allowing all of this to bring us closer to Him just before we are healed?'

While I was absolutely stunned by his question, I was even more stunned by the rest of my conversation with him. Here I was, so preoccupied about the 'worst possible scenarios', that I failed to notice that my most difficult child was now standing here talking to me about prayer and healing.

My son had been at a youth group retreat around two weekends ago or so and the youth pastor had reached out to the group. While my son had told me that this had affected him and that he had felt God ask him to follow Him closer, this was the first time I had seen it 'in action'. I was just too absorbed to notice his change until now.

After he walked away, I looked up to You and said, 'Father, thank You, thank You, thank You!' My son then later said to me, 'Mom, perhaps God will let me be the one to heal her?' What? Seriously, WHAT? What did I just hear? I hugged him and agreed for the miracle. Oh Father, thank You for the miracle of my son's new compassion.

Father, You truly work all things together for Your glory. You know fully that it is better for us to be redeemed to You than it is for us to be glorified ourselves, so thank You. Through our troubles, we must still run to You. I am so sorry as I should truly know this by now and that You truly love us. However, even with this in mind, I am still struggling.

Father, You have promised me that no 'real' physical harm would come to our children. You promised that all of our children would be raptured together with me and my husband. As a result, I had just hoped that I would be the only one in our household that would have to experience physical trouble.

Please, Father, do not forget about us. I want so much to be spending our remaining 'spare time' focusing on Your glory and not on our troubles. Please, Father, do not forget about us down here. Please do not let us suffer even more. Please do not allow a blow like this to be delivered. Please, Father, please!

To distract myself some more, I later found a letter tucked away in one of my old journals from 2008. 2008 was one of the most difficult years of my life. The letter related to an assignment my daughter had to do for one of her classes.

In this assignment, a parent for each student was to write a special letter about their child for their class. While I might have shared this letter with my daughter a few years back, I do not think she would still remember it. As such, I will make sure to show her this later today just in case. Here is the letter as written on October 22nd, 2008:

"When I found out that I was pregnant with my daughter, it was such a wonderful surprise. Even when I became quite sick after she was born, she was still my delight. No matter what the situation was, she always smiled.

She never cried. She loves to laugh, dance, sing and now read 😊! She doesn't like T.V. that much and would much rather help cook in the kitchen.

While sometimes her room gets messy (and her feet can be stinky too 😊, she gives our home special joy. Even if we had no power or heat, her smile would light up the house and her hugs would keep us warm!"

Father, I know that there are no accidents to Your timing, so, in light of all of this, please tell me what the dream I had last night means...

Dream 1 description begins...

My family and I were trying to make our way back home after a trip. We were all extremely healthy, but I was a bit confused about this as both my husband and I looked the same age as we are now, yet we somehow felt as if we were 'young parents' again.

We were just south of a major city and a large river had overflowed and was dividing the land. All of the roads were now backed up due to the heavy traffic from people preparing for and sheltering from the coming storm. At first, this did not make any sense as it was a beautiful clear blue sky.

Suddenly a cloud came over the horizon. Soon after, and in just a matter of minutes, several more clouds gathered and we were soon surrounded by black clouds. To make matters worse, the clouds above us were now moving in a circular motion. However, the black clouds movement suddenly stopped and the sky stood still.

We took advantage of this by deciding that staying on the main road was no longer a good idea and took our nearest exit. We drove up to an old white Victorian house on top of a very steep hill. We noticed that there were stairs that led up to the house.

My husband: "Hmm, I think I recognize this unusual house as being owned by someone I work with. We should go up there and see if we can shelter with them."

After parking, all of us ascended the very steep stairs up to their front porch. When we reached a higher elevation, we looked down and saw that the traffic had now stopped in all directions as if they were waiting for the storm to arrive. We were glad that we were no longer on the main road even though the house seemed vulnerable to the storm.

When we finally climbed to the top stair, a woman was already there standing at the door of the house to greet us. This woman was so beautiful that my entire family became somewhat captivated by her beauty.

However, what was really odd was that the sun was still shining inside her house and we could see blue skies from her windows. When I stepped back onto her porch again to investigate, I noticed that the black clouds were still above us and all around us.

Woman: Smiling. "Well, hello! You work with my husband, right?"

My husband: "Why, yes I do. Is he home right now?"

Woman: "No, he has not made it back through the traffic yet. However, he told me that he would be home soon. Anyway, we were both expecting you, so please come on in and make yourselves at home. I just made some cookies, so please have some."

The kids were hungry and did not have to be asked twice. However, I was still confused as to why she would have been 'expecting' us. As I looked at her, I became a bit leery and started to see things about her that nobody else in my family seemed to be seeing.

At certain times, she seemed like she was quite young, perhaps around 30 or so, but, at other times, and depending on the angle, I noticed that she would look around 60 or so instead. These odd glimmers or glimpses seemed to be telling me that she was actually much older than she appeared.

I was confused as even my husband did not seem to see these 'glimpses' of her changing appearance. I decided to look around a bit more and came across some photos of her and her husband. Sure enough, both of them were actually very old.

The woman looked over at me and seemed to notice that I was looking at her quite closely. This probably seemed like odd behavior to her and she decided to approach me. She had a look in her eyes that made me feel uncomfortable. However, I still wanted to remain polite since her husband worked with my husband.

Woman: "So, are you not hungry? I noticed that you have not eaten any cookies."

Me: "I am just not that hungry, but thank you. Now, do you mind me asking you how old you are? Now, I don't mean to be rude, but I mean exactly how old you really are?"

Woman: Smiling. "How old do you think I look?"

Me: "Well, at certain times, you look around 30. However, at other times, you look more like around 60."

Woman: Laughing. "Well, I am actually 80. However, since you asked me, now I must ask you exactly how old you are in return. I would bet that you are not 30."

I became somewhat irritated by this as I had assumed that she was mocking me for not looking as young as she did. Since it was just the two of us here, I was also starting to become uncomfortable with the way our conversation was going.

Me: "Well, I think it is pretty obvious that I am not 30."

Woman: "Ah, denial! Come on over here to this mirror. It seems to me that you are actually even younger than 30."

Now I was really confused. Just as I approached the mirror to see what she was talking about, I suddenly woke up.

Dream 1 description over...

I ran out of time and decided to take a break for the day. However, in the early morning of the next day, I had yet another dream.

Saturday, June 10, 2017 – very early in the morning...

Dream 2 description begins...

My husband and I were at a department store that was now in liquidation. We were both sad about the closing of yet another iconic store. While we were not in the market for anything in particular, we still decided to take a look around.

I was soon drawn to a display of odd glass storage boxes with handles. I had never seen anything quite like this. I somehow knew that not one of these boxes had sold despite the reasonable price of just $7.00 for two of them.

The boxes were 6" high, 12" wide and 14" deep and had lids. I could see that they were also stackable, so I was a bit confused as to why none of them would have sold. Upon inspecting them closer, I quickly realized why they were still there. The clear glass was about an inch thick and this made them way too heavy. A man next to me chuckled.

Man: "Why would someone even buy such a thing? I certainly know that I would not want to have my junk exposed."

Me: "Hmm, while they are wonderfully made, they are just too heavy. Perhaps they are better suited for those who have the strength to move them and do not mind such exposure?"

Before the man could reply, a clerk started shouting over the store's intercom system. Since the loud speaker was directly over our heads, we could easily hear what the clerk was saying.

Clerk: "Attention! Attention! There is a storm coming! Please evacuate the store immediately! If we are still here tomorrow, please come back again!"

My husband reached for my hand and we walked over to a massive window that looked outside. While it had been sunny when we first arrived at the store, it was now completely dark outside. It was so dark outside that it looked more like midnight than the afternoon. My husband lifted up his watch for me to see the time.

My husband: "Look, Erin, it is only 3:00pm!"

Dream 2 description over...

As soon as I woke up from this dream, I went to my devotional chair to pray. As I prayed, I suddenly heard God's Voice tell me to pick up my journal and write down what He was about to tell me. I quickly reached for my journal and a pen and started to write.

God: "Erin, I am with you and you are not forgotten. I have not brought you this far to have you overcome with grief from the loss of your child. I will not let cancer overcome her. I do all things to bring glory to My power, not diminish it. I use difficulties to bring families together.

"Now, remember that, just as I use you as a measure of others, I also use your children as a measure of others. Do not let this discourage you. I will provide for all of your needs and I will heal your family, including all of your children. They, in turn, will bless others as directed by My command.

"Now, have your daughter press into Me closely as I will soon do something miraculous with her. Those close to her, along with their families, will then be both in awe and wonder at Who I really am."

Me: "Father, please do not make this too difficult on all of us. I am really struggling here, so please have mercy on us. Please heal us soon, Father, as we all love You so much. Even when I am busy during the day, I constantly think of You. Even while I sleep, You overcome my dreams.

"While I will still press into You no matter what as I know that I have no place in this world without You, please, Father, please do not dishearten me. We are like a small ship in a storm tossed at the sea and we have no peace without You."

God: "Erin, I love you and I am always with you. Now, have you still given your children to Me or have you now taken them back?"

Me: "Oh Father, I have now taken them back. This is why my heart is so heavy and my yoke has now become unbearable again. Will I ever learn? I give You my children, Your children, this very day. They have been Your children since the very beginning, not mine.

"They are Your children and are merely the crops from the field of my life. I have done all that I physically can and I now give You 'my crops'. I am fully at Your mercy to provide the sun and the rain.

"Father, please forgive me for acting like 'god' over them as I am truly only capable of growing them by tending to their needs as best I can. Father, You alone are truly responsible for their lives as they are Your children. They are Your children and their names are written on the palm of Your hand."

I was then given peace again and felt that I should go back to bed. While I was later busy for the rest of the Saturday after I awoke, I could hardly wait to go back to visit Him again on Sunday morning.

Communion

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

As I stood at the base of a mountain, I realized that this particular mountain was actually already quite familiar to me. As I looked around, there, in front of me, was a stamped dirt path and, to the right of me, was the forestry board. When I realized where I once again was, I instantly dropped to my knees and began to cry out in prayer.

Me: "Oh Father, am I now back to the beginning? Are You no longer calling me to Your door? Have I dishonored You, Father? Are You upset with me? Am I no longer worthy for Your Call?"

“Oh please, Father, still call my children, my family and my friends. Even though I thought that I had changed my ways, I see that I have now been taken back to this place again. Please help me, Father!”

My ‘rant’ was suddenly interrupted when I heard a soft stomp on the ground. I looked up and saw a very muscular doe watching me. While this doe was somewhat remarkable, she was still unassuming and I really would not have given her that much extra notice if she had been standing alongside other deer even here on Earth.

The doe then walked over to me and nudged my arm in such a way that she was now right next to me with my hand resting on her back. After being distracted by the doe, I looked back at the mountain and something had happened to it. The mountain had suddenly become much steeper than it had just been.

As I studied the mountain closer, and right before my eyes, I saw rock ridges starting to jut out to form a series of very narrow shelves. I watched as this gentle mountain, complete with a dirt path and a tree-lined scenic route, turn into my worst nightmare.

The deer nudged at me to start climbing the mountain. I was not overly happy at the prospect of doing so. This was certainly no longer going as expected.

Me: “This is impossible for me! Lord, I cannot climb this mountain!”

I then heard the Voice of God address me from above.

God: “Erin, come up. Climb.”

I nervously realized that resisting Him on this would be pointless. I started off by simply putting one of my hands up on the first rock shelf. When I hesitated, I heard the sound of the deer jumping. I looked over to see that she had just easily jumped up seven feet to a ledge. She waited for me there as tears started to stream down my cheeks.

Me: Crying. “Father, I am just not capable of this. You need to give me the ability to scale this mountain. Even though I am not afraid of heights while I am here with You in Heaven, I still need Your help to do this!”

I suddenly felt something like a charge go through each of my nerve endings, veins and muscles. When I then inspected my hands, they were now young and strong again. Tears continued to flow down my cheeks, but this time with joy at my change.

The deer above me took her hoof and scraped the ledge to draw my attention. I watched her as she then easily jumped up to the next ridge. In contrast, I still had not even started my ascent and I was becoming discouraged with myself again.

God: "Erin, I have now strengthened you. Come up the mountain."

I looked down at my feet and noticed that I was now wearing a type of pliable sandal with a strong sole. I decided to go for it and jumped. To my surprise, I easily went up seven feet to the first ledge.

While I was quite happy at first, I soon became discouraged again when I noticed that each of the outcroppings was even trickier than the previous one. I then noticed that the deer was already on the third ledge and was waiting for me again.

I did not know how any of this was even possible. Though the doe was quite strong, her legs still looked as if they could easily break. As I gazed up at her in amazement, she used her hoof to scrape the ledge to encourage me to jump again.

Me: Laughing. "Okay, now you are just showing off."

She then easily leaped up to the next ledge. I decided to just go for it and followed her up. I leaped up from one impossible ledge to the next impossible ledge. Each ledge was even more difficult than the previous ledge, yet I was doing it!

I started to become more and more confident with each of my leaps. A multitude of Scriptures suddenly flooded my mind. They were analogies to my climb. Each Scripture confirmed to me what God was doing with me here.

When I finally reached the seventh ledge, I suddenly just froze and hung there. While I had watched the deer leap up to the eighth ledge safely and without effort, I had glanced away and now she had disappeared.

I looked up for a ninth ledge thinking that she might have used this, but there were no more rock outcroppings. I somehow realized that she had now made it fully to the top. In contrast, here I was just hanging there by my fingertips on a two inch ledge.

Foolishly, I decided to look down. You are never supposed to look down when climbing and I instantly became dizzy. I looked back up and slowly regained my composure. I simply could not believe that I was able to scale a massive rock wall like this. It was like climbing the face of Yosemite's 'El Capitan', but without any ropes or safety gear.

I realized that I would not be able to get momentum from where I was, so I looked around to see if anyone could help me. I shook my head at my predicament and realized that I simply could not go any further without God. I cried out to Him for help.

Me: "Father, help! Lord, are You up there? Hello...deer... could you please call for help?" I heard nothing in reply. "Oh Father, was it my lack of faith that has caused all of this? Oh Lord, how I wish I was sitting at Your table right now!"

As soon as I finished saying this, I saw a flash of light and was immediately with Jesus in His Courtyard. While it took me a second to compose myself, I quickly leaped straight into His arms and hugged Him once I did.

Me: "Oh, thank You for getting me!"

Jesus: "Well, Erin, I am glad you came."

I looked up at Him as He smiled at me. His teeth were a beautiful white and His eyes were so kind and the most beautiful of blue-greens. His skin glowed and was simply flawless, just like Him.

Me: "I am so sorry about the delay, Lord. I was hanging by a thread from a cliff and I just simply could not get here any sooner."

Jesus: Laughing. "Well, Erin, you could have been here sooner, but you made this much more difficult by 'hanging by a thread'."

Me: "Lord, I am not sure what You mean."

Jesus: "Let Me start off by telling you that you are not back to the beginning. Instead, you are now at a new stage."

Me: "Help me to understand this, Lord."

Jesus: "I am already instructing you while you sleep and you have been given knowledge of things impossible for a simple man..." He laughed. "...or a simple woman to understand. Now, you are not doing any of this by your own ability, but only from Me." He smiled at me. "So, Erin, have you noticed this?"

Me: "Oh yes, Lord. On occasion, I have even been able to 'see' the thoughts of evil people around me. I have also been able to see what is occurring around us, but also what is soon to come. However, I feel like I still only have just a portion of this and that I certainly do not have complete understanding.

"At times, and in my dreams, You have even taken me to foreign lands. One such land seemed like Panama and You showed me a plot to destroy the locks. There was also a separate plot in place to take over the government to try and control the shipping lanes.

"You have also showed me the rapid and world wide spread of hate for anyone even remotely associated with You. You also showed me the ever increasing intolerance for anyone who dares to voice an opinion against the 'religion of peace'.

"Lord, it seems as if almost all of my dreams are now quite disturbing. Now, I know that You are with me always, but I can now even hear Your Voice clearly during those hours that I am fully awake, even when I am doing various chores."

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, Erin, I am always with you. Now, I know that you are scared right now and that you are saddened by the rapid increase of evil. On certain days, you even try to dismiss what is happening and try to go back to how it was.

"Well, Erin, there is no going back. You will be unable to go back to the 'old ways' even though your heart sometimes longs for it. This time has now passed, but did so a few bridges back. Events are now accelerating even faster and you are unable to adjust to them. You are grieving."

Me: "Lord, I am. Forgive me, but I am. My heart is sickened by what has happened, what is happening and what will soon happen. The godless are letting in those that are even more godless than they are. They are working together to destroy Your people.

"Lord, this breaks my heart and I can do nothing but pray. This all just seemed to happen so quickly. People only have to do a little research about this enemy to understand that they are actually fighting for the wrong side when they fight for this religion's 'freedom'.

"Very few sources now report any of this with any accuracy. While Your people still continue to 'in-fight' amongst themselves, this enemy watches them and prepares for their opportunity to strike. They are going to strike soon, Lord, I just know it.

"I also see that the world is growing much colder now. I recently read of a mother killing her little infants simply because they had become an inconvenience. Oh Lord, why would she not just give them away? I am so troubled by this and my heart is breaking."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as this woman's children are already here with Me. While it may seem that the wicked succeed in their evil, they are really only heaping further condemnation on themselves. While the wicked appear to be overcoming the land, do not worry, Erin, as I have a plan that has been in place from the very beginning.

"Now, stories have been purposely changed, manuscripts and scrolls have been burned and records have been concealed. I tell you the truth: All will be exposed. There are massive storehouses here and all of history will have been recorded from start to finish.

"I have angels here in charge of these records and, by My command, this history cannot be rewritten or changed. The enemy knows that he cannot change what is stored here in Heaven, so he attacks that which is stored on Earth instead.

"Now, many have been sent by the enemy over time and in various capacities and all have been inspired by the 'ruler of this world'. However, I am still the ruler over him and have always been.

"This enemy has never stopped with his wicked schemes. He confuses times, seasons, cycles and even the stars. He sent man knowledge of theories meant to remove the power of God from the minds of men and women.

"He elevated man in light of their own authority and raised up whole movements against My Word and My Authority as Your Savior. He even influences the 'elect', both those in power 'by the people', as well as some who called themselves 'apostles sent by Me'. Well, these 'apostles sent by Me' were not all sent by Me.

"Now, the open door or gateway to all of this was and is jealousy. The enemy is jealous of Me and of you, but also of anyone else that has been appointed by Me to spread the Good News. Hate, coveting and all manner of evil is then used to attempt to destroy those that God calls His friends.

"The enemy especially hates, but with even greater intensity, anyone I have chosen to use as My Vessel. You have been given knowledge of this over time and strengthened so that you are prepared in advance for what I have planned for you. However, do not think, even for a moment, that I will ever abandon you to the grave with no hope."

Me: "Lord, the Scriptures speak of the 'Days of Noah'. What does this really mean?"

Jesus: "Good question. You only have to see what had been happening at the time of the flood to see the patterns. It was business as usual and men and women were living normally, but they had also grown cold. What is sinful to God had now become accepted and common practice amongst men.

"Erin, you are witnessing this happening once again. All sin begins and then escalates with 'self'. This includes self-gratification, self-appeasement, self-love and self-reliance, but the list goes on and on. The enemy has given man many false ideas of 'self':

- Do everything apart from God.
- Live for today.
- Do what feels good.
- Indulge.
- Have no fear of God as He does not even exist.
- You are your own 'god'.

- You are the master of your own destiny.

"These are the things that a world apart from God now believes. As these men continue to enjoy their indulgences, the 'sons of Moloch' walk amongst them, watching and plotting. They will then be overcome by them and are too foolish to see this coming until it is too late.

"Now, but also throughout the generations, I have sent out waves of My chosen to call and shout to those who search for Me. For those who come to Me, I then instruct them in the way that they should go. While they are then called My 'righteous and redeemed', woe to those who practice all types of evil instead for theirs is not the Kingdom of Heaven."

Me: "But, Lord, how can anyone remain apart from the wicked today? It seems as if they are now everywhere and in everything. Even though I do not fall for their schemes as often as I once did, the enemy is very clever. I am not sure if it is because I am wiser or if it is just because I am more diligent in listening to You before moving?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, right now, you are like My Scepter to Me, so just let Me use you. This is a time like no other time and yet still like the 'Days of Noah'."

Me: "I think I understand the concept of the 'Days of Noah'. The people were enjoying their lives apart from God and mocked Noah until the day that the flood came and the door shut. However, it is also unlike those days as this is a different period in history.

"Though a flood of water is not to cover the Earth, the lands are still being 'flooded' by those appointed by the enemy. These people are like locusts and are being sent to pillage, strip and destroy the land, along with its people. Very few people see this coming. While these people hate You, Lord, they also hate us because of You.

"My worry is not being able to perform the signs and wonders that those who were with the disciples at Pentecost could. It seems as if we will soon be destroyed if we are not given these abilities to display Your awesome power, especially if You do not at least strengthen us. Please, Lord, help us! We need Your help more now than ever!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Do not worry, Erin, as I have plans for you. You will be amazed and I will instruct you. Even though you see yourself as 'unlikely' for all of this, I see things differently than you do. While the enemy loves to torment you, you will be 'unexpected' to him for any of this as he does not see what I see.

"While I do not expect perfection from you, I do expect a willingness to surrender all to Me. While you have given Me your heart fully, many are unable to do this. I am therefore unable to use them for My purposes as they love their lives more than Me."

Me: "Lord, summer is almost here again and it is going to be very hot. Please keep our home cool. Please protect Your people and strengthen us. Please do all that You have promised to with us. If You do nothing with us, we will become disheartened and will surely soon perish. As the seeds of compromise are the gateway to sin, a little sin soon leads to even greater degrees of sin. All around us, sin is not only acceptable, but it is now even cheered on."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, the 'Days of Noah' are upon you now and the people are asleep, blind and unaware. The whole Earth is now corrupt before Me and filled with violence. These people are apart from the Laws and Commandments of My Father and Me.

"Always remember My Commandments. The first and greatest Commandment is to love the Lord, your God, with all of your heart, soul and mind. The second great Commandment is to love your neighbor as yourself.

"Erin, the progression of sin starts with a cold heart. The love of God and His Commandments disappears first and then the loss of love for each other quickly follows.

"There is now a different kind of flood already upon the land. When this evil rises like flood waters, people will cry out to you even as many of them still continue to mock and hate you at the same time. However, I will send angels concerning you to protect you in all of your ways.

"You will be the last wave that I send out amongst the nations. This will be the last wave of God's love. I will pour this out from My Vessels. You and My other friends will be My Vessels. You will give birth after great travail. This has been a sign from the beginning and will be of no surprise to those who have been waiting for this.

“Once you are soon changed, and in an instant, the enemy will then send out a wave of counterfeits in response. While these counterfeits will be quite clever, you will be able to see them as they are as I will show you this and will remove their trouble from you.

“For those I call, I will also save, so do not worry. Angels will be sent concerning you. All of My friends will soon be strengthened. This includes you, your household and your children, but also your faithful friends. You will only have to ask and My door shall be opened to you. Do not worry or be afraid. I have you and I love you.”

I reached over and hugged Him tightly. I felt His love surround me, but in a way that is simply indescribable in an earthly sense. Oh, if only everyone knew of this love, His love. If they did, surely no one would reject Him again as He truly is the ‘Prince of Peace’.

Me: “I love You so much, Lord. Thank You for everything. Please heal us soon, Lord, and please heal my daughter.”

Jesus: Smiling. “I have not forgotten you, Erin, and I will soon heal you and your household. I have promised you that I would do this. Now, I have something very special planned for you and I will instruct you in all that you do. Do not worry or be afraid as I will provide for you and will send gifts to you. I will continue to bless you in all that you do.”

Sunday, June 18, 2017 – Father's Day...

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for alerting us to hidden enemies and possible trouble. I pray that we are free and clear from any of these dangers.

My daughter underwent a very painful biopsy that ended with four interior stitches and seven exterior stitches. The doctor removed a large deep elliptical chunk from her side. It was very difficult to watch. All we can do now is wait for the results of the biopsy.

Earlier that same day, a man came to our property to drain our septic tank. Unfortunately, we did not have any idea where the opening was. While our property plans as approved by the county showed it was in a certain area, it was not there.

After quite a bit of poking into the ground, we decided that the plans must have been somehow reversed. Sure enough, and after he had to dig quite a large hole, he finally found the opening to drain it. This was a miracle in itself, really, as the opening was in a completely different spot and was buried almost two feet under the lawn.

All of this took place on Thursday, June 15th, 2017. Father, this was truly a day of digging deep to remove waste, first from draining the septic tank and then removing an uninvited possible predator via my daughter's biopsy. However, there were also other things that happened recently that were similar, but I will not get into the details.

June has historically been a time of transition for us. Another school year is ending and some of our children's friends are now moving out of the area. This is also the time I usually have to say goodbye to my children for eight weeks. That is, of course, unless God has other plans.

Quite simply, I dread summers. I really dislike the heat and the humidity. However, I hate the bugs even more – smiles. Summers are also no longer as they were back when I was a child. The term 'carefree' can no longer be used to describe them. Oh, how I wish our kids could experience a carefree summer like we once were able to.

Something unusual happened recently wherein the Lord told me that He would soon give me some direct and specific instructions. He was very direct with me. While I am not sure what these instructions will entail, here is what He said to me:

Jesus: "Erin, do nothing until Tuesday (June 20th, 2017), but then act on My instructions once I have provided them to you. I am in this, so do exactly as you are told."

He has only been this firm with me with dates and instructions about eight times, give or take, so this certainly got my attention. I have a feeling I know what He will instruct me to do and, if I am right, I would have acted sooner. It seems as if He was holding me back for His perfect timing. I am trusting fully in Him on all of this.

Oh Father, You are a great mystery and I never want to be out of Your favor or run ahead of Your plans. Please make my path clear and equip my feet with the proper shoes to go the distance. I am trusting fully on You. I had a dream last night...

Dream 1 description begins...

Our entire family was traveling to an amazing five-star resort. The route was very long and it took us hours to finally arrive. When we came up to the second gated entrance of the resort, a Middle Eastern gatekeeper came up to greet us. While my husband was the one driving, he wanted me to talk to him as I had arranged the stay.

Me: "Hello, we have reservations for tonight."

Man: "What are your names?"

After I told him our names, he looked down at his papers to check for us on his list.

Man: "Oh yes, here you all are. Welcome to our resort. Just drive up there and someone will check you into your rooms and tell you all about the amenities."

I looked up to where he was pointing to and there was nothing but an insanely steep hill at almost a 90 degree angle. Before driving off, I decided to watch other cars attempt to get up it. I watched as each car failed just before making it up to the final stretch to the resort. They then pretty well free fell to the bottom of the hill afterwards and crumpled.

My husband: "This is crazy. That road is impossibly steep."

Me: "I agree. Even if we all get out, the car would still not make it. Even if, by some miracle, the car made it, the rest of us still could not and we would be stuck down here."

I decided to pray out loud to the Lord.

Me: "Lord, this is ridiculous. It does not take a physicist to see that the 'gravity' of this situation will be our undoing."

I then received instructions from God on what to say to the gatekeeper.

Me: "Okay, this is impossible and ridiculous. I know that this cannot be the only route in. The workers and suppliers simply would never go this route. Now, we would like to go where they go, so where is the alternate route?"

Man: Laughing. "I am sorry, but no one asks for the other road."

Just then, we saw a brand new Audi luxury sedan attempt the impossibly steep hill. He hit the incline at full speed and made it quite a ways up. However, before reaching the top, it tumbled backwards and landed at the bottom in a crumpled heap. I was then amazed at just how quickly they removed this car to clear the way for the next car.

Me: "Okay, seriously? We are not going on that crazily dangerous path."

Man: Laughing. "Look, my job is to test our guests and I am only here to get them this far. However, I see that your wisdom will get you further. Now, the road is over there and about a half mile to the right. It is covered in overgrowth so as to not be visible. When you pull up to the brush overgrowth, the gate will automatically raise.”

We watched as more cars lined up to attempt the climb, one after another. They seemed oblivious to the incredible danger that awaited them. The man laughed as he looked over the lineup.

Man: “Hmm, it appears that you will have this place to yourselves for quite a while.”

Me: “Has anyone ever made it up?”

Man: “No, never by going this way! It is impossible! However, they still keep coming. We already have their deposit and it is non-refundable. Once inside the first gate that you had just entered back there, no one is allowed to cancel or turn back.”

I noticed that he was moving his hands and making gestures as he spoke with us that would make it look to the others as if he was reprimanding us and turning our car away. We turned our car around and drove the other route. As we drove by the people in the lined up cars, they looked at us as if we were failures and shook their heads at us.

Son: “Mom, should we tell them?”

Me: “They would not listen to us even if the route was clearly marked, more level and even more obvious. Now, do you feel that God is calling you to yell out to them?”

Son: “No. They are all looking at us as if we have been outcast.”

Husband: “Well, I can tell you right now that we will be the only car up there without any dents.”

We drove down the road that we were directed to. As we approached the overgrowth, a gate suddenly lifted out of nowhere. Once past this hidden gate, the path was level, well-groomed and lined with beautiful trees and flowers. We stopped briefly to look back and saw that the gate had closed back up, leaving no trace of our alternate route.

Dream 1 description over...

Father, this dream came to me soon after my husband and I had watched an investigative report on TV about a man who was a cult leader. He had claimed that he was Jesus and then used his position to sexually abuse naïve young girls. These girls had complied as they had just wanted to do everything possible to please God.

Lord, it was so disturbing to see these people fall into this evil man's schemes. He was finally brought to justice when he was arrested in Brazil after fleeing there from the USA. It was all truly disturbing and I grieve for the victims and their families.

When I researched just how many of these horrible cults exist worldwide, I was in shock. All in all, it seems that these cults have millions of followers. However, what is most disturbing is that the largest cult of them all is one of the largest religions. This is the religion of the anti-Christ and is all of these combined, but all are so dangerous.

Oh Father, this grieves my heart. You are so incredible. You are so wonderful and patient. You have mercy on us even when we clearly do not deserve it. You love us and Your love is beyond any of our comprehension.

As I researched more about cults, there seemed to be a common theme or pattern that all of these false religions and cults follow:

- Isolation: Followers are cut off from family and loved ones that are not part of the group.
- Financial: Followers are to sell all they own and give the proceeds to the religious institution or to the founder of the cult.
- Manipulation: Followers are subject to harsh conditions and endless service. They are to work for the favor of the leader in order to gain favor with 'god'.
- Bible Altered: The leader or leaders declares that he or they have been appointed by 'god'. They then morph into a 'god' and declare that the Bible has been convoluted and only they now know the truth. They then indicate that certain things are permitted that are directly against God's Word and Commandments, claiming that their version is really the correct version.
- Salvation: Eventually the leader becomes so drunk with power that they claim that the follower's salvation is dependent on them. The leader does this by claiming that he is now 'god' with full authority.

- Mind Control: Many methods of mind control and manipulation are continuously used against the followers and their children. The true purpose of all of this is to intimidate and torture their followers into submission.

Father, what is so incredibly sad about all of this is that so many of these cults do this 'in the Name of Jesus'. These people were hungry for You and were seeking You, but instead of finding You, they found a wolf that devours sheep.

Please, Father, lift the veil of deception over those in darkness. Please light them with the truth and love of Who You really are! While I do not know Your plans in all of this, I do know that You love us and long to have us come to You in all that we do.

Let not the power of men separate us from Your love. Let not one of Your lambs be deceived by these vicious predators. These people twist and distort Your Word, our one true Lamp. People have been deceived all over the world by the enemy.

As I pleaded with the Lord, I decided to stop for the day as my neck and back hurt too much to continue...

Monday, June 19, 2017

I was woken up early this morning after having a couple of more dreams. I immediately went to my devotional chair and took communion.

Dream 2 description begins...

I was walking in a massive field and the sun was already shining brightly. I was not certain if it was just after the morning sunrise or just before the evening sunset. It was beautiful outside and I was young again.

The field was a mountain meadow and was lush with beautiful sweet grass and wild flowers. As I continued to walk, I could hear 'Songbird' by Fleetwood Mac. This was surprising as this is not a song I have even thought of or heard since I was a child. The song remained in my head as I woke up.

Dream 2 description over...

Dream 3 description begins...

I was in a dark landscape, but knew that I had several people to see. I was also waiting for my sons to meet me. As I waited for them on a busy street, I noticed that the sidewalks, buildings, streets and cars were completely covered in a thin layer of black oil.

As people walked by, I noticed that their skin, hair and clothing were also completely covered. All I could see were the whites of their eyes. I soon started to hear harsh comments and mocking all around me. However, I was then shocked to realize that these were actually all being directed towards me.

Woman: "Well, don't you think that you're so special all dressed in white?"

She started to laugh at me and soon the others joined in with her. I looked down at what I was wearing and all my clothing was a shockingly vibrant white. I was wearing comfortable shoes, linen pants and a boucle-woolen sweater top that was similar to a tunic or a dress. I noticed that all of my attire was very conservative.

To my horror, two men soon approached me and they looked extremely angry with me. The first man swore at me and then spit on me. The second man did the same and then hurled oil at me. I looked down, but noticed that there was not even a trace of spit or oil on me. The men looked at each other and were flabbergasted that nothing stuck.

The men were suddenly distracted when my boys called over to me from across the street. They looked fantastic, perfectly muscular, but not overly so, and it was obvious that they had now been transformed. When the men looked over at them, they quickly decided that they were done with their mocking – surprise, surprise – smiles.

As I walked over to my boys, I could not help but smile when I noticed that we now all looked roughly the same age. This was a 'dream' come true as I have prayed for my sons to be healed for so many years now.

Dream 3 description over...

For Father's Day last night, we had decided to watch a movie called 'The Green Mile'. To my surprise, this was now almost twenty years old. I was the only one that had already seen it as my husband had 'almost' watched it several times, but had not.

The main subject of the movie was a prisoner on death row, a gentle giant of a man able to supernaturally heal people. Now, I should warn everyone that there were also some quite disturbing scenes that were violently graphic, so be aware of this in advance should you decide to watch this movie.

Even though the movie was over three hours long, everyone there remained engaged in the film for its entire length. This was unusual as there was an abundance of character development between action scenes. Anyway, by the time the movie ended, there was not a dry eye to be found.

After the movie, we gathered for dessert to celebrate Father's Day. My eldest son had just said something innocent and I suddenly started weeping. Without warning and for no real reason at all, tears started to come. I was now sobbing.

While I quickly regained control and made light of the situation, I knew that this was not the end of it. After we said goodnight and went up to our room, my husband asked if everything was okay. I said yes, but then the tears started to flow again. This happened again twice during the night and now again this very morning.

Father, life 'as usual' seems to continue all over the world right now. However, for some of us, things are never going to be the same. Twenty years ago, when this movie came out, life was very different. I was still a baby Christian back then and quite naïve.

Looking back though, I realize now that I was also quite harsh and judgmental of others. While I had 'come out' of the world and was now a new creation in Christ, I still did not always reflect Christ in all that I did.

Really, and until tragedy struck my life and me physically, I was perfectly fine believing that I had a menu of Christian beliefs to choose from that I could simply order depending on my appetite on a particular day. I would then leisurely digest them according to my selfish needs.

As just one example, I had become jealous when someone had beaten me for a contract on a large project that I was in contention for. While I asked God to forgive me for being jealous with my lips, my heart still wanted to hold on to these jealous feelings.

Even though I continued to do similar things all of the time, the Lord still blessed my businesses abundantly. However, instead of managing my financial affairs with wisdom, I often found myself taking risks. These risks would then sometimes backfire and I would then have my peace replaced with various chaotic situations.

As another example, I often would make a big production out of my gifts and donations. Quite simply, I enjoyed being recognized for 'my generosity'. I once even wrote a sticky note to my receptionist that said, 'Make sure my name is on the donor bulletin. If you find out 'Jane Doe' is a bronze donor, find out what I need to do to be a silver donor.'

Well, an incident soon occurred at the same time that changed me. Even though my design shop was not open on weekends, I decided to go into work one Saturday. It was my first location and I was eager to succeed, so I had a sign on the front door that said, 'If you see the lights on and would like to come in and browse, just knock or phone!'

Well, on this particular morning, I heard a loud knock on the door. I looked out and noticed that it was an angry looking homeless man. I suddenly remembered that I had foolishly forgotten to lock the door behind me. He then opened the latch of my front door and walked right in. He seemed to be sizing up the situation as he stared at me.

Man: "Listen, I just need to use your bathroom. It's an emergency."

While I was obviously scared about being alone with this man in my shop, what could I really say? I pointed him to the restroom.

Me: "Okay, no problem. It's right over there."

The man walked into the restroom, but left the door wide open. I quickly moved behind a massive work table and reached for the phone. I had my finger on the 'call button' for 9-11 just in case. I heard the man zip up his pants as he walked out of the restroom.

He looked over at me for a few seconds, but then decided to leave. He was gone in an instant and I never saw him again. I quickly ran over and locked the front door behind him. I was rattled and just sat there praying. I glanced over and suddenly noticed the note about wanting to be on the 'donor bulletin'. I immediately felt convicted.

After gathering myself, I decided to go into the restroom. It turns out that the man had relieved himself over the entire bathroom. Somehow he had urinated everywhere, including the walls, floor and sink. Well, I was around six months pregnant at the time and I thought long and hard about my life as I scrubbed down the entire space.

It took several more hours before I was finally satisfied with the condition of the bathroom. However, it took several more years before I was satisfied with the condition of my heart. Well, in reality, I am still not satisfied and I sometimes still battle with this.

Just about a month after this, I encountered a visit from an angel at this same shop. I was not alone and this incident was actually witnessed by three other people. Two of these people were clients and the other was my business partner.

A 'woman' had entered the office and she immediately seemed quite different from anyone else that I had ever seen. She also had the most beautiful hair that I had ever seen and it was shimmering in copper chestnut colors. I also noticed that she had stunning eyes and perfect teeth as she looked over and smiled at us.

Oddly enough, I also recall that her shoes were amazing. Quite simply, her shoes were unlike anything I had ever seen on Earth. While my memory fails me in trying to describe them, all I can now say is that they were beautiful and, well, 'noteworthy'.

The woman came straight over to me and started to speak with me. While the others were somehow kept from hearing what she was saying, I immediately could somehow tell that this was a message straight from God. She then started to reveal things to me from my childhood that only I could have known.

She spoke of events that I had never spoken about, not even to a single person, and still have not to this day. However, it was not just events she spoke of, but also even the hidden thoughts that I had during these events. While I can no longer remember all that she said as I did not journal back then, there are certain things that I can still recall.

Angel: "Erin, God has a plan for your life and you will be blessed in all that you do. I will see you again soon."

Just as quickly as she had arrived at my shop, she turned and left. I was still in shock as I looked over at the other people that had witnessed this with me. I asked if any of them could hear all that had been said to me. They were all 'white as a ghost'.

Person 1: "All I heard was an old lady singing. However, when I turned to look, that young woman was standing there singing instead."

Person 2: "Look, I am not a religious person, but I think that we just saw an angel."

I quickly ran to the window and looked out over the parking lot. I then ran outside and circled the perimeter of the building. There was nobody there at all. It had only been but a few seconds, but she was gone. There should have been someone there. I walked around in a daze the rest of the afternoon asking myself what had happened.

Oh Father, I could surely use another visit from this angel right about now. I really could use something as I feel as if my heart has been broken. Thank You for never giving up on me, Father. I am so thankful for You.

However, I also feel that I am struggling with so many things right now. Where do we go from here? Another school year is over and my children are about to leave again for the summer. I pray that they can stay at home this year.

I also now feel that something is different with me now, but I really cannot explain exactly what this may be. So, Father, all I can do is surrender all that I am to You. I love You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was walking in a field of flowers and the fragrance was amazing. As per usual, the weather was absolutely perfect. I looked around and could see butterflies of every size and color fly over beautiful flowers of every color.

Some of the butterflies then occasionally landed on the flowers in order to soak up their nectar.

Tears streamed down my cheeks as I looked around. I was wearing a beautiful white linen gown. My hands skimmed over the delicate flowers and I noticed that they were young again. There was no longer any damage from the sun, work or age.

In the far off distance, I saw a white horse running towards me at full gallop. As this incredible horse came closer, I noticed that he had a beautiful braided mane and soft fur. As he came even closer, I recognized this horse as Jesus' horse.

When His horse then came over to me, he nudged me to jump onto his back. He then knelt down so that I could easily climb up on his back to ride him.

Me: "Okay, please take me to Jesus!"

The horse made a noise that indicated he agreed with me. Once he knew that I was securely on top of him, he headed off, running through the fields of flowers. I had not been on a horse in years on Earth, so this felt fantastic. I was also somehow able to ride without a saddle and it never felt like I would slide off, not even for a moment.

Off in the distance, I could see a beautiful grass meadow with a clear blue pool fed by a river. As we came closer, I noticed some fountains in the pool that I did not recognize. I realized that I had never been to this particular place before.

It was such a beautiful place. While the area surrounding me seemed like a mountain meadow, I was not certain of this. When I saw how high we were, I realized that I had not even paid attention to the fact that we had just ran uphill. The Lord's horse bent over so I could easily climb off of him to take a drink of water.

After drinking some water, I heard children laughing in the background. I walked down a small path to a different clearing and I saw Jesus. He was in this beautiful meadow and was sitting with around 30 or 40 children ranging in ages from around 18 months to 8 or 9 years old.

His horse was still standing right next to me when I decided to walk over to listen to Jesus speak with the children. However, His horse immediately protested by stomping his foot and shaking his head back and forth. I stopped in my tracks and realized that this was not my place.

I could tell that the children were so excited about being with Jesus. They each patiently took turns hugging and kissing Him. I could also see angels in the distance running and playing with the children. As per usual, Jesus was sharply dressed and was wearing white linen pants and a tunic of white linen with the sleeves rolled up.

I could see Him directing the children to go to the angels. He then turned towards me and smiled. My heart leapt when He put out His hands to receive me. I ran across the meadow as fast as I could and jumped up into His arms. I immediately started to cry.

Me: "Oh Lord, I am so glad to see You! Who are those children?"

Jesus: "In the last several months, you have been horrified and grieved over the loss of the lives of several children in news reports and from friends. I gathered them here so that you could know that they are all here with Me now."

Me: "Yes, Lord, I have been grieving and can barely even watch the news anymore. The ever increasing reports of famines, child trafficking and other stories are just so hard to hear. While my heart has hurt over all of this in the past, I have never felt it quite like I feel it now. Oh Lord, the families..."

Jesus: "Erin, do you see that little guy in the distance?"

Just then, a cute little boy turned and, with a huge smile on his face, waved at Jesus. He then laughed as he turned back and quickly caught up with the rest of his group. I then saw the little boy reach over to hold another little boy's hand.

Jesus: "Erin, this first boy is the one that you grieved about yesterday. The other boy is the one that you grieved about just this morning."

Me: "Lord, what is wrong with me right now? My feelings of grief for what has happened to these kids keep sweeping over me. Really, I am not worried for these children as I know You have them in Your care, but I grieve for the parents.

"I could tell from their interviews that those little guys had good parents on Earth, Lord. While there are also children that die that have bad parents, I just ask for You to comfort these parents as they seemed like they loved their sons so much. Please, Lord!"

Jesus: "Erin, you are only seeing a small part of a bigger picture. Now, who are you to question God?"

While He was not being harsh with me as He asked this, He was firm and still very loving. I suddenly felt ashamed at my question.

Me: "I am sorry, Lord, but it is just that You are the Son of God. You are my Savior and You are the Savior of the world. I know that God has created all of this, but these children are innocent, Lord. Why would You allow..."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but they are all here with Me now. Whether they were baptized or not, dedicated or not, had other rituals performed or not, it matters not as they are all now here with Me. Each of these children had an important assignment on Earth, but now they are back here in Heaven with Me and where they belong."

Me: "Lord, I do not understand. Was death their assignment?"

Jesus: "Partly, Erin, as this is the time of weights and measures. It is also the time when the world has accelerated in coldness. While some still press into Me for strength during uncertainty, many more now run in the opposite direction. Erin, there are so many things that I measure based on these little children:

- I measure the way the community treats the parents afterwards
- I measure those who are then accusatory
- I measure those who ask whether the child had been dedicated or baptized, but especially if their intention was to place fear in the hearts of parents and to make them wonder if their child will even be in Heaven
- I measure those who make accusations from a liability standpoint

- I measure those who say to the parents, 'I bet you will want to move now.'

"The list of weights and measurements from all of this goes on and on and on. I also measure the grieving using this:

- I measure if one of the parents then turns on the other parent
- I measure if someone is blaming others
- I measure if someone is displaying pride or avoidance

"Again, My list of measures goes on and on. I tell you the truth: A couple will either pull together or come apart from this, but for those who press into Me, I will answer them."

Me: "Forgive me, Lord, but I am angry and I am angry at You. It breaks my heart and I feel their pain. I just do not know why these intense feelings are happening in me right now. Why are You allowing me to feel such grief right now? You now even allow me to see glimpses of these tragic events and I have now seen things I cannot forget.

"If You do not supernaturally strengthen me soon, my heart will surely fail from all of the grief. There are children left in hot cars on purpose. There are kids who die in tragic accidents. Lord, what about all of the babies that have been left to die after their parents have overdosed?

"All of this is based from only that which I have heard or read just in North America. This does not even include tragic stories from the rest of the world! Why, Lord? Why are You placing all of this on my heart right now? Look, I am sure that even my hair is now growing grayer by the second."

I tilted my head down and tried to smile as I said this last part. However, it was a pained smile and the Lord reached for my hand. He smiled back at me and His eyes reflected a love for me that is simply indescribable. I was still saddened.

Jesus: "Erin, the death of a child has a far reaching impact. While the death of a man or woman who has lived a long life also has an impact, this is fleeting. While their deaths are no less valuable to Me, you also must remember that death is still a part of life for now. While many no longer live their lives in the light of eternity these days, any parent that still cries out to Me will be comforted. Their children are here in Heaven.”

He put His hands on my shoulders and looked into my eyes. He became quite stern again, but still not harsh and very loving. I looked back into His eyes.

Jesus: “Erin, the time has come and I will send out those that I have called to comfort the lost and give hope to the grieving. I have put several things upon your heart recently. Do you know that the love and compassion you feel for others is not even a small fraction of what I feel? I have increased your capacity. While what you are now feeling may seem unreasonable to you, just know that it serves a purpose, My purpose under Heaven. Now, what would you do if you could do anything under My authority?”

Me: “My desire would be to heal sick children.”

Jesus: Smiling. “Well, Erin, this is the ‘number one answer’ to this question, but there is also more to this. Now, what do you think the usual requests are from those children who have died and are now residing here with Me?”

Me: “I am not sure, Lord. Hmm, I really do not know.”

Jesus: “It is the same requests that were just made from the children that you were just watching:

- Can you make sure that my mom and dad come Home too?
- Oh yes, can my sisters and brothers come Home as well?
- Can You please let them all know that we are here and happy?

“As you know, Erin, it can be a very difficult road to find Me, but it does not have to be.”

Me: Crying. “Lord, I did not know how to find You. I did not know what to do and I fumbled a lot and I still fumble today. I am still angry about the pain of death. While death itself may not be painful, living and dying certainly is.”

He laughed at my last comment, but then became serious again.

Jesus: "You have seen what I have shown you here, Erin. You will have great compassion and love for the lost. You will help gather those that I have called from the grips of death. When I send you, you will no longer be in your current condition. Very soon, Erin, I will heal every part of you.

"When I have done this, you will no longer ask Me, 'When, Lord, when?' I will do everything that I promised that I would do for you. You will be broken no more. No more will you grieve. No more will you suffer. No more will you worry. Now, come with Me!"

He reached for my hand and we were suddenly on an overlook in Heaven. I saw the platform, the receiving area, in Heaven. It was near the City of God. There I saw the train tracks and the tram, like tevah, pulling into the station. One pulled in and then there was another right behind, then another and then another.

The doors opened and the saints got off the train and moved onto the platform. There was music, cheering crowds and such joy. I saw angels with lists checking off the names of the saints that had arrived.

I saw children run to greet their parents and grandparents as they came off of the tram. I also saw the reverse and saw parents and grandparents rush to greet their children and grandchildren. There was so much joy that it could not even be measured.

Jesus: "See, Erin, does this joy not help to erase your worries and, yes, even your anger at Me?"

I had tears streaming down my cheeks, even as I write.

Me: "Yes, Lord, this is all so wonderful. The joy and reconciling of all of this pain is truly incredible. I am sorry for being angry with You. I wrestle with all of this because I know that You are so loving, kind and strong. I wrestle because I know that You hate needless suffering, as well as evil of any kind. I am just having such a hard time with all of this evil and all of the pain that is allowed on Earth."

Jesus: "I know this, Erin, but look and see that all of this is why! Look around, Erin, and see that I have prepared a better place and here it is."

He slowly turned me in a circle and smiled at me as He pointed out so many things. I shook my head in amazement and cried at all of the beauty that is awaiting all of us.

Me: "Yes, Lord, but how will people know?"

Jesus: "They will know as they will have been called. Now, who you will not see here are those who have caused any of these little ones to sin. It would have been better for him to have a great millstone fastened around his neck and to be drowned in the depths of the sea." (Matthew 18)

Me: "Lord, are you also referring to these cults and false religions?"

Jesus: "Erin, I showed you a place a few years back where I will hold those who I will have no mercy on. I will have no mercy on those that did not show mercy to these little children, My children."

I suddenly remembered exactly what He was referring to, but it was just too horrible to describe. I was about to try, but the Lord told me not to discuss this further at this point.

Me: "Oh Lord, this is such a horrific place! It is horrible, just horrible!"

Jesus: "This place is also reserved for those awaiting judgment for using My Name in their pursuit of evil. However, this is a temporary holding area. In this area, they will not be able to think of anything but their crimes over and over again. They will also not be able to think of anything pleasant."

Me: "Lord, I have never seen You so firm about all of this before!"

Jesus: "All of the saints that you see here have inherited the Kingdom of Heaven and are able to enter My Gates, the Gates of the City. They do so and give thanks. However, there are also those who reside outside of these Gates."

Me: "Are You referring to Revelation 22:15?"

Jesus: "It is like the Days of Noah. People are in the market, buying and selling. They are doing their daily business and going about their plans. There will be marriages and engagements, eating, drinking and the like. Suddenly, the very days that they had thought they had left were gone.

"They were oblivious to the times and paid no attention to their continued sins. They took no time to know Me and repent as they enjoyed their sins too much. So, when the time comes, I will have made sure that not one will be able to say, 'But I did not know You, God!' I will have called out, but they will have chosen not to hear Me."

Me: "Lord, You have never been this way before. What can I do? Well, I can do nothing without You! Oh Lord, please help us! Please strengthen us soon!"

Jesus: "Erin, I have promised, so do not be afraid. Do not worry as I have you and I call you My friend. I am soon to strengthen you. Since I will not reveal all of the plans that I have for you, you must instead trust Me fully.

"Now, I am glad that you came to Me in full honesty today. I can count only a few times when you have confessed to being angry at Me. God on the Throne? Yes. But Me? No. I understand that you are angry, but please take comfort in My plans.

"Remember that I am never surprised, never caught unaware and never misinformed. I never cower or worry. I never shake at the sight of darkness. I never plot evil for good. I never scoff at the righteous."

I ran straight into His arms and hugged Him tightly. Even though all that we had just spoken of was hard to speak of, He was still able to somehow comfort me. He is truly the King of kings and the Lord of lords. Nothing is impossible for Him!

Me: "I am so sorry for being angry, Lord. I love You! While I still hate all of the pain here on Earth, at least I am now greatly encouraged by all that You have shown me. I am also so glad that the little children are praying for their families and friends still here. Oh, what joy it is to have You comfort the broken.

"Lord, please do not delay in strengthening all of us. Please do not delay in strengthening my family and my friends." I then smiled at Him. "Oh, please do not delay in strengthening me as well. Our hearts are on You, Jesus!"

Jesus: Smiling. "That is music to My ears! Soon, Erin, very soon!"

Dream 250 – God, Hearts and the ‘Sealed Day’

Received on Wednesday, June 21, 2017

It is first day of summer and this day is the highest of the ‘holy’ days for witches and pagans, but also for Muslims as well this year.

Communion

Before going into prayer, I was first told to study the Book of Job. After doing so, I was then drawn to Malachi and Revelation 22.

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Please forgive my trespasses. Please forgive me.

My Father Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Your Name, thy Kingdom come, thy will be done, on Earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those whom trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. For thine are the Kingdom, the Power and the Glory, forever and ever and ever, Amen!

Father, I read all about Job in my Bible today and he truly was an upright and Godly man. In one day, everything was taken from him and this reminded me of when I went through all of my losses. Since I am certainly not holy like Job, perhaps Your conversation with satan about me would have instead gone something like this...

God: “Have you considered My servant Erin?”

Satan: “Oh yes, of course. She is the one who lied and stole. Even today, lies of convenience roll off of her tongue. She had even prostituted herself by serving other gods as well. Oh yes, I know Erin well. Please allow me to torment her and her children.”

Father, I now realize that I actually ‘needed’ all of the punishment and trials that I had received. Yes, and sometimes I even feel that I deserved all of it, but for good reasons – smiles. While You had allowed all of this for my good, it has been very painful.

Thank You for having the story of Job in the Bible. All that happened in the Book of Job somehow provides a measure of comfort to me as it lets me know that You will even allow such trouble upon a blameless man. The comfort comes from knowing that You love us so much that You would even allow this for our good, no matter who we are.

However, I will even go one step further. The very idea that You would find me worthy of this, as painful as it was and still can be at times, based on all that I have done against You, is simply beyond my understanding. I am so thankful.

- My children may not be 'whole', but they are alive and I am thankful.
- I may not have had a Christian upbringing, but somehow the trials from my parents somehow still brought me here, so I am thankful for them too.
- I may not have had good health since not that long after I became a Christian, but this pain has submitted me to my knees in prayers to You.
- I once had beautiful things that were stripped from me in public shame and I paid a heavy price for my materialism, but I then gained a fortune in Heaven and it is there that my treasures wait.
- I once had stellar talent that was stripped in humiliation during my trials and many were even envious of my success, but I am still thankful for this journey.

After my 'stripping by the locusts', I then hid myself. Though I was hidden, I could still hear horrible things being said about me by people that were close to me, people that I loved and trusted. Father, I grieve the loss of these friends, yet I am thankful that You shed light on who these people really were. They turned out to not be my friends at all.

I once enjoyed physical activity and I was competitive and athletic. I succeeded in everything that I put my heart into. However, in hindsight, this was a major 'heart problem' for me as I had made my body into a personal temple of worship. My heart had not been useful to You and Your purposes as a result.

Many years ago, I had lived in a beautiful place and in a beautiful home. However, this was soon stripped from me in humiliation and You removed me from this beauty and into the desert, a place that I hated. While I was mostly isolated and had little interaction other than with my children there, this is where I was found by You.

Soon after I was taken into the desert, my enemies started to surround me. They then started to close in on me and were determined to destroy me. Just as they were about to lead me to my very death, and by a true miracle, You sent my husband to rescue me. He seemingly showed up out of nowhere and You used him mightily to help us escape.

You then provided for us. You prepared a home for us in advance of all of this. You gave me back all of my children and then sent us to this place, a place that our enemies cannot reach us. My husband has since become their earthly father, the kind of father that I had always longed for and had wanted for my children.

I am just so thankful for this beautiful and safe place. I am so thankful for my husband. I am thankful for his children as they have made my children their sister and brothers. I am thankful for my children as they are all alive, healthy and with me.

You meet me here in the wilderness, the 'land of the trees'. You have kept my heartbeat going despite almost allowing my death a few times. However, each time, You brought my heart back from death and, even more importantly, then reshaped me.

Oh Father, thank You for my removal of barriers to You. Thank You for removing me from the desert I hated being in so much. Even though my enemies remain there and still pursue me today, I now know that You had already prepared this place, and even my husband, in advance of all of this in order to allow me to escape just in time.

Father, Job was living 'the perfect life' and had such joy. While he had thought that he already knew You, his path of suffering, losses and grief 'allowed' him to truly know You. You then met Job in his broken state. You picked him up and restored him with Your grace and immeasurable love.

As for me, Father, You gave me Your mercy and grace even when I truly deserved neither from You. You somehow saw something in me that I could not see in my own heart and still have trouble seeing. While I tried to be loving on my own, it was only when You drew my love out of me that a spring started to flow from this 'desert heart'.

Through Your Son, You took me into Your arms and gave me a hope beyond any of my expectations. Oh Father, I am just so thankful for You and all You have done. I am thankful for each and every day that You give me breath to awake. I am thankful for each new breath that I am given by You.

I am also so thankful for the beautiful rainbow that You gave to my husband and me last night. It was a full rainbow and it lasted an uncharacteristically long time. Thank You, Father, as I just know that You had sent this as a reminder of Your promises to all of us.

While You care about me, my children, my husband and his children, we are but a tiny fraction of those You care about. Your love has no limits. You have done so much for us from beginning to end and I am truly in awe of You.

Today is the first day of summer and it is sunny and beautiful outside. The place You have provided for us is unassuming and tucked away. I am so thankful for all of the amazing nature that surrounds us. While my list of things I am thankful for is long and I am sure that I have still missed quite a bit, here it goes...

- Thank You for the songbirds, eagles, herons, loons, hummingbirds, white hawks, kestrels, kingfishers, woodpeckers, chickadees, doves, yellow finches, wild turkey, pheasants and geese.
- Thank You for the deer, porcupines and turtles.
- Thank You for the foxes, bear, weasels and coyotes.
- Thank You for the ground hogs, squirrels, chipmunks and rabbits.
- Thank You for the ladybugs, butterflies, fireflies and dragonflies.
- Thank You for the raspberries, birch trees and all of the other different types of plants, trees and bushes around us.
- Thank You for the stream and the gentle waterfalls near us that flow in the springtime and sound so beautiful.

Yes, I even thank You for the spiders, crows, wasps and snakes. Though I do not like any of these that much, or even at all, I know that these too have been allowed by You as analogies and teaching tools for us to learn about our enemies.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately standing in front of the door leading into God's Court in Heaven. When I looked over to my side, Uriel was there and he was smiling at me.

Uriel: "God requests your presence, Erin."

Me: "Oh, how I would love to see Him right now!"

The sounds of choirs of angels singing 'Holy, Holy, Holy' came from His Court and filled the air. Uriel smiled, nodded at me and put salve in my eyes and then led me through the door.

I quickly noticed that this visit was different from previous visits. For some reason, I was being allowed to somehow be able to see clearer than in my previous visits. While I could still not look directly at God, all of the surroundings were somehow clearer.

His Court area was mostly made up of beautiful white stone. The walls, ceiling and columns were all perfectly crafted as if by a team of supernatural craftsman. I saw the Altar, bowls of gold and something like lamps or burning candles. There were angels all around us and I could somehow feel the immense love they have for God.

In terms of the power of God that was there before me, it was like a massive white light incomprehensibly magnified into the light of a trillion suns. If it were not for God's protection and the salve, I would have been instantly blinded.

Even with all of this, it is still impossible to look at Him. While it was a similar feeling as looking directly into the sun, it somehow did not hurt my eyes when I tried to glance at Him in the same way as looking into the sun does. Still, I simply just could not do it.

The massive corona of light radiating from His Throne filled and surrounded the entire Court. My tongue was unable to move and I could not even gasp in awe. Uriel saw me struggling and gently brought me closer to His Throne than I had even been before, yet still far away.

Though I was in awe and I trembled with fear, I still have never felt so safe. My knees involuntarily dropped and I wept with my face to the ground. As I did, I felt a wave of warmth go over me. My thoughts suddenly started to search for anything I could have possibly not repented of yet.

I immediately thought of my desire to cover up the fact that I did not acknowledge a distant family member's accomplishment. I was ashamed that I had forgotten to do this, but really had avoided it, and I now wanted to make up an excuse for doing so. While I had not acted on this yet, I had surely already plotted it in my head.

While I was unable to speak any of my confessions out loud, my thoughts started to list so many things. The list was long and many of them were things I had already repented for. Perhaps this was happening because I was still ashamed of how I had been even though I had already confessed. I decided to confess them again 'just in case'...

- For giving others the impression that I was greater than I really was at sports, at work or in anything I have done, please forgive me for boasting.
- For believing that I was once more athletic or beautiful than I really was, please forgive me for my vanity.
- For thinking that I was once more prosperous than what I was, please forgive me for thinking of myself as my own provider.
- Though I know that I am really nothing special, for sometimes thinking that I may somehow be greater than I really am simply because You have called me to meet with You 'in person', please forgive me.

My list went on and on as I continued to condemn myself. 'Surely you are a braggart.' 'You are vain.' 'You are worldly.' 'You have robbed from those God has called you to gift and you are a thief.' 'You are a liar.' I started heaping condemnation on top of condemnation upon myself. Suddenly and mercifully, a rumble came from the Throne that stopped me in my tracks.

God: "Enough, Erin, enough! Stop this! I forgive you. I have heard your thoughts and you are forgiven. Have I not called you to be here with Me this very day?"

Me: "I...I...I...I'm so sorry, Father. I love You. Please forgive me for being so impatient with myself and even You lately. Please forgive me for..."

God: "Enough, Erin! I am here to comfort you, not to rebuke you or condemn you. You worry that I am angry. You often doubt your place with Me. Even though I have already removed the stains of excrement from your past, you sit before Me in a cesspool of your mistakes. In turn, this is as if you are hurling them at Me. Now, why do you still do this? Speak to Me."

Though He was stern, probably more so than any of my previous visits, I still felt safe and loved. I just knew that He was being my Father, but a Father that lovingly disciplines His children to help them move forward. After all, a 'true' father does not abandon His children and God is the Ultimate Father, a Father without fault or blemish.

Me: "Father, it is just that...well..." I took a deep breath and continued. "Well, I look at my life and I am ashamed at all that I have done. The enemy is ever before me to remind me and I feel pain and grief. There is just so much that I am sorry for.

"As a result, I then have a difficult time remembering just how far You have taken me. I instead try to measure my own worth and then I am not able to see all that You have done as a result. In my current state, there is truly nothing that I can do apart from you.

"Father, there are now many days when I am not even sure that I make a difference in the lives of others at all. Sometimes when I open my Bible to the parts of Your Word that speak of admonishment and punishment, I believe it is because I have done something that has put me out of Your favor.

"As You know, Father, so many of my friends had found it so easy to abandon me. I have also made too many enemies to count simply because I live and breathe. This has happened for so long and has happened so often, well, I now wonder if even You may soon get sick of me and abandon me. Oh, Father, I am so sorry for feeling this way."

I suddenly felt a comfort sweep through me and it seemed as if He was smiling at me. After all, how could I ever know for sure when I am unable to look upon His Face? While I soon felt more at ease, I must add that it really is truly impossible to be completely at ease before the Mighty Creator of every single thing in existence.

God: "Well, at least this was spoken in honesty and from your heart, Erin, even though your wisdom has failed you here. However, you are really not much different from when Job placed his doubts before Me as you just did. Now repent for this, leave it behind you and release this burden to Me.

"Erin, remember that you did not choose Me and that I chose you. I created every cell in your body, inside and out. I directed all of your steps since the beginning and I will forever continue to direct all of your steps. I have determined your path and I have numbered your days on Earth.

"Now, I find you worthy and delightful as you have now emptied yourself of your 'self'. While you are not perfect as not one but My Son is, and certainly not by worldly measures, you are what I have deemed to be perfect in My eyes and by My standards alone, understand? Now, who are you to question Me as God for doing this?

"While you have sometimes gone back to measuring your worth by how others weigh you, you must now stop this. Erin, you do not serve the world, you serve Me. You must surrender yourself fully to Me this day and do not delay."

Me: "Father, I give all of me to You! Your ways are higher and Your weights and measures are just. While You are the 'I AM', I have come from mere dust. I am only one human and, according to the world, quite flawed at that. However, to You, I am somehow without blemish." I started to cry. "Oh Father, I love You so much!

"Could You please help me to have understanding? Could You please help me to have wisdom? Could You please strengthen me as I am now consumed with grieving for so many that are hurting? Could You please heal me soon as I am in pain and truly exhausted?

"While I do not have the ability to know all that is happening to me right now, I do know that You have a plan for us in all of this. Oh please, do not let my exhaustive idle words bring You to anger with me. I am just grieving for all of the hurting people around us right now and want You to comfort them. Oh Father, I pray that they all find You soon.”

God: “Erin, your requests are good and I have heard your cries. I have seen your burdens. Though your vessel is now complete, you will not have full understanding of all that this means until My Spirit is completely upon you.

“Now, you must continue on your course. I know that you are frustrated, Erin, but soon, very soon, your enemies will have no choice but to confess the evil they have done against you.

“Now, My ways are always perfect and I have My reasons for keeping you hidden up until now. While some, and even you at times, have questioned My ‘delay’ in healing you, this has never been a delay to Me.

“Do those who question this know even more than Me?” He then laughed and it rolled through the Court. “Would they like to replace Me on the Throne? Well, they should repent now as even My ‘delay’ in your healing has been used as their measure.

“Erin, you, along with the others that I have called, will soon shine like the dawn that breaks the darkness.

- I will continue to protect you even as the wicked pray for harm against you.
- I will continue to hold you close even as the wicked sacrifice to idols and plot your demise.
- I will continue to show you favor even as the wicked ‘worship’ in curses against you.
- I will continue to walk with you even as the wicked attempt to ‘command’ Me to deliver you to the grave of the depths of Sheol.

“Well, no one ‘commands’ Me, Erin, though the enemy tries. I will instead, and very soon, send out those that I have called. They will shine like gold and silver. These are the ones that have presented themselves to Me in offerings of righteousness

"These are the ones that have continuously gauged their actions by My measures. While not one of them is perfect, just My Son, your hearts please Me greatly as they are ever before Me and contrite.

"Now, Erin, you had just stopped writing for a moment and asked yourself if You are really here and speaking with Me." I heard His laugh and I smiled. "Yes, Erin, it is Me and you are not delusional." He laughed again and it rolled through the Court. "Do not worry as soon all will know that none of this is an illusion, understand?"

"Now, I am about to accelerate My judgement against the many wicked as they have no fear of Me:

- There are the sorcerers and adulterers.
- There are those who swear falsely.
- There are those who oppress the widow and the fatherless.
- There are those who cheat the wage earner.
- There are those who deny justice.
- There are even some that do all of these, your main enemy being one of them."

"Now, you have been asking Me the same questions over and over again lately in your thoughts. Do you remember what these questions are?"

Me: "Yes, Father. Why do You allow the wicked to continue to prosper? Why do You allow the wicked to test You? Why do You allow the wicked to then seem to escape time and time again? My main enemy that You just mentioned is one of these. He has been so cruel to me and my children over and over again and continues to be!"

God: "Well, Erin, the words 'seem to escape' is correct. While they may 'seem to escape', I will not allow even one of the wicked to escape Me, including your main enemy! While I may allow them to prosper for a time, but within My bounds, I do this so that they are then 'paid-in-full', understand?"

"As for those who love Me and testify to My Good and the goodness of My works, I will prosper them forever. Though they are afflicted by the unrighteous and judged by a false measure in the 'courts of man' now, they will continue to remain in Me and with Me. Erin, these are My friends, My 'special Vessels', for 'the day that I am preparing'.

"Soon, you and all of My 'special Vessels' will be given understanding and will know who the righteous and the wicked are. I will show them to you as if by separation.

"This will also be like the 'Days of Noah' in that you will weep for the lost as Noah and his family did. Also, and just like Noah, you will still know of and be disgusted by their wickedness. Noah prepared under great duress and was mocked for many, many years before the time I finally sent the rain.

"Like back then, this coming 'day I am preparing' will consume the wicked. However, for you and the others I have called, those who fear My Name and love Me, your lights will rise like the sun and there will be healing in the light of your beams.

"You will be youthful again and just as playful as a young calf. You will trample on the wicked. They will become like ash under the soles of your feet on this, 'the day that I am preparing'.

"Now, do not despair and do not grieve for the wicked as they have chosen to live apart from Me. While they may claim many things in My Name, I will not honor their idle words or their idol sacrifice.

"Now, rejoice, rejoice, as I am about to do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told. Even though you will soon leave My Court to return to your place and may even then still believe that all of this is too great for you at times, do not, Erin, as I am Me, the Lord of hosts and the great I AM.

"It is I Who judges the wicked and the proud. It is I Who finds you worthy of good things. It is I Who has records the pains inflicted on you by those who have pretended to be your friends. I have kept records of every single curse ever made against you.

"Even though it may have seemed like I had abandoned you or perhaps even momentarily left you, I never have, not even once. Instead, I brought you to a land that I selected for you and put you in wide open spaces. I have made your home holy and have sent angels concerning you to protect you and your family in all that you do.

"Now, My Gift is soon to come to you. Once this comes, you will never doubt My love for you again. You will again dance just as you did in your youth. Your enemies will fall at your feet. They will have curses on their lips even at the mere glance of you.

"Soon, your enemies will be saying, 'How can this be? We destroyed her long ago, yet now she prospers?' 'Who would favor her in such a way? I deserve what she has, so why her?' 'Was she not the one who went into bankruptcy not that many years ago?'

"Erin, their curses will go on and on and on even as they watch My deeds being done through you. They will still hate you, yet will also be in complete awe and speechless by what I will do through you and My friends that I have called.

"Now, Erin, do not be afraid and do not be discouraged as I will soon give you the wealth of nations. I will remove all of your debts in a single day. Then, not one enemy will be able to say, 'Wait, she is mine! I own her!' You are Mine and always have been. Even when you walk through the fire, not even one single hair will be singed."

Uriel came over to me to help me back up to my feet. After we had walked a short distance, I decided to turn back towards the Throne of God. I was in tears.

Me: "Oh Father, thank You! I just love You so much. You are so awesome and I cling to Your promises. Thank You, Father, thank You for loving me."

God: Laughing. "Oh Erin, it is not hard for Me to love you. It is you who are hard on yourself, so do not be. Watch for your Gift as I will be sending it soon. I love you."

Uriel brought me outside. I was still weeping tears of joy from my glorious time with my Father and Creator. I started to wonder when this would all happen and whether I still needed to do anything.

Uriel: Smiling. "Do not worry, Erin, as the time has come and you can do nothing to prepare for God has already 'sealed this day'."

Me: "Uriel, what do you mean by this?"

Uriel: "While this remains a mystery for now, it will soon be revealed and then you will know. Now, remember that no one can undo that which God has done, so do not worry. Erin, never doubt His love for you and that He has even sent angels concerning you to prepare your walls.

"Now, rejoice, Erin. Rejoice as He has found you worthy. Rejoice as you know the fate that will soon befall those who have been wicked against you. Rejoice as you will soon be strengthened from on high. So rejoice!"

Uriel smiled at me as we continued to walk down the path. Tears of joy continued to stream down my cheeks, but I certainly did not mind this type of tears at all!

Communion

Dear Father,

It has been a difficult week and I am having a hard time right now. I am struggling to not let my physical pain lead to depression as I am now even having a hard time finding a comfortable spot to lay my head down to sleep.

Father, it has been just over three years since my injury and now I cannot even enjoy resting my head. Journaling is even more difficult as my neck now seems to be unable to even hold the weight of my head anymore.

There are so many physical things that I would just love to do right now, but my ambitions simply cannot be met with my current limitations. For example, I have set out for a walk many times, but, in no time, my limitations yet again overcome my ambitions.

As my mom had me at the age of 21, she was still relatively young as I grew up to be a child and then a teenager. As she was also quite competitive, I was also then brought up to be competitive myself, whether intentional or not. However, due to both of us then being competitive, it was not long before we started to even compete with each other.

While this was a problem in our relationship many times, this self-motivation and athletic ambition ended up serving me quite well when I branched off into my own ventures. However, with me injured for quite some time now, I feel as if my children have been robbed of this in comparison to what I had been taught.

Granted, they could still choose to be self-motivated and acquire this on their own, but I have no doubt that having an active and motivated mom as a coach would have helped them acquire this. While I know that God will soon make this all perfect, it still hurts to watch this as we wait for the fulfillment of His promises.

While I am still thankful for each day that God has given me and I am even thankful for even this very painful day, Father, please forgive me in advance as I once again vent to You. Quite simply, I feel as if my entire Christian walk has been very little fun for me and has instead been more like continuous blows from a very motivated enemy.

My punishing blows all started pretty well the minute that I gave my heart to You, Lord. While I now know that all of this was necessary to teach me to surrender myself to You and to therefore lose my 'self' in the process, it was still an exceedingly painful process with repercussions that remain in pretty well everything I do.

For good reason, the enemy had thought that he could trap me in the desert until I finally died. However, and unexpectedly, a door sprung open on May 8th, 2014 when You allowed me to be injured at work. You then told me, 'Erin, I know that you are now injured, but this is what I will use to call you out of the desert. Now, walk this way.'

Father, you then quickly spared me from rotting in the desert by removing me. You fulfilled Your promise and led me out of the desert and into the 'land of the trees', all in a way that I could not possibly have seen coming. After You 'moved mountains' to get me out of the desert, You then moved me so far away that the enemies' plots against me there were exceedingly difficult for them to execute.

Though I am still in pain, my removal from the desert has since allowed me to take joy in the small things again. Time that I had spent in continuous battles is now spent enjoying the fun things that You send to me. As just one example, a recently installed bird feeder is bringing me more laughter and joy than I could have ever anticipated.

I had recently bought a simple bird feeder and my husband promptly put it up. After considering various locations, we finally decided to put the feeder under an overhang between our kitchen and dining room. This allows me to watch the birds and 'other small critters' enjoy the feeder both as I am eating and then as I clean up afterwards.

Now, I used the term 'other small critters' for a good reason here. While the feeder has attracted many different varieties of birds, it has also attracted a rather large squirrel that we have now nick-named 'Crawl'.

Despite my birdfeeder being specifically advertised as being totally 'squirrel-proof', 'Crawl' still manages to 'make a way when there really should have been no way'. His efforts to get to the birdseed despite the feeder being advertised as 'Crawl'-proof have been extraordinary to watch.

It also seems that he has lost all fear of us. We can even make funny gestures at him through the window while he is only a couple of feet away from us and he basically ignores us. However, after enjoying this spectacle for a while, I decided that he was eating so much seed that there was barely any left for the birds we had installed it for.

The solution we came up with was to buy some special squirrel food and put it in a separate feeder on the ground beneath the birdfeeder. Since then, 'Crawl' has mostly left the birdseed to the birds and harmony has been mostly restored.

Thank You, Lord, for the little things, but also for the mysterious bigger things that You do as well. Two of my children were originally supposed to travel on June 17th, but this was first delayed until June 24th to facilitate their dad's trip to Mexico.

They were then supposed to leave yesterday, but there has now been an even further delay due to my daughter's biopsy and the subsequent need to have her sutures removed. My enemy then followed a pattern that never changes and has since concocted a story that I somehow used all of this to orchestrate their trip delay.

While I would have normally replied to his lies immediately, the Lord told me that it was not yet the time to respond and that He would guide me when the time was right. He also reminded me to follow His example and not respond to lies. I listened to Him and I simply did not respond to the horrible things he had said of me, all of it such evil lies.

I am grateful that, once this summer passes, yet another one of my children will no longer be subject to court orders for mandatory visitation as he will also be 18. However, this still means that my daughter would be required to visit.

While my younger son could then opt to stay here after he turns 18 just like my oldest son, he has since indicated that he would prefer going simply so that his sister would not have to be out there alone. While this is comforting, it is just so incredibly sad that the situation is such that he feels he has to do this.

It really did not have to be this way as I have always been amicable and quite cooperative with my enemy. However, this particular time is different as we still have not received my daughter's pathology report and I refuse to budge on her safety.

While I am in no mood to have to fight my main enemy yet again as a result, her health is just too important for me not to. And, yes, thank You, Lord, for sending me a husband that has no fear in rolling up his sleeves to battle this man. For some reason, You have even made it so that he somehow even enjoys fighting those who curse me.

Now, this last week has been quite interesting and I feel as if the Lord had sent me a series of small tests. In my first example, a clerk accidentally did not charge me for a $35 item. While I instinctively somehow knew that the total I had just paid seemed a bit low, I was in such a hurry to pick up my kids from school that I purposely ignored it.

When I later had the time to look over the bill more closely, it was then that I noticed that this $35 item was indeed missing from the sales receipt. Once I realized this, I promptly phoned the store and told them that I would be coming back to pay for the missing item.

I was so mad at myself for not simply taking the time to check it over before leaving town in the first place. I then even felt guilty because, had the amount been too much instead, I am sure that I would have made the time to deal with it right then and there prior to leaving the store.

As I debated simply waiting until later that day, or even the next day, to make this right, I suddenly felt the Holy Spirit prompt me to take care of the matter immediately. My daughter then volunteered to come with me and we drove the thirty minutes back into town together. We then even had to drive through a torrential downpour to get there.

When we finally arrived at the store, the two saleswomen helping me told me that they had recognized me from previous visits. I then explained the situation, but wanted to make sure that the clerk who missed the item was not going to get in trouble for it.

The ladies assured me that she would be fine and thanked me for coming back to pay for the missing item. After they rang the item through and I paid for it, I felt relief that I had made the situation right by coming back in immediately.

Before I left the store, the woman who had missed the item saw me and rushed over to thank me for my honesty. While I am not sure, I felt that perhaps the Lord wanted us to do this right away in order to pave the way for a future interaction with these women after we are transformed. It really seemed to me as if there was more to all of this.

Anyway, the very next day, I made a different mistake, but this time it resulted in me saving the exact amount of $35 that I had just 'spent' the day before. By accident, I had put my finger through a clothes item that I was trying on. It was at a liquidation-type store and this particular article was regularly over $250, but was on sale for just $42.

This was an amazing bargain and the item was of much greater quality than what you would usually expect for $42. While I knew that I could fix the hole that I had just made, it really would have still been easier for me to just sneak the item back on the shelf and pretend that this had never happened.

After discussing this with my husband, we decided to opt for full disclosure and asked to speak to the store manager. When she came over to us, we explained to her what had just happened and indicated that we wanted to pay the full price, but that we were still curious as to what the store policy would usually be in such a situation.

The manager then told us that she recognized us from previous visits and indicated that such honesty was unheard of in these days. She then went on to explain that these things happen and that she simply could not allow us to buy it at the original $42.

Before I knew it, she took the item from me and slashed the $42 price to $7 with a pen. She then insisted that this was the price that it would now sell for and that this was non-negotiable. We protested, but she absolutely insisted and then even went and told the cashier not to accept more from us for the item no matter how much we argued.

When my husband and I were later driving home from this store, it was only then that we made a shocking discovery. The $35 'cost' of yesterday's 'honesty' was somehow just exactly matched by our 'savings' for today's 'honesty'. How can you not be amazed by God's higher ways in all of this and to the penny even?

Anyway, there were then three other similar instances later that same week, all involving salesclerks and all really feeling like additional tests from God. I felt that I was then also tested twice more to not react to a couple displays of road rage against us.

I also felt I was being tested when I found out that two of our children had not given us the whole story on a certain matter. The Holy Spirit provided me with the wording that drew out the truth, but not in the way I would have imagined. However, the test seemed to be whether I would handle this with firmness and gentleness or if I lost my temper.

In the end, I handled this with gentleness and only as much directness as was required. While there was more to this, all was reconciled in the end. I must admit that I am now quite tired from all of this. Just as I wrote this, I heard the sounds of birds singing all around me in the trees and had to thank God yet again for removing us from the desert!

As I was lying in bed last night struggling to find a comfortable position for my head, I started praying again. Tears soon started to flow and I found myself asking yet again when something incredible was finally going to happen. I was in so much pain that this seemed to even amplify the urgency of my prayers.

Father, I pray that I have passed all of Your tests. Everything we own is Yours and we only have any of this simply because You have graciously provided it to us. Everything around me is a gift. My children are my gifts and my husband is my gift.

While there are still those things around me that I have earned from years of work, even these are Your's since You are the One who gave me the day's breath and the ability to create. Without Your gifts of our resulting abilities, we would simply not be able to perform anything. Really, nothing could ever be possible as a result.

Oh Father, I am simply nothing without You. I write these dreams down even though You know that I hate writing. However, I know that You have done so much for us, how can I not do whatever it is that You call me to do and, yes, even if it means writing!

As I laid there praying, I soon drifted off. You then gave me a short dream...

Dream 1 description begins...

I was about three years old and was wearing a little white dress. My feet were barefoot and I had flowers in my long hair. I was standing in a meadow filled with beautiful wild flowers and was laughing out loud at all of the butterflies that surrounded me.

I was then allowed to watch myself as I danced around laughing while I chased these butterflies. I heard Jesus laughing and my three year old self quickly ran into His arms. I watched as He held my younger self and I cried tears of joy at the sight. I knew that she, and therefore I, would always be safe in His mighty arms. I prayed again as I watched all of this unfold.

Me: "Oh Lord, please help us soon. Please, Father, do not forget about us!"

Dream 1 description over...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was in a beautiful meadow and could not even see a single cloud in the blue sky. There were flowers everywhere and I was wearing a white linen dress. I laughed and started to spin all around in joy. I was looking for Jesus at the same time, but I could not see Him anywhere.

I found an area with soft mossy grass and decided to lie down to rest. As I stared up at the clear sky, clouds started to line up. The many cloud shapes were greatly amusing and I thanked the Lord for the wonderful spectacle.

I felt strongly that I was to now really enjoy this little time I had here that was completely void of any cares. Though I knew this would only last for but a moment, I could not believe how wonderful it felt to truly have all worries vanquished from my thoughts. I closed my eyes in prayer.

Me: "Oh Lord, while we wait for You, time continues to march forward and life goes on. All around us, conditions in the world are continuing to become worse. It seemed as if life was still relatively good not that long ago and I am saddened that everything in the world is now breaking down so fast."

I could tell that someone was near me as I prayed, so I opened my eyes. Jesus was right there standing above me. I looked up and He had a huge smile on His face.

Received on Sunday, July 2, 2017

Jesus: Laughing. "So, Erin, are you enjoying some rest?"

He reached over and helped me to sit up. He then sat down right next to me and looked into my eyes. Without any warning, tears started to stream from my eyes down my cheeks. I surprised myself as I was suddenly crying quite heavily.

Me: "Lord, while I feel broken, I really am now broken. While I am so grateful that You removed us to a safe place in the trees, I desire to finally start truly living while we wait for You. My fear is that You will keep us waiting too long in this forced holding pattern.

"It seems as if there is nothing we can do to get You to 'really' start moving with us. To make matters even worse, I have now even found out that my daughter may be sick. In turn, this potential sickness has caused a huge battle with my main enemy as he greatly resents the resulting delay in the children's travel.

"Lord, we are waiting for the report from the doctor and my son will not travel without her. If this is even possible, my son's stand has then even further infuriated their father. I have now been accused of so many things as a result of all of this.

"While my enemy's emails have been poisonous, I thank You, Lord, as I just know that You have helped me with each one of my replies. Still, the last few days have been exhausting and I am now completely exhausted from all of these battles.

“Lord, You know our every need, as well as our every heartbreak. You have seen what has been done to us and the things that have been said about us. Despite the enemy’s accusations, I stood my ground and made the tough call to wait for the results before I will allow the kids to travel. I felt that this course of action matched Your instructions.

“Lord, it even seemed as if You confirmed this when You then sent us a double rainbow shortly after making this decision. The very next day, there were even more battles, but it seemed as if You then sent us yet another double rainbow as further confirmation. Lord, both of these rainbows even seemed to end right on top of our house!”

Though my eyes were blurry with tears, I saw Jesus facing me to listen with such empathy. He had His knees bent as He rested His arms on His knees as He listened. I had never seen Him sit this way and I could not help but smile while I cried. He smiled back at me, but then motioned for me to continue. He listened as I continued to vent.

Me: “Lord, You know all of this is happening, so why would You allow all of this to continue when You know that we all love You so much? Is it that I have not done everything that You have asked of me in the way that You asked me to do it?”

Jesus: “No, Erin, you have obeyed My directions perfectly. However, please remember that you have now completely handed your life over to Me for My purposes. Now, do you remember doing this?”

Me: “Yes, Lord.”

Jesus: “You then fully gave Me all of your children and told Me that they were Mine. You then also told Me that they were never really yours to begin with. Now, Erin, do you also remember doing this?”

Me: “Yes, Lord. You have entrusted them to me, but they are really all Your’s.”

Jesus: “Alright then, Erin, you must now trust Me fully with your entire situation. While you may still prefer to pick and choose off of the menu at times, you must realize that doing so will result in an unexpectedly high 'final bill'. You will then look back at your meal and realize that it was not nearly as sweet as you had hoped it would be.

"So, Erin, let Me order for you instead, understand? In turn, I promise you that I will give you that which is good...even if you then receive some unexpected items..." He smiled. "Erin, what I serve you is good, but it is also good for all those sitting around the table with you..." He smiled again and nudged me. "...and, yes, this even includes those who are eating at your restaurant and those who are still waiting for their reservations."

"Now, with Me ordering, even the scraps on the floor are good to eat. Remember that I am the Master Chef and the Server of Good Things. However, you must also remember that God is the Owner of the Restaurant and that He is also the Creator of every single thing that is good."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but why does Your food always seem to have to be so 'bittersweet'?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Now, Erin, I never promised you that every one of My meal selections would be 'sweet and easy'. However, by fully releasing all things to Me and trusting Me in both the good and the bad, I do promise you that you will have a wonderful dessert at the end of your meal. Erin, it will be a dessert that will never end.

"I have already paid the price for all of this so that you would have no need to worry. The price has been 'paid-in-full'! Now, I love you and I am here with you. While I know that this has been difficult for you, your enemies will soon be begging for your scraps.

"Right now, your enemies refuse to eat even one scrap of what I have to offer even though they act like hungry dogs. However, there will soon come a day when they will then try to still make reservations to dine with Me at the Marriage Supper. However, they will then find out that we are no longer taking reservations.

"Out of desperation, your enemies will then call the 'Restaurant' directly and claim that they already have reservations. The angel will then open the Book and see that this is not true.

"They will then be horrified to find out that not one of their names is on the reservation list." He then looked sternly, yet lovingly, directly into my eyes. "Erin, not one of their names will be on that list."

I shuddered at the thought. While these enemies have done such horrible things to me, and many still try to do so to this very day, my heart was still saddened at the thought of their soon torment as I just knew it would be brutal and without mercy.

Me: "Oh Lord, if only they would turn to You now. If only they would listen to You now before it is too late."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but you are not to worry about them as My Father and I are fully in control in all of this. Just remember that you are in My care and already dine in My Restaurant. So, even though I have created both you and the menu, would you still like for Me to order for you or would you instead prefer to pick and choose your own selections, perhaps even the 'selection du jour'?"

Me: Laughing. "Oh Lord, You are right! I would much rather have You plan my menu for me. Although my children may still ask for some of the side dishes, or even for other condiments, to make what is served more to their liking, I will stick with Your planned courses as You are always perfect in Your selections."

Jesus: Laughing. "Erin, I know that what I serve does not always sound appetizing at first, but you have still chosen to dine here with Me. However, those you love also dine at 'your table' and you are with others in this 'Restaurant'. While some may still prefer 'junk food' over My 'Good Food', I promise you that you will always have a 'great meal' when you dine with Me."

At first, I laughed with Him, but then I rested my head on His shoulder. I circled my arms around His arm and held Him close to me. I felt so safe there next to Him that I closed my eyes for a moment to take it all in.

Jesus: "Erin, while you have now slayed your lion, the old toothless one, you are now facing a large bear. However, it too now runs."

He suddenly downloaded a seemingly insignificant incident that recently occurred. When I had recently driven with my daughter to her doctor's appointment, a large black bear had run right in front of our car. I had plenty of time to stop, but the bear then quickly ran into the forest and out of our sight. We then continued on our way and never really put any more thought about this incident.

Me: "So, what did this mean, Lord?"

Jesus: "Well. Erin, it is written that a roaring lion and a rushing bear is like a wicked ruler over a poor people. However, it is also written that the Lord, Who has delivered you from the paws of the lion and from the paws of the bear, will also deliver you from the giant. While the bear seemed like a threat at first, it quickly ran and disappeared up the trail and into the woods again.

Me: "Oh, that was You, Lord!"

Jesus: "Now, Erin, if I am with you, who can stand against you?"

Me: "It means that, when You are with me, no one can stand against me. You were there with us on our trip to the doctor's and had even sent us the bear as a sign."

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, and I also sent you both of the rainbows as signs."

Me: Crying. "I am sorry, Lord, so sorry. It is just that...well...I am here with You now...so, please...please will You not help us...Lord, could You consider today to be 'the day'?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Hmm, oh, I see. So, are you requesting soup or salad? What kind of dressing would you prefer? Perhaps I can even provide some croutons?"

Me: Now laughing. "Okay, Lord, I will try to not ask You again. I am sorry. It is just that...well...You are here with me right now, Lord."

Jesus: "Though I fully realize that you wonder what I am up to, does the Bride always know the movements of the Groom prior to the day that He comes for Her? Though She waits with oil in Her Lamp day and night for His arrival, She never knows exactly when He will arrive.

"Instead, She trusts in Him fully, knows that He will soon come and then prepares and watches. While the Bride then waits for the Groom excitedly, She does not always wait patiently, does She? So, in order to keep Her encouraged, the Groom then sends confirmation of His soon arrival in various ways.

"The Groom does this by sending signs, gifts and wonders, as well as through angels and friends. The Bride then does Her part by keeping watch over Her dwelling and Her garments so that she is always prepared for His soon arrival. Erin, you are an expectant Bride and I am glad! You are faithful, but you must also remember that the Groom comes at the appointed time and does not delay."

Me: "Even though I should know better and even though You just finished explaining all of this to me, Lord, I still need to ask You for our healing as we continue to wait for You, Please, Lord, soon! While I do not want to jump ahead of Your plans, this is something that You have already promised, right, Lord?" I started to laugh.

"Now, with that being said, I certainly do not want to stuff myself on salad when I know that the main course contains the 'best meat'. While I trust in Your timing, I really am just too excited about all that You have planned for us to wait much longer. Still, while waiting is really hard for all of us, I will do my best to keep the hearts of me and my household on You while we do so."

He looked very pleased with what I had just said to Him. As He smiled at me, and even though waiting is so hard, I somehow truly felt in my heart right then and there that only He truly knows the perfect timing for all of this to happen. This comforted me greatly.

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, I know that you will 'try'." He laughed. "Now, do you remember the dream that I gave to you last night?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, it was a funny dream..."

Dream 2 description begins...

I lived in a home with eight foot high walls. There was no roof over our home, only the walls. The windows were also open as there were no glass panes. The carpet was even made of soft green grass, but was perfectly mowed short and kept thick.

In the very center of the room was a massive tree. The tree had a variety of fruits and consisted of different types of both citrus and apple. The branches were so laden with fruit that it was ridiculous and would be impossible if this tree was on Earth.

The sun shined into the room and, at times, I would move the bench around so that I could sit in the sunlight and soak up the sun. At other times, I lied in the grass, but mostly I loved just sitting on the bench eating fruit from this amazing tree.

As I was relaxing one day, I suddenly heard a loud knocking on my front door. I opened the door to find a man standing there with a large package. Even though I did not invite him in as I had not been expecting a package, he decided to come in anyway.

When the man entered, he inspected the kitchen. As the kitchen was nearest to the front entry, he seemed to completely ignore the main living room. He also did not seem to notice that there was grass for carpet and a fully grown fruit tree laden with fruit in the middle of the room.

Me: "Excuse me, sir, but is there something that I can help you with?"

Man: "Well, no, there is not. Indeed, you are the one in need. Just look at this place!"

I looked around the kitchen, but was unsure what he was referring to. It was quite clean and, other than just a few dirty dishes in the sink, essentially barely used. I soon realized that I was no longer making the kitchen my priority and chuckled as this is not like me at all right now as I just love to keep 'my' kitchen spotless.

Man: "Yes, I can certainly see that you desperately need my help. Fortunately for you, I have the perfect thing for you to purchase that will solve all of your problems."

Before I could protest, the man opened the package and pulled out a massive metal contraption. It was such an odd looking thing and even had burgers in plastic wrap, along with other seemingly random items and food.

While pieces of the contraption seemed complicated, the food itself looked old and well past their expiration date. The contraption itself was covered in dust. As I inspected it closer, it looked like a type of custom food apparatus on wheels made to produce meals in some sort of self-sufficient manner. I was puzzled as to why I would need this at all.

Me: "Why would I ever need such a thing? First off, I do not eat that much. However, when I do, I already like my setup as it is. All I have to do is eat the fresh fruit that is right there on this tree! I love doing this and I really have no need for any more."

I could tell that he was now purposely ignoring my words, along with the tree, as he was really just wanting to continue with his sale uninterrupted.

Man: "Now wait just one minute, young lady. I will show you that this is much better."

He started playing with the contraption to show me how it worked, but it soon became clear that it was no longer working. I could tell that he was desperate to sell this to me. I was still not interested and did not want either of us to waste our time any further.

Me: "Listen, I really do not want to be rude, but I am really not interested."

Man: "Well, I will still leave this with you anyway as it was specifically designed just for you. I really have no use for it."

Me: "I am confused. Can you not see that this fruit tree is all that I need for food?"

Rather than acknowledging my question, the man simply left without taking the contraption with him. After he left, I carted the apparatus over to a corner of the kitchen that was out of the way.

It was only then that I noticed that there was a massive pile of other items that other salespeople had obviously previously tried to sell to me. I could not help but laugh at the sheer number of useless items that were piled up in the corner.

Dream 2 description over...

Jesus: Laughing. "Now, Erin, make sure you stay in your living room with the fruit tree as I am there with you. You have everything you need there. I will provide the sun, the rain and will continue to give you fruit from the tree. Whoever knocks at your door from this point on are mere distractions. Unless I tell you otherwise, it is best to just ignore them as they are trying to pull you away from living here with Me in abundance."

Me: "Oh Lord, please forgive me for doing this. I did not realize that I was..."

Jesus: "Wait, Erin, this is not an admonishment, but a confirmation. While you will continue to be kind to strangers at My leading and hear what they have to say, you are only to do so as per My instructions and then come back to Me immediately after any such encounter. Always remember that Heaven is over you and that I am your Canopy, your Cover and your Light."

Me: Crying. "Yes, Lord, You are all things to me! Now, can You help me with another dream that I had recently? While the dream was too short for my liking, it was wonderful and seemed so significant."

Dream 3 description begins...

My mom, my daughter and I were all playing together. What was so odd about this was that all three of us were the same age, around five years old. Somehow the three of us were now the very best of friends even though we were still related, even if in three separate generations.

Dream 3 description over...

Me: "Lord, how could this even be?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Well, Erin, I delight in each of you, but there is so much more that you do not yet know. While all will be reconciled with you some day, just know that you also have many more friends already waiting here."

Me: "Lord, what was the meaning of the exposed house with no roof?"

Jesus: "This symbolizes your heart, Erin. Your heart is ever open before Me and bears fruit that is good to eat. There were no glass panes in the windows as there is no need for glass on the windows of your heart. There is also an 'artery' planted there with roots and it is a tree of continuous harvests. Even the floor of the house is lush grass with a soft texture. The sun shines from your heart, Erin, as I am shining there!"

Me: Crying. "Lord, I have great difficulty thinking of myself in this way at all. Lord, all of this is just too wonderful for someone like me."

Jesus: Smiling. "Then stop your thinking and just relax and fully give Me your heart. It is written that Sheol and Abaddon lie open before me, so how much more are the hearts of men? Erin, the refining pot is for silver and the furnace is for gold, but it is I that test hearts." Proverbs 15:11 & 17:3.

Me: "Lord, people are growing colder every day and this coldness is growing faster than ever before. I am worried about how this will all turn out."

Jesus: "Do not worry for this is also written. Now, Erin, I continuously search your thoughts and you just thought, 'Is this what He meant when He said I am going to do something in your day that you would not believe even if you were told'? You had just thought this as you were recalling some of the troubles that have come against you.

"Well, Erin, NO, this is not it! While I use you to test the hearts of those around you, there is much more to this. While it is also written that, in this life, you will have trouble, do not worry as I have overcome the world. Erin, there is so much more to all of this.

“And, yes, while I also use you as a measure for your enemies, I am also going to do so much more with you and soon. While you already know this in your heart as your dreams have been preparing you for the time when you are strengthened and healed, you are still discouraged by how you are on this very day.

“Well, do not be discouraged, Erin, as this is now the time to be encouraged. Know that I am here with you always. In the same way that I know all of the hidden plans in the hearts of the wicked soon to be punished, how much more do I delight in those hearts that fully trust in Me and know that My plans are for their good?

“Now, do not worry, Erin, as I have you and your children. Know that I sent your husband, but also so many friends. I removed you from the desert and sent you to a beautiful place. I have provided for your needs there. Now, please remain in Me. In just a little while, you will understand why. I love you!”

He smiled at me and put His arms around me. I hugged Him tightly and never wanted to let Him go. I felt such peace that I really did not want it to ever end. Quite simply, it is a peace that can never be fully described on this side of Heaven.

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my husband, children and the place that You prepared for us. Thank You for our family and friends and their prayers.

Today is balmy and overcast. While normally there are birds chirping and singing outside my window, all I can hear today is the occasional distant caw from a crow. Otherwise, it is completely still and quiet.

I wish that I could say the same about my heart. All of my children are still here with me today, but this is a rare thing as two of them are usually already gone for their summer visit to their father's. However, the reason for this is bittersweet as this is due to the test results we are still waiting for from my daughter's biopsy.

All of this has caused my heart to hurt. While I am somewhat used to taking the brunt of physical trials after so many years of this, it hurts for a mom to see her child now struggle with this. Well, all I can do is surrender everything to Your plans and timing.

Father, we have grown closer as a family, but all of this uncertainty is quite unnerving. When I carve out time to come to You in quiet prayer to tell You all of my concerns, I hear Your Voice say, 'Do not worry, Erin, I have this.' Still, it is human, especially for a mom, to still worry, even when I know better.

When I look back on my childhood, I can remember so many different times of trials and tragedies. When these events came, they were sudden and, even if but for a brief moment, somehow time even seemed to stand still. It literally felt to me like time had stopped.

While there were times that I have even wished that I could make the clock go backwards for a do over or to do something different, even if it was just for fifteen minutes, the bottom line is that this type of thinking really accomplishes nothing.

I recently noticed that when things happen that are beyond my control, I now search my memory banks over my past bridges. I search for past sins that I may have committed that perhaps would help justify some of what happened to me and even continues today.

Well, the enemy has used this searching of mine and had a field day with me this morning. I remembered things I had done when I was child, times before I followed You. Though I thought I knew so much back then, I now know that my thoughts and actions were unreasonable and without leading.

A few specific things suddenly came up in my mind. Oh Lord, did I forget to repent for something? I decided that only prayer could help the anguish I was feeling right now. I immediately went on my knees to go before the Lord to ask for His divine assistance.

Me: "Oh Father, please forgive me. I am so sorry that I have sinned against You. When I was young and foolish, I wore my sins like a badge of honor on the battlefield of foolish wars. Please forgive me as I never knew the long term effects of all that I had done. Lord, please do not hold any of this against me or my children. Please!"

Holy Spirit: "Who told you to travel back over your previous bridges? It was not Me, Erin, it was your accuser. You have already repented for your past sins and, for some of them, several times. If you had not repented, you would not be where you are today, here with Me.

"Do not look back, Erin, as the enemy walks around with mirrors. While you no longer have trouble with vanity as you once did in your foolish youth, the enemy uses this to create mugshots with your reflection and shows this to you. This is a lie! You have Me now, so remove the accuser. He only has that power which you choose to give to him."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but sometimes it even seems as if You have granted him this power."

Holy Spirit: "Yes, but only when this is part of My plan in keeping your faith strengthened. Remember that My ways are higher than your ways."

Me: "Yes, Lord, I am sorry that I so quickly forget sometimes."

Holy Spirit: "Erin, do not be fooled by the enemy's schemes."

Me: "Oh Father, please forgive me for partnering up with the accuser in the times when I beat myself up for my past. I repent for participating in these schemes of his against me. Please remove the enemy from my life so that I can see only the face of Your Son in the mirror instead. I just love You so much. Please, Father, keep us safe under Your wings and by Your Altar. All of our hope is in You!"

Holy Spirit: "You have been and are forgiven."

I suddenly felt my burdens lift and felt at peace. I suddenly recalled two dreams that I recently had, one from last night and the other from the night before.

Dream 1 description begins (July 3rd, 2017)...

I owned a large piece of property. It was beautifully groomed with alfalfa fields and other types of crops. There was also a greenhouse that held a variety of fruit trees and vegetables. There seemed to be so much land that it stretched for acres and acres.

One day, I decided to take a walk to get my mail from the mailbox down the main road just off of this property. When I reached my gate, I surveyed the surrounding land and noticed that it was not lush like mine. Instead, it looked quite foreboding.

The landscape was barren and I could see brown dirt everywhere that I looked. As I walked down the main road, I saw that two make shift shelters had been built just off of our property. The shelters were made of tumbleweeds and manzanita branches.

I looked into the first shelter and saw a curled up, medium-sized brown dog lying there. I could tell that, at one point, he had clearly been someone's pet as he was still wearing a rather comical doggie t-shirt and a small baseball cap. The dog did not move and I thought that perhaps he might have been sleeping, but I really did not know for sure.

It was only then that I noticed a very large rabbit standing right next to the dog. The rabbit was huge and was white with large brown spots. It was barely recognizable as a rabbit as it had eaten so much that it was now grotesquely engorged.

As I turned away from this rather odd sight and left the shelter, I caught a movement in the corner of my eye. I looked over and saw a blonde colored cow with her calf. The cow looked extremely sick and the calf looked almost dead from starvation.

The cow was so small and sickly that it was heartbreaking. It even seemed as if the cow was fully aware that her calf was starving from lack of milk, but somehow felt helpless to do anything about it. The calf laid next to her mother and had a listless look. I shook my head in sadness at the horrible sight.

I then heard footsteps coming from behind me. When I turned to look, I saw that my husband was now standing next to me. I was in tears as I turned towards him. I hugged him and started to cry as I pointed to the awful sight.

Me: "There is food for her to eat just twenty feet away on our property. There is fresh alfalfa literally just a few feet away from them. Why does she not just eat it? Perhaps I should get a tray of food and bring it to them. We have to help or they will soon die."

My husband: "Erin, they know that there is food here, but they have purposely chosen this. I am not sure why the rabbit is here. This is odd and it just seems to mock the others while it continues to gorge itself on food. There is really nothing we are supposed to do here. This is hard to look at. We have to go now."

I reluctantly agreed with him and we continued on our walk. We then decided to peek into the second shelter to see if there were any odd sights there as well. Sure enough, there was a physically healthy, young red cow standing there, but it looked disoriented and confused. This also did not feel right to us.

We again soon decided to keep walking to the mailbox. After picking up our mail, we walked back past the shelter. It was just a few minutes later, but the red cow was now asleep.

Not only that, but, when we walked past the other shelter, the mother cow had already left and the calf laid there dead. The tiny body of the emaciated dead calf was right next to the sleeping dog. We then noticed that the rabbit had also now left.

Me: Crying. "Should we bury the calf?"

My husband: "No. We do not know what caused her death. We simply cannot risk carrying any potential disease back to our house. We will just have to leave her."

Me: "The buzzards will eat her."

My husband: "Perhaps, but God has not called us to spend our time this way. He has not called us to spend our time trying to save that which has no desire to be saved. There was food right next to them and they chose not to eat it. It is not our calling to make sure that every creature is fed. While this is noble, it is just not what God's directive is for us at this time."

I started to cry as it was all just so hard to look at. As I nodded my head in agreement with my husband, he came over to hug me. Even though I knew in my heart that he was correct, it was still so hard to just keep walking.

Dream 2 description begins (July 4th, 2017)...

I was living in a room in the 'Old Main' University Park Campus Building at Penn State. My children were also living there, but off-campus in a bright and cheery area with lots of sunshine. Unlike where I was, they were surrounded by the laughter of joyful people.

I went to visit them at their residence and it was so wonderful for me to see them with such happiness. Every one of them was healed and they were now beginning to have lives of their own. For some reason, we all looked around the same age in this dream and as if we were all in our twenties.

On a side note, I have found it quite odd that the Lord sometimes has us looking similar in age as our kids in some of these dreams. While I am really not sure why He does this sometimes, I suppose this is yet another mystery from our limitless God!

As I visited with my children, they asked me if I would be willing to move out of the dreary 'Old Main' building to where they were living. It did not take much for me to be convinced and I quickly agreed to move.

Me: "Alright, but I need to go back and gather up a few items first. I will meet you back here at around 7:00pm."

My oldest son: "Okay, mom, but hurry. Remember how dark it gets there!"

Me: Smiling. "I know, I know. Do not worry. It will not take me too long."

After each of them hugged me, I started to walk back to my room. As I walked, I passed by two people that were staring at me. This made me quite uncomfortable as they both looked crazy and were whispering about me in hushed tones. One of them then whistled in a way that I knew was meant to tell others up ahead that I was coming.

I searched ahead for any signs of danger, but could not see any. I decided to keep walking, but much quicker. When I looked back, the two crazy people were no longer there. To my great relief, I soon arrived at my apartment without any incident.

I quickly started gathering up my belongings, but soon decided that this was taking far too long. I instead decided to gather up only what I needed and placed it into a small backpack. Just as I was about to open the door to leave, I decided to peek out the window first.

When I looked out, I could see an insane looking woman charging at my door with an axe. There were several others with her and they were all standing just outside of my apartment. I instantly regretted going to my apartment without one of my sons.

Now, normally I would have had my husband here to help me, but he was currently away with his son. When I started to hear the axe smashing into the door, I just knew it would not be long before they gained entry. I cried out to God.

Me: "Oh Father, please send Your mighty angels to protect me!"

I then heard Jesus' Voice audibly speak back to me calmly. This made me calm.

Jesus: "Erin, just walk out."

I immediately felt no fear and opened the door when I knew that the woman was resting between axe swings. I then simply walked right by all of them as they rushed into the now open door to my apartment.

Not one of them could see me. The Lord downloaded their plans and I knew they were plotting to attack and kill me that very night. They ran right by me and did not see me at all. I could not help but laugh at this turn of events as I walked over to where my kids were waiting for me. I looked down at my watch and noticed that I was still 'right on time'.

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for Your love. Thank You! Thank You for delivering my two youngest children to Washington safely. I surrender them to You, Father, as they are always safest in Your arms, not mine.

As You already know, I had a very difficult night last night and have not felt physically well lately. Each new battle seems to take more and more out of me. While I then become better equipped for the next one after each of these often dramatic battles, I am also physically less able to stand.

It seems to now take several days for me to recover after one of these stressful situations. I am so blessed to have a husband that can now witness to all of this and can testify to the intensity of it all. Thank You, Father, for sending my husband as my witness and earthly support.

I recently noticed that, ever since my husband read my 'Little Red Journal of Pain' as caused by my main enemy, he has become especially relentless against this particular enemy. While I still sometimes just want it all to go away and give in, he gives me encouraging words and insists that I stand and fight as You have instructed us to:

- "No, Erin, with the Lord behind us, you will never need to bend to this man ever again."
- "The Lord says He will deliver us from this man's evil ways, so let us not cower."
- "Remember that this man hates you so much and has never stopped wanting your death. If 'this or that' makes him angry, also remember that he simply cannot get any angrier than he already is towards you. Let's stick to the plan."
- "Unless the Lord specifically tells us otherwise, we will stand up to him at every opportunity and will not relent until it is all over."
- "Remember that this man sees any voluntary act of kindness on our part as weakness. He had become used to you giving in, but I am here now. He will soon realize that things have changed."

Oh, and let me tell you, he has! Thank You, Father, for sending me my husband. I am in such pain and I do not know how I could continue without Your strength and now his.

My arms are now numb, I am having difficulty breathing and my chest is heavy. I am not sure why this is all happening to me. All of the pain seems to make me quickly forget the reasons You have told me for why You have allowed this.

As a result, I am struggling greatly right now, Father, and I am so tired. In my great pain, I sometimes now even forget if I have even made a difference in the lives of those around me. Pain does things to a person that is hard to describe unless you have experienced it yourself.

Lord, I pray that I have displayed Your love and grace in all that I have done. I pray that our children have grown to know You and love You as I do. My children, in particular, are so easily discouraged when Your promises do not come as quickly as they had thought they should.

Oh Father, it is so difficult to be a teenager in this world today. As a parent, I can no longer keep up with the trends that seem to fight for their attention. At this time in my life and in my current health, I feel that I would actually be a better grandparent than a parent right now.

I have prayed for my children. I have prayed that they would have excitement, joy and fun adventures. I have prayed that they would gain wisdom on their path towards You. However, as of right now, I am sad as things are just not as I had hoped for them.

My sons, but especially my older son, grow more and more discouraged by their current mental limitations. Father, I can do nothing to heal their hearts and minds. All I can do is lend comfort in their brokenness as we continue to wait for Your timing.

I can literally do nothing these days other than continue to pray to You with all of my heart. My pain level has now become too intense and I am going to now stop for the day.

Dream 3 description begins (July 10th, 2017)...

I had two separate wounds and each was a different size. The smaller wound was on my right leg and the larger wound was on my right torso. While I tried everything I could to make them better, they would not stop bleeding and oozing. While the wounds did not seem to worsen, they also did not seem to be getting any better.

I decided to go to the hospital for help. Once there, several specialists saw me and ran various tests on me. For some odd reason, each one of the specialists told me that the wounds had 'opened nicely'. I was not very pleased with their nonchalant attitude or this seemingly extremely rude comment.

Specialist: "I am sorry to tell you that there is nothing that we can do to help you."

Me: "Can you not at least check the wounds for cancer? Can you not give me something to keep them from continuing to bleed?"

Specialist: "You will simply need to accept this. The wounds are not going anywhere. In fact, they are now a part of you."

The other doctors had now gathered around and I was hoping for a second opinion from one of them. Instead, they all nodded in agreement with everything that he was saying.

Me: "Are you telling me that there is absolutely nothing that medical science can do?"

Specialist: Laughing. "Why are you so worried? These wounds will not be a death sentence for you. Satisfied?"

I was about to protest, but he condescendingly patted me on my back and walked away. As he walked away, his entire 'posse' of medical staff followed along with him. I decided to keep quiet, but I was so discouraged. I called out to God in prayer.

Me: "Father, I need Your help. If I have open wounds, I need You to heal them. Perhaps this means something else as You have already told me that I have repented and have been forgiven. Oh Father, what do these wounds mean? Please help me."

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for my husband and children. Please bless us soon, Father, as I am in so much pain. I am feeling more and more discouraged each day and I need Your divine intervention soon.

I paused here for a few minutes to pray, but really to have a good cry. Just then, a Messianic prayer pastor from an organization in Israel phoned me. She said that the Lord had told her to call to pray with me for my needs. While several requests came to mind as we prayed, I found that I mostly wanted to pray for healing for my sons.

Father, my oldest son recently spoke to me about several things that were weighing on him. Like me, he has been struggling with the continued wait for our healing.

Son: "Mom, I feel so abandoned by God right now. He knows that I cannot make it in this world as I am, but He is not doing anything about it. I cannot make it out there. I do not understand how to be normal. I do not understand how to act. I am continuously passed by. Other than those here in the house, but especially you, I am alone. I have nothing!"

I tried to encourage him, but I knew in my heart that he was right. However, in reality, both of my sons are struggling greatly right now with their Asperger's. While they both say that they pray to you, they also say that they 'quickly give up when You do not speak back to them'.

Father, my heart just breaks for them. In a way, I even feel isolated by their pain as I know that the world is a harsh place for children like them. At times, I feel as if I am protecting the world from them, but I mostly feel as if I am protecting them from the world.

My youngest son seems to have a limited short term memory combined with a very selective long term memory. While I know that this is a safety feature that You have put into his wiring for now, it is still such a difficult thing for me to bear. As both of my sons are quite easy to anger, they are often targeted for teasing and bullying.

Both of them are unqualified for college and even vocational education and 'skill schools'. While my oldest son can easily learn foreign languages with his incredible memory, his other traits are just too debilitating to pursue this fully. Quite simply, he is disqualified from most employment as he becomes easily annoyed with people.

As for my younger son, he is extremely talented in outdoor pursuits and any type of construction projects. However, he likes routine and will quickly withdraw as soon as something is no longer of interest to him. This makes him unemployable as well.

Even though my husband is aware of all of this and we have talked about it at great lengths, it still felt good to pray on this with the pastor. She prayed for me and my sons. Father, I believe that You sent her out of the blue to make me feel better. It worked! I knew that this was from You, Father, so thank You for sending her.

Along with all of the prayers I receive from my Nest family, You knew that I also really needed this right now as well. Oh Father, if You decide to only heal just two of us from our house, please make it my boys. I would be so joyful. Just to see what I have been praying on my knees for years come to be, well, I would have no words.

So, Father, I give them to You yet again. I pray that Your Will be done on Earth as it is in Heaven concerning both of them. They do not deserve all that has happened to them. While I know that I speak this from my limited ability as a mom only and also know that this is all part of Your greater plan, this waiting is excruciating for all of us.

While I understand what all of my pain has been used for bringing me closer to You, it is hard for me, as a mom, to see my boys continue to struggle. While I would trade my healing for my children without hesitation, I cling to Your promise to heal all of us. So, Father, I come to You once again and ask for You to have mercy on us and soon.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was lying in a beautiful meadow and it was the perfect temperature. As I closed my eyes, You flashed vision after vision of various vignettes from my life. This seemed unusual to me as I could not remember You ever giving me this type of 'vision medley' before.

Albany, California as a 10 year old child: I was out taking a walk from my home on Masonic Avenue on a street that ran parallel to the train tracks for the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART). I ran across the street and under the elevated train tracks to a park-like area with a walking path.

I was wearing white bell bottoms with green stripes. My pants and t-shirt were old and needed to be replaced, but we were poor. I wore green sneakers and they now had holes in them. The soles were very thin and almost completely worn out.

I loved to run, but the ill-suited footwear soon resulted in me having shin-splints that hurt so bad that I would need to stop running at times. I ran up and down the walking path until I was tired and then went to sit down on a bench just across from my house.

Hagen, Wisconsin as a 14 year old child: I was running towards my step-sister through a field of very tall grass. When I reached her, we started to laugh and joke around together. We then started to play 'hide-and-peek'. I hid in a clump of tall grass. I could soon tell that she had seen me and was sneaking over, so I started to run again.

Country Home as an 18 year old: It was spring time and I was living in my home in the country. This particular home had been the first to be built in a development that was later to fail. I was on my daily run on a dirt track that was not far from where we lived. I was listening to 'I ran' by 'A Flock of Seagulls' on my Walkman.

I could see my house as I rounded the bend going at full speed. I was so young again and had forgotten how incredibly physically fit I was back then. As I sprinted down the straight part of the track, I felt such joy to be running with such ease.

Penn State Running Track as a 22 year old: In the blink of an eye, I was still running, but was now in a completely different place. I never even broke a single stride from the dirt track in the country that I had just been running on. I shook my head in amazement at God's ways.

I now had updated earbuds on and the song 'I ran' was still playing. I could not help but laugh. I was on the cross-country running track that circles the White and Blue Golf Courses on the Penn State Campus. I could tell that I was on the five mile run that I did at least three to four days per week.

I ran down the right side of the White Golf Course and I could see some houses to my right through the trees. It was a beautiful day. I looked back at the golf course for just a moment, but when I then faced forward again...

Path in Heaven at my current age: ...I was instantly in a different place and on a path that I did not recognize. I could no longer run like I had just been on the Penn State Campus and quickly slowed down to a walk. It took some time to catch my breath.

The path was smooth, narrow and beautiful, but I felt so old again. It is hard to describe how disappointing it is to be young again and then instantly back to my current disabled self. I was about to start crying when I noticed that Jesus was straight ahead and waiting for me at the very end of the path.

I still felt old, but I could slowly feel my legs and lungs strengthen. As long as I kept my eyes focused on Him, I was able to pick up more and more speed. I could feel my body being transformed and I was literally becoming young again. I started running faster than I had ever run before and my breath was becoming less and less labored.

When I looked down at my hands and body, I could see them changing with each step. As amazing as it was to watch my transformation, I knew that I had to instead stay focused on Jesus. I looked back up at Him and He had a huge smile on His face.

As I got closer, I could hear Him starting to laugh. Tears were now streaming down my cheeks, but this time with joy instead of pain. I bore down and started sprinting as fast as I could towards Him. I was now running faster than any human has ever run on Earth. Jesus held His arms out to receive me.

Jesus: Laughing. "Don't slow down, Erin."

I decided to throw caution to the wind and somehow even went faster. Jesus nodded to me and continued to motion me to go faster. I ran to Him at full speed and suddenly became worried for both of our safety when I was really close, way too close to stop. I ran straight into His arms at top speed, but He effortlessly caught me.

He playfully swung me around in the air in His arms as I laughed like I did when I was a little child playing with my step-sister. I felt such joy and I could tell that He wanted me to really enjoy the moment. He slowed us down and gently placed my feet back on the ground. After hugging Him for what seemed to be minutes, He looked into my eyes.

Jesus: "I am glad you came, Erin."

Me: "Lord, what was all that about?"

Jesus: "I am the Good Physician, the One Who will soon heal you. These scenarios were the times that you had searched for Me even though you did not know that you were searching for Me. I was always there with you, Erin, and I even ran with you while you were running. Even though I knew you, you still did not know Me.

"However, even though you now know Me, you are discouraged. You are discouraged because you have physically suffered ever since you gave your life to Me. You now equate the two together and are discouraged by your current condition and pain. While I did not cause your suffering, it was still allowed so that you would see Me with you even during your troubles.

"When you finally cried out to Me, it was then that I was found by you. While it was I Who first called you, it took your troubles for you to finally hear Me calling you. I know that it has been painful, but know that, in your suffering, I am always here with you and that you are never alone."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but it feels as if You do not even hear me in my pain. It hurts my feelings to know that You fully know that I am in such pain, but have not done anything about it even when You so easily already could have. While I try not to show my pain to my family and friends, it still shows in my eyes on certain days.

"The grief in my heart of the struggles of my boys, and now even my daughter, have weighed heavily on me recently. The last two weeks have been troubling and I am afraid to say that I am now even starting to lose all hope."

Jesus: "I too have suffered, Erin. I cried out to My Father in the garden because I understood the lateness of the hour. I asked for this cup to be passed from My Will to My Father's Will as My Will 'in the flesh' needed to be strengthened to endure what was soon to come. An angel then appeared and gave Me strength from the Throne of My Father to endure what was about to come."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but You are the Son of God and God in the flesh, so why did you need strength?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Good question, Erin, but then you must also ask yourself why I would have put Myself in this position to begin with. Why would I endure such punishment of the flesh when it would have been easier for Me to command angels from Heavenly places instead? Why would I even come down in the flesh at all?"

Me: "Great questions, Lord! Could You not have just taken away the sins of the world from the Courts in Heaven instead?"

Jesus: "Hmm, perhaps God made a mistake. Perhaps I went through all of that for no real reason. Hmm."

Now, I should note here that He was not being sarcastic with me and has never been sarcastic even one time. He was smiling at me as He spoke and was trying to put me at ease in asking Him these questions. As per usual, it worked perfectly...just like Him.

Me: "Okay, okay, Lord, I am sorry. It was truly the only way and it was the perfect way. Please forgive me. You came in the flesh in order to have a relationship with us. You came in great love. You came as the Sacrificial Lamb and the Scapegoat in order to atone for our sins once and for all."

Jesus: "Well, yes, Erin, but there is even much more to it than this. You must understand that there is a reason that My Father had sent Me when He did. This was written and foretold and had been the plan from the very beginning.

"Now, while it may seem at times that I am oblivious to your suffering and that I do not hear the prayers of the meek, I do, Erin, and I always do. However, it will not be until you are finally here with Me that all will be shown.

"At that time, you will see how precise and perfect all of this was from beginning right until the great and wonderful time of My coming for My Bride. You will then all say, 'God is so much greater than I could have ever conceived, right from the beginning up until the very end.'"

Me: "Lord, could You please send an angel to strengthen me like he did You in Your final hours?"

Jesus: "Go back and read all that I have told you I would do for all of those who love Me in these troubling times." He smiled at me and we both laughed together.

Me: "Alright, Lord. Oh yes, I woke up from my sleep several days ago and I distinctly heard Your Voice say to me, 'your three weeks of mourning is almost complete.' The Jewish mourning time of the same length started after this, so I believe that this is something different. What did You mean by this?"

"I know that I have been unusually weepy lately, so I assume that this must be part of my 'time of mourning'. Please, Lord, strengthen my heart. When I now see people suffering or dying, it feels so different. The only way I know how to describe it is to say that it is as if I somehow already knew them. How is this even possible?"

Jesus: "I heard your prayers for the woman you saw last night."

As background on this, my husband and I were recently at a Walmart when a woman walked by with severe swelling caused by Lymphedema. Her ankles seemed as large as my waist. I was so bothered by this that I asked my husband to pray with me right then and there in the produce section for her to be healed.

Me: "Oh, Lord, please heal her. It made me cry to see her like that. I also saw a little boy with a scar on his skull from brain surgery. When I looked at his mother, I could somehow feel her burden. Oh, Lord, please heal this boy as well."

Jesus: "You also have several requests for healing for you and your family right now. Erin, there is a reason that you have been called to prayer right now. I have also brought your attention to the significance of My prayer in the garden that night. You are overwhelmed with sorrow to the point of death from your soul. This I understand, Erin, so pray. As it is written, the hour is late and the Son of Man is near."

Me: "Lord, some scholars foolishly claim that God sent the angel to strengthen You by simply providing You with the words, 'No, You must drink from the cup of suffering.'"

Jesus: He laughed and shook His head. "Hmm, so I had required that an angel bring Me a reinforced 'no' from My Father on the Throne in order to strengthen Me with encouragement to continue?"

Me: Laughing. "Well, Lord, clearly this cannot be right as this would not make any sense!"

Jesus: "This would make Me seem unaware of what I knew was about to come. If that is the case, then why would I have felt a need to pray with such urgency? Why would I tell the betrayer, when giving him bread, 'What you must do, do quickly.' There is even more evidence against this.

"Now, to put it quite simply, the angel had been sent to strengthen Me. So, what could an angel do to strengthen Me unless called down from My Father with supernatural endurance for My body? Since this was in My Father's Will, exactly what He was told to do."

Me: "Lord, I recently read that most men die in the beating stages by the Romans and never even made it to 39. As for You, Lord, You still had to endure so much even after the 39 was complete."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but there is even more to this. Now, even though I was in great physical condition, My Spirit was already enduring crushing. Do you remember when I explained to you that this was an analogy of the grove of olive trees at the garden? This was like an oil press and My Spirit was enduring crushing. I have allowed what you are enduring so that you can now fully understand this."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but my heart still hurts from thinking about You allowing all of this to happen to me."

Jesus: "Erin, there is a purpose and you will know. Now, those closest to Me were sleepy as they did not understand the hour. They then abandoned Me and fled. I was then arrested and had six trials. During these trials, there were many people who bore false witness against Me. There was injustice as eight laws were broken.

"I was then mocked and beaten. I was weak from the loss of blood alone. The heaviness of the tree I carried was difficult to bear on My back. This is similar to the burdens that you carry now. They are too much for you, Erin, and this is why I keep reminding you to let Me take them from you. Remember this, Erin.

"When I arrived at Golgotha, I was nailed to the tree. I was then raised and lifted up so that everyone who believes in Me would have eternal life. I then died of a broken heart in the ninth hour."

Me: I was in tears and hugged Him. "I am so sorry, Lord."

Jesus: "Why are you sorry? I am here, Erin. There was victory and there still is victory. Now, I understand that, from your vantage point, it seems like I have no sympathy or understanding for you, Erin, but I do. I love you."

Me: "Thank You, Lord, but I still feel like the walking dead right now and that there are thousands of others out there in a similar situation as I am. Please strengthen us to endure what is soon to come. I am not You, Lord, and there is no way that I will be able to endure this. My heart will break.

"Now, I have a question for You. Your Word says that there will be a time when those who believe in You will do even greater works than You in Your Name. When I look back at history, I do not see any time that man has been able to believe in You and do even greater works than You in Your Name.

"Even the disciples did not match what You did when they were indwelt with the Holy Spirit. Since this has never happened before and Your Word always comes true, this must mean this is still to come. So, Lord, when will this be?" I smiled at Him.

Jesus: Laughing. "You are asking a lot of questions today, Erin, but your questions are good. There soon comes a time unlike any other. While this will be similar to other times, as in sin, there are now many more sinning.

"The magnitude of evil is like in the days of Noah, whereby another flood would have been needed. Sin has spread to the point where barely anyone is redeemable except for a small group of people and the animals. It is like those days of Noah, but in proportion to the population.

"Now, what unfolds has been foretold, understand? While there is nothing new under God, I can still do a new thing."

Me: "This has always made me wonder. How can You be the same yesterday, today and tomorrow as nothing is new under the sun, yet You are still doing a 'new thing'?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Good question. You are quoting from Solomon about toil and daily working. A daily routine continues. However, it is later written that I am the same and that I am unchanging. As I am a solid rock and a firm foundation, I am therefore reliable and you can trust Me.

"I am the Groom to the Bride and I provide and take care of Her. She never worries because She is confident and fully trusts in Me to take care of Her Household." He smiled as He then pointed to me. "Now, a Bride trusts Her Groom to come for Her on Her 'Wedding Day'.

"She loves Him so much that She has even forsaken Her family to be with Him." I was to note here that this part was referring to a traditional Jewish wedding. "She fully trusts Him with Her life. She prepares, prays and studies about Him until the glorious day that, with great noise and cheering from His party, He comes for Her.

"In the meantime, do not fail to see that I am a creative Groom. I love My Bride and send Gifts ahead of My coming for Her to bring Her delight and, more importantly, to strengthen Her heart for Me with a greater love.

"Now, the Groom is steadfast as I am the Groom. However, My Father in Heaven is the Creator. He can work things together for your good and create a new thing, as it is written.

"Erin, I am the same yesterday, today and tomorrow, but I can still do a new thing. I can do something unexpected, yet still foretold, but in a way most scholars think not. Now, keep your eyes fixed on Me. I promise you that I will not harm you.

"Even though, at times, you feel as if I have given up on you and forgotten about you, please know that I have not done this and will never do such a thing." He smiled at me. "Now, did you notice that I did not fall asleep three times during your prayers?"

I was now laughing and so was He.

Me: "Yes, Lord, but I am surprised as my prayers can often ramble."

Jesus: "Yes, but I hear your heart. Erin, I hear your heart. I know your anxious thoughts, your pain and your grief. Give Me your burdens. You have quite a heavy yoke. Come, Erin, you will now run like the wind."

All of a sudden, we were on a race track. I looked down and I was wearing athletic attire and some amazing running shoes. I then noticed that I was already setup in sprinter's blocks. I could not help but laugh when I looked over at Jesus and saw that He was now holding a stopwatch.

Jesus: "So, are you ready, Erin?"

Me: "Lord, I need some music first!"

Jesus started to laugh. Just then, the song 'I ran' started to play. I was now laughing so hard again.

Jesus: "Okay, then, are you now ready, Erin?"

Me: "Yes, Lord."

I looked up at the track and decided to put everything I had into this race. I felt my body slightly tense up in anticipation, but it felt incredible to be athletic again. I then heard the loud sound of a shofar and knew that this was my signal. I started to sprint as fast as I could.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for my family and friends. I wait anxiously, and not always patiently, for Your return. I love You, Father.

I had a dream last night that was very clear and horribly graphic...

Dream 1 description begins ("The beasts are released")...

Our home was perched on a high hill in what seemed to be quite similar to the hills in the northwest part of Portland, Oregon. However, it was still different as it also seemed to have terrain that was both desert and tropical.

The home we were living in was very narrow, as were the neighboring houses. Each house had around six floors, but each floor was just 7' across and 8' in length. Cutting into this already small space were a series of stairs needed to go from floor to floor.

Even though the stairs were only 24" in width and had short risers and shallow treads, it still made it so the living area on each floor was ridiculously small, only around 5' across and 8' in length. In reality, there was not even enough room to get furniture up the stairwells and onto each of the floors.

We had already decided that this was just too narrow for us to live in and now had plans to move to a more expansive area with sprawling landscapes. As we continued to organize our move, we all made sure that we were careful to obey the local laws and kept our views about God quiet until He instructed us to proceed differently.

One day, we received a knock on our door. When I opened the door, I recognized the person standing there as a local developer. To be polite, I invited him in to allow him to have his say, but I already knew that I would not be signing any contracts.

Developer: "Today is your lucky day! I have an excellent investment opportunity for you. We are about to develop a prime area in the valley and I strongly advise that you really need to jump on this opportunity immediately."

Me: "I am sorry, but we are really not interested in this right now."

Developer: "Listen, Erin, you really need to consider moving here."

I instantly became guarded when he said my name as I just knew that something was not right. I had purposely stayed under the radar and had not really let anyone know my name, or at least so I thought.

Me: "I have already told you that we are not interested."

He completely ignored me and instead pulled out a device that showed me a virtual 3D view of the development. I felt strongly that I was not to lose my patience with him, so I kept calm and decided to at least look at what he was showing me.

Developer: "You will live in one of these units. I have built only three of these units and I will allow you to have one of them, but only if you agree to sign up with me today."

Me: "While I agree that the entire area you are developing is quite impressive, all of these units are made of concrete. These units remind me of tombs."

Developer: "Look, Erin, you are really going to regret not buying this."

Me: "How much is each of these units selling for?"

Developer: "Today only, I will practically be giving this to you at a bargain price of just $2 million. Those who do not say yes today will instantly regret this as these prices will soon be doubling. Not only that, but the units you are living in now, including this one, will soon become uninhabitable."

Me: "I really do not want this unit at all. I already know that there will not be any greenery or animals in this development. All of it just seems so lifeless to me."

Developer: Yelling. "Alright, I am sorry, but you are now too late. I don't like your attitude and now I won't let you come into the valley even if you begged me." He suddenly became eerily calm. "Just remember, Erin, I warned you."

As he stormed off in anger, I could not help but shake my head at what had just happened. However, I quickly put this out of my mind as I was almost finished packing our belongings for us to travel. If he had even bothered to ask me, I would have told him that we had already decided to go in another direction completely.

After a bit more time, I looked over my checklist and noticed that I now had everything packed except for some groceries for the journey. It was evening, so I quickly set out for the grocery store at the base of the hill to the west of the valley before it closed. As no one was available to come with me, I decided to head out all by myself.

As I drove to the grocery store, I started to hear people screaming in horror that their pets, children and relatives were now missing. This seemed quite odd to me as I knew that the Rapture had not yet occurred.

It did not take long for the mystery of these 'disappearances' to be revealed to me. As I started to cross over the bridge on the way to the grocery store, I glanced over the side of the bridge as it passed over some swamp land. I noticed that the water level had risen dangerously higher than normal.

I stopped my vehicle on the side of the bridge to take a better look. As I looked down, I could see too many alligators and crocodiles to count. I gasped in horror when I realized that this was the reason that so many people were now suddenly missing. My heart sank when I saw a woman 'walking on the water' below.

I quickly got out of my car to scream a warning to her. I recognized the woman to be someone I knew. I then remembered that she had invented some special shoes that allowed her to 'walk on water'. I yelled out to her at the top of my lungs, but she was too far away to hear what I was saying.

Me: "Jane, you must leave the water now! Leave as quickly as you can!"

She must have heard something as she then looked up and waved at me. However, she then continued to walk, completely oblivious to the dangers that surrounded her in the dark waters below her. When I then saw that three alligators were now gathering around her, I screamed at her again, but to no avail.

I then watched as she used two of the alligators as 'stepping stones'. When she went to step onto the third alligator, it leaped up and dragged her below the surface. After her now dead body was dragged to shallower water, the two other alligators joined in for a feeding frenzy.

After they finished consuming the woman completely in what seemed to be just seconds, they started to act strangely. I was not sure what they were doing at first, but then I noticed that each of them had just given birth to several more alligators. These new born alligators were growing rapidly and I knew that they would soon be deadly.

I ran down the bridge and shouted warnings to as many people as I could. It seemed as if not one single person had yet recognized the great danger that was right there in their midst. They all seemed unable to understand what I was saying to them. I finally stopped a man to speak with him. He was in shock and quite catatonic.

Me: "What is happening? Are you okay? Sir? Sir?"

Man: Dazed. "After I said 'no', they took everything from me. They flooded the area and unleashed beasts into the water. No one was prepared.” He snapped out of it and started yelling at me. “Run! Run! Leave! Leave! Take very little and run now!”

I got back into my car and drove to the grocery store as fast as I could. Once inside the store, I quickly started gathering up some essentials. After a short while, a clerk rushed over to me to talk. When she came closer to me, we quickly recognized each other from some of my previous trips I had made there.

Clerk: “Erin, please take this bag of provisions. I will sell it to you for only $25. It will last you and your family about 27 days. Take it and run! Don’t look back! This area is about to be leveled in order to make way for the developer.”

I forced a smile as I reached to take the bag of provisions from her. I was curious how she had also known my name, but then quickly remembered that I would use my card there for most of my purchases. She must have made note of my name on the card last time I had used it with her.

Me: “Thank you so much for this! Oh, I just knew that developer was evil.”

Clerk: “Oh Erin, their requirements to live without fear is really something that we all should fear. It is a purchase for a concrete tomb!” She then looked into my eyes with great concern. “Did you sign?”

Me: “No, we did not sign anything.”

Clerk: “In that case, you must leave immediately! You will be hunted down in the light of day! Soon, all that this man built will be gone and only a few columns of smoke will remain.”

Me: “Wait! I remember reading about this in the Bible! A great war will come to the valley and the enemy will not survive!”

Clerk: “Yes, but you are to leave tonight to where the Lord sends you. Go! Leave now! Quickly!” She hugged me.

I left with her provisions, along with some water jugs that I had purchased. I decided to leave my car in the parking lot and go by foot as the roads were now clogged with traffic. I strapped everything to my back and ran back over the bridge.

The swamp was now overgrown and the smell of sulphur and death was overwhelming. I ran to get my family and told them what had happened. We fled in our other vehicle to the west, to the place the Lord had prepared for us. It was an expansive lush landscape that the enemy was not interested in.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my husband and children. Lord, I really mean it – THANK YOU! I am so very thankful that You have given us such a beautiful place. I still cannot believe that You brought me and my children to such a safe place. This is an amazing gift from You and we could not have done this without You.

You continue to sustain us. We have recently even been able to have some repairs on our cars done that we have not been able to afford until now. While there are still many items 'outstanding', I just know that You will once again help sustain us just like You have been doing for quite some time now.

Thank You, Father, for sending my husband to look after us. He loves to lead our home under Your guidance and authority. What a gift he is to me and our children, so, again, thank You! My children, in particular, have really needed a 'positive' male role model in their lives.

As You already know though, Lord, I still have so many worries today, especially when I start to think about some of the impossible walls we face ahead of us. Truly, all of our hopes remain only in You. I am waiting on You, but, really, everyone in our household is waiting on You as well.

My body seems to really be wearing down now. My continued inability to 'really' be able to exercise regularly due to my injury is certainly not helping matters. Please show us what we should do here, Father, or, better yet, could You just heal our bodies instead?

To encourage me, could You please just strengthen me enough right now so that I can at least be more active while we wait for our Transformation? Hmm, perhaps if You only wanted to Transform a few of us for now, I am sure that we would all agree to keep this miracle quiet until Your 'proper' timing...smiles!

Lord, You have also recently placed on my heart a renewed interest in painting and sewing. This interest seemed to grow even stronger this week, so please illuminate all that You would like me to do. I am eager to serve You even more, Lord!

I am also anxious about some government forms that I need to soon complete for our household. I am concerned and uncertain as to how all of this will fall into place. Please let all of this be seamless and guide us in how we should proceed. I feel so lost when I try to do any of this on my own.

I ask, yet again, that You please strengthen us to be able to do more activities while we wait on Your perfect timing. I am longing to give our children some fun things to look forward to. Please, Father, bless us abundantly as we all just love You so much.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was in a vineyard archway leading to a beautiful aspen grove with a pathway made of incredible paver stones. As I searched down the path to the end, I saw Jesus bathed in the light of God there. In between the archway and the end of the path was an 'open door' that I had not seen before.

Jesus was looking at me and was smiling. I could see healing beams of light emanate from all around Him. He held His arms out to me and motioned me towards Him. I instantly started to sprint down the path, through the 'open door' and straight into His loving arms. As He hugged me, I felt His love pour out all around me and into my body.

Me: "Oh Lord, I am so glad to be here in Your arms today. Could You please heal our earthly bodies today? Please? Today? Could You take away all of our debts and enemies? Could You remove them all today? Today? Please, Lord, please?"

Jesus: He was laughing as I was so animated in my requests. "Well, Erin, I can certainly see that 'patience' is off the table for today..." He looked into my eyes and smiled. "...or at least that is what I am deriving from the urgency of your requests."

Me: "Lord, I am asking You for the impossible. I am coming boldly before You as I know, and without any shadow of a doubt, that You can do all things. You can do anything that is in Your and Your Father's Will. Your miracles and love are without any bounds." I started to cry as it seemed that my heart was breaking as I spoke this.

"Lord, since I know that there is no end to what You are able to do, I just cannot help but feel that we are being passed over for Your healing right now. When I am here and in Your arms, I feel fully whole and alive. Oh, will You not please consider us for Your miracles soon?"

Jesus: "I have heard your prayers. Your requests please Me. I know that your hearts hurt when I do not immediately do as you ask. What I love about you, Erin, is that you continue to seek Me for the impossible and you never stop asking. You have also learned to not act on your own and rarely do so now."

Me: "Yes, Lord, as there is really nothing that I can do on my own anymore."

Jesus: "Yes, but there is certainly plenty of trouble you could still find all on your own apart from Me. You now wait for Me instead and this is good. Now, I know that you are growing tired. I also know that you are continuing to do everything you can do on your own. This too is good.

"Erin, review the contract that I have given you again. You are asking for the completion of the contract. I am about to grant you all that you have prayed for. Those who love Me are like Sheep at My Gate right now.

"The Sheep gather together in great anticipation of the Shepherd. While the Shepherd has begun the process of opening up the Gate, the Sheep remain uncomfortable and crammed together while they wait for Him.

The Sheep cry out to the Shepherd as they long for their Shepherd to open the Gate.

"Erin, I am the Shepherd and I am the Gate. The Gate is opened by the Shepherd and My Sheep then go through the Gate. Once they have gone through My Gate, they are taken care of in a new pasture and are given new promise.

"However, and even more than this, Erin, I am also your Shepherd now. You have not abandoned Me for greener pastures. You have stayed with Me because you fully trust Me to keep you safe. I have therefore set you apart, along with My other Sheep. For you, Erin, this also includes your husband and your entire household.

"All of you are now My possessions. All of you will soon proclaim what I have done from beginning to end. I have called each of you out of the darkness and into the light (1 Peter 2:9). Those who truly love Me will soon stand amazed and shout their praises to Me.

"Erin, as it is written, you were once 'not a people', but now you are 'God's People'. If I was speaking of the Jews here, this would not make any sense as they were already known. While you now know very little of your origins as you have been kept hidden, the enemy knows who each of you are.

"The enemy has waged war against your souls. He has waged war against your children and loved ones. This war has been even greater for you, as it has been for that small portion of those who have been set apart by Me for My purposes, that will soon be part of My 'Royal Priesthood'.

"While you still could have drank from the cup of envy, malice, deceit or hypocrisy and while all types of slander could have still been found on your lips, you instead kept away from all of this. Instead, you have longed for the spiritual milk that I have offered you.

"You have now drank of My cup and tasted that which is good to drink. I have therefore set you apart and have given you that which is good. I held you in My arms like a shepherd holds a newborn lamb whose mother had rejected her. I then nursed you with spiritual milk and you have drank from that which is good.

"You now only look to Me for your milk. You now look only to Me and follow Me in all that you do. Little-by-little, day-by-day and from strength-to-strength, I have led you to where you are now. Though the wolves are just outside of your fence calling to you, I have kept, and will continue to keep, you and your household safe.

"Though the wolves mutter all kinds of foul things about you as they call to you from the darkness, they will not prevail. They will not lead any of you past My boundaries. They will be unsuccessful in their quest to make any of you stumble and fall.

"I am here, Erin, and I will open the floodgates of blessings over you. I promise you that the Sheep Gate is about to open. Do not worry as My Gate will not be like that of the Temple. There, sheep were taken through one way to be slaughtered as a sacrifice.

"I instead came to obliterate the need for the Temple sacrifice altogether. I came as the Perfect Lamb as there is no blemish on Me. Even so, I was an abomination and a stain to My persecutors and was hated for no reason. I remain so to this very day.

"Now you are My Sheep, set apart for My purposes, not to be slaughtered, but rather to be strengthened in the pasture that I have prepared. There, one-by-one and two-by-two, you will gather within My fold. There, I will do something that you will not believe.

"Erin, there will soon come a day unlike any other. This day has been specially designed by My Father and Me for 'a time such as this'. I will soon send you, My precious Sheep, out amongst the wolves. However, instead of the wolves devouring you, they will become terrified and will flee at your sight."

Me: I smiled at Him. "Hmm, so...is today off of the table then?"

We both started to laugh together so hard. He obviously knew that I was just kidding.

Jesus: "Hmm, so is that the only thing that you received from all that I just said to you?"

We were still laughing as He hugged me.

Me: "Well, Lord, it is just that we are all so excited right now! If not today, could You still make this really, really, really soon? Please, Lord? Pretty please?"

Jesus: "While you already know that today will probably not be the day, you also know in your heart that this day will be soon. Do not worry, Erin, as you are at the front of the Gate." He smiled and nudged me in a lighthearted manner.

"Now, I know that you have exhausted your current pasture and you are now in need of fresh growth. Well, I am here to tell you that I am about to open the floodgates. Be encouraged as I will do everything that I have said that I would do. While I do not delay, you are to still enjoy the days leading up to this. Do all that your heart has called you to.

"Erin, while your plans will succeed, the enemy's plans against you will fail. I have not abandoned any of you. I have seen the activities of the wicked surrounding you and I am not pleased. To give you some hope of what will soon come, have I not already removed some of those that the enemy has sent against you and your household?"

Me: "Yes, Lord..."

Jesus: "Hmm, you do not sound that convinced. How about naming some of them?"

Several names suddenly 'popped' into my head. There were many, many more than I had even realized. As my main enemy has often been too much of my focus, I had somehow not appreciated all of the enemies that He had already removed for me. I shook my head at not realizing this more fully before.

Me: "Okay, okay, Lord, I am sorry. Please forgive me. You have already done so much to protect us!"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but I promise you that you will soon be even more thankful for what I will soon do with your remaining enemies. Now, rejoice, as not one in your household will be lost. Enjoy this day as I have heard your prayers and have accepted them. I will grant your requests and fulfill each of My promises in your contract."

“Continue to do good as you wait. I am here with you. All of the plans that I have placed onto your heart will succeed. You will soon count your enemies as they fall one-by-one. You are My Sheep and I am your Good Shepherd.

“While I can take down a lion and a bear in an instant, remember that I can also just as easily remove a tiger and a leopard just as fast.” He was smiling at me as He spoke. “Yes, Erin, I can even remove the spiders and the wasps. Always remember that nothing is too big for Me, understand?”

Me: “Yes, Lord. Thank You!” I hugged Him tightly.

Jesus: “Erin, review your contract again. It is almost time.”

Me: “Yes, Lord, I will.”

Jesus: “Soon, Erin, very, very soon! Continue to be patient as you wait. All will make sense, including the wait, once this day finally comes.”

Me: “Oh Lord, we just love You so much!”

He put His hand on His heart and then pointed to my heart. I hugged Him and didn’t want to let go.

Communion

Dear Father,

It was horribly hot outside again yesterday so I once again had trouble sleeping last night as a result. I am also in a great deal of pain today. Sigh...I truly feel as if I am starting to sound like a 'broken record' with all of my repeating complaints to You.

No matter what though, I love You, Father! Oh yes...I should also mention that I now have an 'urgent' newer request! If this be in Your Will, could You please download Your Son's image and strengthen my fingers to draw how I have seen Him in Heaven?

After I went to communion on my knees this morning, I looked up at the ceiling in my devotional room. It looked like there were some tiny bugs, but I was not sure. I picked up my binoculars to get a closer look and there were tiny spiders. I can only assume that a 'mother spider' must have recently hatched her babies.

I then retrieved my handy-dandy spider stick that my husband had made for me for just this occasion. It is an extendable stick usually used for washing windows, but with layers of duct tape, with the sticky side facing out, wrapped on its end. This duct tape is so sticky that it is quite difficult for anything, including spiders, to escape.

As I jabbed the corner of the ceiling with the stick, I could not help but laugh when I heard the Lord call me 'the great spider hunter'. When I was finally done, about forty to fifty spiders had suddenly met their demise. Unfortunately, I took a little plaster down at the same time, but it was not really noticeable up there.

Satisfied, I then took out my portable little handheld vacuum cleaner and started sucking up the carnage from 'The Great July 20th, 2017 Spider Massacre'. I then made sure to secure my window screen more tightly and did one final sweep behind my chair.

As I swept up behind my chair, I discovered an older black devotional journal sitting there. This started off yet another very painful journey for me. Though I should have known better, I opened the journal to the introduction page. As per usual, I had written a small paragraph summarizing our current history since the previous journal.

There was also a prayer for the days of entries soon to be recorded and a dedication to my children. However, and to my surprise, this particular journal had quickly then become quite disorganized the further I flipped into its pages.

While it is possible that I may have accidentally switched to another journal, there was a page from October 15th, 2000 and then the next page was not recorded until 2002. It was really quite a mess and unlike my usual way of organizing these journals.

As I started to read the journal's details, I discovered dreams and visions that I had written even way back then. However, I had never put much stock in any of them at the time. I soon discovered quite a detailed dream that I had written down back on January 15th, 2003. The dream was set in a harbor that had seemed quite peaceful at first.

Dream 1 description begins ("Harbor Dream from January 15th, 2003")...

I was with my three children having a happy picnic by the harbor. It was so peaceful there and other families were doing similar activities all around us. However, darkness soon fell on us when a storm had quickly arrived out of nowhere. As I searched the horizon, I then saw an army of demons devouring people as they came towards us.

I became terrified and quickly picked up two of my children to carry them in my arms. I then told my oldest son to hold on to my shirt. Even though we were fleeing inland as fast as we could run, it was not long before these demons caught up to us.

I soon felt one of the demons' hot breaths on my neck as we continued to flee. The smell was so putrid and was like a horrible combination of excrement, sulfur and rotting meat. To my horror, I then heard its evil voice calling out to me and my children.

Demon: "Oh, how I would like to devour all of you, but I cannot because God says that you are all off limits. How I just want to tear your ear clean off of your head!"

Dream 1 description over...

This dream was so frightening. While I only wrote down this one portion in my journal, I could recall even more of the dream vividly. However, as was the case back then, I was still not to write down any other details other than those written above.

As I continued to skim through the many entries in this journal, I found myself wanting to call out to that naïve younger me and give her a solid shake. I would tell her to wake up from her sleep and to trust her instincts on all that was going on around her.

While there was great trouble all around me during this time, I was still unaware of it. Mysterious pains had started to appear and I was now suffering from exhaustion, headaches and depression.

However, it would still be around three years from this point in the journal until the Lord finally exposed that a person that was supposed to be my greatest protector had been putting drugs into my food. There was also so much more evil that was soon to be exposed about this man, but, in reality, the term 'man' barely applies in this case.

Not only did he perform so many wicked acts against me, but also against our children. This soon led to the breakup of our marriage. Though I have proof of all of it and this proof had later been confirmed in a court of law, he has still never confessed and has still never apologized for even one of his many ungodly actions towards us.

Father, I continue to pray that You will shake and wake this man up before that 'Great and Terrible Day' soon to come, that day as written in Your Word. For so many just like me, our justice has still not arrived. Many of us have been served so many injustices by court systems that are skewed towards the evil ones with the greater bank accounts.

However, I just know that You will soon administer Your perfect justice, Father. You have even shown me the horrific holding area where these wicked men and women will reside while they await Your final judgment. This place is so terrifying that it makes my heart skip a beat at the mere thought of this place.

The wicked are placed deep below the surface and are tightly bound in restraints in a tiny coffin like prison. It is the tightest of spaces and uncomfortable beyond description! Not only that, but they cannot sleep as You do not allow them to ever close their eyes. A screen is placed in front of their eyes and replays all of their crimes over and over.

When I have cried out to You to have mercy on them, You then showed me how they never had mercy on their victims. You then showed me how You gave them chance after chance to cry out for forgiveness, but they instead cursed You with their lips.

The claustrophobic horror awaiting these people is so suffocating and horrific that I personally cannot wish this on any man or woman, even my greatest enemy. Though I have been told that praying for this man's redemption is now useless at this point, I still feel sad for him as this place is MUCH worse than even our very worst nightmares.

Even if now useless for this particular man, the Lord reminded me that continuing to pray for our enemies' redemption releases the chains that bind us in unforgiveness. I also discovered that, if we do not do this, then He will not be able to fully use us.

Father, I ask for dreams and visions to be given to those who have done wrong and continue to do wrong. Please show these people how the enemy has been using them as his personal weapons. Please show them Your Heavenly Courts and how the enemy mocks even those who had served him so well right until their sentencing.

Please also show us who love You how the enemy also appears in Your Courts to request test after test against us. Please heal our broken hearts of grief for all that we have been through as a result. Please protect us from the crafty ways of our enemy.

Oh Father, I was so foolish in my younger years. Though I made unwise decisions when encountering evil, You still chose to save me every time. Even though You were so merciful with me, I was still angry with You for allowing me to make such bad choices. How foolish for me to do this when I had been the one doing this, not You.

It was me who stepped into the doors presented by the enemy while he said, 'Hey, Erin, do not go that way. There is a better way over here. Come over here and walk in it.' As the enemy's ways somehow seemed easier, I would then foolishly believe his lies and walk right through door after door as presented by him.

Each trip then led me close to, but not quite through, the very door to the fiery furnace, all by my own doing. However, because You loved me even when I remained angry at You, You continued to save me from even greater and greater destruction. Finally, after so long following this destructive pattern, I finally called out to You and You answered...

God: "Here I Am, Erin. I love you and I forgive you. However, you must also now forgive yourself and then others. I have plans for you. I have plans for you that are so great that you would not even believe My plans for you even if you were told."

Even though I often still forget that I had been set free that day, I was finally and completely released from the prison of my past mistakes. While the enemy continues to remind me of where I came from and all of my past mistakes, I know that God has now released me from all of this.

While I could go on and on with assigning blame to my upbringing and what I had witnessed, this would really do nothing to help further my cause. Quite simply, the family I was given, for better and mostly for worse, was as allowed by God for my greater long term good.

As a result, I try to do my best to press forward and 'Kadima' and focus on the greater blessing of me now being here with You! You are incredible, Father, and You are our Creator. As I think of all the amazing things that You have done, I cannot help but cry out in awe at all that You are to each of us. Thank You, Father.

Forgive me for still looking back when I should know better. There are days when something will trigger a distant memory and I will then literally feel my heart pounding and my body start to sweat.

The enemy's pattern is familiar:

- He first reminds me of the consequences of a wrong path, decision or direction I had taken.
- He then has me recall the shame and humiliation of losing everything.
- He then uses the ensuing overwhelming grief to call me away from God.

Thank You, Father, for You have taught me how to break the enemy's pattern. You have taught me to finally yet again cry out to You for help. If I forget to do this, You now gently nudge me and remind me that the enemy's schemes are coming at me. This is when You speak tenderly to me...

God: "Erin, I am here. This is the way, now walk in it. Those are old bridges from long ago, but I am here with you now. While I was with you then too, I am here now and you and your children are safe. Come to Me, Erin, and I will give you joy eternal."

Oh Father, I am so grateful to You and even for that old round ottoman I had in my old living room. I am so thankful for all the time I spent with You broken and on my knees. When justice had turned on me and I felt alone, unloved, forgotten, abandoned, broken and hopeless, I was forever changed by You and restored, all in Your perfect timing.

Slowly, day-by-day, from strength-to-strength, You began to fill my emptiness with Your living water. You refreshed my soul and revived my ability to take in that which is good. You instructed me while I slept, then applied those instructions while I was awake.

I learned about Heavenly justice in Your Courts. Even though I know that I still have much to learn, I learned about Your love for me. Even though I still do not fully understand Your mysteries, I learned more about Your unconditional love for us. I learned this and it replaced the love I had never received from my absent earthly father.

I learned about the enemy's schemes and his methodical pattern of attacking us by using our sins against us. The amount of knowledge You have given me is vast and I now fully realize that it is all from You and You alone. I pray with all of my heart that I will one day be able to apply all of this consistently and without faltering.

Still, Father, I need Your help yet again today. Please help me to once again forgive all of my enemies and release them fully to You. My heart grieves when I see my enemies continue to prosper while we remain only sustained for now. It is a helpless feeling to have such limited resources while we watch them continue to prosper in their evil ways.

I am again also asking for a special gift from You, Father. While my hands can no longer do what they once were able to, could You soon reverse this and grant me the ability to draw some of the things that You have revealed to me in Heaven, but especially to be able to paint Your Son in all of His glory.

Oh please, Father, I know that You can do this as I have already seen You do this with my writing. Even though I am a poor writer, You have been able to work through me with my writing.

As this is a miracle, I can then rest assured that You can easily do this with anything. As such, please, please soon grant me the ability to paint Jesus. While some of the paintings of Him that exist today come quite close to what I have seen, they still only capture a very small portion of His Glory.

Communion

For the last two nights, I have continued to struggle with sleep due to the heatwave. I did not really get fully to sleep until 6:00am this morning, but soon woke up a couple of hours later at 8:00am. However, when I checked the temperature in the room, it actually was not as bad as I had thought. Hmm, perhaps this is something else then?

While I am now tired today as a result, at least it is cool in here as the heatwave has somewhat diminished. While we have a few small portable air conditioning units that help out substantially, they still have a hard time keeping up when it is so hot out.

Thank You for the relief in the heat! Today is only expected to have a high of around 73 degrees and this is perfect. I am 'happy again'...smiles. Thank You, Jesus, for answering my prayers, even for the 'little things' such as my discomfort from the heat.

While I had several dreams last night, one particularly vivid dream really stood out to me...

Dream 2 description begins ("The Designer and the Dentist are saved")...

Note that the following dream seems to have elements of both 'before the Rapture' and 'after the Rapture'. As such, I am not entirely sure if our bodies were transformed (before the Rapture) or glorified (after the Rapture). Perhaps it could represent both periods somehow, but, again, I am not really sure. Perhaps it is simply yet another mystery from God!

I traveled with my husband and all of our children to a city on the West Coast. It seemed to most likely be the older historical area of Portland, Oregon as some of the areas seemed somewhat familiar to me from the time when I had lived there.

I was now transformed and younger, but with what seemed to be at least ten times the knowledge that I have now. As background to my 'transformed state', I should mention that I seem to have two distinct states that I am in when I have been transformed in these dreams:

- 'Low Beam' State: When I am in the 'low beam' state, I remain nondescript and seem to keep to myself.
- 'High Beam' State: When I am in the 'high beam' state, I have a notable glow and strength to me. I also seem to stand out in a crowd.

In this dream, I was in a 'low beam' state. I was even wearing a type of scarf that covered my hair and wrapped around my entire body. This 'covering' seemed to enable me to move around in various areas that I would normally not be able to.

While this is meant only for this dream, my husband had been promoted and was now transferring to this area of the country for work. As a result, I was looking for an area for us to live in. However, it was not to be a permanent home as my husband's appointment was only to last perhaps six months or so at most.

While all of our children were also in the city with us, I had set out to look at these various areas alone. I started to look at several types of homes.

Many seemed quite similar to those in the Forest Hills and Vista Heights areas of Portland where I had worked on several major projects many years ago.

Based on my past experiences there, I thought that I could perhaps find a suitable place to live there. I then went to visit an old acquaintance of mine from years ago, a fellow designer. She just happened to be having an open house that day at her house, but did not recognize me when I walked in. I did not feel led to tell her who I was.

It was now almost 5:00pm on a Saturday and her 'Open House' was now almost over. As I waited for her, I could overhear several people talking about her house. She was out of earshot for this so she could not hear their comments. I was saddened as I did not hear even one person say anything complimentary about her house.

While her home seemed quite lovely to me personally, I still also noticed that her designs had become somewhat outdated over time. I waited until she was by herself again before going over to speak with her.

Me: "I just love your home. Is it for sale?"

Designer: "No, it is not for sale. The purpose of this 'Open House' is to present a portfolio of my work to potential clients. In order to now get work in this area, people hold these events as a type of 'design tour'. Unfortunately, I have been spending so much time on others' homes that I have had no time left to do the same with mine."

Me: "Oh, so it sounds as if you were almost required to have this 'Open House'. Am I correct?"

Designer: "Yes, but it really has not been working out that well for me. It seems that the only designers and contractors being hired these days are those who 'borrowed' their clients' money and used it to work on their own homes instead. Most of them do not seem to even know the first thing about 'work'. Now, what is it that you do?"

Me: "Well..." I hesitated. "...I am a designer, but I am really more of an illustrator right now. However, I can still sympathize with you as I encountered a similar dilemma in my days as a designer. I was so busy working on other people's homes that I really did not have nearly enough time to work on my own place adequately."

After I had told her I was a designer, I noticed that she instantly became suspicious of me and was wondering whether I was there to spy on her work. Really, I could not blame her for feeling suspicious, especially in such a cutthroat environment.

Designer: "May I ask you why you are here?"

Me: "My husband is relocating into this area for his work and we are currently looking at homes here with our children."

Designer: Seemingly satisfied with my answer. "Well, in that case, I need to warn you in advance that there is nothing for sale here that is not already owned by the 'overseer'. As a result, there is really nothing 'truly' for sale out here anymore."

Me: "Excuse me, but I do not understand what you mean."

Designer: "Everyone who had a home at the time of the 'takeover' had to remain where they were. From there, the overseer took over all bank obligations, mortgages and even incomes.

"As long as we continue to generate income, we are allowed to remain in our homes. However, if we cease to generate income and become a liability, our property is seized and we are removed to 'the area' outside of the city. As a result, we all have to remain productive 'or else'."

Me: "Hmm, I am still not following you. I thought that there were still various companies and industries operating here. My husband is to work here for the next six months."

Designer: "No, he will not be here for just the next six months. This is a trap to get him here. The overseer had a void and now your husband is filling it. He will now be here permanently until he dies."

Me: "Are you sure about this?"

Just then, the Holy Spirit confirmed that what she had just said to me was correct. However, I then heard Him tell me not to worry and that this is all part of His plan.

Designer: "You said that you are here with your children. How old are they and where are they right now?"

Me: "My sons are applying at the University and my daughters are back at the hotel."

Designer: "Well, your boys will get into the University, but only into those programs that are needed in the area. The overseer is short in the medical fields right now."

Me: Laughing. "Hmm, that may be a problem as none of our sons have any interest in the medical fields."

Just then, I heard the Holy Spirit say to me: "Your children will be even better than doctors. However, do not argue with her on this." I then let her continue.

Designer: "Your sons will really have no say in the matter."

Me: "Well, okay. Perhaps this will still be fine with them. Now, are you telling me that there are absolutely no places available for us to live around here?"

Designer: "There are still places available, but only those properties that have been seized. The only properties available are from those people that can no longer perform services in value proportionate to the corresponding value of their properties."

Me: "So, are most of these properties from the elderly and the sick?"

Designer: "Yes. You really, REALLY need to stay healthy here. However, it is also because the overseer took over all of their retirement pensions and savings and removed their social security."

Me: "Are you telling me that homes that were completely owned, free and clear, were stolen from them?"

Designer: "Well, not exactly. If the owner already owned their property outright, they were allowed to keep it. However, they would then still have to perform enough services to pay for their maintenance, utilities and groceries.

"If two people were living in a house and one of them died, the survivor could only have half of the groceries and utilities that had previously been allotted to them. Not only that, but half of their home would now have to remain 'in the dark'.

"Even though I owned my home outright, I still had to continue to work as a designer to pay for these other things. While people continue to purchase my services, all transactions are now required to go through the overseer."

Me: "Is there any freedom and money remaining that would still allow someone to hire a designer or even purchase items for their homes?"

Designer: "Yes..." I immediately sensed that her answer had just become extremely guarded and cautious. "Listen, they are not monsters. We get allowances."

I suddenly recalled the countless stories from communist countries and from the days of Nazi Germany when criticism of the government could easily result in imprisonment or even death. I felt that this was now coming into play here.

Me: "As an illustrator, designer and writer, will I now also be under constant scrutiny once we move here?"

Designer: "Well, your work will certainly be 'juried'. However, since 'they' were the ones to recruit your husband, your living conditions will be on the higher end than us. You may even end up living in the 'Skyline' district."

Me: "The 'Skyline' district? Wait, I know that area. Hmm, that area certainly seems to be out of our price range."

Designer: "Well, there are quite a few homes empty there now. Anyway, I must close for the night. Thank you for visiting. By the way, you somehow seem familiar to me. Do I know you?"

Just then, the Holy Spirit prompted me: "Heal her of her depression and fibromyalgia or she will not be useful to them for much longer."

Me: "While we may have met years ago, this is no longer important. What is important right now is that you are ill. You are also worried that you will lose everything soon."

She stared back at me with her mouth open. I could tell that she was in shock. She quickly recomposed herself and moved towards the door. After removing her 'Open House' sign, she quickly shut the door. She then came back and sat with me.

Designer: "I had a dream recently where an angel had told me that help was soon to come. Are you my help? I need help now or I will soon be killed. They will take me to the place where unproductive people are euthanized. I know that I have cancer as I can feel the lumps."

The Holy Spirit again spoke to me: "Erin, she is paranoid and scared right now. She does not have cancer. However, do not argue with her on this. Continue..."

Me: "I am here to heal you." I placed one hand on her head and the other hand on her arm. "In the Name of Jesus, your muscle aches and depression are removed!"

Instantly, there was a flash of light and I could see Heavenly angels all around us. The woman was then healed, but she was not transformed. However, I then noticed that her home had been 'transformed' instead. Her house had been instantly refurbished to such a magnificent state as to allow her to be gainfully employed again.

At first, she just sat there testing out her newly healed body. I could then tell that she knew it was healed and was then starting to look around at the house. She was now becoming more and more excited at all of the sudden changes that had just occurred. She soon started to jump up and down with excitement.

Designer: "Oh thank you. Thank you! THANK YOU!"

Me: "Oh, please do not thank me as it was Jesus Who did all of this. This was not me at all! I am just His servant."

Designer: "Thank You, Jesus! Thank You, Jesus!"

Me: "You have something else to ask of Him. What is it?"

Designer: "I have a huge favor to ask. Could you please ask Him if you could go and help my brother? His home is already starting to grow dim. He is a dentist, but he is in so much pain that he is now barely able to perform his services. It is getting worse and they will soon take him to the 'death center'. His home is in the 'Old District' where most of the elderly now are!"

I heard the Holy Spirit: "Go, Erin. Restore the man, as well as his wife. Restore the electricity to his home."

Me: "The Lord has told me that I am to go and do this."

Designer: "But you do not know where you are going."

Me: Smiling. "Do not worry. Jesus has already provided me with directions."

Designer: "Oh yes, I should mention that he no longer has any phone service. You will need to walk in the patient door of his home. Be careful as this is a dangerous area."

As I began to leave, I turned to look at her updated house. It was perfect and completely changed. I smiled at her reassuringly.

Me: "You will surely get some work now, right?"

Designer: "Oh yes, thank you! Well...thank You, Jesus, but I still want to thank you too! The stores are all closed now so we have to barter. I will now have swarms of designers coming here to trade with me. You just gave me some status. I feel alive again and I am no longer in pain." She smiled. "Thank you! Thank You, Jesus!"

Me: "Yes, but remember that all of this was God, not me, so praise Him only!"

Just then, the Holy Spirit told me that one of the angels had slipped a Bible into a fake tabletop book. He then told me what to say to her about this.

Me: "Look inside the book that just appeared on your table. There is a Bible hidden inside the book's façade and it is just for you. Do not worry as you will be the only one who will be able to open this book. Now, though you are thanking Jesus and this is good, do you truly know anything about Him?"

Designer: "While I did back when I was still a child, everyone said He did not exist after they took all of the good things away. There are no longer any churches here and only 'meditation halls' remain. No one is allowed to have a Bible and they have all now been removed."

Me: "Well, you now have a Bible that only your eyes will see. Now, no matter what you are told or what you will see, you must remain looking for Jesus. Jesus sent me here for you. Will you now take Jesus as your Lord and Savior?"

Designer: "Yes! Oh yes! Yes, before I die! Please! I have lost so many of my friends. They did not know Him."

Me: "Well, they knew 'of Him', but most of them then chose another 'more comfortable way with fewer rules'. They did this so that they could continue with that which is now acceptable. While these things are now acceptable, they are still disgusting to the Lord and always have been."

Designer: "Yes, you are right, but no one is allowed to speak against these things anymore. However, I am now ready to accept Jesus."

I prayed over her and the Holy Spirit confirmed that she had just given her heart fully to Jesus. I then watched as two angels were stationed there to watch over and protect her just in case trouble came.

Designer: "Please, please help my brother now."

We hugged and said goodbye. I was then supernaturally transported, or 'translated', over the city towards an area in the northeast part of the city. While being transported, I noticed a section of the city that had massive older homes and estates, but they were all now quite rundown.

This area was about six blocks square and had been walled off. The homes there no longer had any services. People were dying in the streets. In reality, the sight was quite horrific!

Almost everyone there was elderly and sick except for a group of gang members. These criminals were inflicting torture on these people at will as they were no longer able to defend themselves.

I knew that this torture was 'state sanctioned' as I could also see that a group of militia was overseeing the area and was doing nothing to stop this. If anything, they were encouraging the mistreatment. I saw the bodies of many dead people in the streets. Many of the corpses were now decaying. The stench was horrible.

Holy Spirit: "This is the place that people are sent to die. We will now go directly to the man's home."

I was now walking on the sidewalk of a street. I then saw a very large estate illuminate a short distance away from me. This was only for me to see though. I knew that this was the man's house. As I walked towards his house, I noticed that several workers were now demolishing some of these 'historic homes'. I went up to one of the workers.

Me: "Why are you tearing these houses down?"

Worker: "We don't question our orders, but it's a shame, isn't it? They were all once so beautiful. When I was a kid, we were all in such awe of these homes. Well, now...not so much! They are expanding the 'no-go zones' and some of these homes are in the way. However, I believe it is really because there are too many places for people to hide from execution in these large homes."

Me: "That is horrible!"

I must have sounded too concerned as he suddenly started to look suspiciously at me. I then heard the Holy Spirit tell me to not say anything more.

Worker: "Well, it is what it is. For now, at least I am healthy and employed and have electricity and food. Sadly, there will come a day that each of us will come here to die. Like I said, it is what it is."

It looked as if he was about to 'sound the alarm' on me, but, thankfully, he was then supernaturally redirected and completely forgot about me. As I continued to walk, I recognized these beautiful large stately homes as once having beautiful trees, flowers and greenery.

However, these homes were now almost completely dark and weeds were now overgrowing their sidewalks and porches. I seemed to even recall driving in these areas myself when I was younger and being in complete awe of these massive estates, all of them so beautifully landscaped.

As I walked up to the front door of the man's house, I noticed a sign saying 'Dentist - Entrance in the back'. I slipped down the back alley behind his estate and went to knock on his backdoor. After knocking, I waited quite a while. A woman answered.

Woman: "Are you here for work?"

Me: "Well...sort of."

Woman: Cautiously looking over my shoulder. "Are you alone?"

Me: "Yes"

Woman: "Please come in and sit over here. I am sorry that there is no power on our street. It must be due to the demolitions."

Holy Spirit: "The power had been cut off before the demolitions. Do not say anything."

Just then, an elderly man in a white dentist coat came over to greet me. I felt a confirmation that this was the designer's brother.

Dentist: "I just sterilized my equipment. I can take you now."

Me: "How could you have sterilized your equipment when you have no power? Do you have a generator?"

Dentist: "No, but I have not had any patients since the power was shut off. The instruments were sterilized then."

Me: "So you have had no patients since..."

Before I could finish, the Holy Spirit interrupted me: "Erin, do not argue with him. He is marked for death, along with his wife. Heal them now in My Name."

Me: "Would you like to be healed and have your power restored? Jesus sent me to your sister's and now to you."

The man looked at me in complete shock. However, just then, there was a knock on the door and the woman let whoever knocked in. When we turned around to look ourselves, I saw that all three of my sons were now standing there.

Son: "Hi mom, we were just sent here to help you with an entire block just a short distance from here. Jesus sent an angel to tell us where you were. There are also many angels waiting outside to assist us. The entire block is set to be leveled today and all of those that reside there will soon die. We do not have much time."

We then brought this man and his wife to Jesus, but much quicker than usual, and supernaturally healed them and restored their power. We then went to the designated block and supernaturally went door-to-door, telling them that there was no time to evacuate. In just moments, and with the assistance of the angels, we somehow had many of them accept Jesus immediately and without argument.

The Lord then confirmed that we somehow had just brought around a hundred people to Jesus. We were then supernaturally transported again to just outside of the block. Shortly thereafter, and we are talking just seconds, too many explosives to count were detonated and the entire block was decimated. It was now around 6:00pm or so.

These explosives had been set 'in secret' and without any warning to the residents. I shook my head at how evil these people were. We then watched as the angels took the souls of those that were saved 'just-in-time' up to Heaven with them. We knew that they would now be safe with Him forever and ever.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my husband, my children and the family and friends that You have given to me. There is calm and peace in our home. While our children are at the age when they could be out getting into trouble, they seem quite content just hanging out at home, sitting in the sun or hanging out with friends online.

Father, like my husband and me, my children's hearts are anxiously waiting for what You will soon do with us. Our two eldest sons are just starting to navigate the world, but I already know that the plans You have for them will exceed all of their expectations.

So far, our children have kept on Your 'straight and narrow path'. I am grateful for this as they will not have the many past mistakes I had made that still try to call me back. Father, whenever I now start to think of these past failures, You quickly override the enemies voice by calling out to me...

"Erin, come back to Me. I am here. Do not listen to the enemy. Even your past mistakes have been used to form part of your mosaic. This mosaic is what I have created with you. Now come back to Me."

I am instantly then back with You and I am here and completely safe. My heart then stops racing and my fears quickly turn into thankfulness. Thank You, Father, for sending us Your Son, Jesus. Thank You for sending Him as the Perfect Sacrifice for us so that we who believe in Him may live in abundance with You.

On some days, I really believe that it is quite possible that I suffer from Post-Traumatic Stress Syndrome, or PTSD. PTSD is quite common for those that have been in prolonged battles. I have seen a lot of bad things happen in my past and have discovered things too difficult to wrap my head around.

I have come to realize that each person deals with trauma in different ways, especially when they come face-to-face with things beyond what they could ever endure on their own without Your divine help.

While rare, some people have stoic hearts and show very little emotion when faced with trouble. They are somehow able to rise up without fear of what may happen to them. They then do what is necessary to help, all without faltering.

However, many others simply freeze and then are not able to do anything at all. They become confused by a maze of thoughts and go into shock. Others run and hide instead and try to avoid what is happening altogether. For most, 'survivor's guilt' then follows in their footsteps, along with the enemy.

I have personally experienced each and every one of the above reactions in my past. I understand how each reaction can occur as I have fully experienced each one of them. While I most often tend to spring into action when necessary, I then experience a debilitating type of withdrawal from the stress of doing so shortly thereafter.

I thank You for the relatively peaceful days I have had recently even though I am in great pain. However, this peace can sometimes result in me having the time to look back at past mistakes. While waiting for what You will be doing next, I will then sometimes 'go back there' instead of focusing on You. Father, please forgive me for my foolishness in doing so.

As You already know, since You know everything, an old friend unexpectedly resurfaced recently. This woman had been crucial in helping me get through the police action that took place against my greatest enemy. She was a witness to what had happened and had helped me gather the evidence I needed for the ensuing court battles.

While I have too many enemies to count from each of the past bridges of my life, the resurfacing of this friend served as a reminder that I also have faithful friends in my life. Thank You, Father, for faithful friends! They are truly rarer than diamonds these days.

This faithful friend also served as a reminder to thank You for those on our Nest and our dear 'Dream Team'. They have been a constant source of great friendships! This is in such huge contrast to the artificiality of the 'Facebook World' we now live in. I am now convinced that Facebook is a breeding ground for all of the negative fruits of the spirit.

Perfect lives are now crafted there that can never match their realities. They pick and choose the most flattering pictures. They keep out all of their negative events and poor choices and exaggerate the good instead. The enemy then uses all of this to then tell us, 'Wow, look how awesome this person's life is. You are quite the loser in comparison.'

As such, I now do my best to avoid Facebook for this and so many other reasons. However, I now also find myself avoiding the news media as much as possible. So much tragedy visits so many people so frequently now, but especially for those in uniform sent to protect and battle for us.

While many in uniform are taught and trained to be in these battles, very few of them are then taught how to cope with the aftermath once they leave their service. The battles they were in then continue to rage in their heads over and over. They then pray, and hopefully to You alone, Father, for a 'do-over'.

There are also those people who suddenly and unexpectedly step out of their normal nature and commit a one-time horrendous crime. Now, I am not talking about sociopaths or those who habitually perform evil. I am talking about those who do something horrendous and then cannot even remember why they even did such a thing.

They are then not only put into prison for their mistake, but they then continue to charge themselves with even greater crimes in their minds afterward. There is only one true way to get out of this prison and that is You, Father. Blessed is the man or woman who goes to You with a broken heart and cries out to You...

"Father, I am guilty of these sins. Yes, I did it. I do not deserve Your mercy as I really deserve nothing that is good. However, I am sorry, I am truly sorry! I can do nothing on my own except mess up my life even more. I have now lost everything.

"Please find something in me that You would find worthy! Though I do not deserve Your mercy and grace, could You please still find something in me to still work with? Please, Jesus, please, Father, I need You now more than ever!"

What a blessed man or woman this is. Thank You, Jesus, for somehow seeing past our mistakes and our ignorance towards You. Thank You for still going after the lost sheep. Yes, thank You even for our abasement. I now truly know that You work Your very best works in a man or woman that has been brought as low as they can go.

Yes, Father, I now know this all too well as I truly understand abasement. I understand losing everything and being reduced down to nothing. Abasement is an express elevator to the lowest floor. However, it is only on the lowest floor where the Foundation is found...You, Jesus, You, Father, our Solid Rock and the Foundation of our lives.

On my own, I truly had nothing and I still have nothing. Though my ignorance and poor choices did their level best to stop Your plans for me, You were successful in aiding me even when it should have been impossible to. You are my Creator and You allowed all of this, not to torture me, but to bring me fully into Your mighty arms. Thank You!

I finally also truly understand why you allow children to drown, die in hot cars or be abused by evil men, just to name a few. These children are often then brought up to Heaven to be with You, but those left behind are then measured by these precious examples. These children are used mightily for Your purposes and ways that are higher than ours.

You have told me that these kids 'were on assignment', but are now in such joy in Your presence. You have told me that angels were sent so that they would not suffer. For those that remain, You told me that You will often then remove their memories of the horrible events.

You will then allow them to only remember when it is necessary, such as when they face their abusers. You told me that You have done the same with our children, but especially my two boys, so thank You, Father!

While my children often seem strong, I believe that this is mostly due to Your mercy in veiling them from most of the bad memories. However, I still had the memories of what had been done to them, all without my knowledge at the time, and became bitter towards You. I was bitter as I did not yet have understanding of why this was allowed.

I was mad at You, but, in reality, I was actually furious at You. I was furious that You would allow this. I questioned Your heart and wondered if You even had one. I questioned Your ability to hear and whether You even had eyesight. I questioned everything about You and even accused You of turning Your back on suffering.

After doing this for so long, I finally cried out to You in brokenness. I finally cracked in all of my grief and suffering. I finally realized that I was powerless to change our situation or make things right on my own. I finally cried out to You. I cried out to You and then remained silent and listened.

It was only in this resulting silence that I finally allowed You to work with me. I now find that I do not grieve as much for the children that die at the hands of the merciless as I know that they are with You and that this was part of Your plan. While still hard to bear what happens to these children, I now instead grieve for the families caught in tragedy.

I grieve for the soldier. I grieve for the policemen and women. I cannot believe I am saying this as I never would have in the past, but I also even now grieve for the criminals. Yes, I even grieve for my main enemy as I have been shown what eventually happens to these men without mercy.

We are here for only a short time and life deals cruel blows. When I was young and foolish, I was far from You and could not hear You. I wandered after the 'feel good gods of the world'. Well, I am now old and full of years and I hear from You. I then speak through the pages of my journals and they reflect my time with You.

While not that many people are listening to what these pages are saying right now, I thank You with all of my heart for sending those who actually do. Thank You for those You have sent to stand by me and my family during these difficult days. Thank You, Father, for all that You do for all of us, and even for those who do not know You!

Communion

Dear Father,

I love You so much and I am so thankful. I do not stop to thank You enough. While I still do not know exactly who I am in this thing called life, I do know that I now love You with all of my heart. I am grateful for all that You have done and all that You have saved me from. Quite simply, I have not and can never thank You enough.

Earlier today, and while normally I would avoid doing this like the plague, I felt called by You to really have a good look at myself in the mirror. While I am certainly not how I used to be, I am grateful that my body is still relatively dependable. I have healthy hair, good eyesight, good hearing and all of my arms, hands, legs and feet are intact.

While what I have may not be perfect, and some may only be partially functional in places, in general, my body parts are at least 'all there'. My heart works, even though it is assisted by a pacemaker. My neck moves, even though it is assisted by plates and hinges. However, it all works and I am alive.

I am alive and I can still breathe, smile and laugh. I receive love from my family and friends, but, most importantly, I receive so much love from You. Thank You for all that we have! We are truly rich in You, not because we deserve it, but because You, Father, have given us grace that not one of us can possibly earn on our own.

I now realize that there is truly nothing that I am able to do on my own anymore. Only through Your love, grace and mercy am I able to have the faith to go on. However, even my faith is provided by You and You alone. Thank You for never giving up on me.

While I do not know all of the reasons why I am here and somehow matter to You, I know that You have a plan for me in all of this, so thank You. I know that You can do all things. You are God and can do anything You want whenever You want. You can take away or You can increase, all at Your Will and as fast or slowly as You so choose.

All is for Your glory and all things are according to Your plans alone. Oh Father, please have mercy on us, even in all of our failures, and bless us. Please heal our children. Please force the tongues of the wicked to confess their evil and then remove them from our sights.

Please do not forget us! We are now desperately clinging to all of Your promises. Even so, I just want You to know that I am so thankful for You, Father. You are glorious. You are a generous and loving Father. You are an amazing mystery. I love You so much.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was standing with Uriel just outside of the door to God's Court. He smiled at me. I was surprised to see him as I was really expecting to meet with Jesus today instead.

Me: "Oh! Hi, Uriel!"

While I was suddenly speechless for some reason, he could tell that I was happy to see him. I could also tell that he felt the same way about me. It seems that Uriel has somehow grown used to me over time...smiles!

Uriel: "Well, hello, Erin! God requests your presence."

Me: "I am surprised to see you here. Where have you been lately?"

Uriel: "I am doing the Lord's business. However, today is not about me." He smiled.

He then put salve in my eyes and ushered me through the door and into God's presence. As soon as I entered, I could hear the amazing sounds of the choirs.

Angels: "Holy, holy, holy! Merciful and mighty! Holy, holy is God!"

My legs soon started to buckle when Uriel brought me closer to God. I dropped to my knees on the Sea of Glass. While I still could not look directly at God, even with the salve in my eyes, I could see the many coronas of light that emanated from His Throne. I could also see that there were layers of angels around Him in these waves of color.

I closed my eyes and started to pray in my prayer language. I thanked Him for opening His door for me. I thanked Him for being so faithful and good even when I have not been very faithful in return. I thanked Him for loving me even when I have sometimes been anything but lovable during our wait.

I suddenly felt an urge to thank Him for providing us with the beautiful scenery that surrounds us on Earth while we wait for Him to move in us. I then took some really deep breaths and could feel His very presence in me with each breath. I then started to feel wave after wave of His healing strength come into me from being in His presence.

Me: "Oh Father, You are so good. Thank You for allowing me to be called 'Your friend' even when I do not feel like a very good friend to You in return. Surely my heart is treacherous and easily swayed by negative thoughts. I am so sorry for doing this!"

God: "Erin, be still and know that I am God."

There was a flash of bright light. I suddenly felt the power of God surge into me. While I really cannot explain it fully in earthly terms, it was like a surge of power, but with no pain at all. I felt as if I was now being strengthened, both on the inside and the outside, for something that I was about to be shown by God.

The ground in front of me then suddenly split. I looked down as scenes started to unfold, all in accelerated time. I somehow knew that I was about to be shown the beginning to the end in lightning speed. I watched as scene after scene flashed in front of my eyes. While I wanted to share even more details of what I was shown, I was only to write the following down...

- Darkness turned to light
- The Earth prospered
- Sin, pain and destruction entered
- The Earth was flooded and then reemerged
- Sin, pain and destruction quickly returned
- The Son was sent to save us from our sins
- However, sin, pain and destruction continued

I then saw the future...

- Sin, pain and destruction accelerated
- God, through His Son, stepped in
- If possible, sin, pain and destruction accelerated even faster
- God, through His Son, stopped all of it 'just in time'
- The destruction was removed and a new reshaped Earth emerged
- Our hearts were reconciled and healed at a much faster pace than the sin, pain and destruction that caused it
- Our broken hearts and mourning soon turned to joy and dancing
- Every dry place was transformed into blossoming beautiful lands

As I watched all of this happen in fast motion, I could feel my body and heart heal and regenerate at the same pace. I felt my old and shriveled cells renew and become supple again. My very cells were being regenerated by the wellspring of the River of Life. All illness and death were removed from my body at lightning speed.

I felt that I was to look at myself again as I had just done on Earth, but this time without a mirror. While what I then saw is quite hard to describe fully, I will do my best. I was stronger and leaner than when I was in my very best shape. While I was muscular and healthy again, I was still completely feminine in form, shape and tone.

My fingers and toes had the perfect shape to them. My fingernails and toenails now glistened like pearls. I reached back and pulled forward some of my hair. It was long and softer than I had ever felt before and was an amazing golden brown in color.

I reached up to feel my face and became excited. My nose was no longer broken and my skin was tight again. My skin was no longer 'loose'. I could not feel even a single wrinkle, none at all, anywhere. I started to weep with gratitude.

Little did I know that all of what He was showing me would soon become even greater! He then showed me how our children would be after their Transformation. I somehow knew that our children would soon be changed to exactly how God already sees each of them now.

He started off by showing me our three boys. They were completely healed and strong. While hard to describe, they were somehow 'made completely whole' again. I wept as I heard myself cry out, "Oh Father, they are now the men You had always planned for them to be! Thank You, Father!"

They were athletic and, for a lack of a better comparison, looked like the mightiest of warriors. Their jawlines were pronounced and they had such white teeth and kind eyes. While they were still human, they really looked a lot like the mighty angels I have seen here. However, they were still a normal height for Earth, but a bit taller.

He then showed me our two daughters. They looked even more beautiful and kind than they do now, but supernaturally so. All of their very best features had somehow been amplified. Each of them was now perfected, but in a way that somehow still captured each of their unique personalities.

They no longer had any need for makeup as their beauty made this unnecessary. Despite their amazing new beauty, I could not find any vanity in either of them as their hearts had also been strengthened. While they remained just as human as our sons...smiles...they too looked like angels, but the female kind!

While I could see many other enhanced qualities in all five of our children, I knew that they were all designed to more fully reflect Jesus. While they each reflected how God uniquely created each of them in a magnificent way, they remained humble.

I broke down in tears and gratitude to God. I could not speak for several minutes as I sobbed with joy. I was barely even able to write as I wept, both on Earth as it is in Heaven. I took a few minutes to gather myself after seeing our children in this way.

Me: "My God, my Father, my Every Single Thing and All Things, how can I even begin to thank You for this gift, the sight of our healed children? Oh God, my Father, thank You, thank You, thank You! I have longed to see this with all of my heart and soul, especially for my two boys.

"This is all so real to me and as if I already somehow know it completely. Oh Father, please do not let me lose even one moment of this memory. Thank You, Father, oh, just thank You for this. You are so amazing. I just know that this will soon happen on Earth as it is Heaven as You always keep Your promises.

"Who am I that I would be entitled to such a Gift? Who am I to have my prayers for our children answered fully and in much greater ways than I could have ever imagined? I am forever thankful and forever grateful for all that You have done and will soon do! Thank You, Father! Thank You, Jesus!"

God: "Erin, since you have lost yourself completely in your pursuit of Me, so I will give you much, much more in return. You believe, Erin, and so here you are. You come to Me when I call you. I love you."

Me: "I love You too, Father, so much. So, so much! Please do all that You have shown me and soon! Please, Father, as only You can do the impossible."

God: "I will do this soon. Rejoice and do not be afraid. I am your Father, the One Who owns the cattle on a thousand hills. I am your Creator, the One Who has hidden you in the cleft of a rock. I have written your name on the palm of My hand. The names of your husband and children are also written there.

"While I will give you that which you have asked for, I will also grant you immeasurably more. As for your children, people will soon say to each other, 'Whose kids are these? While I can tell that they are the same kids, they are somehow completely different! How is this even possible?'

"This will truly be something to behold and soon as My Son is constantly petitioning for all of those who love Him. He is ever before Me as your advocate. He is in each of you and bears your pains, regrets and losses. Though He already knows My timing on this, He still asks Me, 'When, Father, when?' on each of your behalf.

"You and My Son are now inseparable as you now come to Him in everything that you do. Since you have done this with My Son, I will now do all things for you which are good. I will heal your brokenness. I will heal your family.

"I will bring you out of the place that I have hidden you. When I do this, you will only be able to see the remains of those who have tried to destroy you. I have seen it all and I have never forgotten.

"Erin, you will soon say, 'God hid His face from me for only a while, but then He hid His face no more.' Though this is hard for you to understand right now, you soon will. The time has come. I love you, Erin."

Uriel came over to bring me to my feet. Even though I was much stronger here than I ever had been on Earth, my legs remained wobbly in God's overwhelming presence.

God: "Soon, you will look for the wicked that had pursued you, but you will no longer find them. Do not worry as no weapon formed against you shall prosper. The time of your enemies is soon to come to a close. I am shutting down the doors of access and they will be forced to confess from their unbridled tongues. Their tongues will be loosened from My Throne.”

Me: Smiling. “Hmm, but is not even their unbridled tongue still bridled by You, Father?”

We both started to laugh. He obviously knew that I was just kidding.

God: “Yes, Erin, but, either way, their pride unbridles their tongue and then their guilty confessions are bridled. They will have horror in their eyes at the sight of you. They will have no ability to bring forth their curses as I will leave them without words. You will soon see this.”

Me: “Thank You, Father! I love You!”

God: “I love you, Erin. Now, you will soon be removed from the place you are hidden for a time of service. You will also soon be in sync with others that I have chosen that are in addition to your household. You will then all no longer be alone in your thoughts. Do not worry as I have not forgotten any of you.”

Uriel brought me out the door. I looked back and waved towards God on His Throne. Even though I could not look at Him, I somehow knew that He had waved back at me. I smiled as I looked over at Uriel. He was smiling back at me. I seemed to amuse him.

Uriel: “Soon, you will declare a thing in Jesus’ Name and it will be done. Soon, you will scale walls. Soon, you will know the thoughts of the wicked. Now, rejoice, as your waiting is coming to a close and a new door is opening for you to walk through.

“Do not worry as God has commanded angels concerning you, your family and all those that He has called. These angels will guard all of you in all of your ways. You will then go out and bear witness to a dying world.

“As you have been told before, there are others besides you and your household that will soon be called to witness with you. Rejoice as you will have many friends that will stand together as one in Jesus’ Name. You will be the last wave before that ‘Great and Terrible Day of the Lord’. Now, rejoice, Erin, rejoice!”

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and my friends. I could already smell Fall in the air back in July. This seemed so early compared to normal. I thought that this was just a fluke though as it became 'summer-like' and hot immediately after.

However, just this morning, I looked out the window and counted four different trees that had leaves that were already turning gold and red. How is this even possible when July is now just barely over?

I noticed that this seemed to be particularly prevalent on the maple trees. If it had been a wet summer, perhaps this would have contributed to this, but the precipitation has not really been anything that out of the ordinary.

I have continued to place food outside to feed the pretty little birds and the furry little friends that come to visit us. However, I recently noticed that the squirrels and chipmunks are now foraging as if it were about to snow. I have also noticed a few 'halo moons', which I have learned can also be a sign of a soon brutal winter.

The monarch butterflies were here not that long ago as well, but it seems as if they have already left. The fireflies that were here for about three to four weeks earlier in the summer are already now gone as well.

The little nuthatches are gathering sunflower seeds and burying them in the trees. However, I also saw two woodpeckers together on the same tree. I have been told that this is rare and can also be a sign of a coming hard winter. I soon realized that the two woodpeckers were there to steal the nuthatches stash of seeds.

While I do not know why I have felt a need to put out food for the animals in this particular year, I have continued to do this. However, I try to do this only occasionally and without any noticeable pattern so that they do not get used to me doing this.

However, given the urgency I see in the way that these little animals seem to be gathering nuts and seeds, I feel that something is coming and it will be brutal. The next sign I will be looking for is if the wasps and hornets build their nests higher off the ground than usual. They were higher up last year and we had a difficult winter.

We have also had a record number of baby spiders around our house this year and they are everywhere. My husband has even had to go out on numerous killing sprees so that there will be less of them to come into our home when it rains.

I have been looking at these unusual signs in the environment because I believe that God informs these creatures of things that are coming before we could even know this. Since these creatures are relatively undistracted compared to us, it seems that they are then more 'in tune' with God than most of us are.

For centuries now, farmers knew how to look for these various kinds of signs. This would then help them figure out when they should plant and harvest their crops based on the 'creature weather forecast'. As for the rest of us right now, we rely on weather reports instead and they may or may not fully warn us of what could be coming.

All I know is that I am to go to You in everything now. The 'times' are coming up soon. We know this through Your Word, the written words of Your prophets. All of this has put me on edge lately and I feel as if I am being stirred up. While I feel like I am waiting for something in my Holy Spirit, I still do not know when or how this will all come about.

As a result of this slight uneasiness, I have felt a need to press into God more and more in prayer these days. There even seems to be a pattern emerging in the way I have been praying in the Spirit lately...

- First, a prayer of gratitude;
- Second, a prayer of petition; and

- Third, a song of praise.

What is odd is that I cannot always understand the language I am praying, petitioning or singing in. However, in my heart, I just know that the Holy Spirit is petitioning for something for all of us in a seemingly urgent manner. I somehow just know that it is the Lord petitioning to the Throne of God on our behalf.

However, something else is happening. In my Spirit and deep in my heart, I have been grieving for the lost. While I still pray for various people and for their various situations, I seem to mostly be praying and grieving for the lost these days.

I cannot really explain this fully, but this grief is often so great that I can barely even take it. I will see an event that has occurred and my emotions will 'well up in me'. I just can no longer seem to stop it. While I want so badly to help these people, it seems that all I can do right now in my current state is keep praying for them.

The grief I have felt is so overwhelming that I have asked You, Father, to soon strengthen me. Father, please do not forget about those that truly have no understanding. So many people will soon be caught completely off-guard, unaware of what is building up.

You gave me a dream a few nights ago...

Dream 1 description begins ("The Roofless Houses")...

I was walking by two houses that had their roofs blown completely off of them. Despite this, the occupants continued to dwell in them. They were simply continuing to live by adjusting to the environmental exposure, but were doing nothing to fix their situation.

As I was looking at one of the houses, I recognized a woman that I once knew. She invited us over for dinner and we agreed to come over. Once we arrived at her house, we could tell that she was completely unaware of her precarious state. She was cheerful and polite, but I could tell that she did not realize that she was now exposed.

Dream 1 description over...

While we have still been going to church on occasion since moving here, we have not really established a solid church home. When I asked God about this, He informed us that this was by His design right now. While this seems to be against what I had known and that 'you need a church base', He informed me as to why this was the case for now.

He started by showing me my history in churches. I would become quite involved with church activities, volunteer work and other things. By the time I was finished, I then had very little time left to give to my family or, in reality, to the Lord.

While we may not congregate in church that often now, He then pointed out that we also worship Him more now than ever. I truly believe that He has us doing this now as we can no longer trust most of what is being taught at many churches today.

The majority of the pastors are now trying to be so politically correct that they do not even speak about sin. So many Christians now believe that 'once saved always saved' means that they can do as they please when it comes to sinning.

Well, Saul was once king and God's anointed, but his jealousy of David, along with other things, turned his heart away from God. Hearts can turn from God! Just look at Judas. While he even walked with Jesus, he ended up betraying him.

What about Peter? Three times he declared to Jesus that he would never deny Him. However, he did just that and just as Jesus said he would. Yes, Jesus saves, but He is also to be continued to be respected and loved. He is to be honored and recognized as our Savior, the only Savior that laid down His life for us.

We are His Bride and He calls us His friends. In return, and because we love Him and long to do His Will, we are to stand each day against the temptations presented to us. We then have to make the choice not to partake in the sinful activity that only temporarily satisfies us and then leads to so much less than what He offers us.

While we can still 'accidentally' fall into old habits at times and succumb to sin, we are to then confess it immediately to God. We are to then repent to God and turn away from it. Then, and by His healing grace and mercy, He will accept us back into His arms.

New and different challenges and choices are presented to us each day. We can either make a choice to press into God or fold into sin. This is why it is so important to put on the full armor of God every day.

Without His armor on, we simply cannot stand against the enemy's schemes. Fight the good fight and God will see your hearts and reward you according to your actions and reactions.

I can truly feel that there is now a grand separation happening right now. The coldness of the world is growing extreme and more now than ever before. The harshness of people on social media is incredible, especially when they are anonymous. I cannot recall this type of behavior ever happening back when I was younger.

For the last several nights, I have been extremely uncomfortable. I have been unable to sleep restfully and have had very few hours of unbroken sleep. However, I still have dreams while I sleep and had two more dreams last night...

Dream 2 description begins ("The Shallow Grave")...

It was nighttime and I was sleeping in a beautiful field. I could smell the wonderful aroma of sweet grass. My mattress was small, almost the exact size of my body, and was set inside of the ground. However, I thought this was funny as I was only about six inches under the ground versus the usual 'six feet under' for a typical grave.

As I rested there, I watched the millions of stars above me rotate in the sky, but in what seemed to be hundreds of times faster than normal. As Orion is so noticeable, I watched as it moved into view on the horizon to my left. It then went overhead and disappeared in the horizon to my right. Just as Orion disappeared, I heard His voice!

Jesus: "Erin, it is darkest before the dawn. I am here."

I rose up out of my 'grave'.

Dream 2 description over...

As soon as I woke up from this dream, I looked out of my window just in time to see an epic flash of lightning light up the entire sky. The ensuing thunder clap roared so loudly that it shook our entire house. My husband and our children were wakened by it. It was the only thunder clap of the night.

It was so loud that it literally shook all of our 'bones'. It was such a noteworthy occurrence that I later found out that each of us, including our three children at home, had individually decided to note the time. It had occurred at around 3:00am.

After quite some time, I was finally able to get back to sleep. I then had my second dream of the night...

Dream 3 description begins ("Fresh Bread, Moldy Bread")...

I went to a market place in order to purchase some bread. This market place seemed to be in a foreign country as the streets were made of a brick cobblestone that you rarely see in the USA. As I approached a bakery stand, I noticed that they had two very different loaves of bread on display for sale there.

The first loaf of bread was fresh and perfect. It was still warm as it had just come out of the oven. In direct contrast, the second loaf of bread was hard and cold. It was disgusting and I could even see mold visible on the base of it.

While the price for the fresh loaf was a bit higher than the price for the moldy loaf, the difference in price seemed well worth spending to me. Nevertheless, the moldy loaf was still priced relatively high for the quality compared to the price of the fresh loaf, but I did not understand why.

While the fresh loaf was priced at $5.00, the moldy loaf was still priced at $3.99. While the fresh loaves were not selling at all, the moldy loaves were selling like crazy. The moldy loaves were selling so fast that the salesclerk was even having trouble keeping her shelves stocked.

I was absolutely shocked at the huge numbers of people lining up to purchase the moldy loaves. There was not one single person in line for the fresh loaves. When the salesclerk started to run out of the moldy loaves, I noticed that she was starting to raise her prices higher and higher for the untouched fresh loaves.

While the price for these fresh loaves had started at only $5.00, she changed it to $6.00, then $7.00 and then finally to $12.00 in a very short time. I quickly took my money out to purchase some of the fresh loaves before the price went even higher. Since I was still the only one in line for the fresh loaves, I was the first in line.

Me: "Excuse me, but why are you raising the price of these fresh loaves so quickly?"

Woman: Laughing. "Oh, it is because someone like you will pay whatever is necessary to purchase these fresh ones." She looked at my hand and smiled. "Hmm, I believe that you are holding $24.00 in your hand."

I looked at the money in my hand and saw that it was all wadded up. I unfolded it and counted exactly $24.00 in my hand. I was not sure how she could have known this and was going to ask, but decided against it. When I looked back up at the woman, I noticed that she had already raised the price from $12.00 to $24.00.

Me: Laughing. "Well...I had hoped to purchase two loaves, not just one."

For some reason, I was not angered at all by her last second raising of the price. I shook my head and smiled as I handed her my $24.00. After taking my money, she carefully wrapped the loaf in a cheese cloth and placed it in a special bread bag for me.

Woman: "Look, I know that you had wanted two of these fresh loaves, but you will only need one loaf. Just one bite of this will give you everything that you need."

I could now see that the lineup for the moldy loaves had grown even longer. When I looked back at the salesclerk, she was now putting a cover, almost like a curtain, over the rack with the fresh loaves. I could clearly see that these fresh loaves were no longer available for sale.

Me: "Okay, so why is no one else purchasing these good loaves of bread?"

Woman: "Well, most of these people cannot even see the difference. In fact, most cannot even see these good loaves at all. I saw that you had discovered them and then decided to test you. I wanted to see if you would change your mind and stand in the other line when I increased the price.

"Instead, you paid everything that you had in order to purchase the fresh bread. I have now wrapped this fresh loaf especially for you. This good bread will now remain with you and will continue to sustain you. It will strengthen you and you will never grow hungry. It will also remain fresh and warm. It will never grow stale!" She smiled.

Me: "Thank you! However, what about these other fresh loaves? Where are all of the buyers for these?"

Woman: "There are no buyers left that want to purchase these fresh loaves. Those who have come have now received their portion just like you, but with moldy bread instead of fresh.

"As I no longer have any moldy bread left to sell, I will now have to wait about three days for these fresh loaves to become like these moldy loaves. I will then sell them as moldy loaves. These people are always hungry for the moldy loaves and are never hungry for the fresh loaves."

Me: "Why do you not increase the price of the moldy bread even more so that you can make even more profit?"

Woman: Laughing. "Well, I could, but I do not set the prices. Now, all of these people will eventually starve as the moldy bread carries disease and pestilence with it. It is hard and cold and their cash will soon run out. They will then kill each other while waiting in line to purchase more of it."

Just then, I saw fights starting to break out. Even though there was still enough bread to meet people's demand, they now perceived that there was now less bread available than what was needed. They were starting to grow impatient and restless. The woman shook her head as she looked over the people growing more and more restless.

Woman: "I don't get it. There is still plenty of fresh bread available, yet they are fighting over nothing but moldy bread. Who does this?" She laughed light heartedly. "Well, I need to get back to work. Enjoy your good bread..." She then looked into my eyes and smiled. "...Erin."

Me: "Wait! I never gave you my name and I paid cash. How did you know my name?"

She smiled at me again.

Dream 3 description over...

After writing this dream down, my stomach immediately became unsettled and my pain returned. Oh Father, please let me sleep soundly tonight. Please remove my pain soon. I so long for the day when You will fulfill Your wonderful promises to us.

I recently watched the story of Ryan Leaf, a quarterback with so much promise, that had become addicted to painkillers. It was tragic as he later went to prison for burglary because he was stealing to feed this terrible habit. While he started off so arrogant early in his career, his sudden downfall and time in prison humbled him severely.

This story touched my heart and is such an amazing story of loss and redemption. Oh Father, I so hope that this man is now one of Yours! If he is not, please reach out to him in a divine way. Breaking addictions forever can only happen when You are in it.

Due to my severe reaction to pain medication, I am not even able to take any of these for relief if I wanted to. I instead look to You for relief, Father, so please help me and remove my pain soon. I cannot help but be grateful that I cannot take any of these medications as I know that these addictions can sneak up on even the best of us.

I believe that You even use this pain of mine to get me to press into You even more. While I know that this method works for You, I still do not like it one bit. While I press into You more...smiles...and as You know...I also complain more to You as a result!

There are only a few weeks of summer left and my kids will be back at school soon. Oh, Father, please do not forget about us. So many of us are crying out to You for help and relief. Please, Father, please help us in such a supernatural way that we truly would not believe it even if You told us in advance!

My heart is longing for Your mercy today. A date comes and goes, but then a new date comes that seems even better than the one before. Still, I pray that Your 'soon, very soon' will soon, very soon, mean the same thing as our 'soon, very soon'...that is, right now...please, Father...smiles!

Oh Lord, I have a child here that is broken right now. More and more, he now understands his limitations. Some events over the last few days have forced him to come to terms with pain that he has never been able to connect with before.

He is feeling things for the first time deep in the chambers of his heart, a place that he has never had access to before. In a way, and this is hard to explain, he is almost 'panicking' as a result. It is like the training wheels have been taken off of his bike.

In the last few days, I have had several noteworthy conversations with my two sons, one over the phone and the other here in person. They are noteworthy in that we actually had 'normal' parent-child conversations. I mean 'real' conversations.

Father, please grant all of our children divine understanding, knowledge and peace, all in supernatural speed. It was surprising, if not even shocking, to see one of my sons actually have tears. These tears were always unable to fall before, so thank You.

All five of us watched the movie 'The Count of Monte Cristo' last night (two are still away). In this updated version, the role of 'The Count' was played amazingly well by Jim Caviezel. This is the same actor who played You in 'The Passion of the Christ'.

This movie is such a wonderful story. I even believe that it was truly inspired from Your Throne. At times, and just like the Count in the first half of this movie, I must admit that I too feel like someone who was falsely imprisoned and had given up all hope of being released from captivity.

Then, and on a seemingly ordinary day, a priest from another prison cell broke through the floor of this man's cell. The priest had mistakenly dug an escape hole in the wrong direction. Even though the Count had now lost all hope, there was 'breakthrough'!

As the two men recommenced digging, but this time in the correct direction, the priest taught the Count how to read, write, swordfight and speak in several different languages. The priest did this in 'exchange' for the Count's help in digging a tunnel to their freedom. However, and as the priest said, 'Do you have anything better to do?'

As further background to the movie, we soon find out that all of the men in this particular prison, including the priest and the Count, had been unfairly imprisoned. Neither of them was guilty and neither of them had received a fair trial.

In essence, those in charge and in positions of power had decided that these men were now an 'inconvenience' to them. They then decided that they wanted to ship them off to this horrible prison as a result. Talk about injustice!

Anyway, while digging their escape tunnel, the ground above them collapsed and trapped the priest. In the priest's last few moments of life, he then reminded the Count that he was to 'do good' with all of the things that he had been taught.

However, and in a great twist, the priest then gave the Count a detailed map to a vast treasure. As we would soon find out, there was a massive amount of gold hidden on the Isle of Monte Cristo. When the Count questioned why he had kept this to himself, the priest replied in his dying breaths, 'Remember, I am a priest, not a saint.'

After the priest died, the Count, still in his thirties compared to the priest's sixties or even older, and in a brilliant move, switched places with the priest in his body bag. When their captors later tossed the body bag off of the cliffs and into the ocean below, the Count was then able to make his miraculous release!

After later connecting with a faithful friend, the Count was then able to find the vast treasure. Using this treasure, he was then able to avenge his unfair captivity. However, the truly awesome part was how they kept alluding to the fact that it was really God paving the way for this vengeance. In the end, vengeance was really truly all His.

While there is much more to this movie and I highly recommend it, I soon noticed that the Count had served two bridges in confinement before his release. While this was the movie version, the original book version actually had him confined for three bridges.

Father, all I know is that I need Your mercy and soon. Thanks, but really no thanks, to Facebook, I sometimes watch my friends and their families' blossom from a distance. While I am truly happy for them, it is just so hard to see their sons and daughters graduating from high school and moving into a promising future with so much hope.

Some move onwards to college, others to traveling, some as artists, while others are already achieving great things for You. Some are even getting married and starting their families. Again, I am happy for them, truly I am, but it is hard to have two sons with Asperger's and knowing that this will not be for them without Your divine help.

Oh Father, have You forgotten Your promises to me? Oh Father, here I am! While I have long been forgotten by my distant friends and even family as their memories of me have now faded, please do not do the same with me!

Oh Lord, I have never sat here to ask for things that would purposely hurt the hearts of others. I have not asked for things because of pride. I just so long to be able to see wholeness, healing, feeling and connectedness in my sons. This just is not possible with children with Asperger's. Only You can heal this, Father!

Please show me what more I need to do! I have poured my heart out to You on these pages. I have cried to You thousands upon thousands of tears. I have left all that I know to follow You, first by foolishly going to the desert, but then miraculously when You called me out to the 'Land of the Trees'.

Yesterday marked the full moon of the month of Av. Tu B'Av is the date when the Israelites arose from their graves and a time for marriage. Please do not let me die an old woman that was never able to see what she has been anticipating for so long. Please let me see Your promises soon so that I am not almost dead before they arrive.

I am in mourning today, Father, as I was so hoping for healing today. Just then, I heard the sound of mourning doves outside of my window. Thank You, Father, as I know that this was a sign from You that You are listening to me on Earth as it is in Heaven. Thank You, Father, but I am still in pain and I still need You!

As I listened some more to the mourning doves, their haunting cries started to remind me of my childhood in California. I had often heard their 'mourning' outside my window each morning as I was growing up there.

Lord, these doves are mourning because they are searching for their mate. Their mourning is a type of call, like a Bride searching for their Groom. We are mourning, Father, like an anxiously waiting Bride for her Groom. These represent my cries to You, Lord! I am here, Father, but where are You?

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was surrounded by a large circle of trees so tightly packed together that the space between the tree trunks were but a few inches. The trunks were massive and impenetrable. As I was here in my current disabled state, there was no way I could climb the trunks to freedom. The forest was like prison bars and there was no exit.

There was a thick fog covering the area starting at about a hundred feet up or so. The circle of trees, made of pines and cedars, shot up so high into the fog that I could not see their tops at all. I could see through the small cracks between the trunks and the surrounding forest was so thick and dark that I could see no light shining there at all.

The inside of this large perfect circle of trees was covered in soft grass. Right in the middle of the clearing was a single, massive and beautiful fruit tree. This tree had a massive canopy of branches and leaves, along with an abundance variety of fruits. I was so weak in my current state that I began to cry. I looked everywhere for Jesus.

Me: "Oh Father, I am so sorry for all of the wrongs that I have ever done. As beautiful as this place is, I am isolated here. Please do not forget about me here."

I looked around, but there was absolutely no way out. In my current physical state, there is no way I could climb any of these massive trees that surrounded me. As for the huge tree in the middle, I would simply have to wait for the fruit to drop before I could even eat anything.

Sulking now, I went over and sat at the base of the fruit tree. I felt hopeless as I bent my knees up to my chest. After a short while, I rested my arms on my knees and dropped my head in prayer. If pouting was an Olympic sport, I would have been a contender. Even though I knew God was here with me already, I still felt so isolated.

Me: "Lord, please help me! Father, are You here?"

God: "I am here, Erin. I have not forgotten you or the promises that I have given you. There would be no benefit to Me to deny that which I have promised you. According to you, you are not a worker and witness of any benefit to Me without these promises being fulfilled. However, Erin, you are already of benefit to Me even as you are today.

"Up until now, I have sustained you, kept you here with Me and fed you at My Altar. I have spoken tenderly to you and your heart has been rendered to Me. I have shaped you here and prepared you. I have not forgotten your deep longings. I even sent you doves where you sit to remind you that I am always with you, on Earth and in Heaven."

Me: "Thank You, Father, but I am getting older now. I just want to live, but I mean 'really' live. I want to serve You with fervor like I would have been able to in my youth. I want my words of hope and encouragement to actually mean something to my children and friends as they would now see Your miracles for me fulfilled, not my current state.

"I want so much to see these promises fulfilled before You call me Home. Oh please, Father, please! When You give me these promises, I become both anxious and excited as I do not know when these will be fulfilled. I have waited my whole life for You.

"In a way, I have even stopped living here on Earth. I no longer feel like a part of the world. It doesn't help that the world has now grown even colder and darker recently. People do not talk about You anymore unless it is to curse Your Name on their lips.

"Please see my heart rendering and heal me. Please have mercy on me. I long to have You deliver Your promises. So many have mocked my love for You, telling me that my trials were brought on by myself for my so-called 'continued sinning'. This mocking was usually from my 'Christian friends'. I so want to be a 'God-loving' witness to them.

"When I was coming out of the world, it took me several years to gain more understanding of Your ways. In a way, I was like a fishing bob on the water, bouncing up and down, appearing and disappearing, half wet and half dry.

"It was there that You took me and refined my heart through the furnace of fire. You then brought me out of it, but then walked me back through it a few more times. While I know this helped remove most of my dross, the consequences of my tests and trials greatly affected my children's childhoods, especially my two boys.

"Their childhoods have essentially now been lost. I want so much to now do things with them or teach them what I know. However, they no longer look at me as they once did when they still thought that the world was full of wonder. I do not even know if they remember that much of what I have taught them in the past.

"My children have seen how I have been treated and they become angry at You at times, Father. I do not want them to be angry at You. I love You with reckless abandon, but I am just not doing well right now waiting for You. I feel that my hope..." I choked up as I started to cry even harder. "...is lost right now."

God: "I understand, Erin, but I do not tarry. I will not withhold My promises for long. As it applies to you, 'in a little while' does not mean 'years'. Now, look around you. What do you see, Erin?"

Me: "I see a forest so thick that there is no way out."

God: "Then you are not seeing what is right in front of you. What is the saying?"

Me: "Unable to see the forest for the trees'?"

God: "Erin, you are failing to see the bigger picture. I removed you to this place. This is where you are now. You were moved from the desert places to the trees. While you are still unable to do much, there is a canopy over you there, My Cover.

"The 'Tree' over you is healthy. The 'Branches' are strong and have a variety of fruit that are all good to eat. You have shade in the heat and sun and shelter when the wind blows or it is cold. You have soft grass on which to lie.

"Your life continues on as you wait for Me. However, your troubles now come and go with nothing ever serious enough that I do not provide you with enough so that you are able to cover your bills. I am sustaining you there. I tell you the truth, Erin, soon, very soon, I will bring forth My promises and in an instant.

"You, your husband and all of your children will be healed and strengthened. However, this will not be just for the seven of you, but also for your friends and others that I have called. I promise you that I have not abandoned any of you to the grave.

"While you have grown to be discouraged and your patience wanes, do not worry as soon, very soon, I will bring you out into a wide-open space. You will then go forth in victory. Erin, you were sent to witness to the Kingdom of God. Now, do you remember that you were already reciting 'The Lord's Prayer' at a very early age?

Me: "Yes, Father! I can recall this quite vividly. I also learned the hymn 'Onward Christian Soldier' at my grandmother's Methodist Church. This hymn constantly repeated in my head, along with 'The Lord's Prayer'. I think I was only about six or seven years old and not a believer yet. I seem to recall that my brother was there too."

God: "This was not of your own doing, Erin, but Me etching this into you."

Me: "I now remember repeating 'Thy Kingdom come, Thy Will be done, on Earth as it is Heaven' over and over. I remember singing 'onward Christian soldiers, marching as to war, with the Cross of Jesus, going on before' over and over as well. What did this all mean, Father?"

God: "Erin, you were already testifying about the Kingdom of Heaven as being the place that I have prepared for the weary and the lost. Like today, you were already stirring the hearts of My soldiers in My Army soon to come, but soon even more so."

Me: "I am still not certain that I fully understand what You are saying."

God: "Erin, the Kingdom of Heaven is near. You speak of My Kingdom. You are showing the way to those who need to know that I have prepared a place for them."

Me: "I am not the only one who is doing this though, right?"

God: "No, Erin, you are not the only one. However, you are unique in the way that I am doing this in and through you."

Just then, the fog lifted over the trees and I could feel the sun. I looked up and saw the fog being replaced with clear blue skies. As I sat there staring at the beautiful sky, I felt a hand on my shoulder. I turned to see Jesus standing there and smiling at me. I leaped up and hugged Him tightly.

Me: "Oh Lord, I am so glad to see You!"

Jesus: "Erin, I am always here with you."

Me: "Lord, while I still do not understand so many things, there is one thing I really do understand..." I looked into His eyes and smiled as 'big' as I could. "...that today seems like just as good a day as any for You to heal me!"

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh Erin, I promised you that I would and I will. And, yes, Erin, as I just read your thoughts, for both on Earth and in Heaven. However, you should also understand what is happening all around you and even as we speak. Hearts are being stirred. However, soon, very soon, and in an instant, all will be reconciled.

"I love you and I am with you through it all. My love for you is unconditional. To Me, your value does not waver. You are not easily forgotten. You come to Me daily. I am in your thoughts and never far removed.”

Me: “Yes, Lord, I now go to You the minute that I see the possibility of trouble or even blessings.”

Jesus: “Erin, this is how God has created all of you to be.”

Me: “Yes, Lord, but so many things are weighing on my heart right now. Just yesterday, I had put seed out for the doves that You had sent me. However, earlier this morning, I saw evidence of blood and feathers. Oh Father, I believe that a predator stole one of the doves. I feel at fault.” I was now crying quite hard.

“I have been feeding all of these animals in the hopes that, when You change us, perhaps the ones that had come to us would be changed at the same time as us. I am so sorry, Lord, but my heart is now grieving for this dove. I went out just a bit later to wash away the blood. I am so sorry.”

Jesus had such a compassionate look on His face as I wept about the loss of ‘my dove’.

Jesus: “Your heart is like a child’s heart at times and this too is good. Even though five sparrows are sold for two pennies, not one of them is forgotten by God. You now care about that which I care about. I know that this made you sad, but I allowed this to show you a parable.

“Erin, if I do not like seeing your delight and joy over these doves turn to sorrow, then why would I allow such a thing to happen? I tell you the truth, yet still a mystery...you have seen this little dove here and it is already flying around with great joy.

“Try to think of it this way. You placed choice seed, the choicest seed, out to serve the animals. Word of this soon spread throughout all of the area. All types of delightful animals then came there to eat.

“You did nothing wrong here. You were careful not to place the food outside in any sort of pattern. This pushed the animals to still continue to search for food on their own. However, since these animals were delighted by your food, they would still come each day from all around to see if there were any of your choice offerings to partake in.

"You even brought enough bread for the nocturnal animals, and, yes, even the crows. You made sure that they all had a portion. However, what you did not consider was that there were also crafty predators watching over the whole scenario. These predators study the animals as they come and go.

"Now, a predator usually waits for when a small animal feeds alone, whether it is a dove, a sparrow or any other creature. While they are busy eating and enjoying their peace, that is when the enemy strikes...a predator comes. In this manner, even the predator is then indirectly fed by the seed that you had spread.

"However, once there is no more prey left, even the predators will then come for your food in desperation. They will risk exposure in the wide open in order to devour any seed that you might spread. The predators will become desperate since the doves, the sparrows, the chickadees and the other 'adorable' small animals will be here with you."

Me: "Oh, this is so sad. Father, are You now speaking of the end?"

Jesus: "Erin, continue to spread seed. Your bread is good to eat. God creates the seed, the ground, the predator and the prey. Nothing is of any surprise to Him."

I knew that He was right, but I was still a bit upset about my possible role in this dove's sudden demise. While I know that the Lord had allowed this in order to teach us, it was still hard to witness. He held me, looked into my eyes and smiled with a compassion that could never be measured by earthly measures.

Jesus: "I know that you are still sad about this, but perhaps there is another way for you to think about it that will cheer you up. Would it help to know that perhaps there is a fox with her cubs or an eagle with her eaglets that is very thankful today?"

"Erin, just remember that I delight in your delight and that which is good. Remember that I grieve whenever you grieve. I understand your heaviness, but take comfort in Me." He gently nudged me. "Now, I will bring you more bread and seed and you can continue to feed as much as you like.

"I know that you are having a difficult time with uncertainty right now. You have uncertainty because you see all that is happening all around you. You also have uncertainty as you know that the time is near."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but only because You have told us and it is in Your Word."

Jesus: Smiling. "While I am also referring to the events that the prophets have foretold, just know that your time of unfolding is near as well. There has been an increase in trouble upon the lands and nations are against nations. Erin, are there other signs?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. Earthquakes have increased and the weather has been extreme. It was quite cool yesterday where we live and it felt almost more like a mid-October day. There was an odd chill in the air, a chill like I had never really felt before in August.

"The leaves are turning color here similar to as if it was already the end of September. It seems that the birds are already starting to migrate. However, it is not just the weather that seems to be turning colder, but also people. People have been even colder than usual lately. This all seems so different this year."

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, your observations are good."

I smiled at Him and could tell that He knew that I had just started thinking again about our soon healing and transformation. Yes, He truly knows EVERY one of our thoughts, both the good ones and the bad ones...smiles!

Me: "So, Lord, is there anything else that I should be doing right now? Anything?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh Erin, just try to relax and be joyful. Your birth pains are almost over. You will soon cease your labor and give birth. Day-by-day and one-by-one, I send more birth pains. Even though these will soon end, I am not finished with you yet.

"Now, you have been given the 'Keys to My Heart' and it is being unlocked. Once this is unlocked, mysteries will be revealed. At the same time, comfort will prevail, and even during the darkest of times, for those who will eat that which I give you, the seed of truth about the Kingdom of Heaven.

"Erin, you are spreading good seed and scattering good bread to those who are hungry. I am the Bread of Life and you are sharing the portion that I have given to you with all those who will partake in it. While soon, very soon, I will call you into even greater service, for now, continue to pray.

"Pray for those who do not know Me, for those who read My Words and yet still do not know Me and for those who search for who I am. Pray for them that they will find your writings from Me so that they will then learn more about My love for them.

"To each of those that do this, I will then give them a 'Key'. This Key will unlock the Words of the prophets, My disciples. I will then deepen their understanding with a supernatural increase in their knowledge."

Me: "Oh Lord, I believe that this is happening with some of us even now. Recently, I was reading from the Books of Luke and Matthew and You suddenly revealed things that I had never found there before. Thank You!"

Jesus: "Well, Erin, and as you now know, it takes the glory of God to conceal a matter and the honor of kings to search it out (Proverbs 25:2). I promise you that I will honor all those who truly search for Me. Their hearts are Mine and they will be found by Me.

"Now, My dove..." He smiled as He gently nudged me. "...My sparrow..." He laughed as His eyes 'twinkled'. "...are you ready to walk with Me in even deeper communion?"

Me: Crying. "Oh yes! Please, Lord, please, please! I want so much to walk with You in an even greater way. You have enriched my life. You have taken me up the mountain switchbacks. I long to do even more for those You love. Please strengthen Me, Father!"

He smiled at me as He helped bring me to my feet. He reached up and pulled down some fruit from the beautiful fruit tree that we were still under. He took a bite of a type of apple and then smiled as He handed it to me to eat. He repeated this until we had eaten a total of twelve different fruits.

By the time we finished, my current 'elderly' state had been transformed and I was youthful and strong again. I jumped up and down with glee and laughter. He was smiling and I could tell that I was amusing Him with my child-like wonder.

Jesus: "Well, Erin, you needed this strength for the journey. Now, come with Me."

He took my hand and walked me towards the circle of trees. As we came closer, the trees separated in obedience to create a path. While the path was a bit rough, it was clear of obstacles. While it was still dark in the forest all around us, the light of God illuminated our steps as we walked. I looked into the darkness and gripped His hand.

Me: "Oh Lord, this all looks so scary to me."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but do not worry as I have you. I am with you and will not let your feet slip. As we walk together, you will become more confident in your steps. As we walk together, you will be strengthened even further."

I suddenly felt any fear that I was carrying completely evaporate. All of it was now gone, along with my pain. I was walking freely and I carried no excess weight. There was nothing left to hinder me for my purposes for the Lord.

I suddenly felt confident that I would be able to do all that the Lord has planned for me to do, but now without any questioning at all. I no longer had these questions as I could now feel His answers in my heart.

As we continued to walk together, I became overwhelmed by my newly found freedom. Tears of joyful gratitude started to flow down my cheeks. I became incredibly excited!

Me: "Oh thank You, Lord! Thank You! Thank You!"

Jesus: "Erin, I had called you in the desert places and you answered. You now walk closely with Me. I will now instruct you in all that you do. Even though you will be hated more than ever because of Me, are you ready to go wherever I take you?" He looked over at me and smiled.

Me: "Oh yes, Lord! While I understand that I will be hated even more than I am already, I am so ready. Oh Father, all of us are so ready." I stopped and smiled at Him. "Well, in reality, we will not be truly ready until You have fully equipped us to be ready."

Jesus: He looked pleased with my answer. "Now, Erin, look ahead."

Just then, I saw a horrible vision of a world completely void of God. I saw people who had never paid attention to Him before crying out to Him. I saw people injured, bleeding and in such pain. I also saw many evil people and all of them were cursing God.

As I scanned this massive crowd of people, I could not believe all of the pain and suffering that I was seeing. It was hurting my heart. However, I then saw three different people suddenly illuminate. While their illumination drew my attention to them, only I was able to see this.

Me: "Lord, why are those three people now 'glowing' when everyone and everything else around us seems so void of You?"

Jesus: "When you see this, Erin, you are to go to them and comfort them. You will then testify to Who I am and to the Kingdom of Heaven. Do not worry, Erin, as I will instruct you every step of My Way."

Me: "Lord, will I actually be able to see You physically here with me?"

Jesus: Smiling. "No, Erin, but you will know that I am there with you. I have raised you to help those who need to hear the Good News even during all of this, understand? Do not worry, Erin, as you will not be the only one doing this for My purposes.

"Consider Me to be like a General and that all of you are like My soldiers. The General oversees, instructs and is always present in the battle. I have also called angels to assist you in all of this." He smiled at me. "Now, Erin, is this as you had expected?"

Me: "No...ah, yes...uh...oh Lord, I really do not know what I had expected. I was hoping to help children, the elderly and... Oh forgive me, Father, I am sorry. Of course I am delighted with anything that You have planned for us.”

Jesus: “Remember that I came for you even when you were at your worst. Remember that I saw something in you that you could not see. Remember that, despite all of the reasons you felt that you were not worthy to receive My grace, I still saved you from destruction. You too must then do as I command and love them in the way that you are loved by Me.” He smiled at me. “Do you now understand this, My little sparrow?”

I suddenly truly realized with all of my heart that I would do anything that the Lord called me to do. Not only that, but I truly wanted to do all of this for His glory, never mine.

Me: I smiled, but really wanted to jump up and down again. “Oh yes, Lord, I truly do!”

Jesus: “Then go, Erin! I am with you in all that you do. Heal, comfort and do all kinds of wonders in My Name. Testify to this and to My love. To those that I send you to, remember that they are Mine. Now come.”

We continued to walk through this ‘forest’ of people in despair. I could tell that so many terrible things had happened to so many of them. I moved closer to Jesus as I walked.

Me: “Oh my Lord, this time...” I pointed to all of the hurting people surrounding us. “...this time looks current, like the time we are in right now.”

Jesus: “Erin, do you trust Me? Beautiful are the feet which spread the Good News and your feet are beautiful. You will give them refreshing water. By your touch and in My power, you will heal and encourage them.

“You will go forth and display awesome deeds through Me. You will be with Me in the cause of truth. While your sword will be your heart, justice will come from My power. Do not worry, Erin, as no weapon formed against you will prosper, understand?”

Me: “Yes, Father, but I am but just one small woman. Lord, who are we that we could do such wondrous things while standing in the midst of such terrible things? While I truly believe that we will soon do all that You say, it is just so hard to fully understand.”

Jesus: He smiled at me and pointed up. “Erin, look to the hills!”

I looked at the hills in the horizon and I suddenly saw thousands, no...MILLIONS, of angels, too many to count. Each one of them looked like warriors. Each was strong and mighty. I just knew that they obeyed God in everything that they did. I just knew that God had sent these angels to protect us and that they would always obey Him.

Jesus: Laughing. “Well, Erin, as you can see, there are many more angels with you than there are enemies against you.”

He then looked into my eyes with such confidence. This is no surprise though as He truly has the confidence that only the King of kings and Lord of Lords could have.

Jesus: “Now, do not worry! Let Me lead you to where you will go and in all that you will do. Soon you will not stop to question any of this, even though ...” He smiled as He gently nudged me. “...you will have many thoughts in the beginning. I tell you again, Erin, do not worry! Now, are you ready?”

Me: “Yes, Lord! Let’s go!”

We walked together into the storm of battle.

Dream 256 – God and the Great American Eclipse

Received on Monday, August 21, 2017 (Eclipse later today)

Communion

Dear Father,

You are so awesome in power and strength. I love You, Father. You have blessed me and my family abundantly. Though we were treated severely for many years, You somehow, by Your grace and mercy, managed to keep us from great harm.

Looking back, I can hardly believe how many people have hated me and my children. I can only hope that You will soon make everything right. When looking around us, I now see very little 'good' in those people who claim to love You. However, I now see even more bizarre behavior in those people that are clearly removed from You.

While there are still some pockets of 'good people' where we live, I believe that many of them have simply just 'lost hope'. Father, there is great evil coming upon the land. It is already here and it is building. This evil is wearing us down, those of us who love and look up to You in everything and for everything. Please strengthen us soon!

Last night, I had to run to the grocery store for a missing ingredient. After placing my younger son's birthday cake in the oven for baking, I then drove the 45 minute round trip to the store alone as my husband was still busy putting up some curtains for me.

While driving, I started to pray and sing in my prayer language. After I picked up my item from the store, I saw the most disturbing sight just as I was leaving. I saw two young girls only about 13 years old holding hands, but not playfully. They were such beautiful girls and it just made me shake my head as to where this world has now gone.

Father, I cannot recall things like this happening out in the open just a decade or so ago. Now I even see boys wearing girl's clothing and lipstick. While this was once unacceptable at our schools, this is now required by law to be allowed AND accepted.

Oh Father, how we have fallen! The truly horrible thing is that so many young people, but really almost everyone, are so clueless about You. It is the acceleration into the age of rebellion. The world went from driving at about 30 miles per hour into evil to almost hyper speed today. The sad part is that this is speeding up even more each day.

The 'ride' this world is currently on is now truly out of control. When this all soon crashes, there will be very few survivors. Father, I pray for the lost and that they may soon be found by You. While You are so amazing and have given life itself to all of us, You have really given us in abundance much, much more!

While I am grateful to You every day, I am somehow even more so today. All that I have is truly Yours! There is now nothing that I do on my own that is not led by You. You even use my exposed mistakes to correct my path so that I then follow the correct steps. This was so painful for so many years, but now I see that this was all necessary.

You have never been far from me even when I have wandered in the dark off of Your chosen path. I truly now realize that I would rather be rebuked here by You 'today' than be before Your Throne in Court wearing chains 'tomorrow'.

I have had some odd dreams lately, but especially over the last few nights. One dream in particular that You gave to me just last night still sits heavy on my heart...

Dream 1 description begins...

I was shopping for a ring for my ring finger. I was in a financial position such that I would now be able to afford any ring that I wanted. However, one ring in particular really stood out to me for some reason. While it was pretty, I would actually classify this ring as 'quite forgettable' to anyone that would later see this ring on my finger.

I motioned to the salesclerk that I wanted to see a ring. When I pointed out the ring that I wanted to see, he did not look happy. Instead, the salesclerk seemed extremely disappointed that I had selected a ring with such a very small total carat weight.

Clerk: Hmm, you really need something much better than this ring. This ring is not even that special. You deserve something better."

Me: "Thank you, but this particular ring is already special to me. This ring is perfect for me as it will serve as a 'reminder' representing 'the Signature of a Promise'. This ring is perfect and I will take it."

The clerk suddenly looked very disappointed as he realized that he would not succeed in changing my opinion. He reluctantly succumbed and 'allowed' me to purchase the ring. Just as we were about to complete the transaction, a different ring three cases down suddenly stood out to me.

Me: "Excuse me, but can I look at this ring as well?"

As this was a much more expensive ring, he quickly became excited again. He seemed happy about the prospect of having an addition to the small sale that we were just about to complete.

Clerk: Smiling. "Oh yes, that is a beautiful ring! This is an extremely rare natural ruby that was cut by God Himself."

I resisted the urge to roll my eyes at his bold statement. He then pulled the ring out for me to look at. As I admired the beauty of this ring, I placed it on my right hand ring finger. Once the ring was completely on, the single ruby suddenly changed!

I looked in amazement as this beautiful ruby split into two. The ring now had a red ruby on the top and a beautiful clear diamond on the bottom that formed two mirrored halves of each other in different colors. There was also now a gold band that divided the transition of the diamond to ruby. The ring looked even more amazing than before.

Clerk: He was now in shock after witnessing the change. "What? What happened to the ring? How is this even possible?" He glared at me. "What did you do?"

Me: "Well, did you not just see what just happened with your very own eyes? I did nothing but put the ring on. Now, I will take this ring as well."

Clerk: "But...but...this ring is now clearly worth much more. I will now need to reappraise the value before selling it to you."

Me: "Fine. Adjust the price if you really feel you need to, but I will still pay it."

I proceeded to remove the ring. However, as soon as the ring left my finger, it instantly changed back to its original state. I could not help but smile at this unexpected turn in events. The clerk suddenly looked quite upset and was in complete shock again!

Clerk: "Okay, exactly who are you? How did you do that?"

Me: I could tell in my Spirit that I was not to react. "Hmm, I am not sure what you mean. Now, how much for these two rings?"

While the clerk now seemed visibly shaken to me, he still decided to mark up the price anyway. To my surprise, he then changed the price to be about three times more than the original price had shown. I was about to get upset at him, but I heard the audible Voice of God telling me to not show any emotion.

God: "Continue with your purchase, Erin. Pay the man what he is asking for, but no more and no less. Remember that all of this is Mine."

I opened my purse and paid the man the amount he was now asking. While my 'human side' was not happy about paying so much, I knew that God had a plan in all of this. To my surprise, the man still did not seem happy about me buying the rings. It soon became clear to me that the clerk no longer wanted to sell me any of these rings.

Clerk: "I charged you three times what the price was and you should have walked away. You should know that I can refuse your business if I want to! That ring has special powers and I now want it all to myself."

Me: "The ring is no longer yours, but God's. I have now even purchased it for three times your original asking price. Now, please hand it over and let me leave in peace."

In desperation, the clerk snatched the ruby ring from me and placed it on his little finger. He looked at it in the hope that it would again change into the much more expensive ring. Instead of changing, and even as he stared at it, the ring started burning his skin. Smoke was now coming from his finger. He frantically tried to remove it.

Clerk: "You b*! This is witchcraft! Get this ring off of my finger now!" He could tell that I was not going to help him until he stopped being rude to me. He quickly softened his approach. "Oh please, lady, please help me remove this ring."

I reached over and effortlessly slipped the ring off of his finger. To my surprise, the scorching hot ring remained cool to the touch for me. He was puzzled as, even with all of his strength, he was unable to remove the ring himself. I set the ring down on the counter next to the other ring and the stack of cash I already had there to pay for them.

Me: "Listen, I am willing to pay your asking price, so take the money. Take the money, hand over the rings and I will be on my way."

The man looked back and forth at the rings and the money for what seemed to be a couple of minutes. He said nothing at all during this time, so it felt quite awkward at this point. He finally took a deep breath and reluctantly handed me the two rings.

Clerk: "Here you go, but now I want you to please leave."

Me: "Oh, I will and I won't be back."

Clerk: "You are not allowed back, you freak! Now go! GO!!"

I said nothing in return as I took the rings and headed for the door. When I was about to leave, I looked back just as the clerk was putting cash into his pocket in the same amount as his mark up from the original price. The Lord then downloaded instructions as to what I was to do next. To the clerk's surprise, I then turned and walked back.

Me: "Oh yes, I need my receipt please."

The clerk began to scramble. He could not have looked any angrier at me as he wrote out a receipt for me reflecting the original price only.

Me: "Now hold on here. I just paid you three times more than what is on this receipt."

Clerk: "Well, lady, the difference in price is now my commission. You got your rings, now leave!"

Me: "Okay, but just remember...God sees all!"

Just then, smoke started pouring out of the pocket of his pants that he had just put the money in. Soon, flames started to shoot out of his pocket. The clerk threw the money to the floor and tried desperately to put out the fire.

As I walked out of the store, I looked back through the window. The money completely burned in just an instant and only some ashes remained. Not only that, but the fire had completely burned off an entire pant leg as well as a part of his shirt. He started to yell obscenities at me as he flashed the 'hand gesture involving one finger'.

Clerk: "F you and f your God as well!"

I shook my head as I started walking down the street. After walking just a few seconds, I suddenly heard a thunderous noise. When I turned back and looked at the store, I noticed that it had now completely collapsed onto the clerk.

Dream 1 description over...

Father, it seems to me that 'things' have recently changed even more. Though I do not know exactly what this change is, I can feel it in my heart and now even in my stomach. Whether You will do something supernaturally extraordinary today or not is still a mystery, but one thing remains certain to me – there are no accidents with this eclipse.

The eclipse that will happen later today is just too extraordinary to be 'a cosmic accident'. As an example, the number of times the number '33' comes up is simply amazing. Jesus was 33 years old when He was crucified.

The numbers '12' and '7' are also represented. '12' is the number of Jesus' disciples, but also the number of tribes of Israel. '7' often represents God's perfection.

- The eclipse will begin in Oregon today, the 33rd state of the union

- The eclipse will primarily go through a total of 12 states, but will also touch a couple of other states as well
- The eclipse goes through 7 different towns and cities named 'Salem'. Salem is an abbreviated version of Jeru-'Salem'
- The first major center that totality will come to is Salem, Oregon
- Totality in the USA will last for approximately one hour and 33 minutes and will span four separate time zones (Pacific, Mountain, Central and Eastern)
- The eclipse will end in South Carolina on the 33rd parallel
- It occurs exactly 33 days before 'The Great Sign' on September 23rd, 2017
- It has been 99 years (or 33 x 3) since the last coast-to-coast total solar eclipse
- The last coast-to-coast total solar eclipse where totality was reserved for only the USA was back in 1776. Most would agree that this is a rather significant year for the USA!

While there is even more to the eclipse than what I just listed, Father, Your stamp is clearly all over this and on display for all with eyes to see. It even seems to me that certain Scriptures from Matthew, Mark, Acts, Joel and many others have all been rolled up into this one spectacular and timely event.

Oh Father, events like this eclipse truly make us realize just how small we are. You are truly our Creator! Please reveal Yourself against these rebellious nations and show Your might to them. Please shut the mouths of those who curse You.

However, Father, please also heal the hearts of those who are grieving. Please show Your grace and mercy to those whom You call. Please let all of the people know just how wonderful You are. There is no one like You, Father! Not one is like You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately standing at the open door to God's Court. A clear stream of light shined through the door with a brightness that simply cannot be compared, not even to the light of the sun. I looked over and noticed that Uriel was already there to greet me.

Uriel: Smiling. "God requests your presence."

Me: "Uriel, today just feels so different to me! What is happening, Uriel?"

Uriel: "Rejoice, Erin, for the Kingdom of Heaven is coming. Now, come."

Uriel put salve in my eyes and ushered me into God's presence. The choir was singing and their song was incredibly beautiful. The choirs of angels overlapped and their voices and music went continuously upward in succession. It was so beautiful that tears started to stream down my cheeks as I tried to take it all in.

Choir of angels: "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God Almighty! The whole Earth is full of His Glory!"

My legs suddenly weakened and I quickly knelt on the beautiful 'Sea of Glass'. I put my face to the floor in order to better worship the Glory of God that filled the 'Temple Court'. The light from His Throne was somehow clean and crisp, yet warm with the many colors that radiated and reflected off of the 'Sea of Glass'. I started trembling as I prayed.

Me: "Oh Father, please forgive me for anything else that might still be in me. While I come before You in my imperfection, my heart is perfectly yielded to You and in love with You. I am both excited and terrified as I have no idea what today will bring.

"I now offer everything up to You. I pray that the gifts we recently gave in Your Name bless those that we had given to. Father, it really is Your money as all that we have is Yours. I pray that our offerings to You pleases You."

God: "Yes, Erin, I am pleased with you. Though you feel unworthy to be here, you are worthy to Me. I did not bring you in your perfection or you would never be able to come before Me. Though you seem unlikely as a 'worthy choice' to many, you are 'perfectly imperfect' to Me. I have done it this way so that you remain 'hidden in plain sight'.

"Erin, I have hidden you in My quiver knowing that, one day, I would bring you out for My purposes. Though your trials have been extremely difficult and your road 'the less travelled one', I have kept you safe in My arms.

"Your heart has never been far from Me and even from the time you were born. While I have brought you on an extremely long journey, you are now prepared and emptied for what I will soon fill your Spirit, your Vessel, with. Now, Erin, are you ready?"

Me: "Oh yes, Father! I have nothing more to complete 'on my own'. I have now finished all of the tasks that You called me to do."

God: "Understand the fullness of today. Understand the hour and even the minute. The land is rebellious. The land is now even worse than the land of Nineveh was. I have already explained to you that the land is now like this. They now sacrifice their children unto death and partake in rituals and worship to other gods.

"They will now know to be still. They will now know that I am God. You know that the time of the end draws near. You understand this, Erin, as it is now in the very heart of your being. However, you will not fear when you see these things come to pass as I am your refuge and strength. I am your help in trouble.

"Though I am about to shake the nations, you are not to worry. You are not to worry as I am in the midst of you. You shall not be moved or shaken. Erin, I will help you at 'the break of dawn'."

Me: Crying. "Oh Father, I am scared for the people. Please, Father, is there another way? Is there anything more that I can do for them?"

God: "Erin, you will continue to serve Me until I call you Home. While there is much to do and the harvest has ripened, the laborers are few. While you have thought that I would send others different than you, I now tell you the truth...

"I have chosen you, along with those that I have hidden, to come out and bear fruit for those who are hungry and provide water to those who are thirsty. I will then save those who turn from their wickedness in repentance, those who have been nourished by the ones that I have called.

"You are the Bride that will boast of her Groom. Many will come to the Wedding Feast because of your beautiful feet, feet that bring the Good News. You will give the gift of the heart of My Son to those who will accept this, understand?"

Me: "Yes, Father."

God: "Now, you are Mine. I have you, so do not worry. Today will mark both a great and terrible day, but in a way that you think not. To those with the gifts of knowledge and wisdom, they will still have none unless I grant them this.

"They of their 'own knowledge' cannot truly understand this as there is no explanation, remedy or cure for the army that is soon to come, an army of those that I have called and appointed. Now rejoice, Erin, rejoice, as I am God and there is no other above Me. You are loved, Erin."

I felt Uriel's hand on my shoulder. He helped bring me back to my feet.

Me: "I love You, Father. I love You with my whole heart. I always wanted to understand how I could love You with my whole heart and You have shown me. You have shown me Your love for me. I give my whole heart and even my life to You!"

God: "I love You, Erin, but there is no need to give Me your life 'in death'. Giving Me your life 'in death' is not what is planned for you, but rather in service that you will find such great joy in. Do not worry as I will be with you in all things. Angels have been sent to protect you, your family and those that I have called."

As Uriel took me to the door, I turned back and waved. Even though I could only 'see' the blinding light of His glory, I could somehow tell that an usual blaze of light flashing in front of me was actually Him waving back at me.

Uriel: "The Lord has told you of this time, Erin, and you have now seen the angels at attention. Now, are you ready?"

Me: "Yes, but I am not exactly sure for what."

Uriel: He smiled at me. "You will see very soon. Now, rejoice today, Erin, as Heaven is coming down!"

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for Your extravagant love and patience. I felt as if something has changed recently and that the atmosphere is different. For the last several mornings, starting with the morning of the Great American Eclipse, there has been an odd haze in the sky. It really seems to be more of a haze than overcast.

We are also experiencing a bit of a drought here. We have not even had to mow our lawn in over a month now and neither have any of our neighbors. This is definitely the driest summer I can recall since moving to the land of the trees.

We also had a frost warning issued over the last couple of days. While the afternoons are still warm here, there is now a real chill in the morning. What else is odd since the eclipse is that, during the day, I now hear crickets. I know the difference between locust and grasshopper sounds and these are 'night crickets' during the day. It seems so odd.

We recently had some tree and bush cutters working around our place sent by the power company for the region. They have since sheared off entire areas of beautiful trees and bushes all the way up our road that were under their powerlines. We were relatively unscathed though and it mostly affected our neighbors across the street.

The power company then put the 'carnage' through a powerful wood chipper. I must admit that I was a bit surprised that they would not have asked any of us if we wanted to use the fallen logs for firewood instead. Well, too late for that now!

When we later looked at their handiwork, you would think that an epic storm had just come in and leveled that particular area. Debris is everywhere and all of the little animals that we occasionally have disappeared, at least temporarily. I put some more seed and corn out for them just in case they return. I pray that they soon return.

My eldest son and I have been uncharacteristically sick lately. We have both been experiencing a combination of anxiousness and disturbed sleeps. While I don't have this, he has also had trouble keeping his food down. Despite this, his weight has not fluctuated that much and he seems to have no other symptoms.

As for me, I am feeling a sense of heaviness these days. It is not really like a depression, but rather like aches throughout my entire body that feel very much like growth pains. I still remember what growth pains felt like when I was a teenager and these feel quite similar.

While I continue to eat, I really have no interest in food right now, but really in anything that would normally interest me. It is not that I feel unsafe, but rather it feels like no other feeling I have ever experienced. I can't really describe it. It kind of feels like the anxiousness you get when you are on the verge of something huge.

There is really no other way to describe this. It is as if my physical body is now being prepared supernaturally for what is to soon come. While the physical part seems to be advancing in preparation, it is as if my mental capacities have not yet caught up.

It really does feel as if we are being prepared for something right now. However, what I should really say is that we are being prepared for something. While we now know this is happening as we can feel it, it is still as if our mental capacity just cannot understand what it all means. Really, how can anyone understand that which has no precedent?

The Lord recently brought my attention back to a dream I had a few days ago...

Dream 1 description begins...

I was walking alone on a path in the woods when I came across a tree branch lying on the ground. When I went to inspect the branch more closely, I saw that a butterfly was just starting to emerge from its cocoon. I was relieved to see that, even though the branch the cocoon had attached to had fallen, that the cocoon seemed to be intact.

As I continued to look in wonder at this amazing sight, the butterfly soon came out of its cocoon in record time. It was one of the most beautiful butterflies I had ever seen. The butterfly then suddenly fanned its wings out.

Once its wings spread out, I noticed that some sort of fiber optic light design had been weaved right into its wings. It was so incredibly beautiful. After a short time, the butterfly became so bright that it could have even been used as a 'light source'!

Dream 1 description over...

After writing this dream down, my oldest son came to sit and talk with me. He was still feeling ill and I tried to comfort him the best I could. I am still not that concerned though as he has not really lost any weight and still looks great.

I prayed about this after he left and I felt my Spirit tell me that this was the form of supernatural preparation being used for him. However, should his symptoms get worse or if he starts losing weight, I will bring him into the doctor's again. So far, we have been told that this is just a bug and that he would soon fight whatever it is off.

Father, I am not sure exactly what is happening right now, but I know that You are working in all of us. You are fully aware of everything and nothing ever surprises You. While the carnage and devastation in Texas is incredibly overwhelming, You are not up there throwing Your hands up and saying, 'Wow, I didn't see that coming!'...smiles.

What the people are going through in Texas is just so heartbreaking. All, whether rich or poor, young or old, are being greatly affected by this 'once in a thousand year' flood caused by Hurricane Harvey. This mighty storm covered so many living there, along with some of my friends that live there as well.

Oh Lord, I pray for my friends in the midst of these storms, along with their families and friends. Please protect them and keep them supernaturally safe from the rising waters. Protect their homes, their pets, their families and friends and restore their livelihood in record time. I ask this in Your Mighty Name, Jesus' Name, Amen.

As for those there that do not know You, I pray that this tragedy serves as a wakeup call that brings them Home to Your love. May You use this tragedy to help them find Jesus in the process. Lord, the entire universe is in Your hand...Heaven too! Nothing is too big for You and only You can somehow use even this situation for Your glory!

I had quite a dream last night...

Dream 2 description begins...

I was standing on a massive property that extended as far as my eyes could see. The property had a massive field containing an abundance of crops. There were several varieties of crops that formed a type of grid pattern with seven separate divisions...

- Corn
- Wheat
- Cotton
- Fruit trees
- Rice
- Sugarcane
- Vegetables of various varieties

The crops were abundant and ripe for the harvest. There were also young shoots growing amongst the ripe harvest of crops. Even though each grid had various stages of growth, all was still perfect. This field of crops was surrounded by hills in such a way that the crops seemed to form a type of pathway right down the center.

It was a beautiful day and the blue sky was dotted with some puffy white clouds. The temperature was around 75 degrees and was just perfect. As I scanned the horizon, I could not help but smile as I took in this great land of plenty.

As I continued to look around, I suddenly noticed storm clouds gathering right before my eyes. There were four storm clouds in all, one from each of the four corners of the land. Each of them were heading towards this land, one from the southeast, one from the southwest, one from the northeast and one from the northwest.

I then heard something similar to a horn, but, oddly enough, it also sounded a bit like a type of humming at the same time. Though I cannot fully describe the sound I heard in earthly terms, it seemed quite ominous to me.

As these four storm clouds came closer, I soon realized that they were not clouds at all, but rather a type of swarm. The 'storm' from the southwest came up to the crops first, but was quickly followed by the 'storm' from the southeast.

I soon heard the horrible sounds of the first 'storm' cutting down the crops. I then heard the second 'storm' eating the crops that the first 'storm' had just cut. I then saw the 'storm' from the northwest approaching in an odd up and down wave motion.

For a small frame of just a few minutes, the sky was still clear enough that I could see the remnants of stalks and small shoots in the light. I then watched as the land soon turned from a beautiful prosperous green to a desolate brown. As I looked around, I could see that only a small amount of green was now left.

I looked upon the land in complete horror. I could not believe how quickly this had just happened. I decided to move closer to get a better look. As soon as I stepped out with my right foot, I heard a rumbling sound. The ground started to shake and the hills to the west of the crops started to 'dissolve' (I really do not know how else to describe it).

After this, the land seemed to be resting. However, when I then stepped out with my left foot, a massive dark cloud started to quickly come over the hills to the east of the crops. I could suddenly hear an ominous screeching coming from this cloud as it fell upon the land. I quickly dropped to my knees in prayer.

Me: "Oh Father, when will this be?"

After kneeling there for just a few moments, I felt a hand on my shoulder. When I looked up, Uriel was standing there.

Uriel: "Erin, rise up! Wake up! Now, come with me."

As I looked back over the desolated, I started to weep.

Me: Crying. "Oh Uriel, I do not understand what I was just shown. Where have the four angels that hold back the winds from coming upon the Earth gone?"

Uriel: "Well, do you see any other angels here other than the one who is standing next to you? Now, come. I have something else to show you."

As we walked into the desolate land, I noticed that all of the crops that were so beautiful just a short time ago were no longer beautiful at all. As I looked closer at the ground, I saw some locusts. It suddenly hit me.

Me: "Oh my, were these storms actually clouds of locusts? When is this to be?"

Uriel: "This land was once dedicated to God and it was God's land. These swarms of locusts represent the corruption of evil now sweeping over the land. The yields of their crops had been based on the blessings that God had given to these people. While their swords had been turned into plowshares, they will soon turn back into swords.

"The people in this land have now been weighed in the Valley of Decision and God's judgment is coming. The swarms that you saw have no regard for the crops and they are coming to steal, kill and destroy this beautiful land.

"A curse was sent over the land when the words of the prophet Isaiah were spoken by the land's leader. These words came from the mouth of the destroyer of this land."

Me: "So, what is next, Uriel?"

Uriel: Reaching for my hand. "Come, Erin. Come with me."

We walked through the center of the field. Even though I was barefoot and the land was now brutalized, it did not hurt my feet. As we walked towards the northern part of the property, we soon came across two tree stumps.

The tree stump to my left was grey and ashen and there was no life to it. On top of the stump was a very ornate, extremely beautiful, jeweled golden goblet.

The tree stump to my right was still alive. Even though it had been cut down, new shoots were still emerging from it. On top of the stump was a clear glass of refreshing water.

Uriel: "Alright, Erin, now choose one."

I smiled at Uriel and looked at both the golden goblet and the clear glass of water. Since I was thirsty, I decided to walk towards the clear glass of water. Just as I was about to pick it up, I stopped to look back at Uriel. He was smiling at me.

Uriel: "Go ahead, Erin, drink. This is good water. However, before drinking, perhaps you want to see what is in the goblet."

I smiled at Uriel and walked over to the goblet. I peered into it.

Me: Laughing. "Uriel, there is nothing in this goblet. What does this mean?"

Uriel: "This is the cup that the world is now drinking from. There is nothing in it that satisfies and only the stump from the 'drought of death' supports it. As for the stump that supports the glass of water, even though it appears as if its branch has been cut down, it still flourishes.

"This stump buds and has fresh shoots as the roots are still deep, mature and healthy. In a similar way, and even though God's Army consists of those who have endured various locusts, storms and even droughts, they still drink from that which satisfies. The water that God provides to you refreshes you as it is from the River of Life.

"However, there are so many in the world right now that would rather drink from the empty goblet. They do so in the hopes that this empty goblet will still be able to save and refresh them. However, it is only God that saves and it is only His water that refreshes."

Me: "Uriel, may I ask you where the four angels that were holding back the winds have gone?"

Uriel: "They are off doing other things according to the Will of God. However, do not concern yourself with this. Now, Erin, look..."

Uriel pointed my attention back to the tree stump with the clear glass of water. As I stood looking at it, it started to grow supernaturally fast, yet the glass of water continued to stand upright and did not spill. The stump was transforming right in front of us into a mighty tree. I soon had to take a step back in order to take the whole tree in.

The stump was now a mighty tree with a thick trunk. From this trunk came 12 very strong branches. I then watched as 12 branches grew out from each of these 12 very strong branches.

There were now 144 branches in total. Each of these 144 branches then grew beautiful green leaves and a variety of fruit. The tree continued to grow and blossom until it was one of the most beautiful trees that I had ever seen! My jaw dropped in amazement.

Me: "Oh Uriel, what tree is this?"

When I turned back to Uriel to listen to his reply, he was gone. I looked around me, but all I could see were the now desolated crops in the Valley of Decision, the Valley of God's Judgment. This all felt so overwhelming to me. As I stood at the base of this beautiful tree, I dropped to my knees to pray to the Lord.

Dream 2 description over...

Father, I am unsettled in my Spirit as I just know that something is wrong. I do not know what to do. I have never had a time in my life like this where I have felt so utterly broken. I am in mourning for the loss of so many things. The way life used to be feels like it is now gone forever.

As I watched these locusts devour the crops, I could do nothing. In reality, I have felt like locust food myself my entire life. Just when one wave of locusts would finish sweeping over me, another wave of locusts would then seem to come right after.

Now what? Have I passed these tests and come through these trials only to now sit here whining and complaining? Am I even useful anymore? Lord, I feel in my heart that I will not be able to convince anyone to drink from Your cup unless I look like I am healthy. However, I really am not healthy anymore, so what can I do?

One of the thieves on the cross had eyes that saw and knew that You were Who You said You were. He somehow understood the signs. However, the other thief on the cross with the evil veiled heart either did not see the signs or he was so cold that he simply did not care to see them.

How can I do anything now unless You lead me? I cannot! I have never felt so empty, and yet I still somehow remain very excited at the same time. I am excited about what You are doing right now and are about to do.

Even though I do not know exactly what this will be, I do know that something is already happening right now. While You are working and moving things around right now, we just do not fully understand exactly what it is that You are doing yet. Oh Father, please grant us peace and strength before that 'Great and Terrible Day of the Lord' comes!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I felt a hand on my shoulder and it was Jesus. Even though He was fully illuminated with the sun behind Him and shining all around Him, I could still see His amazing smile! I jumped to my feet, ran into His arms and hugged Him. I was crying.

Jesus: "Erin, I am here and I am with you, so do not worry. Why are you so troubled?"

Me: "Lord, I am having trouble offering any real comfort to our children right now. All of them are now excited and waiting for Your promises along with my husband and me. They love You so much! Lord, how can I be of any worth too them in my current state?"

"I am also troubled by the coldness that is sweeping across the land. As You know, a terrible storm came in from the south and the land was flooded. I have seen this before and know that the thieves will now come in their many forms. It hurts to see this.

"Oh Father, so many still cry out to You. They claim to love You, but then quickly go back to boasting about their own merits and abilities. Lord, all

I know is that I no longer have any real abilities left and that which I still do have is that which You have given me.

"I can do nothing on my own as I truly know that I am nothing without You. If I were to die tomorrow, would I even leave much of a footprint, even for my children? Lord, please do not make our suffering account for nothing. Please do not allow us to lose hope. Please allow us to help You find the lost as they truly are lost and have no idea"

Jesus: "Calm down, Erin, calm down. I know your anxious thoughts and now those of your children. I am soon to strengthen all of you, so do not worry. Even though this tree behind you had been cut off from the world, look at what happened, and so quickly, to restore it. Now, do you remember when I cursed the fig tree?"

Me: "Yes. You shriveled it with just Your Words."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. Even though this tree took many years to grow, it shriveled all at once. Erin, all of you mean so much more to Me than any tree. I took you over each of your bridges and there were locusts there on each one. However, there were not just locusts there, but also thieves and evil. They were there to gnaw, strip, cut and destroy you. Now, do you remember what you were in search of during your times of difficulty?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. I was searching for You. I just knew that my troubles were too overwhelmingly tragic and without explanation to be anything but supernatural, so I searched for You to get some answers."

Jesus: "Yes. However, I had kept you apart and here with Me during all of this. I have kept you here until the time I will call you into greater service. Your plowshares are soon to be turned into swords, Erin, but a different kind of sword...My Sword...My Word. You are a part of this tree and your fruit is good.

"I have also shown you what I have prepared for you in Heaven. You now understand that there is nothing, not one thing, on Earth that compares to this. As a result, you have now set apart your prison clothes and you will eat at My table for the rest of your life, understand?"

"Even though you still sometimes wonder why I would call someone like you given where you came from, it is you that I have called. After calling you, this meant that you dined with Me at My table, but it also meant that you would drink from My cup of suffering. It is now time to rejoice though as this cup of suffering is now over for you.

"Now, why would a King release a prisoner and have them set aside their prison clothes if He was not going to then clothe them in new garments? Does the King not then serve them food fit for a King and only drinks that refreshes since He too is dining there? Erin, the time for this is here.

"Now, I am about to move you from the place that I have tucked you into a wide open space. People will be in amazement, but you will be unrecognizable. When I then allow those who are evil to recognize you, they will run to the hills in terror. When I allow those who are searching for Me to recognize you, you will bless them as I call you.

"You have asked Me why I tell you to find joy in the state that you are currently in. As hard as this is for you to believe, once you are healed and changed, you will even miss these days of rest. I love you, Erin, and I care about what you care about, but even more so than you do.

"Erin, I know that look of pain in your eyes as I know your thoughts behind that look. While you have never actually spoken this out loud to me, I know what your thoughts speak and that these thoughts reflect what your heart is feeling and even right now.

"Your thoughts say to Me, 'Oh Lord, if You truly love me as much as You say that You do, then why have You not healed me yet? You can do this for me in an instant, so why have You not done this? You know that I am in pain, so why have You not done this for me yet?'

"Erin, even though I could heal you in an instant, and even right now as we speak, just know that there are reasons that I have allowed this to continue. One reason for this continuing has been to test the hearts of those who judge you because of this 'delay', though this is not a delay at all.

"For those who have judged you harshly because of this, but especially for those that have spoken to others on this in 'secret', this has been noted in Heavenly Courts. Unless they repent of this and now, this will be weighed against them harshly.

"Erin, it is difficult for Me to see you continuing to suffer. However, when you are given strength and are healed, you will also be given the ability to supernaturally understand all of the reasons that I kept you as you are at the same time. Until then, you must trust Me fully. Just know that I have a plan for you and this plan is not to harm you.

"Just know that you have loved ones and friends that intercede for you and your family, both on Earth and in My Father's House, both day and night. While the enemy also comes against you here, just know that he has been unsuccessful in his charges, pleas and petitions." He stopped to smile at me.

"Oh yes...you should know that the enemy has now moved onto easier targets, so do not worry. Now, you are a Branch of My Branch and your Branch bears Good Fruit. Though you worry, do not, as I will not cut off a Branch which bears Good Fruit. I am in you and you are in Me and, apart from Me, you can do nothing.

"I have not forgotten you. You did not choose Me first, Erin, I first chose you. I have prepared your vessel and many will know about the Kingdom of Heaven through you." He smiled at me again. "Oh yes, you are now in the season of 'ice wine'."

Me: "Oh yes! This is my communion wine."

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh, so you are prepared then. Now, this is an extremely hardy fruit that produces sweet wine. Tell Me more about this wine."

I shook my head and smiled as I suddenly felt that I should look this up on Wikipedia.

Me: "Okay, let's see. Well, it is a type of dessert wine produced from grapes that have been frozen while still on the vine. Only healthy grapes can be used as they must be in good shape for when the opportunity arises for an ice wine harvest. In extreme cases, this can even occur at the start of the New Year.

"Ice wine production is quite risky as the grapes may rot before the frost comes. It is even possible that the frost may not come at all and the grapes will be lost. However, once the frost comes, it requires the availability of a large enough labor force to pick the entire crop within a few hours and at a moment's notice. This has to be done on the very first morning that it is cold enough."

Jesus: Smiling. "So, do you understand that this type of harvest is coming, one in which the laborers are few? This will not always be pleasant though as you will be as despised by some as you will be loved by others. As I have told you before, you are a Branch of My Branch and a part of My Vine.

"When I finally call you, this will all happen very quickly and you will then be strengthened. I will then provide for you and your family, as well as those that I will call. While My Father owns the Vineyards, I am the Vinedresser. This wine is on the 'Wedding Menu' and will be good and sweet to drink at My Banquet.

"Now, continue doing as you are and keep preparing your household. I am opening a door which no one can shut and I am shutting a door that no one can open. This is a new harvest time and the workers are few." He reached over and hugged me.

"Though you worry about your provisions and the futures of your family and friends, do not worry. You will dine at My table and will be given a regular allowance. You will receive this until I take you Home to be here with Me." He then smiled and gently nudged me. "Do not worry, Erin, as I am generous to My Bride."

Me: "Oh Lord, thank You! Thank You for everything!"

Jesus: Smiling. "You are welcome, Erin. Do not worry!"

Dream 258 – Jesus and an Urgent Warning!

Received on Wednesday, September 6, 2017

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that You have done and continue to do. I feel that You have given me an urgent desire to visit with You today. Lord, we are ready for whatever You have in store for us! We love You so much!

Praise God in the highest! I feel that this is an urgent warning to all of us! After you have done reading this, please study Isaiah 49 immediately!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I felt a hand on my shoulder and it was Jesus. He had a 'serious look' on His face today, but still so loving and gentle. I suddenly felt a bit nervous, if not even apprehensive, as He has only been 'like this' but a few times before.

Jesus: "The devil is working overtime from the pulpits to the pews. I look at the heart. Where two or more gather in My Name, there I am in the midst of them. For I will send you out as sheep amongst wolves and you will be as shrewd as serpents and as gentle as doves.

"As I am with you, your embattlements shall be of rubies and your ramparts over the siege walls of men's cold hearts will be like a consuming fire. As I will direct your path, you will tread upon serpents and scorpions and will not be harmed by them. Though you were once lost, despised and rejected, I call you Mine.

"You must understand what is now coming before you and that, when trouble seems near, I am even nearer. When the winds come and the Earth spins out of control, I am even closer still. When the mountains crumble and the water surges and rises, I am there in the midst of you.

"When the ground shakes, the waves pound, the wind does not hold back and when it seems there is no end, I am with you and I will carry you! I will not leave you!

"Now, is it possible for a mother to forget the child she birthed and nursed, even though, at times, she is disappointed or hurt? Could she feel nothing for this baby? Even if she could, I, God, will never forget you, understand? I am with her and she will not fall. I will help her at the break of day!"

Me: "Lord, please relent as the land is being battered and punished right now. Please have compassion."

Jesus: "Take joy, Erin. Take joy; for when you see all these things which have been foretold from the beginning, things proclaimed by My prophets and scribes, understand. Take note and understand. See, a door is opened before you and it is a door that no one can shut. Erin, it is time to step through this door that I have opened."

Me: "I am scared, Lord, as I do not see this door that You speak of."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as I am with you. I open doors that no man can shut and I shut doors that no man can open. My Word is a lamp that illuminates the path that I have set before you. My Words will now take on a new level of meaning. You will now see things with knowledge that you would have never thought possible.

"You will now know things that you were never taught in your 'institutions'. You will have the strength of many and you will even scale a wall. I will take you places with divine speed on the highways of angels. Your heart will show divine compassion for those you are called to heal, but you will prophecy judgment on the wicked.

"The wicked will be terrified at the sight of you and your accusers will be far from you. I will heal the broken and grieving throughout the lands. Though you will cause many to be jealous, many more will become zealous for more of the Kingdom of Heaven. My Army is being assembled."

Me: "Lord, I am no warrior! How can I do anything? Lord, please strengthen me. How will I endure what comes as my heart is grieving for the people of this land right now? Lord, even the beautiful gorge in the west is now on fire! The lands near my former home in northern Idaho are now ablaze! There is great destruction to the south! You have warned me that there is much more to come. You gave me a vivid dream...

Dream 1 description begins...

I saw a group of angels on a baseball field. They seemed to be 'practicing' just before the start of a 'big game'. I then saw a pitcher at the mound throwing pitches and each of his pitches came with more heat and speed than the last pitch. I then saw a ground ball to the shortstop quickly followed by a double play.

I later saw one of the angels hit a ball completely out of the park and this was still just the practice. The game had not even started yet. I just knew that the 'big game' to soon start was going to be an epic one!

Dream 1 description over...

Me: "While there is another epic storm about to hit, there are also two more following closely behind it. Who will be able to endure this? Lord, You then gave me another vivid dream...

Dream 2 description begins...

I saw 'the wicked angry man' shooting his rockets to hit the USA. I saw that the rockets were flying to the north and would be coming in from the north. While I thought they were heading towards the West Coast at first, I quickly realized that their trajectories were actually heading towards the East Coast. While they seemed to be heading towards either New York City or Boston, I was not entirely sure.

Dream 2 description over...

Me: "Oh Father, we are unprepared for a disaster! If the storms head up here, these areas will be forgotten and our services will be repaired last. We have no generator and no extra food storage. We will also be short of all of the other things that we will need as well. Oh Lord, please show us what to do! We are all dependent on Your provision! We will need Your divine protection when troubles come!"

Jesus: "Then be still, Erin, and know that I Am God. Though it seems as if your troubles are mounting, I will soon send blessings and provisions so that you will know that I am working. I have commanded angels concerning you to guard you in all of your ways. I will strengthen you and supernaturally provide for you.

"You are an arrow in My quiver and will be well-cared for. I will soon take you out to a wide open space. While you worry about many things, it is written that 'I, the Lord, will appear over them and My arrow will go forth like lightning; then I will blow the trumpet, and will march in the storm winds to the south' (Zechariah 9:14).

"You must understand that I am with you in all things. I am now preparing My field as My Father is no longer holding back the judgment of the land. As you have been told to prepare your field for harvest, I too am preparing My field for harvest.

"Now, the vision I gave to you of the baseball game has even more meaning than you realize. This is no game and there is no need for practice before the start. Even the names of these storms, the various 'itches', are no accident. The storms hit the islands first as it is written 'listen to Me, you islands' (Isaiah 49).

"Though these islands are named 'Virgins', there are now only a few who look to Me that are not adulterous. I come for My virgin Bride and I am jealous for Her. Therefore understand what is written and take note.

"Trouble comes upon the land because the land was given to My Father and the enemy was allowed to take it back. He has taken it back through deception, turning the land over to murderers, idolaters, the sexually immoral, fortune tellers, those who talk to the dead and those who idolize themselves by practicing 'self-grandiosity'.

"The time of the 'Ice Wine Harvest' has now come, Erin, but the laborers are few. While you did not know Me like you now know Me, I prepared you by calling you to Me. While you had asked to know Me, always remember that it was I who called you.

"The nations are now being prepared to receive Me just as your heart was battered, afflicted and prepared like a field to receive Me. Now, do you love Me, Erin?"

Me: I was crying and shaking. "I did not think that it would even be possible for me to love You like I do now. Oh Lord, I love You so much. You have done so much for me even though I was so far from You..."

- You replaced my cold callous heart.
- You softened me.
- You taught me to have compassion for the lost.
- You showed me wonders in Heaven and the thoughts of the wicked.
- You taught me not to judge without knowledge and to not declare a foolish thing.
- You taught me to pray and forgive the cruelty of others even when they did terrible things to me and said horrible things about me with no cause.
- You taught me to love the unlovable as You see them.
- You taught me to give generously to others even though we have very little.
- You taught me about the wicked and their storehouses of evil as they too have arrows and weapons formed against me.

"Despite all of my many shortcomings, You have never let me fall. You have never let the plans of the wicked prosper against me! You are my Rock, Lord, as You are the 'Solid Rock'. You are my Foundation and I know that You love me. You have accepted my flaws and have helped me to see myself through Your eyes.

"Oh, how I long for You, Lord! How I long to wear the wedding dress of white before You! I so want to be Your worthy Bride! There is nothing that I would trade in place of being in Heaven with You or being ever before Your Throne! I pray that I am found worthy, Father, and I would even be happy to just be a footstool in the House of God."

Jesus: "Your words are in line with your heart, Erin, and you are My servant and My Bride. While this is good, I can still hear worry in your voice."

Me: "Oh Father, what Bride that watches diligently for Her Groom would not be concerned that Her Groom might choose another. What Bride would not worry that He might delay or even find Her not pleasing or ready? How can I be anything other than a Bride that watches as she does not know when Her Groom comes? Oh Father, I believe with all of my heart that You soon will!"

Jesus: "Erin, I will dress you like My Bride. I will take your dry bones and bring them to life. I will attach tendons and flesh and cover this with skin. I will put breath into you and you will have new life. You are a new creation! I have put a new heart in you, a 'heart of gold'. I have adorned you in gold of Ophir and your gown is beautiful."

Me: Crying. "Lord, You are clearly giving me both Isaiah 49 and psalm 45 right now!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, who is speaking? Who Am I? There is more I speak than just these. Delight in Me, Erin, and I will give you the desires of your heart."

Me: "I will follow You everywhere, Lord. I love You. Please keep me as an arrow in Your quiver or as a Bride at Your feet. However, I will take whatever You choose for me and will be so happy."

Jesus: "Then it is done! Now, are you ready?"

Me: "Yes, Lord!"

Jesus: "Then come with Me!"

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for keeping us sustained. Where You have us now is really such a beautiful 'prison cell' and the surrounding area is an amazing 'prison compound'. Thank You for all that You have done for us.

Father, I am sad, scared and discouraged today. I am not at peace. You require all of me when I come to You, so I am worried about coming to You right now as my thoughts are so anxious! There, I said it...yes, even though You already knew this. I have never really chewed my nails before, not like this, but I am now. Yuck!

Even my dreams are so very complex right now, almost like epic movies. Where do I even begin? What do I do? Father, who am I, but, really, who are any of us, that we should receive anything from You? However, what I do know is that You somehow still love us and I am so thankful for that.

I watched the news on the 'cursed land' recently. So many areas are being completely obliterated. Some are even being wiped off of the map. Lord, all of this is making me so sad. I am sad for my friends and family that reside in these areas. I am sad for my friends and family that have homes and farms threatened by the flooding and fires.

Trouble can come so quickly. Calamities can ensue in a blink of an eye. Where can a person even go when they are given such little warning? Where is their safety? Often trouble can descend on a certain area equally, yet some homes are removed and some homes are left unscathed. For even those 'unscathed', then what are they to do?

When someone is stuck in record heat and sweltering conditions and the power is out, where will the cool relief or the refreshing springs come from? For that which still remains that the storm did not ravage or the fire did not consume, the thieves then come to pillage. Those who promise to help then often bring very little. It is so crooked.

Father, You are everywhere and see it all. You have told me that this is Your last 'few calls' to a sleeping world. You are now saying to those who know little, 'Stop what you are doing and look to Me. I created you. You are nothing without Me. I am here. Turn to Me and I will carry you. I am with you. I love you. Turn to Me now and be saved.'

Father, based on my recent dreams, it is obvious that You are not finished with bringing judgment upon the nations. From experience, I know that this devastation will then be followed by illness, economic stress and corruption. So many lands are divided now, but especially the 'cursed land'. People are being so unreasonable with each other.

The things that our children are being taught at school right now are becoming more and more disturbing. For the very first time, I am even seriously considering homeschooling. I just received a student questionnaire that allows someone to identify themselves as either male, female or 'other (please explain)'

Father, what exactly is meant by 'other'? The time we are in now just has to be worse than even in Noah's day! To make matters worse, even the price of food is become unbearable. Things are so expensive right now that I have recently declared that this week will be 'French toast and pancake week'.

Even though I know that I am 'complaining' right now, I also know that we have it relatively good compared to so many others, especially down south. Father, we are so grateful to You. I have tried to contact some of my friends that live down there and I do not believe that they can even respond. I pray that all is well.

I am also worried about a family in the Dominican Republic that we sponsor. We have now sponsored this family for over fourteen years now and I am worried for them. Their area was hit very hard by the hurricanes and there is still virtually no relief at all arriving there. Oh Lord, please protect them, along with all of our friends in other areas.

When I watch the news right now, I am in shock at how apocalyptic everything looks. The photographs of all of the devastation are breathtaking and mind-numbing. It seems like they were even taken from an epic disaster movie, but, no, this is our reality now. It is only going to get worse! Oh Father, please save us soon!

I suddenly remembered something that had recently occurred to me on Monday, just a couple of days ago. My eldest son and I had just driven into town and had picked up my youngest daughter from her school.

We then drove to pick up our two middle kids from the high school. While the skies were hazy, you could still see that they were a beautiful blue. It was quite warm out. I then noticed that the leaves were now rapidly changing.

As I was driving, yet only for a split second, the scenery around me somehow changed to something I had seen when I lived 3000 miles away.

While the road was identical, the scenery was somehow now changed. Just as fast, the scenery turned back.

I somehow knew that this was not Deja Vu. Lord, why did You allow this? You gave me a rather odd dream that reminded me of one that Joseph had, yet different...

Dream 1 description begins...

I was standing in a massive wheat field. Directly in front of me were twelve bundles of wheat. I smiled when I suddenly recalled the eleven bundles of wheat that Joseph had dreamt about (Genesis 37).

As I inspected each of the twelve sheaves of wheat, I noticed that they each had slightly different characteristics. However, I also somehow knew that each of these sheaves had all been taken from the very same field.

As I walked through this massive wheat field, the weather seemed to feel quite similar to a nice fall day in the middle of September. As I looked around, I saw that the harvesters were very active.

I had now walked past eleven of the twelve sheaves of wheat when I decided to sit down at the base of the twelfth sheaf. I smelled wood smoke in the air and it was delightfully fragrant. As I sat there, my tears unexpectedly started to flow down my cheeks. I started to pray with all of my heart as I continued crying.

Me: "Oh Lord, please help us. We need help! So many people are in trouble right now. Our household is under attack right now. Even our pet dogs, but, really, all of the animals around us, are acting strange. Father, what is happening?"

Several horrible things happened a couple of nights ago and all of them were meant to strip me of all hope. Well, it worked, at least temporarily, and my hope and joy were gone. I was now in great despair. I mostly felt the same yesterday as well as I simply just could not wrap myself around the pain I was feeling from this turn in events.

Just before going to bed, I suddenly felt God lead me to read a particular journal that I had written in. This journal was from exact time frame we are in right now, but back in 2011. I spent even more time in this journal this morning as well.

I mourned as I read this journal as it was just before a trial date scheduled for October 2011. I was in a huge fight to keep my children. I had been completely deserted and had very few options...well, I really had no options at all at this point.

All of the hope I had left was in God. I had already done everything I knew I could do on my own strength. Even though my 'Little Red Journal' was incredibly hard for me to read again, this journal was even harder to read. Wow!

This journal was filled with lamentations. While I would first record facts and events, it was then quickly followed by the wailings of my broken heart. I had been deserted by family and friends, people who said that they would never leave or betray me. Well...

Despite my enemies continued course against me, I still prayed for them. Their attacks continued and went on and on. After I prayed with all that I had, I finally figured out that, if God was truly with me, He would take care of things. On the other hand, if He wasn't with me, then I was about to lose the only thing that mattered most to me...my children.

When I look back now, I feel that my 'major crime' at the time had simply been for me to be so blind as to have trusted a man that ultimately had only one goal in mind – to destroy me completely. I had no means to fight and my bank account was now empty. To make matters worse, I was given an ultimatum by my lawyer.

By the end of a particular day in mid-September 2011, I now had until the end of the day to come up with $3,800 or my lawyer would withdraw from counsel. This was now less than a month before trial and I was horrified.

I went into panic mode and started to vomit. I had no real options and nothing left to sell. I had already sold all of my jewelry and valuables for this ongoing court battle. I had some other items that I sold, but this amounted to hundreds, not thousands.

If the money was not to be granted at this time, I prayed that the Lord would at least grant me more time. After praying with all of my heart, my phone soon rang. It was my lawyer. He told me that he was going to give me until the end of September to come up with the $3,800 PLUS even more to pay for the upcoming trial in advance.

To my horror, the people around me, family, friends and even those I barely knew, started telling me to drop the fight and simply walk away. I became quite angry when someone then told me that this was a sign from God to walk away. I asked them 'Why would God want these children to grow up without a mother that loves them?'

They had no response. As I continued to read this journal, my heart started to pound harder. While the grief from this time period was now years ago, reading this made my wounds still feel raw and fresh. It hurt to see all that had been allowed to happen to me.

I read that I then went on my knees to declare so many of the promises that He has given to us in Scripture. Even though I felt that all hope was now lost, I declared it to Him as loud as I could. I shouted to Him in desperation and inserted my name as I wrote these out. I wrote the following as I waited for His miracles:

- Psalm 46: "As God is within you, you will not fall. God will help you by the break of day."
- Isaiah 62:11-12: "The Lord has made a proclamation to the ends of the Earth. Say to Erin, 'See, your Savior comes. See, His reward is with Him and His recompense accompanies Him.'"
- Esther 8:8; Haggai 2:18,23: "From this day, I will bless you. I will make you like a signet ring for I have chosen you, Erin! Nothing sealed with the King's signet ring can be broken!"

Received on Sunday, September 17, 2017

- Haggai 2:5: "For I am with you, Erin!"
- Isaiah 30:18: "The Lord is the God of Justice and blessed are those who wait for Him."
- Jeremiah 42:11: "For I am grieved over the disaster I have inflicted on you. Do not be afraid of the King of Babylon whom you now fear. Don't be afraid of him, declares the Lord, for I am with you and will save you and deliver you from his hands."
- Isaiah 49:17: "Your sons hasten back and those who laid you waste depart from you. Lift your eyes and look around. All your sons gather and come to you. As surely as I live, says the Lord, you will know I am the Lord. Those who hope in Me will not be disappointed!"
- Romans 3:4: "You will be proved right by what you say and will win your case in court."
- Psalm 121: "The Lord watches over me, both now and forever more."
- Nahum 1:7: "The Lord is good, a refuge in times of trouble. He cares for those who trust in Him. Whatever they (the enemy) plot against the Lord, He will bring to an end and trouble will not come a second time."
- Zephaniah 3:14-20: "Be glad and rejoice, Erin! The Lord has taken away your punishment. He has turned back your enemy. The Lord, the King of Israel, is with you. Never again will you fear any harm (or be far from Him). The Lord, your God, is with you. He is mighty to save. He will take great delight in you. He will quiet you with His love. He will rejoice over you with singing. I will remove from you the sorrows for the appointed feast as they are a burden and a reproach to you. I will restore you!"
- Psalm 75:7: "It is God Who judges!"
- Psalm 77:14: "You are a God Who performs miracles!"

- Psalm 72: "He will judge your people in righteousness, your afflicted ones with justice. He will deliver those who cry out, the afflicted who have no help."
- Psalm 17:8: "Keep me as the apple of Your eye. Hide me in the shadow of Your wings!"
- 2 Chronicles 20:15: "This is what the Lord says: Do not be afraid or discouraged for the battle is God's. You will not have to fight this battle. Take up your position and stand firm and see the deliverance the Lord will give you. Do not be afraid. Do not be discouraged. Have faith in the Lord and you will be successful. Give thanks!"
- John 17: "I call on Jesus and He says: Protect them from the evil one. Sanctify them by truth."
- John 16:23: "I tell you the truth, Erin: My Father will give you whatever you ask for in My Name. Ask and you will receive and your joy will be complete."

I then wrote the following prayer in my 2011 journal right after I wrote this...

- Prayer: "Lord, God, I ask now in Jesus' Name, (1) To grant me the money to fight; (2) To grant me victory and return my sons to me; (3) To return us to our land and provide us with a home and money to give and to live; and (4) To bless those who have hurt us. I ask for this in Jesus' Name, Amen!"

I then wrote more Scriptures out, but again personalized...

- Zechariah 2:7: "This is what the Lord says: After I have sent you against your enemies, whoever touches you touches the apple of My eye. I will surely raise your hand against them. They will then know that I have sent you. Be still before the Lord! Then you will govern My House and have charge over My Courts. I will give you a place amongst those standing here (against you)."
- Joshua 1:5: "No one will be able to stand against you all of the days of your life. As I was with Moses, so I will be with you. I will never leave or forsake you. Be strong and courageous. Be strong and very courageous. Obey My commands. Then you will be successful. Be strong and courageous. Do not be terrified. Do not be discouraged for the Lord, your God, is with you wherever you go!"

After I declared these promises to 'remind God' of them (smiles!), it became even worse for me for the next two days. It soon became so bad that I then asked for God to 'wipe me off of the face of the Earth.'

I then thought of my children and asked for Him to remove this last request. However, I was still crushed and broken with all of my hope gone. I then said to God, 'I love You, but it seems as if You have now left me. It even looks as if Jesus has now left me too!'

I then had this dream on September 19th, 2011...

Dream 2 description begins...

I was reading a Bible when it suddenly turned to Isaiah 33. As I looked at the page, one of the verses was highlighted...

Isaiah 33:22: "For the Lord is our Judge, our Lawgiver and our King. He will care for us and save us."

As soon as I finished reading this highlighted verse, the Bible then suddenly turned to the Psalms. The entire Psalm 40 was highlighted. In this dream, I then summarized it in my own words as a 'personal summary'...

Psalm 40 (my personal summary): "I waited patiently for the Lord to help me and He turned and heard my cries. Many will now see what He has done for me and be amazed. They will then put their trust in the Lord as well. I will take joy in doing Your Will, my God, for Your instructions are written on my heart. I will tell all of the people about Your justice. I will not be afraid to speak out for You, oh Lord, and I will not keep the Good News of Your Justice hidden in my heart. I will talk about Your faithfulness and saving power. I will tell every one of Your unfailing love and faithfulness."

Dream 2 description over...

Even though I was then hammered even more for four more days after this, I stood my ground. Then, and by a miracle, a letter arrived. The check enclosed within had been owed to me from several years ago, but I had no idea this 'debt to me' even existed. I was shocked as it was three times more than what my lawyer had even been asking for!

I had absolutely no idea that this check had been issued or that I was even owed this money. This is still one of my greatest miracles to date. It had been written out and sent in early-September 2011 and I deposited it on Saturday, September 24th, 2011. The funds were then fully available to me on Monday, September 26th, 2011.

Thanks to this 'miracle money', I was finally able to fully continue my fight for the custody of my children without limitations. This miracle money gave me so much confidence that it even scared my enemy.

Now fearing a long and expensive court battle himself, a settlement was soon reached. Finally, and on the Yom Kippur in October of 2011, custody of my children was granted back to me. However, my eldest son decided that he wanted to stay with his father based on the promise from his father of putting him into private school.

Sadly, this was yet another one of his dad's broken promises. After years of asking his father when he would follow up with his promise to put him into private school, it never happened. It was yet another trick by the enemy to rob all of us by using this 'man'.

Anyway, with the money I 'saved' by not going to court, I decided to celebrate and took all three kids on a trip 'home' to Oregon. As I still wanted to be careful with my money 'just in case', I decided we would only go away for three days. It is still a vacation that all of us remember to this day.

We stayed in a 'fancy hotel' (for us) and 'even had a pool'! We went to the museum, the movies, got ice cream and ate pizza. We praised God for everything as we knew this was from Him. It was truly a trip none of us would ever forget and we still haven't.

We were all happy that we were able to once again visit the places that we loved to visit when we had our home in Oregon. This was the place that we were all so happy (if it were not for 'him'). We then asked God, if it be in His Will, to one day have Him return us to our home here.

Well, Father, my children are older now and I am older still...smiles. While my mom has since passed away, at least this was after we had already reconciled. You have cared for us day-by-day and have instructed us. You have kept us safe in Your quiver.

I recently had an odd dream about a Broom Tree that seemed to somehow relate to all of this...

Dream 3 description begins...

I was walking through various rows of trees for sale at a local garden nursery that a friend of mine owned. As I walked around the side of a greenhouse, I noticed a 16' tall tree in an extremely large pot. I looked for my friend and asked her about this tree.

Me: "What is the story on that tall tree next to the greenhouse?"

Friend: "No one wants it as it won't grow here. Also, the height is too tall at 16'. It would also need to be indoors at this time of year as it is now past the time that it can be planted outside. Oh yes...it is also now too big for me to move. For all these reasons, I am just going to leave it where it is and let it die."

Me: "What? Wait! I'll buy it from you instead."

Friend: "Erin, you really don't need any more stress. If I were you, I would not take on the care of this tree."

Me: "While I thank you for your concern for me, I still want to purchase it!"

Friend: "Well, okay. However, I will just give this tree to you as I was still going to have to pay for it to be removed once it died."

Me: "Oh, thank you so much. By the way, what kind of tree is it?"

Friend: "Oh, it is a Broom Tree. Now, are you sure you are up for this?"

Me: "Oh yes! Where I am going, God will strengthen me and keep the tree healthy. As I will now plant it in the land where it belongs, it will thrive."

Friend: Smiling. "Well then, you should then also know that the meaning of the Broom Tree is 'renewal'!"

Dream 3 description over...

Father, You are now preparing us to once again return to the land we loved so much, but for a different purpose. You are taking us back to stand before those who had said such horrible and false things about us. We went through so many storms together there that I even tried to capture what we were going through in a pastel painting...

While this particular door may even be open already, we will continue to stay where we are until You strengthen us and grant us the ability to walk through this door. While we will do our best to remain satisfied here, I must admit that we are already restless and anxious from the excitement of the prospect of returning to this beautiful land.

Though it is hard to wait for You at times, I also now know that Your timing is always perfect! We love You and I thank You for all that You have done for us. This is all such a true miracle. Even so, we now ask that You soon do all that You have promised us. Father, I pray that You will do this for us all 'soon, very soon', in Jesus' Name, Amen!

I then started to go back to my journal to reflect on some of the Bible verses I had just written out for this dream. I soon came to the part in Isaiah 30:18 again that talked about 'waiting for God'. I started thinking about how hard it is to wait, especially during times of uncertainty, but also how poorly things usually go when we don't wait...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I immediately found myself already on my knees on the floor of God's Heavenly Court.

God: "I am with you, Erin. Now, will you continue to wait for Me?"

Me: "Yes, Father. However, this is already so painful and it is even getting worse."

God: "Do not worry, Erin, as My strength is made perfect in your trials. I am the God of Justice and, your children, I have saved. I will not let anything come against you. Even if I did allow something to come against you, I would not let any harm come to you.

"I told you that I would one day completely deliver you from your enemies. I will soon do this for you and you will be on Earth to see it. All of your enemies will confess and I will make right all that which has been done to you. Do not worry as I will do all that I have promised. My recompense is with Me and I am here. I love you, Erin.

"Even though you have paid a great price, I will now give you back all that had been stolen from you. Yes, I will even give you back all of the years that had been stolen. I will speak tenderly to you and will grant you 1,000 fold more than what you have lost.

"I have seen the evil done to you in secret. While I know that it sometimes seems as if I do not hear your pleas, I hear every one of them. I have heard your prayers for those who have harmed you and for those who continue to try to harm you. I have heard you plead for mercy for those whom do not have understanding.

"While I am the God of Mercy, Erin, remember that I am also the God of Justice. As such, I will now use My scales to measure the weights of the evil against the weights of your good. Some now even accuse the dead and desecrate the reputations of those who call out from their graves.

"Even though you still pray for the wicked, I will no longer have mercy on those who have repaid your goodness towards them with evil. While I will do this for you, I will also do this for all of those whom I have called. I have heard the cries of the oppressed, but now their oppressors will be made to cry. They will cry, but I will not listen.

"Erin, I heard your cries and have now kept you away from your enemies for 'a time and times'. However, I will now heal you, strengthen you and bring you back to the place that I had allowed your shame, the homeland that you once loved so much and still do.

"When I bring you there, the people you knew there, but especially your enemies, will not recognize you at first. In many ways, your return to this land will be similar to Joseph's after those closest to him had left him for dead.

"Erin, all of this is already lined up for those who were wicked to you there during this particular stage of your life. I have done all of this for you so that you will be able to see them fall to their knees in horror at the mere sight of you."

Me: "Oh Father, thank You for this, but I am certainly no Joseph. While Joseph had not done anything wrong, I have done so many things wrong!"

God: "Erin, have you not longed for your enemies to truly see you as I see you?"

Me: "Yes, Father."

God: "Well, Erin, because your heart is good, you will soon be proved right by your actions. While you will continue to bless those who bless you, those who wanted and still want your death will be put to shame. I know the things hidden in the hearts of men.

"I know that which has been thought of you. I know that which has been done to you. I know that which has been said of you. I know as I have used you as a measure. Yes, Erin, you have been a measure. I have used you as a vessel for measurement and, even though I have filled you with good, you have still been hated beyond measure as a result of My use of you.

"However, all of this is not a surprise to Me, Erin, as it is written that, in the last days, men will be lovers of self, lovers of money, boastful, arrogant, revelers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, unholy, unloving, irreconcilable, malicious gossips without self-control, brutal, haters of all good, treacherous, reckless, conceited and lovers of pleasure rather than of Me (2 Timothy 3:2-4).

"These are all of the manners of the opposite of the good fruits. However, for those who are thirsty for Me, you will represent truth. Your words will then be like refreshing springs to them. You will be a 'cup offered to them' and I will have My Spirit in you.

"As for those who oppose you and refuse what you will offer them, these men of depraved minds, these men who oppose truth, will instead enjoy that which the ruler of the wicked offer. They will then soon find out that what the ruler of wicked offers them does not satisfy and leads to death.

"Remember that the arrogant will also continue to justify their sinful deeds using My Name. In their hearts, they believe that they are hidden from My sight as if I was a steed with blinders on. Well, Erin, I am not a steed and I do not have blinders on.

"As I search into the heart of a good man in order to call him Mine, I also search the heart of a wicked man to see if there is any remnant of good left in him. If I then find that there is none, I then use 'a good man' to measure their deeds against. I then use this to impose justice on the wicked in My Courts.

"You, your husband and your children, but also the others that I have chosen, are a measure for the wicked. Would it not make sense that all of you would then experience the hot pursuit of the wicked as a result? While you have, Erin, all of those I have chosen also have. The wicked constantly pursue the afflicted and plot against the good.

"After doing this, these wicked men then boast of their evil as if I do not even exist. They believe that they are free to continue (Psalm 10:2-4). However, Erin, their roof is of glass and their bones are rotting inside their bodies as they themselves are dead.

"I will now show the wicked that I see them and all that they do. I will not even allow them to have a lawyer to plead their case. The only advocate they will have is the evil from their course and the lies from their path. I see all, I measure all and I know all.

"While this life has been hard on you, I have used 'the furnace of affliction' to refine you and fashion your 'heart of gold' for My purposes. Rejoice, Erin, as your mourning will soon turn to dancing. Now, Erin, do you remember the two Words that I had given to you that contained so many of your promises?"

Me: "Yes, Father! These were in the journal that You recently led me to. It seemed impossible at the time for these to ever come true. However, these two Words stood out to me. I still remember both of them clearly.

"You told me to put my name in Isaiah 61 and 62. You then told me that You would do all that was written in there as all prophecies written in Your Word always come to pass. Lord, I know so very little about my origins. Very little records have been kept."

God: "I know, Erin, as this too is by My design. You must forget your father's house for now I, your King, am enthralled by your beauty. You are Mine, Erin. I have summoned you by name and it is I Who has redeemed you.

"Now, pay close attention. When you pass through the waters, they will not cover you. When you walk through the fire, you will not be burned. The flames will not hurt you. I am God and you are precious to Me. Erin, I love you."

Me: Crying. "I love You too, Father, so much. I had once thought it impossible to even know you at all. Instead, I now love You with all of my heart. You are so good and incredibly...well...incredible! Thank You, Father...oh, thank You so much!

"While I have not enjoyed most of my life here that much, I would not trade these troubles for an easier life if it then meant not knowing You like I do now. Oh Father, I am so sorry that I often 'whine' to You when I am distressed. While You are my Father, you are also the only father that I have ever known."

God: "Do not fear, Erin, as I am always with you. I have not forgotten you. I promise that you will soon reap all the good that you have sewn. You will reap this not just in Heaven, but also on Earth as it is in Heaven. You will drink the sweet wine from your very own vineyards.

"Even though you once lived in a desert wasteland that no one would want to walk through, I have changed this and will change this again. I have purchased the land that you are on as it is Mine to give to you. There, you will soon plant vines. Your fruit will then be free from anything that would come against it.

"You will see this here, Erin, and not from the grave. Though you just said in your heart, 'But, Father, I am old, my bones are dried up and my hope is gone', I say, 'Pay close attention for I am now going to open My people's graves and bring them back to life. I am now going to bring all those that I have chosen back to life', understand?"

Me: "I believe so, Father. I am hopeful."

God: "Though you just said in your heart, 'When, Lord? When will this be? My hope is gone and my money is spent. Who will intervene for our family?', I say, 'At the break of dawn!'"

Me: "Thank You, Father, but which day? Which dawn?"

God: He laughed and I smiled. "The 'perfect day' and the 'perfect dawn'! I love you. Do not be afraid. I have heard your cries. I have measured the wicked. I am now about to do something in your days that you would not believe even if it were told to you, understand?"

Me: "Yes, Father! Please vindicate my life. Please vindicate me and my children. Father, please save us! We love You, Father, but please, please do not delay!"

God: "I promise you, Erin, I will not delay!"

Dream 260 – Mourning for Our Once Great Nation

Finished on Monday, October 2, 2017

Received on Wednesday, September 27, 2017 (heat wave – 90s)

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for Your provisions. Father, I have been in more pain these last couple of weeks than I have ever been. I have cried so much this week and I now feel so broken and discouraged. I have even been crying while I pray in my prayer language.

Father, I feel that something has now changed in the atmosphere and it feels epic. People's hearts have now turned away from You in 'mass exodus proportions'. The spirit of rebellion is on the nations and the father of lies is spreading his false words. The nations are splitting apart and also the hearts of men.

So, what happens next, Father? There is so much noise and clamor, but so very little truth. My husband and I recently went to a 'tent healing' in the hope of witnessing some miracles, but instead found that it was just some more false doctrine being taught.

The 'ministers' there then even put all of the responsibility for someone getting healed, or not, solely on the person, removing God completely. Well, to make a long story short, there was absolutely no healing there. They advertised that those who were sick should come, and come they did, but only to hear a watered down message.

Really, the message was that we all lacked faith in God for our healing and that is the only reason why a person remains sick. What really disturbed me was there was not one single prayer for healing or for the sick. There was not one person there to pray with someone there that was sick. No one at all!

Father, if I had gone there while on 'the fence' in my walk and/or had taken a sick family member there expecting to receive a miracle, I would have later left there with absolutely no hope in You. I would have also felt guilty as they would have made me feel personally responsible for my continued disability.

I was in complete shock at what I heard being preached there. While both my husband and I had wanted to speak out, You told us to remain silent and that we were only sent there to observe. During a break, we felt it was time to leave and we did. We left upset and sad for all the people that continued to sit there in their guilt and disappointment.

While I did not feel You were at work there, I felt that the enemy certainly was. This was no 'healing tent' revival at all, but simply a hoax to take money from unsuspecting victims. I would have been at least a bit impressed if they had even tried for a miracle healing, but nothing happened and nothing was attempted.

Oh Father, the times have surely changed and we are now in a land with no hope in You. I want so much to be strengthened and heal others. I want to shout to the hills and across the land about Your goodness and Your glory.

However, I know that I am to remain quiet for right now as You have not yet pulled me out of Your quiver. While my heart feels ready, I also know that I can do nothing physically in the way that I am right now. Right now, all I can do is write about Your love, Your promises and our hope in You.

I feel as strong as ever that 'our time' is almost here. I even heard You say twice in the last four days, 'Erin, the Fall has come...it is here!' As You never waste Your Words, I feel in my heart that these Words were not just about the change in season. With the leaves changing color, even I can figure this one out...smiles.

Yes, the change in season is here and I just know that it will be a very cold and difficult winter across our region. I can feel it. I just know that something is different and that this year will be especially brutal. Even though it is really hot today, I have an odd chill in my bones that has combined with my continued severe pain.

My heart has also been grieving over so many different things recently. As I drive around our area and go from place to place, I find that most of the people I deal with now are so 'difficult'. It is hard to see how the world is becoming, but, really, has already become.

I simply cannot believe the coldness all around us and not just the change in weather. My heart seems to be separating now from the things I used to love. I now only feel close to those that I love, my family and pets, my friends and, yes, even the animals that roam our property.

This has all happened so quickly. It is truly like my heart no longer feels the same way. The weather here is to go from a heatwave to cool conditions in the next 24 hours, a drastic change from balmy to cold. Perhaps this is a sign of the cold days ahead.

While the kids did not ask for any new school clothes this year, I still picked them up a few items. However, I must admit I was a little late in my purchases this year and many things were already picked over at the stores.

I enjoyed going to a few of these stores to look around as it is fun to shop for kids that will be delighted with something 'unexpected'. However, I now try to not make any purchases via 'emotions' these days.

I usually pray before buying something and then the Holy Spirit will prompt me to act as appropriate. This also seems to now be happening with things such as automotive repairs and home maintenance. God knows how to lead us in both the small and large things, so don't be afraid to ask Him.

This year, I went to a few different stores in order to purchase school clothes. However, I found very few 'quality' items or items made of cotton. It seems like everything is now made in poor quality synthetics and is extremely thin. However, even with the poor quality, stores still charge the same and even more than they used to. It is frustrating.

I went over to the men's section and noticed that almost all of the men's clothing was of much better quality than the women's section, yet at the same or even cheaper prices. I was becoming quite upset when I finally felt the Holy Spirit instill some wisdom in me to get me to settle down...

Holy Spirit: "It is not your imagination, Erin. Since the male consumer shops infrequently, the clothes are made to endure longer. However, since the female consumer shops more frequently, the clothes are not made for endurance. Yes, they are taking advantage of you, but such is the state of the world right now. You can choose to either accept it or continue to be frustrated."

I decided to plaster a smile on my face and convinced myself to 'accept it'. It still was not easy to do this though. Thank You, Lord, for Your great wisdom and calming Words! But now where do I go? Where is good? The Holy Spirit again spoke to me...

Holy Spirit: "Look for old classics at the plunder stores."

Me: "Hmm, okay...so, discount stores? Stores with virtually no teenage customers at all? Do I go to stores that clear out all of the bankrupt store's merchandise?"

I decided to do just that. After I arrived at one of these 'plunder stores', I found some classics at a bargain price that still had good quality. I bought a few items and knew that the kids would be happy. I then felt the Holy Spirit confirm that, once these quality items were cleared out, such items would be increasingly rare.

I feel as if not many people have noticed the rapid decrease in quality and integrity. Sustainability and reliability seem to all be qualities forgotten by everyone but those old enough to remember. Nothing is made to last.

Well, the only thing left that lasts for an eternity is our relationship with God and our salvation in Him. However, very few are 'buying' this anymore. Well, I feel I have painted a grim picture today, so I apologize. Sadly, I believe that this sad picture is an accurate picture. It is painful out here now and I miss so many things...

- I miss buying a normal warm light bulb, not the blue LED 'alien' lights;
- I miss a great long-lasting cotton sweatshirt with no logo on it;
- I miss being able to be openly proud of our country without being mocked;
- I miss going out for a hike, walk or drive and not fearing the evil around me;
- I miss a time without technology, yet I love technology at the same time;
- I miss going to church and receiving a word that actually brings life;
- I miss seeing compassion in people that expect nothing in return; and
- I miss kind courteous smiling people.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for this place, our hideaway, in these beautiful trees. Well, the fall has arrived and it is cold outside. You clearly spoke the following to me two days in a row last week...

Jesus: "Erin, the Fall has begun"

However, I really believe that there is much more to this than just a warning from You on the change in season.

The cold has definitely arrived and we now have frost warnings for the next several days in a row. Just two days ago, on September 30th, 2017, we celebrated the 5th anniversary of receiving the gift of a closer relationship with You in the form of the start of these dreams.

By You, and with You in me as the Holy Spirit, I have been forever changed and I can never thank You enough. However, this is also the time of the year where we are to be especially diligent in coming to You in repentance for our faults.

There are many things that I have failed to do. There are many things that I desire to do, but am no longer physically able to do, as well. For instance, while I feel like we should still try to observe the Jewish holidays and feasts, I am not very good at doing this either.

I am reminded that Jesus was very stern in Matthew 5:17-20 when He said, 'I did not come to abolish the Law or the prophets, but come to fulfill them.'

In my heart, I just know that Jesus is actually speaking to all of us here.

He did not come to remove God's commandments, but rather came as the sacrifice to atone for our sins as the Lamb of God. Jesus is precious and honored in God's sight. He was born without spot or stain, which means that He also bore no sin or iniquity.

In Israel, the entire nation observed the Day of Atonement, or Yom Kippur, on the weekend. This was observed in Israel, and not just by the Jewish people, but also by those who work for them. Both Leviticus 16 and 23 speak on this.

In contrast, it seems that our nation of America, a supposedly 'Christian nation', instead rests more on misinterpretations of the Bible, primarily with Paul's writings, to simply do as they please. These misinterpretations seem to then lead many away from His commandments, especially those watching the resulting hypocrisy from so-called Christians and wanting nothing to do with them.

Over the years, I have seen many use horrible misinterpretations of Romans 7 to rationalize that we are no longer subject to God's commandments and laws. I see many well-meaning Christians taking the apostles words out of context and then dividing the Bible into two halves – the Old Testament versus the New Testament.

When the Lord says all of His Words are for our betterment, I surely believe Him. We all should! If I no longer look to the land of Israel as God's land, I will then take no interest in blessing them. If I no longer take an interest in Jesus' walk and background, then I become lazy and complacent in my prayers and my walk with Him.

With apathy comes dullness and lifelessness. We then become more and more prone to saying, 'Oh, don't worry about that sin. After all, Jesus already died for all of that. Don't put Him back on the cross! We really don't need to worry about observing 'this or that' anymore.'

We become more and more prone to saying, 'Hmm, I cannot fast today as I have a business lunch. I know I have to repent, but I am busy right now and will do it another day.' Oh, the excuses after the excuses! Yes, we are all guilty of this sometimes, but we still REALLY need to get right with God...and NOW!

In reality, this was my life before I started to walk in a close relationship with God. I used to be under the illusion that only the New Testament was valued and that 'once saved, always saved' was a recipe for sinning without consequences, either here on Earth or in Heaven. This was, and is, a very, very slippery slope.

I truly first woke up to myself in the year 2000 and I hated what I saw. This happened just after a friend's funeral in September 2000 and I realized that I was living for myself and not for God. Yes, I also was living for my children, but, really, mostly for 'self'.

Once I came to this conclusion, I began the long difficult journey of separating myself from those things that were a barrier between my heart and God. My life changed. While it wasn't instantly changed to where it is now, it was changed instantly, continues to change and in the manner that He feels fit to mold us in.

God systematically began to lead me away from my comfortable place. I had a choice to make – either follow Him or remain a servant and a slave to money and the world. Thank You, Father, for continuing to work diligently in me even when I slip up.

Looking back, I now realize that His plan was to remove me from those people and things that were keeping me from living in the fullness of what God has in store for me. As Jesus said in His Word...

'If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me.' (Matthew 16:24). 'My Sheep hear My Voice and I know them and they follow Me.' (John 10:27). However, there are so, so many other examples of His Words of wisdom there.

Yes, it was a painful process to separate myself from that attitude of 'Ah, don't worry about all of that. After all, Jesus paid the price so that we can live free from the Law.' and 'Jesus loves you and doesn't care about your mistakes. He expects them and He knew in advance that you were going to sin.'

What a load of malarkey! However, this wasn't just in my thoughts, but was also shared by so many Christians around me and still is. I just know that this is not what God wants for us. He wants our hearts, all of our heart, and not just in part. This means following Him in all things and saying goodbye to the rust and mildew this world offers.

Guiltily, I knew in my heart that these copouts and excuses were just that even as I continued on my way. It then took me even longer to realize that it was really as simple, yet complicated and excruciating, as the following...

'Ask God and He will answer. If He doesn't answer 'on our schedule', then press in harder. If He still doesn't answer, then press in to Him even harder. If He still doesn't answer, then fast and pray. Then wait on Him even more, remembering that His 'yes' means 'yes', His 'no' means 'no' and 'silence' means...ugh... wait even more!'

How often do we need to do this? For a lifetime! Repent, repeat, repent, repeat, repent, repeat! Then start over! Praise God, give thanks, then repent and repeat, and on and on. The Bible says that our walk will not be easy, so we need to believe Him when He tells us this. After all, He never lies!

I also remember all of the many times that I took God for granted. Like so many around me, I became comfortable with the practice of using Scriptures in part and not in whole to rationalize doing whatever I had wanted. Despite this, God never gave up on me. Even when I had lost all hope, God still never gave up on me.

To beat this out of me, He then took me to the harsh desert. This was a place of great humiliation, shame, poverty, loss and grief. This was a place where I began to question everything. From there, He then took me to an even deeper and drier desert. From there, He then added a fiery furnace to burn off my dross.

I was soon completely stripped and exposed. I had lost everything I had once enjoyed and was then taught how to no longer 'long' for it. Soon, all I desired was for my children to have a God-centered life and cover. I prayed for their salvation.

I prayed that I would see them in Heaven. I stopped praying for just myself as much. Even though I still prayed for myself, and still do as we are supposed to, I prayed for others, but with much greater frequency.

At one point in my walk, in the summer of 2012, I was so low that all I prayed for was another day on Earth. I prayed I would see my children follow God. I prayed that God would somehow continue to sustain us despite the incredible odds stacked against us.

I no longer prayed for a home, abundant blessings and healing for myself. I simply prayed for 'just one more day'. I went from having so much to barely having anything. I was so low that all that remained was God's promises for my life. The importance of big things completely faded away and all I wanted was 'just one more day'.

Little did I know at that time that God would soon do something truly amazing! He soon started to speak to me through my dreams and visions. He turned my prayers of anguish into a prayer language similar to ancient Hebrew. He put a new Spirit in me.

He made me His Bride and hand fed His Words to me. He later would even set up a nest for me and my young near His altar (Psalm 84:3) and later in 'the land of trees'. He nurtured me and cared for me. How can I ever thank Him enough, especially when I now realize that, not only did He do everything He said He would, but so much more?

Yes, while He then allowed me to be injured, He then even used this to remove all of us, including all of my children, to 'the land of the trees'. Once arriving here, we have had rest. My children and I truly needed this respite before He heals us and brings us out, so I thank Him for this rest with all of my heart.

Yes, He will soon heal us. He will soon bring us out into a wide open space to be used for His glory, not our glory. He has done all of this for us and yet we often stumble with His laws and commandments. He has done all of this for us and yet we often struggle with doing so many things that I know would please Him.

Our nation is one of the richest nations on the planet, yet every day is another day to sin and do as we please. Just imagine if we followed His ways as closely as the Jewish people in Israel, but then combined this with a heart only for Him and His ways.

If we had all practiced the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur, as a nation, would He turn and have mercy on us? If we fasted and repented like Nineveh did, would He take the Hand of His coming judgments off of us?

In my heart, I already know the answer as to whether this will ever happen here in this nation. The answers are even clearer in the Bible. I sighed and decided to take a break. I turned on the television to find some light entertainment. Well, that is not what I found...

The stations were abuzz with the news of the largest mass shooting in the nation's history. Over 50 are dead already and more than 400 injured. This happened in Las Vegas, Nevada during a country music festival called the 'Route 91 Harvest Festival'!

This was just too much for me to bear. I prayed for the victims and their families. I felt numb. How will we be able to cope with this, and so much more that is coming, unless God soon strengthens us? Oh please, Lord, may Your 'soon, very soon' be today! I started to weep...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I ran into His arms and started to cry even harder. He pulled me away and looked into my eyes with a gentleness that cannot be measured.

Jesus: "Erin, I am in you, you are in Me and we are one. Do not worry as I have been separating you from the things around you, but, no, not from your husband or your children. I have kept you apart because life around you is about to change. You are anxious, worried and depressed.

"While you are in pain right now, soon, yes, Erin, very soon, I will remove all of this and in a single day, but no, not because I am taking you Home. Since you do not ask for things for yourself, but only for the ability to help others and for the healing of your children, you will see all of this. This separation period is almost finished."

Me: "Thank You! Oh thank You! Even though I am in pain and tired, I am so ready. All of us are so ready!"

Dream over...

Dream 261 – Jesus, the Grateful and the Worldly

Received on Wednesday, October 4, 2017

Communion

Dear Father,

While I thank You for another day, I am going to be perfectly honest with You here. I am really hoping that it will soon be my 'last day' of me being as I am today...please, Father!

I had a difficult time getting to sleep last night. My husband had already fallen asleep, so I decided to find something light to watch on television...or so I thought. I started to watch a reality show, well, two in a row, but different shows and both with the word 'housewives' in it.

Yes, I know what you are thinking and yes, I really do know better, but there really was not anything else interesting and 'light' on. Anyway, I could not believe what I was seeing and hearing. It was so shocking to me.

The women on these shows were filled with hate, jealousy, anger and coveting and were incredibly lewd. It was so sad that I soon found myself talking to the Lord under my breath about it.

Me: "Oh Father, please help them. They truly have no clue about what is soon to come. They will be swept away soon and will have no idea what hit them. Even though they are so rich, they really have nothing that will truly last."

To my surprise, I suddenly heard His audible voice replying to me...

Voice of Jesus: "Erin, they have purposely chosen this world over Me and their reward is only that which you now see before you. They will have been 'paid in full'."

Me: "Yes, Father, but the world does not know that You are here. They do not know You. Soon, and just as they hated You, they will also hate us. They will kill all of us if You do not strengthen us soon. Please protect us from the corruption and immorality that is sweeping over this land. I know it is just going to get worse and worse."

Voice of Jesus: "I have called out to them many times, but they have continued to say no to Me. While I will continue to call them, time is running out for them. They love the world and it is their idol."

It was 1:23am when I finally turned off my reading light and the television. As I lay there, I started to think about how everything has changed so much, especially recently. Tears ran down my cheeks, but I wept quietly so as to not wake up my husband. I did not want him to be tired for his work in the morning.

Just a few minutes later, something unusual happened, something that has never really happened before, especially while I was still awake. Before my eyes, pictures started to flash of easily a hundred...no, hundreds...of people from my past that had intent to harm me. There were even people there that I remembered from when I was very little.

The pictures kept flashing, two or three per second, lasting just long enough for me to recognize each person. For many of them, I honestly cannot even remember their names, but I remembered each of their faces.

The download soon became so painful for me to view that I reached up to cover my wide-open eyes. However, the images kept flashing before me. I then tried to rub my eyes in the hopes of stopping it, but this did not work either.

I was relieved when the flashes of all of these people that were so cruel to me had finally ended. I stared at the ceiling and was now as awake as I have ever been. I tried to relax, but then, and just a few seconds later, the picture flashes started up again.

This time, the flashes were of real-life scenarios of things done to me in the background that I did not even know happened. I saw people deceiving others and placing barriers to prevent me from receiving any recognition or awards. I saw people telling others why I should not be promoted even when they knew I should have been.

While I saw the receivers arguing that I should be promoted or awarded based on my level of work, commitment and quality at first, I then saw them quickly agree with the other person that I shouldn't. I saw the other person then tell them lie after lie about my character. It was painful to watch and the flashes continued for some time.

After a very short pause, the flashes started again, but now with a different theme. I saw plots to undermine my work. I saw people taking credit for the work that I did and then making me seem like a liar for saying it was my work to begin with. I saw people making up lies upon lies to again attack my character.

Thankfully, these flashes finally stopped. This was not just a few flashes, but thousands of flashes. When I looked at the clock, I noticed that barely five minutes had passed. This seemed odd to me as this much information should have taken hours to download. After a few more minutes, I somehow knew that the flashes would not be continuing.

I suddenly felt physically ill from all that I had just been shown. I ran over to the restroom to vomit, but nothing came out. Just as quickly as this wave of nausea came, it started to dissipate and finally left altogether. I went back to bed and started to cry again over what I had been shown. I soon fell into a very deep sleep...

Dream 1 description begins...

I was young, strong and vibrant again. I was not sure if I was in my glorified state (that is, visiting from Heaven post-Rapture) or in my transformed state (that is, still living on Earth pre-Rapture).

While I somehow had a feeling that I was still in my transformed state and pre-Rapture, I was really not 100% sure. However, if I were, all I can say is that things are going to become really horrific before we are finally taken up. I was in a city that had just been struck by an earthquake of epic proportions. Several large buildings stood in front of me and I could see hundreds and hundreds of exposed offices, condos and apartments. I could see their belongings. It was surreal. It was almost as if I was looking at a massive set of badly damaged doll houses.

I quickly snapped back into reality as doll houses do not have people in them screaming out in terror. A woman soon came up to me from behind to ask me to assist her.

Rich woman: "There are several people trapped in my apartment building. It has collapsed. Can you help me?"

Me: I nodded yes. "Okay, I will follow you."

While the woman walked as quickly as she could, all of the rubble and debris from the earthquake slowed her down considerably. I could see dust in the air from the collapsing buildings everywhere. The dust was mixed with smoke as some of the buildings had started to burn. The woman stopped and pointed to her apartment.

Rich woman: "This is it. I know that there are several people trapped in there. I know that my boyfriend is trapped in there."

I looked over at the apartment complex and could tell that it had contained luxury units. The building had four stories with four units per floor, 16 units altogether. The entire face of the building had been sheared off and looked unstable. I looked back at the woman and only then noticed that her dust covered clothes were very high-end.

I looked around and the devastation was incalculable. I gasped in horror when I looked to the area in behind the woman's apartment complex. Massive hills that had each been covered in high-end estates had literally tumbled into the sea. While the area appeared to be California, I really could not tell exactly where I was.

Rich woman: "Please, lady, can you keep this building from folding in?"

I was surprised by her outlandish request. However, when I looked down, I could see that my outfit was dust-free and pristine. It seemed as if those here now knew about us and our assignments and she had surmised that I was 'one of them', either glorified or transformed. I felt uncomfortable that she felt that I personally had this kind of power.

Me: "Listen, only God can keep this building from folding in, not me. I can do nothing apart from Him."

Rich woman: "Well then, hurry up and tell Him to do this for you."

Her tone was so harsh and rude that it completely took me by surprise. I somehow felt that she was one of those that hated us, 'the ones assigned by God'. I then heard the Lord speaking to me.

Voice of Jesus: "You are only to go to the third floor and save the family that is there."

I cautiously approached the devastated building, but could not see any people at all. I started to pray as I reached the building and was suddenly able to see movement with something similar to infrared vision. This was odd as we were still in broad daylight.

I then saw two adults with their two older teens holding each other in the rubble on the third floor. I was later told by the Lord that the adult man's name is Jason and the adult woman's name is Susan. All four of them were shaking and crying. I called up to them.

Me: "Hello. Can you hear me?"

Jason came to the edge of the blown out wall and looked down at me. I waved up at him. He was dust-covered and, understandably, looked shaken and distraught.

Me: "I have been sent to help you."

Jason: "Okay, but there is no way up or down. We are stuck up here."

Me: In a quiet voice. "Well, Father, now would be a great time for a ladder." As soon as I finished saying this, a metal fire escape ladder supernaturally appeared. I suppressed a smile as I did not want to appear uncaring to those around me.

Me: Again in a quiet voice. "Thanks, Lord! That was fast."

Even though I was 'small', I knew that I had great strength and would be able to help all four of them down the ladder. They were visibly shaken. Once they were down, Susan then addressed me, but the two teens kept looking at me like I was some sort of alien.

Susan: "Oh thank you! Thank you so much. I don't know how you made that ladder appear, but thank you."

Me: "It was God and it is God who is rescuing you now."

It soon became obvious that she misunderstood what I had meant by this.

Susan: "I didn't know that God was a woman"

Me: This time I couldn't help but laugh. "No, no, no! I am not God. I am just one of His workers. I have been sent by Him to be here for you. I am in His service and this is for His glory alone. Just know that Jesus knows you and is sending more help. He is here with you right now.”

I then turned towards the woman that I had followed and she looked angry with me. In fact, she was now extremely irritated with me. I wanted to lose my patience with her, but I felt the Lord tell me not to react. I didn’t.

Me: “What is wrong?”

Rich woman: “Why would you take so much time to save them when they are nobodies? Do you not know who is still trapped in there?”

Me: “I don’t. Who are you talking about?”

Rich woman: “‘Person’s name’ is in there. Save him. You need to save him and stop wasting your time with these other people.”

She had named someone famous. However, before I could make note of this man’s name, the Lord completely erased his name from my memory.

Me: In my thoughts. “Lord, was I supposed to forget this man’s name?”

Jesus: Also in my thoughts. “Yes, Erin. It is irrelevant now as he is already gone. Now, this woman is really only concerned about the contents of this man’s safe, not him. She needs what is in his safe and is trying to trick you into helping her get to it.”

Me: I addressed the woman. “The man you speak of has already died. However, you really only care about his safe and need to get the items from inside. Am I correct?”

The woman instantly turned as white as a ghost. She was visibly shaken by what I had just said, so much so that she was unable to reply.

Me: “I have not been called to help you with your selfish ambitions. Can you not see that those that can still live need to be saved instead?”

Well, that snapped her out of it...smiles. She was furious and started swearing at me at the top of her lungs. As almost all of what she said was curses and ‘choice’ descriptions of me, I am simply going to leave this out. She then turned away from me and climbed up the ladder. Just as she was about to reach the top level, the upper two floors folded over onto the lower two floors with a mighty rumble. While I heard the woman scream in terror, this was quickly followed by silence...and dust. She had now been consumed by the building.

As I walked over to the crumpled building, I could not believe my eyes. Sitting on the top of the flattened rubble was the man’s safe. I felt the Lord download the combination to the safe as I climbed over to it. I reached for the tumbler and used the combination. The door to the safe swung open. I looked inside the safe and could see several high-end jewelry pieces, several large stacks of hundred dollar bills and a pile of titles to various properties. Next to this stack of titles was a large clear bag containing a variety of labeled keys. The labels showed that the keys were for an assortment of vehicles and properties.

As there was too much for me to take at one time, it took several trips to hand these items to each of the four of them. I could tell that they were still in complete shock about what had just happened. I then started to give them instructions that God had just downloaded to me.

Me: "Jesus wants you to have all of these items, including the keys and deeds to this man's vehicles and properties. He wants you to..."

Jason: Blubbering. "But...but...but what if people think we stole all of this? What if people then think that we had acted as looters?"

Please note that I removed their last name and the name of the town in Montana in what follows in order to protect the family's privacy. I then felt confirmation from the Lord that I was supposed to keep this to myself.

Me: "Is your name Jason R....?"

Jason: "Yes."

Me: I looked over at his wife. "Is your name Susan R....?"

Susan: "Yes. We are the R....'s."

Me: "Look down at the deed at the very top. There is a deed to a property near 'Small Town', Montana. Now, what names are on the deed to this property?"

Jason: "How could this even be possible? Our names are on this deed!"

Me: Smiling. "Your names are on all of the deeds and titles that you are holding. Hmm, it seems as if this man had been holding these titles in your names and on your behalf without you even knowing it."

Susan: Stammering. "But...but...but how could this be? Thank you! Who are you?"

Me: "It doesn't matter who I am. Please don't thank me, only thank Jesus. I am nothing without Him. I am just His worker and this is all for His glory alone. Now, all of this is yours, including the money, the titles and all of the other items.

"As it is His Will to do so, God is now going to deliver you to your property in Montana with His supernatural power. There, you will be assisted by angels. God will continue to provide for you during the times of trouble. His angels will protect you no matter how much the evil increases. Do you understand?"

Jason: "No...I mean yes...um, I think so, yes. While I really don't know how all of this will happen, we will praise Jesus continuously from here on."

Me: Smiling. "Good! Now, are you all ready?"

All four of them nodded their heads in overwhelming agreement. I then saw a door supernaturally appear behind them and pointed. They turned around and started to shake their heads in disbelief.

The door then swung open. While all around the door was complete devastation, we saw nothing but beautiful Montana landscape through the door. We could also see an incredibly beautiful custom home tucked away in the wilderness.

While they were all excited, they were even more shocked than before. After they each took turns hugging me, I then motioned for them to walk through the open door. They held each other's hands as they walked through the door. Once 'in Montana', they turned around and waved. I could tell that they were still in disbelief.

Me: "Now, you have very little time left to choose to commit yourself fully to Jesus, the Son of God and our Savior. You must always remember and understand that Jesus is the One that has saved you. You must always remember and understand that God is the One that has had mercy upon you and your household. Now, give all the glory to Jesus alone and be comforted in the knowledge that He knows each of your names."

They all nodded in agreement and were now crying with joy. I could tell that all of this was slowly sinking in. They waved at me again and I waved back. After the door shut, it then completely disappeared. While I do not know this family's story, I do know that God has a plan to keep them safe.

I looked around me and noticed that some other 'workers' were now there with me. While I was still not entirely sure if we were glorified or transformed, I did notice that they were just like me...well, except the men as they were men, not women...smiles. Women were there as well.

We gathered together and held hands in praise and thanks to the Lord. We all felt that we had completed what God had sent us there for. As we prayed, the Earth started to shake all around us, yet we remained on 'Solid Ground' and were not shaken.

We stood there in stillness looking at the bleak landscape, now shaking violently, as several more properties fell into the sea and disappeared. I am not sure how many died that day, but many died. Billions of dollars of property were completely destroyed.

What these people had worked a lifetime for had now been destroyed in less than an hour. As we continued to pray, God moved each of us, one-by-one and two-by-two, to different areas and to new assignments...

Dream 1 description over...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was in a place of darkness and I could not even see a hint of light anywhere. I held my hand up in front of my face, but could not see it. I touched my face and knew that my hand was there. I started to panic and cried out to the Lord. He immediately appeared, bathed in warm light. I ran over to Him and hugged Him tightly.

Me: Crying. "Lord, I was in the dark. Those picture flashes that You just gave me were horrible. Oh Father, what a miserable life I have led. No, what an incredibly miserable life I have led. Why would You allow this, Lord? Why?"

Jesus: "Erin, this was all allowed because I chose you. I kept you where you were because I chose you. I did this so that you would learn that working for men matters not. As one of your former bosses once said to you, 'Anyone can be easily replaced, including you.' Well, Erin, I am here to tell you that this man is a liar.

"To Me, you are of great worth and value. I have recorded every one of your hopes, dreams and prayers as they are good. Because you work for Me, I will soon repay you a thousand fold of what the enemy has stolen from you. While you are already a citizen here in Heaven, you will soon be a 'field worker' there on Earth."

Me: "Lord, the evil is multiplying. It used to be that 90% were good and 10% were evil. Now it seems as if this has flip-flopped. Now I feel that only 20% are good and 80% are evil. This seems to be getting worse day-by-day. It is so sad.

"I wish I could just teach my children from home now as the things being said in front of them at school are truly inappropriate. There is no respect, decorum or manners anymore. Horrible things are now spoken about people that are then not allowed to defend themselves. In the wake of tragedy, horrible lies are now said about the dead."

Jesus: "Erin, I am in you and you are in Me. You will not be shaken. I will strengthen you. I am here. You will soon be My shining light in a world that grows darker with every passing day."

Dream over...

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Father, this has been a special time for me and unlike any other. I have had a difficult last few weeks. My pain has been unbearable at times and I now even have trouble finding comfort when I lay my head down. There have been many tears and not just from the pain I have.

Unable to sleep one night, I went to my knees and prayed for You to allow me to see my children healed before You take me Home. I felt that, at least with this, I would be able to 'die' satisfied, if this were to be Your Will for me. I then went back to bed.

Instead, and right before my wide-open eyes, You then provided me with something seemingly unrelated. My entire time as a 4 and 5-year old, 1967 to 1968, on 'Bell Street' flashed before me. While this was a vision, it played almost like a movie.

As this painful time flashed before my eyes, You showed me things that I could now barely even remember at all. You then put all of these broken and forgotten pieces together and played it in front of me just like an epic movie. There were heroes and villains, joy and sorrow, all of the things that you would find in a 'blockbuster'.

All of it was covered in this movie as it flashed before my very eyes. As I 'watched', I started to cry until the tears soaked my pillow. This vision then seemed to pause. I was now sitting on a curb outside of my elementary school. It was my first day in Grade 1 at Hillside Elementary in Berkley, California.

When I checked the clock, only five minutes had passed, but I thought it had been a couple of hours. God had just shown me around 2.5 years of the last part of my first bridge in just minutes, but I did not know why. Why, Lord?

These broken bits and pieces of my early memories in my journey of the first bridge of my life had been a big mystery to me. I now knew that some of the things my closest family members had told me about this time did not match my memories or the dates on my photos for a reason. This 'movie' helped me to understand why.

Up until now, I was so confused that my memories had never seemed to match those of others who grew up with me in this house. I always wondered how people from the same household could have had such different experiences when witnessing the supposed 'same events'. I always wondered how these reports could vary so much.

Well, Father, I went on this journey with You and now I know that it was You assisting me in this incredible discovery. You then led me to two 3" x 11" x 7" flat boxes I had stored that also documented so much of this first bridge. You then helped me sort through these memories from my earliest years.

The first box came from one source and the other came from a different source, my parent's. I opened the contents of each box and, with Your help, was able to sort the photos in chronological order. After sorting the contents, I first prayed to You before starting over again to look at them from a fresh perspective...

Me: "Father, why did You have me go back there? Why show me all of this? Does it matter anymore? My grandparents, and now my mom, have all since passed. These records are quite poor in quality and my grandmother's diaries has since mysteriously disappeared. Only You, Father, can piece all of this together for me. Since my mom was adopted, I do not have much to go on. What am I doing back here?"

I somehow knew that I was to continue. I placed all of the photos before me. Thanks to my grandmother diligently writing dates and places on almost all of the photos, this started to come together surprisingly fast. I then noticed that a pattern of sorts was starting to emerge that was based on certain street names I had lived at, including...

- 'Lord' Street
- 'Plumb' Lane
- 'Bell' Street
- 'Masonic' Avenue
- 'Cumulus' Lane
- 'Craftsman' Place

The list of places I had lived went on and on. I soon had no doubt that the very names of these streets I had lived on throughout my entire life all had significance. I then remembered so many things that happened to me at each of these addresses, things that most would even find quite hard to believe.

Well, Father, I then also discovered that You had been protecting me from the very beginning, from my very start. I soon also discovered that I had an unusually keen interest in dwellings and structures from as early as three years old. I even have photos of me 'building a shelter' dating back to 1966 and 1967 to prove it.

By the end of my first bridge, at age 7, I had already been through many moves and transitions, but also so much pain. I noticed that my face seemed full of joy and hope in the first 4.5 years of my life, but that everything from age 5 and up had then completely changed for me.

Yes, things had changed from thereon in and for the worst. Something was now terribly wrong and I could see it in every photo of me now. I had such a different look on my face. There was no longer any joy or hope there. You then showed me so much that had happened to me, but that I was not to write any of it down.

Even in these dark times, You, Father, were there with me. You put this together. You knitted this together to form the very fibers of my being and the very person that I am today. Even though I did not know it back then, I was truly under the shelter of Your mighty wings. Psalm 91 is where I had been, and have been, all along, so thank You!

When I look back over my life, I really have not had any great achievements. I do not have a lengthy list of academic milestones. I have not climbed any great mountains. I have not sailed the seas. However, there was still something consistent throughout this entire early part of my life.

As it turns out, there was a philosophy that I had consistently followed from a very, very early age. It was a philosophy based on something someone had told me, but I do not remember who. When I was a young child, someone had told me the following...

"Listen to me, Erin. Always remember that silence is golden. It is better for you to say nothing unless you have something to say that someone wants to hear. Instead of speaking, be aware of everything around you. Study your surroundings carefully and you will find out that there is always a door open behind that which you see."

I then saw evidence of me doing exactly this in the photos before me. I even have a photo of me staring intently at something a family member was doing. The photos showed me studying my surroundings and my situation intently. I was so intrigued by whatever I had been studying that I was usually the one not looking at the camera.

I then noticed that there were just so many photos that were similar to this. I was studying everything and everyone all of the time. However, while this person had also told me that there would be open doors for me to discover, I soon found out that this part was not true, at least not for me. I instead saw nothing but prison bars.

In these memories, I could see no way out for me. There was also no way out from my memories as I could not undo all of the disturbing images that I had seen. I simply could not 'un-see' all that I had seen and had been exposed to.

Oh Father, only You can heal the trauma from all that we have seen and experienced. Only You can shelter us from the pain of past memories. You are our refuge and our strength (Psalm 46), so please help us!

Given my hopelessness back then, why, Father, did You just reveal these last couple of years of my first bridge when it was so painful? I am now 54 years old and the 50 years or so since I was 3 to 4 years old has flown by incredibly fast. Why reveal this when I had virtually no recollection of the painful time that came soon after this early age?

While I still had impressions of feelings and even smells from this time, I really did not have any solid memories. Really, I could have even listed my earliest memories, all of them, quite easily. In fact, I will try to do this right now...

- A glass bowl on a coffee table in my grandma's home
- Three large glass balls, one of which I am pretty sure that I later threw and broke
- A screened porch
- A white crib in a room painted yellow
- A fuzzy yellow chick from the farm
- My mom's matching red nail polish and lipstick
- The comforting smell of my grandma
- The satin strip on a small baby blanket
- A daisy
- My mom and dad laughing, both with happy smiles on their faces
- A big bow in my hair
- The sunshine
- Green grass
- A ladybug
- My great grandma's porch swing
- That 'new baby smell' on my baby brother's head

After writing the above down, You then reminded me of a dream I had shortly after my mom had passed where she had told me the following (excerpt from Dream 202)...

"I opened the box and, inside this, were thousands of puzzle pieces. There was a note from the sender, "Please complete by September 23, 2017." I then received a phone call. The voice on the other line was my Mother's, "Erin, this is 'Mom's first name'; your task must be completed." Then there was just a dial tone."

Well, my husband and I have continued on our quest of discovery and have gone as far as You have taken us. We now believe that we have done all that we can on our own to try and uncover what You have given us to assemble, the 'bigger picture'.

I then suddenly remembered an envelope given to me at my mom's memorial that I was 'not to open until the right time'. Well, I had put this away and forgotten about it until now, so now must have been the 'right time'. When I looked inside the envelope, I started to cry at the pictures that were now before me.

In a way, these pictures contained a story, a story of when my mom was still peaceful on Earth, which I now know that she is once again in Heaven as we speak. It was a series of black and white photos of my mom as a teenager in the midst of blossoming trees. However, I could not tell if these trees were dogwood or cherry.

It suddenly hit me. I now recognized these happy pictures as being the very same person that I had met years ago in one of my dreams in the Golden City of God. This was confusing as she would have still been alive at the time and here on Earth.

I now knew that I had seen her up there in Heaven before she died, but she must have been prevented from telling me who she was. We had run together to a beautiful glass-domed building that was a type of library that stored records and history. My mom loved libraries and was a scholar, so this would make sense.

I just know that this had been my mom, yet she was still on Earth at the time. I know this may seem confusing, but it is to me as well. However, we must always remember that time restrains us, not God. Nothing restrains Him!

I now also believe that the beautiful engravings I have seen in Heaven, such as the ones on my path near the forestry board, were also by her. She was a master engraver and very skilled, so this too makes sense. I just realized that I had somehow seen the Heavenly version of my 'still earthly' mom while she was still here on Earth!

I now see that the version I saw matched these pictures, but that she was now even prettier and even happier in Heaven! Oh Father, my God and Creator, You just illuminated these photos to me, so thank You! Thank You! Thank You for sheltering me! Thank You for keeping us safe from harm. Thank You for bringing my mom up to You! Thank You for hearing my prayers and my petitions for her. Thank You for seeing the desires of my heart and finding them to be good.

When I was younger, my heart was on worldly pursuits, but I am now and forever changed by You! I love You, Father, and Your ways, ways that are so much higher than ours in all ways. And yes...even when Your timing doesn't match ours...smiles!

So, what comes next, Father? I pray that I am strengthened soon so I can remain here to see all the great things that You have planned for those who love You! Oh Father, we are so excited and pray that Your 'soon, very soon' becomes just that!

Received on Tuesday, October 10, 2017

Since both the late harvest wine and the ice wine from the 2012 harvest were no longer available as my communion wine, I decided to try an ice wine from the 2015 harvest. This particular ice wine was made from a grape called Vidal and is known for their very thick skin that can survive harsh cold conditions better than most other grapes.

As is my usual routine, I poured my new ice wine into a small cup and took it to my devotional chair, along with my communion bread. While I was sad that my previous wines were unavailable, this disappointment disappeared at first sip. All I can say is this was, by far, the sweetest and best communion wine I have ever had...well, 'on Earth'.

I recently watched the news as it showed the beautiful Napa Valley, along with the Sonoma, California area, engulfed in flames. These massive fires are destroying the grape vines there. It seems as if this year's vintage will be lost as a result.

To my amazement, a representative from one of the wineries that was being interviewed then said something so prophetic without realizing it that I wanted to take note of what he said. I rewound the interview and decided to jot the quote down...

"Well, at least we were fortunate enough to have had our harvesters complete their work just before these burning fires struck."

Wow! Oh Father, this part of California that is now burning was one of my favorite places to visit when I was a child. My parents would take us for drives there quite often and it was always so beautiful. While I am fully aware from Your warnings that California is to come under great wrath, as is the rest of America, this was hard to see.

Soon after, I found a disturbing news photo of a beautiful vineyard with a massive glowing fire as its backdrop. This picture had such an ominous feeling to it. I just know that this was a sign of even more tragedies soon to come to 'this once great nation'.

Now, I say 'this once great nation' as no nation can remain great once they have turned their back on You. The USA has been given so many chances to turn to You and repent, but it is now more divided than ever instead. It is difficult to watch You punish the land in order to, hopefully and prayerfully, then soften hearts towards You.

Oh Father, if only they would come to You with their full hearts now. I just pray that You will strengthen all of us soon. If not, who will be able to endure all that is to soon come to this increasingly 'godless land' and a world hostile towards You?

As for our family, I want to thank You yet again for Your divine provision and continued safe shelter. When I see these homes and entire neighborhoods burned to ashes, I realize, yet again, how blessed we are to have You, our Mighty God and Creator, looking after us. You love each of us intimately, so thank You. Thank You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was on a forested path that I had not visited for a very long time. The trees were deciduous and it looked similar to a colorful fall day on Earth. However, here in Heaven, there are many, many more colors and the leaves never fall.

There were so many trees there, each seeming to have their very own uniquely colored leaves. To name just a few, there were reds, oranges, golds, yellows, dark greens, light greens, light violets and pinks. However, there were also leaves in colors with no earthly equivalent. These leaves had a shimmer that simply took my breath away.

While it is difficult to describe something that does not exist here, I will do my best. Do you remember the box of 64 crayons that even had a built-in sharpener? If so, perhaps you also remember the different metallic colors, including bronze, gold, silver and copper? Oh, how these 'odd colors' had captured us with such fascination as children.

Anyway, as I looked around at this amazingly beautiful Heavenly autumn landscape, I could actually see metallic leaves that were sort of like the color of those metallic crayons, but enhanced. Simply multiply the range of metallic colors a hundred fold and then make them a hundred times more vibrant.

I took a deep breath and only then noticed that the smell all around me was simply amazing. I could even smell the burning wood from a distant campfire, even though I could not see any smoke from it at all in the beautiful cerulean sky.

The trees had pure white trunks. These stood out vividly against the beautifully colored leaves. There were also some paintbrush Indian ferns and purple flowers at the base of each tree, but perfected. The combination of colors and textures was so incredible that it took my breath away again. Truly, nothing even comes close to this on Earth.

As I continued to walk through this amazing vista, I started to round a corner. I could then see rows upon rows of grapevines in the distance. There were grapes of every color, all in massive ripe bundles, hanging on the colorful grapevines. Though the harvest was great, I could see only a small smattering of workers there.

These workers were picking each grape by hand. They then would carefully place each grape into a beautiful woven basket. These beautiful baskets were then placed onto these amazing automated carts. These carts were clearly 'state of the art' and moved in rhythm with the harvester. There were quite a few carts, all moving in synchronicity.

I suddenly heard a very loud horn, but it was not startling. Instead, the horn's beautiful and deep sound was, for a lack of a better word, comforting. Once the horn sounded, all of the workers went over to what seemed like a head foreman to drink some water.

As I got closer, it seemed as if I could somehow recognize the Foreman. My heart started to pound with excitement, but I still was not sure Who He was. After letting my eyes focus a bit more...yes, yes, I finally knew exactly Who He was! It was Jesus!

He obviously knew the exact second that I had finally recognized Him as only then did He turn towards me to smile and wave. He motioned towards the workers to continue with the harvest and then started to walk towards me. I sprinted towards Him as fast as I could down the path between the vineyard rows.

He was wearing a tunic with the sleeves rolled up, along with pants and sandals, all in white. He smiled and laughed at my obvious excitement in seeing Him as I raced down the path. He was carrying a water jug on His left shoulder and, even though I knew it was always full, there was no evidence at all to indicate that it was heavy to Him.

As we drew closer to each other, I slowed down slightly due to a surprising sight. While Jesus has never ever had stains on His clothes before, I could now see grape stains from the harvesting on His tunic. However, and just as I leapt into His arms to hug Him, the stains then completely disappeared. He pulled me back and smiled.

Me: "Where did the stains go?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh no, there are no stains left, are there? Let's see. Any stains over here? No. How about here? No."

I have to stop here and explain why I was now laughing so hard with Him. He was looking down and all around in an exaggerated way and was clearly doing this to make me laugh. Oh, if only everyone could see how awesomely loveable He is!

Me: "That fabric is amazing, Lord, but why did You show me the stains on Your tunic only to then remove them?"

Jesus: "Well, Erin, when harvesting grapes, surely some grape juice will get on your clothes. Hmm, this seems odd. I still do not see any stains."

He then continued to pretend to search for stains even though I knew that He knew that He no longer had any stains on His garments. He smiled at me as He continued to 'look'. I was now laughing so hard that I had to wait before I could speak again.

Me: "Oh Lord, You are just perfect, just and perfect. There are no stains on Your garment and it is pure white. I pray that I am able to wear this fine white linen when I am finally here in Heaven. How awesome it will be to have clothes that never get dirty!"

Jesus: "Hmm, since it is written that you will wear clothes like this, perhaps you doubt your place here with Me?"

Me: Smiling. "Well, You already know this about me, Lord. On Earth, I am no one, certainly no one special. When I see all the trouble that is there, and so much more to come, I cannot help but worry."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, never forget that you are special to Me! Now, the workers are few. Look around. Just a handful of workers will be bringing in all of this bountiful harvest. While it is hard work, it is also joyful, never tedious and never burdensome."

Me: "Well, Lord, I saw You working alongside the workers."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but this is as I have told you before. I am with you, beside you, in front of you, over you and behind you. I am also in you, so do not be afraid."

Me: "Lord..." To my surprise, I started to weep. Jesus hugged me. "Oh Lord, the puzzle pieces are coming together. While I still feel that my purpose is not entirely clear, I am willing. I want to harvest these grapes, but I can do nothing if You do not strengthen me. Please, Father, can I soon have a drink of Your healing, refreshing water?"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, even though you do not fully understand what you have just asked for." He looked into my eyes and smiled. "Yes, Erin, it is time for you to drink from these healing waters."

He scooped up some water from His water jug and then used His hands as a cup to serve me. I drank from His hands.

Jesus: "Now, Erin, come with Me."

He reached His hand out towards me and took my hand into His. We walked together on the path and entered into a small clearing. There was a beautiful pool there and it was filled with crystal clear water like you would see from a glacier-fed lake on Earth.

That being said, the water here is always the perfect temperature. What is so neat about Heaven is that you can swim in a pool at a perfect temperature to be comfortable, yet drink water from that same pool that is then somehow perfectly cold at the same time. Really, it is just incomprehensibly perfect here...always!

Jesus: "Now, step into this pool with Me. Erin, I am with you."

I looked down and became sad to see that I had suddenly turned back into my current disabled state on Earth. He could tell that I was now a bit worried. He smiled at me reassuringly and gently guided me into the pool.

As soon as I entered the water, I felt an unfamiliar sensation, a warm tingle flowing throughout my veins. I then felt my skin healing. I then felt my muscles strengthening. I then felt my bone structure somehow being perfected. I looked up at Him with excitement, but was still unsure what was happening.

Jesus: Smiling. "Do not worry, Erin, I am here. Now, fully immerse yourself. Go ahead, Erin, I am here with you."

I smiled at Him as I immersed my entire body, including my head, under the water. I felt the healing water swirl around me in an indescribably delightful way. He then brought me back to the surface and I felt better than I had ever felt, much better than even when I was in my very best shape on Earth.

I was about to hug Him when He was suddenly immersed in a massive beam of sun from an Open Heaven that was above Him. I then felt the soothing warmth of the sun come to me, but it was somehow coming from Him instead of directly from the sun.

Jesus: "Now, Erin, never doubt that you reside here with Me again. You are standing in living water. I am with you and I have been with you your entire life. I have sheltered you and kept you. I have never forgotten you. During this time in which I have set you apart, you have drawn closer to Me. I have also given you time to be a wife and a mother. In return, you have shown Me that you are grateful.

"Erin, I have answered your prayers and petitions. Just as I have protected you from the enemy's schemes, I will continue to send angels to guard you in all your ways. No weapon formed against you shall prosper as the Spirit of God surrounds you and My Spirit is in you.

"Erin, the 'times' of your waiting has now come to a close. Those surrounding you and your household will now know that you are Mine. Since you are an arrow in My quiver and My quiver is now full, I am therefore about to use you, not just as an arrow, but also as a flaming arrow.

"I have given you a heart of compassion for the lost, the broken and those with no hope. To those whom I call you to, you will pour out living water from the vessel I have created with you. However, for those that I have not called, you will be like a burning flame that will ignite their tongues to confess their evil both night and day.

"People who witness this will then say, 'Surely the Lord has sent these from another place to bind up the brokenhearted, proclaim liberty to the captives and freedom to the prisoners.' You will proclaim that this is the favorable year of the Lord, but also the day of vengeance from God.' (Isaiah 61)

"Now, rejoice, Erin, rejoice! You have been separated from the world and love not what is contained in it except for those who you love and care for and those whom I also love and care for. This final harvest will hold the sweetest wine, understand?"

Me: "I think so, but I am not entirely sure."

Jesus: "This wine will come from the thick skinned grapes." I somehow then knew that He was talking about the world as it is today. "Now, are you ready for what I am about to do?"

Me: "I think so...um, wait...wait, Lord. I have something to say. Lord, I am scared. It will be very difficult here. I have seen horrible things in the news lately, especially those things involving very little children. My stomach, Lord...How will my stomach be able to take this?"

Jesus: "Erin, while this will still be difficult for you to understand, the thoughts of evil men will now become their actions. Many 'innocent' will be hurt by the actions of but a few. While this is a measure for the wicked, these children are never alone. When I call upon My Army, they will cut down the wicked as they will then openly confess their evil deeds.

"Erin, the wicked have no fear of God right now. Instead, they satisfy themselves at the expense of the weak, the young, the helpless, the widow and the elderly. Even little animals are not removed from the torture of the wicked. The wicked, and their wickedness, will continue to increase."

Me: "Oh Lord, then please strengthen all of us soon. If I were to see someone hurting an infant or a toddler, I do not even know what I would do or what I am capable of."

Jesus: "I know this, Erin, but I promise you that you will not walk away when witnessing such things. Instead, I will be there with you. I will direct you in the ways that you should go. I will now do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told and this will be a part of this. Now, Erin, the heart transplant I have given you is almost complete. Your 'inner circumcision' is almost complete."

Me: "How can this be, Lord? I am a woman."

Jesus: Smiling and laughing. "Yes, Erin, but now you must understand what circumcision is. It is the process of peeling back the flesh to expose the heart, your soul, and, even more importantly, your love for Me. Now, and as it is written, what do I require of you?"

Me: "To fear God and to walk in Your ways, but to also truly love You. Oh Father, how I long to serve You with my whole heart and soul! Even though I am not perfect, I know that I am also to keep Your commandments. You have put this all together for our good in order to preserve our ways and to keep our paths straight."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, while you are mostly correct here, always remember that I do not require your perfection and I never have. This was a punishing rod and a measure designed by the enemy to keep you from learning about Me in My Word. The enemy wishes to keep you from embracing My covenant for those who love Me. Because of Me and because of your love for Me, you are hated and will continue to be hated.

"Now, I am the circumciser of the heart. This you do not do on your own, but only as I call you. I am the Physician Who removes the flesh and exposes the man, understand? Accordingly, I prepared your vessel, I created your walk and I shaped your life.

"I took you through the fire of affliction, and not just once, but several times. I then prepared you by emptying you so that you could then allow Me to fill you. However, I am here with you today to let you know that your heart is complete."

Me: "Lord, does this mean that I am now ready to receive a 'New Heart'? Am I now ready to receive a 'New Spirit' or am I to die now?"

Jesus: "Oh Erin, how I love you!" He smiled at me with such compassion. "Do you really think that I would keep you protected your entire life, sending tests and trials, all of which you have come through, only to now take you away instead of being used by Me? No, Erin, I will not as I have a plan here. "Now, I have had you studying your history and that of your family. Why? It is because I placed it on your heart to do so. However, soon..." He smiled. "...yes, Erin, very soon, all will be explained and all will be understood. You will then be given knowledge of things that you could not possibly have without Me."

Me: "Thank You, Father. It even seems as if I am already experiencing a glimmer of this now. Lord, in my prayer room here, and just today, hundreds of ladybugs have somehow been able to enter. They seem to be gathering here. While I have had a few come into our house over the years, it seems to be a swarm this year, but a welcome one.

"It also seems as if we have had several flocks of birds come to live on our property recently. I have seen many blue jays here lately and even more doves. Between the many animals that now visit us, the birds that have come here recently and now these ladybugs, well, I am in shock. There are also honeybees just outside my window.

"As You know, Lord, ladybugs have always been my very favorite 'bug', especially when I was a child. My mom would even buy me things with ladybugs embroidered on them. I now have hundreds of them here with me in my prayer room. This makes me so happy! All of this feels supernatural. Oh, I just know it is, so thank You!"

Jesus: Smiling and laughing. "Oh Erin, is this not just because the cold is coming? Do they not seek places where there is light and warmth? Are they not just merely seeking a place to sleep for the winter?"

I laughed as I knew that He was lovingly teasing me. I also knew that He knew that I knew that this really was supernatural. Okay, I must admit I am having some fun here!

Jesus: "Hmm, okay then. Perhaps they really are going there for a different reason. Let Me think...Hmm, yes, there is a reason they are going there. They know that you are near My Altar and that they will then be near My Altar by being near you."

"Now, do not worry, Erin, as these ladybugs have not come to harm you." I laughed as I again knew that He knew that this was the least of my worries and that I really liked them here with me. "Erin, now is the time for you to dance and rejoice. Hmm, it is also the time for you to laugh and take joy in this wonder." He smiled at me and I laughed.

Me: "Oh Lord, as always, You are right! All of this is amazing, so thank You!"

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as I am soon to strengthen you. Look around you. You are standing in healing waters. Immerse yourself and drink deeply. I have blessed you with living water."

When He hugged me, I hugged Him back tightly as I did not want to let Him go this time...well, really every time. I knew that, as He has promised this, I would never have to let Him go again!

Dream 263 – Jesus and Returning to the ‘Times of Our Youth’

Received on Friday, October 13, 2017

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family, my home, my friends and my wonderful husband. Father, we are all looking to You, especially both today and tomorrow, in great anticipation of a Divine Miracle. Oh Father, please do not delay. All of our hopes are in You!

I was awakened at 3:00am last night when my oldest son knocked on our bedroom door. Turns out that one of our dogs, Zoey, was sick and both of our oldest sons were attending to her. I stayed up with Zoey to make sure she was okay. While doing so, I spent an hour cleaning up her vomit.

Afterwards, I was just not tired, so I decided to go the Lord in prayer. I cried and prayed to Him in my ‘Holy Spirit Prayer Language’. After a while, I noticed that Zoey was starting to look better. I asked the Lord to please help her and to heal her soon. I then heard His voice...

Jesus: “I have her, Erin. Do not worry!”

Based on His reassurance, I settled Zoey back into her bed and went back upstairs to try and sleep. I was still restless, so I decided to go to my devotional chair to pray some more. As I sat in my chair, I suddenly remembered that I had been in the middle of a ‘personal revelation’ dream just as I had been woken up by my son’s knock on the door.

In this dream, You were telling me how the end will be like the beginning and the beginning will be like the end. You then spoke to me about the reasons You had brought me back to my beginnings. As I sat there praying about all of this, You again started to flash several images in front of me.

I then recalled that I had even more photos of ‘significance’ and went to retrieve them. You then acted as ‘The Narrator’ and spoke to me about each of the photos I now had in front of me. Of the photos, there were eight in particular that I was to share...

Thomas Easter - 1950

F. 1. 1. 1. 1.

F. 1. 1. 1. 1.

In addition, I was now also to share a photo of my mom from when she was young and happy, the same photo that had triggered my memories in my previous dream. You may even wish to read Dream 262 again for some details on just how amazing this photo is to me...

In the dream I had been woken out of because of Zoey, You were instructing me and showing me some more events, but this time from my first four years of life. As I sat in my chair looking at the related photos that I had just found, You started to unfold a story to me...

In my early months of birth, my family had doted over me. I was the center of their attention as I was the first grandchild on both my mom's and my dad's side. I was held a lot and I could see from the pictures that I had felt secure, peaceful and loved. As I grew with each passing month, many milestones also passed by at the same time.

There was my first smile, my first laugh, learning to crawl and then to stand. My grandmother recorded that I had stood on my own for the first time on October 12th, 1963. I was only 8.5 months old when I stood 'alone' for the very first time. As the photos revealed, a whole new world had now opened up to me from then on...

- Standing on a tall rock in Lake Tahoe;
- My grandfather holding my hand;
- Examining a daisy in obvious awe at the beauty of flowers;
- Building little homes for myself...really, tiny 'shelters'...smiles;
- Collecting colored corn in their husks and then harvesting the kernels;
- Praising God with my hands lifted high up to the sky;

- The feeling of snow in my 'bunny-eared' snowsuit and laughing at how delightful it felt; and
- Holding my first puppy, Sasha, a malamute husky.

I could see from these pictures that I was amazed by God and all that He had created. While I had such joy, laughter and happiness at the beginning, the photos then started to reveal that my joy had then begun to fade. I no longer had the same joy. Pain was slowly starting to replace my joy.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately with Jesus and He was holding my hand. He looked into my eyes and smiled with a tenderness that cannot be measured using earthly measures. He was illuminated from the glory of God on high and shined so brightly.

I only then noticed that I was still standing in the pool and in the very same spot that I had been just a few days ago. The memories from my 'picture movie' then started to flood back to me and I started to weep. He gently held me as I cried.

Me: "Oh Lord, somewhere during my childhood, I could see that I had lost You. I could no longer find You. I felt that You had left me."

Jesus: "I have you, Erin, and I have always been there with You."

Me: "Yes, I know that now, Lord, but I did not feel that way back then. I tried to be a child again, but I was 'forced' to grow up. I missed out on so much. I chose not to speak about things. I would watch and keep things to myself, storing it in my memory.

"I can even somehow tell from these pictures that I wanted things 'the way they once were'. However, I was thrown into a life of darkness, secrets and 'the world' instead. I went from peace and comfort to unrest and chaos. My memories are so painful.

"Life changed for me and so quickly. It seems that the only time that I had experienced security again as a child was when I was with my grandparents. Oh Father, I loved my grandma so much. While it should have been my mom teaching me these things, I learned so much from my grandma...

- Grooming, cleaning, cooking, planting and watering;
- Riding a bicycle;
- Sleeping in peace without noise or fighting in the background; and
- Playing in a yard without fear.

"However, my grandma then died and my heart was broken into pieces. In fact, there were so many people that were kind to me that died, especially in a particular span of two years, that my life had completely changed by the end of my 'Second Bridge', by my 14th year. I felt so abandoned! Lord, where were You back then?"

Jesus: "Erin, you were never alone. I looked after you. I was there with you even though I was silent."

Me: Crying. "Why did You not speak to me? I needed you!"

Jesus: "I did, Erin, but you were no longer listening for My voice as you were 'in the world'. Now, why did I give you this dream about the very beginning of your life?"

Me: "I have no idea."

Jesus: "Erin, look at your life again, but now in reverse. What do you see from your beginnings up to right now?"

Me: "Well, I went through a lot of pain and so much loss. I really do not want to go back to this part of my life as there was so much misery and heartache. So much of this was unavoidable for me. Tragedies came suddenly and with very little warning.

"I somehow always knew when something terrible was coming, a storm, because I could feel it coming, but I never knew what the storm would be. There was so much uncertainty as we moved from place to place. This continued until You finally moved me here to 'the land of the trees' to be with my husband and his children.

"I have never owned property in my name. My name has never been on any titles to any properties. I now find myself separating from things that I once adored and from places that I once loved. I am saddened by this as 'a way of life' that could have been can never be again, at least not here on Earth and in our lifetime.

"While I now live in peace right now where we are today, I still spend most of my time here in a lot of pain. My only relief is from my family and friends that surround me in love, but also from the beauty and wonder of the land around me.

"I feel as if I am more like 'a child' now than I have been since things changed when I was around five years old. However, I am old now, disabled and full of sad memories of a painful past. Thanks to You, I really am joyful now...well, at least I try my best to be joyful...because I now know that You are with me in all that I do.

"I am now fully dependent on You, and not just sometimes, but every single day. I now stand on the 'Solid Rock' of Your Word and You are here to hold my hand. You shelter me. You instruct me. I walk on Your path as You hold my hand. You clothe me, feed me and make me laugh.

"You also love my husband, our children and our friends. You love our children and delight in them as well. I suppose that, if I was to look at my life in reverse, I am once again like a child, the way I was before everything changed, only that I am now old and in such pain."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but there is so much more than just this and you will understand this soon."

Me: "Oh Lord, can You please just heal us today? I do not understand what all of this means as it is still like an unfinished puzzle. I simply cannot fully assemble this puzzle right now, at least not as I am today."

Jesus: "The year you were born is important as you came at an appointed time. Now, how long was it from the time of your birth on January 23rd, 1963 to June 7th, 1967?"

Me: "Well, it was 15 days from January 23rd to February 7th. It was then four months from February 7th to June 7th. It was then four years from June 7th, 1963 to June 7th, 1967. Altogether, there is four years, four months and 15 days from January 23rd, 1963 to June 7th, 1967."

Jesus: "Now, this is the same as the end."

Me: "Alright, Lord, but when does this time start or has it already? What if I look at the time from June 7th, 1967 to today, October 13th, 2017? It is 6 days from June 7th to June 13th. It is then four months from June 13th to October 13th. It is then fifty years from October 13th, 1967 to October 13th, 2017. Altogether, there is fifty years, four months and 6 days from June 7th, 1967 to October 13th, 2017."

Jesus: Smiling. "Hmm, I have appointed others for calculations."

Based on how He then laughed and smiled at me, I knew that I had not 'nailed it'. I then somehow knew that, in this particular case, He was talking about my husband...

I will take a short break here to share some calculations that my husband later did after I had shared this dream with him...

- As calculated above, January 23rd, 1963 to June 7th, 1967 was 4 years, 4 months and 15 days
- The year 2017 is the '17th year of the 2nd millennium', similar to the '17th day of the 2nd month' as shown below
- June 7th, 2017 was the 50th anniversary of Jerusalem being fully retaken by Israel
- June 7th, 2017 plus the '4 years, 4 months and 15 days' as calculated above lands on October 22nd, 2021
- The day after October 22nd, 2021 is October 23rd, 2021
- October 23rd, 2021 on the Hebrew calendar is Cheshvan 17, 5782
- Cheshvan 17 is the '17th day of the 2nd month'
- The '17th day of the 2nd month' is the day specifically outlined in the Book of Genesis as the day that Noah's flood had commenced
- While this points to the dates of October 22nd and/or 23rd, 2021, I somehow knew that the event(s) to occur on this date(s) was to remain a 'mystery', at least until He perhaps reveals more on this later...

Okay, back to the dream...

Jesus: Smiling. "Now, Erin, you are not to worry as I will soon give you back all that the enemy has stolen."

Me: "Please do this soon, Lord! Oh please, Lord, will You please do this soon?"

Jesus: "I Am Who I say I Am and I will do as I say I will do. Erin, all that I have promised I will do. Even though I know that you have felt discouraged recently, do not be. Be encouraged, Erin, as the dawn is soon to break."

Me: I suddenly became excited. "Oh Lord, do You mean today? If not today, do You mean tomorrow? Please, Lord, pretty, pretty please!"

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh Erin, you are so loved!"

My shoulders slumped and I sighed in an exaggerated way in order to make Him smile.

Me: "Well, Lord, I can tell that You will not be giving me any more 'clues' today."

I then tried my best to pretend to pout. Is it 'pretend' though when I really wanted this to be today! I knew that He knew my thoughts as He then smiled and laughed. While He then became somewhat serious again, He was still quite light-hearted. Yes, I know that this is really hard to explain, but, then again, so is His complete perfection!

Jesus: "Erin, I have chosen you for an important purpose. While I do everything according to My Father's timeline, everything can be measured by Israel. While I will come at the 'Appointed Time', I will also come at a time that 'the world' thinks not."

Me: "Oh, so does this mean that You now know the hour in which You will come?"

Jesus: Laughing. "No, Erin, as this is according to My Father. However, what I do know is the time of your healing and service, the moment that I will take you out from My quiver. Now rejoice, Erin, for your waiting is coming to a close!"

Me: "Oh Lord, please, please do not wait much longer! My entire home, as well as the Nest, is now anxiously resting on Your promises...even as we speak. Oh Father, please do not delay much longer!"

Jesus: "I will not delay. Erin, now is the time for you to celebrate as you are coming into the times of your service, the 'Times of Your Youth'. Rejoice, Erin, as, even in the midst of turmoil in the world, these 'Times of Your Youth' will be filled with singing, dancing and joy."

He looked into my eyes, smiled and nodded at me knowingly. Just as I began to ask Him yet another question...

Dream 264 – God, His Covenant, His Rainbow

Received on Thursday, October 19, 2017

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another beautiful fall day! Thank You for all that we have!

On my drive to the school today, there was a blanket of white fog over the water in the valley. On my way back home, I prayed to You in my prayer language. I prayed for miracles as I was feeling down and a bit hurt that You had not removed my pain or, at the very least, granted me some relief.

I then started to doubt my dreams and visions again. I say 'again' as these still seem just too wonderful for someone like me. I also started to 'doubt' as so many 'really good' timeframes have now come and gone. These can often be quite a letdown. The drive back is around 20 minutes or so and I then praised You for having mercy on me.

When I then turned down a little country road towards our house, I suddenly encountered a most unusual white 'archway' on the road right in front of me. As I approached it, it started to move in the same direction as me. I could not seem to catch up with it. I then pulled over and asked You if I should take a couple of pictures.

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. Take a couple of pictures and share them with the Nest."

Well, I did and here they are...

I then went back in my car and continued to drive towards the archway. However, the archway 'stayed still' this time and I then drove right through the archway. When I looked back, it was gone. This felt so supernatural that I just knew this was You.

I later researched this and found out that what I had just experienced is called a 'fog bow' or 'solar glory'. It is also commonly known as a 'white rainbow' and is a rare sight! I just knew that this was Your 'really cool calling card' and that I should now go up to see You at my very first chance to do so. I really wanted to know what this meant.

So, Father, what do You have planned next for us? I have had a difficult and painful week and really need You to help me. What about my husband's work situation? While things are still okay, storm clouds are on the horizon. Oh Father, please open doors soon! Our entire household loves and adores You so much and our hope is in You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was up on God's Mountain along the path overlooking the valley below. It was beautiful, fragrant and abundant with color. I walked along the path and decided to stop at a rock with fresh water springing from it. I laughed when I then saw a confit pot.

I took the small container, filled it with water and drank. As always, it was so refreshing. I then sat down and gazed upon the beautiful valley. I again smelled wood smoke in the distance, but a Heavenly version, and decided to close my eyes for a moment to really smell all of the amazing fragrances that surrounded me.

I took in several deep breaths and used my 'enhanced senses' here to separate the various smells. While I could smell 'Heavenly' wood smoke, I also smelt other fragrances such as sandalwood and cinnamon. As I breathed in this Heavenly air, I felt a hand on my shoulder. When I opened my eyes, there was Uriel smiling at me.

Uriel: "So, Erin, are you taking in the fragrance of Heaven?"

Me: Laughing. "Oh, hi, Uriel, I am so happy to see you! Yes, all of these amazing smells are such a mystery to me. Uriel, where is the wood smoke coming from? I do not see any smoke and it just seems so out of place to have a fire here in such beauty."

Uriel: Smiling. "The smell of wood smoke is actually coming from a fragrant tree. Do not worry, Erin, as nothing is burning in God's Garden. Everything here has life."

Me: "That's great, Uriel, but doesn't God also like 'barbeque'?"

Uriel: Laughing. "While perhaps He enjoys some of the same things you do, this is to remain a mystery for another time. Now, Erin, the King has requested your presence."

I quickly stood to my feet. He reached for my hand and we were immediately at the 'open door' to God's Court. Uriel put salve in my eyes.

Me: "Uriel, what does this salve do?"

Uriel: "Well, have you ever noticed that, at times, it seems as if you are wearing sunglasses inside God's Throne Room?"

Me: "Yes. In fact, I have often wondered why I cannot see more vividly there. As a result of this, I then cannot fully describe certain things very well."

Uriel: Smiling. "Well, Erin, when you are here, you only see that which God allows you to see at any given time. Even though you are in God's presence, you also remain unable to see Him. While there is a good reason for this, for now, just know that this is for your benefit. Now, Erin, come with me."

Uriel then brought me through His 'open door'. I heard the amazing sound of the choirs of angels singing as soon as we entered.

Angels: "Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God Almighty, Who was and Is and Is to come!"

As we approached the Throne of God, I could feel my legs begin to shake. I soon lost my strength and quickly knelt down to worship God. As I prayed to Him, I thought about the 'Revelation Song' being sung all around me and started to weep.

Me: Crying. "Oh Father, You are truly my 'everything'! My past is so painful that it truly hurts my heart. I want so much to be able to go back and make corrections, especially during the spring and summer of 2009. Oh Father, my heart is breaking!"

God: "Erin, I know every single thing that you have ever gone through, including in 'the spring and summer of 2009'. Erin, it was My Will for you to go to the desert. This is where I called you. This is where you cried out. This is where you were found by Me. This was an especially painful course for you as it immediately followed a prior year also filled with great pain, both physical crushing as well as emotional.

"Erin, I use such events to trigger transition and change. While a few of these events have been joyful, almost all of the changes that have occurred in your life have come from painful ones. While you have gone from place to place, you have only done so as I have directed. Erin, I have taken you on this course.

"Now, the place you are in now, the 'land of the trees', has been, and continues to be, a place of great joy for both you and your children. I even allowed your injury in order to accelerate My plans to get you there. When you look back, you will see that just about every move you have ever made since birth has been due to pain and loss, but also for the promise of a fresh start.

"Now, I sent you a 'miracle sign' today. This sign was unusual in that it was a sign that you could neither explain away nor refute. This then caused you to take notice. I have also shown you the Home that I have for you here in Heaven. You are a citizen here with Me and this is a promise and covenant that I have made with you and with those who accept that I sent My Son as a living sacrifice for the atonement of the sins of man.

"As for you, Erin, you constantly chase after Him. You look to Him and you call Him friend. Erin, I have seen your brokenness after you have spent time with Him and He still does not heal you. While I know that you then doubt your place, Erin, do not.

"Now, when Lazarus was not cured, but instead died of his illness, those who loved him, as well as understood the power of My Son Whom I sent and had seen His miracles, became deeply discouraged. However, on the fourth day, and by My command, Lazarus was raised by My Son. I had sent My Son to release Lazarus from the shackles of death and this was a miracle that could not be disputed.

"While pain has come to you again, you know that, this time, and in your heart, it is because 'the time of separation' will soon follow. Since this time will be different from past times, I have now severed any attachments you and your household had in order to make the transition easier.

"Now, I know that you are in pain and grieving right now. Since you are here with Me and I call you friend, I also know that this is a difficult thing for you, but also many others, to understand why I have allowed your pain and grief to continue. Well, to help you understand, I will now ask you a question. Erin, do you remember what it was like when you were in labor with your children?"

Me: "Yes, Father. I remember the pain of my labor and the uncertainty of it all. I remember the buildup as we prepared a place for the baby. I remember wondering if the baby would ever be born as the days seemed to go by so slowly. My anxiousness was only increased when I then went through so many 'false' labor pains.

"Once my 'real' labor pains finally started, each of my labors were then long and drawn out. However, once You delivered each child to me, after they were born, the joy of each of my babies easily outweighed any of the memories of the pain that I had just experienced.

"I remember crying out in great pain, but then, and in just a single push, a single moment, I then went from great pain and uncertainty, weakness and very little strength, to great joy. I then cried tears of joy and thankfulness and had a renewed strength. Oh Father, each of my children's births were such miracles. Each of them were from You."

God: "Erin, you have once again been in labor with great pain, but now with a different kind of labor and pain and for a much longer time. You also do not fully understand just what you are about to give birth to this time. However, just know this...I have promised you good for the rest of your days. Erin, you are about to give birth to a great gift of promise and no harm will come to you."

Me: "I do not know what this all means, but I do know that I love You so much. If it be in Your Will, Father, then I am ready and I am willing. In Jesus' Name, I ask that You please do all that You have promised...and soon!"

Even though I could not see Him, I could somehow tell that He had just smiled when I had asked for this 'in Jesus' Name'. I also somehow knew that this was the right thing to do, especially under our circumstances...smiles.

God: "Your labor is finally finished. You are about to give birth to something you never thought was possible. Do not worry nor be afraid, Erin. I have shown you many small signs and wonders. Just enough so you are certain it is Me, but not big enough for you to know beyond doubt it is I Who has done this. While I have given you many rainbows, today is a day that the rainbow was celebrated for purposes removed from Me."

Me: "Oh yes, it is 'International Spirit Day' today!"

God: "Well, today My Spirit is in you. Erin, the sign I gave you today was not void of color, but pure and white and a gift to show you that your promise has been fulfilled. You belong to Me, as well as all of those whom I have called for My purposes.

"Rejoice, Erin, rejoice today, as My glory is upon you and you are about to give birth to something the world will never expect. This will be a wonder and a sign and will come with many miracles. I have given you a new promise."

Me: Crying. "Oh Father, the rainbow of many colors was for Noah, but I feel that this pure and white rainbow is meant for us. Was this a sign and a gift from You? Was this sent by You from Heaven?"

God: "Yes, Erin. Now, Heaven is with you. My Spirit is also upon you, along with the angels I have assigned to you."

Me: "Thank You, Father, but when will this all be?"

I felt a tap on my shoulder. It was Uriel and he smiled at me. As Uriel brought me to my feet, I knew that my time for 'questioning' God was over for today.

Me: "I love You, Father. Please forgive me for being so impatient."

God: "Do not worry, Erin, as I love you and I am with you."

As Uriel led me out the door, I quickly turned to wave goodbye to God. I saw a flash of light come from His Throne area that I have since figured out is Him waving back to me. When I heard Him laugh, I smiled and felt such joy.

Uriel: "So, Erin, though you still have many questions, please allow me to ask you one first. What time was 'the sign' given to you earlier today?"

Me: "Hmm, while I believe it was around 8:45am, it may have even been as late as 9:00am."

Uriel: "Well, Erin, then it is a good time to study Noah."

Me: "Okay, Uriel, but how can anyone truly know though given that the times are so very difficult for us to figure out?"

Uriel: "Yes, I know this, but remember that much has been foretold of these coming times. Erin, you are in them now. Who could have ever imagined this? Who could conceive what is about to be given birth? Erin, remember not to worry as the Spirit of the Living God is in you. His face shines upon you. Remember that He orchestrated 'the sign' that you received this morning, so rejoice, Erin, rejoice!"

Dream 265 – Jesus and the False Labors

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for sustaining us. Thank You for Your love. Thank You for Your warnings and the yielding of our hearts to make corrections.

Father, I love You! All of us in our household and on our Nest love You! While my children do not 'fully' understand You yet, they are still much closer to You than I ever was at their age.

Father, You brought us here to the wilderness, the 'land of the trees', and have sustained us here. We have been here over three years now and, though my enemies are still looming, they have been 'kept at bay'. Nonetheless, it seems as if there are still some things that remain outstanding...

- My health and pain is worsening
- We are still waiting for our Transformation
- My main enemy continues with his evil
- L&I never stops, never helps and my benefits could be gone again at any moment and for any number of reasons
- My husband's work situation continues to be less than ideal

Oh Father, so many dates for our healing have come and gone and my 20,000th day has now passed. Are we foolish to keep waiting on You? Father, please, please provide us with hope soon. Please provide us with a miracle, Father. Our time here on Earth is so short.

Please grant us hope, if not for my sake, then for all of the other's sake, even if for no other reason than because I am someone who is completely in love with You. Please do not be angry with me or hide Your face from me. Please do not forget me. Father, my dream from the night before last was quite disturbing...

Dream 1 description begins...

I lived in a home so high-end and incredible that it was somewhat uncomfortable for me to even be living there. Even more uncomfortable for me was the fact that my bathroom, including the ceiling and the walls, were all made of glass.

To make matters worse, there was a public park next to our home. People were going over our thick high bushes and trees to swim in our three-tiered infinity pool despite this barrier. Once there, they could then see me in this glass bathroom and at times that I really wouldn't want anyone to be able to...period. They would then try to visit us.

At one point, they even started to use my bathroom. For some reason, they somehow even felt comfortable and justified in doing so. Understandably, I was extremely uncomfortable with this. One day, and in order to help take my mind off of this, I decided to swim in the pool in the back of our home instead of the infinity pools.

As I was about to take a swim there, I noticed that there was a badly injured dove lying on the side of the pool. I believe that the dove had injured itself when it had accidentally flown into the glass walls on the sides of our home. I was deeply distressed by this and wanted to try and heal the dove.

As I was walking towards the dove, I was stopped in my tracks by screams for help coming from a different area of our property. When I looked back at the dove as it lay there, I also noticed a predator in the distance, a type of predator that I had never seen before. This predator looked like an odd mix of fox, raccoon and cat.

This odd mixture of animals made for a beautiful, but unusual, creature. It had blue-grey fur, black markings and a long bushy tail. While I really wanted to go and help this injured dove first, I knew that I would have to wait until I helped the screaming man.

I then left to possibly save and/or heal this screaming man. After finding him, I did both of these things. I then explained to the man that I now had to run in order to attend to an injured dove. I could tell that he urgently wanted to say something to me before I left, so I stopped to listen to him.

Man: "I am grateful for what you just did for me. In return, I am going to bring back some of my friends to help you."

Me: "This is not necessary, but thanks for the offer. Now, I need to go to the dove."

When I arrived back at the pool, the once clear water had now turned into dark water. I then noticed that this 'fox-raccoon-cat' animal was already in the process of dismembering the dove in this dark water.

While I was extremely disturbed at the sight, yet another distraction came up. The man that I had just saved and healed had just arrived with his group of friends.

Man: "Do not worry, ma'am, we will clean all of this up."

Dream 1 description over...

Oh Father, this dream was deeply troubling and very real. What does this all mean? I am sad and feel at a loss today. Oh Broom Tree, where are you so I can lie at the base of you.

Lord, it seems as if I really can do nothing but wait on You right now. I am swimming in dark water. I am uncertain about the future. People can see through 'the glass' at me. Please help me, Father. Are You there? Jesus...Lord...are You really there?

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was up in Jesus' House and sitting with Him at the table in His Courtyard. He is sitting at the head of the table and I am seated at His right side.

Me: "Lord, I am scared. You are here with me, right? You are not just my imagination, right? It is You with me, right?"

He smiled as He reached over and put His hand over mine.

Jesus: "Erin, you have been prepared for this special day for your entire life. I am with you and I am here. I am taking hold of your hand. Even if I were only 'your imagination', what 'Divine Imagery'! None of this has been or is blasphemous. I do not encourage you to sin and I correct anything that would take you in the wrong direction.

"I have lined up all things, everything in your life, for My divine purposes...yes, even your mistakes...all of them. So, your imagination is good, Erin, and I can assure you that you are of sound mind. Now, what of all of this? Why? Well, do you not see it? Where is your imagination taking you? What are the desires of your heart?"

Me: Smiling. "Well, do You want 'wild' or 'conservative'?"

Jesus: He smiled. "Start with 'the least' and then go for 'the best'."

Me: "Well, You could heal all of us, but subtly so that no one really thinks anything miraculous came from You. Their thoughts will then be able to easily rationalize what had happened to us. We would be limited in our abilities to heal. We would then eventually be persecuted for our faith in You."

Jesus: "So then My 'arrows' would not be straight and would have severe limitations. Hmm, this certainly does not sound like what I am 'shooting for'. These would also be 'arrows' that would never reach its target. 'Ineffective' does not sound Heavenly to Me. Okay, now give Me your 'extreme imagination desire'."

Me: "Okay, Lord, here it goes..."

- I would be strong, youthful and beautiful;
- I would have a glow about me;
- I would have great wisdom and knowledge from You;
- There would be a joy on my face that could not be hidden;
- We would all be changed in an instant;
- We would be released from our debts and debtors and would then only be indebted to You and God, Our Father in Heaven, completely;
- I would love to see all of our children healed and reconciled, justified and changed;
- Heaven would open and we would have so much provision that we would be able to live free and help others;
- Our hearts, our 'Silver Cords' to You, would be made incredibly strong;

- Our only duties on Earth would be to serve as soldiers in Your army;
- We would help You with the 'harvest';
- We would help You administer justice by separating those whom You have called from those who have harmed so many;
- We would work completely through You, like free-flowing 'living water';
- We would do a 'mighty work' in Your Name;
- These dreams and visions would encourage hearts and bring healing;
- We would refresh those who are weary and broken and give them hope in Your Name;
- We would want for nothing; and
- We would still somehow be able to enjoy a small slice of Heaven on Earth until You eventually came for us."

Jesus: "So, Erin, does this seem impossible for Me? Does this seem impossible for My Father in Heaven?"

Me: "No, Lord, as nothing is impossible for You. You can do anything that You would desire for us, those of us who love You. You had already done the impossible when You were here, including raising the dead. You raised Lazarus from the dead even after he had been in the grave for four days. Lord, 'no thing' is impossible for You.

"However, I also now feel as if there is nothing more that I can do, write or say in order to 'provoke' You to use and/or heal us sooner. As I am merely a child of God and a lover of You and Your heart, I am limited in my words. If I cannot move You as I am today, I do not know what to do next as this is all that I am capable of right now.

"Just know that I long for my 'great imagination' to become reality. I long to be here with You physically, not just in a vision, but really here. Please consider me, my household and our friends. Please consider every good thing under our roof and on our property. May everything here that has been created by God be used for Your glory, Lord."

Jesus: "Your request has been heard and your prison clothes are removed. Now, rejoice, Erin, rejoice as Heaven is upon you. While I know that you are frustrated by the 'perceived delay' and uncertainty, just remember that I did not promise you an easy delivery. While I also did not promise you a labor with no pain, I did promise you a 'new birth'. While the road is narrow, rocky and winding, as well as long, this led to Me."

Jesus was smiling at me. I began to cry as He hugged me.

Me: "As much as I love You, Lord, my heart is now breaking and my hope is now fading. I am also scared too, so please, please help us soon."

Jesus: "Erin, I am with you, I am in you and I am here. Now, I know that you are grieving. I also know that you are crushed and you feel forsaken.

This is something that I understand. When you looked outside recently, what did you see?"

Me: "A torrential downfall after a very long dry period."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, and I have promised you many things. Do you still believe in Me?"

Me: "Oh yes, Lord, but I now believe that I am the problem and that there is no cure for me. Lord, I have not been 'good enough' for my whole life. While I am sometimes then the second or third choice, I am usually not even considered at all. Really, Lord, I am 'just a nobody'. Oh Lord, I need some hope soon as I feel at a loss right now."

Jesus: "I am with you, Erin, and I will do all that I have promised. Are you not going to now ask Me when?"

Me: "Please forgive me, Lord, but 'soon', 'now' and 'in a little while' does not translate very well where we are. All I know is that I really do believe You and in all that You have promised. It simply just hurts too much to have hope and then have a date pass. I then have hope again and then yet another date passes.

"Soon, yet another hour passes, then another day, another sunrise, another sunset and another break of dawn is gone. To make matters even worse, everything I see and read on the news now is all bad. People are so wicked. Please do not delay anymore, Lord, as I will not be able to endure much longer."

Jesus: "Okay, Erin, I have heard you. I can feel your distress. I know your anxious thoughts. I have you. Now, look into My eyes."

When I looked into His eyes, I saw myself young again. I was running. I could breathe deeply. I was strong and beautiful. I had long hair and such joy on my face. I could run with speed and my breathing was easy and steady. My heart was strong and healthy again. I had such great color in my skin that it even had a sparkle to it.

I watched as the Spirit of God then came over me. I was strengthened even further and now looked like 'a flame burning brightly'. My legs now had a kind of 'spring' to them and I could leap and hurdle large objects. Even though I had very little fat, I looked 'well fed' and was not 'gaunt from the burdens of appearances'. I was strong in the Lord!

I soon had to turn my head away from His eyes as looking at me in this Transformed state was becoming too painful for me to take. I started to break down and weep.

Me: Crying. "Oh Lord, please don't keep dangling carrots in front of me. You know that I cannot do anything even close to this unless You somehow create a new body for me. Oh Father, there is just so much for You to do as I have never been as injured or as old as I am right now..."

- My hands, face and body are swollen
- My fingers can barely grip and no longer function well
- I am now unable to even sew my son's patches onto his pants
- I can barely climb the stairs anymore
- My pain even takes my breath away at times
- My blood pressure was so high recently that they even had to retest me several times
- There were also all of my other tests
- I sometimes get disoriented and forgetful now

"I am scared. No, Lord, I am now really, really scared. Please have compassion on my situation here. While my children have remained confident in Your promises, I cannot bare to see this fade if time keeps marching on without us being changed. Oh Lord, please do not allow me to diminish so much that I can no longer function. Please!"

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as I have heard you and will not allow this. While I have now taken you to 'the edge', just wait a bit longer and you will soon see My glory! I love you, Erin, and even more so than you could possibly know. I am in you and I am with you. I will take care of your every need and even more. While your heart is now broken, just know that I understand this brokenness.

"Now, I will do all that I have promised. Erin, I am about to." He kissed my forehead. "I will send help, signs, miracles and wonders. The pouring rain has not stopped and neither will My blessings. I love you." He hugged me.

Me: "Oh thank You, Lord."

Jesus: "Your journey is ready to begin. While the delay in your blessings has been a divine one, it is one that has also left you questioning all of this. Erin, do not question this. I have done everything that I said I would and I will do everything that I said I will."

Me: "I love You, Lord."

Jesus: "Now, 'seize the day'!" He smiled and laughed.

Me: Smiling. "Yes, Lord...'Carpe diem'!" He laughed.

While I was satisfied with our visit, as I always am, I soon became worried...yes, yet again...smiles! I decided to go back to visit Him just a little while later. Jesus met with me immediately. He was smiling and had such sympathetic eyes for me.

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, I am still here. Hmm, I see that you are worried again."

Me: "Oh Lord, I am, but about things some may even feel are silly. It's just that...well... September 23rd came and went. My 20,000th day then came and went. I am not sure why, but all of this is weighing heavily on me now. Father, what is to happen to us?"

Jesus: "When you read My Word, Erin, both old and new, you know it is Me. In the same way, you also know that it is Me that is speaking to you. You then also know that it is me that has guided each of your scribes, counseling you on every one.

"While I have not actually thrown you into a cistern of dung nor put you into a fiery furnace, I have allowed you to be consistently tormented, but especially by your main blacksmith and accuser. I have allowed all of this for good reasons, many of which you will not fully understand until you are here with Me. You must continue to trust in Me.

"Erin, I have allowed you to have many encounters, experiences and escapes so that, when I finally use you for My glory, many, many more from all walks of life will be able to see themselves in your story. Whether they are young or old, rich or poor, native or foreigner, orphaned and forgotten, they will be able to see themselves in your story.

"I have scripted your story, Erin, all of it, and, in turn, you have now scribed it. While this has caused you great pain and even a broken heart, just know that I love you. I am sorry that it was necessary for you to endure this. 'Drinking from My cup' is not an easy path. Please do not worry though as your heart is My treasure and highly valued.

"Now, because I know your thoughts..." He laughed. "...I know that you had just thought, 'Yes, but now I am old, disabled and incapable.' While this is true as you are today, I am about to change you for My glory. Do you know that, when you soon look back upon this very day, you will even smile and laugh?

"However, I know that you are not laughing right now and this I understand. Though times have been difficult for you, I have been and will always be there with you. When the enemy requested your death, which he has many, many times, I stood for you.

"When he requested your children, I stood for them. When he requested your health, I stood for you and allowed this with only limited parameters. When the enemy requested your continued punishment, I stood there with you. I even stood with you as lies, false testimonies and even false documents were used against you.

"Little do your enemies know exactly who you are to Me. Erin, do you not see the miracles that are about to happen? It is unfolding right before your very eyes. Look..."

He reached for my hand and we were instantly at the 'dark pool'. However, the pool was no longer dark. It was no longer filled with black water. The pool was now lined with pearl in continuous sheets instead. The water in it sparkled like a jewel as the sun shined upon it and danced in iridescent movements of color. It was breathtaking.

Jesus: "Now, Erin, this is your pool..."

He then pointed over at the dove, but it was now alive and healthy, sparkling in whites, golds and silvers. It was no longer cooing in mourning, but instead sang beautifully and happily. It had a new song of praise. While 'my glass walls' were still clear, it was now completely private and I could see luxurious gardens, vineyards and fountains.

Jesus: "While no one can see in, Erin, you can still see out. Do you understand?"

Me: "Not fully, Lord, but I am trying."

Jesus: "Remember, Erin, it is always darkest before the dawn. While I know that you are discouraged, angry, worried and uncertain right now, please do not be. While a plan has been in place for you from the beginning, the same is also true for your entire household, as well as for those who truly love and seek Me with all of their hearts. Erin, the time has come for you to swim in this beautiful pool. The time has come to bind up your brokenness. Now, come with Me into the healing pool..."

He reached for my hand. Just as the toes of my right foot touched the water, I saw a flash of light and felt a jolt of healing power come into me...

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! I love You! Thank You for my family, friends and our beautiful home. Father, there is an epic convergence of two storms that have collided and hit our area. Please keep our power on.

My heart is very heavy today. I read an old letter from the 1800s or 1900s. It was from a very distant family member on my grandmother's side. This letter outlined how this man had lost two wives, his little children, his mother, brothers and father.

He later injured himself so severely that he was required to give up his infant daughter for adoption. He was unable to care for her after the accident and after the death of his wife during her birth.

Despite all of this, he had remained steadfast and maintained his faith even in the midst of this great, great hardship. He had worked so hard only to have so very little after all this had occurred. In comparison, and as I look around me, I am immensely blessed.

Oh Father, I never want to take anything You have given to us for granted. Death seemed to come so much earlier back then. When a person became sick, they more than often would die shortly thereafter. We have it so easy now in comparison.

All of this made me remember my grandmother's life again. It was not an easy one. From the bits and pieces of what I could gather about her, I realize that life was simpler back then, but so much tougher and incredibly uncomfortable.

Father, I am sorry for being such a whiner and complainer. While we have struggled, at least we are all here together. I am sorry that, when I am feeling ill and my injuries are causing me pain, I complain about my discomfort.

You never once promised me that I would have a comfortable life on my journey with You. In reality, it has been a journey filled with bouts of pounding refinement. However, what You did promise me was Your comforting embrace. This You have given to me over and over, so thank You!

When I look back at the homes we lived in, they were all so very tiny. One home was only about 540 square feet and another home was not much bigger at 800 square feet. My grandparents had also lived in meager surroundings.

My grandparents were extremely frugal as they had lived through the Great Depression of the 1930s. I can still remember how 'pennywise' my grandfather was. Our 'made-in-China' world just seems so easy in comparison despite the danger in relying on this source for so much of our daily needs.

I pray that, one day, I will be able to do all that You have promised that I would do. I pray that I will bring honor to my family, especially all of those who have struggled.

What would You have me do now, Father? I want so much to serve You. I love You so much! Father, I need help with a dream I had recently...

Before outlining this dream, it is important to note in advance that I have never had a baby stolen from me. I should also note that I was not given any details in this dream by the Lord as to how I had been separated from the baby or how she had been abducted. This was 'only a dream' and, thankfully, one that I woke up from.

Dream 1 description begins...

I was living near a young couple that had just moved into the neighborhood. Not long after they had moved in, I saw them walking their two year old toddler in a stroller. I soon became somewhat fond of their little girl due to her age. This was due to having my baby stolen from me at about the same time as she would have been born.

Though only from a distance, seeing this little girl made me remember that horrible day. My new born little girl was only about two months old when I had taken her to a church event...a river baptism. She was abducted there and the police never found out who had taken my baby. I eventually gave up hoping that I would ever find her again.

As I was walking by this young couple's home one day, the little girl was playing in their yard. When she saw me, she looked delighted and started to run towards me. However, just before she reached me, her mom scooped her up and took her back into their house. We had never formally met, so I assumed her mom was being cautious.

Me: Calling out to the mom as she walked away. "Please don't do that just because of me. I just live a few doors down from here. By the way, your little daughter is adorable."

Woman: Calling back to me. "Yes, she is...thanks."

As she walked towards her house, her daughter faced towards me. She smiled at me and threw out her arms towards me. While I then smiled and waved back, I somehow knew that she had wanted me to hug her.

After this happened, I decided that I would stop by their house the next day and bring them some clothes, as well as some toys that were still in their boxes. The clothes were in fantastic shape and were 'almost brand new'. I just knew that they would love these items. I felt called by God to bring these items to the woman and her little daughter.

I knocked on the door, but no one answered. I found this quite odd as I could see the little girl moving around the living room all by herself. As the front door was slightly ajar, I was able to call inside without 'intruding'.

Me: Loudly. "Hello there! Hello! Is there anyone home?"

The little girl must have recognized my voice from the day before as she immediately ran over and opened the door. Once we could see each other, she hopped up and down with open arms so that I would pick her up. While I was nervous about doing so, I felt the Lord prompt me to pick her up.

Little girl: "Mama!"

Me: "Yes, I am looking for your mama. Where is your mommy?"

Little girl: "Mama! Mama!"

Me: "No, I am not your mama."

As this was the first time I had been able to get a really close look at her, I was stunned to see that she had quite a few similar physical features to what I had. However, I quickly dismissed the possibility of us having any resemblance and simply attributed it to wishful thinking on my part.

As I started to think some more on how these thoughts may have resulted from the loss of my daughter from a couple of years ago, the little girl's mother suddenly appeared and rushed towards us from around the corner. To say the least, she did not look happy to see me or her daughter in my arms.

Woman: "Excuse me, but what are you doing in my house holding my baby?"

While I felt 'guilty' at first, I suddenly felt the Lord strengthen me to speak.

Me: "Look, I only came by in order to bring some gifts for you and your daughter. When I knocked on the door, I could see your little girl wandering around the living room all by herself. You had even left your front door ajar. Do you realize that leaving a two year old alone unsupervised is considered to be abandonment? Where were you?"

The woman's anger suddenly turned into panic.

Woman: "I am sorry. You are right. It was a mistake and will not happen again. I was called into work for an urgent matter. While I was gone, she must have gotten out of her crib. It was just such a shock for me to come home and see someone holding my baby in my living room. I am sorry that I got so upset with you."

Me: "Look, she is almost 30 months old now and strong. How could you possibly think that a toddler at this age would stay in her crib all day and all by herself? Now, I am willing to watch her for you when you have to leave the house. I will even do this for you for free. There will be no charge for any time I spend with her while you are out."

Woman: "No, no, no! I am fine. We are fine."

Me: "Alright, but you do understand that this can never happen again, right?"

She nodded her head in agreement as she took her daughter back from me to put her back into her crib. After tucking her in, she came back to 'say goodbye' to me.

Me: "Well, here is the box of gifts that I had brought for you. This box contains some barely used clothing, as well as some brand new toys."

Before I was able to leave, the baby must have quickly gotten out of her crib as she was now back and hugging my leg. When the mom went to take her daughter back from me again, she would not let go this time.

Little girl: "Mama! Mama! No, no, no, no! Mama!"

I reached over to the box I had brought and opened it. I then pulled out a little fluffy white lamb with a pink bow and handed it to her. She took the stuffed lamb from me and started to laugh as she hugged it. As she wanted to hug me just before I left, I bent over and gave her a quick hug.

As I left the woman's house, I noticed that she had quite a concerned look on her face. As I walked home, I became quite upset about all that had just happened. Soon after I got back home, my husband arrived back from his work. Before I could tell him about the odd experience I just had, he told me about an invitation for our family.

Husband: "Our family has been invited to one of our new associate's home for dinner tonight. Don't worry..." He smiled knowingly. "...I brought home some flowers to give to them as a gift."

Me: I smiled back. "Perfect...thanks. Please tell everyone to get ready while I go and get ready myself. Oh yes...how far a drive is it to your associate's home?"

Husband: "No drive is required! They live just down the street from us. I just found out earlier today that they had moved into our neighborhood. He has a young family."

Once we were all ready, we left our house to walk over to their house for dinner. To my surprise, it turned out to be the home of the woman and her daughter. Needless to say, she looked quite surprised to see me standing at her doorway again. I could tell that she was forcing herself to smile as she greeted us.

Woman: "Hello. Welcome."

Me: "Well, hello again! Where is that adorable daughter of yours?"

Woman: "She has already been put her into her crib for the night."

After we visited for a short while, dinner was served and was progressing rather uneventfully. However, just as dinner was starting to wrap up, we heard a noise from her daughter's room. Next thing you know, her daughter entered the dining room and came straight over to where I was sitting. She put her arms up for me to pick her up.

Little girl: "Mama! Mama!"

When I picked her up, I looked over at the young couple in puzzlement. I then had a flashback of the park from a couple of years ago. I suddenly remembered that this couple had attended the church event. I started to question my suspicions again when I suddenly felt a strong confirmation from the Lord that I was correct.

Me: "What hospital was your baby born in? I need to see her birth certificate immediately!"

Instead of replying to my requests, they became upset and quickly yelled for us to leave their house. I was about to turn and confront them again when my husband whispered in my ear...

Husband: "This is not the time. We will phone the police as soon as we get home."

After we arrived home, we immediately called the authorities. After a short investigation, they discovered that this couple had indeed stolen our baby daughter at the church event. Our daughter was soon returned to us and I felt so much joy that I can't even describe it. She looked so happy as I held onto her. I never wanted to let her go...

Communion

Dear Father,

I am struggling, worried and in pain! Please help!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Jesus was right in front of me immediately. He was smiling and had such sympathetic eyes for me.

Jesus: "I am glad you came, Erin."

Me: I was looking down. "I am sorry, Lord, but I have been grieving. I love You and I love God the Father, but I am just becoming so distraught and exhausted. I do not know what is to happen next."

Jesus: "You worry about many things. You are on the brink and believe that you will fall over. Do not worry, Erin, as I have you. I told you to have fun. Delight in each other and enjoy this time."

"Why would I purposely deceive you? You and your family live in the light of eternal things. Now, you are at a crossroads. It is important for you to understand how the enemy operates.

"They...he and his workers...thrive on deception and take joy in your slavery. However, please understand that My Father is on the Throne and controls all of it. I have heard your cries and I will release you. While it is already done, you just do not understand the words that I am saying.

"Please find joy. Continue to press into Me and depend on Me. Just remember that 'no' means 'no', 'yes' means 'yes', 'wait' means 'wait' and 'move now' means 'move now'. Remember that 'no answer' also means 'no'. Rest in Me, Erin. Rejoice!

"Oh yes...when I warn you of trouble, ask Me and then take care of this. Do not delay, do not go to bed angry and do not put off 'doing good'. I promise that I will do the same, okay?" He laughed and smiled.

Communion

Dear Father,

I need Your help. I am struggling. I am sick and my heart is pounding out of my chest. I am in grief and at a loss over all that has happened over the last couple of weeks. Father, I feel forsaken. It would be an easy thing for You to help us because You are My Father and You are over all things. Please grant us help. I am overwhelmed. Please, Lord, please!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Jesus was right in front of me immediately. I was crying as He hugged me. I rested my head against His chest. He held my head.

Me: "Lord, Lord, please, I am struggling with these punishing blows. Our family is hurting."

Jesus: "I know. It is darkest right before the dawn. However, I am in you and My streams are in you. You make Me glad, Erin. You will not fall. I will help you at the break of day."

I began to cry even harder.

Jesus: "I know that it is difficult to wait on the living God."

Me: "You call me 'friend', Lord, but it is becoming even worse for me. I thought that You would take care of us."

Jesus: "I have and I will take care of you. I have not left you. You are expecting to be done with trouble, yet your trouble instead multiplies and your enemies continue. Your heart is overloaded and burdened. You are heavy and the cross is difficult to carry. Erin, let Me carry you. I have done this. Will I let you fall?"

Me: "I do not know, Lord. If it benefits to Your glory, then yes. However, please don't! My blood pressure is extremely high. My pain in my body is becoming too great. I feel I am shutting down. I am scared. I want so much to be healed and live. I want so much to see my children be healed. Forgive me, Lord, for all that I have done wrong."

Jesus: "You must know that I love you and that I do not intend to keep you suffering. When all is changed, you will then understand what I did from the beginning to the end and you will be in awe. Your pain in your heart is great. Your grief is even greater.

"I know each tear and every irregular 'miss beat' of your heart. I have not set you up for a fall here. I love you and I have great plans for you, plans to use you and give you hope for a future.

"Now, do not hide from Me. I will do all that I have promised. I have not left you. I will bless you, Erin. Now, rejoice in Me today. Delight yourself in all that you have. I am closing doors and gently removing that which seemed comfortable. Do you remember about a mother eagle and her nest? How does she ready her eaglets to fly?"

Me: "She makes the nest more and more uncomfortable each day so that they will want to leave the nest. They eventually fall, but the mother saves them. This continues until they are able to fly on their own."

Jesus: "Yes, but there is this...in Your case, it is Me that is there to catch you. However, I will eventually take you on the wings of a great eagle and you will fly. While many will then delight in what I have done with you, many others will be terrified."

"Now, uncertainty comes before a big change occurs. You know this. As one door shuts abruptly, another opens. Do not be afraid or look back. Now, rejoice, as I have you. When you press into Me, I return what is lost.

"The enemy is working overtime right now. I tell all of you...do not worry or sin will follow discouragement. Be hopeful instead as I love you and you are Mine. I am about to bless in abundance those I have called and love Me." He smiled.

Me: "Thank You, Lord."

Jesus: "You are welcome. I am about to bless all of you. Now, rejoice!"

He hugged me.

Communion

Dear Father,

Help! Help! Help! We are faced with so many overwhelming attacks that I can barely take it. I don't know what to do. We need help!!!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Jesus was right in front of me and was looking at me with sympathetic eyes.

Me: "Father, we have discovered even more deception in an institution we have to deal with frequently. Lord, why would You allow this?"

Jesus: "Your dealing with this institution is serving a greater purpose than you think. As for your suspicions, they are quite accurate. These are little foxes. Now, Erin, what do little foxes do?"

Me: "I know that they are cunning."

Jesus: "The institution you are dealing with is like Herod. Your main enemy is also like Herod. They enjoy their luxuries. They live in holes. While they can be likeable, make no mistake, they work on a platform of deception. This time, the past time and your current time, you are in the season of foxes. Now, what are foxes known to eat?"

Me: "Well, they are thieves and predators."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but there is more...If you are a vineyard keeper, and you are to Me, you are about to bring in the harvest of the sweetest wine. It is a difficult crop to bring into harvest. Conditions need to be ideal and the picking is done very quickly. Foxes live in or near vineyards. Erin, if I am the Vine and you are My Branches which produce fruit, what gets in the way of this?"

Me: "Foxes, along with anything else, that steals fruit."

Jesus: "Foxes constantly attempt to enter your vineyard. These are the opposite of the good fruits a branch bears...love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control. Erin, protect your crops. It is common to even allow the foxes to take some fruit when you are tired, especially because they seem harmless. Now, let's discuss Ice Wine. How is this harvested?"

Me: "All at once and very quickly. These grapes endure the harshest of conditions."

Jesus: "Yes, but only if they even make it this far..."

Me: "Lord, we are at Your mercy as the foxes are everywhere. What do we do? All we have is in You, Lord. What next?"

Jesus: "I am streamlining your burdens before your delivery. This is the process of examining where you currently are. A Farmer or, better yet, a Vineyard Owner, accesses His Crop and knows instinctively when the grapes are ripe.

"The owner travels down rows daily and prunes any last branches that need to be sacrificed for a better overall yield of harvest. Some fruit can become acidic and cause trouble for the other fruits.

"Just know that I am not toying with any of you, Erin. I love you and I will not let you languish. I will not let you."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but so many of us need answers to our prayers and soon!"

Jesus: He became firm and serious. "I AM Who I say I AM. I am with all of you, but I do not bend to the will of anyone but My Father. I do have mercy and send rain in your drought. Do you not see what I have done here from the beginning? Erin, discouragement can lead to sin. Do not eat this fruit. Do not be discouraged here. Getting your vineyard in order is wise. This removes worry."

Me: "I love You, Lord. You have blessed all of us. While I often feel like we have even been spoiled, I also sometimes feel it is 'just an illusion' until You truly deliver us from our slavery once and for all. For now, we continue to be slaves to this world even though You own all of this."

Jesus: He smiled and 'lightened up'. He knew I was afraid that I had 'overstepped'. "Beautiful are the feet which bring Good News. I have already given you this blessing. I have declared release from your shackles. Do not worry as it comes, understand?"

Me: Crying. "Yes, Lord. I am trying not to doubt. Could You please have mercy on me as I am running on very low fuel right now?"

Jesus: "While this is understandable, just know that the 'situations' you are in will be corrected quickly. Do not worry." He hugged me. "I have you. I will not let one of you fall...not you, not your husband and not your children."

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day. You said to me last week that 'discouragement can lead to sin and often does'. Well, I have been extremely discouraged lately. I am sorry, Father, please forgive me for being so discouraged.

While I can hear Your voice say to me and in me, 'Do not worry, Erin, I have this', I still worry. Even though I know that You 'have this', I am still so overwhelmed. I feel as if I am in a frozen state as my health is poor and my pain is great. On some days, I can barely do the basics here in my home for my family.

Thank You for still continuing to bless me despite my sorrow. Thank You for greeting me with a sympathetic smile and a warm embrace each time we meet. Thank You for helping me realize that, even though I do not deserve Your love, You still love me no matter what.

As we are right now, I know that we only see through 'dimly lit lenses' and that we can only see that which You reveal. When I am down and discouraged, I know that I see even less clearly, but, in reality, I don't even put 'my glasses' on at all. While we have pursued You, as have my children, we seem to now be falling into deep despair.

If this was 'just me', I would be content with simply living out my days here in the 'land of the trees' and continuing on my course far away from my enemies. However, Father, I have children, children that are really young adults now, who are making plans and being led by a distant evil voice that is calling them into a world far removed from me.

Oh Father, my two sons will have such a difficult life socially because of their autism. Even so, they hold onto Your promises of healing tightly, as do I. However, my despair and hopelessness increases each day now because I can do nothing to comfort them.

I would feel such relief if I was at least able to promise them a date for when 'normal' will finally come, but I cannot. While all of our hopes remain in You and You alone, I am sad when they are sad.

In just a few months, all three of our sons will want to move on and enter 'the world' if You do not do something soon. The uncertainty is difficult on us as both my husband and I have come to fully realize that Your timing simply cannot be measured or understood. As such, we will simply continue to go forward as per Your Will as best we can.

I really need to see the promises You have given us come to fruition soon. My dwindling health has resulted in so much discouragement that I am having a hard time fighting against it. Father, I would even be willing to forfeit Your promises for me if it would mean that those around me would soon receive Your promises for them in return.

Father, please do not allow us to come this far only to not let us see You deliver Your promises. Our entire household is set on You. The Nest's hearts and hopes are set on You. My oldest son has even finished reading almost the entire Bible now even though he just started reading Your Word a month ago. Please, Father, please help all of us soon.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Jesus was right in front of me and was looking at me with sympathetic eyes.
Jesus: "I have this, Erin. I have your sons. I know each of them. Please do not hold onto them so tightly that I cannot work. Release your children to Me and trust Me with them. I am their Good Physician and their Savior and I love them. I know each of them and have entrusted you to care for My sons. Release them to Me, Erin. All will be okay and I will not harm them. Come on, Erin, please release all three to Me right now."

Me: "Yes, Father. Yes, Lord. Please forgive me."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, I forgive you. I call you 'My friend', Erin, and I love you. I promised you that I will do what I say. While I will do all of this, Erin, you must let go of them now. I have you. Please trust Me."

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "You are discouraged right now as so much has converged upon you and all with staggering weight. You cannot carry this, so give this to Me. Although the enemy convinces you at times that I am not caring about your troubles, I always care. Give each of your burdens to Me. I will do you no harm nor will I allow you to be destroyed."

"While I am often difficult to understand, just know that I have not called you Home and that it is I that has promised your healing. Now, when has the enemy truly harmed you since moving to the 'land of the trees'? Instead, there have only been threats from the enemy.

"The enemy howls at you from a distant shore. You occasionally bend your ears to his calls, especially when you are weak, tired and immobile. He then attacks your vulnerabilities and preys on your weaknesses. His noise can then block My still small voice in you.

"Now, Erin, tell your children the following: 'Even youths have sleepless nights. The enemy is there to entice and confuse you. The enemy seeks to confound that which is 'good', especially now that I am in the midst of you.'"

Me: "Lord, since You are so much stronger than us, will You please rise up? Will You please lead the counter attack, Lord? Oh Father, please!"

Jesus: "Let Me, Erin, as I am ready. Are you?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. However, can You please rise up soon? Can You soon lift up our weary heads? Can You soon give us a miracle, a spark or a great sign of Your presence? Can You give all of us this soon? Please, Lord, as we love You so much."

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for loving me. Thank You for getting us a fair deal with one of the three institutions we are dealing with right now. Thank You for removing this burden from us!

Father, we are at Your complete mercy. My blood pressure is extremely high and my pain level is great. Really, we are all in need of Your mercies and miracles. All I can do is cling to Your promises, Jesus.

All I can do is write down my dreams and give everything to You. Father, You are our best option as You are fair. While You have entrusted a lot to me, I feel unworthy. If I really am unworthy, how can I be trusted by You with even more?

The only thing that I truly know is that I love You with all of my heart and soul. Father, I give all that we have to You. All of this is Yours as we are nothing without You.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Jesus was standing in front of me and reached for my hands. I was still in my disabled earthly state as I stood in front of Him.

Jesus: Smiling. "So, Erin, why are you so distraught?"

Me: "While I know that You have assured me that I should feel this way, I still feel unworthy. While I wish I could remain positive, my continuing pain is so discouraging."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, has your worry added even a single day to your life?"

Me: "No, Lord, but all of this is just too much for me to bear. I am not sure..." I stopped.

Jesus: "Erin, please finish your sentence..." He smiled tenderly at me.

Me: "I can't speak it, Lord. I stand before You as I am and the worst that I have ever been. What can I say? I have asked, begged, cried and pleaded for our children and my husband. While so many people on the Nest are waiting for what You will do with me, there really is nothing yet that I can show them."

Jesus: "Erin, reread what My Words are. Remember that I look at things from a different viewpoint, not to harm you, but for your good. I will soon restore all that the enemy has stolen from all of you and multiply it. You are now downcast. Why, Erin? Rejoice instead for your burdensome stone was removed. I forced the hands of the institution I had called to make things right.

"They had options, Erin, and some of these options were to stop dealing with you completely. I then reminded the company of the adverse effects of backing out of the contract based on the future. They then thought it would be better to keep peace and come up with a workable solution. This was not at their suggestion, but at Mine.

"You must also understand that you were used as an arrow in this circumstance...a sharp one. You will soon be a visible miracle. Now, are you happy with the outcome?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, thank You!"

Jesus: "I know your worth to Me and you are highly valued and highly 'appraised'." He laughed. "All of this trouble is only temporary. Now, I am glad that you both decided on a future plan in case I tarry. As you know, I do not, but I have still asked for you to continue living."

I wanted to speak, but looked down at my hands instead. I remained silent as tears streamed down my cheeks.

Me: "Oh Lord..." I paused and then changed what I was going to say. "...thank You for all that You do for us."

Jesus: "Erin, I can read your thoughts. You are hurt."

Me: "Yes, Lord, I am as I feel passed over right now. Could You please just forget about me and heal those around me instead? I will gladly give up all You have planned for me if You would heal them in return, but especially my two sons."

Jesus: "Oh Erin, it is a sad day when you no longer ask Me for healing."

Me: "It just hurts too much to keep asking. You know how much I love You and this makes me feel as if I have been rejected. I am no longer sure that I will even be here on Earth to witness my healing. I get so excited, but then..."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as you will live 'healed' here. I know your pain. I know that your rejection is discouraging. I know your desires. Now, can you hang onto Me and cling to My Rock a bit longer?"

Me: "Well, Lord, I really have no other options as You are my only hope."

Jesus: "Then you are in a good place. You are My witness. When I fulfill My promises, you will then know what I have done from the beginning to the end. For now, you are unable to see the forest from the trees. One day, and very soon, you will dance before Me. However, for now, do not worry."

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for both answered prayer and unanswered prayer. You are amazing! You specifically protected us from a potentially very bad situation and in a very unorthodox way. Thank You for protecting us from the schemes of the wicked. You are My Father, Creator, Redeemer and Friend.

Since purchasing a couple of birdfeeders a few months back, I have been given a special gift from You. I have been enjoying feeding the birds and small animals You send daily. It has been a source of laughter for me during a time when I do not have much joy. As You know, Father, pain has a way of displacing joy.

An unusual pecking order was revealed to me earlier today. It all started with me watching the animals and birds fend against each other as they prepared for the soon return of winter. As this 'threat' is looming ever closer, I noticed that they are no longer a 'respector' of each other's food.

I first watched as a little bird came around that looked similar to a nut hatch, but also somewhat like a miniature owl. It then proceeded to take some of the nuts and dried fruit from our feeder to hide them in the tree bark.

It was only then that I noticed that the woodpeckers were up in the trees observing what this little nut hatch was doing. After the nut hatch left, the woodpeckers would go over to their 'hiding places' and stole what they had stored.

What the woodpeckers didn't realize was that there were also three squirrels watching what they were doing. After the woodpeckers left, the squirrels would go over to their 'hiding places' and stole what they had stored. I then could not help but laugh when I then saw these three squirrels steal from each other at every chance.

Little did the squirrels know that a grouping of crows was watching them diligently from the trees. After the squirrels left, the crows swooped in and stole that which the squirrels had buried. I knew that crows were clever, but this was downright diabolical.

At one point, I put some stale cheese bread out. I then watched as the Blue Jays, squirrels and crows jostled for this 'special prize'. However, everything came to a 'screeching halt' when a pair of foxes showed up and took most of it. All of the birds and the squirrels quickly scattered as these two foxes ate all of the bread.

I then laughed with delight when I noticed that nothing seemed to stop the chickadees from stocking up. They chirped happily as they collected the tiny seeds that the others didn't seem to want. What the others thought was worthless was their treasure.

It seems like all of the above scenarios each represent our lives here on Earth in different ways. We toil. We work hard. We give. We earn and save for future needs. I believe that the Lord showed me this amazing cycle of life before my eyes as an orchestrated lesson for me.

Even though much of this seemed so cruel and heartless, each animal and each bird somehow still seemed to be fed their proper portion. Some gathered and worked for it, while others watched, hunted and stole it. The crows seemed to be the most cunning of the bunch.

In so many ways, I feel most like the tiny nut hatch. He stores as best he can, but he was only able to hide and keep a small percentage. The rest was stolen by cunning foes when its guard was down.

When enduring times of trouble, and using my daughter's term, 'the struggle is real'! I then tend to reflect on where I am, where I once was and where I would like to be. I then watch and wonder, 'When, Lord?' I especially do this when I see others that I had once known have thriving ministries. I then ask, 'But what of these dreams, Lord?'

I have been down this road of agony before as I look back at my lost years and my long struggles. When I do this, it becomes easy to feel imprisoned 'in the pain'. The very definition of disabled is 'a person having a physical or mental condition that limits movements, senses or activities.'

To summarize, I believe this means 'out of action'. This is such a sad state to be in. Each day is like the last and some days are even worse than others. It is a slow drain, not only to my physical health, but also to my spiritual joy. It also affects those around me even though I try my hardest to mask the pain I am in.

We have taken the last couple of weeks to try to come up with a plan for our future as best we can. We felt this was necessary as I am sure that my disability will stop again for the next several months within the next couple of weeks. L&I's pattern has been to cut me off just before Christmas and they have done this every year so far.

There will be difficult days ahead for us. However, I know that the Lord has a plan. Over the years, I have learned that there are several ways to approach God. Each circumstance is different and I have used each of the following at various times in my life depending on the particular circumstance...

- Option 1 – God does everything: Put full faith in God that He will do everything. You do nothing and remain waiting even when you know that God has called you to examine various options to bring before Him. When nothing then happens, you blame God and lament that 'God is the Punisher'. Obviously, this method is not recommended.
- Option 2 – You do everything: Do absolutely everything on your own and then only come to God after you have messed everything up. In this, our actions are void of God. When things go wrong, you then blame God as not being 'our rescuer'. Obviously, this method is also not recommended.
- Option 3 – Work as a team with God: I have found that this last one is the best and the only one I recommend. This treats God as 'our deliverer'. We do all that we can to prepare for various scenarios knowing full well that God's Will be done on Earth as it is in Heaven. This takes patience as we present various scenarios before God after doing our part. When I have followed this option and have then waited on His perfect timing, He has never disappointed me...well, as long as His 'yes' meant 'yes' and His 'no' meant 'no. When His answer is 'no answer', this means 'no' or 'not yet' and can often lead to frustration and, yes, disappointment.

For a few years now, but especially since coming to the 'land of the trees' to be with my husband, we have paused prior to proceeding to see what God would have us do. We have asked God for direction and He has given us just that. While sometimes His direction is hard to take, we know that He is always right and always perfect.

That doesn't mean we don't have work to do. Far from it! We still have plenty of work to do. We then have to continue on with 'The Race'. We try our best to save some money for emergencies, but emergencies are hard to know for timing or magnitude. Often, we are completely left at God's mercy and depend on Him for deliverance.

Little would I know that, when I finished the above, our water pump would stop working just a few days later! This is no small deal as our water pump controls our heat, our sewer and our water. It is very hard to function without this (obviously), so this is REALLY scary. Keep this in mind as this serves as the backdrop for the below visit..

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my husband and our children. Please forgive me as I am worrying...again...as we have no water or heat and the cold air of winter has now arrived.

With the upcoming holiday, there is no guarantee that we will have service restored anytime soon. However, there is something worse. This type of problem can be expensive to fix and we no longer have the means to pay for this. Given all that this pump controls, this is something that we cannot simply put off or ignore until later.

Father, You have given me several warnings of witchcraft coming against us. In my dreams, we have overcome all of these attempts to destroy us. It matters not if You commanded our trouble or allowed it as, either way, it has come. I am not sure how we are to overcome this latest attempt, but I pray that You will somehow give us a way.

My blood pressure has already been unusually high so I also pray that this doesn't make it even worse. This is the type of trouble that I can physically feel as the house cannot function without this pump. Please help us soon! I am knocking on Your door and asking You for help.

You recently helped us get out of trouble with one of the institutions we were dealing with, and in a miraculous way, so I am asking for a 'repeat' with this trouble. I feel ashamed, Father, as I fear we have not been able to save enough after dealing with some of our recent troubles. Depending on the issue, this could be very expensive.

Are You upset with my recent discouragement and resulting lack of faith caused by my pain? While I am trying my best to be positive and to 'rejoice', my emotions are still 'all over the place' and have been for quite some time. My ministry has still not grown as You have promised that it someday would. Even though it has been caused, in part at least, by my pain, even the dreams have slowed to a trickle, just like our faucets did last night and continue to do today.

While we no longer have any water at our house, I also now feel as if my vessel, my body, is emptying out from the discouragement resulting from all of this. It just feels like 'too much' for me to handle, even though I know You will make sure it never truly is.

When things like this are allowed to happen to us, I then even wonder if I am helping the enemy lead Your sheep to the slaughter. You call me 'friend', yet trouble still comes to us. However, this is more than usual and I am worried. Why? Why, Lord?

There are still no publishers 'knocking at our door', even though I know these dreams would do so much and are needed by so many. Each one of my children are also dealing with things that I really want to help them with, but simply cannot in our current state without Your divine assistance.

Then there is me. My heart is grieving over all of this. Surely, Lord, You are really there and not just in my imagination that interacts with You daily. Even if this really is 'just in my imagination', then even my delusions love You with all of their heart.

All of this makes me feel that perhaps I really am delusional. I question if there can even be any other explanation. Will I wither away here, leaving no real footprint? All of this makes me feel like I am in last place in a great race and that I am no one to You.

I cry out to You, Father. If I am delusional, can You please at least have mercy on me as a delusional person? I remain 'crazily' in love with You and this only continues to grow with each passing day, but I am struggling. I just do not truly know anymore as my pain feeds my doubts and increases my discouragement at every turn.

My whole house truly believes that You are God over all, yet I now find myself questioning whether You will truly be here for us. Father, I am so sorry that I doubt, but I feel so unsure right now. I am in crisis right now and need You more than ever.

Our pump is still not working. It refused to turn on again this morning. Since our home is a type of vessel, our water pump is a type of 'heart'. It moves water throughout our house. The water resides in a well, but the pump is required to bring the water to our vessel. The pump is required to keep all of our systems flowing and it is dead right now.

Father, You are the 'Well Spring' of all our lives. You created Jesus, our Pump Who brings the 'Living Water' to our empty vessels. This is the water that brings us life, the comforting Words of Your love.

It is only then that we can truly live. We can then have refreshing water, like a spring fed river, moving through our bodies...and our homes. Please forgive us for not always remembering this and being grateful for all that You do for us.

Please forgive my inability to always be thankful for Your grace, love and generosity. Perhaps my last dream about the dying dove was actually about my joy being devoured. Whether it was or not, I am sorry. Oh Father, I am so sorry.

If I really am a delusional woman, I am still thankful to You. You have continuously treated me like a Your prize and not like a 'widow forgotten'. While it has been around 5 years and 50 days now since the beginning of this ministry, I feel like I have only been able to touch but a smattering of people with these dreams.

While this 'smattering of people' may be just a few, they have been such a gift from You. Without these 'few', I would surely have given up a long time ago. However, I am hurting right now. So many here on this Nest are hurting right now. Father, we are looking for a miracle from You. So many of us now need this and 'really, really soon'!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I found myself on 'the ladder' to the portal to Heaven. When I looked down, all I could see was a very dark landscape. I became scared when I then noticed that my hands were once again small like a little child's hands. While I could see the light of the portal above me, there was only darkness below me.

I suddenly froze and could neither go up or down the ladder. While this only lasted for but a moment, I thankfully soon heard a whistle from above. When I looked up, I saw 'Breakthrough', an angel that I had spent so much time with in the past.

As I looked up into his eyes, he reached his hand down in order to help me up. At first I was afraid to let go of the ladder, but I soon 'went for it' and reached up so that he could pull me up to safety. Once safely through the portal, I was able to look down at myself more carefully.

I was wearing a small tunic, almost like a dress, made all of white. My feet were bare and I felt wobbly as I stood there. Breakthrough pointed down the path and I saw Jesus sitting on a rock waiting for me with a smile on His face.

He waved for me to come to Him. As I was still a toddler, I had trouble walking towards Him with any speed. I then somehow 'found my feet' and was then able to run straight to Him. When I came close, He stood up and lifted me up onto His lap.

He cradled me as I hugged Him tightly around His neck. I was crying and heard myself sobbing out, 'Hayah! Hayah! Hayah!' No other words seemed to be able to escape as I hugged Him even tighter.

Jesus: "I am glad that you came to Me, Erin. I missed you. Come and walk with Me."

He reached for my hand and we started to walk together down a beautiful path. The path was a bit uneven at first and I struggled, but it soon turned soft under my feet. With each step, I noticed that I started to grow slightly older. Tears were streaming down my cheeks. As we walked together, I started to 'mature' with every step.

When I had 'matured' to about thirteen years old, I turned to Him and spoke. I was surprised to hear myself say something so very similar to what a typical teenager would say. I had forgotten what it was like to be a teenager.

Me: Impatiently. "Lord, when will we get to where You are taking me?"

Jesus: Smiling and laughing. "In just a little while, Erin. For now, just enjoy the walk."

We continued on, but the path soon started to go uphill. We were now on a very steep and rocky road. Each switchback was another year that came and went. The path was becoming even trickier, if not 'dicey'. I was now around thirty years old.

Me: "Lord, I really do not like this path that we are on right now. I love You, Lord. I want so much to know You, but I do not understand all of this."

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh Erin, keep going with Me. I am here. We are walking and climbing together. While you don't know Me yet as much as you soon will, I already know you. Erin, you can do this."

To my surprise, the climb then became even more treacherous. I noticed a baby hiding behind a rocky crevice. When I saw that it was my oldest son as a baby, I instinctively picked him up. I then started to worry as the winds had picked up and it was now raining. I panicked until I saw that Jesus was still right there beside me.

While I was now having a lot of trouble climbing as I was holding my son now, I knew that going back down would even be more difficult, if not impossible. I was also now limping as I had somehow hurt myself along the way as we were walking.

As the storm picked up, I could hear another baby crying out in the distance. As my oldest son was now a toddler, I knew that I would have trouble carrying both him and another baby. When I found this baby, I only then saw that he was my youngest son.

He was extremely small and exposed and I quickly took him into my arms. As I was already having trouble carrying my other son, I knew two would be impossible for me to carry. I froze in my tracks and started trying to figure out all of this on my own. Thankfully, I felt my hand being gently squeezed by Jesus and turned to Him.

Jesus: "Erin, I will carry them. They are mine. I am here. Do not forget!"

I looked up at the dark sky and, just then, the sun broke through. While it felt as if I had only rested there with Jesus next to me for just a few short minutes, I was now 37 years old. My oldest son was now three and my youngest son was now one.

We then had some time to laugh together. We were joyful and had such promise. As we sat there with Jesus, everything now seemed so 'clear'. However, the winds suddenly picked up and I became worried again.

Jesus: "Come on, Erin, we must keep going."

I then saw a tiny bundle straight ahead of me. It was yet another baby! When I came closer, I recognized her as my daughter. She had a beautiful smile on her face and was bundled 'in light'. I picked her up. I was so happy to have her, along with my sons.

Jesus: "I have given you these lives 'for a while'. These are your gifts to care for. I will help you. I am here with you. However, things will now become even more difficult from here. Are you ready?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, but it has already been so difficult. However, since You are here with us, I know that it will be okay."

I looked down and noticed that I was now about forty years old. Jesus reached for my daughter and was now effortlessly carrying all three of 'my' children. I am not sure how He was able to do this, but He did.

As we continued to walk, the path now began to twist and turn and the terrain was increasingly difficult to navigate. I became concerned as Jesus had put 'my' children down and was now letting them walk on their own. I was relieved when I saw that each of them was continuing to hold onto the hem of His garment as they walked.

I then saw my children walking and climbing this difficult road along with me. I would then double check to make sure that each of them continued to hold onto Jesus' hem. I panicked a few times when I could not see Him in the storms. However, when the storms temporarily broke, I then saw that my children were still holding onto Him.

At times, I would then lose sight of one or more of my children. However, they would soon reappear. I would then panic again as I could barely see Jesus, but then I would once again realize that He was still there. Well, really, He had never left.

At one point, I could no longer see my children, but could only hear them. Since I could still hear them, I knew that they were still there even as the storms raged. I suddenly became faint and fell down on the path. I was gone. When I woke up, Jesus was there in front of me with all of my children.

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, we are still here. Get up. Get up and join us."

While I had been hurt from my fall, I suddenly and unexpectedly then grew stronger when I saw that my children were still there with Jesus. Even though both of my sons now looked as if they had now been 'wounded' as well, they also continued to walk.

As we walked, I could now see three separate and distinct landscapes in the distance. The first landscape was a desert. The second landscape was covered in trees. The third landscape was a combination of the other two landscapes.

Jesus: "Do you see where we are?"

I must have looked too confused to answer Him as each of my children then chimed in and answered His question for me.

My oldest son: "The first landscape is a desert."

My youngest son: "The second landscape is a land made of trees."

My daughter: "The third landscape is a place our hearts will never forget."

Me: "Oh Lord, while I am really not sure about these three landscapes, I am especially not sure about the first landscape."

Jesus: Looking at 'my' children: "Well, are you up for the adventure? Children?"

My oldest son: Smiling. "I say 'yes!'"

My youngest son: Also smiling. "I say 'yes, please!'"

My daughter: Laughing, but all three now were. "Oh mom, this will be a great adventure!"

Jesus addressed each of us at different times when He then spoke...

- To all of us: "This will be very difficult!"
- To my two sons: "In the first landscape, the two of you will be apart for a time, time and times."
- To my daughter: "However, you will mostly live with your mother at all times."
- To all three children: "Do not worry as all of you will be with your mother for the second landscape. I will even send someone in to help all of you."
- To all of us: "So...are you ready?"

I was still really not that excited about any of this, especially the first landscape, so I said 'yes' with reluctance even as my children readily agreed. However, I soon decided that I would indeed go along, even though I was still reluctant.

I held Jesus' hand and the children held onto His garment as we continued to walk along the path. We soon came to a deep and wide river. It was raging wildly and completely blocked our path. It was insurmountable and I immediately knew that we would not be able to cross this river on our own.

Jesus: "I will take your oldest son across first."

He took my oldest son and effortlessly started to cross the river. When I could no longer see them, I started to cry out with fear. All three of us then started to cry out together.

My oldest son must have heard us crying as I then heard him crying back to us. Though it was hard to hear him cry, I somehow found this to be quite a relief as at least I knew that he was still being carried through the river by the Lord.

Jesus: Calling back to us. "Do not worry, Erin, as I have him."

I then saw Jesus on the other side of the river. He was still carrying my son. I then saw Him put him down in a beautiful sitting area. I then somehow knew that He had then instructed him not to worry and that He would soon be back with the rest of us.

Before I knew it, He was back on this side of the river with the three of us. My youngest son had now started to cry again as he was now missing his older brother.

Jesus: "Do not worry. I will take you to your brother now."

Jesus scooped him up into His mighty arms and started crossing the raging river again. My son looked back at me, smiled and waved, but soon disappeared. We once again saw that He had made it safely across to my other son.

My daughter and I were soon crying at the bank of the river. We were missing both of them. It seemed to be taking 'forever' for Jesus to come back to get us.

While waiting for His return, my heart broke. There were many rocks hurled at us while we were waiting there. At times, we were in darkness and had very little food. I was afraid that my daughter would be hurt if it were to be determined that something was 'overly wrong' with my health.

The river then calmed down. We stopped crying as soon as we saw that Jesus was now coming back for us. We decided to 'let go' of our baggage in order to lighten our load before He arrived. By the time that we had sold off almost all of our more valuable items, I had somehow forgotten that Jesus was on the way back to get us.

When Jesus finally came for us, I could barely recognize Him anymore as my eyesight had grown dim from all of my tears. While we were still holding onto Jesus, we had almost lost all hope and had even started to wonder if He had forgotten about us altogether. We were instantly revived when the Voice of Jesus once again called to us.

Jesus: "Come on! It is time to get up!"

While I still could not see clearly, I somehow knew that there was now a bridge across the river to the desert. We crossed over and then spent two years before Jesus returned my youngest son to me.

I also desperately wanted my oldest son to be returned to me, but this no longer even seemed possible to me. I was slowly giving up all hope of this ever happening.

After two years of my youngest son being returned to me, I had now given up on my oldest son even being returned. I was now in despair. In this despair, I finally released my life fully to Him and for His purposes completely.

After I had finally done this, the Heavens suddenly opened up all around me. He then gave me these dreams, which was then followed by a renewed hope. However, I was still anxiously waiting for the miracle of the return of my oldest son. It was finally time.

Jesus: "Erin, it is time. Are you ready to be taken away for a little longer?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. Please get us out of this desert and into a safe place."

Soon after, we were moved to the 'land of the trees'. This happened in August 2014. As promised, the Lord had sent us help. My soon-to-be husband had been sent to help us in our escape. After the Lord helped him rescue us, all of my children came home. They have been with me ever since.

The winding roads then continued at our new home. While we have had difficulties, we have also found peace, joy, laughter and healing. We are healing. While we have not been healed physically, the break from our enemies has been 'mentally' healing for all of us.

Jesus: "I am soon to strengthen you, Erin, as the next part of your journey does not come with a 'guidebook'. Do not worry though as I will be in you. I will be your 'user guide', so do not worry. Oh yes...I will also be your instructor."

Received on Monday, November 20, 2017

We received the news this morning that the repair of our water system will cost several thousands of dollars. This news was very unsettling and I could not help but be worried... yet again. I went to Him with even more urgency than normal...if this is even possible...

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Please help us. We are without heat, water and sewer and there is no end in sight. As You know, Lord, we have five children here and the weather is now getting colder. Our house no longer has any heat. We need You, Father!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Me: Crying. "Father, You know all that has happened to us in the last few days. Will You not help us?"

Jesus: "Erin, why are you worried about heat or water? Have I not always provided for you, even in your darkest days? Did I send you to the grave? Did I take away your ability to function? No, I did not. Please come to Me when you are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest.

"I am with you and your children. I am with your 'husband-warrior' and he is My friend. Just relax. Breathe. Be thankful. I will do all that I have promised. You will not be harmed. I love you. Now, Erin, remember to 'live'. Get up, live and breathe.

“Do not worry, Erin, as I will send help to you. I am here with you. I have not forgotten you. I will call out to those who look to Me through My work in you. All is about to change!”

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that You have done here. It is such a blessing. You have delivered us from trouble and humbled us as a household. Please bless each person who has given gifts to us with 1000 times more. Please also take my offerings and bless those I have given to 1000 times more.

I cannot thank You enough for their generosity and for providing enough to give us our water and heat back. I am overwhelmed by the love and warmth we have been blessed with. For me, Father, it was as if my body, my vessel, had gone dry and even my hopes had withered with the ensuing cold.

The cold in our house had brought so much pain to my body that I had felt that I did not even want to keep going. I had lost hope and my heart grieved at my hopeless state. It was also difficult to see my children so discouraged as they were also wondering why You had allowed this to happen. Your ways then started to come into focus.

By day 3, all of us, but especially our children, fully realized just how important water is. At this point, the lack of heat even became somewhat secondary to them. I had later found out that each of our sons had taken a few turns at praying over the broken pump, sometimes together and sometimes on their own.

While the situation had been serious, our sons doing this somehow made my heart glad. While their prayers did not change our situation as it was not in Your timing, I was happy to know that they still continued to pray to You in the hopes that it would turn back on. Father, they did not lose faith in Your power even when their prayers 'didn't work' on 'their schedule'.

By day 4, all of us started to become a bit sick, but especially two of our children. Despite using antibacterial wipes and other similar things to clean with instead of our nonexistent water, they still managed to contract cold and flu-like symptoms. Thankfully, none of these symptoms lasted long and did not become overly serious.

While my husband and I felt these symptoms 'coming after us' as well, we were somehow able to fight off any possible resulting illness for the entire week. Thank You, Father, for protecting us! In the end, this was used to take all of us on a type of 'stress journey', a journey with many highs and lows.

On one of the nights, the temperature of our house dropped to a rather chilly 53 degrees. As the resulting cold kept me up for a lot of this night, I used this time to walk through the house praying to You for relief.

The very next day, You brought the sun out and the home temperature rose to a comfortable 68 degrees. Thank You, Father, for sending us the sun...and Your Son. After quite a few mini-battles and mini-victories, we finally were completely 'back to normal' on Friday afternoon.

Our water was running again and we once again had consistent heat. All in all, this lasted a total of just a few hours short of 6 days and 6 nights. Thank You, Father! Without You and those You called to help us, we would still be in great trouble today.

When the water pump was first fixed, the water was still not fit for use for a short time. The men had to take out pipe that went down 450 feet in our well to replace our water pump down there. As instructed, we then had to let the water run for several hours to clear. By Thanksgiving night, the water cleared and we could have our showers.

While it will still take a bit longer to fully recover from our losses, You have already restored our faith in You in our household. This ordeal helped each of us become much more thankful than anytime that I can recall. Thanks to You, we had water for Thanksgiving and we were able to take warm showers that night. Thank You!

While this was truly a special day for all of us, it was especially special for me. All of this truly helped me to realize that we could not do anything to fix our system on our own. This situation also made me realize just how vulnerable we all are and how reliant we are on You despite the conveniences and services offered by our modernized world.

As a result, I am so thankful today! I am so thankful for everything that You do for us...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was walking on a path in God's Garden. The sun was warm and the day was beautiful and...well, perfect...as per usual. There were blossoming trees everywhere and the air was filled with the sounds of birds and running water.

I looked behind me to see where the sound of the running water was coming from. It was only then that I noticed the most beautiful snowy landscape there. I smiled at the sight of beautiful white powdery snow gently falling to the ground. I smiled even more when I then noticed deer, rabbits, squirrels and other little animals playing in the snow.

The paths in this wintery landscape were lined with trees illuminated by the most amazing lights. It was truly breathtaking. As I walked down one of the paths, I came upon a most unusual phenomenon, a phenomenon that you will never see on Earth.

The path that I was standing on now had a beautiful winter landscape on one side and a 'just as beautiful', but in a different way, spring landscape on the other side. I started to laugh with joy and stretched my arms out as wide as they could go.

This was so unique...I now had one hand in the winter landscape and one hand in the spring landscape. I had so much joy as I marveled at this beautiful sight. My joy only escalated when I then noticed that these cute little animals were starting to gather around me. I then heard someone clearing their throat behind me. It was Jesus!

Jesus: Laughing. "So, Erin, are you having fun standing 'between the seasons'?"

I leapt into His arms and hugged Him with all of my might. He hugged me back. I felt safer than at any time I have ever felt before and more so than I can even describe. It was completely unlike anything on Earth, a place where danger always looms. I laughed again when I noticed that all of the animals had now gathered around us.

Me: "Oh, please forgive me, Lord, for I had mistakenly thought that the animals had come over to greet me. I now realize that they had actually come over to greet You as they saw You standing there with me. Lord, why are there seasons here in Heaven?"

Jesus: "Well, Erin, each of the seasons are good, as are all things in My Garden."

Me: "Oh Lord, all of this makes me so incredibly happy! I just love the seasons! Even so, I must admit that the end of fall and the coming of the winter cold can sometimes make me sad."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, you never have to worry about Heavenly winters. Now, step over here and touch the snow."

We stepped into the wintery landscape together and I touched the snow. To my surprise, the snow was not at all uncomfortable to touch even though it was still cool.

Me: "Wow, Lord, there is no need for gloves here!"

Jesus: Laughing. "Hmm...are you saying that 'the gloves are off' here?"

Me: "Are we now going to box each other 'with the gloves off'? Oh no, Lord, is this what You mean? If so, I would really rather not."

I was laughing as I said this, but I must admit that I was still a touch worried about the prospect.

Jesus: "Well, how about if you 'box with Me' with honesty instead? Go ahead, Erin, be honest with Me. Go ahead and give Me your best shot. I can take it."

The animals all quickly scattered as soon as He said this. Since He was smiling as He said this, I somehow knew that He had told them to do this, not out of fear, but to make me laugh. Despite His best attempt to make me laugh, I started to do quite the opposite. My lips quivered and tears began to stream down my cheeks.

Me: "Oh Lord, what can I say other than that I am so sorry?"

Jesus: "You are sorry? Why, Erin? Why are you sorry?"

I thought for a moment and was going to say something, but I suddenly got scared about what I wanted to say to Him. My fear then quickly turned into worry. He nodded at me for me to continue and I took a deep breath. I decided to continue.

Me: "When I was unable to do anything about our recent situation on my own, I started to beat myself up over it instead of immediately trusting that You would help me. You would think that I would have learned by now, but I obviously have not. Oh Father, I am so sorry for doing this yet again!"

Jesus: "Hmm...so, Erin, who am I to you?"

Me: "You are my every breath. You are my best friend. You have given me a friendship that simply cannot even be measured in any earthly terms."

Jesus: He pretended to look hurt. "Well, Erin, we must not be very close friends if you did not come to Me for help right away."

Me: "You are right, Lord, and please forgive me for saying this, but I sometimes wonder if we really are 'that close'."

I gasped and was shocked at myself for saying this to Him. I immediately clamped up and looked down at my feet. Jesus gently lifted my chin so that my eyes were looking directly into His. He again nodded for me to continue.

Me: "Lord, I know that You know everything in advance, yet You did not even bother to share with me that this trouble was coming. You allowed, and not just me but our entire household, to come into trouble when You knew that we could do nothing about it. This first wave of trouble was then followed by an equally troubling sneaker wave.

"More waves then followed and the undertow then dragged me on the bottom of the ocean...at least for a while. I knew You could fix all of this supernaturally, perfectly and immediately, but You didn't. Because You allowed this, Lord, my body is still aching as a result. Where were You while I was tumbling on the ocean floor?"

He was still smiling at me, but now with even more sympathy. To my surprise, He was not angry with me at all. Instead, He took my chin and turned it to look at my cheek. He then turned it again to look at the other cheek and then back at the first cheek. He was pretending to inspect 'the damage' even though I knew that my cheeks are perfected here in Heaven.

Jesus: "Hmm, let Me see. Yes, your cheeks do look a bit rosy. They even look a touch sand blasted...well, down there on Earth anyway, right?"

Me: I was now smiling and laughing. "Oh Lord, how could I ever truly be angry with You? I may be upset with you at times, but even this makes me feel humbled later on by the guilt for ever feeling this way in the first place. Oh, who am I kidding? I simply just can't seem to keep myself from doing this at times. I am so sorry for doing this."

Jesus: "Well, instead of us boxing with our gloves off, why don't we wrestle instead? So, Erin, are you ready to take Me on?"

Since He was smiling and laughing as He said this, I knew that He was good-naturedly kidding with me in order to make me laugh again. Well, guess what? I instead started to cry...yes, once again. Sigh...why do I do this? Well, even though He knew I was, and am still, like this, He still allows me these visits. Oh, how I love His grace, a grace that simply defies what we are capable of even understanding!

Me: "Oh Lord, I am truly unable to take anyone on in this condition and certainly not You!"

Jesus: "Erin, do you still not understand what I was doing when I allowed all of this to happen to you and your household?"

Me: "While I know that I should by now, I do not fully understand. Well, actually, Lord, I really do not have much understanding at all."

Jesus: "Oh Erin, thank you for your honesty. I will now ask you a few questions to help you understand..."

- Was your family's faith not strengthened by this?
- Did I not use this to revive those in your house who were starting to fall asleep?
- Did I not then use you as My arrow for those outside of your house?
- Was there not soon an outpouring of love for you by your friends, friends that come for seed at the nest that I have provided for you?"

Me: "Oh yes, Lord, yes to all of it! You did all of this so perfectly, yet I am so quick to not see all that You have done for us. Thank You!"

Jesus: "When I send help, do not then worry that you are a burden. Erin, please do not question your worth again. I call upon the hearts of those who are Mine and, yes, even those who are not. While you worry about many things, Erin, remember that all of the sparrows are Mine. Do I not care when even one has trouble?"

"Erin, you give out seed every time you feel Me place this upon your heart to do so. Do you not know that it is Me Who places this desire in you? When you then follow Me in doing this, does this not then bring joy both to those whom give and to those who receive?

"Erin, I tell you the truth...I give generously and will multiply that which was given a 1000 fold more. You give food to the animals that I send to your yard and seed to the sparrows that I send to your nest, the nest that I have given you.

"Now, Erin..." He smiled and gently nudged me. "...do you remember what recently happened when you were sick for a few days and in too much pain to put food or seed out?"

Me: Smiling. "Oh yes, Lord! I heard a knock at our front door and Zoey came to the door with me and was barking. When I turned the corner to look out the door, Zoey immediately stopped barking and I stood there motionless and in shock.

"We then watched in shock as a little grey squirrel knocked on the glass of the front door. He then pressed his nose against the glass and looked right at us. After he repeated this a few times, the shock finally wore off of Zoey and she started barking again. Only then did the squirrel run away."

Jesus: "Yes, but then what did you do immediately after this had happened."

Me: Laughing. "I went outside and provided the little animals with an even bigger helping of food and seed than normal. While I had been thinking that perhaps providing this food and seed did not truly matter that much anymore, this helped me to realize that it truly did matter.

"Perhaps due to the few days that had passed without me putting anything out for them, I then noticed that many, many more animals and birds than normal had come to eat. I really had no idea that so many were eating what I had been placing outside."

Jesus: "So, Erin, what did this then do for you?"

Me: "The tears came yet again, but this time with joy. Seeing all of these little animals have so much joy truly brightened my spirit. I even took some beautiful photos of the ensuing feeding frenzy. Oh Father, I get so much joy from watching Your Creation. It even feels as if my heart enlarges like a tent when I see this happening!"

I took a break here, but came back a few days later...Jesus started off exactly where we had left off...

Received on Wednesday, November 29, 2017

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, for it is written 'do not hold back'. Give freely and you will have plenty poured back into your lap, a good measure, pressed down, shaken together, brimming over. While one receives in the same measure as they give, I have promised even more for you. Now, do you remember your dream of the dying dove and the dark water pool?"

Me: "Are You referring to the dream of the house made of glass that all could see into from not that long ago?"

Jesus: "Yes."

Me: "In my dream, this dove had hit the window and was lying on the ground next to the pool dying. While I immediately went to help her, someone called to me for assistance in a different area before I could reach her. When I turned to look back at the dove, I could see a predator lurking in the distance.

"This predator was waiting for me to leave so it could devour the dove. By the time I got back to save the dove, this odd cross breed of a predator, a strange raccoon, fox and cat combination with light blue fur and black stripes, had dragged the dove into the dark pool. This creature was now shredding the dove in the dark pool."

Jesus: "So, Erin, do you now know what this dove represents?"

Me: "I think so, Lord. I now believe that this dove represents my joy as my joy has been leaving me. Oh Lord, I have felt so hopeless lately. I cannot watch the news anymore as it grieves my heart too much. I cannot listen to stories about the abuse of children or the elderly without my heart then skipping.

"Hearing about the torture of animals or all of the other horrible things are now just too much for me to bear anymore. Lord, I truly feel as if my heart will die if You do not soon restore it. My heart is dying, Lord, and I need Your help. Please, Lord, I am knocking. Oh Father, please help me."

Jesus: "None of this is a surprise to Me. I created you, I know you and I call you friend. I have put you away for now until I have strengthened and healed you. Though the enemy desires your death and shame, he has not been granted this.

"Now, you have asked Me why I even allow trouble? In terms of your recent situation, I allowed this to happen to your heat and water to then show you that you are loved. Erin, you needed to know that you are loved. Trouble is also allowed because it serves many purposes...

- It measures a 'wicked man'
- It keeps a 'righteous man' on the straight path
- It refines the 'faithful man' and readies him for service
- It calls on the army of God through the prayers and the cries of the 'weak man'

"As for the 'weak man', this is you. You cried out in advance of the trouble in your Spirit, your tongue from the Holy Spirit. You then activated an army of angels to assist you. However, your household first needed some refining and this came through a lack of heat and water. While hard on your children at first, this then benefitted them greatly.

"As for the 'wicked man', this is your main enemy, but also your many other enemies. In this case, the 'wicked man' had sought to cause your household never ending trouble and access. Do not worry, Erin, as, in the end, and even before, the 'wicked men' will lose.

"As for the 'righteous man', this is your husband. While he could have easily engaged the 'wicked man' in his recent attempts to lure you onto his wide road that winds in circles and never ends, your husband instead kept his faith and hope in Me. He pressed on with a straight and upright walk and thwarted your enemy by doing so."

Me: "While there is a lot to discuss here, Lord, can we first back up to the part where You spoke about my prayer language? Are You saying that the Holy Spirit that guides this already knew how to pray in advance of the trouble?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Of course, Erin, as it is Me that is in you and My Spirit called out in advance of your trouble. You then just asked the following in your thoughts...'In that case, why have you not healed us yet?'

"Well, let's look to the pattern that I just spoke to you about. This perceived delay, which is never really a delay to My Father, is being used as a measure for those around you. When the day I have promised you finally arrives, will everyone not be in awe of what I have done here from the beginning to the end? Now rejoice, Erin, rejoice!"

Me: "I am trying to rejoice, Lord, but I am in such pain that this makes it hard." I smiled at Him. "However, I wouldn't mind if You could just help my face look as if it has joy even when I am hurting."

Jesus: "Hmm, this is an unusual request."

Me: I became embarrassed and looked down. "Oh Father, You are right...this would not be truthful. Never mind. Please forgive me."

Jesus: Laughing. "Do not worry, Erin, I forgive you. Now, what if I instead pour out so many blessings that your face cannot help but smile even in spite of your pain?"

Me: Laughing. "Okay! Yes! I am definitely willing to have You be God over me as I know that You will not harm me. It is just hard for us to smile when we face trouble after trouble, even when we know it is being used as a measure."

Jesus: "Erin, you are thinking of a particular trouble that recently came up that you are worrying over. Do not worry as I will also deliver you from this trouble. They will be unsuccessful in their pursuit of you as you have done nothing wrong. You will not go to court even though they might try.

"Now, stand and state your case. They know the law and cannot now change the rules simply because they do not like the outcome. Stand, Erin, as greater am I in you than he who is in the world. Erin, one day soon, a thousand will flee at the threat of just one."

Me: "Lord, as this is from Isaiah 30, is this not then a rebuking Scripture?"

Jesus: "Well, perhaps to some, but I am not rebuking you here. I have sent you, now stand! I am the God of Justice, Erin, and you are an arrow in My quiver. Stand and do not worry."

Me: "Thank You, Lord. Oh yes, I had a dream last night that I want to ask You about..."

Dream description begins...

I was in a gown of white and it was incredibly beautiful. I was on my way to a big event when I heard a knock on the door. I opened the door and a woman was standing there.

Woman: "There has been a blackout at the event. I am sad to say that it has now been canceled."

Me: "Tell them that there is no need to cancel as the lights will be restored."

Woman: "Based on these words, we will allow the event to go on."

After the woman left, I turned to a box that had recently arrived that I had not yet opened. I had not even had a chance to look at it very closely. When I picked up the box, I only then noticed that there was a label on it that said '5000 Lumens!'

As I knew that this was a measure of light, I became excited to see what was inside. I quickly opened the box. My stomach dropped in disappointment when I then saw that the box was completely empty.

I began to cry as I had just finished telling this woman that the event could go on as it would have its power restored. I had told her this with full confidence and faith, but this empty box did not seem to match my desires for this to happen.

I started to search all around the house looking for some other lighting I could use. After looking absolutely everywhere, I realized that there were none to be found. As soon as I sat down to pray and have a good cry while doing so, I heard Your Voice...

Jesus: "Go to the event."

Me: "Must I go? Will they not surely destroy me once I arrive?"

Jesus: "Why would they destroy someone bringing lights?"

Dream description over...

Me: "What did this dream mean?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Hmm, I believe that this dream seems to interpret itself, don't you?"

Me: "Well, I am still not sure about the '5000 Lumens' part. This would certainly be a well-lit event!"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but this light is in you and you will soon be like a generator of light. These dreams and visions are to prepare those that I have called for My purposes. This also prepares your hearts so that you are ready to generate 'My Power' during storms. Look down..."

He pointed to the bottom of my garment and smiled. I looked down and was surprised to notice that an electrical cord had suddenly appeared. The cord was running out from under my garment.

Jesus: Laughing. "See, now all I have to do is just plug you in."

I was laughing so hard that I nearly fell to the ground. As I was bent over in laughter looking at this cord, it just as quickly disappeared as it had appeared.

Me: "Okay, You are trying to make me laugh and You succeeded."

My laughter eventually settled down and I looked over at Jesus with a huge smile on my face.

Jesus: Smiling. "You are smiling again. So is this all that I had to do?"

Me: "Oh thank You, Lord. That electrical cord was just too funny!"

Jesus: "Erin, please do not allow discouragement to steal your joy. I also know that there is even more on your mind right now."

Me: "Yes, Lord. I am not sure why You had me look at this, but the resulting thoughts are deeply troubling. I am having a difficult time with it. You have placed the 1917 to 1923 time period in history on my heart for some reason.

"When I then went to where You wanted me to research this, I discovered events that had occurred that are so troubling. There were events during this time that included the execution of Alexander and his family, trouble with Israel and several other things.

"I then had a dream that seemed to somehow relate to these events. I saw several angels with plumb lines measuring the lands and judgment orders going out. This was 100 years ago. I then saw the fall of Great Britain. Lands were broken apart."

Jesus: "I am the God of Justice and I know the times, past, present and future. This was a very troubling time for the world. Now, is there anything else that is weighing on you?"

Me: "Yes, Father. A reoccurring pattern of Your judgment."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, if you see a pattern unfolding, then you have only to put the events in light of today to measure the time. Pray and then return to Me for illumination via My Words and the Holy Spirit. If the pattern is reoccurring, then you will understand events as they unfold. When you see the world turn against Israel, then you know the time.

"It is also like a woman in labor. She soon gives birth after the labor pains begin. Now, I will send historians and those who love various harbingers.

You are to find joy..." He smiled. "...and even find some 'lumens'. I love you, Erin, and..." He reached over and hugged me. "...your pain will soon be turned to joy."

Me: "Thank You, Lord. I love You too!" He smiled.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for the beautiful snow. Today is our very first snowfall of this winter season. While I put quite the banquet out for the little animals and birds earlier today, none have come yet.

Seeing the snow falling today reminds me of Your blessings. All the trees have lost their leaves now and it really is not the prettiest thing to look at in this state. The landscape around us is mostly brown right now, so Your 'white painting of snow' is welcomed.

The snow that is falling today is so beautiful to me as it reminds me that You take even our darkness and sin and cover us in Your 'white blanket' like a garment. You make us pure as snow again and only You are able to do so.

This also has made me remember so many sleepless nights of worry during my many past troubles. During these lonely times, I would stare out at the dark landscape of concrete and streetlights and wonder if You could even hear me. I had no peace back then and I truly felt completely alone most of the time.

I would eventually fall asleep only to then be woken up in the morning, either by my alarm clock or the voice of one of my children, whichever came first. I would then look outside and be delighted that the dark landscape I had just been looking at was now covered in fresh white snow, the light of the sun making it all shine so brightly.

Father, You cover us completely. Father, You are our complete cover, our Heavenly covering. Father, You make all things brand new. Thank You for Your blessings and for sending Your Son to save all of those that will listen to His sweet call.

Lord, You asked me a question earlier this week that I just did not know how to answer. When I realized that I had no good answer to Your question, I then decided to ask You a question instead of trying to answer with a 'not-so-good' answer.

Me: "Father, there has now been more than 22 years of trouble. Could You please set me free soon? Could You also please set my family and my friends free soon as well? I so long to see my sons freed as well!"

While I did not hear an immediate answer, I somehow just knew in my heart that His answer will soon be shown to me by His actions and not just in a verbal reply. Still, with everything good that comes, it also seems that something bad comes shortly thereafter.

Lately though, it seems that the bad is increasing at a faster and faster rate. If anything, we are still treated unfairly, so much so that sometimes this can even be a bit comical. The problem now is that I am weakening. While my love endurance for You is great, my love for the world is waning and living here is becoming more and more exhausting.

I even find that I am now looking for You in the people that we have to deal with daily. With the exception of the great friends that You have sent us here at the Nest, seeing You in others is now becoming harder with each passing day. The world is truly growing colder with each passing day.

Father, please speak into our dry bones soon. Please raise us up and breathe new life into us. Please speak to us and give us hope as so many of us are growing so very tired...well, now exhausted. While I know that patience is the hardest of the fruits, knowing this still does not make any of this waiting that much easier.

Father, I have felt guilty about something lately. It is that I once harshly judged, and in self-righteousness, the Israelites for complaining so much while they were wandering in the desert. I would wonder to myself, 'How could they complain so much when they were able to clearly see that God was working miracle after miracle in front of them?'

Well, my judgment came to an abrupt halt when God suddenly turned a switch on in my heart and gave me a new perspective. I realized that I had not truly put myself in their position before. I finally did this for the first time and I was not happy with myself when I realized that I too have seen God's miracles and yet I still complain.

I am ashamed to admit that I had unfairly put the Israelites on trial in this regard. By doing so, I then put myself in the spotlight of God's judgment as we are judged as we judge others. I 'shook my head' at them, but now I 'shake my head' at myself. I realized that I must look at my own journey and not focus on what they did or didn't do.

I passed the age of accountability around 40 years ago and I now realize that I have wrestled with God for so much of this time. While I gave my life to Jesus around 23 years ago, I also now realize that He then turned up the heat even more when I did so in order for me to then lose myself.

During most of this time, I have never been able to hide from trouble. It is hard to escape from trouble when trouble has become so good at finding me no matter where I hide. Well, if God is doing a work in us by allowing this trouble, how can we then hide from it when God truly knows and sees everything?

While I originally would not take ownership of the trouble that used to find me, I now realize that trouble often serves a greater purpose, whether we like it or not. Well, when it comes to trouble, who likes it? Certainly not me. I also now realize that a lot of my trouble was actually of my own doing, especially when I moved ahead of Him instead of waiting. For the 17 years of my life leading up to becoming a Christian in the early 1990s, counting from age 13 and onward, I made too many mistakes to even list. I certainly had no idea that waiting on Him was even an option.

I was a lover of self, a worshipper of the world and, quite truthfully, enjoyed all kinds of sinful things. During those 17 years, I went my own way completely and got into terrible trouble as a result...and over and over again. When I look back now, I truly realize that the gentle hand of God was protecting me even back then and even in my sin. I now realize that His gentle voice was also continuously calling out to me, yet I still did not want to have anything to do with Him.

When I later finally gave my heart fully to Jesus, I really did not understand what would then be required of me as a result. While so many believe that becoming a Christian means a one way ticket to easy street, that is simply un-Biblical and untrue.

Once I became a Christian, I became hated soon after. I was even hated much more than anything I had ever experienced prior to becoming a Christian. When I was hated, I just could not understand what I had done to bring this on.

This confused me as I was much more loving towards others than ever before. In reality, I truly did not know how to love before accepting God as God is love. I had not yet realized that I was hated for accepting Him and that this was because He was hated first.

I then spent the first seven or so years of my new walk believing that I was reflecting the love, or what I perceived to be the love, of Christ to those around me. I now realize just how far I still had to go to lose myself back then...

- My tongue was still harsh and on so many different occasions
- I was still judgmental
- I believed in the 'prosperity gospel'
- I was only 'kind to others' if I knew that I would then receive some 'quid pro quo' from them in return

I mistakenly believed that these were Christian characteristics. I believed this as I had foolishly mimicked those around me who claimed that they did these things in the Name of Jesus. I had foolishly relied on others instead of the truth found only in His Word.

My 'God hating' mother (well, back then) even called me out on my behavior at one point. It was quite the eye opener to say the least.

My mother: "Based on what I know about you and your (then) husband's family and how you are all acting, I really don't want any part of this Jesus you serve. If this is truly reflecting an example of this 'God of yours', I would really prefer it if you never talked to me about God ever again."

Ouch!! While this hurt me at the time, I then quickly rationalized that she just didn't understand. Of course I now realize that she was right. While she was wrong to not serve Jesus, she was 100% correct about what a horrible example we were being.

It was not until I had a couple of incredible experiences in the year 2000 that I started my 17 years of truly coming to Him. Once I had these experiences, I never 'let up' on Him. Even though I could not yet 'speak in tongues' and some had told me that God could not hear me as a result, I just knew that they were wrong and I persisted in my pursuit.

I then kept reminding Him of His promises in His Word. As just a couple of examples, I knew that something was wrong with my sons, so I recited His promises that applied to both of them. I also knew that my 'then' husband had 'outside interests' that were not healthy for our marriage, so I then did the same here.

I also knew that there was still something wrong with me as well. I instinctively knew that I still had a heart issue. I realized that I still could not love Jesus fully as I was still hating myself for so many of my past bad decisions that I had made prior to 'truly' coming to Him for help.

As a result of this, I felt unworthy and unqualified to even share the Gospel of Christ. I truly needed to replace the 'gospel according to self' so that I could share the Gospel of Christ. I realized I was asking 'why me, God?' when I should have been asking 'why not me, God?'

In a nutshell, the events in year 2000, my 'turning point year', started off like this. I was depressed and I needed help. Back then, the church I attended was unable to offer me anything. While they still then offered 'Words from the Lord', I found them extremely difficult to truly receive as they were mostly quite condescending.

I still could not understand God's love for me. I was not sure if I would ever be truly able to love Him as it seemed so many others were able to love Him. I did not know what a Godly Father was like as my earthly father was such a terrible example. I did not yet know what a Godly husband was like as my husband at that time could not have been a worse example.

The only love I truly knew was the love that I had for my sons (my daughter had not yet been born). Even then, I was always worried that God would 'steal them from me'. Why wouldn't I feel this way when I still viewed God as 'The Punisher', a God that was watching and waiting for us to screw up so that He could then pounce.

While I wallowed in self-pity for many weeks, I only then made a seemingly odd decision, at least for me and at that time. I decided to fast and pray and have absolutely no food or water for three days. I decided that nothing would pass into me through my mouth during these three days.

Well, this then turned out to be the very start of my 'turning point year' of 2000. In the very last hour, really in the very last minute, of this three day fast, a heavenly voice suddenly woke me up from my sleep...

Heavenly voice: "Erin, get up and drink."

I looked at the time and realized it was the very last minute, 72 hours less a minute, from the beginning of my fast. I listened to the heavenly voice and got up and went downstairs. After I drank some water, I went to pray.

I went on my knees and started to pray. I then became disappointed as 'nothing was happening'. I started to ponder whether I had forgotten something. Nope, yet 'nothing was happening'. Since my Christian friends had 'guaranteed' me that I would get 'results' from a three day extreme fast, I would need to speak to them about this.

I decided to go and sit in my chair. I decided to plead one more time for the Lord to finally speak to me, but in a truly tangible way. To my absolute shock, I then received my very first vision, a three dimensional one at that. This vision then started to unfold before me in incredible clarity.

While I have spent more time describing this elsewhere in my dreams, the long and short of it was that I was told to 'die to myself' in this vision. I somehow then knew that I needed to knock down all of the strongholds around me first. There were so many to knock down that I spent my first seven months 'knocking them down'.

This was a hard time for me as so many around me told me that this was 'just my imagination'. They said that what I had experienced was a delusion and that it had merely been caused by my extreme fast.

I now realize that much of this was coming from a place of jealousy. However, I somehow also knew even back then that this was actually coming from the enemy. I then anticipated that the enemy would continue to hammer me to knock me off my end goal of 'dying to myself'. I kept pressing on and the enemy indeed kept hammering me.

Despite this great hardship, and without even realizing that this request would then bring on even more hardship, I 'formally' asked God for a 'heart of gold'. This was now in September of 2000. As Jesus would later tell me in these dreams, I truly had not known what I had asked for. He was right...of course!

Yes, I had just willingly walked straight into a 'furnace of affliction'. It was only then that I endured my most severe tests, trials and, quite honestly, a searing pain that is hard to even quantify. Just when I thought the Lord was finished allowing 'the heat of the furnace', well, He then allowed the heat to be turned up even higher instead.

As a result of this, people soon started to fall away from me in droves. I was then alone and isolated. The enemy had me exactly where God wanted me to be. Yes, He truly does work 'good' through the 'bad' (and if anyone tells you differently, do not believe them).

Quite simply, what then happened to me and my children made almost everyone I knew run away from us even faster. Even those Christians that I thought I could trust to embrace us then ran away from us instead.

We were now outcasts. I was without hope. I had not heard from God again. I decided that I must have somehow angered Him. I then felt that God would no longer have any mercy on me and certainly had no love for me anymore.

I then started to believe my 'friends', just like Job had started to believe his 'friends', that I somehow deserved all of what had come upon me. I came against enemy after enemy after enemy. The attacks were so relentless that it bordered on the ridiculous.

Since I was now ill (from what I would later find out that my ex-husband had been doing to me in secret), I was no longer able to do anything on my own to fight. My physical heart was weakening. My brokenness was killing me. I could barely keep my head above water.

While I now realize that I still had the hand of God carrying me through these difficult times, I did not know it at the time as He had not said anything to me yet. Finally, and just as I was reaching my breaking point, I once again heard a voice. This time it was the Voice of God. He spoke right into my heart...

Voice of God: "Surrender!"

As I had no more strength, I had no choice but to then do just that. I really had no part of me left and my strength was gone. My 'self' had now died in the pain and the humility of all that I had just experienced. While the world had taken me out of contention, this was the way that the Lord had decided to put me back into contention.

Where I had once been the subject of jealousy because I had heard God speak to me, all of what had happened since then had now made me the subject of hushed whispers of condemnation. While I was put down in shame, the Lord then reminded me that there is no shame in being His and His alone.

After this, I truly only had one desire...to live for Christ and Christ alone. While I decided to continue to 'physically live' on Earth for my children, I was now 'truly living' only for Him and for His service. My children were merely seeds of His that were given to me by Him to grow. I now had to surrender them to Him fully.

I also had to learn to let go of my past mistakes. I had to realize that God had truly paid the price to set me free. I had to confess that it was me and me alone that was keeping myself in 'this prison of my past mistakes'. I had to confess that I somehow had even become comfortable in prison, as horrible as this prison was.

Yes, I had now become accustomed to being a prisoner. I had adjusted to my surroundings and was now fully expecting to never be released from my cell. Only Jesus would be able to unlock my prison cell. I was only ready to finally be freed when He then commanded me to be free...

Jesus: "Stand up, Erin. You are free. Come with Me on the path that I will take you."

I did not hesitate after I heard Him speak this. I was now finally ready to be set free from my prison cell. As I came out of my prison, I had to then often remind myself to not listen to the words I was hearing from the enemy. I could hear the enemy whispering...

Enemy: "Hey, wait, you don't deserve this. What qualifies you for this? How can you ever be released? You should be guilty for life as your crimes are just too great? Are you not the very same person who thought you were so perfect before you then fell? Why would Jesus talk to someone like you at all? You are an imposter and a phony. You really need to come back into this prison. You will be more comfortable here. Erin, come back in here as this is where you truly belong, both now and forever."

Thankfully, I then prayed to God about these horrible lies and asked God to help me be free once and for all. I then heard Him say to me, "Erin, I am with you and I will never leave you."

Thank You, Father, as this is all that I needed to hear. With Your help, I drowned out these negative voices with Your love for me. While the enemy continues to whisper these lies to me even today, I know that You will keep me free and never leave me. As a result, the enemy has no power to put me back in 'his', not 'my', prison.

Oh Father, not once did You ever tell me that trouble would not find me. Instead, You reassured me that You would deliver me from this trouble whenever it found me. You then placed a desire in me to follow You with my whole heart.

Even though I know all of this is true, there are still days that I struggle with my direction and my circumstances, especially when I am in pain. I feel beaten up when the attacks still come. When my enemies still come after me, I again wonder why this is happening.

While You have explained that this sometimes comes as I am one of Your arrows and a measure, this is still not easy to take, especially at times. When I later look back at these 'skirmishes', I realize that they were amplified because I was wrestling with You.

I wrestled with You whenever I tried to take these on all by myself. I wrestled with You every time I did not surrender my direction and circumstances to You instead. I then found myself pleading for forgiveness for continuing to do this.

Sadly, I still do this even today...when the attacks come and I am in pain and weak, I still do this. I then come to You in anguish...

Me: "Oh Lord, I have been wrestling with You again. I am in pain. What are You requiring of me, Father? Please help me! Oh Father, if only I would have just kept my focus on You instead of focusing on the trouble calling to me. Please forgive me, Father!"

When I do this, You then help me to realize that You want me to ask You for help. You then want me to put Your Words and divine love into action by crying out to You...

Me: "Oh Father, what are You truly asking of me in these trials right now? What are these trials requesting of me? Is there any more that I can do? Please help me to understand the directions and actions You wish me to take."

I have then noticed that, the more I let You work in me as a result, the more that others then see You at work in me. Yes, while many hate us already because they first hated You, You have also promised us that many more will soon be jealous of us because they will truly know that You are in us in a great way.

Though You promise us this, I still have to wonder what could ever make anyone jealous of me, especially in my current state. I truly see nothing for anyone to be jealous of as I am today. Especially for anyone who had seen my plight over the many years, why would they ever want to then follow in my footsteps?

I am sure that anyone who had known that the Israelites were still wandering in the desert 40 years later would have asked this same question. I suppose that I too have walked in my own desert for 40 or so years. However, I also know that I have not had to actually live as a nomad in the desert either.

Now, could you imagine waking up to the same bleak desert scenery every single day? Could you imagine eating the same food daily? Could you imagine not having a 'stable home', but a tent you had to pack up and move every day instead? Yes, though they saw the miracles of God daily, I believe that I can finally understand their perspective.

It must have been extremely discouraging, especially when this continued year after year without change. It would have even been horribly scary, at least at first, as you would also watch your generation die off. After all, remember that they were not allowed into the Promised Land due to the 'bad reports'.

Oh Father, please forgive me for previously being so critical about the Israelite's complaining in the desert. I am only now understanding where they were coming from. I am putting aside my judgment on their reactions. Judging them is truly something I should have never done in the first place, but I did, and I am so sorry, Father.

Here I am, sitting in my comfortable chair, and I still complain. I am sitting in comfortable conditions with heat and water (thank You again) and I still complain. While I do not complain about my surroundings, I still complain about the attacks that come from outside of my surroundings. Father, please forgive me for my complaining!

There are just so many Scriptures that come to mind as being applicable during these times in the desert, these times of trouble. There are so many Scriptures that tell us that, one day soon, God will wipe away every tear from our eyes and that Heaven will have no more death or sorrow, crying or pain. For example, Revelation 21:4.

As hard as this is to fully comprehend, we should be glad for our trials for it is then that we know that we are in partnership with Jesus (1 Peter 4:13). Even in our pain and suffering, we are not to deny that the Words of God still applies to us (Job 6:10).

From these Words, we can be assured that others are enduring the very same kind of trials as we are, some much worse. We are then not to feel alone in our suffering. While our trials still sting, we learn and then know that we have not been 'singled out for punishment'. This is one of His ways of 'sculpting us' and who are we to question Him.

We also receive assurance that the God of all Grace will only allow this to continue for so long. In just a while, which can seem an eternity to us yet just a little while to Him, He will call for us. Yes, He who has called us to His eternal glory in Christ will Himself restore, confirm, establish and strengthen us (1 Peter 5:9-10).

Oh Father, though we have lost so much by the enemy's hands, we are now ready to be restored. Though we sometimes still wonder if we have lost Your favor, we are now ready to have You confirm that we have not and never did (as I have finally realized after all of these years...smiles).

Though we have lost our earthly desires thanks, yes...thanks, to Your trials and tests, we are now ready to be reestablished in what You have in store for us, both here on Earth as it is in Heaven. Though the enemy has stolen our youth and our health, we are now ready to have You heal and strengthen us.

Father, thank You for all that You have done, and for all that You will soon do, for us! Thank You for being our Heavenly Father, a Father like no earthly father can possibly compare to. Thank You for being our Physician and our Counselor. Thank You, most of all, for Your precious Son, without whom we could never stand before Your Throne.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was so joyful to be in Heaven today in my 'pain-free' glorified state that I immediately started to skip, dance and laugh with happiness. The path I was 'dancing on' was as beautiful as ever and was lined with trees with shimmering silver trunks.

The trees made an amazing canopy of pink blossoms and the entire path was completely covered in petals. I suddenly laughed in delight as I just realized that this scene matched the cover of a calendar I had just purchased, but with the Heavenly perfected version in comparison to the still beautiful earthly version.

I looked down at what I was wearing. It was a beautiful gown of white. This gown was similar to one that I had worn here before, but I had not worn a gown quite like this since the time that these dreams first began.

I wanted to now dance with complete abandon, but I first looked around to make sure that neither the Lord nor any angels were watching me. When I did not see anyone, I went into the very middle of the path and danced like I have never danced before.

To my amazement, I started to turn in perfect pirouettes, better than any I could ever do even when I was at my best while in ballet. Oh, how I miss ballet! As I turned in perfect circles, tears of joy fell down my cheeks as I noticed that even the blossoms were now dancing in sync with me.

I looked up at the sky as I continued my ballet moves, each so perfected that I just knew that I could never do this on Earth even when I was in my very best shape. I looked up at the sky through an opening in the tree canopy and the sky was a vibrant bright blue.

My dancing suddenly came to a quick halt when I felt a light tap on my shoulder. I instantly felt embarrassed as I had been dancing with all of my heart and thought I would have looked quite silly doing so.

When I turned and saw that it was Jesus that had tapped on my shoulder, my embarrassment somehow completely disappeared instantly. He had a huge smile on His face. I jumped up into His arms to hug Him.

Me: "I am so glad to see You, Lord!"

Jesus: "I am glad to see you too, especially while you were 'dancing as if no one was watching you'." He laughed.

Me: "Oh, me too, Lord! More than anything, me too! You know what? I have not thanked You nearly enough for all that You have done for me, Lord. You have blessed me with Your presence and I love You so much. While I do not truly understand this, I even feel as if my heart and my love has even grown larger and bigger as a result..."

Jesus: Smiling. "Please, Erin, continue."

Me: I looked down at my feet and sighed. "...but I also find that my pain sometimes then shrinks my joy and 'growth' as well. Oh Father, I am so sorry for doing this."

Jesus: "Well, let's focus on your joy and growth today. Did your friends not recently show you just how much I care about you? I called and many answered. Erin, you needed to know that you are loved. So, how does it feel?"

Me: "Wonderful! I just never, ever want this to ever end!"

Jesus: Laughing. "Well, I can assure you that this will never end once you are here with Me."

Me: "Lord, You recently told me that my vessel is ready. While my vessel could even still be waiting and drying on a shelf as we speak, I really pray that now is the time for Your use. Oh Lord, please use me soon! Please don't forget me on a shelf!"

Jesus: "Oh Erin, how could I forget the girl..."

- ...who left the blue stains on My front steps?
- ...who kicked up a tornado of petals here in My Garden?
- ...who delights Me and makes Me laugh?
- ...who somehow even makes My 'most serious' angels smile?
- ...who showed up before Elijah in designer pajamas?
- ...who made Enoch want to bless her?
- ...who, as a little toddler, ran into My arms and cried out 'again, again'?
- ...who, as a young child, clung to Me so that she could smell My garment and hug My neck?
- ...who, as someone braver than she even knows, continued to climb the ladder in the midst of a great battle just so that she could see Me in Heaven?
- ...who took the sword and fought the dragon even as he was spewing such terrible lies about her?
- ...who still has wide-eyed wonder for Me and My Father even in the midst of battles, pain and suffering?

- ...who made My Father on the Throne rumble with laughter and joy?

"So, Erin, if Heaven is for you and I am in you, and both are true, then, Erin, whom should you fear? Who is it that should scare you? Since I have promised you that I will do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told, then do not fear or be scared of anyone or anything.

"Since you delight in Me, I, in turn, will give you the desires of your heart. You, in turn, will give so many joy and hope. Even though you will provide this to so many, you will still cause many others to be jealous of you because of Me. Erin, and as I have promised you before, I have not taken you this far just for you to be broken, tired, weak or discouraged. Your worry has aged you.

"Even though I understand why you have been worried, you should always remember that you have only to come to Me when you do so. Erin, do not forget that you had even wielded the sword of truth in order to stop the dragon's lies. This is finished. Now, what do you remember from your dream last night?"

Me: "Oh yes...this was a very unusual dream..."

Dream description begins...

I was a young girl living in Europe during the 1940s. It was winter and everything was frozen. I lived in an area that had high mountains surrounding us. I was walking home after school with a young boy. He was either a friend or perhaps even my brother.

We were in the process of crossing over a narrow one lane bridge when a bus suddenly appeared. It was heading straight at us. The driver looked right at us with hate and we were surely about to be killed. We squeezed as close as we could to the rail. As the ravine was hundreds of feet below, jumping over the side was not an option.

Me: Screaming out. "Jesus, please help us! Please don't let us be killed like this!"

As soon as I screamed this, and at the very last second, the bus veered to the other side of the bridge. I could hear the bus scraping the other side's rail. We only had inches between us and the bus. As the bridge was very icy, we had to hold onto this side's rail to keep from sliding under the bus as it passed us.

As the bus went by, I saw a woman looking out at us from one of the windows. I recognized her from the school I somehow knew that I could no longer attend. She was yelling such hateful things at us. I could then hear the bus driver laughing. He then screamed something out about us in a language that I could not understand.

I simply could not understand why this bus driver or this woman hated us so much. It was only then that I noticed what I had on my sleeve. My friend or brother and I were both wearing armbands with the Star of David on it. We were marked as Jews.

Dream description over...

Jesus: "So, Erin, what concerned you in this dream?"

Me: "Everything concerned me, but I was particularly disturbed at the hate I could literally feel that was coming from the driver and this woman. It was a coldness that I simply could not understand or even measure. It left a chill running down my spine and even now as I speak about it."

Jesus: "Since the bridge was narrow and icy, the bus driver could have easily killed you had I allowed this. In reality, if not for Me, he would not have veered to the right at all. At My call, the bus instead moved over just enough for you to squeeze between it and the rail. By doing this, I freed you from certain death."

Me: "Why did You give me such a terrifying dream?"

Jesus: "To show you that, even though they wanted your death and you should have been killed, you were spared from death as you were even protected in your dream state. I wanted to show you that, even in your dream state, I will protect you..."

As He said this, He smiled, laughed and good-naturedly nudged me. I could not help but laugh in return. Sigh...only Jesus could make me smile when using such a 'tense example'. He truly knows the very best way to teach us, even if it is 'unconventional'!

Me: "Thank You, Lord! So, what would have happened otherwise?"

Jesus: "The conditions in this dream during this place and time in history were brutal and the hearts of people were cold. Without My intervention, they would not have veered at all. They would have never risked themselves or their bus by veering to the right to spare you. They would have instead plowed right into you without even a second thought.

"As you noticed from your armbands, you and the young boy were both Jewish in this dream. This is why this dream seemed so unusual at first since you had not yet noticed your armbands. However, what was even rarer was that, in this dream, you were a Jewish child that knew to call out to Me. A Christian Jew was extremely rare back then."

Me: "While I now kind of understand why You gave me such an unusual dream, I must admit that I still do not fully understand."

Jesus: "This dream was meant to startle you as you have been conditioned to expect the worst and hope for the best. This is a learned coping mechanism from your upbringing. This dream was meant to show you that, with Me, you should instead pray for the best and fully put your hopes in Me.

This dream was meant to show you that I will not let you fall, even in the iciest conditions.

"Erin, the world is growing colder every day. People's hearts are growing colder every day. It will not be much longer before this coldness matches and even surpasses that which you saw in this dream. In ways, it already has.

"This is why I am soon to strengthen you. Do not worry, Erin, as I will not leave your vessel on the shelf much longer. After spending so much time 'handcrafting' you, why would I do such a thing?"

Dream over...

Please note that I took a break here for the day and was planning to finish this in the next day or so. However, God had different plans for me...one that I certainly never saw coming...but He did.

To be more specific, I soon found out that my earthly father had suddenly passed away. Understandably, I have been quite occupied by this ever since. While I am sure that this dream will 'be continued soon', for now, we will have to wait a bit longer.

A MESSAGE FROM ERIN'S HUSBAND

Dear Nest family,

Please pray for Erin as her father passed away earlier this week (Tuesday, December 5th, 2017). While she has not been close with him in recent years as he chose to keep her out of his life, the hope of this ever changing died when he did.

While her Heavenly Father has been all she has ever needed, there is still a soft spot in everyone that wants to also be loved by their earthly parents too, but unconditionally. How rare this is today as people's hearts grow colder.

Please pray for Erin to have wisdom in dealing with the aftermath.

Please pray for Erin to have peace as now both her parents are now gone.

Please pray for both Erin and her brother that God quickly fills any void that may result, foreseen or unforeseen.

Please pray for God's grace to flood all those who come together in this time of grieving.

Thank you, one and all here, for being our home away from home! Thank you for all of your love and support.

Blessings to all of you!

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for my family and friends. I am truly blessed. Father, each time I write about something 'dark', I then soon find out about something that has happened that is 'even darker'.

Loss is such a hollow feeling. It leaves a void that only You can fill. While I had hoped that I would witness to my dad someday here on Earth, You had other plans. Over the years, I have learned through my tests and trials not to ask 'why me, God?' and instead ask 'why not me, God?' The death of my earthly father is another one of these times.

You are constantly at work in our lives. Even though I might not always 'agree' with Your timing, I have come to realize that everything is for Your glory and 'our timing' will only happen at Your appointed time.

My dad passed away on Tuesday, December 5th, 2017. It seemed that his death was a very sad commentary on 'unrealized potential, broken dreams and vacant hope'. While my dad knew how to be liked by anyone that he needed something from, he would then 'switch off' and become as cold as ice when they later became 'no longer of use' to him.

I had learned all too well about this survival mechanism that he used in my dealings with this man, my earthly father. In the end, it just left those around him hurt and searching for answers. It left us constantly searching for some signs of life and of love from him.

When I later contacted his widow after he died, the answers I was given by her about his death just seemed to raise even more questions. However, I did not feel a call from You to pursue answers so I dropped it and kept any further queries to myself. Since his life was a mystery to us, it makes sense that his death would be a mystery to us as well.

In summary, the details that I do know about the circumstances revolving around his death points directly to a divine justice that only You could have orchestrated. While I know that all of this is fully known to You, it is still a bitter pill for me to swallow.

Oh Father, please grant me peace here. I really had no words when I first found out about his passing. It affected me deeply and much more so than I could have ever imagined. While I did not feel nearly the same level of grief as when I lost my mom two years ago, it still hurt, even with the distance and lack of contact over the years.

For two whole days, I was basically on 'autopilot'. By the third day, the numbness then turned into a deep sadness. When I later wanted to come and speak with You in my devotional chair on this, life seemed to 'get in the way' and I was unable to. In Your divine mercy, You instead spoke to me while I continued with my 'day-to-day'.

Jesus: "Remember, Erin, when one door closes, several doors open."

While I know this to be true, I was still too numb with grief to really allow this to sink in. I just did not want to walk through any open doors at that particular moment. For those couple of days at least, I would say that I even felt 'frozen in place'.

Jesus: "Erin, it was his time to go."

While I know that Your timing is always perfect, it is still my hope that You had called out to him when he was still alive and in a coma. While I do not know what You have in store for him now, I do know that You meet us where we are and that Your love never fails. Even though he had abandoned us, I still pray that You will have mercy on him.

After his death, I started researching some of our family's history. As I did, I soon came across some information about the disturbing treatment of the Osage Indians. This was allowed by the US government for many years. This had occurred in the early 1900s and involved many murders, but, in reality, it was a systematic genocide of a people.

In summary, the Osage Indians were given a piece of land that no one else had wanted to appease them. For some reason, the chief had the foresight to include a clause that gave 'his people' mineral rights for whatever was under the ground.

However, everything changed when massive amounts of oil was discovered on this land and this clause came to the forefront. While this gave these people great wealth at first, it would soon come at a severe price.

By the 1920s, hundreds upon hundreds of Osage Indians were mysteriously murdered and hundreds of millions of dollars of their wealth were stolen. It was an incredibly sad story. It even helped to spawn the FBI into what it is today. It was also fundamental in facilitating the rise of J. Edgar Hoover at the helm of the FBI.

This deception as allowed, if not even encouraged, by certain branches of the US government towards the Osage Indians is a horrible stain beyond comprehension. Donald Trump recently said it best when commenting on the leader of Russia...'Trust me...we are not that innocent ourselves'. Well, this definitely fits into this category.

I even believe that the unfair treatment of the Osage has been used by God as yet another measure of the USA. While restitution was eventually made, this was at just a small fraction of what they were truly owed.

How can the many lives that were lost be brought back? Truly, only God Himself will be able to bring justice to this situation. I simply cannot help but feel that this is a bigger measure of the USA by God than one would think, but this is just my personal thoughts.

Anyway, I had quite an interesting dream two nights ago...

Dream 1 description begins..."Gifts upon departure"...

It was time for my family and me to finally leave a certain area that we had been staying at. While we were not particularly close to any friends or family there, we had still wanted to give gifts to those people that had been kind to us during our time there. We went shopping and bought items that we felt would mean something to each of them.

We then took the time to write individualized notes to include with each of these gifts. Each time we gave out one of these gifts, we asked the recipient to please wait until after we had left the area before they opened their gift. For some reason, it was important that they did not open any of these gifts until after we had left the area.

When we had finally finished giving out the very last of the gifts, it was time for us to say goodbye to the area, an area that we had spent so much time in. While all of us were a bit sad as we drove away, we were also really excited about where we were going.

Dream 1 description over...

I then had another dream last night that brought me to my knees this morning. This dream was simply incredible! You called me to write this dream down as well...

Dream 2 description begins..."Going into Battle with Jesus and the Eight Bells"...

I was in complete darkness when I heard the sound of a mighty bell ring out eight times. At the last striking of the bell, a light suddenly shined on us from above. This light lit up our entire surroundings. To my surprise, a vast army was there with me. They were all around me. I was one of many and was several rows back from the front row.

Now that I was in 'The Light', I noticed that all of us were geared up for battle...

- We were dressed in the most incredible white armor
- Each of us were mounted on horses with wings
- We were all strong and fit...for women, comparable to Wonder Woman and, for men, comparable to Thor, but with better physiques than even this... beyond compare, really
- We were not soldiers or ground troops, but more like an army of warriors

- We each had a specific place that God had assigned for us, along with a special 'custom fit' plan

There were also thousands...no, millions...of angels surrounding us. As I looked around, I noticed that our three sons and our two daughters were also there with us. All of us were so excited and were waiting for the command of God.

While there were thousands of us that made up this vast army, it was only then that I noticed the most exciting part. There was Jesus! He was in the very front and facing towards us. I have never seen Jesus look quite like this before!

I have goosebumps as I write this as He truly looked like the most incredible commander in history, but multiplied a million fold and in a way that I cannot even put into words. He looked so strong in His full armor that, even on His own, He would look undefeatable to even the most massive army of the strongest of enemies.

He held a scepter in His hand and sat confidently on His beautiful white horse. He looked over us with purpose in His eyes. A regiment of His mightiest archangels flanked Him on both sides. While He shined like the sun, we were still able to behold His magnificence. Tears of joy started to form as I looked upon this amazing sight.

I heard a command being shouted and then the sound of a thousand bells all seemed to ring at once and in perfect unison. As the ringing echoed and disappeared, it was replaced with a rising and great battle song from a Heavenly choir. All of this was accompanied by the most inspirational music I have ever heard.

Jesus started to shout out orders towards us. Braveheart seemed like a girl scout in comparison...smiles. The incredible authority in His Voice simply cannot be measured. Despite this, it was somehow not at all frightening to us, but was incredibly comforting instead to know that we had the ultimate High Commander, One that can never fail.

Jesus: Loudly. "You will now go forward with Me and I will be in Your lead at all times. You are not to engage the demonic realm that will soon part in front of you. You are to leave any such engagement with the demonic realms to My army of angels.

"I will lead you through the darkness and you will heal the sick, give hope to the weary and strength to the powerless. You will scale a wall and leap over objects that would have been impossible for you to leap over before now. While I call each of you 'My friend', each of you will now be 'My warrior'.

"Do not be afraid of fire or billowing smoke. Do not be afraid of the Earth shaking or the ground splitting. You have now been strengthened from on high. You have been prepared for a time such as this."

An angel then directed us to look behind Jesus. Up until this point, His presence had made it so that we had not even noticed the danger that was lurking behind Him. In the black smoke and fire there, we could see regiments of demonic beings standing like a wall. Their sole purpose was to keep us from going where God had called each of us to go.

I was now filled with a strength that I simply cannot even begin to describe. When I bent over to pat the beautiful horse I was on, I then realized that each horse and rider somehow already knew each other as if they had known each other for a lifetime. Each pair formed a perfect team. I knew my horse and my horse knew me. Wow!

As I patted my horse, I realized that it would have been the very best of breeds and highly valued on Earth. Each of the horses we were riding on were like this. Our horses wore shining armor that matched our own. The horses had coats like silk and all had manes braided so intricately it could only have been braided supernaturally.

Jesus: Loudly. "Now, you are not to be afraid as I am with each of you. I will go before you in all that you do. I will now remove all that is before you with a single shout."

Just then, I heard the most awe inspiring battle cry that I have ever heard. This cry was an untold multiple in awe of any battle cry produced in even the most epic of movies. Father God Himself was shouting out like thunder from Heaven. The black smoke, fire and demons instantly split into two and a huge path formed right through the middle.

I then watched as the angels formed an impenetrable line on both sides of the path in order to hold back any of the demons that dared to attack us. Jesus then signaled for us to follow Him up through the middle of the dark clouds that were on both sides of us.

As we proceeded through this battle scape, each of us following Jesus' lead, I once again heard God's Voice shout out. In an instant, each of us were taken to where He wanted us to be. Each of us would soon know what we had been made for. God Himself had taken care of each and every detail. He had a special plan for each of us.

Dream 2 description over...

Oh Father, thank You! This dream cut me to my core, but in the very best of ways. This dream gave me so much hope that I cannot even quantify it, certainly not here on Earth. Oh thank You, Father, thank You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I found myself in a meadow filled with beautiful horses, each more stunning than even the very finest of horses on Earth. They were playing and took turns running after each other. Though this is hard to explain, while they were not wild, they were completely free. They were more than happy to simply serve God and love Him.

While I was even smaller in stature compared to these magnificent horses than I would have been on Earth, it still felt absolutely normal. These horses were so beautiful. As I stood there admiring them, one of these amazing horses came over to me. To my surprise, the horse then bent down. I somehow knew that I was to get on for a ride.

I laughed with joy as I eagerly jumped on. He ran over to a hilly area and then proceeded to the top of one of the hills. Once at the top, I could then see down upon this beautiful valley of horses. While some had necklaces of flowers around them and others had different adornments, each of them were equally beautiful.

As I sat on this perfectly muscled and groomed horse, I could not help but stand amazed at God's immense power, love and grace. Though these were such beautiful horses, I soon became in awe at the very thought of this being just the tiniest fraction of what He has created. I prayed to Him with tears of absolute joy.

Me: Crying out with...well, pure glee. "Oh Father, thank You for bringing me here. Thank You, Lord, for this promise of Heaven!"

I leaned over and hugged the neck of the horse. Just then, I heard the familiar sound of the Lord's good natured laughter. I turned and there was Jesus sitting on His own horse.

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, Erin, you are very welcome."

When He brought His horse next to mine, the two horses greeted each other with their noses.

Jesus: Laughing. "So, Erin, I see that these horses delight you."

Me: "Oh yes, Lord. I had been so sad when I heard of the horses that were burned up in California. It has been so difficult for me to hear these news reports. It was even more difficult to then hear the stories of the trainers who loved these horses. Many of the horses that had died were their very favorites and were very much loved.

"These horses had trusted their trainers to such an extent that they had even decided to stay in their stalls thinking that they would be kept safe by them there. These horses had decided to stay in their stalls instead of running to avoid the coming fires. It was a fatal decision!"

Jesus: "Oh Erin, if I care about even the smallest sparrow that falls, do I not also care for the horses that fell? Look around you. They are free. There are no flames, no cruel hand of man and no worry of age. Here, they are young, strong and joyful. I know each one of their stories and their journeys. Erin, I know each one of these horses."

Me: I began to cry again. "Oh Lord, thank You! I am so glad that animals are alive here in Heaven. So many preachers have preached that animals have no soul and therefore have no place in Heaven."

Jesus: "Hmm...and where is that written? This was never written in My Word. This is an enemy tactic used to further remove the glory of God as contained in His promise of Heaven being paradise.

"Do I not care about My horse? Did God not create this horse? She is a friend to Me and follows Me closer than most of those on Earth who claim to know Me. When you are feeling down, who then sends your animals to console you and 'lick your wounds'? Is it the father of lies that does this for you? No!

"Those who preach that these animals are purely there for their purposes so that they can then treat them as abusively as they choose are doing so to try to remove their guilt. It is just too condemning a thought for a wicked man that abuses his animals to believe that these animals that he abuses in secret could even be a type of order of angelic hosts created by God as a measure for them.

"They will then argue that, because it is not clearly stated in My Word, they can do to these animals as they please. Well, won't they be surprised to find out that these animals have also been used as a measure for these wicked men?

"What about the wicked Balaam. He was so busy beating his donkey that he was unable to see the angel who was sent. After beating his donkey for a third time, the donkey was given the ability to speak.

"You should always be careful about those who do not reflect the character of the living God. This is a warning to those who bend their ear to evil. How many children or elderly have been upset with God because their beloved companions with fur or feathers had passed and then they received this false preaching?

"The enemy is then quick to rush in to 'comfort them' by telling them, "Oh, I am so sorry about your animal. I am sorry that your animal is not important to God and has no soul. Just remember...'once dead, always dead'." Erin, this does not reflect the character of My Father or Me, but only suits the enemy's purposes instead."

Me: "Is this the same type of people that preach 'once saved, always saved' and then go on to use this as their reasoning to behave in the most wicked of ways without fear of consequence or any regard for what their behavior will do to others?"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. It seems that these people would rather take excerpts from My Word out of context in order to use this to exalt themselves above others. These same people then purposely ignore the many places in My Word that speaks about loving God with all of their heart, soul and mind and loving their neighbors as they love themselves.

"As with so many things, this too is a gauge and a measure. While these people twist My Words for their own gain, they never fool God, just themselves. All is seen, all is measured and nothing is forgotten by My Father Who sits in His Courts. Now, Erin, let us speak about your dream from last night."

Me: "Yes, Lord! I am just so excited about all that I had been shown! This felt so real and was so encouraging. It is just hard for me to imagine that I could ever be like that, especially as I am feeling today. As You know, Father, I just lost my earthly father and I have not been doing well these last few days as a result. I do not like 'the world' much anymore and I am really struggling with all of this."

Jesus: "Erin, you continued to chase after Me." He smiled and nudged me. "You even pursued Me until I caught you. Just remember that it was Me who had called you to begin with.

"Now, I know the origins of each person. Each one! I have seen all of the injustices against the innocent and all that the wicked believe has been done in secret. Take comfort in knowing that the One Who rules over the Earth is greater than the evil that is upon the Earth. As it is also written...greater is He Who is in you than he who is in the world.

"Now, your time is coming to a close where you currently are. I have called you and your household to greater service. You have fought many battles and, through each one, and although you are now weary, you still put all of your hopes in Me. Erin, you had picked up your old Bible earlier today."

Me: "Yes, Lord. This particular Bible is usually a very difficult one for me to pick up. It is worn, the pages are tattered, passages are marked with lines and I wrote so many dates in the margins there, dates of times filled with pain. I had purchased this Bible back in 2004 and it has been my companion ever since.

"You have spoken to me through the pages of this Bible. I have been so blessed by Your Words contained within. When I was on my knees this morning, I opened this Bible to 2 Samuel 22. I then noticed that I had underlined 51 verses. I remember reciting each of the underlined verses to You.

"I had also written 22 separate dates there, each written as separate markers. It is a song of praise from David, but, to me, it is more of a battle cry. Oh Father, to me, this is a warrior's battle cry! It even gave me strength when I had wanted to die.

"I remember wanting so much to be just like King David. I wanted to have the same love that he has for You. He even danced before You, Lord. He danced before You and was never ashamed to do so. Oh, how I wanted a love for You like his!”

Jesus: “Well, Erin, I want you to read this again. This is a battle decree. These are directives of that which will be. You are My witnesses to the Kingdom of Heaven. While you are not one of ‘the’ Two Witnesses in Jerusalem, you will still go wherever I send you. You will also ride a horse.” He then smiled and gently nudged me. “As you know, I recently acquired some beautiful horses from California.”

I knew that He was specifically talking about the horses that had recently died in the California fires. He was comforting me again. As soon as He finished saying this, I immediately heard all of the horses in the valley making sounds as similar as horses can make to cheering for Jesus. I could not help but laugh as they were all bowing down to Him now. How great is our God!

Me: Smiling. “Will we be riding on horses from now on instead of other forms of transportation?” He knew I was kidding.

Jesus: Laughing. “Well, I never said that you will only ride everywhere on horseback, right?” I then laughed. “However, what I do say is that you will come just like a vast army from the Gates of Heaven...and in whatever form of transportation I deem appropriate for the occasion.” We both laughed.

“Now, so far, you have had many more losses in this life than you have had gains. However, I tell you the truth...I will restore all that the enemy has stolen. What was lost will be found. You will go where I send you in My Name. You will display awesome abilities as I will be with you. Now, Erin, rejoice! All of you who truly love Me, rejoice, for the Kingdom of Heaven is near.

“Oh yes...I recently sent some ‘blue snow’ to you again. This was your first ‘real’ snowfall of the winter season. I had sent this to you to remind you that, although you are discouraged, do not be. I am with you and I will go before you into your battles. However, I am also right beside you and I take up your rearguard. I am also in you.”

Me: Smiling. “Thank You, Lord, but are You above me too?”

Jesus: Laughing. “Yes, Erin, of course! Now, rejoice and take comfort.” He smiled with such love and looked into my eyes. My heart leaped with joy! “Prepare, Erin! Now is the time to prepare! I call you ‘friend!’”

He reached over and hugged me. I hugged Him back and never wanted to let Him go ...as per usual.

Dream 270 – God and ‘Consider this day’

Received on Sunday, December 17, 2017

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family, my friends and Your promises in Your Word.

Description of three similar dreams, ‘The Room of Paper Lanterns’, begins...

I have recently had three very similar dreams about paper lanterns. In each of these three dreams, there were hundreds of the most beautiful paper lanterns stored in a single room. Each of these lanterns were so incredibly detailed as to be admired by all who looked upon them.

Suddenly and without warning, one of the paper lanterns caught on fire. The fire then quickly spread to the other lanterns. Within seconds, this entire room full of paper lanterns was burning up.

Description of three similar dreams over...

Even though this has not been confirmed by the Lord, I cannot help but believe that this room full of paper lanterns represents the State of California. However, after hearing comments made on this in the Nest, I now believe that these lanterns could instead be all of us after we have been Transformed. Perhaps this even has a dual meaning?

As I reflected on these dreams this morning, God suddenly began to speak to me as I sat in my devotional chair praying.

God: “Erin, consider this day. Stop and consider all that is around you. What do you see?”

I opened the shades on my window and looked outside. The sun was shining brightly. It was about 7 degrees outside and it was 1:00pm in the afternoon (which is already the evening in Jerusalem). I could hear the rushing water down below my window from the small brook. I heard the wind and the distant sound of the snowbird (Junko).

I looked at the Hebrew calendar and noted that Kislev 30 starts this evening, Sunday, December 17th, 2017, and ends on Monday evening, December 18th, 2017. Kislev 30 starts this evening and represents the 6th candle of the 8 candles of Hanukkah.

I then noted that Tevet 1 starts on Monday evening, December 18th, 2017 and will be the 7th candle. Tevet 2 starts on Tuesday evening, December 19th, 2017 and will be the 8th candle. The 8th day of Hanukkah, the final day of Hanukkah, ends in the evening of Wednesday, December 20th, 2017.

After I finished my search, I settled back into my devotional chair and started to pray again. As I did, I noticed that everything around me grew perfectly quiet, but only for just a second or two. For just this short time, it was like time had stopped.

Me: "Father, what am I to consider? I know that You are here, but I cannot see You. Well, I cannot see the wind either, but I certainly can see its effects. I can also feel the wind on my skin as it blows all around me. If the effects of the 'invisible wind' are clearly visible, how much greater are 'Your Effects'?"

God began to speak to me again as soon as I finished writing this down.

God: "Erin, give careful consideration today."

Me: "Yes, Father, but I am scared. Please protect our sons and my husband on their journey into town. Please protect my daughters that remain here with me at our house. Please protect my friends and family that are afar. Please do not take any of them Home before they see all that You have promised come to fruition. I love You, Father. Will You please also consider us?"

God: "Erin, Erin, oh Erin, when does 'consider' mean 'death' or 'harm'? Did not the flood rains cease on the 27th? Did the oil not continue to flow in the lampstand to provide light in the darkness when there was no hope that the flame could continue? Then consider this day."

I stopped and did a search on 'the 27th'. I noted that Kislev 27 started on Thursday evening, December 14th, 2017 and ended Friday evening, December 15th, 2017. Kislev 27 represented the 3rd candle of the 8 candles of Hanukkah. However, Kislev 27 would have also been the last of 40 days of rain that would have started on Cheshvan 17 ('the 17th day of the second month') during the flood of Noah.

I then did a search on today. Today is Kislev 29 and the 5th candle of the 8 candles of Hanukkah would have been lit yesterday evening. Kislev 30 starts this evening, Sunday, December 17th, 2017, and ends on Monday evening, December 18th, 2017, but would have already started in Jerusalem. The 6th candle of the 8 candles of Hanukkah will be lit this evening and has already been lit in Israel.

I did a quick search on other news items that could have been of significance, but really did not find anything. However, I must admit that I did not search for long and knew that my search was not 'overly exhaustive'. I decided that I would search some more after I finished speaking with God in my devotional chair.

Me: "I looked, Father, but I could not find anything overly significant for this day. My heart has been dimly lit as my hope has begun to fade and the oil of joy is running short. I am sorry, Father, for my lack of faith and my discouragement even though I know in my heart that You will soon do all that You said You will do. My hope, well, all of our hopes, are in You and You alone!”

God: “Are you finished stating your condition? Do I not know this already? Then, Erin, consider this day.”

Me: “Yes, Father, I will. It is a beautiful day that You have made.”

God: “Yes, indeed, it is. Indeed, it is. Consider it.”

Dream over...

After this dream was completed, I called my husband over and we decided to look over the news together to see if there were any big events. We then decided to specifically look for ‘Israel-related events’ to ‘consider’ and soon came across an article that seemed quite significant for ‘all of us’ to ‘consider’:

<https://www.cnbc.com/2017/12/18/un-to-vote-monday-on-call-for-us-jerusalem-decision-to-be-withdrawn.html>

UN to vote Monday on call for US Jerusalem decision to be withdrawn

The United Nations Security Council is due to vote on Monday on a draft resolution calling for the withdrawal of U.S. President Donald Trump’s decision to recognize Jerusalem as the capital of Israel, diplomats said, a move likely to face a Washington veto.

The one-page Egyptian-drafted text, seen by Reuters, does not specifically mention the United States or Trump. Diplomats say it has broad support among the 15-member council, and while it is unlikely to be adopted, the vote will further isolate Trump on the issue.

To pass, a resolution needs nine votes in favor and no vetoes by the United States, France, Britain, Russia or China.

Trump abruptly reversed decades of U.S. policy this month when he recognized Jerusalem as Israel’s capital, generating outrage from Palestinians. Trump also plans to move the U.S. embassy to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv.

U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Nikki Haley has praised Trump’s decision as “the just and right thing to do.”

The U.S. mission to the United Nations was not immediately available to comment on Sunday.

Arab foreign ministers agreed to seek a UN Security Council resolution on the issue. The draft UN text expresses “deep regret at recent decisions concerning the status of Jerusalem.”

It “affirms that any decisions and actions which purport to have altered, the character, status or demographic composition of the Holy City of Jerusalem have no legal effect, are null and void and must be rescinded in compliance with relevant resolutions of the Security Council.”

The draft also calls upon all countries to refrain from establishing diplomatic missions in Jerusalem.

Israel considers the city its eternal and indivisible capital and wants all embassies based there.

“No vote or debate will change the clear reality that Jerusalem” is the capital of Israel, Danny Danon, Israel’s ambassador to the United Nations, said in a statement on Saturday.

Palestinians want the capital of an independent Palestinian state to be in the city’s eastern sector, which Israel captured in a 1967 war and annexed in a move never recognized internationally.

The draft council resolution “demands that all states comply with Security Council resolutions regarding the Holy City of Jerusalem, and not to recognize any actions or measures contrary to those resolutions.”

A UN Security Council resolution adopted in December 2016 “underlines that it will not recognize any changes to the 4 June 1967 lines, including with regard to Jerusalem, other than those agreed by the parties through negotiations.”

That resolution was approved with 14 votes in favor and an abstention by former U.S. President Barack Obama’s administration, which defied heavy pressure from longtime ally Israel and Trump, who was then president-elect, for Washington to wield its veto.

Dream 271 – Walking with Jesus to a Special Ceremony

Received on Wednesday, December 27, 2017, Posted January 2, 2018

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Today marks the end of our 40th month in the 'Land of the Trees'! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for my dear family and friends. Thank You for warmth and running water. Thank You for lights.

It is bitter cold today – minus 27 with the wind chill approaching minus 40. The cold is making my bones ache to the very core. My poor dog, Zoey, couldn't even make the journey upstairs from the basement on her own. She had to be carried up as she is in a great deal of pain from the cold as well.

Today is a big day! We just completed 40 months of being here, tucked away in the trees. At one point in my previous dreams, You had informed me of when I had reached the 40 month mark of being 'trapped' in the desert. This 'new marker' has now arrived, but for our time here of rest, yet also of unrest.

In reality, it still sometimes feels as if I have been in the desert my entire life. In particular, it feels as if I have been in the desert for the 40 years or so since I had reached my 'age of accountability'. Even though I am not certain that this could somehow fall into a particular 'divine pattern', You know and that is all that is important.

One thing I do know for certain is that I no longer feel as if I belong here on Earth anymore. I do not fit in. This is not my true home. In reality, Earth is more of a battlefield to me than anything else. This is the place where those that You have called are prepared by fire and chastisement in order to later be ready for Your purposes.

Yes, this is painful, and 'even unto death', but, make no mistake, we have not been called for this time to 'be in comfort'. We are being called out by You, Father, to even do things we do not want to do, especially if we still want to remain in our 'secure comfortable positions'.

I cannot help but feel that You have even started making my 'comfortable eagle's nest' here 'unbearable'. However, I also know that You would only be doing this in order to prepare us 'for flight'. I must admit that I too like my comfortable chair, as well as my 'comfortable routine'. This works quite well for me right now as I am often in pain.

I can also tell that You are, 'bit-by-bit', readying all of us to soon embark on an epic adventure with You. You are closing doors and opening other doors.

You are cutting off those who have cursed us and I just know in my heart that You are about to bring them low.

You are also pruning back dying branches and limbs off of the trees. You are doing this so that these trees, when they awake again in the spring, will no longer have burdensome growths.

I had never really heard about 'winter pruning' before, but this is a real thing done agriculturally. However, I now also believe that this applies to the times we are in right now. Thank You for preparing us for this as we are too weak to do any of this on our own strength. We only succeed as You allow us to succeed.

I had a brief vision this morning. In this vision, I saw angels pruning trees in a snowy landscape. I watched as these angels removed dead and diseased branches. They then carefully shaped the sleeping trees using meticulous pruning.

When I came out of the vision, I felt that I was to then look up even more on how 'winter pruning' is practiced here on Earth. This is what I found in the Farmer's Almanac...

In winter, dead and diseased branches are pruned out first. Overgrowth is then removed, including some of the smaller branches. This is done in order to increase light and air to the 'crown' of the tree.

Oh Father, if there is still anything left in me that needs pruning, then please 'prune away'. Please forgive my trespasses so that my vessel will soon be completely ready for Your purposes.

December has been a tough month for me, a month with great loss and sorrow. I have lost family due to death, but also due to 'offense' then taken against me. I have also lost friends in a similar manner. These losses are hard on me. They take a toll.

Compounding all of this is the belief I have that the hearts of those I come into contact with here locally are continuing to grow colder every day. People that used to be genuinely warm and friendly at the store, the post office and the bank, but really almost everywhere these days, seems to have been replaced with an odd coldness.

Yes, there are still smiles and small talk, but these no longer seems genuine, warm or heartfelt. Warmth of any kind simply seems to be fading rapidly. It seems as if the atmosphere, at least in a spiritual sense, has changed even more quite recently.

Father, I must also admit to You that I don't even enjoy these dreams with You as much as before. It is not because of You as You are absolutely perfect and wonderful, it is because You are now showing me difficult things, such as measuring lines, walls, corridors, treacherous bridges, wet dank dark basements and pure evil.

Back in December of 2012, You had told me that a decree had been sent out into the world and that an army of evil spirits were released to come upon the people of this land, but really everywhere else as well. Father, I believe that You allowed this demonic army to come against the world in order to separate the goats from the sheep.

Hearts have grown colder and colder ever since, but even more so recently. Things that used to be considered unacceptable in society have quickly changed to now being so acceptable that none of us are even allowed to stand against it or even complain.

There are now so many religions, sexual perversions and criminal activities allowed, if not even encouraged, that it is nearly impossible for me to list them all. I can always tell when these are from the enemy as the fruits that come from them are all the very opposite of 'The Fruits of the Spirit'.

It is as if all of Your laws, including Your 10 Commandments, now have so many exclusions and side notes added that they have morphed into 'blurred lines'. I feel that the 10 commandments will soon be a distant memory and that many will really have no other choice than to adhere to the religious rules and practices of the 'invading armies'.

Even the nightly news is no longer 'just news'. The news now contains speculation and forecasting, all in an effort to try to sway viewers towards their 'controller's beliefs'. Mergers of mega-corporations are also quietly happening and we have no say. I truly believe that these mergers will become 'quite disturbing' for all of us very soon.

The news now also shows an increasing trend towards reporting crimes 'between races'. I believe that this is happening more often as 'they' are trying to pit races against each other. In the end, I believe that this is all happening so that they can create even greater fears and an 'us vs. them' mentality. It is working!

Yes, all things once considered good are now being reported as bad and all things once considered bad are now being reported as good. As just one example, public prayer to God is now unacceptable even though public prayer and meditation to other gods, and even to one's 'own self', is now perfectly acceptable.

There is also a longtime trend happening that seems to allow Muslims to oppose anything they want. However, and at the same time, anything related to Jesus is now equated to being of a narrow view full of hate. That's right - all of us who love Jesus are now being equated as 'haters'. The founders of this great country would be horrified!

Well, Father, I believe that, in a way, they are partially correct here. Since I hate the sins of this world because of You, I guess I would also now be classified as a 'hater'. I must admit that I hate the evil of all of the sin that is now so readily acceptable. The blurring of truth, especially Your Commandments and laws, seems to now be here to stay. There is no going back!

I never thought I would ever see this happen, yet here it is. It is horrible. Our teenagers and our young adults seem easier to influence than ever. Please help us to keep Your truth, Your Word, Your Bible, close to our hearts. The tablets of this world, technology and the internet, is now the only tablets on so many of their hearts. This is so unholy!

There are so many days in which I find all of this so difficult to stand against. Since my health is poor now, I simply can't. As a result, Father, I have become increasingly discouraged.

Please speak Your truth loudly to those of us that You have called. Please do not let Your sheep follow goats as this will lead to our certain death. Please keep our ears open to Your Shepherd's Call, the One True Shepherd, Jesus.

I love You so much, Father, and I ask that You please strengthen us soon so that we can stand against the ever growing coldness of this world. While it is not in our hearts to offend, simply loving You, Father, now offends so many people on a daily basis.

Please help us to not obey the demands of man, but only to hear Your voice and obey Your instructions. Strengthen all of my friends that hear from You and help them to stand against the evil voices of the many enemies who are against us.

Please help me to have grace for those 'friends' who will only love me if I meet their specific conditions. Since I do not bend to their will, only Your Will, please protect me from their resulting attacks when they then become offended by me because of You.

Instead of chasing after You for reconciliation and healing, so many are now becoming comfortable in their bitterness. They are becoming comfortable in their offense! In a way, I now see December 2017 as a 'Month of Offense'! The bitter cold in the air seems to now be translating to bitter cold against all of us whom love You with all of our hearts.

At around 3:15am last night, I awoke suddenly to the sound of a knock on our door. Since there was no one there, not at our room door or even at the front door, I soon figured out that this was You in the supernatural. Since I knew that You must have woken me up for a purpose, I went back to bed and prayed to You as I laid there.

Tears started to run down my cheeks as the pain in my body soon became more and more intense. My pain especially increased in my lower back and hip areas. I started to pray for so many things, including things that I have prayed for before...

Oh Father, please bless our households. Please heal our children. Please forgive me for becoming grumpy at times from all of this pain. While I know in my heart that You are using this pain to get me to exactly where You want me to be, this pain is also making it extremely difficult to be joyful.

Thank You, Father, for these 40 months of 'rest', yet 'unrest' at the same time, here in 'The Land of the Trees'. Thank You for bringing my husband to me as he is also my best friend. He was sent by You and is an unbending lover and defender of these dreams. He cares so much for each in our household and is a wise and patient man.

I am also making a special prayer to You today that You will soon bless my husband greatly. Without his service, his great zeal for Your heart and his constant encouragement for me to continue, I would surely have quit these dreams a long time ago, even if not just from the frustration from all of this pain.

Oh Father, please bless and heal all of us soon. So many of us are struggling with the weight of this world. We chase You, Father, and we love You so, so very much!

After praying for all of the above, the Lord then put me into a deep slumber. The dream I subsequently had was incredibly clear and was filled with such hope and beauty...

Dream 1 description begins..." Walking with Jesus to a Special Ceremony"...

I was in a snowy clearing surrounded by a landscape of the most beautifully lit trees I have ever seen! I went over to one of the trees and closely inspected the lights. While this would be impossible on Earth, what I saw was truly incredible.

There were no strings of lightbulbs and no extension cords. The lights were literally coming from the blossoms and the leaves of the trees and bushes. The blossoms glowed in the light of pinks and whites. The lights were warm and inviting and were all around me. It was impossibly God and only by His Great and Wonderful Works!

I looked down and saw that the ground was covered in snow. I picked up a handful of the snow and it was fresh and light. However, here is the neat part. The snow was not cold to the touch at all and I was comfortably warm in this snowy 'wonder-scape'!

The clearing I was approaching was round and had a fountain in the middle of it. A path led to it and then away from it. While impossible to describe, the fountain had frozen plumes of water, yet this frozen water still somehow continued to cascade! Within these frozen plumes were layer after layer after layer of amazing colors and lights.

I then saw these tiny birds of white with feathers of silver and wings of gold all around me. They sang such a beautiful song that tears started to stream down my cheeks. They were tears of joy and I smiled as I continued to look all around me.

As I came nearer to the fountain, I could hear the sound of bells. This was then followed by a loud trumpet sound. Once the trumpet sounded, these beautiful birds, now hundreds of them, suddenly took flight and hovered in the sky just above me.

I then became even more excited about what more I would see down the path, so I started to walk past the right side of the fountain. As I walked, I heard a choir of angels being accompanied by a heavenly orchestra of 'epic proportions'. The sweetest mixture of 'Pachelbel Canon in D major' and 'The Bittersweet Symphony' filled the air.

Me: "Oh Father, I cannot even begin to describe all that I am seeing and hearing right now. This is just so wonderful and so 'You'! This somehow even seems to have the feel of a special ceremony, perhaps even a wedding ceremony!"

My curiosity was building while I continued to walk past the fountain. Without meaning to, I momentarily caught a glimpse of my reflection in the frozen plumes. I could not believe it was me at first as I looked young again. While I was physically changed, it was still me in my heart. I just 'appeared' different.

I was wearing a beautiful white coat with intricate gold vines embroidered onto it. Soft fur trimmed the border of the hood, as well as the entire circumference of the coat. It was the most beautiful coat I had even seen, both on Earth as it is in Heaven...smiles!

I then noticed that, under this amazing coat, was a beautiful gown of the finest woven linen I have ever felt. Even though it was linen, it somehow was as 'fluid' as the finest of satins. The combination was unassuming and simple, yet classy and royal at the same time. Yes, this was something like royalty on Earth would wear, but much, much finer.

As I continued to enjoy the processional of this most amazing music, I inspected my hands. On Earth, my hands are dull and dry, but what I saw here took my breath away. My hands were beautiful and perfectly shaped. My finger nails looked like shiny pearls.

As I turned onto the path after passing the fountain, this part of the path was covered with 2 or 3 inches of soft rose pedals of every color. It was the softest of 'carpets', yet completely easy to walk on. The fragrance was simply amazing!

As I looked ahead of me on the path, I could see angels lining the path. The angels were holding swords and held them up in such a manner as to form an elegant canopy over my head. I felt so safe and secure as I walked under this amazing canopy.

After I walked through this canopy of swords, there were even more angels lining the path, but now they were holding trumpets. As I walked past, each trumpet would start up and play in unison with the previous trumpet.

I then became excited as I realized that a few of the angels playing the trumpets were actually ones that I recognized from previous dreams. I reached over and gently touched their arms as they played, but in such a way so as to not disturb their beautiful trumpeting. After I passed all of them, they all played in such beautiful unison.

I could not help but laugh because each of the angels had smiled at me as I walked by. I was also laughing because they were trying to look 'official' at the same time, but seemed to not be able to keep themselves from smiling. I somehow knew that this had been divinely allowed by God for my amusement and it made me so happy!

Despite my potential distraction to them, each of the angels still remained focused on their task and kept up their 'official roles' with the 'utmost professionalism'. As I continued to walk down the path, I then noticed that I was now in a landscape of spring. I looked back and saw that the winter landscape was now behind me.

Even though I was still comfortable in my coat despite it now being spring, an angel motioned for me to allow him to take my coat. I let down the hood and unfastened the jeweled clasp. With the angel's assistance, my coat was soon removed. All of this was done with such elegance that it simply defies description...yet again!

I looked up ahead of me, again in curiosity. All of this was just so much fun! I then saw a part of Jesus' Mansion that I had never been to before! There was a massive staircase. There were many people there and they were cheering and so happy!

Me: "Lord, surely this cannot be for someone like me!" I started to cry with such joy. "I do not see myself as even deserving to be here, especially like this, yet is this really how You see me here, Lord? This is something beyond my imagination and certainly too wonderful for me. While I am just so overwhelmed with joy, I will take it!"

I continued to proceed down the path. I looked ahead and Jesus suddenly appeared. He was riding His beautiful white horse. He was in a royal attire of blue velvet, all adorned in white and gold. He had a beautiful crown of gold on His head.

As I walked towards Him, I noticed that His crown consisted of woven 'thorns', but where every thorn was no longer 'sharp and pointed' like at His crucifixion. Instead, every 'point' was covered in jewels. There were seven points altogether, each situated above the woven impression of His 'thorned' crown.

Each of these seven points also had three branches leading up to these points. Each of the three branches for each of the seven points were also covered in a jewel that somehow shined even brighter than even the highest quality of earthly diamonds.

As I came closer to Him, I gasped! Quite simply, standing before me was the most handsome 'man' I have EVER seen, either on Earth or in Heaven. While Jesus is always very handsome, He had somehow escalated this beyond any earthly description. The best way I can describe this is that 'He truly took my breath away'!

He was so perfect to look upon that I did not even realize that I had now stopped walking towards Him. I simply stood there staring at Him in all of His Majesty as tears ran down my cheeks. He was smiling and laughing as He rode His horse over to where I had 'frozen' in such awe of Him. He dismounted His horse and looked into my eyes.

Jesus: Smiling. "Oh Erin, do not cry! Today is a special day!"

Me: "Oh Lord, I do not feel worthy of any of this. What have I done to deserve such wonderful fanfare and to be in the presence of My King?"

I looked down in reverence to Him and curtsied and bowed. I remained there for several seconds until He finally motioned for me to stand up again. He lifted my chin up so that I looked into His eyes again.

Jesus: "Well, Erin, you are worthy to Me. Though you do not see yourself as perfect to Me, you are 'Perfectly Erin'! I have found you worthy and I delight in you. To Me, you are My queen in gold of Ophir."

Me: "Oh, if only everyone knew how amazing You are, Lord, there would not be a single person that would not be pursuing You! Even the wealthiest of men would give all that they have just to spend a day with You. There is no one like You, Lord. There is nothing which compares to Your glory and majesty! Thank You for this moment! Thank You for my dreams with You!"

Jesus: Smiling. "So, Erin, why do you think all of this was waiting for you here today?"

Me: "I am not sure, Lord. Is it because I am one of Your Bride?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, Erin, but even more than this. This is your coronation. This is your coronation as I have found you worthy to receive the crown."

Me: "Oh Lord, there are so many weary and hopeless saints who will love knowing that You will soon be doing this for them!"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but many will not yet understand this as they consume My Words in part. My Words are to be consumed whole, not in parts. Someone taking in only those parts that fit into their 'personal box' will then rationalize away the Kingdom of Heaven, along with all My glorious gifts that I have for those I love that await them here.

"To discredit any portion of My Word is the same as discrediting My entire Word. You are here because you believe in My entire Word, the Words of Truth. You have taken hold of the promises in My Word and have etched them upon your heart.

"No matter what the 'ruler of this world' has thrown at you, you did not receive his lies. Even now and in great pain, you have remained steadfast to My Words and have endured. Yes, Erin, to all of those who endure, they will surely wear 'The Crown of Life'.

"However, there are many different types of crowns. Each of these crowns tell a story. Some crowns even combine all of these! Each of you have already been given a crown or two..." He smiled. "...but soon there will be even more."

Me: Smiling. "So, are we going to be wearing these crowns here all of the time?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Well, I do not believe that this will be necessary." He then took His crown off. "So, Erin, am I still the King and the Bridegroom even without this crown?"

Me: Laughing. "Of course!"

Jesus: "You hear all of the negative things now spoken about the Kingdom of Heaven. Just as the world curses Me, and curses you because of Me, they also curse Paradise. They do this as they have decided that there are 'other paths' to 'their heaven'.

"However, these other paths actually come from the enemy. What they do not realize is that the enemy does not delight in man at all. Far from it! The enemy hates them. As a house divided cannot stand, the enemy, along with his children, continues to punish those of you destined for the One True Heaven.

"As the enemy knows exactly what awaits the saints here in Heaven, he has created this alternate view of 'heaven' as a way to distract those away from what is truly waiting for them here. Now, let's look at an example of two different farmers...

"One farmer is a man after God's heart and is being lead down the path of the righteous by Me. He has a beautiful field, rich soil and abundant harvests. His crops are in great demand and are highly prized by those who purchase his produce. Since this farmer gives thanks to Me in all that he does, the hand of God is upon this 'good farmer'.

"The other farmer is his neighbor and has decided to not follow the 'good farmer' on this righteous path. He has instead fallen away and has made it his mission to slander the 'good farmer', working against him constantly.

"His lies include claims that the good farmer's produce has chemicals that will make people sick. He lies in order to discourage others from taking in the good farmer's produce so that they will instead delight in the bad crops that are being produced on his bad fields. Do you understand?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, the enemy wants people to believe that Heaven is boring, that these crowns are burdensome and that the mansions You have built for us are pretentious, materialistic and gaudy. The enemy wants people to believe that we do nothing here in Heaven other than kneel before You and chant 24/7 for all of eternity."

Jesus: Laughing. "Hmm, this sounds more like 'his church on Earth' right now, doesn't it? Erin, this is why you are here. You are a witness to the true Kingdom of Heaven. You are spreading the 'Good News', the Good News that I have prepared a place for those who love Me.

"This is not a place of boredom, but a place of joy, laughter and wonder. There is no pain or bitterness here. There is no sense of loss or shame here. I have set you free and, here, you are free indeed!"

Me: "Well, Lord, while I would also love to be a heavenly travel guide, I truly love being here with You more than anything else. I am free from pain here. I am always surrounded by such incredible beauty here. There is something new here each day. I am ready for more of You each day. There is no God like You, Lord!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Very well then, come with Me!"

He took my hand and we began to walk down the path of roses. We walked together towards a special ceremony that had been prepared just for us...

Dream 1 description over...

Another knock on the door woke me up. I was understandably disappointed at the disruption as I didn't want this dream to end. I looked around to see who had knocked, but there was no one there...again.

I knew that it was God waking me up at just the right time, but I still wanted to go back to the dream. It was 8:20am now and I felt that I was to write all of this down immediately instead. Since this had been, in a way, 'my Psalm 45 Moment', I decided to do just that...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately standing at the door to God's Court. I looked over and there was Uriel smiling at me.

Uriel: "God requests your presence, Erin."

I smiled back at him and nodded that I was ready. He put salve on my eyes and brought me into God's Court. I could hear choirs of angels singing. Their voices overlapped perfectly and were reaching higher and higher in octave.

Choir of angels: "Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God Almighty, Who Was and Is and Is to come!"

The Throne Room was so bright today that, even with the salve on my eyes, I was unable to see anything clearly. Uriel then took me as close to God as my body was able to go when my knees started to buckle. I felt so delighted to be able to bow down before God in His presence. I lifted my hands up and praised Him.

Me: "Oh Father, please forgive me for my trespasses. I forgive those who have trespassed against me. I am sorry, Father, so sorry for my lack of faith." I took a deep breath and exhaled. "Thank You, Father, for all that You have done for us!"

God: "Erin, you are in the times of the fulfillment of prophecies. The nations have taken their positions against Israel. While they will soon rise up in anger against Jerusalem, they will also rise up against your homeland because of their position in defending Israel. I am about to further shake the nations and humble the land.

"Do not be afraid. Understand the times that you are in right now. While you may think that which you will soon observe is unfair, know that these things must happen before 'The Great and Horrible Day'. All will be as has been written."

"Now, I am about to strengthen you, heal you and bring you out from the quiver that I have hidden you. Do not be afraid. The things that I have placed upon your heart is knowledge, not imagination. Write this down plainly as I give this to you."

Me: "Yes, Father."

God: "Dreams, visions, words of knowledge and miracles will soon increase through those whom I have called. However, some will also receive an increase in strength and abilities along with these miracles of healing and knowledge. Angels will be sent to take charge over them to protect them in all that they do. These will be your sons and your daughters, your young and your old and lame."

Me: I hesitated. "Even..." I quickly stopped myself.

God: "Yes, Erin, even you and your household. I am about to do all that I have promised. Pray and I will answer your prayers. As soon as you call, I will answer. Now, Erin, desolation is coming to the land of Israel."

Uriel came over and brought me to my feet.

God: "Do not worry or be afraid. Trust Me. I love you. You are the apple of My eye."

Me: Though my knees were still shaking, I somehow managed to curtsy towards Him. "Thank You, Father."

I heard His rolling laughter and the entire area shook.

God: "You are loved. Remember that I have sent angels from Heaven to guard you in all of your ways. Rejoice, Erin, rejoice."

Me: "I love You, Father. Thank You!"

Uriel then brought me outside of the door to God's Court.

Uriel: "While I must go now, Erin, you are to understand the lateness of the hour. Ready your house and do not be afraid. As God has instructed me, tell your sons that I am with them. I will instruct them as if they were from the army of God."

Me: "With the Holy Spirit?"

Uriel: "Of course, Erin, as God is in them. Since they have been sleeping, the Holy Spirit will rise up and awaken them to the call of God."

I looked at him with a smile, but also with 'a thought'.

Uriel: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, your daughters also."

I laughed as I knew that God was letting Uriel know my thoughts. I smiled again, but now with 'a different thought'.

Uriel: "Yes, Erin, you can also assure those others who God has called that the armies of God are soon to be in service to the King."

I laughed again, but then looked into Uriel's eyes. He smiled back at me, but then continued to speak.

Uriel: "There has never been a time such as this. I must go, Erin, but rejoice as the Kingdom of God, the Kingdom of Heaven, is near. While your tears of pain will soon cease, you will then instead cry out for the lost.

"When you hear and see the atrocities against the weak and, yes, even children, remember that theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven. Do not mourn for them though as they will be here wearing crowns. Mourn instead for the grieving. Mourn instead for the lowly who have lost a great light.

"Now, God has given you a flame of hope to reignite the lost. Do not be afraid..." He smiled at me. "...as the Kingdom of Heaven is coming."

Dream 272 – Jesus and the Worldwide Web Warning

Received on Sunday, December 31, 2017, Posted January 4, 2018

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that we have. You never fail us. You delivered my two youngest children safely home to us. Thank You! Lately, I have been grieved over some of the news reports on the horrors of the internet, the 'web'.

The enemy is the best of punishers and the father of lies. He does not stop. He pursues the innocent until they are hunted down. He will not be satisfied until he has changed lovers of Your light of hope and innocence into lovers of all things dark and with no hope.

The enemy is the changer of Scripture and the confuser of truth. Clouds of confusion fall over anyone in his presence. He gets them isolated and 'preys', not prays, over them. They fall into depression and despair when they then allow him to continue to have access to them.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately with Jesus. He smiled and hugged me. We stood together at the Heavenly overlook. We looked over the Earth at nighttime and it was slowly rotating in front of us. While I saw millions of dim lights amongst the much fewer bright lights, I then noticed that some of the dim lights were starting to go dark.

Jesus: "Erin, this is the last wave of attacks against the children of God. Look up here."

He pointed to the area 'above' the Earth. It was covered in 'a web'. There were massive amounts of demons there. There were so many demons there that they were more numerous than thousands of hills of ants. Angels were busy keeping this web repaired and cutting down the demons before they were able to break through.

I then saw that a number of demons would gather together in such great concentration that they were then able to shoot several demons through the web. In reality, this was only as allowed by God. The demons were able to sneak through some small openings in the web. They would go through so fast that they were like bullets 'hitting' the Earth.

Me: "I do not understand this, Lord, as I know that, with but one of Your commands, You could stop all of this. What is it that I am seeing here?"

Jesus: "The web that is over the Earth, the world that is unseen, yet all use it and know that it is there. This is the realm that was to be sent before I come. This has allowed the increase of both good and evil. Evil has increased and, with each one of these you see breaking through, another breach in security has occurred.”

Me: “But, Lord, I am seeing thousands of these breaking through each minute.”

Jesus: “Yes, Erin, you are correct. Now look at this...”

He took me to what looked like an operation center. This seemed even larger than NASA and was an earthly operation run by people. I saw widespread global orders being given and maps with markers.

I then saw strategic meetings taking place and then even more orders going out. I then saw something that looked like infrared tracking. This was then followed by the ‘light-life’ of a victim being snuffed out.

Me: “What is this? It is like a giant videogame. Lord, why are You not sending in angels to stop this?”

Jesus: “Many people who read this will have the same questions. They will then be upset as they would prefer that I would have sent Uriel or Gabriel to show you that which is occurring here. They will find it difficult to believe that I am aware of this command center, yet I do not send angels there to stop it.

“I can tell by the look on your face that you are hurt by this as well.” He smiled and gently nudged me. “However, before you judge Me, come with Me...”

He took my hand and we were now in a beautiful suburban neighborhood with nice homes. The sky over us was clear and dark. I could see millions of stars in the sky.

Jesus: “Erin, every home in this neighborhood is Christian. The families live together in peace, love and joy. The families do everything together as a unit. While they are not perfect, they have the desire to do My Will in each of these homes. I am well pleased with the hearts of each person here. These people are Mine.”

I then saw each home being illuminated. I heard music and laughter. I saw a mother leaving her home with food. She walked across the street in front of us to another home that had someone there who was sick. Even though this home had seen tragedy, I could see that the light of God was still there. When the door opened, the light poured out.

Me: “Lord, why are You showing me this ‘ideal’ Christian neighborhood?”

Jesus: “Let Me now show you what happens next...”

I then saw each of these homes as if their entire front façade had been taken off. I could now see into their bedrooms. I saw children, babies and teenagers. Each had some form of technology or had access to it. I then saw hundreds of demonic entities crouching on each of the rooftops.

Jesus: "Do you see this, Erin? They have come from the web. Now they wait."

Me: "Oh Lord, I see innocent children!"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. Now watch..."

I saw a teenage boy studying for an exam. He must have been attending a Christian school as several religious books, including a couple of Bibles, were next to him. He had a normal Bible, as well as a topographical Bible. He was also doing some research on the internet.

His room door was open. His mother had just finished checking on him. He had his smartphone near him as well. I then heard a push notification on his phone and the boy picked it up to look. I saw him text something back.

Jesus: "Now watch what happens three doors down..."

I saw a beautiful teenage girl in her bedroom. She had awards all over her room for something. I saw a Scripture verse written along the top of her walls near the ceiling. I saw a large mirror hanging on one of her walls.

She was trying on several different outfits. I saw a demon in the bedroom with her. This demon looked crazy and was dressed in female clothing. It was ugly and foul. Whenever she would try a different outfit on, I would see it whispering into her ear. The girl soon began to 'shrink' and lose confidence.

Whenever the girl looked in the mirror, a different demon would put something like glasses over her eyes in order to distort her image. These 'glass lenses' then made the girl believe that she was much larger at times, but then later really thin. The image she saw of herself was always 'extreme', either too fat or too thin.

I then saw the girl texting. I soon noticed that she was texting the teenage boy that I had seen in his bedroom from earlier. They were now texting back and forth. She soon began to send suggestive photos to him. I then saw something like a veil of fog drop over both of them.

Before I could turn to ask the Lord a question, the bedrooms of both of these teens were completely filled with demons. The girl seemed to then change into something unrecognizable. I then saw her little sister come into the room. When her little sister went back to her own room, one of the demons followed her.

Me: "Oh Lord, this is overwhelming!"

Jesus: "Now look around..."

All of the demons that were on each of these many rooftops had now entered into each of these homes. This all happened so very fast that it was simply staggering.

Me: "Where is help, Lord?"

Jesus: He pointed to Himself. "Here, Erin. Help and hope is here..."

I then saw the teenage girl become so distraught about sending the pictures of herself that she fell to her knees. She then prayed with tears and a sincere heart. I saw angels from Heaven come into her presence and fill the room. I then heard her call for her mom. She was going to ask her to take her phone.

Before the mom could come, the boy texted her again. She looked at the text and changed her mind. As soon as she made this decision, I saw the angels clear out from her room. The demons were back on the roof and were gathered there to watch her.

Girl: "Oh, never mind, mom."

Soon after she said this, the demons came back into her room, but there were now even more demons there than before. The hammering of this girl then continued.

Me: "Lord, while I am overwhelmed by just watching these two homes, You must see this happening all over the world."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. Now, turn around..."

I turned around and saw this scenario playing out over and over again in house after house. I shuddered as this was all happening in this 'ideal' Christian neighborhood. However, it was not just the teenagers being affected, it was also all of those who invited ungodly material into their houses via 'The Web'. While I saw fathers doing this, there were some mothers doing this as well. There were many others as well.

Me: "Oh Lord, this is so much greater than I had ever imagined."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. This is the final wave of war in the 'heavenlies' before I appear."

Me: "Lord, why are You not doing more to stop this? Please forgive me, but it seems impossible for us to fight this war unless You intervene."

Jesus: "Erin, it is written that, in the last days, men will be lovers of themselves. Go to My Word and read this in light of what is happening today. See if this is not the very times that you are in right now. These things must occur."

He led me to 2 Timothy 3...

¹And know this: in the last days, times will be hard. ²You see, the world will be filled with narcissistic, money-grubbing, pretentious, arrogant, and abusive people. They will rebel against their parents and will be ungrateful, unholy, ³uncaring, coldhearted, accusing, without restraint, savage, and haters of anything good. ⁴Expect them to be treacherous, reckless, swollen with self-importance, and given to loving pleasure more than they love God.

⁵Even though they may look or act like godly people, they're not. They deny His power. I tell you: Stay away from the likes of these. ⁶They're snakes slithering into the houses of vulnerable women, women gaudy with sin, to seduce them. These reptiles can capture them because these women are weak and easily swayed by their desires.

⁷They seem always to be learning, but they never seem to gain the full measure of the truth. ⁸And, just as Jannes and Jambres rose up against Moses, these ungodly people defy the truth. Their minds are corrupt, and their faith is absolutely worthless. ⁹But they won't get too far because their stupidity will be noticed by everyone, just as it was with Jannes and Jambres.

¹⁰You have been a good student. You have closely observed how I have lived. You've followed my instructions, my habits, my purpose, my faith, my patience. You've watched how I love and have seen how I endure. You have been with me ¹¹through persecutions and sufferings – remember what they did to me in Antioch? In Iconium and Lystra? I endured all of it, and the Lord rescued me from it all! ¹²Anyone wishing to live a godly life in Jesus the Anointed will be hunted down and persecuted.

¹³But as for the wicked and the imposters, they will keep leading and following each other further and further away from the truth. ¹⁴So surely you ought to stick to what you know is certain. All you have learned comes from people you know and trust ¹⁵because since childhood you have known the holy Scriptures, which enable you to be wise and lead to salvation through faith in Jesus the Anointed. ¹⁶All of Scripture is God-breathed; in its inspired voice, we hear useful teaching, rebuke, correction, instruction, and training for a life that is right ¹⁷so that God's people may be up to the task ahead and have all they need to accomplish every good work.

Jesus: "Now you understand what has come against the land. However, there is even more from the Scriptures that I have shown you that also refers to those under these attacks."

Me: "Lord, how can any household fight against such things if You do not strengthen us? How can we possibly be there every moment? We cannot!"

Jesus: "Being a parent today is much more difficult than in the past. Many have been petitioned for by the enemy and has been the subject of great battles in My Court. When I say battles, I mean as in arguments, not fights.

"Perimeters and boundaries have been set up in which the enemy is unable to cross. Even so, here is just one example of what the enemy could do with a normal young person seeking to follow Me...

- First Step – Isolation and Aloneness: Wicked 'friends' in a school are systematically turned against someone by the enemy.
- Second Step – Bullying: Now vulnerable and lonely, bullies are then sent in. From this, girls, and yes, boys as well, then begin to hate their hair, their body, their room, their school and even their parents. Attacks can come against them in many forms.

- Third Step – Body Image: This bullying often leads to a poor body image. They compare themselves to an ideal, an ideal that can never be obtained. If the enemy can get someone to chase down something that they are unable to obtain as a measure of perfection, he then takes them down a dark path and finally into a very dark pit.
- Fourth Step – Given over to Vanity and Emotion: In pursuit of love and finding love to heal their pain, the enemy will often then send in someone of the opposite sex that has impure sexual intentions for them. However, when the love that is being sought is based on an illusion, there is no longer a true gauge of what love is, what love truly is according to the fruits of the Spirit. What then comes is often just a clever counterfeit to 'love'...lust. By opening themselves to sin, they will often then bend themselves to the enemy's will when they normally would never have allowed this."

"Too many who follow Me no longer try to fully understand who I am through My Word. Some only look at Me as the 'taker away of all things fun', but I am not. For those past the age of accountability, no 'brain disorder' and claim to have Me in their hearts, they are without excuse.

Note: A brief explanation of what we believe Jesus meant by 'brain disorder' is included at the end of this dream.

"However, this is how much I love them. I have given My life for them. In the same way that I have called you and your family to something wonderful, the enemy hates all of you because of this. He will use any weapon he can to destroy all of you.

"While some people say things with their lips, their hearts are not on Me. For others, while I am on their heart, their lips and their actions say something different and the enemy easily steers them like a horse to slaughter.

"Too many fail to take a stand out of fear of not being liked. However, make no mistake...they are hated, just as all of you are hated, because of Me. So, what then does all of this mean? Are they afraid of making enemies? Well, they already have them.

"Do they truly understand the lateness of the hour? Do they truly understand that some of their lights are already growing dim? Even for those whose light is bright, do they truly understand how much the darkness hates their light?

"I see everything done in secret. The angels turn their back whenever someone does unholy acts as they are not called to gaze upon these things unless they are at war or I have called them to stop it. Those who love Me should strive to not do anything that would cause My angels to turn their backs. If they do, do not be surprised if I remove My favor from them or even severely test them.

"However, if they instead keep all things holy and that of a Godly person with wisdom, I may just open the floodgates of Heaven upon them instead. Perhaps I will remove every blemish and perfect their images in such a way as to take the breath momentarily away from those in their presence.

"However, they must present themselves as I see them. They must let the beauty of their heart shine, not the deceptions of the world. Read the Scripture from Timothy again to truly understand just how many will lie and manipulate to get their way."

Me: "This makes me feel that we should not take our children's words at face value. Should we make it our practice to search what they are searching for on the web and to do this often? Will they know that this is coming and prepare accordingly?"

Jesus: "Well, a surprise search will often reveal more, understand? Remember that what you are doing is searching whether this is being used as a weapon against your household. Wisdom and discernment are required more now than ever. These should be requested from Me. Now, rejoice, Erin, as the hour is very late!"

Dream over...

Note on when Jesus speaks of a "brain disorder": We believe that Jesus is referring to someone that is mentally limited, such as Autism, Asperger's (depending upon the degree), Downs Syndrome, etc. While we are not sure exactly how this would apply, take comfort that God does and His mercy is great.

We believe Jesus said this to clarify that those who have mental disorders or handicaps are not included in this group even though they are teenagers or older (that is, have reached their age of accountability). While there has never been a given age of accountability and, most likely, it depends upon each person, it seems to be around early teens or so.

Note that Jewish culture commonly have Bar and Bat Mitzvahs at age 13. Basically if a person does not have the full ability to understand sin or at least be able to call on Jesus for salvation because of a 'brain disorder' then they are still saved. As an example, if you know someone that has Downs Syndrome, this should give you great comfort.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my husband, children and friends. Thank You for the stunning fresh snow and a now clear sky. Thank You for one more day.

Father, I have had a difficult time recently. My pain has been almost too much to bear. I have been waiting for help from a place that does not provide help. They have held me captive and their lack of treatment is now causing even greater troubles.

Oh Father, I want to live. I want to be free so that I can truly enjoy life. My children will be leaving our home soon and I have not been able to truly live. I spent my healthier days in battle and now I spend my days battling for health.

While I see You closing doors, Father, new ones have not yet opened. In fact, I recently had a dream of being in a hallway of doors. Every door was locked and I had nowhere to go. I know that You gave me this for a reason!

I can barely write, climb stairs, sit or even lay down my head to rest. Thank You for the little birds and animals though as I still have such joy in feeding them. I recently even had an adorable flying squirrel visit our deck one night to eat some of the peanuts I had put out for them.

While I find great joy in watching these little creatures, I now find using my camera to take pictures of them very difficult as my hands have grown unsteady. It is truly a miracle from You when I am actually able to capture a few ‘steady’ shots in the many pictures that I take.

On some days, I feel so...well...‘unable’! While I have been able to ‘mask things’ for the sake of my family, I am simply incapable of ‘hiding’ my pain anymore. It is just too much. While some may say that this is ‘prideful’, it is more in line with ‘keeping in the game’ as being the best way to behave as taught by my mom repeatedly.

While driving to pick up the kids from school yesterday, I witnessed a sight that I had never seen before. Two crows were hobbling across the road together. One crow, the larger crow, appeared to be sheltering the other smaller crow.

I then noticed that the smaller crow appeared to be injured and that the larger crow seemed to be walking it over to a small snow bank. After they crossed the road, I decided to walk over to them. The larger crow became angry and flew off with a squawk. I was surprised at myself that I was actually feeling compassion for a crow.

The smaller crow had now laid down in the snow and was huddling up like a duck weathering a storm. I spoke tenderly to it at first, but soon started to pray. The snow continued to fall as the larger crow continued to squawk at me from a distance.

I asked the Lord either to heal this crow or to just let it die quickly. As I prayed, I soon felt at peace. I told the Lord that I would check on it when I came back through in a couple of hours. If the crow was still alive, I would do whatever His will was for this bird.

When we eventually came back two hours later, I could still see this little black bundle huddled on the side of the road. I pulled the car over and walked up to the bird. It was still alive. As there was no noticeable blood, I used some thick gloves and a blanket to pick up the crow. I noticed that the larger crow had now left.

My younger son held the bird as we drove to the veterinarian hospital. I told everyone in the car that it would be quite unlikely for this little guy to last much longer. However, we took comfort in knowing that, if these were its last moments here, at least it was being cared for and was staying warm wrapped in a cozy blanket.

It was a twenty-minute drive to the vet and the crow remained calm and quiet the entire trip. It was not shaking, but rather just seemed to be studying each of us. When we finally arrived at the veterinarians, we soon found out that there were no vets on staff. We discussed this with the assistant that was on duty instead.

Me: "We found this crow huddled up in a snowbank. Is there anything you can do for it?"

Assistant: "We will admit her for observation. If she lasts through the night, this will be a good sign. One of the vets are coming in soon for their late shift and will examine her more thoroughly then."

After leaving, we prayed to the Lord about this little crow. While we were hoping for the best, we all suspected the worst. Not surprisingly, bad news soon came in the morning when the on-staff vet phoned me at home.

Vet: "While we made her as comfortable as possible, we had to put her to sleep last night. She was suffering from a broken wing, a broken foot and a bone protrusion that was untreatable. She would have still lived a couple of more days and been in great pain, so it was good that you had brought her in."

Oh Father, thank You for letting me come across this injured crow. She would have suffered even more and probably would have even soon be buried alive by a passing snowplow. I believe we all learned a lesson on compassion from this as my kids know all too well how I usually feel towards crows.

If nothing else, it made me feel that I actually made a difference. While so many have told me many times that I have made a great difference in their lives, it is amazing how pain can make you quickly forget. I even felt like I could somehow relate to this crow, an unlikely result.

I also found out that my 'care' will soon officially end, but, in reality, it never really ever began. In May, it will have been four years since my injury at work. The pain is affecting my blood pressure and the latest readings at the doctor's office averaged a very high 177/106.

What makes this even more alarming is that these readings were taken while I was resting. I truly believe that my blood pressure will not go down until my pain is finally relieved. I also truly believe that only God can relieve my pain. Once again, Father, I am totally relying on You!

With all that has happened, I am becoming depressed now. It is difficult for me to have joy even though I meet with You regularly and You have sent me a consistently upbeat husband...smiles. Thankfully, I often hear You then say, 'Do not worry, Erin, I am here and I am with You', whenever I pray and worship You.

At one point, I had even begun to wonder if my dreams were starting to point to me going Home earlier than I had expected. I then prayed that You will keep me here until You eventually come for all of us in the Rapture. Oh Father, I so want to see Your miracles and have fun serving You with my husband, our children and our friends!

As the pain was now too great for me to continue today, I decided to take a pause...

Received on Thursday, January 11, 2018

My oldest son drove with me to get some tests at the doctor's office earlier today. This is about an hour's drive from home. We left before the sun was up. Although the roads were not great, we still had a good time together talking during our drive.

After my tests were completed, we listened to a worship CD on the way home as we drove. During a lull in our conversation, I began to think about many things, including my health, time passing so quickly and my upcoming 55th birthday.

Just then, and in the middle of nowhere and to our astonishment, a white dove flew up in the air out of the snow. My son had witnessed this amazing dove as well. I quickly turned the car around in the hopes of taking a photo of it. While we looked around for it for quite some time, we could not find a trace of this dove anywhere.

However, we were both left with quite a vivid impression of a larger-than-normal, spotless, pure white dove with its wings spread in flight. I had never seen a pure white dove before, snow or no snow, so we were wondering if this was a miracle and a sign.

As we continued to drive home, we soon spotted two beautiful black horses. They were large horses, almost like Clydesdales, and they were playing with each other in the snow. We stopped and took some video of them playing.

When we arrived home, I decided to fix a tray of seeds for the birds, red squirrels and grey squirrels that now frequent our property. As I was now hooked up with a devise that took my blood pressure every thirty minutes, I was somewhat distracted as I walked out due to its cumbersome nature.

As a result, it took a while for me to realize that there was blood everywhere on the white snowy path I was walking on. As these little creatures have become almost like family to me now, this was horrific. I started to feel guilty as I had thought that they would be safe here on our property.

As I followed the trail of blood, it first led into the backyard, then to the side of our house and then to our small porch. I had a sinking feeling that this blood could possibly even be from my favorite little red squirrel we sometimes refer to as 'Little Red' as this trail seemed to follow all of the paths he would normally take.

While the blood was everywhere on this trail, it suddenly stopped. Without realizing it at first, I had dropped the seed tray I was carrying. My horror soon turned to sobbing, then to crying, then blubbering and then I began to wail.

Usually I keep myself together during these types of things, but I kept wailing as I used a small shove to cover up the bloodstains with fresh snow. While the small animals usually continue with their business as they are now used to me coming out to feed them, I noticed that they had stopped to watch me cry.

This must have been confusing to them, but perhaps they were having some empathy for me. I knew this was a ridiculous thought and wishful thinking, but it comforted me a bit. My oldest son must have heard me crying as he then came out to comfort me.

Son: "Mom, it is not your fault. The Lord talked to you about this before. Remember, He allows this sort of thing here on Earth. It is okay, mom."

Even though I knew better and agreed with him, this was the straw that broke the camel's back and I remained inconsolable. Yes, I really did know better as I had experienced quite a few deaths of pets in my days, some in tragic ways, but I simply could not help myself.

I know that this is a part of life and that death is a hallway of doors that lead to eternal places, either eternal life or death, but this was hard. Even though my dreams have shown our pets, along with other animals, going up to Heaven, my tears continued to flow and I continued to sob.

I finally calmed down and realized that this was not just about the blood in the snow. This was due to everything seemingly converging into this one moment. The grief, discouragement, pain and unrest seemed to be bubbling up into my 'vessel' and causing the tears to pour out in the overflow.

When I went back into our house, I decided to look up how the animals communed with man in the Garden of Eden from the Book of Jubilees. According to this Apocrypha, and obviously not included in the Bible, God had removed the ability for animals to speak when Adam and Eve were cast out of the Garden.

Even though I cannot know how or if this happened with certainty, this somehow brought me additional comfort. It is hard for me to explain why this would comfort me as I am really not sure. Perhaps it is the realization that God loves these beautiful animals too and even has roaming grounds waiting for many of them in Heaven as well.

I took comfort in knowing that even these seemingly senseless attacks are all part of His great plan. His ways are higher and we just cannot fully understand. December 2017 was filled with senseless attacks against me and I now think of this month as 'The Month of Betrayals'. So far, January 2018 seems to be 'The Month of Grief'.

While I should be feeling excited with what we are looking forward to and know that is soon to come, I instead now look at what is coming with a type of dread. This is because, as I am now, there will be no way I can be of any use to You, Father. In my current condition and without You, Father, how can I be of any use?

The way I see it now, You would be better off just sticking me back in the kiln again. I feel I have cracks in my vessel and that You need to repair these again. To be quite honest, I am having a hard enough time taking care of my family and household chores that I cannot even imagine doing anything 'significant' for Your Kingdom.

Father, even though I have asked You so many times for relief and healing, I am yet again asking You for this with all of my heart. Even if the answer is 'no', will You please, please, please still heal our family and our friends soon? I love those You have sent us so much and would at least use this delight to distract me from my pain.

I am so sorry, Father, for it seems that all I ever do these days is complain. This is a difficult situation for me as, while I do not want to complain, I also do not want to come before You with anything other than complete honesty. Oh Father, what should I do?

Thank You, Father, for giving me a dream recently...

Sub-dream 1 description begins – “The Golden Footstool”...

I was wandering around a cute shopping area in a village. This village seemed to be somewhere in California, but I was not sure. I soon recognized some people from my past that were also there. While most did not recognize me, I could tell from the looks in the eyes of those that did recognize me that they seemed to be harboring grudges against me.

I decided to go into a quaint little village shop to see what they had for sale. As I looked around the shop, I soon noticed a rather short golden table that was for sale behind the counter. I looked at the price tag for the table and noticed it was selling for $125.

I quickly dismissed this item as it seemed too ornate for my tastes. However, soon after I had left the shop, I realized that I wanted it. However, when I came back in to purchase it, I noticed that there were now several designers that I knew wanting to purchase it. The clerk excused herself when she saw me come back in and came over.

Clerk: Smiling. “I see that you are back. What are you looking for?”

Me: “I decided that I want the short golden table you have behind your counter.”

Clerk: “Well, it is not a table, it is a footstool. Do you still want it?”

Me: "Absolutely!"

The clerk went back behind the counter and marked the item as 'SOLD'. As the women then became furious about this, I decided to wander around the shop some more until they had left. When the women had finally left, I came over and finalized the purchase.

Sub-dream 1 description over...

I am not sure what the meaning of this dream is. Help, Lord, I need You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was standing in a Garden of beautifully sculpted shrubs, grasses, flowers, pools and fountains. It was the most beautiful part of the Garden that I had seen yet. It was a different part of the same Garden that I had been in just a little while ago (the one with the fountain in the middle of the path).

The fragrance of flowers, eucalyptus and other beautiful smells filled the air and was unmistakably somehow reminiscent of a home that I once worked on back in 2005 in Laguna Beach, California. This was a particularly large estate and the weather seemed to be perfect the whole time I was there working on it.

When I was working at this house and the windows were open, I could hear the sound of the horses running and playing in the beautiful grassy areas that surrounded the property. I could hear the sounds of songbirds and, yes, even the sounds of the peacocks they had brought in.

Even though I was 'just the hired help', there was such beauty there that I felt privileged to experience this. Well, what I was experiencing here in Heaven far exceeded my Laguna Beach Estate experience, so much so that it is impossible to describe. Oh yes, I should note that there were no longer any signs of winter to be found in the Garden.

I suddenly heard some 'happy splashing' behind me. It was coming from one of the pools that surrounded me. I went over to look and was in such awe at what I then saw. I nearly fell over in amazement. The little crow that I had just helped was in the pool playing with the white dove that I had just seen on my drive.

What can I say other than 'Wow'! Even though the formerly black little crow now had iridescent feathers without any black at all, it was somehow not hard for me to recognize it at all. It flew out of the pool and landed about six feet from me. It then walked towards me.

What amazed me as well is that it was literally walking, not hobbling like these birds do on Earth. I was in awe and complete shock. I had truly thought that 'this caliber of bird', a crow no less, would never be welcome in Heaven. I shook my head and realized how little I know because this one was here and we were definitely in Heaven.

When the little crow came close enough to me, I reached down and started to gently pet it. To my surprise, it made a pleasing little sound, not the annoying squawking it is famous for here on Earth. The white dove then came over to greet me as well.

Me: "Oh, thank You, Lord, for this wonderful blessing."

I then bent down again and visited with my two new little bird friends.

Me: "I am so glad that you both are here. You are both so beautiful."

I reached down and they took turns nudging me 'in love' (for a lack of a better description). I felt such joy that tears started to form in my eyes. They were happy tears this time. I heard someone 'clearing their throat' from behind me. I turned and it was Jesus! I ran over and hugged Him tightly.

Jesus: "While I can see that you are having fun here, I also know that you are having a difficult time when you are not."

Me: "Lord, please! Lord, please heal my broken and grieving heart! Please do not let us continue to languish! The wicked seem to be prospering while we suffer. I cannot even get any earthly help for my condition. Please, please do not forget about me.

"When things do not get better...in fact, they are becoming even worse...I cannot help but grieve and worry. It is so hard to have joy when I am in such pain! I am even afraid that..." I quickly stopped myself.

Jesus: Nodding at me with a sympathetic smile. "Please, Erin, continue. What is it that you are afraid of?"

Me: I took a deep breath and decided to continue. "...that in my complaining, grief and worry, I might have caused a huge delay."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, if this was the case, would this not make Me appear unstable? Would this not then mean that I did not know you well enough at the beginning of all of this to anticipate your current state? Remember that I already knew all that was and is to happen even before any of this began." He good-naturedly nudged me. "After all, I am God, right, Erin?"

Me: Laughing. "Of course, Father! I guess it just hurts that You know all that is coming, yet never share enough for me to be able to plan in advance."

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh Erin, if I had told you the types of trials and tests that you would be enduring at the beginning, would you have accepted?"

Me: "Well, I probably would have..." He smiled at me and I just knew that He already knew the 'true answer' to His question. "Actually, You are right, Lord. I do not think that I would have enjoyed knowing in advance that, for me to draw closer to You, remain strong in You and be used of You by dying to myself, all this would have to occur.

"I somehow even know that learning about all of our troubles in advance would have actually made me even more worried than I already was and am. Oh Father, I am so sorry for doubting Your perfect ways. Lord, I am now in my 18th year since my vision with Enoch and Elijah. I was so hoping that You would have just..."

Jesus: "Erin, do you trust Me?"

Me: I took another deep breath. "Yes, Lord, of course."

Jesus: "Just know that I do not plan on taking you Home yet, Erin. Remember that the hour is late."

I ran out of time. I knew that He would pick up where He left off next time we met...

Received on Sunday, January 14, 2018

Me: "Oh Lord, my heart breaks when You stand here with me and my body still aches. It is the most discouraging thing to be here in Your presence and be so young and beautiful while my body is failing me on Earth. While I am fully healed here, the reality is that, when I come out of these visits with You, I am in pain that worsens each day.

"I will not claim to understand this, but I know that You do. You know all things from the beginning of our lives right to the very end. While I now know this to be a lie, the enemy sometimes whispers something to me that a fellow church attendee once had told me: 'God's favor cannot be with you, Erin, or He would have healed you by now.'"

"Oh Father, I do not want to take up any more of our time speaking about my current condition. I know that You know all about this already. While there are days when I still hear 'those voices' and question my place in Your heart, Your Words and signs then comfort me and I know that You are in the midst of my pain and troubles."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, I am. I am with you. Do not listen to the same voice that had confronted me in the desert as he is the master deceiver. You are My sheep and I am the Good Shepherd. Sheep do not survive long without the Shepherd as they can be easily misled and deceived into wandering away from the Shepherd's care.

"Whether this is done by a goat, a wolf or even another sheep, it matters not as I will retrieve that sheep and bring it back to Me time after time. Even if I must render the sheep helpless in order for it to remain in Me, I will do this, understand?"

Me: "Will the Shepherd even break the sheep's legs if necessary and carry it on His shoulder after He fixes and binds the legs to heal?"

Jesus: Smiling. "This is a difficult topic, Erin, and a topic that has even divided churches. This is a parable of 'the walks' of some of those I call, understand? Let's look at this a different way. Which is better as a child to a parent?"

- Time and time again, a son disobeys a kind father, a father who does not give up on that child even unto injury, a father who continues to bring the son back, until that day the son turns from the world and rests at his father's house; or
- A son who ignores the father's discipline and, one day, never returns, and then cares not that the father grieves for his lost son."

Me: "I would much rather be the injured son returning. Lord, am I the one who wandered off and that You had to chastise?"

Jesus: "No, Erin. You were a newborn sheep whom the Shepherd chose to care for. When you began to hear My voice, you would wander off instead of coming towards Me. Each time I called you, you wandered even further and further away from Me.

"One day, soon after the wolves began to attack you, I came and rescued you. At first, you were too timid to trust in Me. You knew that I cared for My sheep, but you had deemed yourself unworthy of this. I watched you as you circled the outer perimeter. You were under My watch even though you did not come into the fold with the others.

"Even when I spoke tenderly to you, you still felt cast aside as you still had no understanding of Me. You continued to feel unworthy as there were a few wolves wearing sheep's clothing who tried to convince you of your unworthiness. These wolves then reminded you of your faults 'according to the world'."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but how can I blame them? I have been divorced twice, once while I was a Christian. I have been bankrupted. I have been put to shame by the world. I am also a female, Lord. I do not seem to be a very good candidate at all!"

Jesus: "Exactly! This is what makes you My 'perfect' choice. You are 'perfect' for those who feel inadequate to be used by Me. You are 'perfect' as you can relate to the broken-hearted and have compassion on them. Yes, Erin, even though you are not perfect, you are 'perfectly Erin' and My 'perfect' choice.

"Now, Erin, one day, and while staying within My sight, yet still closer to the deceivers than to Me, focusing on their lies, they began to tear you apart. You were just 'tasty mutton' to them. They did not know that I was watching them and that I still do.

"However, I soon parted the flock and ran over to you. I carried you into My care. I knew who the wolves were and their location..." He smiled at me. "...and still do. While I would still allow these wolves to come back and taunt you at times, I did this as a measure of your strength and ability to hear and focus on Me instead of them.

"You see, Erin, I know all of the wolves and where they all are and at all times. They prey on the weak and the feeble-minded. They prey on the young and the old. They call out and say, 'You are not being used by the Shepherd as He would never choose someone like you. One look at your life and health and you should know that you are not even in His favor.'

"Well, they are not the Shepherd over you. They are nowhere to be found when trouble strikes. They are all too quick to devour the remnant before running for the hills. These are the same ones who disqualify you, claiming to know Me.

"However, they are like the Pharisees. They are puffed up about themselves. They elevate their positions because of the laws they have kept and the lives of holiness they have lead. They boast about their positions on church boards and about their gifts to the poor.

"They constantly state their position above others, yet do not understand that it is Me that is above them. My grace has been tested. Blessed is the man who obtains wisdom and humility after his tests and trials for his is the Kingdom of Heaven.

"Many who do not understand this late hour prophesy incorrectly in order to sell more books. There is too much fat and no meat. While they remember that I am the Shepherd of My flock when it suits them, they then forget that My Father is still the Judge over all of them.

"My Father calls you 'His friend'. Erin, I call you 'My friend'. You have come to Me. You have stayed in My care and even chased Me relentlessly..." He laughed and nudged me. "...well, on most days.

"Erin, it is My story told through you that people hate. People despise the 'part of scribe' that you play. You are hated because of Me. Remember that, when I was born, the world was looking for a King.

"However, you have now known Me with both no crown..." A crown suddenly appeared in His hands and He placed it on His head. "...and a crown. Even without this visual of a crown..." I then noticed that the crown had suddenly disappeared. "...am I no less still a King?"

Me: Laughing. "Oh yes, Lord, of course!"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, you know Me as a King with or without a crown. Since My Father has appointed Me as King, can I not then also call My subjects for various purposes? While these subjects are under Me, they are also adjoined with Me as My Bride. As King, am I then not able to then use whom I select for various tasks for service to the King under God's Kingdom?"

Me: He smiled at me as I was now laughing. "Oh yes, Lord, of course!"

Jesus: "Then who are these men who dictate My protocol? Did I appoint them to choose who is worthy to come before Me? Did I call them to go through your records, bank statements, history, credit scores, family background, church attendance, grades or education to help Me determine your worthiness and whether you qualify?"

Me: Smiling. "I hope not, Lord, as I would most certainly be disqualified on every point...divorce, health and love of clothing, let alone being female!"

Jesus: "Well, Erin, I have not asked any to do this for Me as it is only for Me to make this call. Anyone who claims that I have called them to do this for Me has been misled by the enemy and needs to repent. Now, where is it written that you are not worthy?"

Me: Laughing. "Since You have now told me that I am worthy for all of this, it must not be written that I am not worthy."

Jesus: "Well, Erin, I will now ask you an even better question, one that everyone has been asked by Me. Do you love Me?"

Me: "Oh yes, Lord, more than anything, I love You, Lord. I am so sorry for all of my complaining!"

Jesus: "Now, when you are asked about your 'qualifications', you need only to say, 'I love the Lord, God, with my whole heart, soul, mind and strength. I love my brother as myself.' That is it! Remember, Erin, many are called, but few are chosen. I have called you to give comfort to those who feel they are unloved and unworthy. Erin, you will be sent to give hope to those with no hope. Now, tell Me about your recent dreams."

Me: "Lord, I have so many questions about one of the dreams that I had last week..."

Sub-dream 2 description begins – "A Hallway of Closed Doors"...

I was in a hallway of many doors. Some of these doors had just shut. I could not open any of these doors. I was now standing in a hallway of closed doors.

Sub-dream 2 description over...

Jesus: "You are in transition right now and are experiencing 'doors which cannot be opened'. However, I will soon open doors that no one can shut. When I open these doors, you will stand amazed. Do not be discouraged, Erin, as this 'hallway of closed doors' is very temporary for you."

Me: "I also had another dream from last night that I had questions about..."

Sub-dream 3 description begins – "Enemies and Properties"...

I was in an area and now Transformed, but somehow knew that the rest of my family was busy in other parts of this area. With the exception of my daughter, I did not run into any of them. When I did run into my daughter, it was infrequently and she somehow seemed to now be closer to my Transformed age. This was quite odd.

I believe that my first order of business in this area was to deal with three of my enemies. There was no noticeable pattern as to why it was these particular three other than that they each had properties that I was familiar with. I was somewhat confused by this, but I knew that there had to be a reason for each of them.

- First enemy: This enemy was from the earliest part of my Christian walk. This person was my ex-design partner. We had once owned a studio together.
- Second enemy: This enemy was a friend who had witnessed the time of the abuse of my kids, the loss of our things and my illness. She had left our lives at a time when I had needed her the most. I had thought of her recently as she used to own property in an area that had recently been washed away by mudslides.
- Third enemy: This enemy is the man who currently owns the property right next to ours. This man hates me beyond reason. I have had quite a few dreams of him recently, but I am not entirely sure why.

While I am unable to explain why or how, I was somehow able to walk through walls. While I was instructed when to enter these rooms, I soon noticed that I was completely unnoticeable once there, as if I was invisible. Once there, I was able to hear each of their private conversations about me. They were filled with jealousy and bitterness.

I was confused as each of them seemed to have prosperous lives of their own and I did not see why I was even an issue to them. After I heard all that I was supposed to hear, I knew it was time to leave and check in with my family. I soon found them sitting in a park together.

Me: "Who would like to see a Coldplay concert with me?"

Youngest son: "What time does the concert start?"

Me: "The concert starts at 6:00pm."

It turned out that each one of them had other engagements. They were all disappointed about not being able to go though. I decided to go by myself. However, I soon became so busy with various things that I almost forgot to go. I remembered the concert at around 5:30pm and knew that I would now be rushed to get there in time.

I quickly hailed a cab ride. For some unknown reason, I was sharing the cab with a woman who had to detour to her hotel. This set us back a few minutes. Once we dropped her off, the cab driver turned around to speak with me.

Cab driver: "Is your concert at the arena or the playhouse?"

Me: I looked at my ticket. It was unclear. "I believe that this is at the playhouse."

We drove quickly and I arrived just a few minutes late at 6:05pm. While the concert had already begun, I was not worried about missing the first few minutes. As I walked to the front door, I recognized several people from my past. They could see me and were whispering to each other about me. I knew they were talking about me as I could hear them. They did not know that I could hear them.

Sub-dream 3 description over...

Jesus: Smiling. "Wow, Erin, that was a big dream." He laughed. I knew that He was good-naturedly kidding with me.

Me: Laughing. "Lord, why Coldplay?"

Jesus: "The words 'Cold Play' in this dream is not related to the band with this name. It is related to a 'Cold Call', things unrehearsed. When you write in a vision with Me, you are 'Cold Scribing'." He laughed. "In other words, you have not pre-planned the script."

Me: "Is this the same as improvising?"

Jesus: "Improvising usually has no structure or direction and can be dangerous if not lead properly. In this case, you will be the subject of My calls, My time and My Will. I know the plans that I have for you, but you do not (Jeremiah 29:11)."

Me: "I find this interesting as I have not had to cold call in years."

Jesus: "Well, when I call you for this, it will feel like you are uninvited and unplanned to many. However, you are 'planned' and this has been foretold. It is similar to a 'Cold War' as your weapons of truth will be your tongue and your healing presence, which is where I am. You will come at them swiftly and with no warning. Although this has been foretold, it remained hidden in My Word until this comes."

Me: "Will we be coming in like a 'Cold Front'?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, but with a deep freeze that follows as hearts will be very cold. However, when I open the floodgates, all will be amazed."

Me: "In this dream, was I the 'Cold Play'?"

Jesus: "There are more players than one in a successful play. Many will be a part of this and many will see. Do not be afraid."

Me: "Will I be healed then? Will our children?"

Jesus: "I am humbling and shaking the land. The 'Cold Play' is soon to begin. I sent the white dove to you and your son. Who has even heard of such a sight in a snow-covered field? Understand that I am about to do something you would not believe even if you were told.

"Those whom question my methods, even those whom I have called, I will soon loosen their tongues to confess their inequities and measure their pride on the scale of justice. Who will stand then? The guilty will confess with wicked tongues. The blameless will confess with gratitude to God for His mercy. Those that I have called will confess to the goodness of My works.

"Now, hold on for just a bit longer. I am with you and I will bless your family. I will heal the brokenhearted and bind up their wounds. I will save those crushed in spirit. Erin, I will open the gates and set the captives free. Do not worry as this time has come.”

Me: “Lord, is this ‘The Year of Your Favor’? Is this the year?”

Jesus: Smiling. “Every year is Mine.”

Me: “Yes, Lord, but is this ‘The Year of Your Favor’?”

Jesus: “If I have told you that the gates will soon be opened and I am the King, is this good?”

Me: “Yes, Lord, yes!”

Jesus: “Then rejoice, Erin, rejoice.”

Me: “I love You, Lord.”

He smiled and hugged me.

Jesus: “I love you, Erin, and I am with you.”

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for my family and friends. Thank You for the sunshine after our recent snowstorm. I woke up at 5:15am on the morning of January 31st, 2018 to the sight of a clear sky and the massive Super Blue Blood Moon.

The moon was amazing and fully illuminated the blustery snowy fields next to us. It was simply stunning. Fresh powdery snow blanketed the entire area and it was so beautiful. Thank You for creating this incredible scene, Father! While I then tried to go back to sleep, I was now extremely restless from my pain. I also had further difficulty sleeping as my husband had already left for an overnight business trip. However, this felt like more than just a business trip. I felt as if he was more like a warrior going off to battle in a major war. Father, You have revealed several plots to him of things going on ‘behind the scenes’. Thank You so much for this! When I eventually drifted back off to sleep, You then sent me a beautiful dream. Thank You for this too, Father, as this was truly a great gift...

Sub-Dream 1 description begins...

I was young again. When I say ‘young again’, I mean ‘really young again’. It seemed that I was only around 4 or 5 years old. As I looked around me, I could see a makeshift ladder that appeared to be attached to a tree trunk. For some reason, I vaguely recalled that a family relative had done something similar with a ladder in their backyard, but I can no longer remember which relative.

As I gazed at the ladder ‘in wonder’, I decided that I would try to make my way up it. I looked up into the sky and noticed that the ‘climbing area’ was thick with branches. I strained to see where the ladder went, but could only see that it ended at a portal. I shrugged my tiny shoulders and decided to climb.

When I finally reached the top, I pulled myself up through the portal. This took great effort on my part as I was just ‘so little’. After I dragged myself through the portal on my belly, I flipped over on my back in exhaustion. After I rested a bit, I looked back towards the portal, but it had already somehow disappeared.

I was lying in a soft thick patch of grass. As I laid there, I could feel the warmth of the sun on my body. I could smell flowers and freshly mowed grass. This fragrance seemed familiar to me as it reminded me of my grandparent's backyard.

As I stared back up into the sky, I could not help but start to giggle. An amazing cloud parade had begun. I started to laugh aloud. The first cloud was a lamb and I soon announced its arrival in a child's voice. To my surprise, my voice sounded like a 4 or 5 year old's voice. What I said was even childlike!

Me: "Ooooh, a pretty lamb!"

The second cloud was in the shape of a bird. The shape was incredibly detailed and something that you could never see on Earth.

Me: "Wow, a birdy!"

Someone then stood right over me and blocked my view. I quickly became excited when I saw that it was Jesus! I leaped up into His arms and hugged Him tightly. Even my excitement to see Him was 'child-like'.

Me: "Jesus! Jesus! Jesus!"

We both laughed together and I felt such joy.

Jesus: "Come on, Erin, I am going to show you some blossoms today."

Me: "Hurray! And butterflies too?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, and butterflies too."

I reached my hands up for Him to carry me. He laughed just like an adoring father would laugh like when his daughter was excited to spend time with him.

Jesus: "Hmm, are you sure that you do not want to walk on your own?"

Me: "No, no, no!"

I kept my arms up in the air and jumped up and down for Him to pick me up. He laughed as He picked me up. I wrapped my arms around His neck and I looked behind us at His footprints as He walked.

I smiled when I saw that His footprints would quickly 'disappear' almost as soon as His foot left the soft living grass. The grass simply popped right back up into its original shape and blended in perfectly with the rest of the grass in less than a second.

I felt the warmth of His body as He carried me and I felt completely safe in His arms. I decided to reach up and touch a lock of His hair. I had never done this before and it felt like the finest of silks in my tiny hand. Perhaps prompted by the warmth of the sun and the comfort in His arms, I decided to rest my cheek on His shoulder.

The last thing I recalled before I then feel asleep was the beautiful blossoms all around us, along with the vibrant deep blue sky above us. While the blossoms were mostly white, they had a slight pink cast in the middle.

A breeze began to blow and I saw the blossoms start to fly in the air like snow. Just as my eyes started to close, I looked into Jesus' eyes.

Me: Softly...sleepily. "Look, Jesus, snow..."

My eyes closed.

Sub-Dream 1 description over...

I then had a dream just last night that seemed to somehow blend in perfectly with this one. As I laid there sleeping in bed, I could hear Jesus speak to me. He was laughing as He spoke.

Jesus: "Awake, Erin. Rise up!"

As I woke up from my very deep sleep, His voice seemed to blend in with this dream. As I was still half-asleep, His voice seemed to be here with me in the room.

Me: "Lord? Lord?"

I felt called to go to my devotional chair, so I immediately got out of bed and went to meet with Him. While I was still yawning in drowsiness, I was immediately 'taken up'. This was different from the 'usual process' and was truly awesome!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Me: "Oh, please forgive me, Lord, as I must have fallen asleep. Did I miss anything?"

Jesus: Smiling. "No, Erin. Did you rest well?"

Me: "Wait, Lord. How long was I asleep? I am much older than I just was in the other dream. I know that I still look and feel 55, but I now look and feel 25 up here. Were You not just carrying me around as a 4 or 5 year old a little while ago?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Do you feel like you have been asleep for fifty years?"

Me: Laughing. "Well, I had wished I had been on some days...well, many days. Oh Lord, I feel so refreshed, strong, healed and young again here. Will You please replace my current state on Earth with the state that I am in here? After all, 'on Earth as it is in Heaven', right, Lord? Please, Lord, pretty please?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Oh, Erin, your prayer is good. Now, tell Me about some of the other dreams you have had recently."

Me: "Well, I had two different dreams, but some of it really did not make a lot of sense to me..."

Sub-Dream 2 description begins...

I had a key to a former employer's home. For some reason, I had decided to take a shower in her home while waiting for her to come back. When she arrived home, she was understandably angry with me for coming in and making myself at home. I even shook my head at my own foolishness as I would never do this in real life.

Woman: "I cannot believe you came into my house without first asking me if you could. I will not be hiring you again."

Me: "I understand, but I am not here to ask for employment."

Woman: "What do you mean? You don't need the work?"

It was only then that she noticed that I was now in my Transformed state. She instantly became frightened of me.

Me: "I now have something much larger that I am working on."

She started to panic. As I could somehow know her thoughts, I knew that she had become worried that I was opening up a competing business.

Sub-Dream 2 description over...

Jesus: "So, Erin, what do you think this was all about?"

Me: "Well, is it that, when You heal us and bring us back to this area, people will be a bit shaken up by our 'reappearance with a different appearance'?"

Jesus: Smiling. "Yes, Erin, as you will be changed and the former things will be removed. When you return, it will no longer be as a slave to man, but as a worker for Me. The shower that you took in this dream meant that you had washed yourself clean of the things she had soiled your reputation with, removing all of your shame.

"Because you will no longer lack any good things, you will no longer need what those who had used you had offered. You will be returning free and you will see right through the walls of their 'houses', their hearts.

"This will be scary for those who have wronged you as they will unwillingly confess with an unbridled tongue. They will confess to all that they had done to you. Now, tell Me about your second dream."

Me: "Well, this one really did not make that much sense to me either..."

Sub-Dream 3 description begins...

I was in a Pratt & Larson showroom. It was a brand new showroom and was state of the art. I was laying out some brand-new 'artist tiles' and the tiles were in a red terracotta with beautiful colors and designs.

I soon pulled out my favorite linen, a Scalamandre-Baroque floral multi-patterned fabric, and held the linen up to the tile. It was a perfect match. I stood there with a smile on my face as I could not help but admire the amazing materials in front of me.

As I began to rearrange the pieces of tile, I accidentally broke one of the main pieces perfectly in half. For some reason, I decided to cover this up in front of the people who saw that I had broken the tile in half by acting as if I had done this on purpose.

Sub-Dream 3 description over...

Jesus: "So, what do you think about this?"

Me: "Well, back in 1998, I had big plans. I had just been published the year before and my business was being blessed in abundance. However, my circumstances were soon to change and I was never able to complete any of the dreams I had for myself.

"While I still used this expensive linen several times for my clients, my dreams of using this for myself never came true. This fabric and tile are so ridiculously expensive that, other than using a yard or two for pillows or a couple of tiles for a kitchen backsplash, I just could never imagine that I would ever be in the position to afford these again.

"This handmade tile is so delicate that it had broken right in half. While this happened in my dream, this could just as easily happen in real life. Forgive Me, Lord, for desiring such extravagance all of those years ago. Being able to afford such a thing was so short-lived and so long ago that I now wonder if this had ever been the case at all."

Jesus: Smiling. "Oh Erin, do not worry as you no longer long for the things that you once had. I tell you the truth...I delight in what you delight in. Now, what is it that you liked about these things?"

Me: "Well, the terracotta red clay tile reminded me of an old friend of mine who was an amazing tile maker. I 'had spec'd' her tiles many times for my wealthier clients, but I never did buy any for myself nor could I ever again afford them for myself.

"I would sometimes stop by her studio and enjoyed watching her craft these amazing tiles. Eventually her small studio became a large warehouse as her business continued to expand. As for the Scalamandre linen fabric, it is meticulously hand screened and incredibly beautiful in its details.

"Oh Lord, I had so many dreams back then. I had even imagined that I would live in a small handcrafted stone cottage someday. The cottage would have wood floors, beautiful windows with shutters and a yard full of flowers. I wanted to raise my kids there. I wanted to paint and illustrate nature there.

"As You know, none of this ever came true for me. Instead, all that I had planned and saved for was soon to be auctioned off to pay for attorney and medical bills. My life took a different path, a very difficult one." I smiled. "However, it was on this path that You found me, Lord!"

Jesus: "One day soon, you will be given so much more than what you had lost. The former things will be removed and only joy will remain. I have seen and felt your sorrow. Now that your pain has become greater, it has disconnected your hope. This second dream was not to tell you that you need to throw things away. It was instead given for you to make peace with your desires, your past dreams. Are you at peace?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, as this was left behind long ago. By 2008, I had laid this to rest. I left it behind me. Still, I feel that I missed out on the joy of raising my children in a 'normal way'. I feel like we were robbed. I went from having great success in my area of trade to instead having no one wanting to even associate or do business with me.

"When people did hire me, they only did so because they knew the trouble I was in and that they could get my services at half price. All of my employers and clients took full advantage of my troubles and it was awful. It was a nightmare, a horrible nightmare! While my dreams had now ended, the nightmares continued."

Jesus: "I know, Erin, but I am here to tell you that you are now free."

Me: "I may be free when I am here with You, but I still don't feel that way on Earth. Even the little girl You carried on Your shoulder could see more clearly, hear more keenly, smell more vividly and feel more comforted than I feel right now. While I am how we who love You will forever be perfected in the image of God here, I will surely be back in my old decaying earthly body as soon as this vision is closed off.

"Surely how I am now does not reflect Your image, Lord! How can a walking corpse like me testify boldly about the wonders of Heaven? I cannot! While it no longer matters that all of my material things are gone as this is not the measure of a man in God's favor, Lord, health, youth and wisdom certainly are."

Jesus: "Ah, you sound like an attorney pleading before the Court." He smiled. "Well, Erin, your case is very good. Now, while you are right about the current age being vain with self-worship, you are wrong about material things not being a measure of a man in God's favor. No matter what god you serve, this current age worships 'mammon'.

"They are the lovers of self and of all the things that this world can offer. Just know that the allure of pleasure, the passion to have things simply to 'show off' and the pompous sense of superiority from their wealth does not come from My Father. These are the withering decaying fruits of this world (1 John 2:16).

"Even if I gave you all of the great wealth that you have here in Heaven, as well as restore your youth, you would still be hated because of Me. No matter what, you will be hated because of Me. You will be spoken of poorly because of Me. Many of you will be persecuted because of Me. As for you, Erin, you have been sent to bear witness to the glory of Heaven."

Me: "Lord, I am also a witness to Your wonderful heart! You are so much more than our Savior. You are amazing to be around. I have never dreaded one day with You! I learn from You. I am enriched in my heart and nourished to my very core when I am in Your presence.

"You are my Best Friend. You are the One that I run to when I am in trouble. You are my Deliverer and You love me. As to why You love me, I will never fully know why until I am eventually here with You forever. However, I know that You do! I cherish You and cannot wait for the day when others can experience Your presence like I have.

"I could go to college for a hundred years and still never learn about all of the things You have instructed me on in just five years. You care deeply about me and even about the smallest of things that matter to me. I will follow You everywhere.

"However, I still feel that I am barely hanging on as I wait on You here on Earth. This is becoming even more difficult as my pain often now prevents me from even writing. Sometime I even have trouble getting this decaying body out of bed. I have fears now that I will soon become of no use to You because of my increasing immobility."

Jesus: "Oh Erin, I have not forgotten any of My promises to you. I have not forgotten you in either the small things or the big things. Do not worry, Erin, as your wilderness training is almost finished. I love you."

Me: "I love You, Lord."

Dream 275 – Jesus and Trading In for the Perfect New Shoes

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! You gave me a vivid dream last night...

Sub-Dream 1 description begins...

While I was in my 20s in what seemed similar to my college years, I still had all of the knowledge that I have now. I was still married to my husband and we had all five of our children. We now lived in a large 'Stone House' with an even larger yard.

While the yard was beautiful, the season had not changed from winter to spring yet. While the snow had mostly cleared, all of the trees, bushes and grass were still brown, with only hints of budding and green.

We were now preparing to go away from our residence for some schooling at a college. However, we knew that this was going to be fun for all of us and was not to be stressful at all. We were to pack sparsely and take only what we were wearing, along with a change for 'night clothing'. Everything, including our toiletries, were to be provided.

We soon found out that there were going to be three different people who were going to be at our property to take care of it while we were gone. They were to feed our animals and check in on the place periodically. While I was now ready to go, I first had to meet with one of the people who would be looking after things for us while we were gone.

The person I was meeting with was a young woman. I immediately became a bit concerned when she started to ask very specific questions about us, our home and me personally. My concern amplified when she started to ask questions about a birthday party with a cake that had just been held for me.

Woman: "I was just curious about the gifts you received at your birthday party. Were you planning to take these with you?"

As I studied her face to see if I could read why she would ask such an odd question, I heard the Lord talk to me.

Jesus: "She is planning to steal from you. She has stolen from you before. Do not have any dealings with this woman."

He then showed me a vision of a beautiful white compass made of white soapstone. While I am not sure if white soapstone even exists, it did in this dream. This compass had some beautiful inscriptions written on it. I somehow knew that this had been a gift from a dear friend and that I had lost it about a year or so ago.

As background, while I still have sterling jewelry, including earrings and necklaces, anything of real value had been sold many years ago to pay for medical and legal bills. Since I rarely wear jewelry anymore, I do not visit my jewelry box that often anymore.

However, in this dream, I remembered that I had looked over my jewelry box three months ago and had discovered that most of what little I had left was now gone. At the time, I thought my daughters had borrowed a few of my pieces, so I had dismissed it.

As this woman continued to ask questions, the Lord then revealed all of the things that she had stolen, as well as all of things that she had planned to soon steal. I was now somewhat in shock as this woman did not fit the description of someone you would expect to do something like this.

Following the Lord's instructions, I took her inside our home and brought her over to the items that she was planning to steal. She suddenly seemed quite anxious...

Woman: "Listen, Erin, I really don't want to keep you. Perhaps..." I interrupted her.

Me: "Enough. The Lord just showed me that you had stolen my compass. This was a special gift from a dear friend. You have also stolen five necklaces, two rings and several bracelets. You also took some of my clothing, a tablet..."

Before I could finish my list, she turned and ran away. The door suddenly shut as she approached it. Understandably, her anxiousness turned into fear.

Me: "I had invited you into my home and I trusted you, yet you have now turned my good into your evil. You are to keep the things you have stolen, but just know that they are now cursed. Do not step on our property again or you will deal with my Lord, God."

After I said this, the closed door suddenly opened again. She looked frightened.

Woman: "Please, Erin, can I return these items to you?"

Me: "No. You now need them more than I do. However, you should know that even the compass you had stolen will not help you find your way. Even though this compass is always set to 'The True North', you will not find it. No matter how hard you try, a righteous path will not be found by you."

While the woman became even more terrified at first, she then soon started to curse us. Her entire demeanor, especially her face, changed. The Lord spoke to me again...

Jesus: "Do not worry as all of her curses will now come back on her instead." Just then, I saw a wall form between her and me. While I could see the wall clearly, she could not. I knew that this was a spiritual wall, but also somehow a physical one. While she then tried to come over to me, she was unable to penetrate this wall.

I then noticed that there were two very large angels that were moving the wall towards her. This wall was not only pushing her back, but also her curses along with it. When this wall had finally shoved her outside of our property, she started to wither and shrink. She was now suffering the same diseases she had tried to curse me with from her lips.

Me: "Lord, I don't want to rely on these people. Would it be okay if we entrust the care of our home and animals to Your angels instead?"

Jesus: I heard Him laughing and I just knew that He then had a smile on His face as He answered me. "Yes, Erin. People are curious and, so much so, that they even like to then go through your things when you are not there."

Even though I knew this about people, I was still shocked. We decided to fully entrust our home to God instead and loaded ourselves into our car. We then drove to our event and soon arrived at a type of university.

After parking, we went inside and was soon directed to a large conference room. The conference room was a bit unusual as it had school desks instead of tables. As we looked around the room, we soon noticed that everyone here also looked 'college age'.

Not only that, but we soon discovered that several of us had just celebrated our 'birthdays'. When we were later directed to a type of convention hall, we also discovered that we had all brought our leftover 'birthday cake' with us to share.

This leftover cake we had brought was then carefully placed onto some shelves situated on the back wall. I smiled as I then noticed that they were also serving beverages and snacks there. As we mingled, it was announced that the first order of business would be to break into several groups of four. For those with other family members also in attendance, these family members were 'separated' from each other for this portion. We were then told that each group of four was to study a prophetic portion of modern history. We were also told that the top ten events were then to be the subject of an even deeper study.

My group of four had been assigned something that seemed to me to be extremely easy to study. We were to study entertainment in the last 70 years of Hollywood's history. I must have been right about this being an easy assignment as we completed this in only twenty minutes or so.

As we waited for the other groups of four to finish their assignments, the other three in our group and I spoke about how we felt that this was almost more of a 'sign of the times' as opposed to a 'prophetic event'.

I soon suggested that we take a break and go over and eat a piece of my birthday cake that I had brought. I really wanted to share my cake with my group. However, after I looked everywhere on a shelf that I knew that it should have been, I realized that it was now gone. Someone in the group asked me to describe my cake.

Me: "Hmm, it even had my name on it! It was a seven-layer cake with chocolate and vanilla cream frosting. It was beautiful and amazingly colorful. I see a girl over there that had been attending to this area. I will go ask her what might have happened to my cake."

I went over to her. As I approached her, she smiled at me in anticipation of my question.

Me: "Excuse me, but where did my leftover birthday cake go? It even had my name on it."

Girl: "Hmm, I am not really sure. What if you took some of this other person's cake instead in return?"

I declined and decided to look into a large garbage can being used for the disposal of paper cups and plates used during the conference. On the very top of the pile, just sitting there, was my cake. It was still intact and untouched by the garbage.

For some reason, it was no longer just 'half a cake', but was now once again a full sized cake. While before it had just said, 'Happy Birthday, Erin!', it now said, 'Still Alive at 55, Erin!' As it was still on the plate, I decided to pick up my now full sized cake and bring it over to the girl. She looked shocked.

Me: "Why was my cake in the trash? You lied and said that you had never saw it. Why would you do that?"

Girl: "I don't like you and no one should be eating your cake!"

Me: "Okay, but I don't even know you. How do you know me?"

Girl: "I don't, but I know your type. Just look at you! You are 'judgy'!"

Me: "Hmm, it seems as if you are accusing me of the things that you are actually doing."

The Director of this event must have overheard our conversation as he quickly came over and removed the girl from the conference center. After the Director had personally escorted her off the property, he came back to speak to me.

Director: "I am so sorry about this. She should have never been serving food for others to eat. Sometimes people slip through to test us."

Me: Smiling. "No problem. It's fine."

He smiled back, but then called everyone there back together.

Director: "I must warn you all about those who have been sent to deceive. While they will be nice to your faces, you must know that they often actually have hatred for you on their hearts."

We then decided to pray for the girl that had just been removed from the conference center. After we had done this, the conference continued.

Director: "There are ten events to be studied. Each of these events have been divided into their own presentation and each will be shown and discussed in a separate side room – 10 events, 10 presentations, 10 side rooms. The tour of these events will be performed on a rotation basis."

We soon discovered that our group of four was to head to side room #3. The title of the event was 'Isaiah and the 9-11 Event'. I was excited as I had known for some time that Isaiah had foretold of this.

When we entered the side room, I could not help but notice how unusual the setup was. There was a giant mattress there that we were all to sit around and use as a conference table to take notes. I decided to take off my 'slip-on' sneakers / tennis shoes to 'get comfortable' for the lesson.

Before the lesson even began, the Lord downloaded all of the information that was to be presented to me. However, I still wanted to participate with the others in my group.

While the study was interesting and informative, it was still very difficult for me to 'live over' the events of 9-11 again. After we finished discussing the event, it was then time for us to go over to side room #4 to study the next event.

I went over to gather my items to leave, but quickly realized that my shoes were now missing. Since these shoes had been the only pair that I had packed, I at first thought that perhaps my husband or one of my kids were playing a prank on me.

After I had spoken to each of them, I then realized that none of them had done this. I asked around, but no one knew where my shoes had gone. I found the Director and told him about the disappearance of my only pair of shoes.

Director: "Oh Erin, you are having a tough day!" We both could not help ourselves but to then laugh. "Alright then, there is a shoe store attached to the back of the Conference Hall. You will find this store near to some of the other shops, along with a restaurant. Go find yourself a new pair there."

Me: "I will, but I am worried that I will then miss some of the events!"

Director: "Do not worry, Erin. You will not miss out on any of the events as you already know about them. Tell you what...I will give you a pass!" We both laughed again. "Now, you are going to need shoes as spring has not yet arrived and it is still cold."

Me: "Okay then, I will go out and get some new shoes."

I went over to the other three people in my group...

Me: "Please continue on without me. I will catch up with you later."

To my surprise, I actually had to walk quite a ways from the Conference Hall before I arrived at this area with the shops. I looked around and found the shoe store. As I walked in, I quickly realized that there were very few winter shoes and even fewer tennis shoes to purchase.

To my dismay, I noticed that the only shoes that were actually my size were either sandals or much more formal shoes than I would want to wear. I could not find any practical shoes there. The owner of the shoe store must have noticed my confusion as he then walked up to me and pointed to one of his signs.

Owner: "No shirt, no shoes, no service!" I could not help but laugh.

Me: Smiling. "Sir, I know! The Director of the conference sent me here as someone had stolen my shoes. I had just slipped them off momentarily and then they were gone."

Owner: "Hmm, I see. Perhaps you should not have taken them off...or perhaps they did not fit you properly in the first place."

Me: Sighing. "Perhaps. Regardless, I just need some new shoes. I have a size 8 foot."

The owner began to pull out a plethora of shoes, but all of them were impractical. I was starting to get frustrated and he could sense it.

Me: "Tell you what...how about a size 9 instead?"

Owner: "What? Fit you with shoes that are too big for you?"

Me: "Look, I will only need to wear them a short time until I get home. I have lots of shoes there."

Owner: "Okay, but you will have to give me a few minutes. I will go out back to look."

As I waited, I decided to look out the window overlooking the front of the shoe store. As I looked out, I noticed a man throwing out a pair of sneakers into the trash. I walked over and took them out of the trash. When I looked on the sole, I noticed the number 8. They were my size!

They were an odd type of high top sneakers with fringe at the laces and had an open back heal. They made no sense. Although these shoes were extremely tacky, I decided that they would work...for now. Just as I was about to put them on, the owner came out and saw me.

Owner: "Seriously? Seriously? The Director had sent you here for new shoes and you are to walk in new shoes, not old shoes that someone had rejected, and ugly ones at that. You will insult me and the Director if you do this!"

Me: "Oh, I am sorry...it was just a fleeting thought. I really do not want to walk in someone's old shoes either."

Owner: "Then come on back in. I found some larger shoes and they are more beautiful than you can even imagine. Now, come...come!"

I walked back in and tried some of them on. I soon found my 'Perfect New Shoes' and purchased them.

Owner: "While these shoes are larger than what you would normally wear, I just know that you will soon fill them!"

Sub-Dream 1 description over...

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for my family and friends. Father, this was to be 'The Year of the Lord's Favor', but, so far, several dear friends have been taken home, or their loved ones, and it has been more heartbreaking than anything so far.

I know that You love us dearly. I know that those who have now passed also now intercede for us in Your Courts. In fact, I know that there are people here, many I do not even recognize, who intercede for us, where You had told me they are even somehow related to me.

It is hard to imagine having someone like even a great, great grandfather interceding for us, unbeknownst to us down here, but it is a pleasant thought to say the least. Oh Father, Your ways are truly higher than our ways, so thank You!

The pain of loss of someone close is so difficult. While they can be here one moment, we can then unexpectedly never have contact with them again, at least here on Earth. You could have just had a normal conversation with them, or even just had sent them off to school or work, and then they are gone.

While the grief associated with this can then be immediate, there may even be a delay to the grief due to the shock. While I am happy that both of my parents are no longer suffering, I still miss them...yes, even my absent earthly father.

I miss knowing that they are right here or, at least, somewhere. I miss the ability to say hello or even to say goodbye one last time. I miss the ability to tell them I love them one more time...or for one last time. These departures can be so unexpected, even if health reasons should make us expect a soon departure. Such is human nature!

I should also mention here that the Lord has now reassured me that He has both of my earthly parents with Him. This is a pleasant surprise to me, to say the least, but just goes to show that His plans are better ones than any of our plans.

That being said, I have told the Lord that I do not always like the way that His plans can hurt us so much. Sometimes His plans hurt A LOT! I do not like the loss. I sometimes find that I am missing the memories, the smells and the tastes of my mom's cooking. While I miss my mom's laugh, it is also the same for the friends that I have also lost.

I must admit that I do not fully understand 'death'. Why do some of us have to then continue with this life? Why do we have to continue to deal with arrangements, uneaten casserole dishes and uncomfortable talks, all the while holding back how we really feel when we are later alone with our thoughts?

Oh Lord, my Father, this life is filled with such pain. On so many days, our joy is fleeting. Please, Father, provide comfort to all of those who have lost a loved one. Please, Father, for me, provide them with signs, dreams and visions from You of their new glorified states in Heaven so they might have some relief from the sting of loss.

When You provide these, it is so comforting to know that they are Home with You, finishing our Heavenly mansions, dancing on the streets of gold and running through meadows and fields of flowers. There is nothing like knowing that they are even walking with You amongst the vineyards or along the beautiful rivers filled with jewels and the most refreshing water.

Lord, I am asking...no, I am petitioning...for comfort to be sent, via Your angels or You, Lord. While I know that You love us so, this is such a difficult place to have to remain. No matter what we do to prevent or delay death, our bodies are dying a bit more every day here.

Father, You already know the exact time of each of our eventual 'Home-goings'. Personally, I have been close to the time of the severing of my silver cord several times (Ecclesiastes 12:6). Because of this, I already know that death does not hurt.

Even though I know how much better it will be up there in Heaven with You, I still desire to remain here because of the living and that they then might come to know You, Lord. You have reminded me that there is still more to do here, so I hang on and wait for You.

However, I also feel that, the longer I wait, the less I am able to do. I feel like I am now slowly becoming more of a burden than a help. Please help us soon, Father!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately on the overlook in the Valley of Blessing, or Beracah, in Heaven, standing at the base of a beautiful tree filled with fruit. The River of Life below flowed through the Valley and, in the distance and to my northeast, was the Golden City of God.

From my vantage point, all of this was simply stunning. There is nothing grey, dead or brown here, just an abundance of life. Everything is flourishing here. Nothing is dying here.

I looked over and saw the rock that I had seen the Lord sit on so many times before. I went over and sat on the rock and started to praise Him.

Me: "Thank You, Lord! Thank You!"

I could not stop thanking Him for all that He has done. He is so worthy of all of our praises that my eyes filled with tears. I felt a hand on one of my shoulders. I looked up and it was Jesus bathed in the light of the sun. Something like a corona surrounded Him.

Jesus: Smiling. "I am glad you came, Erin. Now, come over here and listen." I could hear a woman singing 'Amazing Grace'. I looked over at Him with a smile and He pointed over to a lake in the Valley. A huge celebration was taking place there. It was like a large picnic, but there was also dancing, music and a big party. I could then hear the woman now start to sing 'Great is Thy Faithfulness'.

Angels were now starting to sing along with her as well. Their perfectly synchronized singing soon took my breath away. There is absolutely no one on Earth who could even come close to matching this woman's amazing voice.

Me: "The woman's voice is simply amazing, Lord. She is so beautiful. Her gown is stunning. What a beautiful celebration! Who is this? Do I know her?"

Jesus: Laughing. "She knows you, Erin. One day, you will know her here as well. She is celebrating her homecoming. She has friends and relatives here."

Me: Laughing. "I even see some animals with them as well!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, she will live in this Valley, but also in the Golden City. You must understand that My timing is always perfect."

Me: "While I do not recognize who this is, she is like the light of the sun. I can tell that she is kind, gentle and full of laughter and patience. I can also tell that she must be greatly missed by those left behind."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but, here, she is free. While she had carried a burdened body, she is now light and free."

Me: "I really cannot describe exactly how beautiful she is other than that she looks like a 'supermodel', but even better. Oh Lord, all of the people here are so beautiful!"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, as they are perfected and glorified here in Heaven."

Me: "Thank You, Lord, for reminding me about all of this. I am sorry for being so upset lately. My pain has been so great."

Jesus: "Erin, it is okay. I know that, in your pain, you then quickly forget all that I have promised for you. While you assume that I will cut your silver cord at any moment, there is still more for you to do...if you are willing."

Me: "I am willing, Lord, but I am becoming sicker. I long for the day that I am able to do more. My doctors have now limited my mobility until more tests are finished. The insurance company is angry about this and are about to shut me off from help. While we are not prepared for the resulting loss in income, we really have no choice. Only You, Lord, can make a way where there seems to be no way."

Jesus: "The thief has robbed from you and has taken something valuable from you. As a result, you have lost many years. Your suffering has been long and your punishment at the hands of the blacksmith even longer. Do not worry, Erin, as I plan to give you back all that the enemy has stolen from you and even more.

"In your dream last night, the shoes from your old path had been removed. Do not worry as you will now have new shoes and a new path. Beautiful are the feet of those who bring 'Good News'! Now, your lesson is from Isaiah."

Me: "Yes, Lord. Was this from Isaiah 52:7?"

Isaiah 52:7 (ESV): "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings good news, who publishes peace, who brings good news of happiness, who publishes salvation, who says to Zion, 'Your God reigns'."

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, yes, Erin, but this is just one of many. You have met Me on the Mountain and I am with you there. Erin, I am always with you!"

Me: Crying. "Lord, can You please change us before You take any more saints Home?"

Jesus: "Erin, those who go Home had assignments. They are warriors with a great purpose...to help raise up the 'Army of God'. They have ignited passion to persevere and to finish the race. I have prepared this in advance for all of you. Now, what you have just asked for goes against My Word and I will not promise such a thing. Erin, you must trust Me instead."

Me: "I am sorry, Lord, but I hurt for so many. I also hurt when I think of those who have lost children to the flu, accidents or by criminal acts. Things in the world have changed even more recently and it hurts to even watch the news now. My heart is breaking and I am crying a lot over the things I am seeing."

Jesus: "Oh Erin, should I take you to the 'Baby Animal Garden' so that you can see these children playing with the angels? Their joy is now unspeakable. These children were also warriors and they now wait here to be reconciled again with their family members. Remember that I am not cruel and I always know what is best.

"These children are Mine and are a measure for those who are far from Me. So, pray, Erin, for their lives. They did not die in vain and there is a purpose to all of this. Please take comfort as they are now here smelling flowers and running in grassy fields. Butterflies let them be caught by them and little animals comfort them. They are not lonely or in pain. They are cared for by the Hands Who created them."

Me: "Oh Lord, please forgive me as I am thinking from a 'carnal' perspective, not an 'eternal' one." I shook my head at myself. "How can I be here with You and still not understand this? Oh, please forgive me!" I hugged Him.

Jesus: "Oh Erin, you are forgiven...you just needed a refresher course, that's all." He laughed. "Now, I am preparing you for new shoes and a new path. Though doors are shut which you cannot open, I will soon open doors that you cannot shut. Your joy will be great."

Me: "Thank You, Lord, for I see new mercies morning to morning. Oh Lord, can I sing in Heaven too? Please?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, Erin, and you can sing, dance...and even prance!"

He took me out of my vision for a few seconds. I looked out in the field in front of our property. This was now 'real life'. I laughed as, just then, I saw a doe 'prancing' through the snow. She had a beautiful white tail that bounced up and down. This happened in 'real life' and at just that precise second!

Me: "Okay, how did You do that? Oh right...You are over Heaven AND Earth! Wow! I love You, Lord!"

Jesus: "I love you too! Erin, do not worry about what you are unable to control. I will not let you go hungry. I will not let you fall apart. I will remove the corrupt organizations that demand much, but give very little in return. They would welcome your death as you are more trouble to them alive than dead.

"I will expose them as they have not helped you in the almost four years that have now passed since your injury. They have instead lied and plotted behind your back. They refuse to pay those who stand behind you, while reimbursing those who stand against you.

"I see the evil done in secret and I will punish those who continue. Do not worry, Erin, as I do not rest. I do not turn a blind eye to your suffering at their hands. What they withhold from you, I will give to you and multiply. Do not worry, Erin, as I have you!"

Me: "Thank You, Lord. Trouble has come. Please just let us live in peace and be truly free. Could You just heal me soon?"

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as I will do all that I have promised concerning you. You are loved and you reside here with your friends, many you have not yet met in person. Rejoice, Erin, rejoice!" He hugged me.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that we have. I give blessings and thanks for my patient family and friends. I can never thank You enough for the gift of their presence in my life. Thank You!

Father, I had a very clear dream that was prophetic in nature last night. Please guide my pen to write everything just as You had given this to me, all according to Your Will...

Sub-Dream 1 description begins...

I was a hostess and server in a function taking place in a very large historic building. Gaslight lamps dimly lit the rooms. The organization hosting this event was very large, very powerful and was to remain 'anonymous'.

We had been instructed to simply serve and to keep to ourselves. We had also been instructed to say nothing but 'can I offer you x, y or z?' We were also to pick up used utensils, plates, napkins and glasses as needed and dispose of them prior to exiting each room. We were specifically restricted from doing anything else but these exact things.

I was about 30 years old again, perhaps even younger, but I was definitely not Transformed. Each server, including me, had been given an earpiece in order to receive instructions.

Hall #1 – Pregnant Couples – White Cake: I was then given a large sterling silver tray with a large homemade looking vanilla cake with vanilla icing on top of it. It was an unremarkable looking cake and was not very tempting to the eyes.

As I looked closer at the cake, I noticed that it was resting on top of a bunch of gold nuggets. The entire tray had been evenly covered in these gold nuggets! The cake had also been pre-cut into small two-inch-by-two-inch squares so that it would be all ready to be served to the guests.

I was instructed to enter the first room to my left. When I walked in, I noticed that this room consisted of couples watching a movie together. Each woman was within a few weeks, some within just a few days, from giving birth. All of them were around eight to nine months pregnant.

I soon noticed that the tension in this room seemed high for some unknown reason. While I noticed that some of the men were quite attentive to the women that they were with, other men seemed somewhat disinterested. Some of the men even seemed 'completely worn out'.

As I walked down one of the aisles that were between these couples, a voice came on in my earpiece...

Voice: "You are not to offer any cake to the men. As for the pregnant women, you are only to offer the cake to half of them."

Me: In my thoughts. "Okay, that means only about 25% of the people in this room will be getting a piece of cake."

As I was serving the cake as instructed, I noticed that one of the pregnant women had stood up to speak to her group...

Woman: "I am really sorry, but I have to leave now."

As soon as she finished saying this, I heard the voice in my earpiece again...

Voice: "Quickly, offer the woman who wants to leave a piece of cake."

Me: Addressing the woman. "Oh, are you leaving? I have a piece of cake for you."

After I served her a piece of this cake, she decided to sit back down. I then served the 'one-quarter' of the room as I had been instructed to and turned to leave. I then heard various people from around the room calling out to me to ask me for a piece of this cake as well. The voice quickly addressed me again...

Voice: "Ignore them. You are to leave this room right now."

I quickly walked out of the room. As soon as I was back in the grand hallway, a man was there to take my tray and hand me a new one.

Hall #2 – Teens and College Age – Fancy Alcoholic Beverages: This tray had alcoholic beverages. These beverages were in lowball glasses and in bright colors such as blues, pinks and greens. Each beverage had fancy cut fruits, flowers, umbrellas and/or other items that made these drinks look even more attractive.

I was instructed to enter the second room with my new tray. The room was filled with teens to college aged young adults. There was a deejay playing loud music and everyone was dancing wildly. Further instructions then came...

Voice: "You are only to serve half of the room with these drinks. Make sure that all of the women are served first. Any leftover drinks can then be served to the men."

While I already knew all too well that I was not to 'question the voice', there was really no ability to do so even if I had wanted to. There was no ability to ask questions of this 'voice' as this had been designed for one-way communication only.

Voice: "If a man reaches for one of your drinks, refuse him by simply saying 'oh no, ladies first!'"

I soon then had to do exactly this on several occasions and did it just as my mysterious employer had told me too.

Voice: "Now, make sure you empty your tray of all beverages before leaving the room as these drinks are not allowed outside of this area."

As I was serving the very last of the beverages, I noticed that these small four-ounce drinks were already making these girls inebriated and unusually more than they should have. As the 'now drunk' half consisted of all of the women, I began to have concerns for them, especially given that most of the men here were teens or college aged and were probably now interested in more than 'just dancing'.

Voice: "Don't think! Come back into the hallway now."

Hall #3 – Men in their late 30s in Tuxedos – High Stakes Poker Table: When I came back into the hallway, my now empty tray was replaced with a new tray. The new tray consisted of some Cuban cigars, poker chips and three keys.

The first key was bronze, the second key was silver and the third key was gold. Each of the keys had a ribbon of red, white and blue attached to it. I somehow knew that the keys themselves were a type of skeleton key that could be used to unlock some specific cabinets.

I was instructed to walk into the third room, the one at the end of the hallway. This room was particularly dark, darker than the rest. I could only see one single light in the entire room and it was directly over a poker table. The men around the table were all dressed in tuxedos and were all in their late thirties. I went over to them as I was to pass out the Cuban cigars to them first.

Voice: "You are to now place the poker chips in the middle of the table, along with the three keys. You will see five cards under the poker chips. Do not draw attention to these cards. After you discretely take the five cards off the tray, you are to then drop your tray on the ground to create a distraction. While everyone is distracted, place the five cards into the pocket of the man that is at the head of the table."

I 'accidentally' bumped my tray against the back of one of the men's chairs and it dropped noisily to the floor. Since the game was high stakes, no one paid 'that much' attention to me. The distraction worked perfectly. I was able to glance at the cards just before placing them into the man's jacket pocket. The cards formed a 'Royal Flush' and consisted of the ace, king, queen, jack and 10 of hearts. For those who do not know poker, this is the greatest hand possible.

After I discretely placed the five cards in the man's jacket pocket, I went over and picked up my tray. The floor was covered in a red Bukhara rug. It was an antique, probably from Afghanistan, and was in perfect condition.

As I bent over, the man with the five cards now in his jacket pocket purposely 'made a pass at me' as I bent down to pick up my tray. The table laughed, but I quickly realized that this was also part of the distraction. While the entire table of men were still laughing at this, the man quickly switched out his cards by using me as a shield and a distraction.

It worked and all of the other men at the table were completely fooled. I realized that all of this had been done to make absolutely sure that this man would win this particular poker hand and therefore the items on the table. While I did not understand what the items they were gambling for were, I knew that they must have been extremely important.

To help ensure that this ruse worked, I instinctively pretended to be embarrassed as I collected my tray from the floor and excused myself. Since everyone was still laughing and smiling as I left, I knew that the switch had been successful. As I was leaving, I then noticed that there were three separate display cases between the door and me:

- The first display case consisted of 'Glocks' and 'Rugers' handguns
- The second display case consisted of antique rifles and muskets
- The third display case consisted of high-tech semi-automatic and fully-automatic guns, some of which were so high-tech that I had never seen them before, even in movies set in the future

Voice: "Well done. Now, come back into the hallway. There is only one more room left for you to serve."

Hall #4 – Elderly Sickly Men – Milk of Magnesia and Pills: I exited through a door just past the high-tech gun display case. On the other side of the door was a type of 'butler's pantry'. Once there, a man handed me a nurse's dress to put over my uniform.

After putting the dress over my uniform, I then put on a white sweater and an old nurse's hat that I had also been handed. I looked into the mirror and, thanks to some movies that I have seen, I knew that I now looked like a nurse from the 1940s.

Before entering this fourth room, I was handed another new tray. This tray contained several paper cups filled with something that looked like 'Milk of Magnesia'. There were also some other small pill cups that contained a variety of pills that I did not recognize.

As I entered the room, I quickly noticed that it was the brightest lit room of the four rooms. There were several elderly men here and all of them looked very sickly. The staff were starting to take the sheets off one of the hospital beds there. I noticed that the top sheet had a stairway printed on it...

As I had some questions about this, I went up to one of the other workers to ask...

Me: "Did the man here pass away? Where did he go?"

The worker just looked at me and, with his finger over his lips, shushed me. He then discretely pointed to a camera behind him in a way that no one would see him pointing. I somehow knew that I was not to look up at the camera, so I just nodded instead.

Voice: "Remember, don't think. You are only here to serve."

Based on the man's reaction, I knew that it was even more imperative than I had even first realized to follow 'the voice's' instructions perfectly. I went to each of the 'patients' and handed them a cup with the 'Milk of Magnesia', along with the smaller cup of pills.

While I am not sure what all of these were for, I noticed that not one of them were interactive with me. I then left the room through a different door than the one that I had first come in. As soon as I entered the room, I noticed the overwhelming smell of ammonia. The smell was so strong that my eyes started to burn.

Voice: "This concludes your assignment for today. Please proceed to the lobby immediately."

I walked over to the lobby area and was given some cash in an envelope. I was then escorted out of the building. From there, several of us were taken by bus to another building. This building had a daycare and my kids were there. They were still only about three, five and seven years old, not their current ages.

Even though I knew that I was a bit earlier than expected for picking up my kids, I decided to quietly walk in so as to not cause a fuss. I looked over to a room to my left and heard 'story time' being told. As I looked in, and to my horror, I recognized a 'familiar man'. He was saying evil things to the children there, certainly not 'story time'.

I noticed that there were about ten children in the room with him. I cleared my throat and the man quickly looked over at me. The man looked at me with hate. He then looked at me like someone ticked off about having 'his plans scuttled'.

He quickly clapped his hands and the kids seemed to instantly come out of a type of fog. While the man then immediately left the area, I was unable to see where he had went. I looked around the daycare and soon found the woman who ran it...

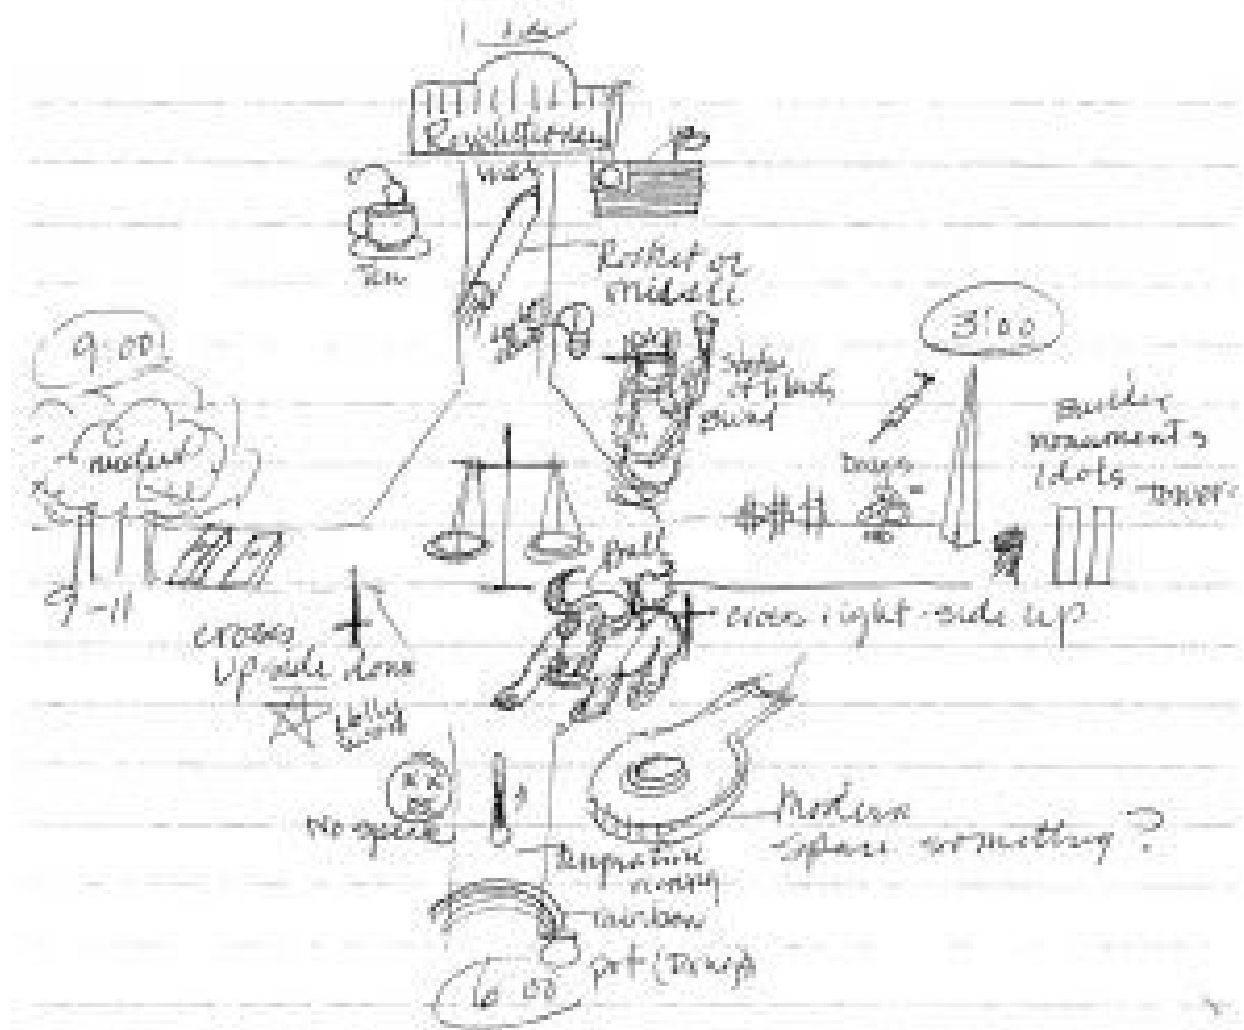

Me: "Why were you allowing that man to speak to the children?"

Woman: Shaking her head. "What man? There was no man in the room with them."

As this man was 'very familiar' to me, I was able to describe him in great detail. After listening to my description, she denied that this could have ever happened and indicated that it was now time to wake the children from their naps. We went back into the room together and, sure enough, all of the children were now asleep.

As I waited for her to wake them, I noticed something sitting on her desk. There was an ancient manuscript lying there that appeared to be made of a type of 'onion-skin'. As I looked closer, I noticed that it was actually made of an ancient, almost transparent, white/yellowish parchment paper.

Based on the appraisal record and authentication seal that was attached to this manuscript, I realized that this manuscript was actually from a few hundred years back.

It was an extraordinarily detailed map. The map started with the Revolutionary War that was labeled at 'the 12 o'clock' position. I soon became astonished when I then noticed that it had future events mapped out that were not even possible to know at the time this map would have been drawn up. This was impossible! The woman came back to me...

Me: "Where did you get this? Do they have any more of these maps?"

Woman: "I believe that there should still be some copies of this left. You will find them downstairs at the 'Antique Emporium'."

I thanked her and gathered up my kids from the daycare. We then proceeded to the emporium. While this area was dimly lit, I was still able to notice that there were several items available. A salesclerk came up to me to see if I needed any assistance...

Clerk: "Hello, may I help you?"

Me: "Yes. I am looking for old maps and documents."

Clerk: "Hmm, I don't have many of these left. They were from a recent acquisition. You will have to look around."

While I looked everywhere, I could not find any of them. In frustration, I decided to walk over to a cove where my kids were. They were playing with some old toys. While there, I noticed a similar document to the one that I had seen before.

The document was sealed in a clear wrap and had been stamped, authenticated and signed. When I looked closely at the stamp, I was disappointed that it read '1997'. I picked it up and went back over to the clerk.

Clerk: "So, were you able to find what you were looking for?"

Me: "No. I had wanted to find one like the one I had seen that had the Revolutionary War on it. This one is from the 1990s. Ick!"

Clerk: "I am sorry, but there were only four of these maps to begin with. While you already saw the oldest one, the one you are holding now is the most current. So, did you look really closely at the date of the one you are holding?"

Me: "Yes. It is dated '1997'."

Clerk: "Yes, but look more closely. I think that this will give you the answers that you seek."

As I looked over it again, I accidently broke the seal.

Clerk: "Well, this one must have been meant to be yours since the seal broke for you."

I was confused. When I looked even closer at the document, I noticed that the stamp date kept changing slightly. While the signature and seal remained the same, the date kept changing back and forth between November 7, 1997 and November 9, 1997.

Me: "Hmm, I was in my eighth month of pregnancy with my first born child during this time."

Clerk: "Then perhaps you will find the answers that you seek."

Me: "Okay, I will take it."

Sub-Dream 1 description over...

This was a very elaborate dream, Father, and one that I do not really understand. Please help me as I could use some encouragement to continue. Our battles still rage on almost every front. I also need healing for my sons soon.

Oh Father, I cling to Your promises. While You do not make mistakes, I do. While it seems as if I make less mistakes than I used to, it is probably because I do not have as many opportunities to make as many mistakes. All I know is that I cannot do anything but make mistakes apart from You.

I love You so much, Father, and I now even give all of my mistakes to You. For that matter, I also give all of my successes to You as well. I give myself to You. I give my finances to You. I give my family to You. Okay, I am completely surrendering to You. I give You everything, including all of my heart.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was on a path in God's Garden. As I looked at the beautiful valley below, I saw some sheep grazing next to a clear stream. The sheep there had coats as white as snow and not a speck of dirt could be seen on them. When I searched the valley below even more, I was then able to see Jesus there. I was so excited to see Him!

Jesus looked up at me and smiled and waved. He then motioned for me to come down off the cliff area that this path was on. As this cliff was a sheer drop of around three hundred feet or so, I was unsure as to how I would be able to do this. I walked around a bit to see if there were any steps or some other way to get down to Him.

I then saw Him laughing and I knew it was because He knew my thoughts. Just then, I heard the sound of wings behind me. I turned around and, right in front of me, there was a massive Bald Eagle. Well, it was similar to a Bald Eagle, but this one had feathers the color of shimmering gold and its head and tail were the purest of whites.

Jesus: Calling up to me. "Erin, 'on the wings of eagles'!"

I looked over at the eagle and he was looking right at me. He then seemed to somehow form a smile on his beak as he extended a wing toward the ground. I crawled up his wing and straddled the eagle's back.

Once I was on the eagle, he soared up into the sky. From there, I could see the cliff as we circled. We then started to fly down to the beautiful grassy valley below. Once we landed safely, the eagle once again extended his wing to allow me to climb off.

I climbed down from his back and went over and kissed him on his head. After I watched in amazement as this amazing eagle flew off, I ran over to Jesus and leaped into His arms. He hugged me as I held to Him tightly.

Jesus: Laughing. "Hmm, were you trying to 'talk yourself off of the cliff'?"

Me: Laughing. "Well, yes. At first, I thought I could just jump down instead."

Jesus: "Well, perhaps you could have, but was this not even better?"

Me: "Oh yes, Lord, that was awesome!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Come on, Erin, walk with Me."

As we walked together, I only then noticed that He had been walking with a staff.

Me: "Lord, why are You walking with a staff?"

Jesus: "Well, why not? Perhaps this staff is not for Me, but for you."

Me: "Well, I suppose that I could use one these days to help steady myself."

Jesus: "Here, Erin, you can take this one. I made it for you from the branch that you had first called down fruit. Even so, just know that this branch is not dead and is still thriving. When you are finally Home here, you will put this staff into the ground and it will take root and bud, producing all manner of good fruit."

He handed me the staff and it was so beautiful. The wood felt warm and seemed similar to acacia wood. As I inspected the staff closer, I noticed that there were inlays of round sterling silver marks from the top to the bottom. However, the bottom itself was made of a base of bronze.

There were some beautiful carvings there as well. One carving was of an egg hatching into a sparrow. Another carving was of this sparrow spreading her wings in order to fly. It was so sweet that my tears started to flow in gratitude.

Me: Crying. "Oh Lord, this staff is so beautiful. Oh, how You spoil me!"

Jesus: "It is both a staff and a measuring rod. Do not worry though as I will direct you in the ways that you should go."

Me: "Could I even heal with this?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Hold on there, little sparrow, don't get ahead of Me. Just enjoy it as, right now, the sheep are following you."

When I turned and looked, I then noticed that the sheep were walking next to us.

Me: Laughing. "Oh Lord, You are so funny. They are only following me because You are walking beside me. They are still following You."

Jesus: "Oh Erin, you make Me smile! Now, about your dream...25 years ago, the enemy had petitioned for the children, but mainly for the males. You should know that all sons were petitioned for and not just your sons.

"A division was then created. There were those that were chosen by Me for My purposes and those chosen by the enemy for his purposes. These are the times that were foretold in My Word, the times of the increase in wickedness.

"For those chosen for the enemy's purposes, this division caused a disconnect with 'right versus wrong', as well as an inability to reason and a lack of understanding. Do not worry though as all in your household have been chosen for My purposes.

"Now, knowing that the time of the end was drawing close, this army was sent out to gradually destroy 'the final generations'. This would be the way in which the enemy could raise up an army apart from good, whereby his army consists of lovers of self-ambition, enjoying all manner of evil perversions apart from the law.

"They were then raised as weapons to inflict harm, persecute, rob, kill and destroy. However, you are not to worry, Erin, as there is a plan in place. A special army has been asleep and set apart for a time soon to come.

"This special army will be able to leap and scale walls. They will be able to throw with both arms, left and right, just like David's mighty men could. There is so much more to this as well, Erin, and you will be overjoyed.

"Now, your dream also showed the great manipulation of the deceiver. The enemy has used those in authority to endorse wickedness. He has convinced people who are weak and vulnerable to become dependent on things prescribed. Through these methods, they have slowly poisoned the masses."

Me: "Lord, are You speaking about medications?"

Jesus: "Yes, but this is only a portion. It is what man takes in and sees as good, but it is a lie."

Me: "It could be so much more then. What about the water that we drink? What about the air that we breathe? What about the cleaners that we use? What about the stuff that our eyes view? What about the things that we eat that are bad for us?"

Jesus: "Now you understand."

Me: "I think so, Lord, but I am overwhelmed by this. I am overwhelmed because we know very little about the origins of these things. I now truly realize that we have to trust that You will reveal any problems so that we can then make changes."

Jesus: "Erin, there is also trouble in other things. For example, the soil that produces rice may contain agents that can cause dementia. However, ammonia, along with other things, can also do the same.

"I am not telling all of you this in order to cause worry though. No one is at fault for this and blame is not to be assigned to anyone except for the enemy. This is a strategic assault that comes from many directions and is another sign of the times.”

He looked over at me and I must have still looked concerned about all of this. He smiled at me with a kindness that simply cannot be described in earthly terms.

Jesus: “Do not worry, Erin. Even this is used for My purposes as I then meet with them where they are.”

Me: “Lord, who amongst us can even do anything about this? Even claims of ‘cleanliness’ and ‘safe wholesome foods’ are probably false now. Oh Lord, I give all of this to You as we truly can do nothing without You. I give all that we have to You. Please let us know when things are harmful. Please protect us and shield us from this.”

Jesus: “While your request is good, Erin, you also needed to understand why all of the wires are no longer properly connected.”

Me: “I know this all too well, Lord. As You know, I have dealt with Asperger’s (a form of Autism) for many years now.”

Jesus: “Yes, Erin, but just know that there is nothing you did to cause this. It was allowed. While your sons are sleeping right now, just know that this is not a bad thing. You have raised them with love and compassion. They know Me because you were persistent.

“Someday soon, you will see what assignments had come against the children of this land and it will bring comfort to so many parents who knew something was wrong. The enemy has focused on the power of the mind by manipulating the senses.

“Once temptation is taken in, harm is then ingested as a result. There are now struggles in many different forms and the enemy is there for each of them. Making all of this much worse is that I am ‘no longer in fashion’ for almost all now.”

Me: “Oh Lord, if they only knew just how amazing You are, they would no longer fall so easily for the enemy’s schemes. Is the battlefield in our minds right now?”

Jesus: “Well, the battlefield is the heart, but the mind can harden the heart.”

Me: “While I thank You for telling us this, Lord, I still find all of this to be very disconcerting.”

Jesus: “Do not worry, Erin, as My angels continue to guard all of those who love Me with all of their hearts. Always remember that My Father is in control of all things that happen, on Earth as it is in Heaven.”

Me: “Thank You, Lord! Oh yes, could You please tell me what the map in my dream meant?”

Jesus: "For this great nation, plans were put into place from the very time that the foundations were made. There were big dreams, dedications and contracts signed. Declarations were made and the stones were set in place.

"Now, though, it is divided. While one side builds, the other side tears down. Freedom given to those with no understanding is like building a home with no nails...there is nothing to keep the structure standing. It is impossible.

"With the exception of Sodom and Gomorrah, civilizations are not created on a foundation of lawlessness. As for Sodom and Gomorrah, they were burned up by fire from Heaven.

"Just know that I am with you, Erin, so do not worry. I also have your children as they are Mine. I love you."

Me: "I love You, Lord."

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for my husband, children and friends. Thank You for Your faithfulness when all seems lost. I had an interesting dream last night that woke me from my sleep. It was a very clear dream...

Sub-Dream 1 "Smashing Idols" description begins...

I now owned a very large mansion. It had many beautiful rooms and was quite elaborate. It was somewhat Georgian in style. It had a huge porch, along with massive white columns. Interestingly, it was clad in stone instead of the usual brick.

I was preparing to entertain guests from all over the world. To get here, the guests had to travel on a very confusing highway system filled with tollbooths, cloverleaf configurations and turnpikes. While God had told me to prepare for my party, I found it odd that so many coming would have no idea what I even looked like.

The day before the guests were to arrive, I had luxurious featherbed toppers and several types of high-end pillows brought in for the mattresses in each of the bedrooms. God had previously instructed me to order these as not one person under my roof was to be uncomfortable during their stay.

I was still a bit concerned though as our mansion was so incredibly large that it was taking me quite a bit longer than expected to prepare each of the rooms. All of the rooms were to be decked out in style as God had provided me with the means to purchase the finest linens, towels and table settings for my soon-to-arrive guests.

As I finished the last of the preparations, I thanked God yet again for this amazing mansion that He had provided for us, along with all that was now contained within it. To my surprise, I then heard some commotion at our front door and realized that guests were already starting to arrive. This was earlier than expected.

As I now had no time to change out of my cleaning attire, I answered the door just as I was. Because I was dressed in an unexpected manner, the guests did not seem to connect me as also being the owner of the house. I laughed because, even though I told each of them my name, they still were unable to 'connect the dots'.

While each of the guests still treated me cordially, they were addressing me as if I was the hired help and not the owner of the venue and the hostess of the event. I decided to 'play the part' and showed each of the guests to their rooms as they arrived.

Each person gushed to me about how awesome the mansion that God had provided us with was and that they felt so welcome. I then decided to check in on the two main banquet tables being set up for dinner. While I had outside assistance with the meal preparations, I was still responsible for the setup of these two tables.

As I did this, I started to do some mental arithmetic and quickly realized that the number of place settings would be insufficient for the number of guests that had arrived. Since I already had an offer to purchase a second mansion, I decided that this purchase now needed to go through immediately to accommodate my extra guests.

I went up to the woman selling it and reiterated that I was still interested in purchasing her mansion. She seemed completely surprised by this, almost as if she had never taken my original offer seriously in the first place. I quickly realized that she had not.

Me: "Many more guests than I had expected have arrived at my home. In order to accommodate these extra guests, I really need to finalize my purchase of your mansion immediately."

Woman: Laughing at me. "Seriously? You could never afford this place. Why are you even wasting my time?"

Me: I kept calm. "Listen, here is the phone number for my bank. Call them and they will verify that I can afford this."

Woman: "Okay, fine...I will."

Prior to phoning the bank, she looked up their contact information to make sure the number I had given her was really the bank. It was. She dialed up the bank and asked to speak to the bank manager. She was patched through immediately.

While a bank manager would never do this in real life due to privacy concerns, she then proceeded to tell this woman the incredible amount in my account available for my disposal, all of it as provided to me by God. Rather than looking happy about a 'sure sale', she looked jealous and angry with me.

Woman: Shaking her head in suppressed anger. "See all of these statues and other items here?" She pointed to a bunch of idols. "I have worked my whole life to accumulate these things and I will only sell this house to you if you purchase these as well."

I looked over to the wall she was pointing to and noticed that there were at least a hundred lighted cubbies in a variety of built in cabinets. Each cubby contained a separate idol and were lit in dramatic fashion.

I felt utter disgust with these idols rise up in my heart. There was no way I was going to dishonor God by including these in the purchase. To my surprise, I suddenly heard the Lord prompt me to go ahead and purchase the idols with the home. While I was shocked to hear this, I knew that He had a plan, as He always does.

Me: "Okay, yes, I will purchase these idols with your home."

As this woman had evil intentions in requiring this, she seemed quite pleased with my apparent compromise. I phoned the bank manager and asked that she, along with a second witness, come to the house to notarize and finalize the contract of sale transaction.

For some reason, it was only then that I realized that I still had my broom with me, the one that I had been sweeping the other mansion with. At the Lord's command, I was to then do something with the broom just as odd before the woman left.

I turned my broom upside down and grabbed one of the idols. I then threw it up in the air like a baseball. As it descended, and with perfect form, I used the broom handle to smash the idol while still in midair. I hit the idol so hard that it immediately disintegrated into a puff of white powder.

The woman screamed at me to stop as she scurried around trying to collect 'her idols'. The bank manager and the witness informed her that they were no longer hers.

Manager: "I am sorry to tell you this, but those idols are no longer yours. Put them back as you gave up ownership of these when you sold them with the house."

Woman: "I understand this, but she was to keep these, not destroy them!"

I shook my head in disagreement as I continued to pick up these idols and obliterate them.

Me: Smiling. "Why worry? Can you not see that I am using these for my purposes?"

Woman: "I can see that, but you are destroying my collection."

Me: "Well, it is my collection now and I am now remodeling them...into pieces!"

Woman: "What a waste! These are beautiful! Some of these are thousands of years old. Who do you think you are to reshape history?"

Me: "You are wrong. These idols had been made in order to try to reshape 'His story', God's story, His Creation. These idols are lies and they have no value. These idols serve no other purpose than to ruin lives and even souls. We are to worship and serve our One True Creator, God and His Son, Jesus!"

After I finished smashing the very last idol, I turned the broom back around and started to sweep up the grey particles of dust. I then deposited them into the furnace. I noticed that they were instantly burnt up completely.

After happily dismissing the now miserable woman, I went back to preparing my new mansion for the extra guests. I felt so happy about this awesome turn of events orchestrated by God Himself. After finalizing my preparations, I rushed back to my first mansion.

When I arrived there, I was quickly overwhelmed by how happy my guests were. I was also happy knowing that each of them had been sent by God Himself. I quietly blended in and listened as stories, positive for a change, were spoken about me.

As not one person had recognized me yet, I laughed to myself and felt no need to say anything. My guests were happy and it made me glad and so thankful to God for arranging all of this.

Sub-Dream 1 description over...

After this dream, I went back to sleep and had a second dream. This one seemed to have elements of continuation from the first dream. However, it also seemed to have elements relating to overindulgence and self-indulgence. For some reason, I was not led to write this second dream down.

As I sat there still amazed by the dream I had just written down, I suddenly remembered that I had just sent a letter yesterday to my L&I lawyer outlining all of the wrongs committed against me by this institution. L&I's lack of medical care was so noteworthy and unusually severe that my lawyer received the letter outlining this with 'gratitude'.

We then arranged a phone call. During our ensuing discussions, he then informed me that he would be forwarding this letter, along with all of the evidentiary documents supporting each of the corruption claims, to the State Senate, the House and to several L&I grassroots watchdog groups.

I was absolutely elated! Making this even more unusual is that this conversation with my lawyer happened on a Saturday, a day he usually does not work. After four long years of dealing with this corruption, I can finally see some action on bringing their corruption to the forefront on the horizon.

On the downside, my lawyer had also reminded me that L&I will be so angry about this that they will immediately stop my disability payments once they see this letter. These payments represent a loss of around $1,800 per month and will be sorely missed. That being said, I just know that this is what I am being called to do.

When my L&I lawyer asked if I was okay with this, I told him that I would prefer to live my life in dignity with less money than to continue to suffer with this income by being required to dance to their tune. I have to admit though...I am scared about this.

I have stepped out of the boat straight into a raging storm and I am scared. Though I am now going to be walking on rough seas, I fully trust in Jesus for all that we have and for all that is about to happen.

After reflecting on this for a while, I decided to open up my Bible. I opened the pages and there was Your Word in Isaiah 43:19 about You 'doing a new thing'. When I realized just how applicable this was to my current situation, I began to cry.

Soon after this, I was then led to read Dream 252. This is a rare occurrence as I rarely read any of my old dreams unless my husband points something out in one of them. I read this dream and I just started to weep at all that He has done for us.

Oh Father, I love You and Your ways so much. Though Your ways are often difficult for us to comprehend, they also remind us that there is no other god like You and that You are our ONLY God!

From beginning to end, I can see that Your divine tapestry has been intricately woven. Though painful at times, Your plans are complex, perfect and so incredibly beautiful. The events You have orchestrated are so amazing that I just know that no one else could have orchestrated this but You, our Living God.

Father, You are our Idol, but not in the way that society worships human idols. You are our Superhero, but not in the way our kids, and so many adults as well, worships superheroes. You are the Lover of our souls and the Keeper of our hearts.

Oh Father, Your rod and staff comfort me, so thank You so very much. I am even grateful that You continue to chastise and discipline those of us who love You with all of our hearts (Hebrews 12). Without Your instruction, Your Spirit Who lives inside of us, we would be lost. Thank You!

I had two dreams last night...

Sub-Dream 2 "Living next to a deranged man" description begins...

I was young again in this dream, but not Transformed. This was unusual. However, I still had all of the life experiences and knowledge that I have today. While I was with all five of our children, my aunt was here with me as well.

We were travelling through a distant city and were to stop at the home of a very wealthy and powerful woman. As this woman knew my aunt, she invited us in for dinner and we agreed.

The front of her home was almost entirely made up of windows. This overlooked a city skyline, one that I did not recognize. If I had to guess, I would say it was on the east coast, perhaps Baltimore.

After a wonderful meal, we said our 'goodbyes' and 'thankyous' and proceeded to the car. To our surprise, our car simply refused to start. My aunt went to the door and asked if we could stay there until help came.

The woman that had just been so nice to us and had treated us like guests was now treating us like we were paupers after her things. I heard my aunt drop some names of mutually influential people and asked if she could merely borrow the phone instead if we were too much of a bother.

The woman suddenly recalled that my aunt was as connected as she was and changed her attitude. She then addressed all of us and asked if we would like to spend the night there. At this point, none of us were comfortable staying at this woman's house as she was clearly unstable.

The woman insisted and my aunt reassured us that it would be only one night. On the basis that we knew help would come in the morning, we reluctantly agreed to stay the night. The woman's butler showed us to our rooms.

I then found it odd because my aunt and five children all had bedrooms in the back of the home, but mine was in the front of the home. My room had many windows and I was soon astonished to see that each window had multiple window coverings.

This was actually quite comical. Each window had plantation shutters, roller shades, roman shades, valances and draw drape panels. It made no sense. All of the drapes, valances and roman shades were both lined and interlined. Other than this incredibly odd window arrangement, the room itself was actually quite lovely.

Butler: "I need to warn you to not touch anything. You are to simply sleep here and not move or break anything. My 'madam' is very particular and she has guests arriving in a couple of days."

Thinking that he was only referring to items on side tables and furniture, I nodded my head in agreement. They were probably worried I would rearrange things since they knew that I was an interior designer.

After the butler left, I closed the door to my room. After I did this, I could hear some whispered goodnights taking place down the hallway. I decided to open the drapes, raise the heavy roman shades and opened the shutters.

The view was simply breathtaking. The city lights were amazing. As I scanned the various buildings, I noticed something strange. There was a deranged man straight ahead of me in his own windowed room. Since we were on the same floor, he was looking directly at me.

He somehow knew my name and pointed at me as he screamed it out. He started to laugh at me. I now knew why the windows were covered so heavily. I quickly closed the shutters, pulled the drapes down, then the roman shades and pulled closed the panels. I was greatly disturbed by this crazed man that I had just seen.

I was now a bit out of breath and laid back down on the bed in exhaustion. While I liked this house, you could not pay me enough to live next door to this guy. When I mentally calculated the floorplan, I realized that the room I was in was the only room in the house that had a view of 'the crazed man'.

I was awakened in the morning by a knock on my door. It was my aunt and she informed me that we could go as a service man had already been there to fix the car. I quickly gathered my things and took them to the car. The butler then helped us load our suitcases into our car. He seemed mad at me, so I addressed him...

Me: "Is everything okay?"

Butler: "I see that you did not listen to my instructions. You were not to touch anything in the room you were staying."

Me: "I am sorry. I just didn't think you meant the window coverings as well. Opening these are usually never frowned upon."

Butler: "Well now you know the reason for this rule, right?"

Me: "Yes, and I am truly sorry that I did not listen to you."

Butler: "That room was my employers until the man came. Now she sleeps elsewhere. The room is now seldom used as a result of this man."

Me: "Who is that mad man?"

Butler: "We are not exactly sure except that we know that he is a tormentor."

Me: "Why does she not just simply move?"

Butler: "She refuses to and has decided to ignore what is staring at her."

Me: "She is either brave or foolish, but I do not know which one she is."

That seemed to loosen him up. I could tell he agreed with me but was not wanting to say anything derogatory against his employer. After a short pause, he simply could not help himself.

Butler: Smiling and nodding. "Perhaps both."

After we said goodbye and was on the road again, my aunt, our kids and I decided to pray for the woman and her situation. Though she was rich, she still lived a life that was poor. She was tormented daily by this demented man. We prayed that she could soon find the divine peace that only God can deliver.

Sub-Dream 3 "Ungrateful friends" description begins...

I was Transformed in this dream and once again young. I was young but not Transformed in the previous dream. I was joyful again. I was with several of my friends and each of us were planning weddings.

My friends each had very specific ways in which they wanted their weddings to be. However, they were all so caught up in the details that they seemed to have forgotten that the wedding was a ceremony of witnesses to a spiritual union or contract. I said nothing because I was enjoying listening to all of their plans.

For some reason, my days were now being spent driving around looking at different venues for my friends. I was there to be a support to them and to hunt down various ideas for them to consider. Even though I was planning a wedding of my own, these friends barely thanked me and acted like I was obligated to do this for them.

I suddenly realized that not one of them asked me what I wanted for my wedding. I decided to keep my desires to myself. I became sad after awhile knowing that they did not care to find out what I desired or delighted in even though I was taking the time to ask them what they desired. My Groom saw my sadness and came over to me...

My Groom: "Erin, if you could have anything, what would it be?"

I was overjoyed that He would ask me this, but I really did not have a great answer. I just simply had not thought about what I had wanted for myself. After a pause to think, I smiled and gave Him my reply...

Me: "I want my wedding flowers to include peonies. I love peonies. Oh yes, I also love beautiful lilies. Other than this, I just want to marry You and celebrate with a beautiful dinner. Oh yes, I also want lots of laughter and perhaps even some dancing."

My Groom: "These are reasonable requests. Perhaps you can run this by your friends. They are your friends, right?"

Me: I thought for a moment. "Yes. I think they are happy for me. I will tell them about the flowers I would like."

On the following day, I was meeting up with some of my friends at a small street café. I had stopped at a florist before meeting them. I picked up some amazing peonies and lilies there. The florist then added some sweet peas to the mix. It ended up being the most beautiful bouquet I had ever seen here on Earth.

Me: "This is a precious priceless gift from God. Their beauty is just too wonderful for me. I am in complete awe of this beautiful bouquet that you have arranged for me."

Florist: "Erin, these are my gift to you. I have noticed that you come by here every day and look at these flowers. Perhaps you could paint some watercolors and I will hang them on my walls."

Me: "I will give you a watercolor as my gift for these. I will hire you for my wedding."

I reached over and hugged the kind florist. I had a huge grin and a skip in my step as I left her shop. I could hardly wait to share my flower choices with my friends. When I arrived at the café, I noticed that each of my friends were completely immersed in their own plans. They were so immersed that they barely noticed that I had arrived.

I then noticed that none of them seemed happy now. After listening in, I realized they were arguing about the details of each of their wedding venues. They barely even looked at me. One of my friends finally addressed me, but only because she noticed how amazing my bouquet of flowers were.

Friend 1: "Who gave you these flowers?"

Me: "My florist. These are the flowers I will be using for my wedding."

Friend 1: "You can't have lilies. Those are my flower."

Friend 2: "Peonies? Seriously? They bruise easily and are for old people."

Friend 3: "You must be kidding. Sweet peas? Sweet peas are nothing more than a trailing weed."

I listened to them as their complaints escalated. After a few minutes of being told how stupid my selections were, I decided to address them in a positive manner.

Me: "Well, I like them. They are perfect for me. Your opinions are just that and my opinion is all that matters in this case. In my opinion, I love my selections."

Friend 1: "I suppose that you are now going to tell us that your wedding is outside."

Friend 2: "Yes, where are you planning to have your wedding and reception. Do you not know that all of the venues are taken? There is no place to have yours."

Me: "I have a small white church by a beautiful overlook. We are having our wedding and ceremony there."

They all looked at me and were now laughing at my reply.

Friend 4: "Hmm, low budget."

Me: "It is perfect for me. My Father said that He would provide for my every need."

Friend 3: Scoffing at me. "Given your background and talents, we expected so much more from you."

Me: "Well, no one ever said anything to me."

Friend 1: "You are our biggest threat."

Me: "This is our weddings. This is supposed to be a joyful day."

At this point, they barely acknowledged what I said. I noticed that they no longer cared to include me. When I said goodbye, no one even gave me any thought. I did not understand what happened. I went home and wondered if anyone whom I had invited would even be coming to my wedding.

When I arrived home, there was a note on my door. The note said the following...

"Dearest Daughter, I delight in you and I have taken care of every detail concerning your special day. I have made note of everything which I knit into your being, including all things beautiful which has brought you special joy. No detail will be overlooked. Do you trust Me to do all I have said?"

I looked up to Heaven with a smile on my face and replied...

Me: "Yes, Father, what do I have to lose? Please do everything according to Your Will. Your Will is perfect. My will has flaws, obstacles and struggles. I give my plans all up to You and for Your glory."

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for this day, another day here! This is the first day that it has felt like spring here. Nissan is the beginning of spring and the Hebrew word for spring is Aviv. Av means Father and Iv is the representation of 12. Aviv is therefore also seen as the 'Father of the 12 months of the year'.

Passover also represents a new beginning and a time to set the captives free. Today is the 28th of Nissan. According to historians, Nissan 28 marks the day in which the walls crumbled at Jericho.

Father, I am exhausted. In the heat of all of my troubles, I reacted and became upset. Before that, I had remained quiet, which displayed wisdom. All we have is Yours, Father. None of our tests or trials are a surprise to You.

Soon we will come to the conclusion of a very difficult seven-month block of hammering. This has been a time when a sleeping tiger was awakened. The 8th month is representative of 'new beginnings', so we will wait for the conclusion of this trial.

Father, during this time, my joy has been greatly diminished. I know that, according to Your Word, the joy of the Lord is my strength. When the wall was built in Jerusalem and the people were still downcast and exhausted, God commanded them to find joy and celebrate.

They were to celebrate their new beginnings and the completion of their rebuilding of the wall despite great opposition. In Psalm 28:7, the Lord is my strength and shield. I trust Him with all of my heart. He helps me and my heart is filled with joy. I burst out in songs of thanksgiving.

I have found joy in the animals around our yard. The deer do not run from me. They instead stand near me and are unafraid. They trust that I will not harm them. The squirrels come near as do the other small animals and birds. It makes my heart joyful.

The eagles are now mating and dance with each other in the air. They do this 'two by two'. It has been amazing to see this 'up close'. I realize through this all that I am truly small. My only significance is what You deem it to be.

All of my achievements, talents, skills and rewards were all granted to me by You and at Your command. All we do is to be for Your use and Your glory. In a Word to me from a few days ago, You gave me instructions and told me that You have placed a door in front of me. The door before me is massive, but it is closed.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

In front of me was a massive door. The door had four panels and was made of very thick wood. The doorknob was bronze and was situated higher than my reach. I pushed at the door to open it, but it was shut.

I sat down next to the door with my back against it. I rested my hands on my cheeks and looked down at the ground. I let out a massive sigh. Just then, Uriel was standing right in front of me.

Uriel: "Erin, stand up."

He reached out for my hand and I extended mine to hold his. I was once again quickly brought back up on my feet thanks to Uriel.

Me: "Uriel, I cannot open this door. I cannot even reach the doorknob."

Uriel: "Then you are to wait, Erin. I am here to instruct you on doors."

Me: "Okay, I need help."

Uriel: "This door has been presented to you by God. The door here is a promise to you that, through this door, is a new beginning for you. Through this door, death will not find you."

Me: "I do not understand, Uriel."

Uriel: "You have been second guessing God's promises because He did not show you the way in which He would deliver you. Because you expected only good things according to your comfort level, you were not expecting more discomfort. This is common to man because God showed you He would deliver you from your current state. You expected deliverance would happen, not for your state to worsen."

Me: "Yes. Last September was not great, but I never imagined things would become quite like this."

Uriel: "So, you felt as if God had abandoned you. You have felt alone and hurt, even angry. However, did God not tell you that He would deliver you in a way you think not? Your will for events and timing caused disappointment as they did not match God's plan.

"When you look back to see His promises after they have been fulfilled, you will see what He was saying to you and that all of it lined up perfectly with what has occurred. So, Erin, are you unhappy with God's Will or His timing?"

Me: "Well, I cannot lie to God. Yes, I was unhappy with Him. It has been distressing, heartbreaking even. Oh Uriel, I love God, my Father, and I love Jesus, His Son and my Lord and God. He has called me friend yet I have felt abandoned. I did not know what I did to bring this on. I thought I had done what was honorable in His sight."

Uriel: "Sometimes it is not about your personal comfort, Erin. Are you now speaking as a lump of clay to God the Potter and directing the shape of things?"

Me: "No, Uriel. I just thought that my vessel was ready because He said it was."

Uriel: "A vessel used for God's service is still God's. You have offered up yourself for God's glory, not your personal comfort. He can just as easily place you on the cooling shelf to be ornamental and collect dust. Now repent of this and surrender it to God."

Me: I began to cry to God now. "I am sorry, Father. I thought You delighted in me. I was careful to keep my heart on You. I was angry at You when it seemed that the currents of the sea were taking us further away from Your peaceful shores.

"We had been swept away by massive torrents and by swells so high that we could not see the horizon. We could see no land at all. We had lost hope. Our mouths said what we thought You wanted to hear, not what we really felt.

"We called out to You when the sharks began to circle. Fear had made our bodies freeze. We could no longer tread water as even our movements endangered us. I am sorry, God. We surrender all that we are to You."

Uriel: "Erin, God has not abandoned you. He is with you. Do not listen to the murmurs, gossip and rumors of fools. They will be held accountable by God. Remember that to obey is better than sacrifice.

"A door can also be a place where God will keep you free from harm. This was displayed when God's people marked their door posts and went inside to be sheltered by the hand of God. They did this so that, when the angel of death swept over Egypt, the first born of the marked doors were spared.

"Some doors have locks. However, God has given you keys to unlock these doors. Once opened, and since you are the key holder, you have full authority to walk in and enter through the door. Sometimes there are multiple doors and only one key.”

Me: “Yes, and there are other times when there are multiple keys and only one door. I guess a key could also be a nugget of wisdom or knowledge that then unlocks an otherwise closed door.”

Uriel: “Very good, Erin. Keys require action when a door is presented. When you are given keys but no door is presented, then you hold these keys close to you until the door is placed before you.”

Me: “What if there is no key or no lock?”

Uriel: “Then there is no action on your part required until God commands an action. Now, when a wicked man sees that a door is closed to him and he desires entry uninvited and goes by another route, the man is a thief as the door has not been opened to him. This man then stops at nothing to enter in. He then comes to steal, rob and destroy all that lies within. Therefore, give your lives over for God’s purposes as it is written that the Lord is the Door of the Sheep.

Me: “What if the doors presented are not God’s doors?”

Uriel: “Do not enter even when it seems comfortable or familiar. You should pray instead. Erin, a door has been presented many times to you by God. Do you not know the difference by now?”

Me: “Yes, Uriel, I do. I just asked because doors are presented all of the time. It also seems as if the enemy’s doors are open all of the time.”

Uriel: “While the temptation to walk through these doors is there, God has not done this to you. Despite the relentless petitions the enemy has made for you and your household, no new petitions have been granted. All doors have been shut and the enemy can only gain access through old petitions, but even then only as allowed by God.”

Me: “Hmm, so the enemy can still gain access to us through old permissions?”

Uriel: “You need to do more than just pray and petition. You will soon be required to act. Now look here...it is a door.”

I turned and there, right in front of me, was this still closed massive door. I suddenly recalled God’s Words from the Bible. Ask and it shall be given to you. Seek and you will find. Knock and the door will be opened to you.

Uriel: “Go ahead, Erin.”

I turned back to the door and knocked loudly. Instead of opening inwards as I had expected, the door instead opened towards me. I went to open it some more and I heard the voice of Jesus echoing towards the opening...

Jesus: “Erin, are you inviting Me to dine with you?”

Me: “Yes, Lord, yes!”

Jesus: "Then let us dine together. I have give you a key, Erin. I know all that you have been through. I have placed before you an open door that no one can shut. I know that you have little strength, yet you have kept My Word and have not denied My Name."

Just after I heard this, there He was, right at the door. He smiled at me through the doorway. I smiled when I noticed that He was wearing His crown.

Jesus: "Erin, you came. Come, I have prepared a place for you at My table. Come, Erin, come."

He reached out His hand towards me. I put my hand in His.

Me: "Are more coming?"

Jesus: "Of course. I have opened a door that no one can shut and I have shut a door that no one can open. Do not worry, Erin, as I have a wonderful supper planned. I have both refreshing water and wine. Are you ready?"

Me: "Yes!"

Jesus: "Then come"

I stepped towards Him and the beautiful door that had now been opened.

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for this beautiful home and a home full of healthy children who love You! Thank You for my husband! Thank You for these dreams. As You know, I had an epic dream just last night...

Sub-Dream 4 "Generous Gift, Jealous Friend" description begins...

I was called to assist a friend of mine with a remodeling project. She was a real estate agent only and was not qualified to offer her services as a remodeler concerning this property.

The home was in the center of a new business area. The property was huge and the lot alone was worth millions of dollars. While the home's exterior was mainly white, the shake roof, gables and window frames were a beautiful contrasting black.

There were several small outbuildings which were like guest cottages. The couple who owned it had let the property go into disarray. When we entered through the front door, it soon became apparent that no one was taking the time to care for the core integrity of this home.

There were layers built on top of previous layers. Instead of removing old flooring, new flooring was simply placed on top of the old flooring. Without saying a word, I could see that underneath several of the torn-up layers were beautiful original features. I could see that this place had a lot of potential.

The real estate agent friend of mine kept focusing the sellers on selling to developers that would tear down the place. She believed that the purchase price of the house would be small in comparison to what they could get if they sold it to developers instead.

I somehow knew that the sellers did not have financial problems and were indifferent about whether they made a few extra bucks by selling the property to developers. Upon closer inspection, I noticed that the sellers had casual clothing that were high-end.

The closing argument I had for this couple being secretly wealthy is that they had two small dogs that I knew would have cost them a fortune. The dogs were 'mini-breeds' of larger dogs. One of the dogs was a teacup Siberian husky. The other dog was a miniature Dalmatian. They were both incredible cute.

My real estate friend was trying to convince the couple to sell to developers as she knew that it would go for more thereby inflating her commission. The selling couple soon noticed that she had little interest in selling the property to someone that actually wanted the house to remain. They looked puzzled as to why I was there...

Couple (sellers): "Who is this?"

Friend (real estate agent): "She is an interior designer."

Couple: "Did you bring her to solidify your case for selling to developers and subsequent teardown?" They then turned towards me. "So then, what exactly is your opinion on this property?"

My real estate friend looked pleased as she was certain that I would solidify her 'case'.

Me: "Quite simply, I wish I had the ability to purchase this place. It is stunning. With some work, it could be restored and be such a beautiful home. This home, once restored, would be so appealing that many guests would want to come and visit."

Couple: They seemed stunned at my response. "Please elaborate."

Me: "This home is a hidden jewel that just needs some attention."

Couple: "What would your vision be for our home?"

Me: "Perhaps it could be turned into an Inn or even a wedding venue. There are cottages on the property and these could be used for guests. One of the cottages had even been a chapel at one time. While the grounds need some care, there are already beautiful flowering vines and trees that would fit in perfectly.

"If you wanted to, I believe that horses could thrive here. There is also a small pond that looks like a swamp right now. This could easily be restored by removing the overgrown algae that covers it. Your home is so beautiful that I can already see beauty here despite the need for a cleanup."

Couple: They were excited over what I had just said. "What is your name?"

Me: "Erin."

Couple: "Well, Erin, today is your day. We are giving all of this to you as a gift."

Friend: "Oh no, no, no, you cannot do that!"

Me: "What? I am sorry but I don't understand. What?"

Couple: "The Lord had told us that He would send someone to restore all of this. He told us that our home would once again be beautiful and would bring much joy to those who visit. So, Erin, here is the deed to our property. We will also transfer sufficient funds to you to not only restore it but maintain it as well.

"Because your taxes will then go up as the area around the property has grown considerably more valuable, we have also provided enough to cover this as well. Even though the ruler of the area will try to drive you into trouble, you will now have no need to worry about anything. We hope you will accept our gift with joy."

Me: I was still in complete shock. "Oh yes, yes, of course, yes!"

Couple: "Then sign right here and all of this is yours."

The couple then handed me some papers. It appeared to be a deed along with some bank documents. We then heard my friend groan in disgust. The couple turned to address my friend on this unexpected turn.

Couple: "We understand that you are a notary. This is why we asked you to be here. Do not worry as we will reimburse you for your time."

My friend was in complete shock. She looked back at her email and just now realized that she had never been asked to be a real estate agent, only to serve as a notary. My friend reluctantly pulled out her notary stamp and sealed and witnessed the documents being signed. There were three sets of papers to be signed so this took some time.

The couple then paid my friend much more than what her notary services were worth. They had decided to pay my friend an amount equal to her 'lost commission', an amount in the six figures. Even though this was a shocking amount, my friend was not content. She was instead burning with jealousy over my gift from the couple.

After this, the couple walked me over to the largest room in the house. It was a dancehall with a mirrored ceiling. The mirrors were tacky and cracked. The couple laughed and turned towards me to ask me a question.

Couple: "Are you ready to tear down this ceiling? I know that you want to."

I noticed that there were several strings attached to the ceiling. These strings were, in turn, all controlled by one long rope. We stood in the hallway through the door of this massive room. The mirrored ceiling was not above us here.

I pulled the rope with all of my strength and the glass ceiling came crashing down. We stood in awe at how beautiful the now showing original ceiling was. There was beautiful carved handiwork everywhere, along with some amazing frescoed paintings.

All of this craftsmanship surrounded a beautiful fully operational skylight that was able to be opened at will. I could see the stars through the skylight. It was so romantic and beautiful that it took our breath away.

Dream 278 – Jesus, Troubles and the Door Revisited

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for my husband, our children and our friends. I cannot thank You enough for answered prayers. I also know that Your unanswered prayers are blessings too. This is because You know all things from beginning to end and therefore what is best for each of us.

My husband is now home. According to the doctors at the hospital, his full recovery in such a short time was a miracle. I cannot thank You enough for this. Please, Father, continue to restore his strength and heal him supernaturally.

To go with all of the other 'bad news' (but not to God) we have had recently, I just found out about something else to be concerned about. A mass has suddenly showed up on the left side of my brain. This could even be one of the causes of the severe headaches I have had at times.

The other thing that is a bit unusual right now is that so many 'personal' doors are closing for us. Oh Father, we love You with our whole heart and soul. All that You have done for us has been nothing short of a true miracle. We know that nothing is impossible for You. Despite this, I am getting more and more tired with every round of trouble. I keep thinking that it cannot get worse and then it does. Father, please come quickly as only You can heal me.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

In front of me was the same massive door as that which was in front of me in the last dream. I was somewhat discouraged as the door that had been opened ever so slightly before was now once again completely shut. This obviously did not 'delight' me. As a reminder, this door has four panels, is made of very thick wood and has a bronze doorknob situated higher than my reach.

Just as I had last time, I sat down next to the door with my back against it, rested my hands on my cheeks, looked down at the ground and let out a massive sigh. I then expected that Uriel would be with me immediately just like last time. However, I instead remained here 'on my own' this time. I decided to pray out loud.

Me: "Father, this door is massive and once again closed to me. I have never been so discouraged. My hope is gone and my heart is sick. Our entire household is ready to conform to Your Will again once You present us with an open door.

"Father, we have not been healed yet and I am growing tired of pain, illness and mobility issues. I am growing tired of the barriers constantly being erected by the enemy's hands. There are so many things that impede me from freedom right now. Why?

"Lord, I have repented several times for various things just in case I did not repent properly the first time. I have repented for not having peace and joy while waiting for You. I have even repented for feeling the need to repent for things already repented for.

"Father, all of us need a reboot of our brains. Please fill our brains with good things. Please replace our memories with good things. Please grant us the supernatural ability to restore what has diminished in us. May we be less of us and be more of You.

"Please refill us with Your healing water from the River of Life. Please refresh and cleanse us, purifying us from that which is unholy. Please breathe life into our old dead bones and place a new Spirit in us. We sing 'Onward Christian Soldiers' to You. We recite the 'Lord's Prayer' to You by using the Words You gave to us.

"Father, You have prepared us. You have strengthened us during our times of great weakness. You have provided a way for us where there has been no way. Well, I am now knocking at Your door yet again. By Your Words, 'knock and the door shall be opened, seek and we will be found by You'."

I took another sigh and knocked on the massive door. It stayed stubbornly closed.

Jesus: "I am so glad to see you continuing to knock at My door."

I felt His hand on my shoulder and I leaped to my feet to hug Him.

Me: "While I am so happy to be here with You again, I am not happy to see that this door is closed again."

Jesus: "This had been opened as part of My lesson on doors and is shut for now. Do not be dismayed, Erin, as you knocked and I heard you. Here I am, Erin!"

Me: "While this is the case as this is Your Will, I was still hoping that You would have come through the previously opened door today." I pretended to pout. "I want this door to be opened now!"

Jesus: "I know, Erin. Just remember that I remain with you, both here in Heaven and there on Earth. While I know your feelings are hurt at times, know that all that is happening to you is for a purpose. While you do not understand this now, you will understand this fully once you are changed."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but it is still hard on us while we wait for You. While You call me friend and tell me that You love me, You still allow all of this trouble to fall on me. Why? I see doors closing and no doors opening. Again, why? Why has all of this been allowed?"

Jesus: "It is not time yet. Erin, the time has not come."

Me: "Oh no, not a time! Please, Lord, not another year. Oh no!"

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin. Even though a 'time' can mean a year, sometimes a 'time' can be used to describe a measure of time in hours, minutes or seconds on a clock." He smiled. "Does a clock not 'tell time'?"

"Now, let us talk about the door in front of you that is once again shut. The door before you is about to again be opened by Me. You will not have to wait long for this. This will not happen in a year or more, but now.

"You are disheartened right now as the last fifty days have been filled with troubles for you. You have been judged, accused and weighed by many and even by some that call you friend. You have also been the subject of gossip by these same people. While you have also been a victim of theft, this list continues on and on.

"Erin, I have now taken you to the brink of what you are able to endure. You have been made numb by the passing of so many 'uncomfortable' events. You have been in shock by the many days in which bad news was followed by even worse news. Despite all of this, Erin, here you are! Despite this, you are still here with Me."

Me: Crying. "Oh Lord, I just know that You were with me during these times. I just know that, in my current condition, I would have never made it through these events all on my own. I needed You. Could You help me understand why this recent series of battles felt a bit different than my previous battles?"

Jesus: "First off, make no mistake, Erin, that you have enemies that seek your death. This has never stopped. What you experienced is that I strengthened you to the point that these things were unable to penetrate your faith. Erin, you still stood during these battles and storms even though you doubted at times.

"Please understand, Erin, that all of this was meant as a measure and meant for your good. Your troubles had ramped up to such a degree that your youngest son even asked, 'Why follow God? Does He not continue to allow all of our troubles?'

"These questions showed how he is both wise and without understanding. He then later showed himself to be of great faith when he stated that he understood that God is God over all thing and even over all events, whether 'pleasant' or not.

"Erin, does this scenario not remind you of what the wife of Job had said to Job? Even when prompted by his wife to turn away from God, Job still did not curse or deny Him. As Job did not deny Him, so too have you not denied Me.

"Now, when that door behind you opens again, Erin, you will be changed. While you wait for this to happen, make sure to get your house in order. Remember that the pool is about to open, understand?"

Me: Crying. "Thank You, Lord. Even so, these last several months, but especially the last few weeks, have become too much for me. I am scared, Lord. If I am not healed or strengthened soon, I will not be able to accomplish all that You have said I would.

I also want to see our children, our friends and my husband healed. I do not want to be subjected to the courts of the world anymore. I want so much to live free like a citizen of Heaven, but here on Earth as well and for right now." I smiled. "Remember, Lord, 'on Earth as it is in Heaven'!

"Please teach me, Lord. Please grant me the authority to heal others. Oh please, Lord, pretty please!"

Jesus: Smiling. "Erin, you heard a choir of angels singing for an hour a few days ago while you were doing your earthly chores. You then called your daughter and your husband to ask them if they heard it. Were they able to hear this too?"

Me: "While I heard the choir singing clearly and loudly, both my daughter and my husband could not. This was so odd for me to hear this so clearly on Earth that I guessed that perhaps that night would be my last night on Earth."

Jesus: Laughing. "Hmm, yet here you still are and even now speaking of this."

Me: "Lord, it seems as if You are giving me many signs of various 'closures' these days. These various closures have involved:

- Two of our computers failing, one tower and one laptop
- The car I have owned since 2011 to become in poor condition
- My husband was in the hospital
- My dog was sick
- My husband's close family member betrayed us in a variety of ways
- There were at least five other events that occurred as well

"It seems like You are slowly removing things and have changed my desires. Well, it really has not been that slow lately, Lord, as You have not let up. Lord, why did You not let up on me?"

Jesus: "I did, Erin, as each of these events could have been so much worse. Even though these events were difficult, all that was lost will soon be restored, replaced and renewed. Remember that My recompense is with Me, Erin, and that I am with you.

"Most of these events that came against you were small and will come to nothing. Please do not worry, Erin, as I shut doors which cannot be opened and I open doors which cannot be shut." He then directed my attention to the massive door in front of me. "This door is one that only I can open and the moment is at hand."

I smiled as I looked at Him and then at my hand. I formed my hand into a fist and started to knock on this closed door in desperation. I could hear the Lord laughing good naturedly behind me. I turned to Him and saw that His arms were now crossed as He laughed in amusement at my desire to speed things along.

Jesus: Smiling. "So, Erin, how is that working for you? Just remember that I am always there with you. Oh yes, I should also let you know that I am the door you are knocking on right now."

We laughed together as I then pretended to knock on Him. After doing so, I then looked behind Him in an 'exaggerated fashion' as if the door had just opened.

Me: Smiling. "I love You, Lord. Please do not wait too long."

Jesus: "I will not. I am here with you even now. I am here with you right now with the door shut and I will be here with you once this door opens..." He then laughed. "...perhaps to push you through it." I laughed in response.

Me: "I might need You to do just that."

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, as My promises remain unchanged and have not been revoked. Take heart, Erin, take heart." He reached over and hugged me.

Me: "I love You, Lord."

Jesus: "I love you too, Erin. Do not worry, Erin, as I am here and My recompense is with Me."

Communion

Dear Father,

I love You! I love You! I am in despair today and my bones ache. I am exhausted. I could not get comfortable last night and my fingers are becoming numb again. My skin is crawling with irritation from certain fabrics and it now takes a long time for me to find something tolerable to wear. It is awful.

My dreams last night were strange as I was dealing with a group of Baptists. These Baptists lacked faith in miracles and read the Word's meaning incorrectly as a punishing stone. This group was sent to discourage those from the love of God.

This group has been used as a basis for Jezebel to send in sin to those wounded by their practices. In my dream, they were used by Jezebel to start the rise of the LGBT&Q groups, as well as the Wiccan practices.

Sub-dream description begins...

I was first shown the outside of a few old white churches and could see that they were all beautifully built. After this, I was then shown the inside of these churches and noticed that the ceilings, pews and plank flooring were all painted in white. The only colors that I could see within these churches were from their stained-glass windows.

When I was then taken for a closer look at the inside of one of these churches, it was only then that I could see the demons present here. These particular demons were named 'Defiance' and had albino skin. Their hair was the same color as their skin and was short and a chalky white. They also had leopard spots, claws and tails.

I then saw these demons being activated from the pulpits and then going out to the pews. Once in the pews, these demons whispered into the ears of the children, youths and younger teens.

These young people were being given 'a revelation of freedom' by these demons, but this revelation was actually the opposite of freedom. However, this seemed alarmingly refreshing to these kids compared to the 'message of chains' being preached.

Upon hearing the demon's voices, droves of youths then left these churches in order to follow their passions, both 'in defiance' and 'in deviance'. Through these demons, every child then ran after their lusts and was later outcast by their families. It was horrifying.

Sub-dream description over...

Lately, Father, these dreams are answering many of my questions, yet are leaving me with the emptiness of sorrow. Father, please fill me with the joy of Your presence! There is so much work to do that I must give this all to You. I am so overwhelmed.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was up on God's Mountain overlooking the valley below. I noticed that it was dawn as I walked over to the bench to sit next to the bubbling rock. I could hear music as I gazed at the beautiful blossoms that surrounded me everywhere I looked.

While I saw the most beautiful birds and small animals there, I also saw fish jumping in the River of Life below. In the distance, I saw an eagle flying over where the sun was just about to rise. I began to cry at the beauty as it is just so beautiful here in Heaven.

Me: "Thank You, Father. Please heal my heart and prepare me for what is soon to come. While I know that I am in Your light, I am still living in a very dark place."

As I prayed this, I suddenly felt hands on both my left and right shoulders. I turned and Enoch and Elijah were standing there. As I had been crying, Enoch wiped my tears off of my cheeks and gently kissed the top of my head. After Enoch, Elijah did the same.

Me: "While I am so glad to see both of you again, I am also really bothered by all that I have seen recently."

Enoch: "Yes, Erin, I too saw horrible things in my days. I felt helpless as there was nothing that I could do either other than go to God. While I had fear of God, I also had fear of the entities battling against God. I pleaded for the safety of my family after God had told me all that was to come. He shared great mysteries and knowledge with me.

"Over time, the evil had run its course and God had done everything that He had told me that He would do. In my days, there were abominations of every kind. There were even detestable acts against babies and animals. Things were done to innocent beings that I cannot forget.

"I was hated for my position as friend and messenger of God. While very few listened to me, others still did and then looked to God. Those who looked to God were then spared, along with their families."

Elijah: "In my days, there was the wicked Jezebel as this entity's demonic realm had manifested into human form. This demonic realm then came against God's people in corruption and many, many were led astray. Jezebel wanted my death.

"Instead of my death, God used me as a messenger and I soon became His vessel on display. The power of God was at work through me just as it was through Enoch. Erin, it is a heavy calling and you now live in fear, awe, despair and solitude because of it. You also now carry a heavy burden for all of those who remain in darkness.”

Enoch: “In my days, the enemy was clearly exposed as there was a visible difference between humans versus ‘super humans and abominations’. The ‘fallen’ were also clearly visible.”

Elijah: “In my days, the roots of all these demons were also in human form. This was also the beginnings of the veil, various divisions of religion and pagan rituals.”

Me: “It seems to be even harder today to discern all of this as the veil is now so thick it is hard to see through. How do I discern?”

Enoch: “It is God through you, Erin, and you will know something immediately in order to discern the evil.”

Elijah: “Yes, but there is even more good news. Your time has just begun and you, along with others, will represent a type of God’s ‘gentile’ Esther, but a modern version.”

Me: “How can this be? I am old and divorced. I have been bankrupted and I am now disabled. My youth is gone and all I now feel is sadness and pain.” I started to cry again. “I am truly no one.”

Enoch: “Oh yes you are, Erin. You have been chosen by God as you have now died to yourself. Do you know that Esther had hid from the king’s edict for almost four years before she was brought to the palace? She then had beauty treatments for a whole year before she was brought before the king. This was 54 months from the beginning.”

Me: “I did not know this.”

Elijah: “The king was in power for seven years and Esther was crowned in the king’s last years. Now, God can use anyone however He wishes, but you are to be like Esther. You were selected by the King! While God has brought you to this point like ‘an Esther’, you are not going to be conformed to Babylonian tradition here. Also, since God IS God, He can give you your treatments in just hours. He does not need a year.”

Enoch: “While your ministry is to save those who are lost and broken and those God calls you to, this does not mean that you will like all of them.” He smiled as he said this, but then both of them laughed knowingly.

Elijah: “Yes, they are not always that enjoyable. Now, even though you, along with others, are a type of modern-day Esther, you are not being called to save the Jewish people. Under God’s infilling, you will heal and show compassion, beauty and love to so many.”

Enoch: “God will heal you, Erin, but He will also do much more.”

Me: “Is it this year? I pray that it is so.”

Enoch: "Erin, we were not sent to provide calendar dates to you. However, if you want to see patterns in your life similar to those in Esther's life, all you need to do is read about her again in the Scriptures."

Elijah: "Yes, but you will need to go even deeper than what is written in the Word as there is even more to this story. Now, God has internally prepared you for many years. For the last few years, you have been 'hidden in plain sight' so that God could 'woo' you into knowing His heart."

Enoch: "You too have been to God's Mountain in Spirit, but now you have come to a new place on His Mountain. This marks a new course and you must allow God to work. You must fully trust in Him in all that you do. Erin, His plans are to prosper you and you, along with others, will save many from death by your words of knowledge and love."

Elijah: "Yes, but you will also be hunted down by those sent to destroy you. However, Erin, do not run from your enemies as God is stronger than they are. You only have to stand, open your arms and look up. God will be there and the enemy will flee. All that you have prayed for is about to come to pass. You are almost finished."

Enoch: "Though you become discouraged, Erin, do not be. Heaven is praying, angels have been dispatched and God is with you. Oh yes, and you have our blessings." He smiled.

Elijah: "As in the beginning of your path, these angels will be with you and your family. You do not need to be afraid as greater is He in you than he who is in the world. Since Heaven and God are for you, who is really against you?"

Me: "The world?"

Enoch: "Yes. Now, do not fear. Wait and see what God is about to do. He loves you, Erin. He sent us to encourage you. Now, smile!"

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for keeping me around for Your purposes. You returned all of my children to me almost four years ago...thank You. Just because You are so awesome, You then surprised me by bringing me a husband and his two children. Thanks to You, we now have a full home with so much laughter.

As for my childhood, I was raised by a single working mother. I am so happy that You have been able to make it where I can be mostly a stay at home mom. While I was mad at You at first for allowing me to be injured, I now realize this was so I could be a stay at home mom, yet still bring in some income. Thank You yet again!

The last few months have been a struggle for me in almost all areas. My head hurts, the pain is staggering at times and the numbness in my face and arms is quite scary at times. I just pray that the cluster of blood vessels, the angioma, remains intact. I pray that none of the blood vessels burst before I am able to see a specialist. In reality, I pray that the soon Transformation will take this away.

My dream last night was quite troubling...

Sub-dream description begins...

I had been asked to be a guest speaker at a conference that was to be an all-night prayer vigil and worship event. I recognized the two pastors that were heading this event as ones I had previously known in the 1990s.

As I looked around, I noticed that there were several thousand people in attendance. When I looked even closer, I soon realized that there were many people that I knew. Some of them I even recognized as being there just for me as they would normally not attend such an event.

I was to speak on the Homes waiting for us in Heaven. While I was originally to speak fairly early on, my turn was continuously being delayed. It had now been delayed so long now that I was starting to even feel a bit sick. When I looked at the remaining order of events, I guessed that I would now not even be speaking until midnight.

While continuing my wait to speak, I had booked several short meetings with a seamstress I knew that was altering a gown for me. I needed the gown for a specific time. I did not know exactly when I needed it by, but I knew that it was for soon.

Given the tight deadline, the seamstress was gracious and told me not to worry and that she would keep her shop open. I managed to get measured but had to then return to the venue. Before I left, the seamstress then reminded me that I only had until 2:30am to get back for the final fitting so that she could be finished altering the dress by 3:00am.

As I still believed that I would be speaking near midnight, I agreed to this as this would give me plenty of time. Even though the pastor had now called me up on to the stage, he was still not allowing me any time to speak to the attendees. It was now 2:15am and I knew that there would still be quite some time before I would be up.

I was becoming discouraged by this continued delay and finally decided that I had no choice but to leave to meet my seamstress at 2:30am as agreed. She quickly did the final fitting and then reminded me that I had to be back again by 3:00am to pick up the finished dress.

I went back to the stage and was told yet again that I would not be called up for a bit longer. I then watched as a different speaker came up. I am not sure what he was saying, but it must not have been any good as many of the attendees were now getting up and leaving.

It was now 3:00am and time to pick up my dress. I looked in the window of the seamstress' shop and saw my finished dress hanging there. Just as I went to pick up my dress, I was finally called up to speak. I found some trustworthy friends and asked them if they would mind picking up my dress for me. They agreed to do this for me.

By this time, I was very weak, extremely tired and sick in many areas of my body. It was now just after 3:00am and the pastor was once again calling me up to the podium. Even though I was now there and waiting, I once yet again not called forward to actually speak. I was becoming more and more discouraged.

It was now roughly about a half an hour before dawn and I was finally called to speak. However, there was barely anyone left. Just as I began to speak, the two pastors that had organized this then came up to me and told me that there was no time left for me to speak. I soon realized that they had intentionally kept me from speaking.

My frustration level grew even more, a feat that I had not thought could even be possible. I sighed aloud and wondered if my gown had even been picked up. Just as I thought this, and to my surprise and delight, I saw a small group of my faithful friends waiting for me with my gown. I noticed that dawn was just starting to break. My sadness and sickness instantly changed to joy and great health!

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for my husband. Thank You for over three and a half years of peace from my main enemy. Thank You for my time to be a mom to my children and a wife to my husband.

Father, I feel broken today...again! I am in great pain and no closer to having any answers to my condition other than a type of tumor in my brain. This tumor is causing bleeding and pressure on my nerves and muscles. My spinal column is under stress and it is hard for me to be joyful as a result.

Please allow tests to be prescribed today by my doctor. At the very least, there is going to be even more on record about my current condition. It seems logical to me that, the greater the valley and the battle, the greater the victory in Heaven for my Father.

I am also a bit distressed today because there are now construction noises coming from our neighbor's property. The constant beeping of large equipment makes it really hard to be at peace. The ground on this property is being leveled and raised up. This man is not kind and his lifestyle is an abomination to You. Please stop this soon.

Thank You, Father, for continuing to heal my husband. He is getting better and stronger with each passing day. He also has a peace to him that I never saw before. The changes have been remarkable and in good ways.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was immediately in front of Jesus. We were standing on a path that crossed over from a vineyard to a pool in a grove of aspens. I reached up and hugged Him tightly. I put my head on His chest and started to cry. While only for a moment, I became conscious that my tears on His white linen tunic might stain it.

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin, it is okay to cry. Your tears on My garment will not leave a stain. Your tears are Mine as well as the fabric that is absorbing them."

He was so kind that my lips began to quiver. His love is so all-consuming that my tears were streaming even harder down my cheeks in appreciation.

Me: "I am sorry, Lord, for everything that I have done. I am sorry for my lack of faith. Please help us, Lord. So many of us need Your healing power and soon! I have been overwhelmed by what feels like the final chapter in my book of life."

Jesus: Laughing. "Hmm, this does not sound correct, Erin. Your story is not your own. You do not write the story of your life. Those who attempt to do so often hit a roadblock on their path that reads 'Dead End'. Erin, a dead end is just that and for so many.

"What you perceive as a final chapter is not. First of all, I am not finished with you yet. Your life is not complete. Have My promises been fulfilled yet? Hmm, as far as I can see, only a small handful have been fulfilled.

"Erin, even if I were to determine a day for your end, your life would still not be a 'dead end'. While your past had eventually led to a death to yourself, your future holds life never-ending. An open door will await you there. You will see a finish line and hear a cheering crowd. Your 'end' will be a celebration of joy, not a dark dead end."

Me: "Does that mean that the door I have been waiting for is the end of me here on Earth?"

Jesus: "No, Erin. This door is just the beginning of a new chapter here on Earth. That's right, Erin, this will also be for here, not just for 'in Heaven'."

Me: "This means that You can bring some of Heaven down here to Earth, right? On Earth as it is in Heaven, right, Lord? Oh Lord, how I pray that this soon come true!"

As I was now jumping up and down in excitement, He was smiling at my child like reaction. I was filled with such happiness that this could happen for us here on Earth.

Jesus: "While your prayer is a good one, this was already a promise that was made by Me as written in My Word and declared by My lips around 2,000 years ago." He laughed. "Just make sure you remember to not leave out the part about 'My Father Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Your Name, thy kingdom come, thy will be done on Earth as it is in Heaven.'"

Me: Laughing. "Don't worry, Lord, I won't. I will even add in the part about 'grant us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation but deliver us from the evil one. For thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory forever...AMEN!'"

Jesus: Smiling. "Very good, Erin. I have walked hand in hand with you throughout the years. I have taught you lessons from My Word. If you could see all that I have done with you from the beginning to now, you would see quite a difference in you.

"You have now fully separated your heart from the things the world offers. You have done this as you now know that these things do not last. You have learned that they really have no value other than a measure of earthly worth. You have learned that this is all part of the enemy's deception.

"Now, I have placed something on your heart. What is this?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. You have placed Your 'Sermon on the Mount', as well as events from Sivan 1 to Sivan 8, including Pentecost, on my heart. You have also placed 'The Lord's Prayer' and 'The Beatitudes' on my heart. I must admit that all of this somehow makes me feel hopeful for a soon miracle, perhaps even our healing!”

Jesus: “Tell Me all that you have learned from your research.”

Me: “The month of Sivan is only mentioned once in the Bible and is referenced in the Book of Esther. Today represents the celebration of the first day of Sivan, the start of a new month on the Hebrew calendar.

“Tomorrow is the second day of Sivan and is called ‘The Day of Distinction’. This is the day that the Hebrew people accepted the Torah and the day that Moses instructed them to become a kingdom of priests and a holy nation (Exodus 19:6-8).

“On the third day, Moses was instructed to ‘set a boundary’. This boundary was set for the people around the mountain in preparation for the coming revelation to be given three days later (Exodus 19:9-15).

“Together, these three days are called the ‘Three Days of Separation’. This was meant to be a call for the people to prepare themselves for the revelation which was soon to come on Sivan 6. Exodus 19:11,15, ‘Make yourselves ready by the third day’.

“Comments made in the Talmud are as follows: ‘Blessed be our God Who has given a three-fold Torah to a three-fold nation through the one who was third in the third month’. The notes to this then defined each of these ‘threes’ as follows:

- Three-fold Torah: Refers to Torah, prophets and writings
- Three-fold nation: Refers to Kohanim, Levites and Israelites
- The one who was third: Refers to Moses as he was the third child born after his brother Aaron and his sister Miriam
- The third month: References the month of Sivan, the third month in the Hebrew calendar

Jesus: “Very good, Erin. Now, why would I have asked you to do this?”

Me: “Well, I know that You never do anything without meaning and layers, so I am guessing that this might be some sort of pattern we are to learn from.”

Jesus: “Give Me the pattern.”

He smiled at me as He crossed His arms over His chest. He did this good naturedly and I laughed. He is always so gentle and loving. I just wish everyone knew this about Jesus. If so, everyone on Earth would follow Him.

Me: “Well, I see a lot of threes. Third month, third day, etc. I see that it also coincides with Pentecost. It seems like You had blessed the Israelites with Torah and revelation during this time. The Israelites were blessed as a nation and given instructions by You. There was also the three days before You came back from being in the tomb.”

Jesus: "Yes, Erin. I came to set the captives free. After I rose, I appeared to many with revelation. There were also miracles, signs and wonders."

Me: "Oh Lord, please do the same for us now. So many of us could use these miracles, signs and wonders today. I feel hopeless and tired. I feel like, if You put all of the Beatitudes together into one person, it would be me right now. Well, given my lack of joy these days, perhaps minus the 'pure at heart'."

Jesus: Laughing. "Oh Erin, I know...I know. Remember who the Potter is. You are My vessel, a creation of the Potter. The vessel does not shape itself nor does it put itself into the furnace of affliction. It is the Potter Who creates a vessel for His use.

"Now, I have given you some revelation. While I know that you are low in spirit right now, soon, very soon, the dawn will break. I love you, Erin. Do not be discouraged. Do not be afraid as you are loved by the King." He hugged me.

"This is a new day, Erin, a new day! I have appointed watchmen on your walls. I have assigned angels concerning you to guide you in all of your ways. I have answered your cries for help and I will provide for your needs. Do not worry, Erin, as gifts are coming to you...perhaps even in 'threes'." He laughed.

Me: "Do you mean something like 'Frankincense, gold and myrrh'?"

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, something like this. Just remember that you already have the gift of Me."

Me: "Oh Lord, You are my treasure! There is no greater gift!"

Jesus: "Your trials will be over soon. A new chapter and a new dawn is on the horizon for you, Erin. I will also breathe new life into you. I love you." He hugged me and held me as I cried.

Me: "I love You so much, Lord! You are my treasure."

Just then, a visual of Psalm 45 came to me, along with the peace of Psalm 46. I smiled at Him as I paraphrased my ensuing thoughts.

Me: "God is within her. She will not fall. God will help her at the break of dawn."

Dream 281 – Jesus and the Raging Storm to soon subside

Received on Monday, May 21, 2018

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for one more day! Thank You for a wonderful drive with my family down the coast of Maine. It was a beautiful weekend and such a gift. While we probably spent more than we should of, it was a trip none of us will soon forget. Worth every penny!

Father, my doctor called last Thursday to tell me that the neurosurgeon has declined to perform the surgery because an optic specialist needs to cauterize the vessels that are bleeding. He added that there was another lesion and that this surgery is urgent. Well, it can be as urgent as it wants to be but what happens if there is no specialist that takes this on?

If no one can perform this surgery and I can clearly not perform this myself, I therefore have to give this to You, Father. You are my Creator and You call me friend. I also know that my vessel is finished and will be used in Your service here on Earth.

It is Pentecost week in Israel so I am still hoping for a miracle. Part of the symptoms I now have is memory difficulties. Think something like a 'momentary brain cramp'. Other symptoms include blurry vision, accompanied by pain in my head.

Thank You, Father, at least it is still fun for me to look at all of the beauty outside. The trees outside of my window has now opened up their leaves and it is so beautiful. I went out to put seeds on the ground and for the birds earlier today. When I did, four of the cutest little red squirrels came up to me to greet me.

Summer is starting now. Our landscape went from brown to green and flourishing within just a few days. This is a divine miracle from You, Father. It is so beautiful outside right now, so thank You, thank You and thank You!

Thank You yet again for our trip on the weekend. The children were laughing so much and it was a great sound to my ears. How much more do You, Father, rejoice in each of Your children. Oh Father, how I delight in You and Your mysterious ways.

Father, everything lovely, beautiful, precious, priceless, glorious, illuminating, refreshing, satisfying, peaceful, fragrant, fulfilling and uplifting is from You. All of this is from You. There is no substitute for You. There is no counterfeit that can do all that You can.

God even sent Jesus to balance the scales so that the captives would have hope. Thanks to His son, the slaves will have victory. Those who are the last shall now be the first thanks to the blood of Jesus.

Oh Father, I surrender my life to Jesus. I surrender myself up for Your purposes. I now truly realize that this world brings no long-term satisfaction. Only God my Creator can cauterize my bleeding. Only He can perform non-invasive surgery on me. This is the best way according to my plan, my hopes and my prayers.

Father, this is my way, but perhaps You might have a different way here. I have no choice but to fully trust in You for our deliverance. I am pleading for a miracle. I ask once again if repentance is needed in Your Heavenly Courts.

Although the Lord has told me that repenting for things already repented for is not helpful, my need for caution and His mercy means I still accidentally do this on occasion. I know this is ridiculous, but I now even repent for my over repenting.

I feel like I have hit a portion of my race wherein a dam has broken over my path. The path is now washed out as a result. I cannot turn back as it would just make my race longer. The storm that is now here is forcing me to 'shelter in place' until it subsides.

I now need the Lord to part the raging river that blocks my path or have Him pull me to the other side so I can complete my race. No matter how I look at it though, I am at God's mercy. Death is now closing in and shouting for me to quit.

Father, You are so quiet right now that Your silence is deafening. How can I finish my race strong with You? Please help me, Father. While I do not recall all of Your promises at this moment, I remember that they each had life to them. I also know that Your promises are for here and now on Earth. Today is the 7th of Sivan, a day called 'Beloved of God'. This seems as good a day as any for healing, Lord. Please remove the raging waters before me and calm the storm. Please do this so I can finish my race. Take my life, Lord, and make it perfect in Your ways and for Your glory. All of this is for Your glory and not my comfort...

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Jesus is standing on a stone paved path in a grove of aspens. We are between the vineyard and the pool. He waved at me and stretched out His arms to hug me. I ran to Him and wept in His arms. I was wearing a long linen gown.

Jesus: "I have you, Erin, so do not worry. Can you trust in Me just a bit longer?"

Me: Crying. "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "The race is not finished for you. Do you remember the words of encouragement I sent to you yesterday?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. It was in a shop in the little village of Camden, ME. A woman, the shop owner, came up to me and told me, 'God is not finished with you yet. You are part of the 'army of God'. Stay strong and do not worry!' This came unsolicited!"

Jesus: "The woman was speaking wisdom to you. How did you respond?"

Me: "I was speechless. I just do not fully understand why she was called to do this."

Jesus: "Maybe it is because you are Erin and God is God. I know that you care about My Father's business, but always remember that you only have a small portion of a much larger picture. Now, what do I always do for you, and I mean 'always' as an absolute in this case, before a storm comes to you?"

Me: "You send various signs and encouragement. You then prepare my heart to battle each storm."

Jesus: "That is correct, Erin. Since I do this for you in advance, you can know that I am with you and you are to stand in confidence that I will ensure your deliverance through these trials. Do you remember how difficult things were during your past trials? Do remember how breakthrough always came when things seemed the darkest?"

"You would cry out to God even though He seemed absent to you. However, I can assure you, Erin, that I was with you in even the very darkest of storms. Now, what did each of these trials have in common?"

Me: "In all of these cases, I was completely out of earthly options. From a human perspective, there were no options left at all. At this point, everything was up to You and You alone."

Jesus: "Then who shall you fear if..."

- You are beloved by Me
- My Father in Heaven is on the Throne
- Neither Me nor My Father are condemning you, but delight in you instead
- You are in the hands of He who created you
- He gave you your salvation
- He made a way for you in the desert and a way to get you out of the desert

If all of this is true, Erin, then who shall you fear?"

Me: "While I know that all of this is true, Lord, please forgive me for being weak as I am only human. Yes, I am afraid even though I know that I should not fear. Please, Lord, I want to see what comes next. I do not want to lose my eyesight or have my sight grow worse."

"Our children have waited their entire lives for what you will with us next. We are all so excited of whatever all of this will be. However, I now see them losing hope with each passing day and no clear miracles. I feel too much is left here for us to do and that we, as we are right now, are still in an incomplete race."

Jesus: "So, Erin, what are you requesting from Me?"

Me: "I want to have here on Earth as it is in Heaven and I want this right now."

Jesus: "You have prayed well and I have heard you. Now, believe well that I can do this and that I will do this."

Me: "I would not be standing here before You, knocking and seeking, if I did not believe that You can do all things."

Jesus: Smiling. "I will provide for your needs. I will make all of the storms stop and the waters recede. Now rejoice, Erin, rejoice. I am not finished with you yet. I love you!"

He reached over and gently hugged me. I hugged Him tightly in return. I never wanted to let go...as per usual!

Dream 282 – Jesus and Our Need to Trust Him

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for more time! Thank You for another day. Thank You for joy. Thank You for the beauty around us and the wildlife. My husband and I went for a drive last night and we spotted an entire family of eagles. There were around 7 to 9 of them, but I was not sure exactly how many.

While I wanted to take some photographs of the eagles, they were too far away. I prayed and asked for them to be brought closer. Thank You, Lord, they were suddenly quite close to where we were. They were soon playing over the water and were so close that I was able to get some excellent photographs of them.

When we came home a bit later, I was finally able to photograph the ruby throat hummingbird that has been visiting us. I have been trying to capture this bird on my camera for weeks now, so thank You, Father, for allowing this. This is such fun to me. You are our Creator and You have created so many beautiful things.

I was recently reminiscing about when I used to be in shape. Father, I took this for granted and never knew to thank You for my health. Well, I am thanking You now. When you are young, it is so easy to believe that you have unlimited time to later do whatever it is that you want to.

I too had such high hopes for my future. This included grand ambitions, projects, goals, achievements, awards and on and on. While perhaps some have achieved all of these, there is always something still waiting for each of us at the other end of our lives. No matter who you are, age eventually catches up to each of us.

Oh Father, how I wish I was in a younger stronger body again, but now with all of my knowledge about You and Your plans for us. My whole life would have taken a different course and I would have followed Your instructions instead. While I am so happy with where I am now, other than health, I could have gotten here with a lot less trouble.

I sometimes feel as if time is fleeting faster for me right now than for most people. I also feel that pain can sometimes become my mantle instead of joy. Still, I thank You for everything, Father. You are the treasure of my heart and my life. You are ever before me and in everything around me, including nature, so thank You.

It is becoming more and more difficult to write these days. Despite this, and until You tell me to stop, I will fight through the pain to continue to write until You instruct me to do differently. Until You tell me to close my journal and set down my pen for the last time, I will continue to write as I am called to.

I had a dream several nights ago that was quite vivid. The best way I can describe it was that it felt like a 'slice of everyday ordinary life'...at first...

Sub-Dream 1 description begins - "Pomegranate torn in half"...

I was in a large room all by myself. When I looked up, I could see the ceiling. I started to look around me and there was not much to look at. I then caught some movement above me and looked back up. A large sack was now right above me. The design of the sack was like that of a flattened pomegranate, but with the casing or outer skin looking somewhat like burlap cloth.

Without warning, two large, massive hands appeared. I quickly determined that they were the hands of God. I then watched as His massive hands suddenly tore the sack in half. The many seeds that were in this sack then started to pour all over me. While I initially screamed out as I thought this would be painful, it was not.

Sub-Dream 1 description over...

It turned out that I had also screamed out in real life just as I awoke and my husband was chuckling about it. This dream had come out of nowhere and had startled me out of my sleep. I sat up, my heart pounding, and briefly discussed this dream with my husband before drifting back asleep. After about an hour, I had another dream...

Sub-Dream 2 description begins - "Beautiful Birds singing on a Branch"...

I was looking at a large perfectly shaped tree when I noticed a particularly beautiful branch. As I looked closer, I noticed that the branch had several beautiful birds sitting on it. Two of them soon caught my eye and I recognized them to be a pair of Indigo Buntings.

I then noticed that there was an unusual little plump bird next to them. This bird had a light-yellow underbelly. On this branch was also a white dove, along with a few other birds that I did not recognize. All of them started to sing in unison. As I reached over for my 'dream camera' to take a picture, I suddenly woke up.

Sub-Dream 2 description over...

The photographing of the Indigo Buntings 'for real' had made me smile as I have seen them before at my feeder and could never take a picture. This variety of bird is quite rare here and I have been trying to photograph them without any success until now. My husband had seen them as well, but none of us could get a shot. As with everything 'nature' in Heaven, I just love how the wildlife there is not scared of us at all.

I then had another dream just last night...

Sub-Dream 3 description begins – “Walking towards a never-ending sunset”...

I was walking on a path at sunset. I could not see where the path was going as the sun was setting directly on the path ahead of me. I kept walking even though I could not see how far I needed to walk or even where I was going. I decided to sit and wait for the sun to set as the intense light was causing my eyes to water.

After a while, I determined that the sun was not going to set. I rubbed my eyes and decided to keep walking. As I continued to walk, my eyes were watering more and more from the intense light. While this would be quite irritating on Earth, it was not irritating in this dream. I was quite curious as to where this path was leading to.

Sub-Dream 3 description over...

I suddenly woke up from this dream to find that real tears had been streaming down my cheeks. I laughed as my pillow was now slightly damp. I then wondered if I had actually been there as these tears were not emotional tears but were ‘bright light tears’ instead. Thank You, Father, for granting me these three micro-dreams. As they were very short and clear, this made them very easy to write down.

Please continue to grant me joy, Father. If You do decide to take me Home, I pray that my stories of Your miracles will be remembered by my children, family and friends. I pray that, through my tests, trials and tragedies, the nuggets of Your unchanging love for me was not lost.

I love You, Father! My life is in Your hands. My story is Your story given to me. You have turned my life into pearls. Yes, You have even taken my mistakes and my misery and turned them into pearls. Thank You, Father!

Jesus: “Erin, come up.”

I found myself walking down a path of brown dirt and gravel that looked like an area near our home. I looked down and realized that I was not in a changed body. As I was still in my current state, it did not take me long before I needed to rest. I sat down on a large rock that I had never seen before in terms of the earthly version of this path.

The area around me looked very similar to a vacant lot where our house now is. Though the house was gone, it seemed as if the grass was still being mowed. I decided to continue to walk down the path. Where there are now homes, not one was to be found in this heavenly, yet somehow still earthly, version.

There were beautiful birch trees and amazing birds all around me. Tears streamed down my cheeks as the path became illuminated in an increasingly bright light. After a few second, this light became so intense that I had to close my eyes tightly. I suddenly heard the Voice of God speak to me from above.

God: "Erin, I have built a house for you and your foundation is on solid rock. Unless a home is established by Me, the labor is in vain as it will not stand during the storms. As for your home, I have built it and it is Mine. I have established it."

While it took a couple of minutes of waiting after God had finished speaking, the bright light eventually diminished to the normal 'perfect' lighting I am used to when visiting here in Heaven. I opened my eyes and could now see all the way to a pretty little lake. I decided to continue to walk down the path.

I soon noticed that I had a bit more energy to my step. It dawned on me that this was because I realized that, based on what God had just said, my life has not been in vain. I was delighted to know that even my troubles have been used for God's glory. As He is my Author and Finisher of my race, I must trust Him to finish it well.

I was now near the edge of the lake and decided to sit down on a rock to look out across the water. The water was perfectly still, so still that it looked like glass. It was perfect for rock skipping. I picked up two rocks. Both were smooth and flat.

As I had not skipped a rock in a very long time, I overthought it as I threw the first rock. It plunked straight into the water without a single bounce. I then noticed that the ripple caused by this rock was particularly huge. I decided that I would need to ask the Lord for help before making my second throw.

Me: "Lord, while I realize that I have a lot of physical limitations, would You let my second rock skip a few times for me?"

My personal goal was to have this rock skip three times. I wound up, took my best side arm swing that I could and released the rock. To my amazement, it skipped so many times that I lost count. I began to laugh and had even more energy to throw again. I looked around for some more flat rocks to skip.

Me: "Lord, I should never limit You. Your plans are much greater than the limitations I have placed on myself. I was praying for three skips and You gave me a countless number of skips. You gave me so much more than I could ever conceive or dream of. Thank You for hope!"

I suddenly heard the most calming of voices speaking behind me.

Jesus: "You have learned so much with so little today. Very good, Erin, very good."

I turned and there was Jesus. I ran straight into His arms and started to weep.

Me: Crying. "I am so glad to see You, Lord. I am so glad that You are here."

Jesus: "You are in good hands, Erin. I have you. When you exhaust all of your physical options or plans and then there is only Me, do you trust Me?"

Me: "Yes, Lord."

Jesus: "Do you trust Me with all that you have?"

Me: "Yes, Lord, of course. However, I just get scared sometimes. I know that I shouldn't and I am sorry for doing this. There is no manual..." I stopped myself. "...well, actually, yes, there is the Word of God, my Manual on life. I am sorry that I don't always go to this. It becomes so difficult when I am in such pain."

Jesus: "Good, very good. You had Me worried there." He laughed good-naturedly and gently nudged me.

Me: "You are so funny, Lord, as I know that You never worry about anything. You are always in control and always have been."

Jesus: "I have you, Erin. Now, are you ready to continue on your path? Even though you do not see it, there are some great things I have planned."

Me: "You are right, Lord, as I am unable to see exactly where all of this is going. I sometimes get so frustrated in my pain that I do not even want to ask for any more than what I already have. Oh Lord, You see the desires of my heart."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, I do. Please do not limit Me. I can do even more than you can even imagine as I have no limits other than that I will keep My promises and the Words I have spoken. Please leave it to Me to decide your limitations. Do we have a deal?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. In my pain and the resulting lack of ability to focus, I often find it easier to just ask for small simple things rather than the grand things I had always hoped for. It seems as if I now limit myself to only asking for shorter term things."

Jesus: "Do not change your dreams and hopes just because they seem impossible to you. I know the plans that I have for you. I plan to give you hope and a future. This is not just for here in Heaven, Erin, but also for there on Earth, understand?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. While I believe You will do this, it is just hard right now as it just seems we are struggling and that door You speak of has just barely begun to open. We have done everything humanly possible, Lord, and we need miracles now. We need help!"

Jesus: "Do not worry as I will send help. Help is already coming. I have placed promptings on the hearts of those who are willing. I have even placed promptings on the hearts of those who are 'unwilling'.

"As for your doctor, he recently called you and the letters then arrived shortly thereafter. Your son's exams are in My hands and his graduation plans are also in My control. You must release all of this to Me as the outcome has already been determined in advance. You must trust that My ways are higher and better. Do you understand?"

Me: "Yes, Lord. I am sorry for feeling unsure at times."

Jesus: Smiling. "Well, Erin, just remember that worry does not add a single day or hour. Worry just ends up hurting your head. Now, have I not recently sent you things to bring you joy?"

Me: "Oh yes, Lord, thank You for the family of 'rock chucks'. The mom and her six babies now come up and sit with me. The babies even allow me to pet them as they now trust me. This brings me such joy. The red squirrels wait for me and even now eat out of my hand. Chipmunks come from all over and come up to me unafraid.

"Thank You, Lord, as all of this wildlife is bringing me so much joy. I photographed eagles last night. I even got a shot of a hummingbird last night that has been particularly elusive. Oh Lord, this brought me so much joy, so thank You, thank You!"

Jesus: "You are welcome, Erin. I love you. I delight when you delight in Me. You are My pearl and the work of My hands."

Me: "We are also still Your vessels, right Lord?"

Jesus: Laughing. "Yes, Erin, of course. Do not worry as I have not placed you on a shelf. Just as I established a house for you near My altar as promised, so too will your remaining promises be fulfilled."

Me: Laughing. "Did You mean 'a house' or 'a nest'?"

Jesus: "Okay, Erin, yes...a nest. I will also provide for you and your family as My promptings will not be ignored. I have you." He smiled and nudged me. "Do not worry, Erin, as I have a plan."

Me: "I love You so much." I reached over and hugged Him tightly.

Jesus: "Then be still and know that I am God. Be still and know that I AM who I AM."

Dream 283 – God, Uriel and Father’s Day

Received on Sunday, June 17, 2018

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for one more day! Thank You for such a beautiful day. Thank You for all You have given us. Thank You for my Godly husband and our wonderful children. I can never thank You enough for these last four years with all of them.

To have all three of my children with me, before their time to fly on their own and navigate life, has been an amazing gift. I never thought this would have been possible, Father, and I am forever grateful.

Happy Father’s Day to all of the fathers that are reading this today as today is Father’s Day. My earthly dad passed away seven months ago. Unfortunately, I never met his standards. I was unworthy of his love, time or even his thoughts.

His young widow was left with no money to care for my dad’s body. Though she had not contacted me, I just somehow knew this was the case. This is because I had heard that my dad would invest in developments and would be highly leveraged. In turn, this would have meant that there would be very little liquid assets for her to now use.

When I prayed about this, the Lord told me to reach out to my father’s widow. While it took a bit of time searching, I was finally able to track his body to a memorial home in Florida. When I spoke to the director of the funeral home, she indicated that no one had stepped up to claim his body.

I had a small amount of money that I was saving for Christmas when You, Father, prompted me to reach out to his widow to cover the costs of his burial. She was so happy when I contacted her as, just as I had suspected, she had no money. Soon after I paid for this, the Lord opened a door and the money spent was soon replenished.

Thank You, Father, for providing all that we needed to do this for my dad and his widow. Even though my dad had completely abandoned all of us, he was still my ‘God-given father’ and it felt good to be able to do this. I had done this to honor You, Father, as all we have is Yours. While I covered the cost...well, I didn’t, You did.

All of this once again made me realize that nothing in this life is mine. There is no ‘mine’ as You have given each of us all that we have. You not only cover the cost of our existence here, but You also sent Jesus to pay the price for our eternity there.

I am in awe of You, Father! There is no father like You...not one! I could search for all eternity long and I would still find no one like You. However, You are not just our Father, You created us. When a child is born, parents do not know anything about them. In contrast, You know everything about us in advance.

Quite simply, nothing surprises You, Father. You speak a thing and it is finished even before You finish speaking it. With a thought, You can throw a mountain into the sea. With a thought, You can raise up a king or remove him.

Your Creation consists of so many impossible variables that man constantly chases it but never catches it. Man is unable to match Your complexities or mimic Your ways. No man can harness the power of You, my Father God!

You are so complex, so awesome and so perfect that I have no words to adequately describe You. I believe the only word that comes close is the word 'love'. You, Father, love us. You love what You have created and Your ways are much higher. You are even infinitely more patient with us than we deserve.

When I look at the awesome spectacle of the nature surrounding us, I am speechless. Just look at the beauty of a hummingbird. What an amazingly complex bird! You know this bird well as You created this. This tiny, elusive jewel with wings was created by You, Father, and not by the hands of man.

You are a God of variety. There are so many various types of birds, animals, insects, fish, trees, flowers, grasses, fruits and crops that it cannot be measured. Each facet of this cut diamond of life that You have created is spectacular. While these are just the things we can see, what about that which we cannot see?

First off, there is the micro world as seen under a microscope. There is also the macro world as seen through a powerful telescope. Quite simply, the Lord has created all of this, from the tiniest of microbes to the mightiest of stars and planets.

While I am literally just a small speck of Your Creation, You still somehow love me. What I see in myself as very much lacking, You somehow see something great. Though You could do everything Your self with ease, You still want to use us.

Oh Father, though I know You have a plan for each of us, I still feel like a failure at times. As Your child, I have wanted so much to give back to You by honoring You with my successes. However, I am instead in a state of hopeless surrender to You and Your perfect plan.

Oh Father, I find it so difficult to honor You with joy when I am not well. I realize just how small I am in the great scheme of Your Creation. While I try to hide my condition with my kids, though this is not always possible as the pain can be great at times, I realize that I must still complain a lot in my heart to You.

My brain is bleeding and my head hurts because of this. I can tell things are getting worse as I can no longer do things that I could just a short time ago. It seems as if I can now only do that which You have called me to do...no more and no less.

I cling to two things these days...Your promises as my Father and Creator and Jesus as my Rock of Salvation. Father, You know my condition. While You have spent years refining my heart, it seems as if You are now refining my head and my eyesight. There is nothing that I can do apart from You, Father, so please help me.

As a mother, I look for ways that I can connect with my children. I look for gifts that I can give them or things that we can do together that they would find joyful and memorable. I delight and have so much joy when they are happy and laughing. We have so many good memories of being together as a result.

I pray that our children always remember these good times. I pray that I have given them the tools they need to survive in this world. I pray that they look to Your promises and that they stand on Your 'Rock of Salvation'.

Father, I took some more photos of eagles last night. My husband drove me to the place where a family of eagles fish for their dinner. It was wonderful. Thank You! It is simply amazing how beautiful You have made these mighty eagles to be.

You are the most amazing Father! I wish I could hug You like I can Your Son so that You know just how much I love You. My heart is filled with love for You, Father, and I adore You so much. Thank You for refining me in the fire of affliction even though I wish there could have been a different way at times.

Still, I accept this as I now know this constant hammering produces a luster and deep patina that cannot be created artificially. As painful as it was and is, You have told me that this is the kind of depth and endurance only fire can produce.

Whether we lose or gain anything in this life, it is because You have allowed it. Whatever is lost here, we know that You will later grant infinitely more to those who love You and that You will restore all that the enemy has stolen from us and even more.

You give good things to us and care about the smallest of details in our lives. You grieve when we grieve. You smile when we smile. You hold us when we are scared. You have compassion on us and send help from Your sanctuary when we cry out.

You do not disown us when we misbehave. You do not give up on us even when we have given up on ourselves. You gently chastise us when we are in need of such a rebuke. You remind us of our place in You as a child of God. You do not delight in bringing calamity to the wicked. You delight in those who come to You for answers.

There is no greater Father than You! Thank You for the gift of more time. I pray that You will soon use my vessel for Your glory, Father, as this is all that I have left to give to You. I have already given You my heart and my life. The rest of my story is Yours.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was back on the path that leads to the Forestry Bulletin Board. I started walking towards the Board and could soon see it in the distance. I looked over to the right and saw that the pond, fountains, trees and flowers were as beautiful as the last time. The grass was a velvety carpet and must have been groomed by someone highly skilled.

I decided to bypass visiting the pond for now in order to check if there were any messages waiting for me on the Board. I saw a note posted there.

"This is the day I have made! Love God"

Me: "Hmm, this is from Psalm 118...'I will rejoice and be glad in it.'"

Just then, I felt a hand on my shoulder. I turned around and there was Uriel. I smiled at him and he smiled back.

Uriel: "God requests your presence, Erin."

The door opened and light streamed out from within. Uriel placed something like thick honey over my eyes. He then led me through the door into God's Court. I could hear a choir of angels singing. The song overlapped and rose up in intensity. It was so beautiful.

Choir: "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God almighty, who was and is and is to come!"

Uriel brought me closer to God until my legs began to drop to the floor. I was now kneeling on the beautiful 'Sea of Glass', a living sea of blues like a giant sapphire. I began worshipping My Father in Heaven and gave praises to Him. I then started singing along with the beautiful choir of angels. I started to cry.

God: "Erin, I have heard your cries, your pleas and your petitions. I have promised to bless you and so I will. I have not revoked My promises to you. I will continue to bless and protect you. I will continue sending help from My Throne."

Me: "Thank You, Father. I am scared."

God: "I know. However, do not worry about the outcome as the outcome is by My design. You and your household are arrows in My quiver and I will use you. When you look back, you will understand what I have done from the beginning until the end. Take comfort that you are Mine. When you walk through the fire, you will not be burned. I have already carried you through the raging waters and you were not overcome."

Me: "Yes, Lord, but I..." I paused and took a deep breath before continuing. "...I don't like fire."

God: "Well then, this too is good. You will not be set ablaze nor will you be consumed by its flames."

Me: "Thank You, Father. Oh yes...Happy Father's Day!"

God: "Thank you, Erin."

Me: "I wish I could give You a big hug!" I felt His laugh rumble throughout His Court.

God: "Now, I know your thoughts, Erin, and that you are becoming increasingly discouraged and tired. While you are now in great pain, just know that I will soon remove all of this."

Me: "Oh Father, please do this sooner than later. I really need Your help. There are so many around me that also need Your help."

God: "Yes, I know. I will take care of you. I have not forgotten you. I love you."

Me: "Thank You, Father."

Uriel came over to help me back to my feet. As Uriel helped me to the door, I decided to wave back at God.

Me: "I love You!"

I 'threw' Him a kiss of love, affection and admiration. In response, I saw what I believed to be a wave of His arm. This created the most amazing arch of light. It was like a type of rainbow, but much more beautiful and awe inspiring.

God: "I love you, Erin, and I delight in you."

Once we left God's Court, Uriel addressed me.

Uriel: "Tell me about the dream recently given to you that is on your heart right now."

Me: "I saw a young man building a massive white tower with Legos. I loved it. It had these amazing moving parts and was a work of art. I could not wait to tell my son who loves Legos about this dream."

Uriel: "The building blocks of white represents your child-like faith and wonder in your approach. In spite of this, when your children tell you 'God loves you and He will not allow your brain condition to kill you', how do you sometimes answer them?"

Me: "When I am in great pain, I will tell them that I do not really know what will happen."

Uriel: "Well, Erin, that is not true. You do know as God has told you that He will heal you. You say this to your children even though they are correct. If your children, having just a fraction of understanding of God that you do, look at your condition in this manner, should you not also approach God with the same fervor?"

Me: "Yes, Uriel. I am sorry for my lack."

Uriel: "This dream was given to you in order to show that your 'child-like wonder for God' has to now take over your worry. While I know that you are in pain, it is soon to be gone as this was promised by God. Now, Erin, you are to delight in God like a child again. Be still and know that He is God!"

I felt humbled and looked down at my feet as I nodded in agreement with what Uriel had just told me. When I looked up again, Uriel was no longer there. After looking around a bit and seeing that there was no longer anyone here with me, I decided to skip over to the pond and tour the beautiful fountains, trees and flowers.

Communion

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day here! Thank You for all that we have. Thank You for Your divine provision. Thank You. Father, another watch date has arrived. It seems like a good one today. Would You please consider today? We love You so much, Father.

You have done miracles for us and I pray that I never forget all that You have done from the beginning. You have brought me back to life twice. You have placed a new spirit in me. You have never let me fall. You have let me slip back a few times, but then You called me back. You have been gracious, kind and loving when I have needed a father.

I need You every day, Father. You have been stern and have chastised me for my own good at times. You have allowed me to be humiliated so that I could understand other's humility. You have allowed me to become reduced to myself so that You could increase Yourself in me. You are always good, Father. You are a good, good Father.

I have had a horrible cough the last few nights. This is due to the high blood pressure medicine I am taking. This cough is causing severe pain in my head that results in horrible exhaustion. I have been nauseated, disoriented and my vision is blurred. I pray that the bleeding in my brain has not become worse.

I have asked You for healing so many times that I have lost track. Father, You know the desires of my heart. I will cling to the knowledge that You know my needs even before I ask. I have also learned that You sometimes give us what is good for Your glory, not for our 'personal comfort'. Your ways are higher...and better. I had a dream recently...

Sub-dream 1 begins...

A friend of mine in a distant city contacted me because she was disposing of her estate. She had many antique items and thought I should come and see her during her sale. As we were going to be driving through her area anyway, I agreed to stop by.

When we later stopped by, we walked over to the farm building where she was holding her sale. This building had a very low roof and the floor was hay and dirt. I found it odd that the surroundings of this building were city streets and buildings. I speculated that this farm land must be the last parcel of her family estate to be sold.

My friend soon saw me walk in and she was very glad to see me. After we embraced, she proceeded to take me to where she had some mantel clocks for sale. She knew I loved old clocks and had collected unusual ones in the past.

As I looked around, I noticed that there were three clocks sitting on a card table. What I found to be quite odd was that all three clocks were turned around so that only the backs were showing. I was about to turn them around when my friend stopped me.

Friend: "Hold on, Erin. I am not allowing anyone to see the faces of these clocks until they have purchased the clocks first."

I started to laugh, but quickly realized that she was serious. As I studied the backs of these clocks, I soon recognized one that I knew I would like.

Me: "Okay then...I will take that one."

Friend: "Oh, I am sorry. That one is already sold. Well, for that matter, all of them are already sold."

I was now irritated that she had just wasted my time like this and for no good reason. I was about to leave when I noticed a small white porcelain clock. It was intricate and had small roses on it. It was very old and I guessed that it was French in origin. As I looked closer, I noticed that the face of it was gold.

Me: "Alright then...I will purchase this one instead."

She seemed shocked that I had found another clock for sale. She started to stutter.

Friend: "Oh...that one is a fake."

I knew that it was real and that she was lying to me.

Me: "I am fine with that. Now, I see that the price tag reads $44. Here..."

I handed her two $20 bills and a $5 bill. "Keep the change."

Friend: Still in shock. "I...I didn't see that one. I am not sure..."

Before she could play any further games with me, I picked up the tiny clock and placed it in my purse. While she was upset, she was not willing to admit it. She soon walked away to help some others.

I soon noticed another area I found interesting. It was an area with scales for measuring. I started to laugh to myself as I soon noticed that all of the scales were unbalanced and uncalibrated. Each one of these scales tipped one way and only one way. Even though they were all useless, there was a frenzy of people wanting them.

Just then, my two daughters came into the room and asked if I was ready to leave. As I was, I looked over to my friend to wave goodbye. Instead of saying goodbye back, she pretended to not notice me. I could tell that she was still angry about not being able to keep me from buying the small clock.

While I was upset by her snub at first, I quickly turned this into a smile when I noticed that there were several small birds on both of my daughter's shoulders. After a short time of me being amused by this, some of the small birds flew over to my shoulders.

These little birds had wings that moved as fast as the wings of a hummingbird. What made this so unusual was the intricate designs or impressions the fast flapping wings left in the air. As I have never heard or seen this here on Earth, I realized that these tiny birds were supernatural.

Each bird was unique and had so many colors. They were so unique that the other people at the sale stopped what they were doing in order to watch these birds. They too somehow knew they were not from here and that they were supernatural. My friend quickly came over to us as she was not pleased that people had stopped buying.

Friend: "Excuse me please, but birds are not allowed in here!"

We were so happy with these birds that we simply smiled and left. I looked down in my purse pocket and was very happy with my purchase of the tiny clock. I smiled as I could see the time on the clock's face.

Sub-dream 1 over...

Many of my dreams lately have been quite short. Some of these dreams have had elements of both Heaven and Earth. This made me think of 'The Lord's Prayer'...

Our Father, Who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Your name. Let Your Kingdom come, let Your will be done on Earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. For thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory forever! Amen!

Oh Father, today would be a great day for Your glory to come. Please, Father, we are so looking forward to serving You in a greater way...Your way! I love You!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was a small child again, around 18 months old. I was sitting in some brown powdery dirt and was laughing as I played in it. I had long brown curly locks and a white linen dress. My feet had small leather sandals that looked quite modern.

I decided to try to stand on my feet. While it took a few seconds, I made it to my feet. However, my legs were very wobbly. I heard Jesus laughing from behind me.

Jesus: "Come, Erin, let us sit in some beautiful green grass."

I turned towards Him and tried my best to run to Him.

Me: Laughing. "Hayah! Hayah!"

He had one knee on the grass as He stretched out His arms to receive me. He had a smile and was laughing just like a father would that was enjoying seeing their child walk on their own for the very first time.

At one point, I began to trip up because my feet were not yet coordinated with the rest of my body. I almost fell before I was able to reach the grass and Jesus.

Jesus: "It is okay, Erin. You can slow down. I am not leaving you."

I slowed down and regained my balance. Just before I reached Him, hundreds of white butterflies suddenly flew right across my path to Jesus. I stopped and started to giggle as so many of these little butterflies were sitting all over me. Jesus started to laugh when one of the butterflies landed on my nose.

Me: Still giggling. "Flutterflies! Flutterflies!"

I started moving towards Jesus again. When I reached the grass, Jesus picked me up and twirled with me in a circle. I was laughing so hard.

Me: "Again! Again!"

After twirling me one more time in the air, He held me in front of Him, cradling me in His arms. He looked at me with such love that I felt 100% safe and that only great things could happen to me. The sun was shining. I could smell floral fragrances in the air along with the smell of freshly mowed grass.

Jesus: "You do not have to play in that dirt anymore. This is better."

I smiled and looked up at him. I reached up with my tiny hand and placed it on His heart. I closed my eyes.

Jesus: "Do not worry, Erin. I have you. You are safe."

I felt so safe in the arms of Jesus that I soon fell asleep.

Jesus: "Wake up, Erin, wake up!"

I opened my eyes and Jesus was right there in front of me. I looked and saw that I was once again the age I am now and in my current body. I moved slowly as I was stiff and sore. I had been sleeping under a beautiful fruit tree in the soft grass. He helped me sit up. My left eye and head hurt. Tears began to stream down my cheeks.

Me: "Lord, I had hoped that I would have been changed and healed by now. I had hoped that I would have already been healed."

Jesus: Smiling at me sympathetically. "I know that you hurt. I know, Erin, I know. I have heard the questions you have asked inside you without verbalizing them on your lips. I have felt your pain and your deep longings. I have not forgotten you, Erin.

"I love you the same yesterday as a toddler, today as you are and for tomorrow and eternity. My love for you does not change. I am the same yesterday, today and tomorrow. Can you Trust Me today?"

Me: "I am without earthly options, Lord. You are Who I place my trust in. There is no one like You, Lord."

Jesus: "Then trust Me today as well as tomorrow. Give Me your days here and in Heaven."

Me: Crying. "Yes, Lord, I give them to You."

Jesus: "I promise not to harm you, but to give you hope and a future. I promise to love you always and be not far from you. I promise to fulfill the promises I have given you. I promise to see you here with Me now and forever. I am with you, Erin. I will always be with you!

"Now rejoice. I have heard your cries and I will do everything according to My Word. You are greatly loved and I delight in you. Even when you are at your worst, you still come and bring My heart joy. Now seize this day, this day I have made. Rejoice and be glad in this!" He laughed and smiled.

Me: "Oh yes, Lord, what did my dream about the clocks mean?"

Jesus: "Time is God's as He is the Creator of time. To know God's time is to know the face of your Creator. His face cannot be seen by man as His time, His clock, is not understood."

Me: "What did the little clock I purchased mean?"

Jesus: "You can know a small measure of time by the season you are in. Israel is the gauge and it has been 70 years since she was gathered and became a nation. This matters to God and reveals that prophecy is being fulfilled today, right now, in this season. Rejoice, Erin, rejoice."

Me: "What did the little colorful birds mean?"

Jesus: "Heaven is appearing here. It will manifest in small ways, things which cannot be explained by man, only God."

Me: "This is now?"

Jesus: "It has already begun."

Me: "I love You."

Jesus: "I love you, Erin."

Dear Father,

I love You! You create such beautiful things. Today, I give thanks for another day and all You have done. You are glorious. You are mysterious. You are amazing. You are bright. You are powerful. When I run after You, You turn and capture me. When I run away from You, You still pursue me and there I find You.

I am smiling today at the glory of You! I have never appreciated my eyes before like I do now. I have taken them for granted until I began to notice diminished eyesight when my headaches come. I now try to capture every moment of every beautiful thing You have created as if my eyes were the lenses of a great camera.

My husband drove me to the place eagles nest and fish two evenings ago. At around 8:00pm, there is so much activity. I feel so close to God here as I watch these amazing birds. I am in awe and they bring me such joy.

It has been very hot and humid here, my least favorite combination. I have been tiring quickly as this heat just saps my energy. I had a long and vivid dream last night...

Sub-dream 1 begins...

While I was in a much younger body, I was still the same age in memories and wisdom that I am now. While I soon realized that I was also now responsible for a baby, I was not aware if I had given birth to it or not. My children were all the ages they are now.

I now had to pick up my youngest daughter from a high school that I had once attended and my mom had taught at. I pulled up along the curb as I always did to pick her up when I suddenly noticed that it had been changed to angle in parking. I then backed up and parked the car accordingly.

As I sat there looking at the school, I became very heavy with nostalgic images of my mom coming out to the parking lot with her arms full of projects to grade at home and various other things. While the building looked so brand new back then, it was now worn from years of activity.

In my mind, I could still see my mom standing there with her large engaging smile and her perfect white teeth. However, this nostalgic image quickly left when I heard the baby in my backseat stir as we waited for my daughter to come out.

After picking her up, I asked her about her day as we drove out of the parking lot. When I looked in my side mirror, my mom was there again in my mind and I could see her fumbling to get all of her items into our old Subaru.

When I then looked into my rearview mirror, I had expected to see more of her. However, I instead saw this bright smiling toddler in the backseat teething on something and cooing. When I adjusted my mirror up so I could see my mom again, she was no longer there.

I could feel a lump in my throat as I took a deep breath and continued to the university to pick up my older daughter. We pulled up to the university and it was clad in stone and brick. It also had some ivy that crept up the sides of some of the buildings. Since we were early, I decided to park and go inside the Campus Library.

As we walked towards the library, something very odd happened. This stately eastern looking university suddenly turned into the U.C. Berkley Campus. When I was a child ages six to eight, I had spent a lot of time in tow of my mom's hand while she completed her schooling there and taught classes.

I looked over to my right and there was Sproul Hall. I remembered my parents being friends with one of the sons of the Sproul's. There were always protesters and activists sprawled out on the steps of this hall, along with a huge police presence.

We continued to walk some ways until we came up to the Doe Library. The architecture was incredible. At some point, my younger daughter was no longer with us. However, I was still carrying my toddler on my hip. I must have been strong again to do this.

As I climbed the stairs of this library, I remembered that it was just as incredible on the inside as it was on the outside. Marble columns and tiles were the main component and it was wonderful to look at. However, as I walked into this building, it was no longer the beautiful white Carrera marble which I had remembered.

Instead, it had been heavily paneled over all of the marble with cheap plywood. The plywood had then been stained dark to try to disguise it to look like mahogany wood. All of the ceiling walls and the floors were all cheaply veneered. Horrific! Hanging from the ceiling were old single bulb chandeliers that gave off almost no light.

I was in shock over the transformation of this once beautiful piece of historic architecture into 'this'! I then began to walk down the main hall looking for the books and the study tables. As I did this, my baby was still clinging to me and was very quiet.

As I wanted to know more about this strange transition in architecture, I looked for someone that worked there. I soon found someone working at a table. This woman looked like she was from the 1940s era in her clothing, hair, makeup and glasses.

Me: "Hello. I looked around and could not find any books or study tables. What happened to the library?"

Woman: Laughing. "There is no need for books anymore. There is one truth and it is all knowing and all seeing. Who are you looking for?"

I instantly had a sick feeling come over me and into my stomach. I somehow instantly knew that she was not speaking about our God.

Me: "Oh, I am looking for my daughter. I think she is down through the hall over there."

While I stated this to her confidently, I really did not know for sure whether she was there or not.

Woman: "Oh, okay, go ahead then."

She quickly went back to the stack of papers she had been combing through. I took a deep breath and continued walking. As I approached the room at the end of the hall, I could hear some college kids laughing.

I looked into the room and it was stately. There were beautiful and rare antique pieces and a beautiful custom-made Bukhara or Persian red rug. While the fireplace was massive and book shelves lined the back walls, the shelves did not have any books.

As I glanced over to these kids, I could tell that they were arguing. For some reason, they did not see us even though we were right in front of them. They too looked like they were all from the 1940s. There were three boys and two girls, all around 18 to 20.

While the one woman looked just like pictures of my younger mom, she would have just been a toddler during this timeframe. As I came closer, I could hear them arguing about the state of the campus, the government and the USA in general. While I recognized some of the names they were arguing about, there were also names I did not recognize.

The conversation finally turned ugly when one of the boys decided to relieve himself on the beautiful rug. He started to speak as he urinated...

Boy student 1: "They are all Jews anyway. Piss on them and the 'holy ground' they walk on. This is my area."

Instead of being outraged at what he had just done, they all laughed. I turned and walked back down the hall towards the woman I had just talked to. She was no longer there. When I came closer, there was a sign that read 'Back at 7:00am'. I then heard a conversation from an office ahead of us and decided to go and investigate.

I came up to a massive executive office. As I looked in, I could hear the president of the campus discussing plans to 'navigate the current unrest'.

The two men talking there seemed quite nice and diplomatic. While they had great plans, they had no idea how much they were opposed and hated. I then heard the voices from the other room approaching this office. Two of them went into the president's room and were greeted there warmly. These two kids were now acting completely different than what I had just witnessed down the hall. The three kids who remained with us in the hallway started to talk to each other quietly.

Boy student 1: "That's okay, we'll hunt them down like dogs."

Boy student 2: "That's too much work."

Female student 1: "Don't worry. We know where all of them are."

They then started laughing together. A nauseated feeling came over me again.

Sub-dream 1 over...

Father, this dream was disturbing. The beauty of Your Creation is being overcome by such horrible things. I have never seen such fury and anger before in my life. Things in the media are no longer based on facts. Instead, the reports are meant to sway all of us away from the truth.

People are being falsely accused. While some are receiving severe punishment for doing very little wrong, others that incite violence and call for destruction are labeled as heroes. While it seems as if this country is a mess, perhaps it is not as it seems to be moving at the pace You have planned from the beginning – no faster and no slower.

Oh Father, please strengthen and heal us soon so the Kingdom of God will rise! You are much greater than all of this. Your ways are higher...and better! We love You so much, Father, so please help us!

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was sitting in a field of wildflowers. The sky was blue and beautifully clear. There were no clouds and therefore no impending storm. I heard the Voice of God call to me from all around. Though I could not see Him, His Voice filled me with joy.

God: "Be still and know I am God. I change times and seasons. I depose kings and raise up others. I give wisdom to the wise and knowledge to the discerning. I reveal deep and hidden things. I know what lies in darkness and light dwells with Me.

"Erin, your warfare has ended, your iniquity has been pardoned and you have received from My hand double for all your sin. I have prepared a way in the wilderness. There is a highway for Me in the desert. I will lift up the valleys and every mountain and hill will be made low. The uneven ground shall be leveled and I will make jagged places a plain. There you will see My glory and all men shall see this.

"Erin, for those with Me, I give power to the faint and strength to those who are powerless. For those against Me, even those who are youthful shall faint and grow weary. Young men shall fall in exhaustion. However, for those who wait on Me, their strength shall be renewed by My breath.

"They will mount up with wings like eagles. They will run and not grow weary. They shall walk and not grow faint. Do not fear for I am with you. Do not be afraid for I am God. I will strengthen you. I will help you. I will uphold you with My right hand of righteousness. Do not be dismayed when it seems the wicked succeed for their time is short and their joy is fleeting.

"Erin, do not be anxious. Seek Me in all that you do. All the things you need are known by Me and I will provide them for you. Do not be anxious for tomorrow as tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Sufficient for the day is its own trouble. I know you...be still...I love you.

"My plans are to give you hope and a future. I will not abandon you to the grave. I delight in what you delight in. I know the desires of your heart. You sit in this field of flowers. While there is beauty all around you, to Me, there is nothing more beautiful than you in this field. While I know you see yourself as old, I see young and vibrant.

"Surrender all that you are to Me this day, Erin, and let Me take you on the wings of eagles where I call you. I will heal your brokenness. I am about to do something in your days you would not believe even if you were told. Are you ready?"

I suddenly remembered the eagles diving for fish and that they were so strong and beautiful. I soon became emboldened by the thoughts of flying and living free.

Me: In an uncharacteristically loud voice! "I was born ready!"

God and I then laughed together. As He laughed, the ground rolled and the flowers waved. While this seems like it could be scary, I felt incredible peace from His laughter. This is hard to explain though.

God: "Actually, Erin, it took fifty or so years."

Me: Smiling. "Then I surrender my life to You as I am, Father, for my days are numbered by the doctors. While they have plans for me too, there is a cost."

God: "I am your Creator and Father and I have you. Rejoice and be glad. What I open, no one will shut. What I shut, no one will open. I have now placed before you an open door."

Right there in front of me appeared a door in the middle of the field of flowers I was in. The door was being held open by a door jam. The door was beautiful and tall and had the same four panels I had seen before here. The door opened and light immediately started to stream through it. I jumped to my feet and ran to opening of the door.

God: "No one can shut this door, Erin. I know that you have very little strength, yet you have kept My Word and have not denied My Name. As you have kept My command to endure with patience, I will also keep you from the hour of testing that is about to come upon the whole world. Now, do not fear what is soon to come. Walk through the door that I have opened. Rejoice, Erin, rejoice!"

I then walked through the door that God had presented to me.

Dear Father,

Thank You for another day! Thank You for Your love. Thank You for all that we have. I love You. No matter what happens, I love You! Since I have come to know You in the depths of my despair, I cannot imagine living a life here without You.

Father, my head hurts today. My neck hurts so badly that my stomach is sick. I see the brain specialist in just a few days and I am scared. I opened the file on my films and I can see the infected area compared to the other healthy half of my brain. I am scared.

Father, I do not want surgery. Please let us be able to go to the place of our hearts instead, just as You have previously promised us. I long for the smells and the beautiful air. I long to see everything one last time just in case I am no longer able to see.

Oh Father, I realize that I am sounding like a baby right now, so please forgive me. You are a great mystery to me so perhaps this is how You will heal me. Perhaps this is the place where my children are to flourish, just as You have also promised. I do not know.

I feel as if I have done everything in the manner You have instructed me to do. We have waited on You and have continued to live our lives as normal as we possibly can, especially given that we know that You have a plan greater than our imaginations.

Whenever I ask You, 'How can this even be possible?', You patiently remind me that You are our Father and the King Who owns the cattle on a thousand hills. Since You are our Creator, You have full control over the course of all of it. Without You, there is no hope. Apart from You, there is only death.

Lord, my life and the lives of my children, family and friends are all in Your hands today and every day. We need not one miracle, but several miracles. If it were just myself and my husband, we could manage, but the doors are also shut for our children, especially our sons.

When I was my sons' ages, I was already planning my future with great excitement. While we have encouraged all of them to go forward with living as we do not know for certain when all this will come to be, each one says the same thing...'The Lord is having us wait on Him just like He has you waiting.'

What can I say to them in reply, especially because I know this to be true, at least based on our current circumstances? While a life with You surrendered to Your Will is an exciting life, I now understand how difficult it was for the Israelites in the desert to patiently wait for You.

It was not too long ago that I would scoff at the impatience of the Israelites. After all, they had seen God part the Red Sea. They had seen God release them from their enemy's grip and certain death. He created a pillar of light by night and a cloud by day. How could they not believe and trust in Him fully?

Well, I can now say I understand why. We have experienced so many miraculous events by the hand of God just as He has promised, yet here I am wondering if I have heard from Him correctly. Even though He then sends signs to confirm His Words, along with a gift of life to show me He is with me, I am still scared.

This morning, there was one baby woodchuck waiting for me to bring peanuts. The little guy came to greet me and allowed me to pet him while he ate. Every time a construction truck drove by, he would run under the deck before coming back out.

He stayed right next to my leg, using it to hide him from their sight and to shelter him from danger. Despite this, I could still feel his little body shake and his heart beating. I told him that, if he stays on our property, he would be safe, but, down there, he will be trapped. He looked up at me almost as if he could understand what I was saying.

He then stood up on his hind legs to get a better look. I assured him he would be okay. Oh Father, I am that little woodchuck. Please forgive me for my anxiousness. Believing in Your promises gives me hope and a future. Believing that I am crazy only gives me fear, a fear I know only comes from the enemy.

Father, school starts for our girls in around 50 days or so. How will all of this come together? While this is simply impossible in my human mind, nothing is impossible for You. Oh Father, all of our hopes are in You and You alone.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

Jesus was standing right there in front of me. He was smiling at me with a love that could never be quantified or adequately described.

Jesus: "If I care about your little woodchuck, how much more do I care about you? I love you. Please trust Me, Erin. You have nothing to lose here. As I have you, your husband, children and friends, why worry about tomorrow? I know your needs before you ask. Have I ever let you fall?"

Me: "No, Lord. However, when I have acted on my own, I have been humiliated."

Jesus: "Then this is the beginning of becoming humbled as you cannot have one without the other. This is also the beginning of wisdom for you." He smiled.

Me: "While I would never want to repeat this, my severe humiliation is what led me here in the first place. It also led me to more knowledge of You and Your ways. I was brought very low by my own selfish desires. I guess this led to wisdom."

Jesus: "Yes, Erin, but even more than that. Others have also gained knowledge from your experiences. Now, I will not let you fall. I am within your gates and you will not fall. I will help you at the break of day. I am pleased by your surrender to Me and My purposes. Since you love Me and your hope is in Me, I will not delay.

"I will do all that I have promised. Your times of rest and reflection are coming to a close for I am going to do something in your days that you would not believe even if you were told. And no, Erin, this is not referring doom and destruction, understand? Now, enjoy your day as joy is waiting for you. You are loved, Erin!" He hugged me.

Dear Father,

I love You! I cannot praise You enough for all that we have. I am sorry that I sometimes become discouraged when the pain seems to take the place of joy. It is just so difficult to have both together at the same time. As for today, it seems as if You have granted me a temporary reprieve from the pain. Thank You as this feels fantastic.

Earlier this morning, I sat on a small bench in our yard. There was barely a sound. I looked around me at all of the beautiful things in nature that You have created and I realized yet again that You are so beyond worldly description.

No earthly image of a god could create all that You have. The angels cannot nor can any man. However, You, Father, are God over all things and the Divine Creator of all that we see here and in Heaven. There is no one like You.

I feel so small in the great scheme of all that You have done. Even so, You have created me and You even call me friend. How can this be? How can I add to anything? Even though I cannot, You somehow see something in me that delights You!

I must admit that, at times and with our children, I sometimes struggle to find qualities that make me truly joyful. I am sorry to say this, but this sometimes holds true. However, out of nowhere, these are the usual times when they then say something special or perform a chore without being asked.

When this happens, I then think, ‘Okay, my labor has not been in vain.’ However, what I still truly long for is healing for all of us. I find myself waiting for a soon to come day, a day of mystery. This will be a day like no other day.

This will be a day similar to the morning when Jesus’ tomb was empty and He appeared to those who thought He had been buried. What shock and joy! A day like no other day! Victory over the grave! Today we find ourselves waiting for a similar day. We wait for a day when our mourning is turned into dancing.

The following is a case that I have made to God in His Courts and is partially based on Psalm 30. This Scripture celebrates the rebuilding of the Temple of God. In similar fashion, the Holy Spirit that dwells within us makes our bodies similar to a 'Temple of the Lord', a vessel to be used as a type of 'Holy Sacrifice'.

Based on this, I pleaded for the Lord to fortify my walls. I petitioned that the foundation of the Lord be built on His Word and on His 'Solid Rock'. I prayed and asked that no unholy thing enters my 'temple' or that no unholy thing comes out of it.

In other words, my desire is that the Lord makes my body into His 'temple' and a type of vessel to be used by Him. I ask that He makes us new and that He creates a new spirit in us. I ask that He makes all things new.

I pray that He soon makes us an 'Army of God'. Once He does, I pray that He equips us with the ability to scale a wall with ease and to walk through fire and not be burned. By Your Words, Father, You speak of these miracles being manifested in us. The Scripture outlines that we will perform mighty deeds in Your Name.

Since this has not happened yet at any time in history, I strongly believe that these promises in Scripture are for right now. Well, why not? While there have been 'glimmers' of these gifts displayed at times throughout history, I believe that You will soon do something in our days that we would not believe even if we were told.

Jesus: "Erin, come up."

I was sitting on a bench overlooking God's Valley in Heaven. It was so beautiful and had flowering vines and trees everywhere. The grass looked so beautiful and velvety that I desired to lay down and take a nap. I then went into the valley to do just that.

I found a spot next to a peaceful waterfall that flowed into the River of Life. While I could also hear birds singing, their songs were actual songs of praise. The fragrance surrounding me was amazing. The best I can describe this as is it was like freshly mowed grass mixed with an array of scents from florals and spices.

I closed my eyes to take in all of the different fragrances. Even though I had intended to close my eyes for just a few minutes, I must have soon drifted off. I was now having a 'dream within a dream'.

Sub-dream description begins...

I was walking with my children on a country road when we noticed a large storm coming in on us. We looked around and decided to take shelter in an old abandoned farmhouse. The house was quite large, so we decided to wait out the storm on the north end of the house.

After the storm had passed, I walked into the kitchen area. To my surprise, there was a woman there dressed in business attire speaking on her cellphone. I cleared my throat in order to alert her that I was there. She looked at me and quickly ended her call.

Woman: "What are you doing in my house?"

Me: "We needed to take shelter from the storm that just came and we saw this house. We thought it was abandoned and hoped that no one would mind. We are sorry for startlinging you."

Woman: "Okay, no problem. May I get you all something to eat or drink before you leave?"

Me: "No. Thank you for offering though."

As we had already looked in the fridge and the pantry while we waited out the storm and had seen that the food was no longer fresh, a polite decline was in order. The woman then left the room, but then soon called to me from a different room.

When I entered this room, I quickly noticed that she was sitting at a very high-end desk with a just as high-end rug under it. As these two expensive items seemed somewhat out of place with the rest of the furnishings, this left me somewhat confused.

Just as she was about to speak to me, her phone rang. After a brief conversation, she started to quickly pack her things up in order to rush out.

Woman: "I have to run. Please lock the place up before you leave."

Me: "While I would love to lock the place up when we leave, I do not know how we can as there is no locks on the doors."

While I could tell by the change in expression on her face that she had heard me, she left the house without replying. I called out to our children.

Me: "Okay everyone, it is time to gather our things and leave."

Just as we began to leave, several people, all in their 20s, started showing up at the house. They seemed quite startled to see us in the house. If their clothes were any indication, it seemed as if they were poor. One of the young men addressed me.

Young man: "What are you doing in our home?"

Me: "I am so sorry for this. We had thought the house to be abandoned and that we could take shelter from a storm that was coming in on us. There was a woman here earlier today and we explained this to her as well."

Young man: "You should buy this house from us. Our grandpa built the home and lived here. When he died, he decided to leave it to us. However, we do not want it."

Me: "I am confused. How can you sell it? The woman from earlier said that she owned the house."

Young man: "Oh, her. She wants to steal the house from us. She has already stolen the legal documents to the house."

Me: "Oh no, she is trying to swindle you. Do not worry though as the original deed will show that your grandfather owns the house and gave it to you. It will not be difficult to prove this to be true."

Young man: "You really need to see this home. You will not even believe how amazing the living room is. Come!"

When I entered the room, it was so amazing that it took my breath away. There were two large trees coming from below the floor boards and reached all the way up to the ceiling. The ceiling was made of glass and you could see millions and millions of stars up in the heavens.

I knew in my heart that such a sight would not even be possible on Earth unless God blessed it supernaturally. The sky above the glass was supernaturally clear and dark in order to see the stars. The trees were in perfect condition and the branches of each tree met each other to form a perfect archway.

Me: "This is so beautiful. What is this?"

Young man: "My grandfather would meet with God here."

Me: "Why would you want to sell this to me? Why do you not want to keep it?"

Young man: "It's simple. God does not talk to us here. He left this place when our grandfather died."

I felt in my heart that God was not meeting with them because they were 'partiers'. I then guessed that they probably never tried to meet Him here. I decided to keep this speculation to myself as I did not want to offend them.

Me: "How much do you want for this property?"

Young man: "Well, there are many acres and a small lake. However, there is also rock outcroppings that make farming the land quite difficult. How about all of it for $185,000?"

I did not know how to reply at first as I did not have that kind of money and I was still not sure about their rights to the land. I was about to reply 'no' when I suddenly felt an overwhelming Holy Spirit prompting to agree to buy the property for $185,000.

I was then somehow supernaturally able to pay for it. In no time, we were able to get the official deed to the entire estate transferred from them to me. My children and I then decided to settle in when, just a few days later, the woman showed up at the house.

Woman: "Who told you that you could install new locks on all of the doors? What are you all still doing here? This is my home and you have overstayed your welcome. I want you all to leave immediately."

Me: "Hold on a second. I have some paperwork to show you."

I retrieved the paperwork and laid it out on the table. I could see her grimace when she noticed that the county commissioner had sealed the bill of sale and that there was a deed from the courthouse. She immediately became extremely outraged.

Woman: "This was my deal. I had this finalized. You stole the sale from me."

Me: "No, I did not. We were offered the property and I purchased it."

Woman: "How much? How much did you pay for this?"

Me: "$185,000."
